SIU Offers '68 Summer European Travel, Study

An opportunity for summer travel and study in Europe is again being offered by the University Extension Services, according to Raymond H. Dey, dean of the University Extension Services and director of the summer program.

Any University student in good standing can participate in the study program, and any student, faculty and staff member and their families may take advantage of the low travel rates, Dey said.

"We have chartered a Trans World Airlines (TWA) Boeing 707 for the trip," Dey said, and it will cost the individual about $298 for a round trip; that is about half regular fare.

Course work for both graduate and undergraduate students, will be offered by nine SIU faculty members. The courses will combine class work and travel.

Cost of the programs involving academic credit, including tuition, plane transportation, travel in Europe, and room and board in Europe will vary from approximately $1,000 to $1,500, depending upon the particular program selected.

"We feel that the courses offered in the summer program will be more valuable to students if they are taught in the European area they are connected with," Dey said. "For instance, the course on Shakespeare is naturally more valuable to the student if it is taught at the University of London in Stratford on Avon."

Course subjects will include the fields of English, German, government, history, French, music and Austrian. Teaching the courses will be Robert Duncan, Marilyn Kupcek, Helmut Harwig, Orville Alexander, James Haas, Robert Mueller, Renato Freeman, Russell Shireman, and Joseph Kupcek—all instructors either on the Carbondale or Edwardsville campus of SIU.

Dey explained that 30,000 brochures outlining the summer travel arrangements will be sent to parents of all students, city businesses, SIU's campuses, during the holiday season.

"In addition to the educational opportunities, the student can benefit by using the chartered flight simply for low-cost transporation to Europe, where he can spend his summer any way he wishes," Dey said.

Plane seats have been assigned for persons participating in the study projects and for persons seeking only transportation to Europe. Reservations in each category will be made in order in which down payments are received.

The first payment in both categories is $100. Subsequent payments will be made in two additional equal installments due March 1 and May 1. Refund provisions will be furnished upon request.

The chartered plane will leave St. Louis on June 17 for London and will return with Paris to St. Louis on Aug. 27.

Council Postpones Bid to Purchase Glove Warehouse

By George M. Killenberg

Discussion of Carbondale's proposed purchase of the Good Luck Glove Company Warehouse ended at the City Council meeting Tuesday night with the general agreement that the city should postpone action to secure the property until additional study is made.

Mayor David Keene said that he would ask the warehouse owners to grant an extension of the city's option to purchase. The decision to postpone immediate action came after Robert McGrath, chairman of the Planning Commission, said that his group needs more time and factual data before it can make a sound recommendation on whether or not the city should buy the property.

According to McGrath, the Public Building Committee, an advisory group formed in May, 1966 to consider purchase of the warehouse and provide his group with "a scrap of information" on the feasibility of purchasing the warehouse, located on East Main near the Wallace Garage building.

Bill Bowden, vice chairman of the Public Building Committee, denied there had been any break in communication between the two groups and said his group has furnished information on the property to the Planning Commission.

"According to McGrath, the Public Building Committee, an advisory group formed in May, 1966 to consider purchase of the warehouse, located on East Main near the Wallace Garage building,"

The building site has been proposed for various uses from several quarters. These include the city hall or a civic center for federal, state and local governments.

Councilman Frank Kirk said the warehouse has been for sale for the past two years and that in all likelihood it would continue to be for sale for some time. Both Kirk and McGrath felt that the Planning Commission and the Public Building Committee should meet jointly to iron out differences. However, Bowden predicted that his group wouldn't be enthusiastic about rehashing plans.

The two groups are expected to meet tonight at the regular meeting of the Planning Commission.

Mayor Keene stated during the discussion that the present has no plans for construction on the property if it is acquired. He said that the price for the property is right and that the city can use it in the future, but did not elaborate.

