U.S. Senate returns bill seeking minority voice, by-law redraft sought

By Dale McConaughay
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Presidential University Senate voted Tuesday night in favor of returning the chancellor's resolution on special interest and minority groups to the Governance Committee to be redrafted into the Senate's own bylaws.

The chancellor's resolution seeks to give special interest and minority groups in full right to present resolutions and legislative proposals. The resolution also states that such special interest or minority groups would be issued credentials by the chancellor and the Executive Committee of the Senate would formulate and propose rules and procedures for the recognition and issuance of credentials to such groups.

The Governance Committee of the University Senate, in response to the Chancellor's letter recommending the Chancellor issue credentials to any minority or special interest at his own discretion.

The committee further recommended the Chancellor specify the number of representatives to which a group is entitled and their privileges.

David Eriksen, professor of English, said he felt the latter recommendation by the Governance Committee "puts a tremendous amount of power in the hands of the chancellor. Eriksen said he preferred the general policy statement limiting the chancellor's power to issuing credentials only.

A majority of Senate members agreed and voted to delete the committee's recommendation which gave the chancellor the right to specify representatives and privileges. Other elements of the chancellor's resolution also came under criticism from Randall Nelson, professor of government, questioned whether the entire resolution might be a "surplusage proposal," which had already been taken care of in the University Senate's bylaws.

David Kenney, professor of government, was critical of any attempt to establish "rules, regulations and procedures" for determining credentials of minority groups.

"How does one go about setting rules by which a group is given credentials?" Kenney asked. "It seems like an attempt to advance to determine kinds of groups, their nature and their characteristics."

Jerry Lacey, acting as a proxy for the chancellor, defended the resolution, arguing it would clearly define and give recognition to minority or special interest groups.

"It's a provision for a group or individual to get the floor," Lacey said.

Our concern is that blacks are trying to have a productive role in giving our knowledge and our entitlements are going to function under the auspices of democratic representation then we must have that representation.

In other business, David Kenney was elected secretary to the Senate, following the resignation of Billie Jean Prince.

Dakin takes exception to report suggestions

By Pat Silk
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Chief of Police Joe Dakin Tuesday night made his response to the Property Report, which was an analysis of the Carbondale police department made in 1970.

In his remarks, which were made at the regular meeting of the Carbondale City Council, Dakin said he believed the report was "well done and professional" but took issue with several of its recommendations.

The first recommendation to which Dakin objected was the establishment of an administrative position which would be headed by a civilian. "It is my recommendation that we would create an organizational monstrosity," he said.

He said he had assigned the duties of supervising civilian personnel to his administrative assistant and had created the post of administrative sergeant with the police department. The administrative sergeant, according to Dakin, would control records, inventory, maintenance and several lesser duties. Dakin said by not creating the administrative position he saved the city $4,500 to $5,000 in salaries.

Dakin also took exception to the Property Report recommendation requiring that patrolmen work full-time for the city and attend school on their own.

He said when he became chief of police four members of the department were attending school full-time and were employed on a part-time basis. "This one patrolman who goes to school full-time and works part-time has been informed that arrangements for time off are not recognized and will not be approved when their present contracts with the city expire.

Dakin said he was concerned the chairman, Hans Fischer, Dakin said the primary needs of the police department are more manpower continued expansion of police community relations and continued support of the public.

In his report to the council, Dakin said the current ratio of police to population in Carbondale is approximately 1:6 per 1,000 for a total 25,000 residents. He said according to a 1970 FBI report average manpower level per population was 1.9 to 1.000. Although Carbondale is still below the average by nearly 2 percent, Dakin said the ratio has improved from the time of the Property report where the ratio was less than 1.6 to 1.000.

In other city action, City Manager Schmitt announced July 17 is the earliest date he could provide more information about the proposed ordinance that would ban certain non-returnable beverage containers in the city. A public hearing on the ordinance was held at a special council meeting June 28.

Schmitt announced a special council meeting on the Cedar Lake reservoir project will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in City Hall. He also announced the town meeting which will also consider the Cedar Lake Project. This meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. July 15 in City Hall.

Morris denies legal plans

By Pat Silk
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU President Emeritus, DeLyte W. Morris, Tuesday night denied he has any plans to bring legal action against the SIU Board of Trustees for alleged breach of contract.

The Alton Evening Telegraph, in its June 30 issue, had stated Morris was considering the action because the Board had allegedly violated an oral agreement that would have allowed him to maintain his emeritus status until 1978.

