Morris Library not taking the heat

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

"We're not open yet. You'll have to wait a few more minutes," Juanita Young, a custodian at Morris Library, said with a smile at 7:17 a.m. Monday to people wanting to enter the library.

A few minutes early doesn't sound like much when the library is open only from 7:30 to 9 a.m., but Young, who has worked at the library for two years, said workers might not be able to get into the library until late. She said that members of the library staff are standing around the building waiting.

While the temperature has cooled ten degrees outside, Young said temperatures in the library are "intense." Morris Library has been without air conditioning during an asbestos removal project, which Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs and the library's director, said is in its final stages.

Asbestos was widely used in buildings from the 1950s through the early 1970s for fireproofing, insulation and soundproofing. Researchers have found that asbestos fibers, when inhaled, can cause cancer and other respiratory diseases.

While the temperature has cooled ten degrees outside, Young said temperatures in the library are "intense."

The asbestos removal is a project of the Capital Campaign Board, Peterson said. The board is paying for the project and is estimated at under $500,000. The company contracted to remove the asbestos was National Big Four, Peterson said.

"If all goes well, we could be able to turn on the air conditioning by tomorrow (Monday) or early Tuesday," Puhta said. "It will take about two days to get the asbestos removed, and then we can start working on the library's basement," Peterson said.

Acting boss for minority engineering takes over

Bruce C. Chrisman was a principal director of the University's engineering program this summer.

Chrisman, who served as the program's academic adviser for two years, replaces the program's first director, Teresa J. Trussell, who left the University in August.

Chrisman earned a bachelor's degree in ceramic engineering and an M.B.A. at the University of Illinois at Chicago. At SIUC, he has completed doctoral coursework with a specialization in higher education.

Chrisman joined the staff of the College of Engineering and Technology in 1983.

Bush shoots down questions on Quayle's past

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

George Bush took aim at ending the questions surrounding Dan Quayle's National Guard record during his visit to the National Guard tent at the Illinois State Fair.

Climbing into an M666 mobile missile launcher, Bush began taking target practice with the unarmored gun.

"The guy in the yellow shirt. Look out," Bush yelled as he looked through the scope.

Bush then pointed the gun at the press pool, which had been bounding from the Republican National Convention about Quayle's qualifications.

"We took no prisoners," Gov. James H. Thompson, who spent the day with vice president and Mrs. Bush, later said.

But the task of killing the question wasn't that easy, and the vice president was left fielding more questions as the day went on.

"He (Quayle) went into the National Guard and he served with honor. And that's the key," Bush said.

Quayle was not on hand, having gone back to Washington with Bush campaign chairman James Baker to prepare for his own solo campaign.

Questions were also raised concerning Quayle's education and whether or not he is "smart enough" to be president.

"Bush said Quayle was "just like me." "I was a mediocre student in high school," he said. "Then I went to college."

Bush continued to keep the focus on himself, instead of his running mate. Saying "I refuse to release my high school transcript because I failed chemistry and I don't want anyone to know that," Bush said jokingly. "I want to be a president the chemists can look up to."

Bush says Bush is bringing out the real guns now.

Rains delay rescue of quake victims in Nepal

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) - Monsoon rains hampered an international relief effort aimed at raising fears that landslides could further devastate Himalayan villages border with India. Cracked roads and mudslides made overland travel difficult. Niranjan Pratap, a minister of state for home affairs, said at a news conference Monday that at least 450 people were confirmed dead in Nepal. He said he feared the torrential rains would cause many more deaths. Another official said 50 people who asked not to be identified said the death toll in Nepal was 600.

In neighboring India, survivors, rescue workers and newspapers said at least 500 people died in the northern state of Bihar near the border with Nepal, and police in Bangladesh said 55 people were feared drowned when waves generated by the quake capsized their boats.

The rains will only trigger landslides and wash villages down into rivers and valleys," another official said.

Polish officials set curfew after labor union walkouts

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) -- Authorities ordered a curfew in stronghold of outlawed Solidarity labor union Monday following the outbreak of the worst labor unrest in Poland since the disturbances that led to the imposition of martial law in 1981.

The government crackdown came just hours after workers went on strike at the Lenin shipyard in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk.

N. Korean participation in Olympics doubtful

PANJUMON, Korea (UPI) -- Efforts to get North Korea to take part in the upcoming Seoul Summer Olympics appeared doomed Monday when South and North Korea broke off their first official talks in nearly three years with a sharp disagreement.

The 10 lawmakers from the two Koreas failed to set up a full South-North parliamentary conference, whose main objective would have been to gain North Korea's participation in the 24th Olympiad scheduled for Seoul Sept. 17 to Oct. 2.

Israelis set curfew after Palestinian strike

JERUSALEM (UPI) -- The army Monday clamped a curfew on the largest city in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and violence erupted in the impoverished Gaza Strip as Palestinians shut down commerce in a general strike. Israeli troops raided several refugee camps near the West Bank city of Nablus late Sunday to make arrests and prevent disturbances expected during the commercial shutdown.

Simon wants S. African OK to visit Mandela

MAPUTO, Mozambique (UPI) -- Sen. Paul Simon said Monday he had asked the government of South Africa for permission to visit jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela but doubted his request would be acknowledged by Defense Minister Dr. H. Tshwane, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, said he intended to convey to the white minority government concerns over "the relationship of South Africa to her neighbors and the system of apartheid itself."