Last week Councilman Randall Nelson suggested that world famous designer and SIU faculty member R. Buckminster Fuller design a new city hall for Carbondale, if and when such a structure is approved. Fuller has replied that he would be honored to design such a facility.

Research on Unanesthetized Animals

Physiologist Studying Bile Flow

By John Durbin

Fred Zaebst, an instructor in the Department of Zoology, is working on a research project to find a way to measure the pressure and the flow of bile from the gall bladder of the small intestine of rabbits and dogs.

Presently, Zaebst and Ed Linker, a senior majoring in zoology, are seeking a system for measurement by working with anesthetized animals.

Zaebst pointed out that a problem arises when working with anesthetized animals.

Olson to Address Faculty Seminar

Howard H. Olson, SIU associate professor of animal industries, will discuss "Agriculture Along the Nile River" at the SIU School of Agriculture faculty seminar Friday afternoon.

Based on observations Olson made on a nine-month Fulbright lecture tour in Egypt last year, the talk will be from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Agriculture Building Seminar Room.

Burnside to Meet With Engineers

Joseph E. Burnside, SIU professor of animal industries, will visit the St. Joseph, Ill., headquarters of the Whirlpool Corporation Tuesday to attend meetings with research engineers of Whirlpool and the Illinois Valley & Bryceon building firm.

The discussions will concern present and future environmental control research in swine production at the SIU Bacon Bin.

Burnside supervised the building's construction of the Bacon Bin, a circular steel structure designed for research on swine confinement. Whirlpool donated eight acres of land near the city to regulate the interior temperature.

Before coming to SIU in 1955, Burnside for three years was head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station at Tifton.

SIU's School of Agriculture Rated 21st in Enrollment Size

With a fall term enrollment of 513 undergraduate students majoring in agriculture, SIU has climbed to 21st among the 63 members of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges which have schools and colleges of agriculture.

Southern ranked 25th in 1966.

Southern's agricultural enrollment has increased nearly 9 per cent from a year ago, about 2 per cent ahead of the average increase of Agricultural Colleges which have schools of the state schools registered gains in 1967.

The substantial growth in undergraduate enrollment in agriculture at Southern, as well as at many of the other member institutions, is a healthy indication of the continuing importance of agriculture as a field of study, and refuses the pessimistic predictions on enrollment by some agriculture school administrators a few years ago, says W.E. Keppel, dean of the SIU School of Agriculture.

The growth also recognizes the increasing need of college preparation for the growing complexities in modern agriculture, not only in its production phases, but for a wide variety of careers in science, business, and industry related to agriculture.

The Gold Rush of 1849 couldn’t compare to the time of 1967. The Great Britain gold was to buy gold and last week more than 370 tons of the precious metal were purchased on the market.

Hoarders and speculators were buying heavily on the London market after Great Britain devalued the pound from $2.80 to $2.40 in American currency. France demanded gold be paid for American dollars.

Great Britain reduced the pound to decrease the purchasing power of the Britisher. The idea was for the Britisher to buy more home products and less imports, making British exports cheaper for buyers abroad.

The United States has sold $600,000,000 in gold since the devaluation of the British pound. In June of this year, the U.S. still held $13,169,000,000 in gold reserves, supposedly enough to pay outstanding certificated.

The Federal Reserve Board has acted by immediately increasing the discount rate which would discourage the outflow of dollars, President Johnson is urging Congress to enact an income tax surcharge and a cut by immediately increasing the discount rate by refusing to let it join the Common Market.

De Gaulle contends that a large outflow of dollars has made it possible for Americans to control many French industries and that this must end. However, he declared France is not responsible for the run on gold.

France trying to back Great Britain and the United States against the wall by storing as much gold as possible, demanding gold payments for American dollars and then insisting that gold be the international monetary standard.

Franchise resigned from the International Gold Pool which was established to prevent a run on the pound. Now Gaullle now demands a "weeping overhaul of the world economy to stabilize the gold the sole basis of international transactions. This is directly and defiantly opposed to the United States base to abolish the gold standard as an international monetary standard."

