Student Pay Rate Increases Okayed

By John Epperheimer

Student wages have been raised across-the-board by 10 cents for those now earning $1.05 or more, no re-registration.

At the same time, the minimum has been raised from $1 to $1.15. The maximum wage rate has been increased from $1.85 to $1.95 for undergraduates and from $2.70 to $2.75 for master's and graduate students.

All changes will become effective with the pay period beginning Feb. 18.

The new pay plan was one of three proposals made to the University by the presidents of the Student Government and Financial Aid Committee. The vote was 15-7 at the meeting Tuesday night.

One of the three plans considered was proposed by the Campus Senate Wednesday night and called for a 15 cent hike across the board. Frank C. Adams, director of Student Government and Financial Aid Committee, said funds were not available and the proposal was not approved.

At the same time, the recommendation of the Senate was increased by 15 cents to $1.15 with the recommendation of the Financial Aid Committee.

The increase will affect some five thousand student workers, Adams estimated.

He noted that John Foote, student senator who chaired the committee investigating the student work program, had been invited to meetings of the advisory committee, but he did the best thing: they skated with each other.

County Board of Supervisors

To Rule on Voter Registration

The question of whether voters in Carbondale Township can be legally re-registered will probably be resolved in time for Wednesday's County Board of Supervisors meeting, according to Delmar Ward, Jackson County clerk.

Ward said that he and State's Attorney Richard Richman are in the process of examining recent amendments to the state election code to determine if the re-registration proposal would be permissible by law.

Ward said that they will make a report to the Board at its upcoming meeting.

At its meeting last month, the Board of Supervisors voted to have Ward and Richman determine if past legal roadblocks preventing re-registration may have been removed by the numerous amendments to the election code passed during the recent legislative session.

According to Ward, the Board decided to look into the question of re-registration after the Carbondale League of Women Voters suggested that some address errors in the recent realignment of the township's voter precincts could be cleared up through re-registration.

Ward said that election laws prohibited re-registration of tonight's application for the township without re-registration of the county's remaining townships. In addition, the statute said that the registration is not to be made by the county's remaining townships. NASA Computer Expert Named Aide to Morris Jefferson F. Lindsey, Jr., a former employee of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has been named as an assistant to President John H. Morris.

Lindsey will work with the divisions of Computer Operations and Computing and Institutional Resources. He will also be President Morris' personal representative on matters pertaining to the further development of computer and research resources, according to an announcement.

Lindsey said he will begin a continuous assessment and evaluation of Southern's computer resources. In addition he will assist in a study being done to result in obtaining "third generation" computer equipment.

Lindsey said that the generation environment is the most modern available, being well planned and having a larger capacity than earlier types.

Lindsey said he will also work to increase the opportunities for faculty, staff and service personnel using the computer, and will work to obtain grants for symposia and research projects.

NASA, Lindsey worked in obtaining physiological data from astronauts while working on his Ph.D. in meteorology and meteorology, and will be working to obtain grants for symposia and research projects.

Speakers for the initiation were Kenneth Stark, research assistant in the Department of Journalism, and Amore Pesti, journalism graduate student from Finland.

Book Detailing Press Merger

To Launch Journalism Series

A book by Bryce W. Rucker, professor of journalism, was released last week at the University of Missouri. In his book, "The First Freedom," Rucker voices alarm at "new, "he sees as a rapidly growing trend toward chain ownership of newspapers, magazines, radio and television stations.

Teasingly last July before a Senate subcommittee, Rucker stated his belief that at the present rate all daily newspapers in the United States will be owned by chains within 20 years and Sunday papers within 13 years.

Rucker holds a Ph.D. degree in journalism from the University of Missouri. In addition to teaching at other universities before coming to SIU in 1963, he has had firsthand experience in the newspaper field, serving for both the Associated Press and United Press International as well as in the editorial staffs of six newspapers.

JANUARY 6, 1968 DAILY EGYPTIAN
On the western edge of the SIU campus, on the site of an old posing building, once used as a private residence, outside which stands a small sign reading "Film Production."

