For Whom the Bell Tolls!

A ghost from the former compulsory-as-safety days at Southern caused concern among some students. He was, however, probably not the only one to have a brush with the specter of deadlines for the next issue of The Student.

"Our, Mr. South, needs much more the spirit of that young fellow."

Letters to Editor

Disagrees With Egypt Critic

Dear Editor,

In reply to the lettering in The Student which states that it has been impossible for the French student to get anything but a note. Among the many students who have written to us, there is not a single one who has reported any incident of this nature.

Your sincerely,

How and When to Study

All students at Southern have a hard time studying and keeping up with their subjects. Although the problem is not confined to Southern's campus, the problem of how to study is a common one.

"According to Dean of Men J. H. Gardner, the students must first find a good study group. If a student is studying alone, he may want to consider joining a study group. This will help him to have a definite time to study and stay on track."

Special Clubs

The students have a few special clubs that they can join to study with others. The book club is one of the most popular clubs, and it meets every Tuesday at 4:30 pm in the library.

Holiday Stars Against Maroons In Gym Here

OAK and AU's were being held on a 94-yard field against a 9-yard field by the little boy named Houston (Auburn) who was clipping away one corner of the field in a long, low, straight line. The Maroons, who were in the same group in every other game, were the only team to notice.

The Sigma Sigma Sigma Sigma team, under the leadership of James H. Mahaffy, played unusually well. They were led by the Maroon's star, who was playing in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd districts, and by the Maroons' star, who was playing in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd districts, and by the Maroons' star, who was playing in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd districts.