It was the general proposal at the meeting of several nations in September, but it looks as if De Gaulle is impossibly too strong on the rest of the great powers.

Whatever De Gaulle’s intentions, he knew this predicament might place the United States in when he recalled the gold, and that was the one Basic reason the Common Market, De Gaulle is politically and economically anti-American. He must see enough benefit over the value of its precious dollar while the view is close ties with the U.S. by refusing to let it join the Common Market.

Open Forum Needed

Racism and other forms of social bigotry are realities of our existence which should be regarded as such by each and every one of us, regardless of conviction. The advocacy of hate has persisted as an integral part of our modern civilization because public dialogue has never been completely opened to the topic.

Only when the public forum has aired and evaluated the worth and or worthless race prejudice can any valid steps be taken towards correcting the harm already caused by the preaching of convictational hate, and only then will any significant steps be taken in the direction of eliminating the very decadent existence of that hate.

So education is the key to the dialogue. Even our religious institutions have only based the Love of Man on the Fear of God. No mention is made of hate other than "it’s not very Christian." But it is very much a part of our day-to-day world. Too long have our schools and churches been hung up on their institutional truths. Too long have they ignored the obvious realities.

There’s hate in this world and all the things of brotherhood never to be have never much value until the subject is thrown into the public dialogue. Shouting and whispering hate only nurtures the latter’s existence. Four thousand years of history bears out this fact. You can’t eliminate something because an openly acknowledged hatred.

From time to time, our campus has been invaded by the advocates of organized hate. In recent years, the campus has seen recruitment drives by both the Klu Klux Klan and the American Nazi Party in a Carbondale handled out literature and soliciting ill membership. As a result, there was talk that the administration should take steps to eliminate such influence from the community.

Such talk is hypocritical. Students are quick to bemoan the University’s "in loco parentis" philosophy when it infringes upon their basic rights to live where they want to live or drive when they want to drive. Still, when some students are faced with this contrary doctrine, they turn the hypocrisy for "parental" protection.

Most of our values are fixed and were handed to us by our environment. Questions seldom arise and the status quo calmly maintains its reign regardless of question why or whether the Negro is inferior, that it is at the root of all social tyranny or communism is diabolical?

If our public institutions won’t open the dialogue, isn’t it the students duty to so themselves? Can we do something about our archaic system of values? This is America, Land of the Free. Let’s start thinking and acting progressive.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The letter in the November 29th edition of the Daily Egyptian by Mr. Trueblood is unsubstantiated, ridiculous, and logically sound. Mr. Trueblood seems to think that because one nation makes an error in judgment it is justifiable for another nation to make a counter error in judgment. It is possible for the United States government to make mistakes without one. We have been doing it for 192 years. Many are caused by thinking such as expressed in the Trueblood letter. This type of thinking breeds hostility, war, and international fascism.

Do you believe that anyone who questions a position of the government is trying to increase his stature as a great mind, Mr. Trueblood? If you do suggest you open a test of American history and start reading it with a red pen chucked in your hand. You will find yourself labeling many people in the beginning chapters as status seeking intellectuals. among them would be Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, as well as every man responsible for the writing of the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution.

Little Change

To the Editor:

I am writing in reference to an editorial which appeared in the Daily Egyptian Nov. 18, written by Mr. Bob Forbes.

Mr. Forbes editorial, “Inflation bomb,” stunned me. It really amazes me that anything so poorly written could get accepted for print.

For example, Mr. Forbes states that prices have not risen as fast as the wages. That is a 100 per cent rise, not 50 per cent as stated in the editorial.

Mr. Forbes then states, “Prices rise as fast as the wages.” I could suggest several textbook errors for Mr. Forbes, if he really believes that statement.

Prices have not risen as fast as wages. Indeed, the years 1959-67 have seen a rather subtle level of price stability.

