Man brings lawsuit against SIU over '72 shooting death of son

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A $5-million lawsuit against SIU has been filed by U.S. District Judge Julian O. Cook in connection with the 1972 murder of an SIU student.

The suit, filed by Emile Gerchenson, father of the student, named as defendants the SIU Board of Trustees, administrators and the Security Police.

The suit charges that the defendants "intentionally, recklessly, willfully and wantonly neglected to take reasonable measures to protect" Michael S. Gerchenson, a 19-year-old sophomore at the time of his death.

According to the complaint, the younger Gerchenson had just parked his car on an SIU lot on May 1, 1972, when he was "assaulted and kidnapped by individuals who were associated with Kappa (Kappa Alpha Psi) Fraternity."

The "individuals" then forced Gerchenson to drive them along Interstate 27 into Franklin County where they shot him to death, the suit states.

Nineteen defendants were named in the suit. Murphysboro attorney Richard E. White, filed it on behalf of a Chicago law firm representing Emile Gerchenson.

Among those named in the suit are David R. Derge, then SIU president; Ivan A. Elios, then vice chairman of the Board of Trustees, now board chairman; Michael J. Bakalis, then board member, now Illinois superintendent of public instruction; and Thomas L. Leffler, chief SIU Security Officer.

SIU legal counsel John Huffman said he had not yet received a copy of the complaint. When shown a copy of the complaint he remarked that he "didn't see how the university or its employees can be held personally liable for the unfortunate occurrence."

"Offhand I'd say they (the plaintiff and his attorney) have got a long row to hoe," Huffman said.

"The University will strongly defend this case to the highest levels," Huffman added. "And this is the kind of case that we will insist on trying rather than settling," he said.

The suit claims the defendants violated the civil rights of the SIU student by failing to provide him with adequate police protection.

This action took place, the suit said, during "Kappa Karnival, and said Kappa Karnival had a reputation for violence and violent crimes and said reputation was well known to the community at large."

The complaint further claims that on May 1, 1972, Jeffery Gerchenson, brother of Michael Gerchenson, told (Continued on Page 2)

Gray as county chairman

By David Ambrose
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

All indications are that Reginald "Bo" Stearns will succeed Charles Gray as chairman of the Jackson County Board Monday.

Stearns was re-elected to the board last April, when Democrats swept six of the seven seats up for election. A Democrat representing District 2, Stearns is now seen by county observers as the man most likely to chair the board for the next two years.

The board will conduct a reorganization meeting at 10 a.m. Monday to elect a chairman and appoint committee chairmen. It is the first Jackson County Board in about 40 years to have a Democratic chairman.

Incumbent Democrat Louise Wolfe, who until this week was considered a contender for the chairmanship, said Thursday, "Bo Stearns probably has the inside track."

She said she never was really in the running for the position.

"To be frank, I prefer committee work," she said. "I don't like to run all over the county."

"Rumor is that Reginald Stearns will be the new chairman," County Democratic chairman, Ray Chancey said Friday. "And I think that's probably right."

Stearns said he had been told that he was favored for the chairmanship, but could not comment until after the reorganization meeting.

"We can't be too sure about an election until it's over," he said.

Republican County Chairman Ray Doerr and Democrat Chancey both feel that the new board chairman, regardless of who he is, will reapoint key board committees and committee chairmen.

SIU Security Police Captain Carl B. Kirk that his brother had been threatened and asked Kirk several times to provide his brother with police protection in the immediate future.

Kirk said he did not provide his protection under these circumstances, according to the suit, they were in the "abuse or derogation of duties and responsibilities" and thereby proximately causing the "plaintiff's (Michael Gerchenson's) death."

"I cannot believe that claim," Leffler said. "Just last week officers were bragging about how well they got along with Gerchenson going this year," he added.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Irish police said an unsigned letter received here Friday threatened the destruction of 10 stolen art masterpieces on May 14 unless four Irish terrorists jailed in England are transferred to Irish jails and $1.2 million in ransom is paid.

The paintings are said to be worth $30.4 million. They were stolen from the home of millions Sir Alfred Beit a week ago in what is believed to be the world's largest art theft.

Advisory panel decides to keep 'Alice' in school

By T. Lee Hughes
Associated Press Writer

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—The controversial book "Go Ask Alice" should not be removed from libraries in Rock Island schools, a special advisory panel said Friday.

