New trustee plans to attend meeting

By Terri Martin

Willis E. Moore, who was recently named to the SIU Board of Trustees by Gov. Dan Walker, said Monday he plans to attend Thursday's meeting in Carbondale as a non-voting member.

Moore, a retired SIU Philosophy Department chair, said he is still to be confirmed by the Illinois Senate as the new appointee.

"I have mixed feelings about being named to the board," he said. "I'm honored that my friends think I'm worthy of it and perhaps I can solve some of the problems we have here."

Moore, 59, said he knew his name had been submitted to the governor by faculty members but was still surprised when the announcement was made.

"A committee made up of faculty members including myself went to Springfield last spring to submit names," he said. "I thought they would choose a representative of some minority group."

Moore joined the SIU faculty in 1955 as chairman of the Philosophy Department and remained in that position until his retirement last Aug. 31. He said he and his wife, Elizabeth, planned to move to Florida this month but because of his appointment, the plans have been changed.

Asked what he plans to stress as important issues to the board if his appointment is confirmed by the Senate, Moore said, "An interest in increasing faculty participation in university administration and to promote academic freedom and whatever may be needed to institute this."

Moore added that he hopes to help in any way by the financial support of the University and to make the University a cultural leader in Southern Illinois.

He emphasized he has long been on record as a strong supporter of student and faculty representation on the board. Moore said he has served as president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and was an active member when he taught at the University of Tennessee for eight years and the University of Missouri at Columbia for 12 years.

A former chairman of the Faculty Council, Moore said he also served as a representative on the State Board of Higher Education (IBHE) for seven years. "Because of this experience, I think I have a good background on educational problems in the whole state," he said.

Moore resigned from the committee in December of 1979 in protest of the State Board's approval of tuition increases for state colleges and universities.

"When the board chooses to ignore student and faculty in their advisory committees in a matter so crucial as this, I do not feel the board merits my support," he said in 1979.

Questioned as to his opinion of the recent firings of 104 SIU employees because of the budget cutbacks by the IBHE, Moore replied, "I don't have all the financial data to make a judgment on the necessity of the firings."

"Of course, I deplore it and especially the large number of vigorous young people that were cut," he said. "I'm very sorry the university has felt the need to dismiss people on tenure."

Moore described the action as a "very controversial" act but said he would have to "study the situation very carefully and do a lot of homework."

He is registered Democrat but said he wants to be considered an independent. Moore replaces James Nagle, 28, of Danville, who was appointed to the board but did not receive approval of the Illinois Senate.

Moore holds a bachelor's and master's degree from the University of Missouri at Columbia and a Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

Riche's job-cut stance disappoints Rich

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Matthew Rich, SIU's unofficial student trustee, criticized President David Derge's handling of the recent job eliminations Monday.

"I'm very disappointed with one Dr. David R. Derge," Rich said. Derge's stance throughout the December budget cutbacks and job cuts had been "regrettably unclear," Rich said.

"I believe it (the cuts) had to be done, but I'm disappointed in the way it was handled," Rich said. "I wish it had been done a lot earlier."

"I personally believe a lot of faculty were fired for political reasons," Rich said. "There's no doubt in my mind. It was the perfect opportunity to get rid of them."

Rich said his feelings were based on talks with fired faculty members and various students.

Exonerating Derge from carrying through on an "enemies list," Rich blamed various department and section heads for the political firings. He added he would have liked to have seen more faculty discussion about the terminations.

Countering claims he is an administration patsy, Rich said, "It's not true that I'm an "instant puppet." He stressed he is not "sitting around doing whatever anyone (Board or administration) tells me to do."

"I wasn't quiet at my first executive session," Rich said. He would not reveal the discussion topics of the closed board session, but said he was being listened to by other board members.

Rich attended the December board meeting as an unofficial trustee, and said he has been busy since. Being busy, he said, includes spending hours per day reading board materials, helping various students with problems, defending charges of election tampering and generally reacting to SIU issues and events.

Even with 25 matters coming before the board this week, Rich said he would not go into the meeting "with my eyes closed." He said he spends up to four hours daily reading and consulting with members of the board staff.

Rich stressed the importance of students bringing him their ideas and problems. He said his office is always open to his "Faculty Advisers" which have cleared the decision-making channels in the University.

"The office is open to experience," Rich said.

Rich referred to his disqualified opponent in the student trustee election.

Council allows police, fire board to postpone ordinance response

By Dan Hair
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale City Council members approved a two-week delay Monday night for the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners to respond to an ordinance passed Dec. 17 realigning the administrative functions of the board.

Mayor Neal Eckert, who suggested the delay, said he thought the request was reasonable since the board members received the ordinance Friday and were not given enough time to study it.

The board has insisted that council adoption of the ordinance, which gives the city manager the power to hire and fire employees of the police and fire departments, is illegal.

A similar ordinance was passed by the council Nov. 19. The board members, backed by their attorney H. Carl Renge, charged at the Dec. 17 meeting of the council that the ordinance passed was not the same one printed and published at the official copy.

In a letter to the council, Renge stated that he advised the board to "call to the attention of the city the material discrepancies in the manner in which the ordinance was procedurally handled."

So when the board faced the council with its charges Dec. 17, City Attorney John Womick took the blame for not including the council's recommended changes.

The council then unanimously passed another ordinance which did include special additions and changes requested by council members.

The council also set Monday night as the deadline for resolving the legality issue with the board. Edwyn Zimmerman, chairman of the board, said he is checking with Renge before deciding whether the board should comply with the ordinance.

Zimmerman asked the council Monday night to stop the ordinance before it becomes law and wait for a court decision on a similar case to determine the legality of such action.

Eckert emphasized that it is the intention of the council that the ordinance be published now. Councilman Hans Fischer agreed saying he thought Zimmerman's suggestion would only have the council going over something it had already gone over carefully.

Eckert then directed, with council approval, that the ordinance be published immediately, with the board responding in two weeks.

In other action, council members authorized Eckert to sign a contract for accounting services from Laventhal, Kreidlein, Horwath and Horwath, an auditing firm, for fiscal years 1973-74 and 1974-75.

Under the contract, the firm would examine the balance sheet of the various funds of the city plus related statements of revenue, expenditures and fund balances for the year.

The contract stipulates that the maximum fee for the services will not exceed $9,500.

Federal Energy Office begins probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Office said Monday it was investigating rumors that both petroleum stockpiling by the oil industry and fuel hoarding by the nation's railroads and trucking firms.

But top agency aides said there was no evidence as far as substantiate the rumors.

"We have not seen any evidence to indicate more than normal stockpiling," Gerald Parsky, aide to FEO director William E. Simon, said, noting that stocks of heating oil may appear larger than normal because unusually warm weather has slowed their use.

The FEO has sent telegrams requesting railroads and major trucking companies to report their inventories by the close of business Monday. A spokesmen for Frank G. Zarch, assistant director for operations and compliance, said the purpose was "to see if there is any hoarding going on. We want to check it out, because there are numerous rumors floating around."

Parsky said the energy office, relying so far largely on data collected by the American Petroleum Institute, was asking major and independent oil companies to submit production and stockpile data directly to the FEO.

"We're going to be assessing it ourselves. We may come out with different presentations," Parsky said, explaining that the FEO might emphasize different analysis methods from those of the API.

He said the data should begin arriving in about one week. Parsky also said Simon anticipates energy problems for the United States until the nation can reduce its dependency on foreign oil.