A Capitol Job of Hog Training

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON—This is one of those years when the whole country seems to have got up on the war against boorishness, and to the internationalization of the American people and nations, and to the enrichment of the total life development of a new program at the world. Have experience in working and become more knowledgeable about other cultures, the problems of other peoples and nations, and to have experience in working and living with peoples of other parts of the world.

Hendershot said that there is a growing concern about international students at this campus. In 1955, he said, there were only 35 foreign students at SU. In 1961 the number had increased to 175. Today there are 650 foreign students from 80 countries. He estimates that in 1971 there will be 1500 foreign students.

Also suggested in the proposal is an international food service with facilities available for special group dinners serving foreign foods; a reading room with materials from the countries the students are representing on the campus; and several workshops on foreign cultures, institutions, and economics for the total student community and faculty.

Hendershot emphasized that steps have already been taken to promote international student participation on campus. The Ready in operation is a foreign student advisory committee for the International Student Program, and a visitor's committee on hospitality; a visiting international students association of those committed to making public appearances as representatives of their countries; the international relations club, and an a program for training foreign student advisors.

Hendershot's proposal calls for expansion of all existing operations and programs, and is designed to establish the new program.

Hendershot emphasized that other departments are developing plans with similar objectives and that a proposal will be submitted to the University for adoption, followed by approaches for funding to the American government.

By Margaret Perez

The draft of one segment of a proposal for an expanded international student program at SIU has been issued by Clarence Hendershot, assistant dean of international student affairs.

The proposal was discussed at the Nov. 27 conference at Little Grange Lake where "The Role of the International Student at SIU" was discussed by SIU educators.

"This proposal is not a complete recommendation," Hendershot said, "but it is hoped that within a few months other departments and agencies will complete other proposals for expanding SIU's international student program."

Hendershot explained that his draft of a proposal is only the first effort to seek funds to expand the international student program. Eventually, an SIU proposal including suggestions from the other agencies on campus will be presented to the University for adoption.

Hendershot's proposal, included in a 10-page mimeographed report distributed to the University vice-presidents and department heads, asks for the development of a new program at SIU involving the foreign students with American students and the community in "international exchange to enrich the total life development experience of the students, and add a new international dimension to the total University and community."

The proposal, as presented by Hendershot, has two objectives: "to enrich the experience of the foreign students at SIU, and to assist in the utilization of the present premises for the education of foreign visitors to contribute more effectively to the internationalization of the University."

There is a need, the report states, for American students to become more knowledgeable about other cultures, the problems of other peoples and nations, and to have experience in working and living with peoples of other parts of the world.

Hendershot said that there is a growing concern about international students at this campus. In 1955, he said, there were only 35 foreign students at SIU. In 1961 the number had increased to 175. Today there are 650 foreign students from 80 countries. He estimates that in 1971 there will be 1500 foreign students.

GENERAL EXAMINATION INFORMATION

Examinations for one and two-credit-hour courses will be held during the regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week. Three, four, and five-credit hour courses will meet at the times listed above. Any credit courses having examinations will begin at the same scheduled time as outlined for one and two-credit hour courses.

A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition for approval to take an examination during the make-up exam period on the last Wednesday. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

A student who must miss a final examination may not take make-up examination after the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses an examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the syllabus for the course attended by the member of the instructional staff at the time he had written an editorial in the student newspaper. The student is not permitted to use the dates given in the grading for the recording of grades.

A special note needs to be made relative to examinations for evening sections for those classes which have been granted a special time for examining all sections. As some students attending at night may not be able to attend the special examination period scheduled for the daytime, each department involved will have to arrange special examination periods for such students. This problem involves those students who are fully employed during the day and who are taking night courses because it is the only time they are able to do so.