U.S. to keep Persian Gulf fleet at full strength

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The United States will keep its 27-ship naval force in the Persian Gulf at full strength until the Iran-Iraq ceasefire, effective since Saturday, is clearly holding, U.S. officials said Monday. The Reagan administration is not treating the truce as a familiar play by the Soviet government to giveaway its ships from the Gulf if the United States and its allies do likewise.

Report: International terrorism increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- A State Department report on international terrorism released Monday says there was a 7 percent increase in incidents last year, mainly because of bombings in Pakistan carried out by Soviet-trained Afghan government intelligence agents. The report, which covers only 1987, did not make any link between an Afghan terrorist and the blowing up last week of President Zia ul-Haq's plane, killing Zia and U.S. Ambassador Arnold Raphel.

Shuttle skipper eager for launch of Discovery

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) -- NASA hopes to launch the space Discovery around Sept. 25 on the first post-Challenger flight, a mission that will send a two-and-a-half-year old satellite for U.S. manned space flight and provide a crucial shakedown for the rebuit shuttle system, the ship's skipper said Monday.

Police search for student suspected of double killing

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (UPI) -- A statewide alert was issued Monday for a former alter boy and high school football star suspected of killing the parents of his ex-girlfriend and brutally attacking the girl and her younger brother, police said. Richard Church, 19, a sophomore at Northern Illinois University, "really could have gone anywhere," after the Sunday carnage that ended in the deaths of Raymond Ritter, 43, and his wife, Ruth Ann, 45, Woodstock Police Chief Herb Fitzman, said.

Poshard, Kelley debate set for mid-September

Candidates will battle at three area colleges

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

Veterans in the 22nd district will have a chance to meet the candidates seeking Ken Gray's seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, when they meet in public debate.

State Rep. Glenn Poshard, the Democratic candidate, and Republican candidate Pat Kelley, will meet face-to-face Sept. 14 at Shawnee College for the first of three debates to be held throughout the district.

Both candidates are hoping to represent Illinois' 22nd congressional district in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The position has been held by U.S. Rep. Ken Gray, D-Western Illinois. Gray announced his retirement earlier this year.

Kelley said he was pleased he and Poshard agreed to the debates, saying he believes the people of the district need to know how the candidates stand on the issues.

"The importance of the debate is for the public-to get the people involved and let them know how we stand on the issues," Kelley said.

In a news release, Poshard said he "welcomes the opportunity to discuss the issues of Southern Illinois in a totally open public setting."

Jim Wilson, campaign manager of Poshard for Congress, said public accessibility was important in deciding where the debates would be held.

"John A. Logan is right in Glenn's back yard," he said.

Kelley, a professor of law at SIU-C, said he would have the same unfair advantage the candidates seeking the up-coming seats, Wilson said.

Despite his happiness with the up-coming debates, Kelley said he would like to have more than three, showing a great interest in a fully reserved debate sponsored by a local station.

Wilson said Poshard is being "more than generous" with the already scheduled three debates, saying there are usually only two.

Kelley left the decision to add more debates up to Poshard, saying "I stand ready, willing and able to debate at any time.

Poshard agreed to the debates, saying "The importance of the debate is for the public, to get the people involved and let them know how we stand on the issues."
Prescribing activism for student laryngitis

LIKE A TV schedule abbreviated by a writer's strike, the fall semester has been America's budget drama of 1987. The familiar setting is a large University crowded with students but short on cash. If you don't like the story line, too bad. Don't be surprised to see it again next year.

The strange thing about this script is although the majority of the cast members are students, the students speak relatively few lines. That's because the budget crunch cannot continue much longer before the drama turns into a tragedy.

WE ALREADY have heard sad tales of seniors waiting around until their department can afford to offer the one class they need in order to graduate. We know our library is deteriorating. The director at the University Museum tells us that museum exhibits will be curtailed if more money isn't forthcoming. These are only the kinds of cuts that will change the character of the University.

THE UNIVERSITY, then, is at a crucial juncture in its development. If the budget continues to shrink, something will have to give. The important question: Who shall decide what departments, programs or colleges must do the giving?

IF THE SOCIAL climate of the University continues as it did last year, the students won't be the ones making these decisions. Education has already shown its willingness to go nationwide for higher taxes to support education. The voter turnout in student government elections, while better than years past, is exceedingly low. The number of students at Board of Trustees meetings in the past year could be counted on a person's fingers.

These rallies and elections and meetings are the network by which students can communicate their ideas — the students agenda for the University. When no messages come over this network, those on the receiving end are free to assume that the students are voting "We don't care." By inference, the students are signaling that the administration may do as it pleases 'in dealing with the budget deficit, cutting the programs it. "-8 to and curtail expenditures where it pleases.

THE STUDENTS are a powerful voice. They are the economic lifeblood of the community. Without students, the University would become but a shell of empty buildings. Students, by virtue of sheer numbers, are a force that cannot be ignored. Those who deny this fact will witness the effect of Student laryngitis. On those days, the students set the agenda.

A halloween-sized crowd at the steps of the State Capitol would be a voice loud enough to penetrate those granite walls that so often have been a hearing impairment for the students. This is why the students set the agenda. The administration is forced to deal with the student's agenda or risk being cut out on the outside.