As Simon has frequently pointed out, Parsky said, the nation's present dependence on foreign oil is 35 per cent of its petroleum consumption and is projected to increase to 50 per cent by 1980.

Parsky said Simon's idea of national self-sufficiency would be a reduction in the nation's dependence on foreign sources of oil to about 10 to 15 per cent.

Rich levels criticism

Rafferty and others contested the election, alleging ballot and petition tampering by Rich. The numerous complaints are awaiting hearing by a special judiciary board staffed by representatives from Student Senate and the Graduate Student Council.

"I didn't do anything wrong personally," Rich said. Although he had no complaints against other student truste candidates or election procedures, Rich said legitimate complaints by Rafferty and others deserved serious consideration.

Rich, whose term ends in June, does not plan to seek re-election as an student trustee this spring. Despite the work he said he is investing into the office now, Rich said he does not want the student trustee workload to get in the way of his studies.
Governor lifts ban on Donath prison visits

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gov. Dan Walker has lifted the ban preventing Randy Donath, chairman of the Free School Prison School, from visiting Menard Penitentiary and working on social programs for inmates.

Last November, Donath's visiting privileges inside the prison were revoked by Prison Superintendent Thomas Israel after Israel's assistant, Don Gentch, had made a routine investigation into Donath's background. Donath then wrote a letter to Walker, asking the governor to intervene on his behalf.

Donath said Monday, that Gentch had talked to someone at SIU who had called Donath a "radical." This misinformation apparently caused Israel to bar Donath from the prison, Donath said.

In a Dec. 10 letter to Donath, Walker said, "I am assured that Superintendent Blair Brown, Israel's administrative assistant to the governor, has taken steps to hopefully prevent trouble."

Gentch, who was transferred from Israel's administrative assistant to legal materials coordinator in mid-December, said Monday that he had no idea why Donath was barred by the prison.

Gentch admitted that he had investigated Donath's background, but would not reveal what information he had received.

"I gathered information and turned it over to him (Israel). He (Israel) would have to release that," Gentch said.

Lowell Brown, Israel's new administrative assistant, said that he was ignorant of the entire matter.

Israel was on the prison grounds Monday, but was unavailable for comment, according to his secretary.

Donath said that the whole incident was caused by "misinformation" rather than bad intent on the part of Gentch or Israel. Donath said he is currently working on a program which brings prison staff and inmates together to talk out problems and hopefully prevent trouble.

Donath also said he hoped Israel would be receptive to a new program which would "bring community people inside the prison to have rap sessions with inmates about anything, except escape of course."

Donath's visits have not been barred by the state Supreme Court.

The appeals court noted that the Supreme Court has upheld the indigent's right to counsel for initial appeals but has reserved judgment on continuing challenges.

"What is requisite today may not have been constitutionally requisite 10 years ago or even a few years ago. As our legal resources grow, there is a correlative growth in our ability to implement basic notions of fairness," wrote Judge Clement F. Haynsworth, chief judge of the circuit court.

State officials from California brought the inmate-interview issue to the justices. The three-judge court overturned a state regulation that permitted reporters interviews with randomly selected inmates but did not allow inmates to solicit interviews, nor did it permit journalists to request access to specific inmates.

The state instituted the regulation after violence following notify some inmates through a more liberal interview policy.

The specific case at issue arose when a San Quentin inmate, Booker T. Hillery, filed a complaint after officials rejected and interviewed with Earth Magazine. Other prisoners and several journalists later joined the complaint.

WASHINGTOFPN (AP) - The Supreme Court agreed on Monday to decide whether indigent defendants are entitled to a free lawyer when they appeal state convictions to the highest state and federal courts.

The justices agreed to review a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court at Richmond, Va., which called on the state to provide such counsel.

In other actions, the court:

—Agreed to review the decision by a three-judge federal panel that gave journalists greater access to California prisons for inmate interviews.

—Refused to hear a challenge to Phase 4 price controls on retail gasoline outlets.

North Carolina appealed a decision requiring that lawyers be furnished to the indigent defendants for their appeals. Attty. Gen. Robert Morgan asked the justices to reverse the appeals court.

The circuit judges had declared that as long as the state "allows other convicted felons to seek access to the higher court with help of retained counsel, there is a marked absence of fairness in denying an indigent the assistance of counsel as he seeks access to the same court."

The ethics crunch

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

As America entered 1974, the gravest crisis the Nation faced was, of course, The Ethics Crunch. There simply weren't enough ethics to go around.

Some historians blamed the war in Vietnam, during which past Presidents had squandered the country's ethical reserves at a prodigious rate. Others accused the American business community of creating the shortage in order to profit, as usual, from a desperate lack of ethics.

But most Americans vented their spleen on Washington, the country's traditional source of crustace ethics. And there could be no question that Washington leaders, for whatever selfish reasons, had all but drained the very source. Indeed, Washington observers complained there was scarcely an ethic to be found in town for love or money.

As always, the shortage hit rich and poor alike, except that, as always, it hit the poor harder. As the shortage grew, they were constantly being cheated, gouged and lied to. An ethicless (non)malaise settled threateningly over the nation.

Acting swiftly in the emergency, the President proposed 17 different solutions. He was he said, op- posed to any ethical reform system.

"Rationing," he said, "will only encourage cheating and the production of counterfeit ethics."

Instead, he called for voluntary cooperation to con- serve the dwindling supply of ethics. Communities were urged to fire all honest cops, Boy Scouts were asked to limit themselves to ten good deeds a week, elderly women were requested to keep their ages un- der $8, and all Americans were called on to go slower in giving to charities and to lower their standards ten degrees.

Naturally there were protests. Many small in- dependent churches defiantly remained open despite the President's proclamation of "Ethelless (eq) Sun- days." And in New York, cab drivers declared an "Ethics Boycott" — vowing to treat all customers unethically. But no one noticed.

These steps taken, the President then appointed an Ethics Czar to "see where..." should be done. His choice was Bagley Boodle — who, in a former long-time Congressman, certainly knew as much about the shortage as anyone.

To insure that everyone suffered equally, Boodle established an allocations system. Boodle im- mediately ordered Salt Lake City to ship all its sur- plus ethics to meet the demand for more ethics in Washington. Unfortunately, the demand for more ethics in Washington came from everywhere but Washington and the surplus ethics went begging.

By April 15, traditionally the worst season for ethics, the President had no choice but to order rationing. As he had predicted, this led to cheating, hoarding, gouging and lying — a period of Black Market Ethics. But, once again, no one could tell the difference.

It was then that a small group of do-gooders organized "Operation Independence." Their goal was to stimulate the exploration for new domestic sources of ethics, such as the home and the com- munity.

"For only then," they said, "can we become in- dependent of such unreliable sources as Washington, where ethics are very foreign."

It should be mentioned in passing that during the same period the Nation also had a shortage of oil, but compared to The Ethics Crunch, it didn't amount to a hill of beans.

The shortage:

2 kinds of victims

The gas shortage, with its uncertainties and con- fusion, brought about two unfortunate episodes as the holidays drew to a close. One was tragic, but both were predictable. A gasoline price gouger in Chicago was closed by the Internal Revenue Service; a consumer who was hit by real trouble unless the trend can be rever- sed. For the swiftly increasing interdependence of people, domestically and internationally, calls for swiftly increasing understanding that can only be achieved through the exchange of the sterile and artificial change of ideas. In the face of this need, respect for language as a precise and finely tuned instrument of communication seems to be steadily lagging, in the teacher training schools as well as in schools and homes generally.

To heighten that respect will take the best efforts that a concerned community can put together.