But looks, especially in this case, are deceiving since SIU's Film Production Unit is one of the busiest offices on campus, has attracted national attention, and in recent national situations it has won numerous awards for the excellence of its product the educational motion picture film.

The year 1967 brought two more major awards to a growing list of prize-winning SIU-produced films, coveted Golden Eagle awards from CINE, a committee of top motion picture experts who select American films to represent the United States at international film festivals.

One of the 1967 award-winning films, "World Population 1,000 B.C. to 1965 A.D." is an animated film which depicts graphically the growth of world population over the past 3,000 years. The film was selected for showing at international festivals in Barcelona, Spain and in Salerno and Florence, Italy.

The second Golden Eagle winner, "Vergette Making a Pot," was picked to be shown at Salerno and at the San Francisco International Film Festival. It shows the artistry of Nicholas Vergette, who is assistant professor of ceramics at SIU.

Primarily engaged in making a film for instructional research and research purposes for various clients both inside and outside of SIU and at other universities, as well as for distribution to educational television stations, the Film Production Unit's output during 1967 also includes a film for an educational project.

It produced a series of six short films for the SIU comprehensive school mathematics subject to broad teachers on new concepts in the teaching of mathematics.

The producers of the limited-edition "Tennis Stroke," was made in cooperation with the Wisconsin State Department of Education and the Wisconsin Department to teach beginning players the art of watching themselves performed by an expert.

A series called "Reading," also a series of ten-10 minute films illustrating a reading teaching method, was produced in Brown Amble of the Department of English and Educational Psychology.

During the NCAA Gymnastics Championships held in Carbondale the Film Production Unit shot all the action and produced an 11-minute feature which was distributed nationwide by the National Education Association.

Aside from all this activity the SIU cinematographers were responsible for recording all SIU basketball and football and baseball games during the 1965-67 season for use by the athletic department and for showing on television and at meetings of civic groups.

Activities in 1967 not directly involving film education itself included the teaching by Unit personnel of a course in cinematic techniques for students in the department of photography; supervising a series of seminars on motion picture and sound recording techniques for graduate students in anthropology and working with the U.S. State Department in arranging a tour of American universities for Dr. František Dvorník, dean of the Czechoslovak Film School of Cinematography and Television. The SIU Film Production Unit was founded late in 1955 under the direction of Frank R. Paine who still heads the organization. Paine's entire production staff includes members of himself and three others: Howard R. Cotton, Loren D. Cocking, and Donald Hink. Working as a team the four men and their associates produce all the work which goes into the making of a film including the shooting, editing, directing and filming the action, recording, synchronizing and dubbing the action, and most of the musical backgrounds are original scores composed by members of the SIU music faculty, and the final editing of the film before prints are made.

In all, the Film Production Unit in its eight years of existence has acted in a consulting capacity and produced films for more than 100 clients, including federal agencies, state educational departments, art, design, printing and photography, theater, geography, physical education, zoology, animal industries, plastics industries, and the Audio Visual Service and the World Resources Inventory.

Area Council to Submit New Educational Plan

A new action plan for the Educational Council of 100, organized 20 years ago to promote development of education in the lower 31 counties of Illinois, will be presented to council members here Feb. 29.

The decision was reached at a dinner meeting at SIU after the panel of two council representatives attended the preliminary meeting Dec. 14. Discussion centered chiefly on what programs should be of concern.

Informal presentations included discussions of education and health and the problems of education and health that will be faced.

A new method of advertising the need for trained health professionals will be introduced.

Education Dean Elmer J. Clark, who moderated the dinner meeting, said there are many types of activity in which the council can take part. There's much work to be done.

Tuttle suggested a new approach to problems. Instead of the council's board of directors handling most of the activity at dinner meetings on the SIU campus, Tuttle said problems should be taken directly to the counties by holding regional meetings.