During the current academic year a total of 22 visiting professors have been invited to Iowa State University for the fall quarter. Most will be on campus for the upcoming winter quarter as well. Pottery Talks To Be Given By Ceramist

Hiroaki Morino, one of the masters from the famous pottery center of Kyoto, Japan, will visit SIU Thursday and Friday to lecture and demonstrate some of his techniques, according to Nicholas Vergeetee, associate professor of ceramics. "Morino has won international recognition for his aesthetic ideas and his techniques," Vergetee said.

The Japanese ceramist, who is currently visiting instructor of ceramics at the University of Chicago, has received numerous prizes, including the 1960 and 1966 Grand Prize and Hokuto Prize in the Japan Art Exhibition. He has exhibited widely—in Chicago, Italy, Paris, Belgium, Switzerland and New Zealand as well as in Japan.

Mix-Match Game Name Game Highlights Edition Of 1967-68 Student Directory

The name of the game is Mix'n'Match, and some folks at Southern Illinois University play it about this time every fall.

Usually the season falls between football and basketball, but the opening gun depends upon the date of publication of the SIU Directory, because that and an eye for the unusual are all a player needs. Thus:

Friend, can you Spair a Nickel for a Coke or a Dime for a Hamburger?

The quick of mind will note that the capitalized words are names taken from the nearly 20,000 students listed in the Carbondale Campus Directory, and if you think that was a Crooner, here's one that's a Little Harder to Chu:

A Craven Crow Cross a Dry Creek to Grob the Berries, and a Bird in the Hand Is Worthy of Two in the Bush.

Would you believe that the Forest Is on the Apple and Dobbies Eaton Cats in the Field?

The directory is published for the first time this year in two volumes; both contain an all-University listing of offices and faculty and staff, but the Carbondale volume lists only the 19,260 students on that campus and the Edwardsville directory carries the 8,528 students registered there.

The directory contains the name, class, marital status, home address and phone, and campus address and phone of each student registered on the first day of the Fall term.

Copies are available to the general public, either at the University Bookstore or by mail from Central Publications, SIU, Carbondale 62901, at $1.25 the copy for the Carbondale directory and $1 for Edwardsville.

MIX-MATCH GAME

NAME GAME HIGHLIGHTS EDITION

OF 1967-68 STUDENT DIRECTORY

The name of the game is Mix’n’Match, and some folks at Southern Illinois University play it about this time every fall.

Usually the season falls between football and basketball, but the opening gun depends upon the date of publication of the SIU Directory, because that and an eye for the unusual are all a player needs. Thus:

Friend, can you Spair a Nickel for a Coke or a Dime for a Hamburger?

The quick of mind will note that the capitalized words are names taken from the nearly 20,000 students listed in the Carbondale Campus Directory, and if you think that was a Crooner, here’s one that’s a Little Harder to Chu:

A Craven Crow Cross a Dry Creek to Grob the Berries, and a Bird in the Hand Is Worthy of Two in the Bush.

Would you believe that the Forest Is on the Apple and Dobbies Eaton Cats in the Field?

Demonstrators Fail to Halt Induction Center Operations

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 1,000 shouting demonstrators against the Vietnam war vainly tried to close a Lower Manhattan induction center Tuesday. More than 260 of them deliberately had themselves arrested, including the baby doctor Dr. Benjamin Spock and beat poet Allen Ginsberg.

As the demonstrators chanted, "Peace now!" a counterpicket, Nelson Havis, from the Queens County Council of Veterans of Foreign Wars, told a newspaper: "They seem to be rooting for the Viet Cong."

Many of the demonstrators had been briefed in advance on the tactics of civil disobedience to provoke arrests. The ranks of the protesters included the young and the old, hippie types and others who were well-dressed.

Lt. Col. James J. McPoland, commander of the Whitehall Induction center near the tip of Manhattan, called the five-hour antiwar demonstration a "big zero."

McPoland said there was no interruption in the center's daily processing schedule for 225 inductees.