The Board announced Morris's "complete retirement" at the June 18, 1971 meeting. The retirement goes into effect Aug. 31.

Morris said he preferred not to answer when he first learned of his August retirement but said it was not done at his request.
Counsel report to be made public

SIU reorganization extension urged

The annual report of the University Administrative Council to the Board of Trustees contains a recommendation for a year's extension of the period of reorganization of SIU. The report was to be made public this week, according to University Information officer for the Board.

The report also recommends that SIU not be appointed during that period.

The council was established by the SIU President, Deady W. Morris, in 1970. Established for one-year beginning Sept. 1, the council served as an ad hoc administrative authority of SIU and concentrated on decentralized restructuring of the university's colleges and departments.

According to a statement by a University news service, the principle objectives of the council during its extended period will be completion and evaluation of decentralized and development of final recommendations for administrative organization.

The report indicates that the question of whether a permanent president will depend upon determination of whether there is need for central functions relating to the two major campuses.

Also, the rules of the chancellor and chief of board staff are expected to be cleared as a way to establish operational autonomy while under one board of trustees, according to the report.

The council reports that remaining central operating units can and should be decentralized and that the two campuses should have autonomy within a year.

The question of whether certain central functions and activities should remain was to be determined.

The reports state that operational decentralization moves toward completion relationships with the state government and the Illinois Board of Higher Education increasing will be the responsibility of the chancellor and the chief of board staff.

Meanwhile, it is recommended that the make-up of the Council be changed. Present members each of whom reports directly to the Board are: Carbonale Chancellor Robert G. Levar and John B. Rommel, SIU Edwardsville System Vice Presidents and F. Brackett of Carbondale and Ralph W. Ruffner of Edwardsville and Clarence W. Siemph. Carbonale chairman, James M. Brown, chief of Board staff is a non-voting member.

The report proposes that beginning September 1 the Council be composed of the two chancellors, one system vice president, the chief of Board staff and a member selected by the Board with the chairman and the vice president to be given administrative and coordinative responsibility for the remaining central sector. They also would have joint responsibility as agents for the Council for development of further decentralization and for recommendations on evaluations.

By June 30 central or system units had been transferred to the chancellors, and had been assigned tentatively or were marked for further study and the future status of nine units and seven functions had not been determined.

It was estimated that as much as one year might be needed to decentralize such operations as alumni, service, foundation administration, international education, budget office, data processing and computing center, institutional research office, treasurer and auditor.

The report stated that numerous other questions call for continuing study including identification of possible responsibilities or functions which in the interest of the University system can be best carried out on a centralized basis.

Play is 'naturalistic' and 'true to life' are options for 'Tobacco Road,' the first production of SIU Summer Theatre's "The Southern Players." The drama which depicts the salt of the earth in the life of the Jester family will open at 8 p.m. Friday in the University Center Ballrooms.

Gray, who is known for his guidance of the Southern Players and the direction of "W." Gray, assistant professor in the English department, said he has tried to keep the production as realistic as possible. The direction of the stage effects is an adaptation of the stage set to create the Jester family's surroundings, the construction of shacks "real enough that they could be lived in" and the setting of an old automobile, a recurring symbol in the play.

Gray said he will also be using a film made in a actual Tobacco Road area in the South by a friend of a friend of his. How well it will be used is still a surprise for the audience but Gray indicated the effect will be startling.

"I hadn't seen the film until this week and when I showed it to the cast, they were very affected by the scenes in it. It is the same depressing film. And it's all true. None of the people in the audience are related to them. They are all inhabitants of an area situated with the same people in the same place. The cast was so upset by the film, they would not watch it until they could see the difference in the immediate rehear-

The play, based on the novel by Erskine Caldwell, is set during the Depression and tells the story of the Jester family. "Tobacco Road" is the second production in the University Center Ballrooms this summer, the first being "The Man Who Came to Dinner.""
Letters to the editor

Gardiner responds to Maring’s letter

To the Daily Egyptian:

In Dr. Maring’s autobiographical piece (DE, June 20), he demanded that Dr. Marvin, a colleague at the University of Illinois, give him a formal warning before his firing. Maring insists that “if we were ever to have a fair and impartial trial, we would be able to see the truth.”

I disagree with Maring’s argument. I believe that the University of Illinois has the right to fire anyone, except for the Board of Trustees, who makes a complaint against another member of the faculty. I also believe that the University of Illinois has the right to fire anyone, except for the Board of Trustees, who makes a complaint against another member of the faculty.