The 8-1 vote followed a two-hour public hearing at which critics attacked the book as crude and pornographic.

"This book contains filthy," Albert M. Bertelsen said. "Let’s replace it and get some on the shelves of which we, the citizens of Rock Island, can be proud."

The panel's recommendation now goes to the Board of Education, which is expected to take up the issue May 14.

The school district received three complaints about the book, which purports to be the diary of a 15-year-old girl whose life is destroyed by drugs.

Several opponents of the book added that it had not read it in full but were shocked by portions explicitly describing the girl's sexual experiences.

Defenders of the book said it was a realistic portrayal of the effects of drugs and would deter children from experimenting with them.

Barbara Morrell, mother of four, said two of her children had read the book and "I don’t think their minds were warped because they know things like that do exist."

The motion to retain the book contained the provision that librarians would provide guidance for children taking it out.

They were getting larger and larger numbers of pure-bred s in this particular area.

The operation was performed by the group and the animal was taken to the shelter to be neutered. The shelter recently borrowed $20,000 to rebuild and slightly expand its facilities.

So, the shelter is now open, and we need money.
Letters
Picture worth 1,000 complaints
To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is in regard to the picture on the front page of the May 1 issue of the Daily Egyptian. I think some more information should have been given in the cutline or some research done on why the sign appears in the present dilapidated state.

The sign, which says First National Bank and Trust Company at the bottom, was leased by the bank for three years from the Aircraft Sign Company in Murphysboro. The lease ran out last year and the bank did not renew it, Charles Rengo, bank president, said.

The picture caused one bank customer to call the president and complain that it is a bad reflection on the bank.

Other persons in the community expressed concern that it made the entire community look bad to run the picture as did let the reader see the intended symbolism and draw conclusions without facts.

I think this picture helped widen the communication gap between the city and university.

Besides, the sign has been torn apart for more than a month, so could the news aspect itself be deserving of front page coverage?

Unused caskets

I don’t know whether you think the gasoline shortage is real or artificial. But I do know there are 7,600 Americans walking around today who probably would be in their graves except for one thing. And that’s the cutback, and the slowdown, on our highways.

In the first four months after the energy crisis hit, there were 2,600 fewer deaths on our highways than in the same four months a year ago.

Because someone slowed down, and took it easier, 2,600 funerals have been postponed, 2,600 caskets are unused, 2,600 graves are unopened, and untold grief and suffering has been avoided.

The Mississippi River flowed with oil, and if the Great Lakes themselves were filled with gasoline, is there any real need for high speed driving which has proven over and over to be a major killer?

Why are millions of dollars spent on research and production of high-powered cars for which there is no real need? Why do we push ourselves to cover more and more miles per day? To save time? Hardly, for the faster we can travel, the longer trips we plan.

We have been told a hell of good in America, which says that the fast life is the good life. But that all depends on what you define as the fast life. Those 2,600, why not come up with your own definition?

Policy face manpower shortage

Carbondale has lost, in Joe Dakin, a man who may have been its best chief of police ever. It stands to lose a great deal more.

Dakin’s recent resignation stemmed from a five-month funding battle between City Manager Carrol Fry and the police association.

The police are asking for a seven per cent pay raise while Fry is offering a 6.2 per cent increase. Detective Ralph Brandan of the Carbondale police said the difference between the figures would mean a loss in manpower, which in turn would lead to a loss of federal funding.

At the present time, federal funding is keeping seven men on the force and is responsible for the police-community services and crime prevention programs.

The loss of Joe Dakin cannot be measured. His more association with the Carbondale police department gave it a certain degree of credibility and professionalism which it so badly needed at the time of his arrival.

The larger question now, is what to do about the looming manpower shortage.

The difference between what the police are asking and Fry's offering amounts to $9,604, by no means a small sum. But one must consider the possible loss, in terms of manpower, funding a police effectiveness.

It’s still your move, Mr. Fry.

They Say They Still Want the Unintelligibles

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan has picked up the support of organized labor for his proposal to use the Illinois National Guard in a project to clean up the Illinois State Fairgrounds, in an effort to correct the deteriorating conditions before the 1974 Fair opened Aug. 8.

This is an issue that Gov. Walker denounced last week, saying it "violates principles I believe in strongly."

Walker stated, "So long as I am governor, the National Guard will not be diverted from its military and disaster missions. Guardmen will not be used as forced labor to displace skilled tradesmen such as carpenters, painters, bricklayers and laborers who work to support their families."