U.K. credibility gap?

Britain's three-day week work has begun with a vengeance. Three-quarters of the nation's workers were thrown onto the unemployment rolls and millions were put on top of the nearly half million already there. If the ab- breviated week long continuing unemployment could climb to six million, a level of joblessness Britain has never experienced since those years on the dole before World War II.

The excruciating question facing the British people is this: Can they survive? To the average person, the war in Vietnam, the tests, the mines, the Social Security, the pensions, the trade unionism, the British citizenship, the third Saturday in May — all this means little compared to the coal miners and railroad workers being asked to accept smaller pay increases with a period of normal production even longer. However, the volume of laborious police calls on the offshore embassies, despite Arab announcements that the oil embargo on Britain is being lifted.

But Prime Minister Heath appears less interested in maintaining production and full employment than in bringing the pressure of public opinion to bear against the miners. His apparent aim is to defehd his Government's drastic tactics could cause social pressures. •

The Government's latest figures imply that coal strike, with its high enough to permit industrial output to continue at normal levels at least until summer, because it would be a real disaster. The three-week day work. Switching from coal to oil could extend the period of normal production even longer. However, the volume of laborious police calls on the offshore embassies, despite Arab announcements that the oil embargo on Britain is being lifted.

Lapse in language skills

The College Entrance Examination Board has revealed another drop in the average Scholastic Ap- [Title Test] scores of high school seniors—the 50th consecutive annual drop. The latest mathematical scores have dropped from 529 to 491. Verbal test scores have fallen from 478 to 443, losing seven points in the last year.

During the first five years of the decade the educational system was considered to be on the rise. But the research indicates that if anything they're getting a little brighter.

It seems to us that leaves two major possible explanations: Either a lot of the brighter kids are no longer going toward college and therefore not taking the tests, or the schools are less effective in teaching basic skills.

Either way, it's a matter of national concern, and for remedial action.

If colleges and universities are attracting fewer qualified students, the higher education community would probably do well to look at its image and try to improve it. But we would hazard the guess that if the main problem is indeed a waning of interest, that is a temporary matter to be corrected by the passage of time.

If the schools are increasingly failing to develop skills—particularly verbal skills—which are so badly needed for real trouble unless the trend can be rever- sed. For the swiftly increasing interdependence of people, domestically and internationally, calls for swiftly increasing understanding that can only be achieved through the exchange of the sterile and artificial change of ideas. In the face of this need, respect for language as a precise and finely tuned instrument of communication seems to be steadily lagging, in the teacher training schools as well as in schools and homes generally.

Coal treatment grant received

By Julie Times
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An SIU professor, with the help of a grant from the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality, is about to begin a project aimed at cleaning up the air while aiding the local economy.

Edward Haskeith, associate professor of thermal and environmental engineering, will experiment with a device used to scrub smoke from coal-fueled power plants caused by burning coal. He hopes to improve a scrubbing system that already has been used commercially. If his experimentation succeeds, high-sulfur Illinois coal may become marketable since it could be burnt without exceeding air emission standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Haskeith so far has received $10,000 from the institute for Environmental Quality, $45,000 of which already has been spent on equipment and installation. He noted that when the organization's fiscal year ends in June, the grant will be renewed.

"We're expecting delivery of tanks the first equipment later this week. The actual pilot plant parts will be in within one and a half weeks," Haskeith said.

Only used equipment has been obtained for the pilot scrubber project. Haskeith added that used equipment, besides being less expensive, is easier to obtain. Due to the current critical steel shortage, new equipment may take up to 18 weeks for delivery.

Much of the equipment has been donated by the Chemical Construction Corporation of New York and donated around $25,000 in used equipment. If that equipment were new, he noted, it would be worth twice as much.

Annual variety show set for Shroyer in March

The 7th Annual Theta Xi Variety Show, sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council, will be held March 1 and 2 in Shroyer Auditorium.

All registered SIU-C students are eligible in tryout for the show. Individual and intermediate talent categories may include such talent acts as song, dance, instrumentalists, monologues, dramatic readings, skits, floor exercises and the like.

Fifteen large groups, called minis, will perform at the show. Broadway and silent productions, however, have already entered the competition.

Entry forms are available in the Area Office of on-campus residence halls and in the Student Activities Office. Entry deadline for the show is Jan. 15, when auditions will begin at 7 p.m. in Davis Auditorium.

In addition to the talent awards, which will be given out at this year's show, the Kaplan Memorial Scholarship Award for biological sciences and the Inter-Greek Council's Service to Southern Awards for outstanding service in activities will also be presented.

Proceeds will be donated to the Office of Student Work and Financial Aid to provide student scholarships. Advance ticket sales will begin in early February.

Ervin willing to "discuss compromise"

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) - Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said Monday he would welcome a compromise to end the White House material, but would want any agreement in writing.

"We've been anxious to resolve this material all the time," he said. The committee first requested the tapes "so there could be no misunderstandings.

Ervin's comments were made after a noon Senate vote on the possibility of settling the controversy was tabled.

Spirituality show slated

Utilizing the writings of P.F. Sarkan, William Blake and Albert Einstein, Arden Manga concepts and spiritualism will be presented in the form of a narrated slide show at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the Ohio River Room of the Union Center.

"The show should be interesting to any practitioners of religious science—for it explains meditation on a level that the intellectual community will appreciate," Ray Lenz, SIU-Chicago, said.

Haskeith said that the show compares the concepts of yoga with western studies of psychology, scientific findings concerning the human nervous system and the mystical experiences of Christian saints.

"After showing how the eastern and western ideas are alike, the text draws the conclusion that they are basically the same ideas—that everything is one, that there is no difference between east and west in the language employed," Lenz said.

Members of the Arden Manga Yoga Society also will be on hand to answer questions from the audience after the show and to introduce interested individuals to the techniques of meditation.

A 25-cent donation will be asked at the door to defray the costs of presenting the show.

Airplanes want to avoid birds

NEW YORK (AP) — To help steer airplanes away from localities where they might be endangered by birds in flight, bird watchers are working with the U.S. Air Force.

The Air Force has signed a contract to take the masses of data accumulated since 1900 in the National Audubon Society's Christmas Bird Count and put it on maps so that training flights can be routed around areas of concentration for large birds such as ducks, geese, cranes and pelicans.

Emphasis is placed on informal conversations with Israeli Hebrew and the work is based on short dialogues, conversational exercises and other procedures designed to give the students practice in speaking.

Oil City short on namesake

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP) -- Despite its name, Oil City's location atop a huge reserve of crude oil, Oil City is experiencing a shortage of the natural energy wines as the rest of the country.

"The price of gasoline has skyrocketed," said Ollie Bittner, Oil City Manager Jerry Bittner said Monday, "so people are still depending on their cars as they always have.

"We're trying to drill more wells," said Bittner, "but we can't get enough crude oil," he said, noting that most of Quaker State's supply comes from independent producers in the area.

Meanwhile, school children in this city of 17,000 handle up in mist and scarce to ward off the chill because of lowered thermostat, and City Hall; secretaries have traded miniskirts for panties.

Some service stations, operating in the shadow of two huge refineries, swear "no gas" signs at the end of last month as monthly gasoline allocations were consumed.

And the local electric company has reminded employees and O'Hare adjusts to flight cuts

CHICAGO (AP) -- There were fewer flights landing and taking off from O'Hare International Airport, the world's busiest, on Monday, but the impact on tower or ticket counter operations was small.