SOME STUDENTS undoubtedly saw a group of blacks last spring marching from Antioch Hall to the Student Center. Those students were an illustration of the desire for a formidable Black American Studies program.

These students illustrated a point the administration has found hard to ignore. The lack of a Black American Studies in the General Education curriculum has not been won, but there are signs the administration is listening. So much so for those naysayers who say the powers-that-be do not care.

THE ADMINISTRATION faces some tough decisions. Does it shrink the scope and mission of the University? Doesn't the University have a role to play in helping those who now attend the school can no longer afford to do so? How can it increase the involvement of women and minorities in the University? How will it keep within the confines of a smaller budget? Those are some of the questions on the Administration's agenda. A priority on the students agenda should be increasing the volume of its collective voice.

Former member wants students to look at ISA, support for tax hike

To the editor,

DURING THE PAST year the Educational Advocacy Board has a considerable amount of coverage to the Illinois Student Association. Thus, it is great, but there is more than wine and roses in this recent history of the ISA. Consider the following.

DURING THE past three years the state has decreased higher education's share of the general revenue fund (GRF). This decrease has impacted our institutions to operate on. Therefore, tuition is increasing to compensate for the loss in GRF revenue. Why is the state taking money from education? It seems that there are two possible answers to this question. 1. Tuition is a source of state revenue that can be increased without action of the General Assembly. 2. The reduction is an example of public posturing of an issue. It is more persuasive to have students call for tax increases than to welfare lords and prison inmates.

ISA HAS been an increased income tax lobbying virtually all of its resources for this cause. What's wrong with that? A tax increase will bring in money for three years with or without ISA.

Tuition increases will not be rolled back after the tax increase. Education's position on the Board of Trustees is that if tax increases have sincerely tried to meet the student's case before the administration.

ISA needs a direct funding mechanism? What position has ISA taken on the General Assembly that we cannot afford Illinois tuition? Why does ISA need a $30,000 computer system when the average association can get by with incredibly less? What position has ISA taken on the financial structure of the state? It is my earnest opinion that ISA should rally grass roots support for tuition caps on our campuses and take a legislative position that higher education has got to be the number one priority of our state.

It is my earnest opinion that ISA should rally grass roots support for tuition caps on our campuses and take a legislative position that higher education has got to be the number one priority of our state.

In CONCLUSION, here are some questions you might ask your Undergraduate Student Government, new or old. What is ISA doing with the money it is raising through its direct funding mechanism? What programs and services has ISA provided the students of Illinois? Why is ISA sharing a prestigious office building with the Board of Regents? Does this present an image to the General Assembly that we cannot afford Illinois tuition? Why does ISA need a $30,000 computer system when the average association can get by with incredibly less? What position has ISA taken on the financial structure of the state? It is my earnest opinion that ISA should rally grass roots support for tuition caps on our campuses and take a legislative position that higher education has got to be the number one priority of our state.

Gender opinion ignores real issues

YOUR AUGUST 2ND editorial "Give Women Last Out in Golf Ball Game" contained a number of sweeping generalizations and unsubstantiated conclusions which ignore the real problems of meeting affirmative action goals. Women who have sincerely tried to meet these goals over the years, and could well make it more difficult for us to progress in this area.

Let me add some figures which, while limited to one department, may be as enlightening as the state of affirmative action as "boxscore." In 1968-69, the Department of French had two vacant tenure track assistant professor positions to fill by fall 1988. We received 43 applications for the two positions — 15 females and 28 males.

After screening and ranking, we invited six candidates — four female and two male — to interview on campus at our expense and subsequently selected four jobs for three female and one male. One offer was accepted — female.

WE DECIDE to try again during 1988-89 to fill the second position after having two candidates decline. Do we find a third candidate unacceptable, and having a fourth slip away while an offer was under consideration. Our case certainly is only a fraction of the "gender race" on our campuses. But I think it is a very prepotent and irresponsible example that we lost our female faculty because "when they looked at the campus they saw large, smelly men dragging women around by the hair." However, I encourage you to interview them directly to see if I am correct.

YOU CAN DO the University, the affirmative action cause, and the institutionalized sexism a service by carefully researching and writing a truly objective, honest piece on recruiting and retaining minority and female faculty, as well as white male faculty.

I am willing to provide the names and telephone numbers of female faculty who have either declined a political science position offer, or resigned from a political department in recent years. I believe they are willing to be interviewed only when they chose not to accept or retain positions at SIU-C, as well as discuss how the atmosphere affected them.

aid relief efforts. The response to an urgent appeal for blood donors in Nepal was so great that in some areas, medical teams ran out of the plastic bags used to hold the blood.

Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, visiting the quake devastated northern state of Bihar Monday, announced that he had allocated $215,000 for initial relief efforts.

The early morning quake Sunday destroyed thousands of brick, straw and stone homes in Nepal and India, where many residents moved outdoors out of fear of aftershocks. Police in Dhaka, Bangladesh, said thousands of people spent the night in the streets after rumors swept the capital that another strong earthquake had been predicted for early Monday morning.

Sunday's quake, its epicenter about 100 miles southeast of the Nepalese capital of Kathmandu, was measured at 6.7 on the Richter scale by the U.S. Geological Survey, but the Nepalese Department of Mines and Minerals said it registered 7.

