Students Can Now Apply For Long-Term Loans

Applications are now available at the Financial Aid Office for formal long-term loans for full-time students. Policies approved by the University's Student Financial Aid and Loan Committee last week provide the $1,000 loan for eligible students.

The National Defense Student Loan Fund was established under Title II of the National Defense Education Act of 1956. The fund is one of 2,000 colleges and universities sharing $25 million in federal funds for the fiscal year 1969.

The $1,000 loan will be available to full-time students with a financial need of $1,000 or more. In order to be eligible for the loan, which can be as much as $1,000 per year, students must be registered for at least 12 quarters (48 credits) toward undergraduate work and have at least 10 quarters of work completed.

Students must be good in standing with the University and must continue to maintain a financial need of $1,000 or more. The amount of the loan will be decided by the Financial Aid Office.

Special Consideration

Applicants who are members of a racial or ethnic minority will be given special consideration in the evaluation of the loan application. Applications are due at the Financial Aid Office on or before April 15.

Applications are due at the Financial Aid Office on or before April 15.

Financial information will be available for students not registered for 12 quarters of work. Applications may be submitted after April 15, but the loan will be limited to the amount of financial need of $1,000 or more.

The loan will be paid in five equal installments during the academic year. The first payment will be due at the end of the fall semester, the second at the end of the spring semester, the third at the end of the summer semester, and the fourth and fifth payments at the end of the next academic year.

The Editors' Opinions

Closing Out the Year

This issue marks the end of our third year (59-60). It has been a far from easy year. Many of you have been very helpful, but the problem persists of how to please all tastes.

The year went as it ended in 58-59. We had many good ideas, but only a few came to fruition. We are always interested in suggestions, but our experience is that when we get the ideas, we get the work, too. The problem continues to be how to please all tastes. The challenge is to find new ideas, develop old ones, and keep our readers informed.

Do you think for yourself? (TAKE THIS TEST AND THINK OUT!)

1. Do you always read your science textbook before class?
2. Do you think that the movie you just saw is worth seeing a second time?
3. Do you think that the book you just finished reading is worth finishing?
4. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
5. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
6. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
7. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
8. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
9. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?
10. Do you think that the person you just met is worth getting to know better?

Some students have scored well on this test, while others have missed many questions. We hope this will make a better, more interesting newspaper for all students. In the future, we may add more questions to this test.

We would love to hear from you. Please write to the Editor at the above address.

The Man Who Thinks for Himself Knows—

William J. Burns

He wanted more than just an engineering job

William J. Burns majored in Civil Engineering at Union College. He had his own ideas about his engineering studies. "I wanted to do a 'grocery' company, " he says, "I learned a lot about people from working with the New York Telephone Company, particularly in its customer service and sales divisions."

Bill's attitude toward his engineering studies is reflected in his own philosophy. "I think the idea of being an engineer is a balance between solving problems and serving humanity."

The editors of The Campus view William J. Burns as a shining example of what an engineer can be. He is a hard worker, a good student, and a good leader. He is respected by his professors and his fellow students.

Further information about William J. Burns can be obtained by contacting him at the above address.

The Campus - A Campus-to-Career Case History

Are you looking for a job that will help you think for yourself and develop your skills? The Campus-to-Career Case History is a great resource for students who are interested in engineering.

A Campus-to-Career Case History - A great resource for students who are interested in engineering.

The editors of The Campus believe that all students should be encouraged to think for themselves. They provide a variety of resources to help students develop their critical thinking skills.

One of the most popular resources is the Campus-to-Career Case History. This is a collection of case histories of students who have gone on to successful careers in engineering.

For Student Union

Ground-Breaking Today

Critical thinking committees for the new Student Council will be held this afternoon at 3:00 in the war room of the Student Union. The new groups will substitute the present three committees, which were expanded to five last year. The new committee will be able to meet more frequently and discuss the same subject.

The new course will include the present three committees: Student Union, Student Union Council, and Student Union Finance Committee. It is the hope of the members that the new committee will be able to meet more frequently and discuss the same subject.

May Tour South America

Low-Cost Trip Offered

"We are offering students a chance to travel to South America this summer at a low cost," said Dr. John Smith, director of the Travel Bureau. "The tour will include visits to Lima, Buenos Aires, Santiago, and Lima, and will provide a chance to see many of the natural wonders of South America."

The annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Camera Club was held on Friday, March 15th.

In the past three years, the SICC has sponsored numerous programs and workshops, including one on black and white photography, another on color photography, and a third on digital photography.

The club also has a large collection of slides and prints, which are available for members to use in their work. The club meets every Thursday at 7:00 p.m. in the Cannon Room at Viburnum-Kennett State University.