And, apparently, there was even less impact on passengers. There appeared to be no more than usual frantically searching for seats.

"We've had no problems with standbys," said a spokesman for American Airlines, which Monday cut 15 domestic flights into and out of O'Hare as part of a jet fuel conservation measure. The airline now has 108 daily flights going out.

Similar cuts went into effect as Trans World Airlines, which slashed six domestic flights both landing and departing O'Hare, lowering its two-week total to 94.

United and Eastern Airlines were among those that cut back last week—United dropping 17 trips to a total of 217 and Eastern going from 35 to 26 departures.

A spokesman said, Eastern added some larger planes to its remaining flights, so that the cuts represented only 18 per cent less in seats, not a full 25 per cent drop.

Through none of the airlines had figures available on whether remaining flights were carrying more passengers than before the latest round of cuts, all were quick to point out that post-holiday January is traditionally a slack period for airline travel.

The Administrative Professional Staff Council will meet Tuesday in the conference room, second floor, Park Place South.

Dogs appreciate coal homes

BRENTWOOD, N.Y. (AP) -- The current and locating fuel shortage should make the winter a happy one for dog owners, says a professional grower.

"The price of coal is lower in homes and apartments that have too many dogs," said Mr. Eiser, who is director of education for St. Aubrey Pet Care Products.

Under normal winter conditions, he notes, "the family dog is taken from its 75-degree—or warmer—bathroom, and is held in temperatures often dipping below the freezing mark. This confines the dog's biological thermostat as he faces winter temperatures outside and summer temperatures on the inside.

"The result," Eiser adds, "is that the dog's body doesn't know how to adjust his coat for summer or to keep on growing it longer and warmer for the winter. This winter the family dog is going to have a bit more fur than usual, but the extra fur will still pose no problem."
Phnom Penh faces large rebel attack

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — More than 5,000 government reinforcements backed by dozens of airstrikes have arrived at Phnom Penh's northwest defense lines Monday to counter a large rebel force advancing toward the capital, field reports said.

Field reports said insurgents abducting an estimated 4,000 villagers but that many of them remained in the battle zone. The rebels were reported holding civilians captive near Tangelo Kraang peninsula five miles from downtown Phnom Penh.

A Phnom Penh, commander of the government's 29th Brigade, said the Khmer Rouge forces had about 300 villagers. He estimated another 200 to 300 civilians trapped by the fighting were killed in civilian and government artillery barrages.

Field reports said hundreds of civilian refugees were pouring out of the battle zone. Some families were being missed or killed relatives, they added.

Three spearheads of a total 70 armed groups were advancing toward the capital, a government official said. They attacked the rebel pocket along a broad seven-mile front in open fields near the Phnom Penh suburb.

Faculty Senate to meet Tuesday

A Faculty Senate meeting to catch up on business left over from December's agenda is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Union, the senate reported.

Chairperson Jeanne Thoery said there was a 100 percent attendance concerning the recent SIU job terminations would be presented to the senate.

The senate will vote on proposed guidelines for grievance procedures and a report on a review board for faculty and administrative personnel. The senate will also be the question on whether to withdraw spring break and to favor sessions in early March.

The regular monthly meeting is scheduled for Jan. 12.
Volunteers sought by service agency

Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian, Staff Writer

Volunteers are being sought as tutors, in nursing homes, in mental health programs and with other social service agencies this quarter by MOVE ( Mobilization of Volunteer Efforts).

"Local agencies need all the volunteers they can get. Persons with all types of training, experience and talents are urged to volunteer," said Scott Barron, assistant to MOVE coordinator Dan Williams.

MOVE serves as a clearinghouse for volunteers to work in area day care centers, nursing homes, tutoring programs, schools for the handicapped, mental health programs and family planning centers.

About 50 volunteers were referred through the MOVE office fall quarter. About 80 students have volunteered for winter quarter. But more interested students are needed, Barron said.

"Students are placed with an agency the day they volunteer. Because all agencies need free help, volunteers can almost always work for the agency they choose," Barron said.

Interested students and townspeople may apply at the MOVE office on the third floor of the Student Center in the Student Activities department.

The MOVE office has a list of about 40 agencies needing volunteers, Barron said. The Crisis Intervention Center has just been added to the list. The Center is a hotline phone service manned by volunteers trained to deal with all kinds of personal problems.

Other agencies where volunteers are working include Care House, an outpatient mental health agency. Care House needs recreation leaders, sewing and arts and crafts teachers. They also could use cooking and gardening help, according to Barron.

Barron said working with the elderly in nursing homes is becoming popular. "We have a program that lets the volunteer teach and learn at the same time," he said. "The elderly person teaches the volunteer old-time crafts like needle point and quilting. In turn, the volunteer demonstrates his talents," Barron said.

Barron said volunteers need only a sincere desire to help someone, to quality for referral to an agency. Many students are gaining valuable work experience in the agencies, he said.

Townspeople other than students may ask for referral through MOVE. "Many other citizens have valuable talents and time they could volunteer," Barron said.

Anna State Hospital, the Bowen Center for retarded children, Illinois Work Release Center, Legal Assistance Foundation, Newman Center, YMCA, Wesley Foundation day care center, Women's Center and many other agencies need volunteers, Barron said.

Transportation for the volunteers has been a problem but many people in Carbondale are in walking distance to agencies, he said.

"While practical work experience is valuable, the reward of feeling good about helping individuals is even better," Barron said.

recalled to jobs

CHICAGO (AP) - Ford Motor Co., announced Monday it's Hough plant in South Chicago, resumed production Monday after a two-week shutdown which idled 2,500 workers.

The layoff occurred while the plant switched production from standard size cars to midsize models. All furloughed workers were expected to be back on the job by Friday, a spokesman said.

Public loss of confidence blamed on Kennedy, Johnson

SPRINGFIELD, III. (AP)—The unfulfilled promises of the New Frontier and the Great Society—along with Watergate— are responsible for the decline of public confidence in government, in a presidential speech writer Patrick Buchanan told a college audience Monday.

Buchanan’s responsibility for the decline, simply that of ac-ecessory after the fact,” Buchanan told a college audience Monday.

Buchanan said Americans became disillusioned because of an “exaggerated confidence and excessive faith in the federal government that was the hallmark of the political rhetoric of the 60’s.”

He said the ‘60s began with anticipation, hope and good cheer with the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy, but ended in bitterness, despair and disillusionment because men in politics “placed upon the back of government burdens it should not attempt to carry.”

Kennedy, in a program called the New Frontier, and President Lyndon B. Johnson, in a program called the Great Society, “promised such things as an end to poverty, discrimination, disease and injustice, which no government on earth can deliver,” Buchanan said.

“Because the promises were so extravagant and made with such fervor, the inevitable disillusionment was that much greater,”

Buchanan said.

“Beneficial big government is another

gold that failed, a false

god, in whom the American people—

their traditions and history—should never have believed,” he said.

The presidential speech writer said public confidence can be restored if politicians and the “end the rhetoric of over-promise,” tell people about the limitations of government, and convince people to rely on it.

Buchanan, the principle writer of former vice president Spiro Agnew’s speech charging that media power is concentrated in the hands of a few eastern liberals, urged more balance and perspective.

“Recognize that the competitive drive for the bizarre, the dramatic,

the divisive, exceptional, the shocking, the brutal can leave Americans with but a tiny and ugly false picture of their society,” he said.

“Treat ‘disast’ as something less damaging to divine revelation. Give the uncritical defenders of the nation and its institutions equal time with the more telegenic and intolerant demanding instant change,” he urged the media.