However, Illinois labor leaders have told the governor that they do not object to the use of the National Guard to clean up the fairgrounds.

Rep. Thomas J. Hanahan, D-McHenry, the chief spokesman for organized labor in the House, said he attended a meeting last Tuesday with an aide to the governor and a state labor Department official to discuss the Hartigan proposal. Hanahan said he and some 20 other labor leaders at the meeting indicating they would be happy to have the Guard undertake programs such as the fairgrounds renovation.

During Walker’s term in office, some 90 community action programs have been undertaken by the Guard. Among these, the Guard has built trails, public parks and boat landings, provided trucks for boy scouts, underprivileged children and elderly persons, and constructed rifle ranges, repaired homes and remodeled buildings.

The Illinois State Fairgrounds is in desperate need of repair. The work that the National Guard could provide would help greatly. And it would be no different from the many projects that Walker has already approved in the past.

It is well known that the relationship between Walker and Hartigan has been at odds for some time. But this is no time for politics to play a leading role.

Gov. Walker should carefully consider Hartigan’s plan to clean up the Illinois State Fairgrounds.

Plan merits governor’s attention
First train comes to town

By Marion W. Mitchell

(Fourth in a series)

July 4, 1854, the day the first locomotive rolled into Carbondale, offered the opportunity for the infant town to carry out its first celebration. As might be expected, Daniel Brush was in the midst of such plans and it was Brush who provided a large share of the wherewithal to finance the operation. It was Brush who provided the impressive Union banner draped over the speaker's stand where the Fourth of July speeches were to occur. It was Brush who organized the corps of waiters who fed those who came into town for the gala affair. And it was Brush who purchased the fireworks to be used in the pyrotechnic display scheduled for the evening of the Fourth.

Although it had been unpleasantly warm in the earlier part of the day, afternoon showers cooled the air so that by the time evening drew nigh, everything was just right for the large crowd of eagerly expectant people thronged around the freight depot to thoroughly savor the upcoming spectacle.

"When they had (gathered in a place where they could see the fireworks), I placed some boxes for a rostrum near my store house, several hundred feet west of the freight house, from which to start the fiery missiles. The box containing the store of serpents, etc., was deposited on the ground beside my platform, so as to have the articles handy. Undoubtedly, the lid of the box was left off, and the serpents and wheels and rockets and all the wonderful things to make up the show were exposed to any mishap which might occur."

-Brush

All went according to plan until an erratic skyrocket turned end over end, reversed itself, and plunged tail-first into the box that contained the remainder of the fireworks display. Brush describes the result:

"The fuses took fire, and then the fun started. Fortunately the heads of the projectiles were pointed away from the assemblage, westwardly up the main street, which had been cut out and pretty well cleaned of brush some distance up the hill. A number of cusses were prowling in the rear of my position, anxious and expectant. The sparks of fire emitted from the rocket must have done their work, the serpents began to hiss and up the street they started squirming and jumping this way and that and seeming to sight the dogs took after them up the hill and into the bushes, wriggling streaks of fire—the scared brutes howling with fright and putting up their best kicks to get out of the way. The magic wheels rolled and tumbled, the Roman candles shot forth the best they could, the crackers all popped at once, and the torpedoes with loud reports exploded."

The scene was highly animated and exciting while it lasted, and brought forth yells of delight from the beholders. Chagrined and abashed, I said but little. Soon, however, perceiving that most of the persons present considered the demonstration legitimate, and as designed, I let the matter go without explanation. The last heard of the frightened rats was the lingering sounds of their agonized howling, dimly and faintly sounding in the distance as they ran. They may be running and yelling yet for aught I know. And thus ended the first celebration of the Glorious Fourth of July in Carbondale, with all the participants except the dogs pleased and happy."

-Brush

By this date, Carbondale had already developed into a town of some consequence. Many lots had been sold eighteen months previously on the date of the first public sale of land (January 4, 1853) and on April 12 at the second sale. The only commercial enterprise barred from Carbondale was the sale of liquor. On the day of the first land sale, there were several members of the crowd who had assembled who were intent on opening saloons in the railroad community. They soon discovered, however, that the city's founders meant precisely what was written into the town plat—that no liquor would be sold in Carbondale. Once this point became clear, the would-be tavern owners gave up and left in disgust.