And that is why I have decided to write this letter. I believe that the University of Illinois has the right to fire anyone, except for the Board of Trustees, who makes a complaint against another member of the faculty.

In conclusion, I believe that the University of Illinois has the right to fire anyone, except for the Board of Trustees, who makes a complaint against another member of the faculty.

Sincerely,

Nobody here but us chickens

By Arthur Hoge

Our scientists are up to something again. They now want to spend a few billions or so to find out if there’s anyone who might be hiding in the bottomless universe—seeing as how no one’s had much luck finding anything anywhere around here.

We have no one here among the trillions of stars there must be life forms far more advanced than we. If so, maybe as a kindness to us lesser life forms, they won’t broadcasting the wisdom they’ve accumulated over the eons.

You know, things like “Don’t drink after dinner; it will affect the way you look.”

Who in his right mind would object to a project like this? I would object to a project like this.

It’s not that I’m afraid there’s no superior life form out there beaming forth messages of wisdom. It’s that I’m afraid there is.

And it’s certainly not that we inferior life forms couldn’t use a few messages of wisdom. We certainly could.

The problem is that once we pick up a message from some other life form in the bottomless universe, we’re going to make a terrible mistake.

A caption to an article states, “A one-way message is the only way to avoid a possible fatal reply.”

Some say, “Just because we’ve never heard from anyone doesn’t mean we’re going to be good neighbors if we do.”

And who among us has the moral fiber ever to ignore a ringing telephone?

So when that first message of wisdom is picked up—like, “Brush your teeth after every meal”—the scientists who receive it are going to answer it.

He’s going to get right on the radio and say, “Hey, thanks a lot for your messages. I hope you’re going to be our neighbors too.”

Then, like any radio ham, he’s going to start going into details. He’s going to give them our address, our phone number. He’s going to tell them who we are and how things are with us.

You’ll be glad to hear, fellows, that we’ve got a lovely little blue-green planet here. Of course, the air’s got a little tug; and the water’s turning murky lately. But we hope to clear it up as soon as we can get folks to be a little less selfish and a little more thoughtful of others.

When all is said and done, over, we’ll have money for the poor and hungry so things are bound to get better before too long.

And anyway, we’re making great strides technologically. We’ve just begun building space ships and it shouldn’t be too long before we’ll be out there among the stars, hearing your way in the future looking forward to getting together with you and…

Well, what would you do if, as an art of kindness, you sent out a message of wisdom and you got back word that a greedy, selfish, next-following race of aggressive killers was heading your way?

So you see, I’m not at all worried that we’ll discover a race of superior beings dwelling somewhere out there in the vastness of space.

What worries me is that they’ll discover us.

The Center for Southeast Asian Studies has come under considerable attack for its links with certain branches of the policy-making arm of the federal government. Some of these criticisms are documented (AID grant personnel); others are formed by adding documentation to the substantial lack of credibility projected by the Center and its directors. The administration has been publicly quoted as to the effect that this aspect of technical assistance and personnel links to AID and the military (CIA and the Pentagon) are invalid points for criticism. They stress the idea that the Center is “independent” and “funded by the University”.

I believe that this is a perversion of the truth. The best documentation of this is in the book about the Center’s origins. In addition, the book contains many references to the Center’s origins. However, the book being used to “educate” ISU students about Vietnam in Center-related projects are not documented in the book. These texts support the assertion that connections do exist and that the center is not taking steps to remedy the situation.

The government department has used a text entitled Vietnam: Anatomy of a Conflict, edited by Wesley Fishel, in its course dealing with Southeast Asia studies. Fishel, of course, was the instigator and director of the infamous Michigan State University Advisory training of police state personnel in the regime of Ngo Dinh Diem. Fishel was also visiting professor of government at ISU and is on the board of directors of the Center’s yet to be published journal. This book also includes articles by such war mongers as Robert McNamara and Mike Mansfield. As well as an article by of Wes himself entitled, “Only Chance in Asia. Stay and Fight.”

Machines aid mail service

By Dale McConaghy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A series of buttons are pushed within seconds, three full sheets like the choosing and humming of a weaving machine and clothes dryer, but in reality the sounds come from two machines at Campus Mail Service capable of labeling, stuffing and stamping up to 6,000 letters per hour.