Aging session will hear dean

HAYWARD, Wis. (AP)— Three times in the last three years convicted

Edward Quagno tried to escape.

The last attempt ended in his death.

Quagno, 57, who has spent years in and out of imprisonment before he was shot while trying to be to freedom to a housekeeper at a hostage.

Officers said Quagno was only a month short of parole when he escaped a state prison farm near Waupun Aug. 3. He was received within hours.

He was being sentenced in conviction with that escape last Thursday when he broke from the Dodge County Courthouse and drove through a window into the home of Mrs. F. Gerald Daley in Juneau and took her hostage.

Quagno was tried and convicted for the 1973 killing of

Edward Grant who demanded

$5,000, a pistol and a helicopter, but when he emerged, he took

Mrs. Daley’s house and hostage.

A cooker’s jury ruled on Monday that the shooting was justifiable homicide.

“Recruit have been pretty desperate to do what he did,” an innocent at Waupun said. “He must have figured that if he didn’t make it, he’d rather be dead.”

Quagno will be buried Tuesday

after services at the Sigmar

Assay Assembly of God church at the LaC

Co. Indian Reservation near here. His brother, Vernon, is a pastor of the church.

Records show the Quagno’s father had been confined to a red home, and their mother died while Edward was in his early teens here.

By the time he was 18, a series of crimes led to a 10-year sentence to the Green Bay ReformatORY for car theft and burglary. He was sent to the Green Bay ReformatORY in 1971 but was returned to the ReformatORY after conviction for car theft and burglary. There he was he found his first escape, leading to a transfer to Waupun State Prison.

Quagno’s father, Stann Grant, said Quagno got along well at the prison and took part in various educational programs. He was transferred to the prison’s farm near Waupun on July 25, pending his release on parole in September.

New law lets motorists make left turns on red signal

By David Kerbelich
Daily Egyptian/Editor-Writer

Motorists have been able to make left turns on red lights for almost a year in Carbondale. Providing they were turning from one-way streets on 10th and Walnut streets, Office Wayne Maglin of the Illinois State Police said Monday:

"When the statute allowing right turns on red lights went into effect, we did the left turn ordinance," Martin said. "But, most people do not know about the ordinance."

One of the corners in Carbondale that the new law applies to, is where University Avenue, and Walnut Street meet. Martin said a motorist turning from University Avenue can make a left turn on Walnut against the red light, while turning straight is prohibited. The motorist must start the turn in the far left lane of University and end up in the left lane of Walnut, Martin said.

Although crazy people do not know about the left turn law, they are making right turns on red lights, Martin said.

Making right turns on red lights have some advantages. Martin said "in areas where the law was used, the accident rate has decreased for the first six months and then leveled off at the lower level," Martin said. "Besides there being fewer accidents, "traffic control is easier," Martin said. "Traffic jems are bad."

Catalog supply okay for fall

Although there is a shortage of catalogs for the remaining quarters of 1972, the University should be well supplied with catalogs for the upcoming fall semester.

The catalog is the official publication of programs and academic requirements for SIU. Allen Jones, assistant director of University Graphics, which supplies undergraduate and graduate catalogs for SIU, said the new catalog should be "out by May, if not sooner."

Jones said this would be up to eight weeks earlier than previous catalogs have come out and said, "we hope to have a sufficient supply the first day."

The shortage of catalogs for the remainder of SIU's operations on the quarter system was announced fall quarter by A.B. Mifflin, director of University Graphics. Mifflin said catalogs would be dedicated to new students admitted either for spring or summer quarters. Normally catalogs are available to all University departments upon request.

Because of the shortage resulted from cutbacks in expenditures. He said University Graphics was trying to cut back on spending and "happened to cut back too much."

It sounds incredible

But Evelyn wood graduates can read the godfather in 64 minutes

Imagin e what this ability can do for students. At 1000-words per minute, (that's 3 times faster than you read), Evelyn wood graduates can devour a textbook like Hofstadter's "American Political Tradition" and wrap up each chapter in 11 minutes.

This means instead of spending 800 hours a year reading—what is a college freshman doing—an Evelyn wood graduate spends 170 hours. Without any drop in comprehension! Without any drop in retention!

If there ever was a time to do something about this, it's now.

Cuts loom in STC's future

By Gary Hour
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The School of Technical Careers will lose seven faculty members because of budget cuts and one program has been terminated because of insufficient enrollment.

Assistant Dean Harry Soderstrom said commercial graphics printing will no longer be offered because not enough students signed up for the course. The Printing course instructor was also cut from the faculty.

"The faculty cutbacks will not cause program cutbacks," said Soderstrom. "The cuts were from various programs, and the dean decided who would be laid off." Soderstrom said the list of names of those cut from the faculty was not available to him.

"We really haven't fared too badly," said Soderstrom. "But we have been hurt on equipment funds, and equipment is our life-blood."

We'll just have to tighten our belts here and there.

"Our needs are met via our budget. Budget constraints limit the availability of equipment," Soderstrom said. He said he could not compare this year's budget with last year's, but "even if we assume there were no budget cuts, the increase in the cost of materials would act like a budget cut."

The school's dental laboratory technology program, one of two Illinois programs accredited by the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association, is in danger of losing its accreditation due to insufficient funding.

Dr. William M. Leebens, supervisor of the program, said a cutback on funds for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare may result in a lack of funds for the program this year. The program received a federal grant for about $157,000 last year, and was approved for the same amount this year. Leebens said Friday, the program's accreditation will be determined by the council in two years. "We're loaded down with students, but the outlook on funding looks the same," Leebens said Monday. "The program's accreditation will be determined by the council in two years," he said.

Efficient police settle complaint

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) -- This citizen may have changed his mind about the state troopers he accused of responding too slowly to complaints.

Dispatcher Mike Holstine said the man called from a tavern early Monday and used "much profanity" in registering his gripe.

"He just kept cursing so I asked him if he would like to be arrested for public intoxication and he said okay," Holstine said.

"As it happened, two troopers were already patrolling near the tavern and they arrested him before he got out of the telephone booth."

IRISH LEADER RESIGNS; PEACE HOPES DIMMED

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Brian Faulkner quit on Monday as leader of Northern Ireland's once-dominant Unionist party, citing a desire to work for his own future as minus a job in government. He was succeeded by Lord协议, who said the party was 'in a state of ambiguity' after the Loyalist action, and that there was a need for a new approach.

He was succeeded by Lord协议, who said the party was 'in a state of ambiguity' after the Loyalist action, and that there was a need for a new approach.

LONDON (AP) — Irish guerrillas "claimed" on Monday they have planes and are training pilots in preparation for "more spectacular" commando raids in British cities. Security heightened at provincial airports across the country and Catholic convents in Ireland are on special alert. British authorities said their show of force in London has apparently cut down on guerrilla explosions smothering.

The hardline Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said in Dublin that nine guerrillas pilots were being trained in Ireland and nine more in Libya, bankrupted by President Mouammar Khadafi.

A Provisional source claimed two small planes, broken down and hidden in packing crates, have already been smuggled into Dublin.

Three days ago, the British army dropped a security curtain around London's Heathrow Airport, that regular police force stepped in at most other British airfields, taking over security from the British Airports Authority.

Uniformed police officers patrolled runways in England and Scotland and detectives kept watch in passenger halls. Sharpshooters and Saracen armed cars guarded Heathrow for the third straight day.