John W. Allen Will Present First of 6 Lecture Sessions

SIU author—historian John W. Allen will conduct the first of a six-session series of lecture discussions on "Southern Illinois: Region of Opportunity" beginning on the carbondale campus January 11. Offered by the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education in cooperation with Community Development Services, the series will be conducted in two-hour sessions at 4 p.m. Thursdays in the Studio Theatre of Pullman Hall. Registration fee is $1, with no charge for University faculty, staff and full-time students.

No registrations will be accepted after the first meeting, but those who register need not attend all sessions, according to SIU Adult Education Coordinator Harold Engling.

Allen, an author of "Legends and Lore of Southern Illinois," is a writer whose column "It Happened in Southern Illinois," which was carried in newspapers throughout the state for more than 15 years, will speak on legends and lore at the January 11 session.

Stanley Harris of the SIU Department of Music will lead a panel discussion on "The Landscape of Southern Illinois" on January 18.

"Recreational Opportunities in Southern Illinois," which will be the subject on January 25, will be conducted by Project Manager Arch Mehringer of the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge as the speaker.

Robert Mueller of the SIU Department of Music will lead a panel discussion on "Fire Arts in Southern Illinois" on the February 1 session.

On February 8, David Luck of the Department of Marketing will discuss "The Anatomy and Future of Southern Illinois Economy."

The series will wind up February 15 with a panel discussion on "Educational Opportunities in Southern Illinois" and "U. S. Foreign Policy Discussion Slated"

The International Relations Club will hold a student panel discussion on "How Foreign Students View U. S. Foreign Policy" Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium. Panels will represent such countries as Pakistan, Finland, Iran, and Malawi.

The panel discussion is open to the public and refreshments will be served immediately following the discussion.

Silas Pursues Ph.D. At SIU During Off-Season

By John Durbin
The tale of a professional football player who is pursuing a professional degree is being demonstrated on the football field.

Sam Silas, defensive tackle for the St. Louis Football Cardinals, has found his way into his team's starting lineup through his high school and college playing days. Silas, who has assumed the role that he would play professional football.

So when his name did not appear on the football draft list, his senior year at SIU, he was very surprised.

"I played against some good offensive tackles and some fine players and I thought I would be drafted," Silas said.

With his confidence that professional football was his goal, he tried out with the Cardinals as a free agent in 1963. He made the club and moved into the starting defense, but he sustained a season-ending injury.

Sam Silas, five-year veteran with the Cardinals, has learned "many changes in the University both physically and otherwise." He has seen "many changes in the University both physically and otherwise."

The defensive halfback who made all-pro honors one year was quick to comment the "fine job Jimmy (Jim) Hart has done at quarterback this past season." Silas said he will continue to improve his skills.

In the Big Super Bowl, Silas said, "It was a real thrill to be Sunday between Green Bay and Oakland. Silas is certain the Packers will come out on top but they will have to wait the moral of the ball club.

For Silas, the off-season consists of working out, attending classes at SIU, and training for the next football season.

NEW ROLE—Sam Silas, five-year veteran with the St. Louis Football Cardinals, is a success story in all areas of University employment positions. His office is located in the Student Work and Financial Office at the Washington Square complex.

Saluki Coach Will Receive Wray Award

SIU basketball coach Jack Hartman will be honored at the St. Louis basketball writers’ dinner Jan. 25.

The writers have selected Hartman to receive the John E. Wray Award for achievements in sports other than basketball. The award is presented annually by the organization.

A graduate from Haye High School at Oklahoma State, the 42-year-old Hartman required six years to gain a National Invitation Championship and major college coaching at SIU-

The Salukis will be playing at Evansville University on Wednesday, the night before the dinner, Hartman must prepare his team, John Bennington’s Michigan State team in Chicago on Saturday.

Bennington plugging away at the writers up to the award,” Hartman joked, “so I’d be taken away from preparation for their team.”

The Wray affair are $12.50 apiece. They can be obtained by sending check or money order to St. Louis BBWA, P.O. Box 605, St. Louis, Mo.

Among Hartman’s other accomplishments was his selection as “Coach of the Year” by The Sporting News following the 1967-68 season.