On those first two days, all even-numbered lots were sold. The odd-numbered lots were reserved for private sale by the members of the company headed by Brush. On June 26th, several out-lots were offered for sale. Brush stated that:

"The rest of the land was divided into outlots, twelve of which on the northern line contained an acre each and were assigned one to each proprietor. The other lots were sold at auction and stricken off to the highest bidder."

-Brush

Edmund Newsome, who spent ten years as Jackson County Surveyor, claims that:

"...there was a public sale of out-lots, but the public were not interested therein, for it proved to be only a manner that the proprietors had of dividing them among themselves."

-Newsome

Nevertheless, it appears that a majority of the lots were sold and the railroad settlement began to grow. The railroad approaching from the south created a ready market of many goods being produced in the area. The scores of workers employed by the railroad company created a demand for the services that the rapidly growing little town was only too eager to provide. Doctor's offices, drugstores, hotels, restaurants, hardware and general stores, a post office, a telegraph station, and a myriad of other businesses began to bloom. There was work for everybody. The sawmill was in operation and buildings were sprouting everywhere. James Green was busy:

"In the year 1854, or '55, brother Bill and I built a house for Ben (Edmund) Newsome, who was a surveyor and was staying in Jonesboro."

-Green

"Houses were being built everywhere in the woods. Brother Bill and I went to work for old Isaac Rapp."

-Green

Isaac Rapp was the carpenter who designed and built Daniel Brush's home a short time later. Rapp was also the architect who designed Old Main on the SIU Campus and the former Baptists Church Annex on West Main Street.

At this point, it may be well to insert a few words of explanation to assist the reader to orient himself to Carbondale of the 1850's. Throughout the remainder of this series, your writer will use street names as they are currently known. But in order to place many of the structures mentioned in their proper locality, it will be necessary to be familiar with the original street names.

Oak, Marion, Main and Walnut Streets are as they were named originally. What is now Jackson Street was first known as North Street. South Street on the 1852 Town Plat it now known as Monroe Street. Illinois Avenue was originally West Street and East Street is now Washington Street. Missouri Street became Normal Avenue during the days of the "Normal" (1869-1871) and then became University Avenue when SIU was elevated to University status in 1964.

On the 1852 Plat of the Town of Carbondale, Lots 39, 114, 98 and 74 were set aside for the construction of churches. Lot 59 on West Monroe Street, the original site of the Presbyterian church, is now occupied by the General Telephone Office. Lot 74 on West Jackson still has the first building erected there (in 1868) occupying it—an old Baptist Church. Lot 114, site of the first Christian Church in Carbondale (erected c.1865) is now the property of the Associated Lumber Company. The lumber company uses the area where once sat the church for the storage of sand, gravel, tile and other such materials. Lot 98 on East Jackson was the site of the first church built in Carbondale—the Methodist Episcopal—in 1856. The Presbyterian Church, began in 1856 but not completed until 1859 elected in the latter year a new ruling elder—Daniel H. Brush. He was to serve in that position until 1870.
Southern Illinoisan pressmen may continue contract negotiations

Pressmen at the Southern Illinoisan newspaper may continue to work under the existing contract, after the news media company announced it would negotiate a new deal with the pressmen. The company said it feels it has made significant progress in negotiations and will continue to work on a new agreement.

For a Mother's Day Gift...

Southern Illinoisan business manager said the newspaper had made wage adjustments but the practice had never been written into the contract. In addition to proposed wage increases, the company offered increased contribution to the pressmen’s retirement plan fund and a change in the vacation schedule, which would make an employee eligible for five weeks of vacation in the second and third years of continuous service.

The wage adjustments in the new contract would bring pressmen’s wages in line with those of composing room employees, who are now in the second year of a three-year contract. When asked if the rest of the contract was acceptable, Adams said, “I don’t say that.”

He said the pressmen “were having a little trouble” getting together. He did not say whether the pressmen would meet to decide whether to accept the contract or continue negotiations.

Senator Buzbee releases 1973 financial statement

Kenneth V. Buzbee, (D); State Senator from the 5th Legislative District released this week a financial statement showing that his family’s total income for 1973 was $32,061.60. Taxable income for last year was $21,953.50.

The statement shows assets of $2,141,753.50 and liabilities included a $12,751.68 mortgage on the home, which he valued at $28,500. Net worth was listed as $32,722.96.