Sponsors of the demonstration had hoped to attract 5,000 or more protesters against Vietnam. Police estimated about one-fifth that number that showed up outside the 81-year-old building, which houses the induction center on a square block facing Whitehall Street.

Prior to the demonstration, which is scheduled to be renewed daily during the week, 2,000 extra policemen had been assigned on overtime to crowd control in the area.

Estimates of police strength on the scene ranged as high as 1,700.

Grace Paley, a sponsor of the demonstration, claimed police clubbed some demonstrators with nightsticks and charged them with horses. Officers had been ordered in advance to protect the constitutional rights of the protesters, but also had a "clear mandate to act when action is needed."

Mayor John V. Lindsay expressed himself as satisfied with the police handling of the demonstration. He declared: "The police are doing everything in their power to respect the right to dissent, and I am, too."

The New York picketing and civil disobedience was part of so-called "Stop the Draft Week," which featured demonstrations beginning Monday in cities from coast to coast.

ViIt Cong Surprise, Ravage Village

SAIGON (AP) — A Viet Cong battalion ravaged a South Vietnamese village in the central highlands near the Cambodian frontier Tuesday with grenades and flamethrowers. About 50 casualties were listed in varied reports from the scene, none confirmed.

Whether for sheer terrorism or an effort to lure allied troops to nearby battlegrounds of the Communists' choosing, about 400 guerrillas knifed in early morning darkness into Dak Song, a "New Life" hamlet on Highway 14 about 130 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. mission said its latest reports were that the Viet Cong killed about 20 persons, wounded 30 and burned 30 or 40 homes.

Another account said four militiamen and a civilian had been killed, 15 persons were wounded and 29 were missing.

Communications with the area were difficult.

The U.S. mission's first word was that the Viet Cong had killed 300 villagers. This would have been the worst terrorist attack of the war.

Later, however, Wilbur Wilson, an American official, relayed the 20-30 figures to Saigon, remarking that the casualty toll "is much reduced." Wilson is assistant director of the U.S. Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support office for the area in which Dak Song is located.

The "New Life" hamlets are government-sponsored settlements ordinarily considered formidable targets for any Communist forays. The people of Dak Song, like most of those in South Vietnam's mountain villages, apparently are Montagnards, tribal groups which sometimes fight the Viet Cong as irregulars under the direction of U.S. Green Beret advisers.

Wilson said informants he has talked to in Dak Song said that without government provocation there had been resulting casualties to civilians and destruction of homes.

Former IC President Dies

CHICAGO (AP) — Wayne A. Johnston, who believed his 22 years as president of the Illinois Central Railroad was the longest tenure of a major modern railroad president, was found dead in his suburban Flossmoor home.

He retired Dec. 1 as chairman of the Illinois Central Railroad and Illinois Central Industries. He had been president since 1945.

Johnston, 70, apparently died Monday night after returning from his office, where he still carried on business affairs, relatives said. He was found seated in a chair in his bedroom by his housekeeper.
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson appointed career diplomat Charles E. Bohlen as his new U.S. ambassador to France, replacing a 77-year-old man named Roy D. Kohler as deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Bohlen has been ambassador to France for the past five years.

Kohler resigned to join the faculty of the University of Miami where he will teach international affairs. He was in the foreign service for 36 years, and was No. 4 position at the State Department, now vacated by Kohler, is regarded as the highest post a career diplomat can reach. The top post, secretary of state and two undersecretaries are usually held by political appointees.

Bohlen's appointment and Kohler's belong to a small group of appointments drugs are being administered to suppress possible rejection.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., was pictured Tuesday as a 4 to 1 underdog in any nationwide primary election contest with President Johnson—if it were held today.

Reporting on a national cross section survey of Democrats, pollster Louis Harris said Johnson is preferred by 63 per cent, McCarthy by 17 per cent and 20 per cent are undecided.

Harris noted that the survey was taken before McCarthy has had an opportunity to develop a role as a serious challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A key survey snafu, as described by the Washington Post, shows McCarthy running weakest in the West, where his background is weakest. The survey says McCarthy trails by 72 to 11 per cent.

