Dr. Gilkey Visits S. I. N. U. Campus

The Christian Associations Bring Noted Pastor and Lecturer to the Campus for Three-Day Session. Annual Event for the "ivies".

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey has now come and gone, but he has not left us empty handed. To the entire student body he made a lasting contribution and to some individuals his memory shall always remain as the most cherished and most influencing contact in their school life.

His final address was given at Chapel Monday morning. President Shryock welcomed Dr. Gilkey to S. I. N. U. in behalf of the school and the Christian Associations.

Dr. Gilkey used as his analogy a well-known fact of botany that when a tree is burned in the vacuum furnace those elements which it received through the soil and which one would think would remain most stable fall away into ashes while those which came to it through the atmosphere were the ones which remained unchanged.

He then said that the classroom work was very mercenary. You must get it or get out, but it is not the most important thing in college life. Ten years after graduation most of the names of history, formulated in chemistry, etc., are forgotten but the ideals derived from campus life remain. Athletics are important and most useful, but not the most important phase of school life. College activities, such as school paper, society, fraternity, etc., are useful and pleasant but not the most important. These things will all add up but one attitude toward life picked up during school years remains.

Dr. Gilkey was awarded a fellowship and spent two years abroad. But he said it was not the particular facts but a view point, a certain attitude towards life's values the atmosphere of the school which he cherished most. He said William James great influence on him came through the impact of James personality and that thousands of things which he said were forgotten, but we need not forget the man who said them.

Homecoming at the Frat

Well when I read in the home-coming edition of the Egyptian, the editorial article which closed with that "Old Pal of Mine," I knew then and there that I was going back to see those old pals, especially at the Fraternity.

Do you belong to Sigma Alpha Pi? Well, if you don't you will never know fully how to appreciate homecoming.

The handy-Andy of the Sigma, Co-Ed Williams was at the station to meet every train and usher you on an ocean of friendship and brotherly love to the palatial home of the Sigma. And how did you meet when you arrived? None other than 'Leo!' Burford, editor-in-chief, president of a half dozen social organizations, and on this special occasion chief-cook-boss-and-head-washer of Sigma Alpha Pi. To say the above is to say the least. He is also a genuine toastmaster. He knows what satisfies a hungry army, he who has ridden a long way with anxious waiting heart to do homage to the old dear S. I. N. U. and whether it is 9:30, 12:00 or 3:00 A.M. it satisfies all the same.

The other droppers arrived in one by one until 3:00 A.M. when the old familiar hymn, "Hall, Hall the Gang All Here," resounded in the forty autumnal breezes from the throats of 25 loyal Sigs and patriotic S. I. N. U.'s.

But, oh, that generous scooting, heart-warming cordial, hospitable, homely, joyous, overloading, God appealing WELCOME with which one was greeted. Could you ever forget it? And 'little Ham's epitaph, 'God Bless Them Everybody,' was an appropriate phrase breathed by everyone who came back. And to show the esteem and respect in which these were held who could not come back, we all stood round the board where we had not so often to gather for refreshments and with bread and solemn hearts breathed a moment of prayer for the Hayden boys and their families.

To show no hatred was held by any of the old bunch, two former Sigma members showed some remarkable wisdom, endurance

Agriculture Club

The agricultural club has been working under a great handicap this year, due to the fact that so many of the old members graduated last year. The Club started this year with only about twenty-five members, and the majority of these were first or second year students, but even under these conditions our Club is rapidly growing in membership with a total present at present of about fifty. Old members who are in school this year, but who have not as yet joined for this year are especially requested to return to the Club and help raise its enrollment and high standard to that of last year.

The program given Wednesday evening, Nov. 7, 1923, was as follows:

Music - Colored Chorus Reading - Winnie Copeland Not on Picture - "Out of the Shadow"

The music was given by a chorus of colored students, five boys and five girls. This is the first time to my knowledge that the colored students of the school have taken part in a program of any club or society of this school. To show how much they were appreciated I need merely to say that they were encored for the third time.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Logan and Mr. Thomas, our county farm advisor, we were able to show the Federal Tuberculosis film put out by the United States Department of Agriculture. This film showed how to clean up a tubercle herd, and the effect which tubercle milk will have on the health of the people who drink it.

The program for next week, November 23, is as follows:

Music - Delilah Jolly Reading - Ina Galbraith Current Events - Cecil Dorris Talk - Ralph Warren Debate: Resolved that pork is more profitable than hogs in Southern Illinois

Everybody cordially invited.

