WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, putting part of the blame on Congress for the collapse in Nicaragua, said Wednesday the need for military aid for the Contra rebels is now "too apparent," it cannot be opposed.

"We've got to restore the threat," the Sandinistas," he said in an interview with foreign reporters. "They must ... that the people of Nicaragua do have a force there that can be used to bring about an equitable settlement.

But Reagan refused to say if he would sign an aid package, he put the onus for the breakdown on talk last week on the congressional refusal to provide new aid.

"I'm not going to give any answer right now. We're discussing where we go from here and what we're going to do," Reagan said.

But asked if he thinks it is "too apparent" that aid for the rebels, Reagan said, "I believe it is, so I will submit an aid package — though he put the onus for the breakdown last week on the congressional refusal to provide new aid.

"It is apparent that the Sandinistas are not going to democratize... and it seems to me that the efforts that have been made in Congress and succeeded in reducing and eliminating our ability to help the freedom fighters, that they have literally given a signal to the Sandinistas that they can continue to hold out," he said.

Edgocators lobby for tax increase

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Capitol was filled with teachers and educators Wednesday urging lawmakers to vote in favor of the governor's tax increase proposal.

James R. Thompson, the state's $5.6 billion tax hike proposal for schools and human services.

More than 2,000 educators attended the Illinois Education Association and the Illinois Federation of Teachers lobby day for the Legislature to approve appropriations — the House and Senate twice in the past two days.

Although there are no tax increase proposals before the House or Senate, there are "skelton" bills in both chambers that could be modified to include a tax increase. Brown, the legislative expert in the chancellor's office, said.

Brown doubted the committee would take final action on the appropriations bill until the tax questions were resolved.

If Pettit and the other education leaders — including presidents of every major university in the state, the representatives of the Board of Regents and Board of Governors — favor the University's aid request, taxes will be increased.

Pettit said he would stress a large number of Illinois schools are not supported by education funding, and if he was allowed to

At the Student Center Wednesday, graduate student in philosophy Darrel Johnson (right) assisted James Quisenberry, graduate student in computer science, in filling out cards supporting a state tax increase. The cards are to be sent to state legislators.

Postcard petitioners plea for tax increase

By Robert Baxter

University officials are asking campus, state, and surrounding area residents to sign postcards to lawmakers in Springfield.

The University Relations and News Service employees are soliciting postcard signatures from students, faculty and staff at a table in the Student Center.

The postcards will be sent to legislators in support of a 1 percent personal income tax increase and a 1.6 percent increase in the corporate income tax.

Last year, Governor James R. Thompson signed a law for a tax increase to help fund education, but the University's budget was cut 1.9 percent, resulting in a $100,000 loss for fall.

The postcards, printing and postage are being paid for by private donations to the University. The organization that formed in May to begin a public information effort said it is imperative to pass a tax increase to fund higher education.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit has requested a three percent increase in the state's education budget in Springfield.

Grad students share award

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Two SIU-C graduates shared the University’s first Outstanding Dissertations Award recently.

Klaas Bakker and James E. Weber, both 1987 SIU-C Ph.D. graduates, were honored at the commencement on May 15.

Bakker, a native of Rotterdam, Netherlands, completed his graduate studies in the Department of Communication Disorders and Sciences. He is currently a visiting assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee School of Allied Health Professions.

Weber, a graduate of the Department of Physiology, is currently working toward a Ph.D. degree in the Netherlands, and was honored at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee School of Allied Health Professions.

Student’s jury trial rescheduled

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The jury trial for a University student charged with obstruction of justice after a fatal accident has been rescheduled for July 18.

The charges against Robert H. Mitchell, a senior in plant and soil science, stem from an October 1987 automobile accident that killed University student Patrick Wixom.

Mitchell’s trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday morning in the Coles County Courthouse in Charleston, but the date was changed to July 18.

On the night of the accident, Wixom and Mitchell were driving to a football game in Champaign when the accident occurred at 1:35 a.m. on Interstate 57, four miles south of Arcola.