The quake was felt along a 400-mile wide, 1,000-meter long band that stretched from northern Nepal to Calcutta, India, in the south and from New Delhi in the west to the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh in the east.

Medical teams and government officials rushed aid to the areas in Nepal that could be reached, and troops with bulldozers were sent to help clear rubble and recover bodies.

"The government's first priority is to save human lives," Phapa said. "Many people could still be buried under debris."

Those left homeless by the quake were being sheltered in schools and other government buildings. The government also was providing free food.

Bush defends Quayle to veterans

CHICAGO (UPI) - Vice President George Bush staunchly defended running mate Dan Quayle in a hard-line speech Monday to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, contending the senator was under "unfair, partisan attack" and had honorably done his duty in the National Guard during the Vietnam War.

In Washington, Quayle, heartened by the warm reception Bush received from the veterans, decided in late afternoon to fly to Chicago to thank the VFW.

A CBS News post-convention poll released Monday showed Bush with a 46-40 percent lead over Democrat Michael Dukakis, and for the first time this year gave Bush a higher favorability than an unfavorable rating.

The telephone poll, with an error margin of 5 percentage points, surveyed 1,282 registered voters from Aug. 18-21 and found they favored Bush overall but also showed voters prefer Democrat Lloyd Bentsen of Texas for vice president over Quayle.

Bush, speaking to the VFW's national convention, also attacked what he contends are the weak military policies of Dukakis and then, departing from his text, issued a stirring defense of Quayle, who has been facing persistent questions about whether he used special influence in 1989 to enter the National Guard and avoid combat in Vietnam.

"Because I served in active combat, because I saw my countrymen, some of them killed, as many of you did, I think I can speak from a sound perspective," said Bush, a World War II combat pilot.

"First, I salute the Vietnam veterans here today, those who fought in the rice paddies," he said.

"We're focusing on developing skills at both the academic and professional levels," Chrisman said. "The bottom line is getting the number of people graduating up as well as those getting employed."

Since the program was created in 1985, minority engineering enrollment has increased by 60 percent, while the number of students who complete their first semester in good standing has risen from 40 to 75 percent.

Chrisman said this fall's record enrollment may be attributed to the higher visibility of the engineering and technology programs, adding that the monetary awards for minority, totaling about $40,000, also played an important part.

The minority engineering program includes a summer introductory program for talented minority high school students, a summer bridge program, for entering freshmen, scholarships and academic advisement. Chrisman attends classes.
Rabbi brings his teaching to University
By Kathleen Delbo Staff Writer

A local rabbi hopes to increase local understanding of the Jewish faith with a University course being offered this semester and through a conversation series beginning next month.

Rabbi Leonard Zoll, leader of Congregation Beth Jacob in Carbondale, will bring "The Holocaust," a three-credit hour course offered by the Department of Religious Studies, Oct. 18 through Dec. 5. Zoll said: "People need to study religion formally and need to study Judaism formally because it's too well understood.

One reason Judaism isn't understood at SIU-C is because of the low number of Jews in the University community. Zoll added. A few years ago there was about 200 Jews and there may be about 150; however, no one is certain exactly how many Jews are at SIU-C,

People also need to understand Judaism to understand Christianity and Islam, Zoll said. St. Andrews Episcopal Church, 697 W. Mill, hosts a Jewish-Christian conversation series, he said. The goal of the series is to get Christians and Jews to interact, to understand their different cultures and "be less nasty" to one another, Zoll said. The series begins Sept. 18.

Zoll came to Southern Illinois University four years ago when he was invited to be Rabbi here, he said.

"I thought I'd like to live in a college town because I'd never done before," he said.

Zoll said he studied sociology at Brooklyn College in New York and has taught sociology at the college around the country over the years.

Jim Bakker seeks, gets forgiveness
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) - A weeping Jim Bakker sought and received forgiveness from a group of charismatic Christians at an unexpected appearance at the Southeastern Congress on the Holy Spirit.

A surprised crowd of more than 2,000 was on hand when Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, took the stage Sunday during the final session of the Christian gathering. Issuing a call to "let the reconciliation begin," the Rev. Karl Coke, pastor of Garr Memorial Church in Charlotte, embraced Bakker and the fallen PTL leader dropped to his knees, asking forgiveness as worshipers with cameras flashed to the platform.

"We are brothers of Christ," Coke asked the audience, "have you sinned against Jim Bakker?"

"Yes," came the reply from hundreds in the crowd.

Again, a "yes" from the audience.

"Do you forgive him?" asked the minister.

Applause nearly drowned out the cry of "yes.

Coke then turned to Bakker, who lost the PTL ministry in a sex and money scandal last year.

New course treats conflict creatively
By Laura Milbrath Staff Writer

A new course taught by William S. Minor, professor of creative communications, is being proclaimed as a "creative revolution for education," by researchers in The World Congress of Philosophy being held in Brighton, England this week.

The course, "Analytic Creative Communication," is open to juniors, seniors and graduate students this semester through the department of speech communications in the College of Communications and Fine Arts. There are no prerequisites.

"This independent study course offers the students the opportunity to learn the new technology for release of creativity in their own lives," Minorsaid. "The radical nature of this technology is that it treats human conflict creatively rather than destructively by preventing confrontation, argumentation, alienation and aggression.

Minor has spent much of his life researching the different concepts of creativity.

He has been at the University since 1963. Minor said that this year is the "con­ surmatory year" of his teaching career.