Dr. Della Caldwell spoke at the "pearance County Farmers' Institute held at Sparta Saturday.

POEMS WORTH REMEMBERING

The Wants of Man.
"Man wants but little here below, Nor wants that little long."
"This not with me exactly so, But in the song.
My wants are a many and, if told
Would muster many a score; And were each wish a mint of gold, I still should long for more.

What first I want is daily bread—
And canvas-bags—and wine—
And all the feelings of nature appear
Before me when I dine.
Four courses scarcely can provide
My appetite to quell;
With four choice cooks from France beside,
To dress my dinner well.

What next I want at princely cost
Is elegant attire;
Black sable fur for winter’s frost
And silks for summer’s fire.
And cashmere shawls, and Brussels lace
My bosom’s front to deck,
And diamond rings my hands to grace,
And rubies for my neck.

I want who (does not want) a wife—
Affectionate and fair,
To solace all the woes of life,
And all its joys to share.
Of temper sweet, of yielding will,
Of firm, yet placid mind,—
With all my faults to love me still
With sentiment refined.

And as Time’s car incessant runs,
And Fortune fills my store,
I want of daughters and of sons.
From eight to half a score.
I want (alas! shall mortal dare
Such bliss on earth to crave?)
That all the girls be chaste and fair
The boys all wise and brave.

I want a warm and faithful friend
To cheer the adverse hour; Who ne’er to flatter will descend,
Nor bend the knee to power. —
A friend to chide me when I’m wrong,
My inmost soul to see;
And that my friendship prove as strong
For him as his for me.

I want the seals of power and place,
The ensigns of command;
Charged by the People’s unbought grace
To rule my native land.
Nor crown nor scepter would I ask
But from my country’s will,
By day, by night, to ply the task Her cup of bliss to fill.

I want the voice of honest praise
To follow me behind.
And to be thought in future days
Of an earnest desire to gather around the hearth-stone. One was the Henry Clay of Springton, Ill. Clarence Douglas Sanford. His eager desire to be entertained either by the Sigs or by a beautiful senior (I could not tell which) caused him to forget when he arrived in his home town and carried him on to Carbondale. Thanks to the conductor for not disturbing his sombre solitude. Perhaps the hardest worker of the Sigs and evidently the most endurable of them all was Charles Gabbert, of Metropolis. Charles always depends on the train being five minutes late but Friday it was on time. Well to show he bore
Mr. Ransom Sheritz,
S. 1. N. U. Carbondale, Ill.

Dear Ransom:

Way back August days when we were studying Gen. Propontius defeated the Persians at the battle of Parnissa, you asked for some reminiscences of the school paper that was. Since that time I have covered quite a scope of territory and had many things to distend my inquired compliance with your request. What with coming west, reorganizing the truly remarkable school becoming laureled to this world famed Arizona sunshine and climate, and coming out from under the spell and lure of the school, it was easy to let opportunity slip.

Even now, I am of two minds—whether to "reminiscence" and thus keep to your assignment or give you a glimpse of the gorgeousness and splendor of these ranges with which this beautiful San Pedro Valley is bridged about—mountains which mock the clouds in contour and color and look down upon these clouds which nestle and smuggle up to them these fine October mornings, and add a variety and a background. Of three minds in fact, the third inclination being to tell you about this high school—"high" in more respects than one—a mile high or nigh it, in altitude as well as grade high. In truth, it is a school of all grades, from wee tots to Latin and Geometry students. It is as far as I know, the only school in Arizona which hauls students in from a territory stretching out over a distance of fifteen miles in different directions utilizing four buses, several burros, bicycles and horses as well as "shank horses," the buses as well as all school books and supplies (except for high school proper) being paid for by the state of district.

As a matter of human interest, I am mailing you a snap shot photo of three of the grade pupils seated in (or on) their limousine. This "vehicle" sports a wonderful strem which has won for it, the name, Arizona nightingale. "Hue Haw!" hurls me to sleep nights.

But that isn't "reminiscing." Fact is my recollection proclivities received a rude shock last summer. I had no pet reminiscence of the old camp—Lake Ridgway! You will appreciate the exclamation point. Many a time and oft upon the piazza, I had been wont to relate to drowsy audiences how I served in the student committee which startled and elated that miniature "Loch Lomond," how an enterprising Latin class entered that rep te of Caesar's bridge across one of its arms and how we loved to sit and gaze upon its pullulated waters! (Observe two exclamation points.)