After the accident, Mitchell, of Rockford, had told police that he was intoxicated and could not remember the accident. Mitchell also said he believed someone wearing a jean jacket had been driving the jeep.

Weeks later, Mitchell admitted to being the driver of the jeep at the time of the accident. A Nov. 12 coroner’s jury ruled that Wixom’s death was a reckless homicide blaming the driver of the vehicle. Wixom also was from Rockford.

If convicted, Mitchell could be sentenced to one to three years for obstructing justice, a class four felony.

Peace convoy stopped at border

LAREDO, Texas (UPI) — U.S. Customs agents Wednesday halted a peace convoy carrying humanitarian aid to Nicaragua in violation of an embargo on military goods.

A spokesman for the Veterans Peace Convoy said the group stopped traffic in both directions.

The group had been stopped by customs officials, causing a traffic backup that reached into downtown Laredo.

Outside view sought in Wright case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Wednesday “everyone would feel better” if an independent investigator were named to probe charges against House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas.

The House committee announced it was conducting a preliminary inquiry into allegations against Wright, but Republicans who attack Wright have urged that a special outside counsel be named to investigate the charges.

Reagan gave his views on the appointment of a special investigator in an interview with several foreign newspapers and at the Los Angeles Times in connection with the upcoming economic summit in Canada.

The president was asked about suggestions Wright improperly profited from a book and whether the controversy "might mar the impact of the ethics questions in the presidential campaign."

He said he would "fall back on the same thing I've done with other people," - an apparent reference to allegations against top members of his administration, including Attorney General Edwin Meese.

"I think it is proper that there is an investigation going forward with regard to these charges, but I don't think that anyone should give an opinion until we know whether they are just accusations or whether they have really happened," Reagan said.

Wright’s office had no immediate response to the president’s comment.

Optimism is premature; Tax increase isn't final

GOV. JAMES R. Thompson says you can blame him for the last tuition hike. Last week, while asking lawmakers to approve a 40 percent income tax increase, he said his 1987 tax hike efforts were "no one's fault but mine."

As a result of Thompson's admitted failure, education funding took a 4.5 percent reduction from which it has not bounced back. The $100 per semester tuition increase slapped on the students over Christmas break barely made a dent in the cut Big Jim served up.

THOMPSON SEEMS TO be doing a better job of promoting the tax increase this year. Lawmakers and the public are being bombarded with questions on issues ranging from the last tuition hike. Last week, while asking lawmakers to increase the state's faltering education system.

Call to end exploitation of pop music reaches ears deaf to rock 'n' roll

Although I have two sons who have actually earned money playing rock music, I don't know much about this art form. I've admitted as much in past columns. Oh, I'm not totally ignorant. I know that under the strict rules of rock composition, the listener is not supposed to understand what the singer is shouting. Or if you happen to decipher the lyrics, they aren't supposed to make sense anyway.

And I know that the most admired rock performers are those who can play an electric instrument while twirling, bending on their backs, crawling or diving into the audience. I'm also aware that the two most popular singers today are Bruce Springboard and a fellow named Debbie. But if you ask me to name a song or a musical group, I have to admit that I don't know the Terminally ill from the Grateful Dead, or the Jefferson Airport from the Rolling Bone.

So I was surprised when a fan of rock music asked for my support in defending rock music against those who would denounce and exploit it. The rock fan, Larry DeAngelo of Franklin Park, Ill., is in the shoe business. He is terrifically upset because some of his favorite classic rock songs are being used in commercials. As he says: "I grew up in the '60s, with the finest of the finest, the biggest rock and roll music the world has ever known. I want to know who is responsible for the defacement and degradation of the life blood sounds I treasure."

In the early 60's, Carl Simon's song "Anticipation" was turned into a ketchup commercial. I'm not familiar with this song, but I'm not totally ignorant. That most of them were young rascals. On the other hand, while flipping channels recently, I did see a glimpse of a group called the Beach Boys and they seemed to be getting up in years. Whatever the case, I find nothing wrong with those who drink Dr. Pepper being exposed to "Good Lovin," especially if they are consenting adults.