After a 40-year stay, SIU-C dean to retire

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Marvin E. Johnson, associate dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, will retire Sept. 1 after serving SIU-C for 46 years.

Johnson has spent his entire professional career at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, working in various capacities from research assistant to professor of Horticulture. He is currently serving as associate dean of the College of Engineering and Technology.

Johnson first taught at the University in 1965, when he was hired as a research assistant at the University's Agricultural Experiment Station. He later became a professor of Horticulture and served as associate dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

In 1988, Johnson was named the first director of the Southern Illinois University Research Foundation, a position he held until 2001. He then became associate dean of the College of Engineering and Technology.

Johnson is a member of the American Society for Horticultural Science, the American Society of Horticultural Science, and the American Society of Plant Physiologists.

Chemicals now needed to make tap water livable for domestic fish

By Richard Goldstein

Fish Beware

As of today, fish living in tap water will be in danger of dying without the addition of a chemical that can break down chloramines now flowing through our water supply. It's not a plot to kill fish, but an effort to save money, Jim Swayze, superintendent of water operations at the Carbondale Water Treatment Plant, said.

Chloramines, chlorine bound in ammonia, have replaced chlorine dioxide as a cheaper and more effective way of eliminating cancer causing agents, he said. Rhonda Monroe, owner and operator of Exotic Pet & Supply Store in Murphysboro, said Murphysboro has had chloramines in drinking water for the past year and not just any chemical will save fish from premature death.

Some products are misleading, she said, and the consumer should be sure that the chemical will break the bond between the ammonia and the chlorine and then dissolve the ammonia. Monroe said some chemicals require additional carbon or a substance called zeolite to be added to the tank filter to remove the ammonia.

Rhonda Monroe tends the water in her fish tanks with a special chemical. She owns and operates the Exotic Pet and Supply Store in Murphysboro.

Manila — Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos and two of Marcos' Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos guards were wounded Tuesday night outside a restaurant where he was dining in a South Korean opposition leader Kim Dae Jung and other officials, authorities said.

The two other gunmen were arrested, police said.

None of the officials in the restaurant were wounded and the defense minister said it was clear if the attack was aimed at him or the visiting Korean opposition leader, who was on the fourth day of a five-day visit to South Korea.

The dinner party was going strong, Ramos said. "Kim Dae Jung is not disturbed," he told the ABS-CBN television company after the attack.

"This is not necessarily aimed at him (Kim). It may be against anyone of us," Ramos said.

He said the men were accompanied by a woman, who said they wanted to impress.

Pakistan government denies setting curfew

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — The government denied "baseless" rumors surrounding the imposition of martial law were to be declared throughout the country.

"It is totally incorrect," Information Minister Tariq Bukhsh Soomro told United Press International. "Everything is normal."

"All rumors relating to the imposition of martial law are baseless and are being denied," official Radio Pakistan said in a nationwide broadcast, quoting a government spokesman.

The rumors, which circulated in Karachi, Islamabad and Lahore, apparently began after troops in full battle gear were mobilized in Karachi, Pakistan's financial capital and main port, to reinforce police during the two-day Momin holiday of Mohurram.

There was no sign, however, of an influx of troops in the capital or other major cities.

Police in Karachi said officials fearing an outbreak of violence between Shiites and Sunni Moslems during the Mohurram festival, the climax of which begins Tuesday and marks the death of the grandson of the Prophet Mohammad and the schism between the two branches of Islam.

Troops were used to protect a daylight procession by Shiites that wound through Karachi and were also seen inclining camps in several locations and commandeering private trucks to supplement their own fleet.

Sunni-Shiite clashes since Wednesday have left at least 11 people dead in the North West Frontier Province, which borders Afghanistan and has a large Shiite population. Sunni Moslems vastly outnumber Shiites among Pakistan's 100 million people and members of the two sects clash periodically.

WATER TREATMENT DISINFECTION METHOD CHANGE

On August 22, 1988 the City of Carbondale will be changing its method of disinfecting water to chlorine.

The change will be a combination chlorine residual as opposed to a free chlorine residual currently used. The method has been approved by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and is commonly used throughout Illinois and United States.

The change is necessary for the Improved control of Trihalides in the water.

The change will affect those having tropical or five boil fish in water coming from the drinking water supply. Fish have a very low tolerance of any chlorinated compounds. A change in the method of disinfecting this water is indicated. Contact your local pet stores for advice and products for dechlorinating the water.

For further information please contact the Water Treatment Plant at 529-1751.
Answers to myths about sex

Wellness Center offers education for sexually active

By Cathy Devers and Sylvia Chaiem

There are so many misleading messages and so much misinformation in society about sexuality that it is difficult to separate the myths from the facts of life.

Consider, for example, the choice to become sexually active and the decision to choose and use birth control. No area of human sexuality suffers from more misleading myths...

How many people know that:

• Secrecy becomes the penalty for discussing contraception among peers.
• Sexual intercourse during the menstrual period can result in pregnancy.
• Eighty percent of all sexually active women become pregnant at some time without effective contraception.

People who choose not to take precautions against pregnancy often find this unpalatable.

A small percent of parents are uncomfortable talking about sex with their children. They may believe that the parents feel discussing sex beforehand is less important.