Well, last summer, I went—I saw—What did I see? A puny pool with water standing out on it in huge drops—I think a hundred or more—drops—and one lone mosquito sitting on a maple leaf singing, "How can I bear to leave thee?"

I bore to "leave thee"—have held up under the pain of parts with remarkable fortitude! Never again! No more reminiscences of that "Pul-teed" lake!

There was this compensation—the, I was assured the depression was to be filled by earth taken from the excavation for the long langed for gym. And that brings us to a real reminiscence.

The first propaganda for a gym, I believe, had its birth that self same year when our class (made up mainly of state license, at which members of the faculty were attendants) put gymnasium propaganda in the school paper that was, into a glee club jingle, etc., before the word, "propaganda," was born. I had intended to give you that jingle set to the measure and air of "There Were Three" (rows Sat on a Tree," but on second thought, I desists. It was good natured rivalry at the trustees for providing the girls with blue jackets, wands, Indian clubs and the like and of putting us mere males to sit and look on if we'd be real "ladylike.

Repeated, it seemed to sound some note unsuited to memories of men, some of whom are dead. There was no lack of proper regard for either trustees or faculty, some of whom, like "Mother Puck" were outstanding educators. Still, ours was one class which insisted on something never shown on "our sheep skite"—higher educational standards along with the "methodizing." And we got...
FRIENDSHIPS

This is the second issue of the Egyptian since home-coming and if you were now asked some question as, What do you think is the chief good one gets from home-coming events, the vast majority of answers would touch upon that wonderful subject, friendship. Are the thoughts listed below, yours?

- A friend is worth all hazards we can run. - Edward Young.
- A man may travel through the world and sow it thick with friendship. Better friends can no man have than those whom God hath given. And he that had despised the gift, thought ill of that he knew not. - M. T. Yuleper.
- Faithful are the wounds of a friend. - Solomon.

Friendship made in a moment is of no moment.
False friends are worse than open enemies.
Choose your friends with care that you may have choice friends.
A faithful friend loves to the end.
He is a weak friend who cannot bear with his friend's weakness.
A friend is easier lost than found.

Friendships to be made. They do not happen. They are a Creation which takes time and sacrifice, but how tremendously worth while.

THE FRIEND.

(By Edward A Guest)
Sometimes I think we give too much to fame
And gentle manners not enough of praise.
To skilful bands a round of cheers we raise
And brilliant effort wins the world's acclaim.
The emphasis is given to a name.
But those who humble walk in honor's ways,
Piling with kindly service all their days.
Are seldom laurled. This unto our shame.

And yet the heart that feels and understands
That lifts our burdens and can share our woe,
That comes to us with brave and gentle hands
To smooth the rugged pathway we must go,
Grows dearer to us, and shall more be missed.
Than all the head and front of glory's list.

FROM DR. CILKEY'S ADDRESS
A certain freshman went to the college and fell among critics who said his clothes were not good and his manners were not the best and they robbed him of his self confidence and his enthusiasm and they departed leaving his heart sore and half dead and by chance a Junior passed that way. When he passed he said, what a good job those sophomores did. And a certain senior passed and said, "yes verily for he did not have the makings of a good fraternity man." But a certain special student passed and was moved with compassion and set him on his feet again and took him to his room and bound up his wounds pining in understanding and sympathy and friendship, introduced him to his own friends and made a man of him again. Which of these three thinkest thou? proving neighbor to the freshman that fell among the critics? posthumus and do likewise.

THAT'S PEP!
Vigor, Vitality, Vim and Punch—
That's Pep!
The courage to act on a sudden hunch—
That's Pep!
The nerve to tackle the hardest thing
With feet that climb and hands that clench.
And a heart that never forgets to sing—
That's Pep!
Sand and grit on a concrete base—
That's Pep!
Friendly smile on an honest face—
That's Pep!
The spirit that helps when another's down,
That knows how to scatter the blackest frown.
That loves its neighbor and loves its town—
That's Pep!

To say, "I will! for you know you can—
That's Pep!
To look for the best in every man—
That's Pep!
To meet each thundering knockout blow
And come back with a laugh, for well you know
You'll get the best of the whole darn show—
That's Pep!
—Grace G. Bostwick.

At Northwestern College the students are required to cut chapel once a week because the building is too small to hold the five hundred students that are enrolled. Here's hoping that the S. I. N. U. will soon have over two thousand students.