Although Dr. Pepper drinkers are not considered hip, they're just as entitled to "Good Lovin" as someone who drinks chablis or puts powder in their noses. Maybe the old rascals who wrote that song were simply trying to reach out to the Dr. Pepper crowd, especially those who might have had the unfortunate experience of bad lovin'. Actually, there is nothing new about great music being used in TV and radio commercials. I've heard Beethoven, Mozart and Strauss used to sell everything from cars to cough medicine. While these composers haven't attained the musical stature of somebody like the Mommas and the Papas, they, too, have their loyal fans. I'm sure if Beethoven, Mozart and the others were around today, they wouldn't object to their music being used in commercials, so long as they were paid.

And they'd probably be rock fans, too. Remember, Mozart talked dirty and Beethoven was deaf.

I'm also unfamiliar with "Good Lovin" and the old rascals who wrote it. The fact that there are any old rascals involved in rock music is surprising. I thought that most of them were young rascals. CONTRAS, from page 1

House meeting, said the lawmakers must "make sure that the president knew that we were opposed to it and that we wanted him to." Edwards, while holding out hope that last Thursday's collapse of Contra-Sandinista peace talks may have won new congressional support for the rebels, conceded Contra supporters probably do not have the votes to win another and doubted they could have the votes last time we tried this.

But Edwards, referring to Reagan's recent summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and next week's summit of Western European de ditrustalized democracies, said, "It's important to go to Moscow and it's important to get the INF treaty signed ... but we wanted to make sure that his attention is given" to the Contras.

Edwards said the White House session — attended by more than a dozen House members of both parties — was aimed at ensuring that the White House knew that we felt that there had to be more aggressive leadership from the administration." Wednesday, leaders of the Nicaraguan rebel force spent a second day in Washington meeting with administration and congression leaders in a last-ditch renewed military aid.

But Fitzwater said, "No decisions were made or courses of action laid out" but an administration review will conclude this week. "Everyone agreed that we needed to be more involved and we promised them that our negotiations would continue and we would decide on a course of action soon."

Soccer riots go on; Thatcher enraged

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, enraged at three nights of rioting by British soccer fans in West Germany, dispatched her sports minister to make an urgent appeal. Several hundred English and German soccer fans fought pitched street battles that lasted into the early hours of Wednesday in Dusseldorf, following riots in Stuttgart and Cologne Sunday and Monday.

In the Dusseldorf riots, West German police reported 10 people arrested. Of those English fans visiting the country for the European football championships, two policemen were slightly injured but the number of soccer fans hurt in the confrontations was not immediately known, a police spokesman said.

Newspapers in Britain carried photographs of the English fans, many of them sporting crimson bibs, striped heavy boots and T-shirts with the inscription, "English Invasion of Germany." "Scum fans at it again," the Star tabloid said in a headline to a story describing Tuesday's night of violence. "These thugs must be stopped," said London's Evening Standard. "Top of the anti-boilover agenda is expected to be whether or not to put pressure on the Football Association to pull England out of the tournament to avoid further violence."

But the government envisaged no such immediate action as officials in West Germany geared for further trouble Wednesday night when England was scheduled to play the Netherlands.

Hughes says expertise is key for AD

By Ron Sone
Staff Writer

Athletics director candidate Jerry Hughes said Wednesday that his expertise in athletic administration, from knowledge of NCAA rules and regulations, his administrative skills, his ability to work with staff, his communication, fundraising and promotional skills — I can do it all,” Hughes said after interviews with search committee members.

Hughes said he has always wanted to be an athletic director at a Division I school. He applied for athletics director here in 1983 when Jim Livengood was selected.

“The president and the community at that point in time thought I was the best man for the job and I respect that. I hope they get the best man this time, whoever it may be.”

Hughes sees a very bright future for Saluki athletics. “This program has enormous potential and, under the right leadership, can become nationally recognized.” Before the session Wednesday, Alumni Association President Richard Small said, “We’ve got to do anything and everything to keep SIU climbing. We need better and more consistent leadership in the athletic program than we’ve had to this point.”