Saluki Face Ambitious Sycamores Tonight

By Charles Springer

SIU’s cagers, thus far disappuated in major competition, take on an ambitious Indiana State University team tonight at Terre Haute, Ind.

The Sycamores, rated fifth in the small college ratings, are planning to throw them selves into the NCAA major college division following the campaign, a win would considerably aid their cause.

Also adding impetus is the fact that Indiana State has dropped 10 of the last 12 meetings between the two teams. Overall, SIU holds a 16-9 edge in the series dating back to 1916.

Gordon Stivers, in first year as head coach, realizes a lot of respect for the Salukis despite their 4-3 mark.

"SIU, despite its record, is potentially a real power," Stivers points out, "They’re small but fundamentally, are well-coached and a well-disciplined team.

"This has been a real natural rivalry for us," he continued, "Our kids have been pointing toward this one ever since SIU was declared a major college team.

The Salukis may run into a ball control type team tonight if Stivers’ past is taken into consideration. He was tutored by Pete New in Michigan State where, according to Stivers, "If you didn’t play defense, you didn’t play.

He likes to call it “opportunity basketball” as his team will run with the ball when opportunity presents itself.

Sycamore statistics, however, show a powerful offensive attack headed by Jerry Bowden, a three-time small college All-American. The giant 6'-6" senior forward currently holds a 27-point scoring average.

Other big men on the Indiana State aggregation include 6'-8" Center Richard Black at 6'-6" forward Fred Hariman. Both are averaging 10 points apiece. The guards are 6'-1"-1' and 5'-11"-1' Howard, Ilumse, respectively.

Oglethorpe Invades Salukiland Monday

By George Krneemer

Not many basketball fans ever heard of Oglethorpe, but the small Georgia college has left a big impression on the teams it has played this season.

Oglethorpe, with an enrollment of 1,000, is ranked 17th among UPI small college ratings and currently 7-7. Among its victims have been South Carolina State, Woffington College, and Brown University.

The team won a championship in the Oglethorpe Invitational Tournament.

SIU meets Oglethorpe Monday night in an 8:05 encounter in the Arena. A Preliminary game at 7:00 p.m. will pit the young Salukis against the St. Louis freshman team.

The Salukis’ only loss of the season came on Dec. 30 against Middle Tennessee, before that the offense was considered top drawer, with an average victory margin of 20.9 points per game.

Part of Oglethorpe’s success story is that the team has four starters returning and 12 lettermen.

Leading the Petrols is Doug Alexander, a possible All-American, who was named most valuable player in the Oglethorpe Holiday Invitational Tournament for his 44-point performance in two games. Alexander is averaging 14 points and hitting 50 percent of his field goal attempts. He is also considered top defensive forward.

The Petrol leading scorer is 6'-5" Mike Dahl, who has an 18-point per game average and is hitting 57 percent from the field. He is also averaging 11 rebounds a game from this center spot and lead Oglethorpe in that department.

The “Coach of the Year” is 6'-5" Jerry Sams, who is also hitting the loop at a 57 percent clip and is averaging 11.9 points. Rounding out the Petrols’ starting lineup is Jim Petrol, averaging 11.1 points, and Roger Littel, averaging 9.0.

It seems when one of our players gets the stitches, another is not far behind. The Petrols’ coach Bill Carter said recently, “This year’s particular team might be the top scorer.”

This year was not been a matter of a player being cold or hot," Carter pointed out, “but a matter of one of them being open more than another.”

As a team, Oglethorpe is averaging 82.4 points per game and hitting 49.5 percent of their shots, averaging 74 per cent of the free throws.

Their defense is formidable too, holding opponents to 60.3 points per game and holding the opposition to 43 percent from the field.

“Our defensive unit is the key to our success," said, “and an out-winning margin of 29.7 per cent of the shots proves the boys are working hard and playing good defense. We are fast breaking and scoring, and we have a higher clip than ever before.”

K C Seeking Soccer

Kansas City (AP) — A group of businessmen is negotiating to bring a major league soccer franchise to Kansas City, it was revealed earlier this week.