I'll bury down to town. I'm going to see my Halene.
Who brought their bountiful hopes
The two days' pleasures to share.

O, yes, they were 'cutting' and 'dashing.'
They cooed for other mothers to scoff.

But like Walt in Gasoline Alley,

CARBONDALE BEATEN, BUT
COMPLETE 6 PASSES IN ROW

(From Chicago Tribune)
CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 11.—Veteran observers of football in this section continued talk today of what is declared the most sensational forward pass attack known in Southern Illinois when yesterday the Southern Illinois Normal University football team completed five consecutive forward passes for 95 yards in two and one-half minutes against the Cape Girardeau Normal. Just as Fullback Lamar started to throw the ball for the sixth pass the game ended with Carbondale three yards away from the goal. The game ended 12–12 in the visitor's favor.

ODS TO LONG SHOT
I want to go see my Halene.
It is my only chance;
But all that keeps me from dashing out is,
I have not a "clean pressed pair of pants."

They are all "baggy" at the knee
And people laugh as I go by,
And to further spoil my beauty,
I have no "brand new tie."

But I know how I'll fix it,
I'll hurry down to town
And dash out to Halene
With "taxi" dear "Chocolate brown."

LIBRARY CHANGES HOURS
The Library is making every effort to aid the students. Year before last at the suggestion of the Student Council arrangements were made whereby the library would remain open during the noon hour. Now with the great deal of work that the students have to do in the reading room Miss Herron has announced that the Library will be open for one hour longer in the evening.

The hours now are:
School Days 8:00-5:30
Saturday 9:00-12:00

TWO COLLEGE GRADUATES RECEIVE FULL CREDIT
It will be of interest to former students and certainly the ones who have taken their degree from here to hear the experiences of two of last year's graduates. Miss Bunting entered the University of Wisconsin and received full credit for all of her work here, starting in on her Master's degree. Mr. Proudly had the same experiences at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Gilkey visits campus (Continued from Page One)

Dr. Gilkey holds a close relationship with Chicago, Ill., and said Stagg, their great athletic director, uses football as an opportunity for developing the many qualities of his players rather than merely to develop them into gridiron stars.

He then pointed out that S. I. N. U.'s greatest privilege and opportunity was to help the student body get a correct attitude towards life's values. This would come from such attempts as are now being made to create the atmosphere in which spiritual ideals might grow. He also pointed out the responsibility of those who go out to teach next year to create an atmosphere which should be significant in the growth of those with whom they come in contact.

How does religion relate to the creating of atmosphere, in the fact that it specializes in equipping one for making correct estimates of the most worth while things in life.

Dr. Gilkey again addressed the chapel assembly Tuesday morning.

The strong impression which he made on Monday night will be judged by the almost unanimous attendance on Tuesday in regular chapel service being held although there were no organization meetings called for that hour.

Dr. Gilkey read the parable of "The Good Samaritan," and proceeded to modernize it by showing that the robbers on the Jericho road have their modern rivals. They do not use clubs and physically injure a man, but the same principle is abroad today, such as the lust for war by the nations of the world; profiteers using their advantage to the detriment of our national life; creators of social injustice; exploiters of the masses, men with great intellects who use the selfish for their own gain. In this latter connection he said, "It is an infamous to rob a man with your intellect as to rob him with your fists," admitting that social injustice is seriously facing us in our civilization of today the peculiar temptations facing certain groups of highly favored people is that of the priest and the levite to say "social injustice is no affair of ours, we didn't create it, let somebody else correct it."

"The robber started the mess but the priest and the levite made it worse. We look at Europe in her tragic condition and say that it is no affair to us. The Christian attitude is to get in and make it better."

Dr. Gilkey closed very impressively with the parable on "The Freshman Who Fell Among Critics." At the Wednesday morning chapel hour Dr. Gilkey continued his discussion of the Good Samaritan on the Jericho Road.

He analyzed the attitude of the inn keeper showing how he did not be-

\text{OUR DUTY}

As we see it, is to make it possible for the greatest number of students to wear good clothes.

We've been working along this line for a good many years; providing fine merchandise and selling it as cheaply as we could.

Such a policy benefits us and you, too. It brings us more business, and when we get more business we are able to give more values.

And so it goes like an endless chain—a larger volume:
bigger values; still larger volume; still greater values.

We're not satisfied yet—we want still more business
so we can give you even more for your money.