Fifteen Scorpion tanks with 26mm guns were withdrawn from Heathrow's approach roads late Monday. The Defense Ministry refused to give the reason for the withdrawal but said armored cars and armed troops would continue their vigil on runways and roads around the airfield's 12-mile perimeter.

Although government chiefs say the army's presence is only an exercise, airline officials insist the alert is linked to reports that Arab guerrillas with Soviet-made SAM7 guided missiles are planning to attack an Israeli or American plane in London.

The armed troops at Heathrow brought London into line with its continental European counterparts, long strengthened against terrorist attacks.

Marksmen were moved into Rome's Fiumicino airport after the December guerilla massacre.

Lottery system gets opposed

CHICAGO (AP) — The controversy continued Monday on the top position on March primary election ballots.

A group of independent Democrats filed suit in U.S. District Court, seeking federal jurisdiction over a suit aimed at preserving the current lottery system.

The federal court asked that a three-judge federal panel be reconvened to consider the question of postponing the names on the ballot. Earlier in the day, Judge Harry G. Cumberfield of Circuit Court continued a temporary restraining order preventing the Illinois Board of Elections from holding the lottery in Springfield to determine ballot positions for the March 19 primary election.

Under state law the first candidate to file nominating petitions for an office is awarded the first place on the ballot. Such a position is considered an advantage for the candidate holding it.

Nevertheless, there has always been a question of what happens in a tie. The ballot law provided that there would be a drawing for ballot position if there was a tie.

It declared that when the Secretary of State's office opened for the beginning of the voting period, the ballot law would consider ballots filed at the same time to be tied. It ruled those waiting in line outside the secretary's office at 8 a.m. also to be considered the ballot law.

The basic question is how to declare a tie and then the lottery would be used to determine the final ballot position.
Bicycle registration to begin

By David Kornbluth
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU and the city of Carbondale will begin bicycle registration Wednesday morning at the conclusion of the annual Spring Fair, said Tim DaRosa, in charge of registration for the Security Police Department.

"The weather is against us," DaRosa said, "registration may be extended past the original set dates."

The original deadline for bike registration was Jan. 18 for the SIU off-campus stations. The date extends Sundays. "It's a bad time for us to start registration," DaRosa said, "but we wanted to get an early start to cut down on thefts."

The program is designed to cut down on thefts and help locate stolen bicycles by issuing the license plates and tags we should be able to sell if a bicycle serial number has been tampered with," DaRosa said.

To make it easier for students and residents of Carbondale to get their bikes registered a number of registration stations have been set up. SIU students will be able to register at Lenox, Trueblood and Grinnell Halls, parking section offices in Washington Square, Student Center, Security Office and the Security Office branch of the School of Technical Careers. Registration will also take place Jan. 19 at Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace.

The Carbondale police will do most of their registrations in Carbondale school buildings. There will also be a registration period at the Police Community Services Center on South Illinois Avenue.

Because no final date for registration has been announced, DaRosa said he did not know when enforcement of the resolution would begin. "Once they have been given enough time to register, enforcement will start," he said.

Failure to register a bicycle may mean impoundment of the bike, a fine or both, DaRosa said.

Those who get bicycles after the initial registration period can register at the Security Office and the parking section offices, DaRosa said.

The resolution making it mandatory for all bikes to be registered was passed by the SIU Board of Trustees on Sept. 14.

Three-day rush of Delta Upsilon to begin tonight

The first night will be for students from the Brush Towers and University Park area, the second night for Thompson Point residents and the last night for all off-campus students, Dan Kelly, president of Delta Upsilon, said.

If a student chooses to remain single and shows up at a rush but did not register for Delta Upsilon, Kelly said, "he said everyone is invited to the rush."

Student bookstore business booms

Business is booming at the student-owned consignment bookstore, 715 S. University. Publicity Chairman John Hardt said Monday student response has been "very enthusiastic" during the store's first few days of selling textbooks.

"We sold $2,700 worth of books as of Monday morning," Hardt said. "Students can buy textbooks until 6 a.m. Thursday. We accept personal checks and Master Charge cards."

Hardt said students can turn in used textbooks until 6 p.m. Wednesday. The store's hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Students may pick up checks for books which were sold Saturday and delivered Saturday during the regular store hours.

Chamber urges end to Phase 4

CHICAGO (AP) - The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce has asked the Cost of Living Council to stop Phase 4 Price controls at once and to direct state price controls to the products and prices that are "most needed," the chamber said.

The chamber also sent to all Illinois lawmakers a "statement of pressing concern" that "price controls would undermine the economic stabilization policy pursued by the federal government since 1971."

The 19,000-member business group's message noted that the "capacity of our economy to self-correct" has been "too long," and that "production cuts, lower profits and rising unemployment due to the energy crisis threaten the top corners of the chamber said."

Lawanna Board, 17, of Springfield Township, Ohio, stood in the dark waiting for the bus that would take her to high school. "It's real scary out here," she said.

Lawanna was one of millions of youngsters who set off for class before sunrise on Monday because of Daylight Saving Time. The new time took effect Sunday on a year-round basis as part of President Nixon's energy conservation drive.

The switch prompted complaints from parents who were worried about the safety of their children—particularly the younger ones—and caused some school districts to change school hours.

Springfield Township officials considered changing the schedule, but decided against it. "We decided we would create more problems than we have now," said Supt. James Haynes.

Crime guards in Salt Lake City, Utah, where schools start between 8 and 9 a.m. and where sunrise was at 8:52 Monday, were issued flashlights.

Motorists had to be extra careful, Mrs. Stanley Hugen of Baldwin, Mo., said. "We're taking a chance on some children getting hit just to save an hour of electricity and we had the lights on for an hour getting kids ready."

Margaret Deegan, 16, of Seymour, Conn., washed her car and seriously injured herself as she walked to school Monday morning shortly after 7 o'clock, about half an hour before it began to get light.

The government contends that electricity use can be cut by up to several per cent with the switch to Daylight Saving Time. Moving the clocks ahead one hour means it stays light later in the afternoon when electricity use normally is heavy.

Some localities obtained exemptions from the time change. Gov. Cecil Andrus, who successfully argued that southern Idaho should be exempt from the switch, said the safety of schoolchildren was a key reason he wanted to remain on standard time.

Five Maryland counties changed school hours, delaying the opening bell for an hour or half an hour. Several North Carolina and Virginia school districts took similar action.

Conspirators get parole

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Parole Board Monday ordered three of the five convicted Watergate burglars released on parole effective March 7.

The board freed Eugene H. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis, and Virgil H. Gonzales, who have served more than a year in prison and now are confined at a federal prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

A Justice Department spokesman said the three must observe customary parole conditions, including reporting monthly to probation officers. They will remain on parole until the end of their sentences.

Martinez, that will be on Jan. 29, 1976 and for the other two, it will be Jan. 2, 1976.

Lawanna Board, 17, of Springfield Township, Ohio, stood in the dark waiting for the bus that would take her to high school. "It's real scary out here," she said.

Lawanna was one of millions of youngsters who set off for class before sunrise on Monday because of Daylight Saving Time. The new time took effect Sunday on a year-round basis as part of President Nixon's energy conservation drive.

The switch prompted complaints from parents who were worried about the safety of their children—particularly the younger ones—and caused some school districts to change school hours.

Springfield Township officials considered changing the schedule, but decided against it. "We decided we would create more problems than we have now," said Supt. James Haynes.

Crime guards in Salt Lake City, Utah, where schools start between 8 and 9 a.m. and where sunrise was at 8:52 Monday, were issued flashlights.