The Campus Mail Service recently took over the responsibilities previously assigned to Central Publications, said Richard King, supervisor of the campus mail service. King said this included handling of mailing lists from many University offices and preparation of grades, schedules, account statements and catalogues for mail delivery.

King said that the Campus Mail Service, located in Barracks 0044 near the Life Sciences II building, is University operated and has no connection of any official nature with the U.S. Postal Service.

Two rock groups to play at feast

The Jesus-people will hold a music festival Thursday evening at Papa Cesar's parking lot. The dance, which will last from 7:30-12 p.m., will include music by "Edden" and "E." The "E" stands for Emanuel.

The Jesus-people are just getting a start here, according to Rev. Robert E. Eilts of the First Baptist Church. The local group is modeled after similar groups in California. Currently the Jesus-people are holding classes at Free School to study the Bible and discuss the relevancy of religion in modern life.

Remappers may settle toward GOP control

CHICAGO (AP) - Legislators who will reapportion the Illinois General Assembly have agreed on a redistricting plan which will give Republicans control of the legislature but which reportedly is acceptable to Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, the Chicago Tribune said today.

The Tribune said in a copyrighted story today that the agreement is with the Illinois General Assembly that will give the GOP control of both houses in "normal" election years.

The details of the story written by Tribune Political Editor George Taggart are these:

The map has 39 districts which can be expected to lose Republican seats which can be expected to win Democratic seats and three which are "inaugurate." However, the three marginal districts are "rated as favoring the GOP by one of the few persons who has had access to the map."

The paper did not name the person who described him as an "expert."

The map was reviewed by Senate Majority Leader Cyril Chastain, D-Illinois, and House Majority Leader Gerald Forsythe, D-Chicago, will appoint themselves and members of their staffs to a special commission which will decide reapportionment.

They will have six votes on the eight-man commission and will accept the map regardless of what Senate Minority Leader W. Russell Armstrong, R-Evansville, says. Armstrong will have a power struggle in January and has not attended all 1971 sessions of the General Assembly.

King said. King estimated that hand preparation of 1,800 letters takes one person approximately four hours.

One of the machines stuffs, seals and stamps envelopes. The envelope and filler material slide down a parallel tray simultaneously. Mechanical hands then open the envelope and the filler material is slid into the envelope. A rubber stamp rolls over the envelope as it is sealed.

King said the machine is capable of stuffing up to four fillers in a single envelope.

A second machine cuts address labels prepared at the Data Processing Center. The labels have an adhesive backing and, when heated by the machine, stick to the envelope.

Detection devices, located at different spots on the machines, discourage operations of the machine if jamming or error occurs. When the machines are running at full capacity, two people are assigned to watch each machine for mistakes and to keep them operating, King said.

"I would encourage any University office with a volume mailing list of over 1,500 to use the mail service facilities," King said.

Settlement urged in steel bargaining

By Bill Nitke

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson and the steel industry's union and management negotiators failed Tuesday to resolve their long and bitter dispute, leaving the possibility of a strike as high as ever.

The two sides, however, continued to work toward an agreement, and Johnson promised to consider legislation to prevent a walkout.

The negotiators began talks Sunday, but no breakthrough was announced.

Johnson, in a telephone call to the negotiators, urged them to reach an agreement.

"We're going to try to get this settled," Johnson said.

The strike would affect steel production and distribution, which together account for about 20% of the nation's economic activity.

The steel industry, which has been hit hard by the recession, needs to maintain its output to avoid high prices and to keep its customers satisfied.

The union, on the other hand, wants better pay and working conditions for its members.

Johnson said he would consider legislation to prevent a walkout, but he did not specify what kind of legislation he would support.

The two sides are expected to continue their talks this week.

Louis Armstrong dies

Satchmo's trumpet silence forever

NEW YORK (AP) - Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, beloved trumpeter of the jazz world, has died.

Armstrong was 63 years old when he died in his New Orleans home early Tuesday morning.

He was one of the most influential and beloved figures in the world of jazz, and his music has inspired countless musicians.

Armstrong was born in New Orleans in 1901 and began playing the trumpet at an early age.

He rose to fame in the 1920s and 1930s, and his music was a major influence on the development of jazz.

Armstrong's career spanned six decades, and he recorded over 500 albums and more than 2,000 songs.

He was featured in many films and television shows, and his music has been used in countless movies and commercials.

Armstrong was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987.

He is survived by his wife, ma-four, and three children.

The funeral will be held Saturday in New Orleans.