This is a gain of about $10,000 over the 1972 net worth of $22,753. Income shown included $32,882.32 in wages and salaries earned by both Senator and his wife.

Total income tax paid by the family amounted to $4,378.16. Buzbee said the statement included the 1973 Federal income tax return.

The statement was issued, he said, in keeping with his belief that all public office holders are accountable to the public for such information.

Stans declines to surrender political documents for probe

WASHINGTON, (AP)--Maurice H. Stans, President Nixon's campaign finance chairman, is refusing to surrender three file cabinets of political documents needed for a probe of possible bribery, conspiracy and illegal campaign contributions, the special prosecutor's office said Friday.

After reading a petition from the prosecutor's office, Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. ordered Stans and his attorneys to appear May 15 to show cause why the subpoena should not be enforced and the documents produced.

Associate special prosecutor Thomas F. McBride, said in a statement filed with the court that the investigation also concerns possible violation of the law barring promises of government employment or favors in return for political action.

McBride told the court that the keys to the files in the headquarters of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President were turned over to Stans' personal attorney after the subpoena was served Feb. 25.

"It appears that Mr. Stans has attempted to place these documents beyond the reach of the grand jury on the basis of his Fifth Amendment privilege against compulsory self-incrimination," the special prosecutor's office said.

Special Olympics to highlight exceptional children's week

The Southern Regional Special Olympics will highlight the National Exceptional Children's Week Sunday through Saturday May 11. The Olympics will be held May 9 at Bleyer Field at Carbondale Community High School.

Members of the local chapter of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children (ICEC) will participate in running the Olympics along with members of the Department of Recreation.

John Estes, ICEC state representative, said Exceptional Children's Week serves the state's goals by bringing the achievements and further needs of special education to wider attention.

Gov. Daniel Walker, Mayor Neal Eckert and Acting SIU President Hiram Lesar have issued proclamations recognizing the contribution of Exceptional Children's Week, he said.

The ICEC works to promote services for physically handicapped, emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded persons. The local chapter of the ICEC is oriented towards serving local exceptional children and their parents, Estes said.

Civil Air Patrol meeting will discuss all-adult unit

By Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A meeting to spark interest in forming an all-adult Civil Air Patrol (CAP) unit in Jackson County is set for May 15 at 7 p.m. in the Flight Training Classroom at the Carbondale airport.

If there is enough turnout and show of interest, the Jackson County CAP could be organized and go under way at the meeting, Rob Gerardi and John L. Focht, former members of other CAP units said. If it does form, the CAP unit which probably will be called Southern Illinois Senior Squadron of CAP, Gerardi said.

CAP is a national, all-volunteer

Radar unit funds sought from state

By Rich Lohman
Student Writer

State funds are being sought for a radar unit to scout severe weather in Southern Illinois.

State Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, said he is seeking $16,000 for a radar scanner to be built at Ill. Rt. 13 and Ill. 148, in the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge. The scanner will be erected on a Civil Defense tower and will be controlled from the Civil Defense headquarters in the Wildlife Refuge, said Delbert Redick, director of the Marion office of the Civil Defense.

As soon as official funds from the Illinois Civil Defense Agency come back from vacation, they will look over the area and decide whether or not to finance the project, Johns said.

"It is very promising that we will get the funds needed for the scanner, and the Civil Defense is doing everything possible to get the needed project under way," Johns said.

If the funds are obtained, bids will then be taken for completion of the scanner. "It shouldn't take too long, because the facilities are there and the manpower is there," Johns said.

The completed unit would provide coverage from one-mile up to 120 miles. The scanner would be for weather purposes only. The unit would also have a scanner, to be mounted on the tower, and powered with 30,000 watts, Redick said.

"We have the necessary people needed to do the job," Gerardi said. He said he thought a lot of pilots in the area would like to join CAP but aren't close enough to a unit or don't know enough about it.

And a lot of people don't know that CAP reimburses pilots for flying expenses, he said.

This won't be a military but rather an emergency oriented organization for all civilians interested in helping during emergencies, Gerardi said.

He said he hopes members of service groups like the Salvation Army would become interested in the group.

Although the Jackson unit would be only for adults, a CAP group for youth may be organized if there is enough interest, Focht said.

Gerardi and Focht will be on WUCI radio Tuesday from 1:30 to 1:50 p.m. to answer questions of the CAP or they can be reached at 653-3445.

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Twenty-three horses went through final preparations Friday as their owners, trainers and riders frettet through the last hours before the 138th running of the Kentucky Derby.