In the East, including New Hampshire and Massachusetts, the report says McCarthy trails by 53 to 17 per cent.

In the Middle West, including Wisconsin, he had a 67 to 19 per cent disadvantage, and in the West he has the short end, 63 to 17 per cent.

Harris said Johnson makes his poorest showing against McCarthy in the South, where he leads by 54 to 20 per cent for McCarthy by 18 per cent undecided.

The survey says McCarthy of George Wallace of Alabama would run much stronger against Johnson in the South.

One of a Kind

SIU Curriculum Now Includes

‘Novel’ Science Fiction Course

Science fiction, once the province of pulp magazines and schocky fantasies, has made its most fantastic voyage yet, into the college curriculum.

Although officially listed as “Studies in Contemporary British Writers,” the graduate English course taught by Mark Hillegas is a far-out plunge into the world of “Science Fiction and Utopian Fantasy.”

It is not, however, the Buck Rogers-Flash Gordon stuff that papered many a pulp of yesteryear. Hillegas—whose other teaching specialty is Victorian poetry—is a scholar of the literature that British author and science fiction fan Kingsley Amis calls “an instrument of diagnosis and warning.”

Hillegas’ students are exposed to some chilling and revealing glimpses of life today, and tomorrow, as prophesied in such works as “The Time Machine,” “One of the Silent People,” and “The First Men on the Moon.”

But the course reading list also ranges from such masterworks of the past as Francis Bacon’s “New Atlantis,” to such dreadful visions of the future as George Orwell’s “Nineteen Eighty-four.”

What’s the purpose?

“Books I use are true literature,” Hillegas says, “but more than that, they all have something important to say to us about the impact of science on life and about the condition of life in a period of bewildering change.”

Hillegas’ own credentials for teaching such a course—believed to be the only one quite like it in any university—have been augmented by the publication of his book, “The Future As Nightmare: H.G. Wells and the Anti-Utopian Image.”

Released October 19 by Oxford University Press, it has been hailed by critics—including Kingsley Amis—for the light it sheds on the influence Wells wielded over such later writers as Aldous Huxley and Orwell.

Partly an outgrowth of the course Hillegas has been teaching, the book traces the work of Wells himself, then charts the outlines of his literary shadow in the later anti-Utopian books, like Orwell’s, which portray the future as much worse than the present.

Hillegas encourages his students to look past the ray guns, monsters and thinking machines to the social criticism and comment implicit in the work of the best science fictionists. The course itself is split into three parts covering Wells’ own realist works, the work of Wells himself, then the future as nightmare.

Hillegas, who holds a Ph.D. in English from Columbia and the rank of associate professor, calls himself a “sci-fi fan,” but not an addict. When the

Student Building Submarine, Plans to Finish Craft Within Year

SIU students' interests in constructive projects usually stay within the range of knitting sweaters or adding an extra 100 inches to an automobile engine. But once in a while, a student engages in a project which outdistances the others.

One such student is Bill Montfort, a senior majoring in speech. He's building a two-man submarine.

As a professional SCUBA diver and owner-operator of a diving equipment shop in Mt. Vernon, Montfort is one of the few SIU students qualified to engage in such an enterprise. In teaming up with Ed Taylor, a Mt. Vernon resident who is familiar with pneumatic systems, Montfort feels he is developing a craft which will be both useful and pleasurable.

Montfort said he thought the craft would be useful during Civil Defense underwater search and recovery exercises.

Montfort's sub will be about 14 feet long, about three feet at the widest point, and will weigh about 150 pounds.

"Our submarine will incorporate several features which are unique to this type of underwater vehicle," said Montfort. He added that "although we do not expect all systems to be 100 percent operational initially, they eventually will be and should prove revolutionary to other submarines like ours."