Motorists had to be extra careful, Mrs. Stanley Hugen of Baldwin, Mo., said. "We're taking a chance on some children getting hit just to save an hour of electricity and we had the lights on for an hour getting kids ready."

Margaret Deegan, 16, of Seymour, Conn., washed her car and seriously injured herself as she walked to school Monday morning shortly after 7 o'clock, about half an hour before it began to get light.

The government contends that electricity use can be cut by up to several per cent with the switch to Daylight Saving Time. Moving the clocks ahead one hour means it stays light later in the afternoon when electricity use normally is heavy.

Some localities obtained exemptions from the time change. Gov. Cecil Andrus, who successfully argued that southern Idaho should be exempt from the switch, said the safety of schoolchildren was a key reason he wanted to remain on standard time.

Five Maryland counties changed school hours, delaying the opening bell for an hour or half an hour. Several North Carolina and Virginia school districts took similar action.
Energy crisis may intensify Indian plight

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chipewa spokesman said Wednesday that the energy crisis is going to intensify the plight of American Indians unless the government acts to help them.

"We are not going to go into a big discussion about things before they happen," said Winona Sample of Santa Clara, Calif. "But I am concerned about this."

Because of the remoteness of Indian reservations, the problem of getting fuel, food and medical help is more serious than for other Americans, she pointed out in an interview.

"But if there are all kinds of tragedies out there, who'll know about it?" she asked. "These things will end up hurting people."

Sample is on the staff of Erikson Institute for Early Childhood Development and Research, a nursery school and child development programs for poor children and their mothers.

She and other Erikson staff members are designing course programs for 10,000 Indian children on reservations throughout the country.

Mrs. Sample, who grew up on the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota, noted that there are no telephone or other forms of communication in the bogs in which Indians live.

They cannot call for help and no one checks on them to see if they are alright, she said, and many do not speak English.

Even when there is no fuel shortage, food and hay for animals must be airlifted to remote areas when the weather is severe.

Some Navajos are as much as 150 miles from the nearest town.

Food costs, already quite high in trading posts, would increase as gasoline prices rise and the cost of delivery to those posts goes up, Mrs. Sample said.

And without gasoline the Indians cannot even go for government commodities — the starry staple food supply. Some areas must also haul in water, she said.

Because they have no refrigeration, Indians must make frequent trips for food, making them even more dependent upon gasoline. Mrs. Sample also expressed the fear that fuel oil deliveries will not be made to the schools and medical clinics on reservations because of the high cost of delivering gasoline for unloading.

Some government-built homes for Indians use oil as fuel, and gasoline is required to fetch wood used in many homes, since Indians mostly use pickup trucks and no longer have horses and wagons, Mrs. Sample said.

The federal government should assign a priority for fuel for Indian reservations and other remote people, such as those living in Appalachian, and to migrants, who depend upon gasoline to get to a job, she suggested.

If priorities are assigned on a state basis, she said, "we're out of luck — then we know we don't get served."

NEW TIDES IN THE CHICAGO AREA

- For only the second time in recent years, a rare astronomical condition is producing especially high tides along the coasts of the United States.

- The tides, along with other weather factors, were causing erosion at Newport Beach, Calif., but on the East Coast, the forecast for combination of high tides and storms and onshore winds had not materialized.

- Given that combination on the East Coast, weather experts had feared there could be severe flooding similar to the situation of March 1 and 2, 1962 which took 40 lives and caused $500 million in damage in Long Island Sound.

- Vories are largely caused by the gravitational pull of the moon, but the sun also has an influence. The current high tide can be caused by the moon in its fullest phase, unusually close to the mid-East Atlantic coast. With the sun at its highest point, the are at points of equal pull, bringing them into roughly a straight line.

- There will be similar, but slightly reduced high tides. Forecasters are predicting high tides on Feb. 7, July 15 and Aug. 17.

- Some costumed public relations people are promising high tides on Feb. 7, July 15 and Aug. 17.

Second loss on season

Navy keelhauls SIU grapplers

By Kenneth Pilarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki wrestlers were tagged with their second loss of the season against one win and one tie as the Naval Academy was muscled 24-12 Monday afternoon at the arena.

Saluki wrestling coach Linn Long again shook up his lineup in the hopes of finding a replacement for injured heavyweight, Kevin Bergman. Senior Wayne Riep (0-2) wrestled in the heavyweight slot and took it on the chin 146 against Navy's Jeffery Simmons (6-1).

One of the few bright spots for SIU was the continued excellent wrestling of sophomore Joe Goldsmith (11-1), Goldsmith pinned Navy's Tom Bauer with only 1:51 gone in the first period for a 6-3 SIU lead.

Super-soph Fogle scores big

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Larry Fogle is doing quite well for a fellow who never played high school basketball until his junior year in high school.

The Canisius College sophomore was the nation's leading collegiate scorer, and No. 1 scorer at the beginning of the year. His coach, John Morrison, figures Fogle will be No. 1 in both departments at the season's end.

Fogle, who has had a 51-point game this season, averages 37.9 points per game and grabbed 162 rebounds for a 5.2 average for his first 10 games.

He is a 5-foot-10, 6-foot-9-inch guard who first toyed with a basketball career in Brooklyn parks.

It was Lester Roberts who got me started said Fogle, referring to a Brooklyn sporting goods store owner. He used to take me to the parks and showed me how to score. He really encouraged me.

"Then, fellows like Connie Hawkins and Kareem Abdul Jabbar came to the parks and gave me tips. They inspired all of us kids.

Fogle did not play during his first two years at high school because he broke his left ankle in each of those years.

As a junior, he moved to Detroit to live with an uncle and enrolled at Cooley High School. There, he averaged about 25 points a-game in his first season and about 60 as a senior.

In one game, he scored 73 points, still a single-game record for a schoolboy in Michigan.

SIU wrestler Bill Halder is shown getting a taste of the mat at the hands of a Naval Academy wrestler Monday. It was typical of the afternoon as the midshipmen flung the Salukis 24-12. (Photo by Dennis Makes)

Senior Don Stumpf (8-2), who usually wrestles in the 150 pound class, switched to the 196 pound class and emerged victorious with a 7-4 decision over Mike Leger.

SIU's only other winner was senior Steve Jones (8-1). Jones decisioned Navy's Fred Halamih for 7-4. While not pleased with the final results, Long was happy with his three winners. "Goldsmith and Stumpf did good jobs for us," Long said.

Goldsmith got a pin for us when we needed it and Jones beat an excellent senior in Navy's Halamih.

Long is undecided about his lineup for Wednesday's match against Lehigh. "I won't make any decisions until Lehigh weighs in on Wednesday and I have an idea of what we're up against," Long said. "I'll do whatever is best for the team.

He has a great jump shot, he's good from both the inside and outside," Morrison said.

In finding an immediate solution to his heavyweight problem, Long has little hope of locating what he needs. "We need a wrestler who weighs about 200-210 pounds, trained down, who is enthusiastic and motivated," Long said.

Regarding his team's second defeat of the season, Long said, "Navy wrestled very well, they deserved to win.

Salukis survive Horton hex; Nip Redbirds in overtime

By Mark Topper
Daily Egyptian Writer

Everything was going against the Salukis. Illinois State was playing as well at it has in four years. Hotly contested House was erupting with Redbirds and Hortons. Hutu was buzzing with visible fouls on SIU players. And Salukis had missed a key free throw in the final seconds. But through it all the Salukis escaped. Normal Saturday night with an 82-80 overtime victory, fourth straight win over Redbirds, put seven games. The streak is the longest in the Big Eight and the Salukis have put together since that compiled by the 1977-78 team that went on to win the NIT and the Big Eight Tournament in New Orleans.