Few role models in the media teach that contraception is a part of sexual activity. Many people doubt that they feel that they are at risk — it won't happen to them. Wrong. More than 80 percent of college women who are sexually active...

Swimming could hurt small kids

Script Howard News Service

Swim classes for babies have a high dropout rate with yuppies as designer duds.

But before your child takes the plunge, beware. Teaching your infant to swim at an early age may be a great idea, but it's also controversial.

"We are concerned about classical conditioning on a baby under the age of 3," said Dr. Mark Wazene, "and our level of concern increases with the child's age decreases."

Wazene is chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Accidents in Childhood Prevention. He says that swim classes fall into two categories: those that promise water fun and simply familiarize babies with the pool, and those that aim to teach skill.

The academy has no problem with water fun classes as long as they're well supervised. But when it comes to teaching babies to swim,...

To Your Health

Toxic death is a part of sexual activity. Many people doubt that they feel that they are at risk — it won't happen to them. Wrong. More than 80 percent of college women who are sexually active...

Some college men and women just don't think about contraceptive options; some are afraid to ask. Choosing a birth control method that is right for a person is an important life decision. A person and their partner deserve accurate, updated information in order to make wise choices.

To meet this important health need, the Wellness Service and Wellness Center staff will be providing a Birth Control Update this fall. The sessions will be offered from 3 to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and noon to 1:30 p.m. Thursdays, beginning Aug. 30 in the Kentor Hall classroom next to Health Service.

People needing contraception for the first time, changing birth control methods, or those who wish to update their knowledge regarding birth control need to attend an update session before making an appointment at Health Service.

The sessions will include the pros and cons of all available birth control methods, proper use of methods, birth control self-assessment, decision-making, and sexual transmitted disease prevention and communication with your partner.

To register for Birth Control Update, call the Wellness Center at 536-5041.

Your Health is produced in conjunction with the Wellness Center.

Teen drug use, pregnancy rates dropping it's a brand new course. Zenith announces a smooth road ahead in college with new personal computers available for fall 1986.

Just off the fast track, these sleek, small and sophisticated rollers are built with the college student in mind for today and the future professional tomorrow.

One look at the cylindrical and you'll see why this new class is so popular. The computer starts off in high gear with an introduction to the new road scholar: The Zentron Super Sports & LIMITED EDITION Super Sport.

These rugged on-road, off-road personaler really show their stuff even under the worst driving conditions. And without being gas guzzlers. With " Intelligent power management," power is retained to subsystems for maximum battery operation. Giving you great mileage.

Whether you choose the LIMITED EDITION model with an internal 1200 baud modem or the Super Sport with RAM option of 1.44MB with EAS, even the most advanced course is clicked in record time.

Setting the curve in its class is the new Zenith Z-286 desktop PC. This high speed racer runs at 800kHz with zero wait states, is AT compatible and can move us to VHS/25 technology in the future. And talk about memory. The Z-286 comes complete with 1 MB RAM with expanded log team capabilities -- to 64K - without using an expansion slot. Plus a single 3.5", 1.44MB media storing floppy drives lets you "read and write" 7000 disks.

it's an accelerated course. The new class of computers from Zenith put you on the fast track in college and get you going in the right direction.

Attorney's office sues war veteran for aiding Nazis in killing of Jews

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The U.S. attorney's office said Monday it is suing to revoke the citizenship of an elderly Minneapolis man it accuses of war crimes.

Edgar Inde, 79, allegedly belonged to a World War II commando unit known as the Latvian Auxiliary Police and "assisted the Nazis with the killings of unarmed Jews and other civilians in 1941 and 1942," an attorney said.

"Did he actually pull the trigger? No, we cannot confirm that from this office," said Karen Jambor, a spokeswoman for Arnold, who was out of town on Monday.

Still, he entered the country illegally and acquired citizenship illegally through misrepresentation of facts. He was a member of an organization that was hostile to the United States and our government. He stated he was

"During the war he (Inde) assisted in the persecution of thousands of innocent citizens on behalf of a country hostile to the United States and democracy."

—Jerome Aruffo

A clerk when he was, in fact, a member of this auxiliary police force.

Inde was not immediately available for comment about his alleged involvement in the German-backed Latvian unit. He has 20 days to respond to the civil suit filed by federal authorities.

Inde, a native of Riga, Latvia, arrived in the United States on Nov. 30, 1946, and became an American citizen on June 8, 1955, the U.S. attorney's office said.

"Because of his wartime activities and later misrepresentations, Inde lacked the good moral character required to enter the United States and become a citizen," Arnold said. "During the war he assisted in the persecution of thousands of innocent citizens on behalf of a country hostile to the United States and democracy."

Neal Sher, director of the office of Special Investigations at the Justice Department in Washington, D.C., said he could not comment on the specific crimes Inde is accused of.

"The details will come out as the case proceeds," Sher said. "In essence, we have alleged he was in the Latvian Auxiliary Police, commonly referred to as the Arja Kommando, which was named after its leader Valters Arai. It was one of the most notorious units to operate in Latvia and the Baltic countries, and one of its main purposes, was the murder of Jews and other civilians."

New residence hall sheds newer, more luxurious light on dorm life

By Kimberly Clarke

Staff Writer

The newly opened residence hall, University Hall, is offering something that other dorms do not.

Besides luxuries such as a swimming pool and weight room, University Hall also offers the residents a little bit of home.

