Since the beginning of the year, we have heard much talk about the various concerts and programs that have been offered at Southern. Marvin Hall, however, has not permitted the concerts to overtake the student population. The students have been able to enjoy a variety of concerts, ranging from classical to rock, and they have been able to attend them without having to worry about the cost of admission. Marvin Hall is to be commended for providing these concerts, which offer a variety of musical experiences for the students. The concerts have not only been enjoyable, but they have also provided an opportunity for the students to socialize and relax. Overall, the concerts have been a positive addition to the campus life at Southern, and they have contributed to the overall sense of community on campus.

The students' interest in various events is evident. This is a strong indication of the positive atmosphere that has been created on campus. The students are eager to participate in a wide range of activities, and they are motivated to attend concerts and other events. This is a sign of the strong sense of community that has been fostered on campus. The concerts have also provided an opportunity for the students to develop new skills and interests, and they have been able to learn from each other. Overall, the concerts have been a valuable addition to the campus life at Southern, and they have contributed to the overall sense of community on campus.

The Christmas Spirit

By Rosemary Woolard

There are many reasons why the Christmas season appeals to us. It is a time when the imagination is more active than other periods of the year. Christmas urges us to release our own imagination from the rigid restraint that occasionally bounds us.

Christmas is a time when our imagination must not be timid or prudish, but we must find our own means and give it bountiful room and leisure. We must pass the feeling of beggary, and the ability to recognize through imagination the intangibles which shape our perceptions.

Many of us listen attentively to old legends told enthusiastically by aged members of our families.

One lovely legend which many of us have heard is the story of the first Christmas tree. It seems unusual to us that America once despised the Christmas tree as a "pagan absurdity." Although the American people observed the Spring's birthday and helped to serve the divine Hidde of grace and earth and good will toward men, they did not share the old custom at having a Christmas tree. A young minster who came from the old country brought this custom to America. He was greatly denounced for his glowing "Christmas," and for his bringing of a Christmas tree to the Church. Many people thought that they were to worship the tree, and since they were unused to the old custom, they gave the shape of the tree to their will.

In Denmark of 1857 the people of this town returned to their daily tasks, but many of the people ran throughout the market to see the tree. One was much quarrelling about the tree, and when the young minister was told that the tree might be in the Church he carried it protectively in his arms to his home.

The people were willing to accept the custom of a tree when they were told the legend of the holy night when Our Lord was born. All creeds came to worship the Lord in Bethlehem. And the tree did likewise. None of the original customs really binds us; they are only incidentals that occasionally bound us.

Thus the Christmas tree came to America and today the custom is spread throughout the land.

Maroons Play Host to Arkansas State Tonight

Martinmen to Take Floor Without Services of Sam Miloveich

By Bob McDowell

The University will be sectioning the Maroons for the season when they tangle with the Arkansas State U. Bears here tonight.

The Bears are expected to be led by Coach Abe Mac, Maroon mastermind, father of that team which will win the NCAA tournament last year and which was the United Press national champion.

Coach Abe Mac's boys proved to be the best of the season last Friday night's contest with the Loyola Bears. After Arkansas had managed to take the first quarter, as old gentiles do, rapes occurred during the latter half of the game and a 64-62 win for the Bears was availed.

COACH Glabeus' brilliant defensive play was often marked on the board.

The Maroons will now try to win the final regular season game tonight against the Indiana State Teachers gym.

Southern Blitzes Highly Touted Loyola Wolves

By Richard Jackson

Playing one of their most dramatic games of the season to date, the Southern Illinois Normal University basketball club scored a 74-64 upset over a highly rated Loyola Wolves, New Orleans, Louisiana, cage team which was expected to come here on the strength of a sound victory over Bradley.

In the first period, as old gentiles do, rapes occurred during the latter half of the game and a 64-62 win for the Bears was availed.

Glenn, "Abey" Martin's Maroons, weakened by the loss of Sam Miloveich, first string center, who was unavailable through illness, turned in a fine performance but lost a hard fought game with the Evansville College Aces on the Evansville University campus.

The Maroons outlasted the Aces, 44-43, after a must-sprint to the Evansville edge after taking a 13-13 tie during the first half, but failed to leave the Maroons with only 244-41 difficulty. However, with a slim 22-24 margin, and its score in line with that of the Maroons lead, even though the Aces' Paul Scott, the 4th leading scorer on the team, scored 26 points for the Aces. As the only leading scorer on the Maroons, he led the Maroons with only a 74-64 upset over a highly rated Loyola Wolves, New Orleans, Louisiana, cage team which was expected to come here on the strength of a sound victory over Bradley.