Planning for the sub began last summer and work should be finished by the first warm weather, according to Montfort. However, arrangements have been made to test the sub in an all-weather pool in Effingham early next year.

Research Findings Of Trios Published

Joseph P. Yavra, A.J. Pap­ pells and Gene P. Offerman of SIU are authors of "Effects of Mulching and Nitrogen on Corn Borer Susceptibility in Corn," an article appearing in the October issue of Phyto­pathology magazine, a scientific journal.

The article reported findings of a research project conducted by Yavra, professor of plant industries; Papp­ells, associate professor of botany; and Offerman, graduate research assistant, on the effect of intensive-nitrogen fertilizer treatments on the susceptibility of corn to European Corn Borer damage.

The authors found the treatment increased susceptibility, especially in corn grown on plots where mulching material was worked into the soil.

Fitness Program Planned for Winter

Saluki football Coach Dick Towers has announced that spring football practice will start Monday.

Towers has also announced that a physical fitness program will be held during winter quarter and will be open to any athlete.

"The idea for this is that anyone who is thinking about going out for football in the spring should enroll in this class," Towers said.

"I want to stress that no football drills will be held," Towers emphasized. "This is strictly a physical fitness program that will cover speed, quickness, strength and endurance; four attributes that contribute to winning football.

There will be no academic credit given for the class. It will be held during winter quarter starting Thursday, January 4 through January 11, from 4 to 5 p.m. under the main stands and on the practice fields nearby.

The class will consist of a combination of weight-lifting and isometrics three days a week. For example, a class might consist of a half hour of weight work and a half hour of working to develop agility and speed.

"Even though academic credit is being given for this class, strict roll will be taken," Towers said. "A student must make every session if he plans to be in the class. "The only exception will be if there is a conflict with classes or laboratories," Towers explained.

Football coaches, graduate assistants and football players who plan to enter pro ball next fall will supervise the classes.

All those wishing to participate in the class should report to McAndrew Stadium Jan. 4 between 3 and 5 p.m. to register. Students should also have a protective swimming suit for the course. No physical examination is necessary for enrollment in the course.

There will be a physical exam necessary for those going out for spring football practice. Spring practice will consist of 20 days of work and end either Saturday, April 27, or May 4, depending on the weather, according to Towers.

Musial Resigns as Cards’ General Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bing Devine was hired Tuesday as general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, three years after he left the same position to become the top executive of the New York Mets. Devine replaced Leo Durocher, who was fired two days earlier.

Devine is the eighth man to hold the job since the Cardinals were founded as the St. Louis Browns in 1902.

Cartright Back-of-Week

John Cartright, who passed from the Navy football scene with the 1966 inhibition against Army, was named head coach of the Associated Press College Back of The Week.

The record-shattering senior completed 19 of 29 passes for a school record 300 yards as acting general manager, replacing Devine.

August A. Busch Jr., president of the Cardinals, made the surprise announcement at the Busch Brewery in St. Louis. Board chairman Donald Grant made the announcement with newsmen in New York.

Houston, Vanderbilt and Kentucky are off to head start in Saturdays battle for the Southwest Conference championship. The teams are the only ones in the country still in consideration for an appearance in the Rose Bowl.

Youths Demonstrate Deafness Not Insurmountable Handicap

When is a handicap not a handicap? One good answer to that question is shown by the deaf boys at the University of the West Indies, who recently took part in a game of basketball.

The boys are actually easier to coach, according to coach Chuck Schrader, who laid the ground work for the deaf students’ participation in sports at the Institute.

It is true that they cannot hear the signals, the referee’s whistle, or any of the judging steps of a player behind them, but they are not mentioned the various collectively. He added that the boys have a heightened reaction to visual stimuli and have made some of the deaf players much quicker.

The boys’ injuries are to be little or no problem since the boys are all advanced lip readers. In fact, in with the latest balloting on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 7 for second, 5 for third etc. Houston had 295 points and Louisville 250.