"We take pride in the fact that we try to learn the names of our students, and provide a home atmosphere for them to live in," Kimberly VonHoffman, business manager, said.

University Hall offers residence ball living, plus newly opened residence halls, University Hall also offers more luxurious amenities.

"The building is surrounded by a fence, and to enter into the building one must have a meal ticket, VonHoffman said.

The meal ticket has a magnetic strip on the back, and the students must insert it into a machine on the door which then automatically buzzes and opens the door for the resident, VonHoffman added.

However, the system can be an inconvenience sometimes, VonHoffman said.

"It is hard for people to get in, or if you lose your meal ticket, the system is annoying, but it does keep people out that you do not want in the building," she added.

University Hall also requires that all guests be registered at the front desk, VonHoffman said.

"Guests must leave by 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, and no guests of the opposite sex may stay overnight."

Alcohol is permitted for those over 21, VonHoffman said, however no kegs are allowed.

Each floor is monitored by a Student Resident Assistant, which was trained through the University, VonHoffman said, and their primary responsibility is to assist the residents.

"We're expecting it to be a very good year," VonHoffman said.
Dukakis’ arm record blasted

Dukakis received deferment during Korean War draft

ALBANY, N.Y. (UP) — A New York Republican congressman, seeking to shift attention away from the military record of Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, said Monday Michael Dukakis’ Korean War draft deferment so he would not be drafted during the Korean War.

(ABC news report) Sam Donaldson and others are saying Dan Quayle was afraid to go to war,” Solomon said, referring to the GOP vice presidential candidate.

“Mike is out of his mind. He and his surrogates have slandered the distinguished political career of Michael Dukakis,” he said.

Quayle’s selection of Dan Quayle, 40, then a congressman, as his running mate and revelations that he twice sent Ronald Reagan to attract voters to the ticket and retain the coalition that twice sent Ronald Reagan to the White House.

“It’s not the vice president who brings people in, but the candidate that brings people into the party. People vote for the president, not for the vice president and Quayle’s selection was a mistake that people made,” Michel said.

“Danny Quayle is back in Washington now and counseling with the folks in the campaign and they will make that determination as to just how he addresses himself on that issue (the National Guard) out on the stump,” Michel said.

“The American people are certainly deserving of answers for any questions that they would raise.”

Reagan offers Bush advice before rally

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan will confer privately with Vice President George Bush Wednesday before they appear at a joint rally in Los Angeles to face the president’s supporters in the key electoral state.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also said the two men had not yet discussed the controversy surrounding Bush’s selection of Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., as his running mate and revelations that Quayle may have used his family influence to avoid the draft in the Vietnam War.

Fitzwater refused to discuss the situation that has dominated political headlines since the close of the Republican National Convention in New Orleans last week and took Quayle from the campaign trail for crisis consultations in Washington.

“I think it’s a media story that doesn’t deserve comment,” he said, refusing to elaborate.

Fitzwater said Reagan and Bush would confer for up to an hour before Bush was scheduled to address a noon-time political rally at the Century Plaza hotel, where the Reagan will spend several days before heading back to their mountain top ranch in the Santa Ynez mountains.

“They will meet together for considerable before the rally,” the spokesman said. “They haven’t talked at all since the convention,” except for Reagan’s congratulatory phone call after Bush’s speech Thursday night.

U.S. House Republican leader: Quayle should survive slow start

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — U.S. House Republican leader Robert Michel of Peoria says the House Republicans should not give up on beleaguered Vice President Dan Quayle but any new damaging disclosures about the Indiana senator’s military service could lead to Quayle’s replacement on the Republican ticket.

“Dan Quayle served in the National Guard and took a chance by being called up. Michael Dukakis never joined the Guard and used his deferments throughout the whole Korean War,” Solomon said.

Solomon served in the Marines during the Korean War, but did not see action. He is the ranking Republican on the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

Quayle has been criticized for joining the National Guard in 1956 during the Vietnam War.

Solomon said he looked to the specificity of Dukakis’s military record because he said the media had devoted so much attention to Quayle’s National Guard stint.

Sus Sinclair's playing history
February 1984: Recruits after leading Notre Dame High School (Shrewsbury, N.J.) to fourth place in the Class 4-
A season. Sinclair was the top point-scorer with 19 Aces.
Fall 1984: Played in 19 matches, more than any other non-senior.
Fall 1985: As an outside hitter and backup setter, maintained a record of 356 digs in a single season. Best season statistically with 240 attack percentages, 374 assists and 60 aces.
March 1986: Right knee collapsed during an intramural basketball game. Had a major operation to repair the damaged knee by the end of the month.
Fall 1986: Shared playing time at the setter's position and was the top of the team in the spring season depth chart. "I'm in a real hard position because I feel guilty," Sinclair said. "I knew this was a season I had to play in and had to do well for our girls."
Leathernecks play to Singer's tune

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Western Illinois coach Bruce Craddock contends that last season's 7-4 record and 5-2 second-place conference finish was no fluke.

In 1986, Western Illinois had been a dismal 1-4 and fifth in the Gateway, which made last year's performance seem almost miraculous by comparison.

This time around the Leathernecks are aiming for a conference title with the heart of the starting lineup returning.

The team's livelihood is senior quarterback Paul Singer, son of Col. Larry Singer, inspector general for the Illinois National Guard.