When Meriwether went to the bench, it appeared that ISU would be able to dominate the game on the boards and control the rebounds. Redbird Coach Will Robinson took full advantage stacking his lineup with skyscraper height.

But it was at this point in the game when Lambert claimed the Salukis took hold and came up with the needed big plays. Shag Nixon hit a jumper from 17 feet. Mike Glenn hit from 18 and Eddie James from the same distance. Then James again and Glenn again and Tim Ricci.

Suddenly, the Salukis had come from four points down to take a 43-41 lead. "We didn't lose our cool," Lambert said. "We moved the ball and worked on the boards without Joe to keep the ball alive." A series of questionable calls peaked when Big Ten ref Bob Brokoff ruled the ball was dead on the floor in front of Mike Glenn. The call set normally calm SIU assistant coach George Isbell leaping off the bench and hurling his clipboard airborne.

The Salukis played a series of technical fouls, which Whitlow called.

Crosby, Pro-Am washed out again

FEBRUEY BEACH, Calif., (AP) — It's a washout for the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament, with persistent foul weather forcing another postponement.

Friday rains washed out Monday's round and weatherwary officials 확게 dissolved tournament committees for Tuesday—weather permitting. If they are unable to play Tuesday—and the forecast for the weekend weathered Monterey Peninsula calls for continued cold drizzle for the weekend—the tournament will be called off.

Thursday was paid off on the basis of their 36-hole scores and will receive 75 percent of the announced $60,000 first prize money.

Liagers downed the 4 P's 93-87, the Huskies defeated the Homestead 82-63, and the Desperado's and the Magicians, both won onforts.

With the Salukis trailing 74-47, and Meriwether back in the game, the Salukis began to close the gap for good. Glenn lived in two jump shots and Perry Hines hit an acrobatic lay up to bring the Salukis to within two. A bank-shot off the glass by Dennis Sosdier sent the game into overtime tied 76.

The Salukis took immediate charge in the overtime period on two baskets from close in is by Meriwether. Although the 6-4, 230-pound junior was pulled with his fifth foul with 1:12 left in the contest, the Salukis had eased the game up.

"I felt, and the people I talked to from Illinois State felt the Illinois State played as well as they have in four years," Lambert said. "It was a very physical game and a lot of our players are feeling pretty sore."

Illinois State lost only one game on their home court last year and has lost only four games at home in the past four seasons.

Whitlow ended the game as the game's leading scorer with 32 points and his teammate guard, Robert "Speedy" Hawkins' hit for 24. DeVries grabbed off 20 rebounds and added 17 points.

Meriwether led the Salukis with 21 points and 22 rebounds, only one of which was an offensive.

Groom's second-half, Meriwether was called for his fourth foul, and Newt erred Salukis Coach Paul Lambert pulled his pivot man from the floor and moved 6'4 freshman Corky Abrams into the middle.

"When Meriwether went to the bench, it appeared that ISU would be able to dominate the game on the boards and control the rebounds. Redbird Coach Will Robinson took full advantage stacking his lineup with skyscraper height.

for this weather-play-off event that had originally been set to run from Thursday through Sunday. Thursday's round was rained out. Saturday's play was interrupted by hail storms and the two remaining rounds were stranded on the course by darkness. A steady, 12-hour rain delayed the scheduled start of play by an unspecified time.

Creighton fizzes Saluki win streak

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Creighton Bluejays tripped the Salukis 85-76 on Monday night at the SIU Arena with some hot outside shooting and a menacing zone defense.

SIU's pressure defense deterred them at first, but Creighton forward Gene Harmon turned the lead over into a piece of artillery hitting 10 for 18 from the field and taking the game's scoring honors with 24 points. The Bluejays were trying to catch up as Creighton controlled the game's flow from the opening tip off to the final buzzer.

Creighton showed instant poise as they combined hot shooting with quick pressure, breaking passes to jump out to quick 18-lead. The Bluejays dominated the entire first half, leading by as many as 14 points.

The Salukis looked tight and had trouble organizing a consistent offensive attack. SIU Coach Paul Lambert, hounded after the game that the overtime victory against Illinois State Saturday night had taken quite a bit out of his Saluki squad.

"We had a bad ball game," Lambert said after making excuses showing any quickness on the court. Our kids were a half of a step behind the Creighton players the whole night.

But Lambert refused to make excuses for his players and complimented the play of the Bluejays. "Even if we hadn't had such a tough game at Illinois State Saturday, I don't know if we could have beaten Creighton tonight. They are a good ball club and a physically strong and experienced team.

Creighton led by as much as 14 in the opening half and held a 40-31 lead at the half. Shag Nixon led the Salukis in first period scoring with nine points. Harmon scored 10 points and Weaver, Creighton with 12 and 10 respectively.

Creighton kicked it up right where they left off as the second half got underway. Again it was Harmon and Brooks who scored straight up Missouri Western, could only rush 12 out of the Bluejays. Miami-Weatherhead ended the night as top Saluki scorer with 14.

As we felt they had to do three things to beat SIU tonight," Creighton Coach Eddie Sutton said after the game. "And we thought we did a pretty good job accomplishing all of the objectives."

"We felt we had to beat SIU's press, show good strength on the defensive board so Miami-Western could not get a lot of follow-up shots and we thought we had to stop the Salukis fast break. We did all of these well."

The Salukis now have a much needed Saturday off before hosting DeKalb to face Northern Illinois Jan. 15.

Grant assails NFL treatment

HOUSTON (AP) — An incensed coach Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings blasted the National Football League for inadequate training facilities and said the Miami Dolphins had been given preferential treatment for Super Bowl VIII Sunday. "This is shabby treatment," the normally quiet-speaking, gray-haired coach of the Vikings said.

"This is the Super Bowl. It's not just another pickup game. Our facilities look like something the kids would have for a Saturday afternoon game."

Grant issued his heated statement after viewing facilities at the Dallas District High School stadium where his National Conference championship Miami Dolphins were assigned the more luxurious quarters of the Houston Oilers, within walking distance of the hotel where they are living.

Grant indicated that he planned for his protest to go to the top Commissioner Pete Rozelle who is still New in New York.

Jim Kinnel, Rozelle's No. 1 assistant, said the Vikings were the biggest choice of moving to Rice Stadium, if they chose, but added: "That would be impractical."

Kinnel said the policy of the NFL always has been to give the city's pro facilities to the team representing the same conference. Thus, Miami had the preference because it is an AFC team, as are the Oilers.

"When the Vikings played in New Orleans in 1970, they had the facilities of the New Orleans Saints," Kinnel said. "In Los Angeles the Washington Redskins had the facilities of the Rams last year."

Grant was bitter in his criticism of training facilities.

"The field is excellent," he said, "but the locker room is terrible. There is no place to hang clothes. It is just one big room with no division for coaches and players. We have seven coaches and they have to use one table."

"There are no sleds or dummies on the field for our men. This is not true in the case of Miami, which has all of the facilities it needs."

The Minnesota coach said the Vikings' schedule had been thrown out of kilter by the super-Super Bowl arrangements and that the team could suffer as a result.

Asked what he planned to do about it, Grant replied sharply:

"There is nothing I am supposed to do about it. This is a National Football League problem. It is Pete Rozelle's problem. They have had a year to get ready for this game and this is what we wind up with."
