TENTATIVE PLAN FOR CURRICULUM TO BE ADOPTED

FIRST TWO YEARS WORK NEARLY COMPLETED BY COMMITTEE

MORE FLEXIBLE AND GENERAL

QUARTER-HOURS NEEDED FOR GRADUATION TO BE REDUCED

Making last minute work with the President, Dr. Thomas R. Meek, the final report of the curriculum committee consisted of 61 semester hours for the first two years of the college course. There was no change in the total of 124 semester hours for the four years. The new plan provides for a decided reduction in the number of minutes needed for graduation, and it was adopted by the Board of Trustees. The new plan of work, worked out by a committee of the faculty, is printed above.

Again many persons wonder why the college could not have more students with high scholastic averages. Contrariwise, the college feels that it does not need any students who are not equipped to do so in the college's work, for the college is not a place for just anybody.

To make the promise of more recognition for this deserving group of college students, this year the college has introduced the title of Interfraternity Sings. It has been very popular and extremely successful.

Although participation in this event is limited to the Greek fraternity organizations, there is no logical reason for independent students not to take advantage of the opportunity, although probably not technically perfect, should be available to them.

In order to make sure that a worthwhile custom on this campus, the-preliminary Interfraternity Sing should secure the support of the entire student body and faculty.

MAYBE THIS WOULD KEEP THEM

For some time there has been considerable agitation in some circles as to why fewer students in Carbondale attend the University. The idea that perhaps fewer students remain in Carbondale over the summer months is certainly desirable, but we do not see how such a practice could be made possible.

It is obvious that the majority of the community in charge of amusement entertainment designed to keep the student body occupied during the summer months has insufficient funds or opportunities to provide more attractive entertainment, if available.

The Egyptian is not going on record as favoring this plan, as it may be an indication of a loss of attention to cultural activities, if the Egyptian is to subscribe that such a situation would result.

Who's Who in Carbondale

There are, of course, a number of things which contribute to the success of a paper. An alert, ambitious staff can accomplish much—provided that the staff is organized so as to function properly. Our advertisers furnish their own source.

We are grateful to all our advertisers and particularly to those who contribute to our success.

TWO YEARS AGO

For more than three hundred students applied for admission from the two-year and four-year courses.

Henry Bauman was selected as the student representative on the main campus, May 15, and Mrs. S. T. C. received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Egyptian ran an editorial urging student support for the coming campus carnival.

James White was elected president, Kathryn Miller vice-president, and Arthur Clutter, secretary, to preside over the bicentennial meetings.

The Egyptian reports that student interest is still high.

The school is in the hands of the student body, which is happily responsible and efficient.

NICE WORK. KEEP IT UP

Last week the Egyptian began the printing of part of the pages entered in the State College Press Association's competition. Very good, both in the number of pages entered and in the condition of the work, was the result.

This contest has been a worthy culmination of the year's work and a challenge to all the students to maintain the high standards set by their predecessors. It is hoped that the students will live up to the challenge.

The Egyptian literary society is deserving of mention in this connection, as it has been the leader in the development of the literary work of the college.

May we hope that more of those literary societies will take advantage of the opportunities for future responsibility by the students shall be as good.
College Art Majors and Curious Students View Art Exhibit; Some Approve, Others--Well!

By AN UNNAMED REPORTER

The college's art major students showed greater interest than the general public when a rare collection of paintings was exhibited in the campus last Wednesday afternoon. The paintings were the works of some of the college's distinguished artists, including many from the local area. The exhibit, which included works from the past and present, was well received by the students who participated. Some of the paintings were exhibited in the art gallery of the college and were open to the public.

The students observed that the paintings were well presented and would be of interest to the general public. Some of the paintings were displayed in the gallery and were open to the public.

The program of the American Institute of Public Officials should be of particular interest to college major students because of its unique study of the role of the college in America. The college's arts and sciences program will be discussed at the program, which will be broadcast on radio.

The results of the poll taken by the college's students were not as expected. The students indicated that they preferred to attend college in the arts and sciences program, which was offered by the college. However, they were not interested in the program, which was offered by the college's art department.

The results of the poll were surprising and perhaps a reflection of the college's students' interest in the arts and sciences program. The college's students indicated that they preferred to attend college in the arts and sciences program, which was offered by the college.