Singer led the Gateway with 2,508 passing yards and 22 touchdowns. He also was in total offense at 219.7 yards per game.

In addition to being a premier passer, Singer has proven his ability to achieve in the classroom. The 6-foot-3, 196-pound right-hander also was a GTE All-America selection.

The prospects for Singer are excellent based on the 239 passes he completed last season.

Singer's returning targets are senior split end Chris Earl and senior fullback Brett Grimsen, who had 446 yards receiving and 349 yards rushing.

Filling in the offensive line are two polarities. They are senior guard Ron Nesbit, who stands 6-4 at 250 pounds, and sophomore tackle Brian Rebea, who's 6-5 and 250.

Meanwhile, on defense, the potential to intimidate opponents. Senior end Marlin Williams, who had 118 tackles and five sacks, is one of eight defensive starters that is back.

The secondary boasts junior Bill Hunter, senior Erick Wixx and junior Lorenzo Taylor.

Two key special team players are back for their junior seasons. Kicker Layne Bennett hit 28 point-after-attemps and 11 field goals, while punter Mike Kraus averaged 42.5 yards per punt.

Singer, a 27-year-old SIU-C student, "This organization requires drug testing."

Shannon set an association and national record for the dead lift at 767.8 pounds. He completed a 650-pound squat and a 418-pound bench press to set an association total lift record of 1,835.8 pounds in his weight class.

The reason I compete there is that other federations don't put the emphasis on the competitors being totally drug-free," said Shannon, a 27-year-old SIU-C student. "This organization requires drug testing."

Shannon set an association and national record for the dead lift at 767.8 pounds. He completed a 650-pound squat and a 418-pound bench press to set an association total lift record of 1,835.8 pounds in his weight class.

Sandy Montgomery, the winningest pitcher in Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville history with 41 victories, has been named acting head coach of the Cougars' softball team.

Students wishing to tryout for collegiate baseball will meet at 3:30 p.m. today at the Arena, section B, Kirk Champion, assistant coach, said. Anyone interested in trying out needs to bring a pencil. Workouts start Wednesday.

Bill Shannon took first place in the 188-pound class at the American Drug-Free Powerlifting Association's Men's Nationals in St. Louis, Mo.

"The reason I compete there is that other federations don't put the emphasis on the competitors being totally drug-free," said Shannon, a 27-year-old SIU-C student. "This organization requires drug testing."

Shannon set an association and national record for the dead lift at 767.8 pounds. He completed a 650-pound squat and a 418-pound bench press to set an association total lift record of 1,835.8 pounds in his weight class.

VOLLEYBALL
Conference title is team's top goal

With four seniors back for the season, the women's volleyball team is poised to make a run for the Gateway Conference title.

"Certainly there will be major obstacles to jump over," Coach Debbie Hunter said. "But my sight is set on us being in that championship match." The Salukis tied for third in the conference last season, even though the overall record was 15-19.

The hardships of last season — enduring both a rash of injuries and the most competitive schedule in the school's history — has strengthened the leadership capacity of the returning players, Hunter said.

"It will be a shared responsibility," Hunter said. "Leadership on-court, off-court and organization are all major contributions that must be made. I'm going to ask all the seniors to take a role in that."

The seniors are:

- Sue Sinclair, a 5-10 setter. Sinclair was redshirted last season after rupturing her right kidney in a preseason scrimmage. She was the team's starting setter in 1985 and 1986.
- Dawn Thompson, 5-6 outside hitter. Thompson, who started every match last season, was named the Gateway Conference player of the year. She led the team in serving with 53 aces.
- Terri Noble, 5-8 outside hitter. Noble is a three-year starter. A capable serve receiver, she had 366 digs last season. Her 28 digs against Indiana was a new career high.
- Beth Winsett, 5-11 middle blocker. Winsett was third-team GTE Academic All-America last season. She led the team in blocking with 72 blocks.
- Nina Brackins, 5-11 setter. Brackins had 304 kills last season, the most by any returning player.

In pre-season practices, Brackins has been hitting the ball well.

"She cracked some balls that left our mouths hang open," Hunter said. "I'm looking forward to what she can do when she gets in a groove."

The volleyball court at Davies Gymnasium has a new coat of paint and Debbie Hunter, the Salukis' coach of 14 years, is beaming with pride.

Instead of playing on a floor painted for basketball dimensions, the team now will perform on a court on which

Senior says right knee's OK

After being forced to watch last year's volleyball action from the sidelines because of a devastating injury to her right knee, Sue Sinclair is prepared to make her last season her best.

"Even the new vanity license plate on her Toyota Corolla, SET U 1, speaks well of her desire to regain the starting setting position," Hunter said.

The rehabilitation and preparation Sinclair has gone through since that fateful preseason scrimmage when she hyperextended the knee last August, has encompassed her entire being.

"Sue's taken it upon herself to be remarkably improved," Coach Debbie Hunter said. "It's notable above all guidelines. She's even exerting strength at different levels of speed."

The readiness of her outward appearance is easy to discern. A sturdy brace supports the knee, while the rest of her 5-foot 6 frame remains slender and toned.

A summer program of constant swimming and intensive weight training has the senior health education major from Barnhart, Mo., at her physical peak.

Strength tests on the right knee show that in five of six categories, it (the injured knee) is actually stronger than the healthy left knee.