The pressure of the richest, largest and most important renewal of the nation's most famous race tightened some lips and loosened others.

"I'll admit, I'm terrified," one owner said.

"Remember, there can be only one winner and there has to be 22 losers," said another.

"Shoot, I think I'll predict a victory for us," a trainer said. "After all, tomorrow morning's paper that you quote me in will be wrapped around fish by the time the race is over."

With clearings skies and temperatures in the upper 60s predicted, more than 136,000 people, including England's Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon, were expected to set Churchill Downs aflame with color.

Post time for Saturday's Derby is 5:30 p.m., EDT, with CBS carrying the race on television from 3-6 p.m. and on radio from 5:15-5:45 p.m.

If all 22 start, a prize of $274,000, a $16,000 diamond-and-emerald-studded gold cup and an antique silver bowl presented by Princess Margaret awaits the winner.

The total purse of $226,500 is $127,000 more than any in Derby history.

The 138th winner of the Churchill's Jarder and John M. Olin's Cannondade, both trained by Woody Stephens, is expected to be the favorite in this largest Derby field in history.

Another entry, Edmund Sommer's Rube the Great and Accipiter, is the probable second choice and thousands of bargain hunters won't be able to resist a bet on the 16-to-1 horse's field.

"The Great American comes in a race in better shape than either Sham or Secretariat did last year," trainer Frank "Pee Wee" Martin said.

"He's in better condition than Sham was. He's won his last two races, the Gotham and the Wood Memorial while Secretariat got beat in the Wood," Martin said.

Martin was the trainer for Sham, beaten by 2 1/4 lengths as Secretariat set a Derby record of 1:59.2 for the 1 1/4 miles en route to his sweep of the Triple Crown for the first time in 25 years.

As many as 150,000 people could see the final blowouts, short sprints for last-minute sharpness, the lack of the draw for post positions was the topic of most conversations.

Assistant Coach Randy Gaschel explains line techniques to a group of Saluki football players in preparation for Saturday's annual spring game. Kickoff is set for 10 a.m. in McAndrew Stadium and the scrimmage is open free to the public. (Staff photo by Dennis Makes.)

'Shooting exhibitions moving to New Orleans next season'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Pistol" Pete Maravich, the hot-shooting guard of the Atlanta Hawks, was dealt to New Orleans' expansion franchise of the National Basketball Association Friday.

The still nameless franchise must set up those problems.

Fred Rosenfeld, who made up the Hawks four years ago when he became the first five innings before SIU defense could settle down.

Illinois State scored two runs in the eighth off reliever Robin Derry.

The Salukis were trailing 9-2 after five innings, the only SIU runs coming on Howe Mitchell's two-run homer in the fifth.

SIU closed the gap to 9-8 in the seventh. Three of the 13 hits that morning's production on Mike Wilkins three-run shot in the top of the eighth. The Salukis committed three errors in the game as most of the Illinois State hits were dribblers. Illinois State capitalized on a double when Salukies' Fielder Steve Shartzer turned the wrong way on a fly ball.

"They didn't out play us," Saluki Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said after the game. "They out smarted us."

The two teams will meet again Saturday afternoon in a doubleheader. SIU will return home Sunday for a 2 p.m. single game against Murray State.

Saluki's bobble first game since trip to Florida

By Mark Tupper

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Losing their first game since the spring trip to Florida, the Saluki baseball team dropped an 11-4 decision at the Illinois State University Friday. The loss dropped the SIU record to 3-4 and bettered the Redbird mark to 17-12.

Senior hurler Scott Walsleute gave up eight runs in the first five innings before SIU defense could settle down. Illinois State scored two runs in the eighth off reliever Robin Derry.

The Salukis were trailing 9-2 after five innings, the only SIU runs coming on Howe Mitchell's two-run homer in the fifth.

SIU closed the gap to 9-8 in the seventh. Three of the 13 hits that morning's production on Mike Wilkins three-run shot in the top of the eighth. The Salukis committed three errors in the game as most of the Illinois State hits were dribblers. Illinois State capitalized on a double when Salukies' Fielder Steve Shartzer turned the wrong way on a fly ball.

"They didn't out play us," Saluki Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said after the game. "They out smarted us."

The two teams will meet again Saturday afternoon in a doubleheader. SIU will return home Sunday for a 2 p.m. single game against Murray State.