Hughes, who is athletics director of Central Missouri State University, spent 7½ years as basketball coach, athletics director and assistant principal at Morgan County High School in Versailles, Mo. In 1979 he joined the business administration staff at CMSU as the business placement officer and became athletics director in January of 1983.

Hughes said the SIU athletic program needs “consistent direction and leadership from the athletics director’s office.”

Hughes said SIU will attend more interviews today including an open question-and-answer session with the Student Center Auditorium.

Hughes said he is also Interested in the SIU-C athletics director position. Hughes said he will be interviewed June 23 and 24.

Summer volleyball camps help teach, aid in recruitments

To the campers, summer volleyball camps are a learning experience. To the staff, they are a chance to share abilities.

And to SIU-C volleyball coach Debbie Hunter, it is a chance to see the enthusiasm of the kids and give them the chance to do something they really like to do.

“Just for me, to see the enthusiasm of the kids and give them the chance to do something they really like to do, to give me the best out of it, she said.

Hunter also said it as a “business adventure.” “It’s a way to give the staff a chance to do something they really like to do, to give them a chance to do it,” she said.

Despite the large number attending, the staff has a lot of room to improve.

“People would be appalled if a coach couldn’t do it,” Hunter said.

“Tt’s been a good, steady, healthy growth rate,” she said. “We’ve been very innovative.” Hunter said. “We’ve had to do things that allow the players to get to the next level.”

The camps have a hidden purpose, also, Hunter said. “Every now and then, it leads us to a recruit,” she said, “its sole purpose is far from recruitment, but sometimes it helps.”

Hunter said the camps also provide a pre-college preparation experience for the kids that really want to be on a college team. “We give them a small example of what to expect,” she said.

Hunters start the camps 13 years ago when she began working for SIU-C. Then it was only a one-day clinic with approximately 40 kids, “It’s had a good, steady, healthy

Coaching is serious, accreditor says

1984 USA men’s Olympic volleyball team assistant coach Bill Neville says coaching needs to be treated more seriously.

It is an awesome and incredible responsibility, he said.

Neville is the director of the National Coaching Accreditation Program and is visiting the SIU-C campus to help with the coaches’ clinic being held from June 14 through 16 in Davies Gymnasium.

“I am addressing what I think is a very serious profession. A coach is an intimate, continual, impactful contact for kids.”

“If I do all the things that need to be done,” he said.

Neville coordinated 25 coaches’ clinics being held around the country this year, he said. He said one reason he chose to attend this camp is the reputation of SIU-C volleyball coach Debbie Hunter.

“Debbie is one of the most respected coaches,” he said. “I think many people in this area area that.”

Neville was an Assistant Coach of the 1968 U.S. Olympic Volleyball Team, the 1968 U.S. All Army Men’s Team, and the 1976 Canadian Men’s National and Olympic Teams.

Salukis on radio gets close

The contract for the radio broadcasting of Saluki sports is in the hands of O.L. Turner, owner of Turner Communications.

The contract allows Turner Communications to set up a network of radio stations to carry Saluki football and men’s basketball games and to begin a coaches’ show.

The University signed the contract with Turner Communications Tuesday.

“We’ve got an agreement on the contract,” said Turner, who owns WEHO-FM. “It’s just the formalities of the press conference we’re waiting for.”

Turner is waiting to hear from SIU-C’s acting athletics director whether or not the contract will be signed at the press conference this week.

“We’re planning to sign the contract and present it to her at that time,” he said. It will probably be held in the next couple of days, he said. West was unavailable for comment.

Herrin’s camp may be canceled

Rich Herrin’s “Big Man Camp,” which was scheduled to begin Friday, probably will be canceled because of lack of interest.

Assistant athletics director Larry Cavan and Saluki men’s basketball coach Herrin’s camp, which was designed for “big, inside players,” has not attracted enough participants.

A day camp for young children drew about 130 applicants last week, but the camp, which would extend through June 19, is selective about who can participate.

During trouble drawing large enough basketball players in the younger and younger age group.

The camp could cost $80 for those who will be provided housing and $65 for commuters, and is run by the Athletics Department and the Division of Continuing Education.

Profits, if any, go toward the individual camp.
