SP�ZERINT~TUM MEETING

Strut and Fret, the dramatic club, met and elected officers last Tuesday afternoon in Room 24, starting with a membership of forty enthusiasts as actors and actresses who expect to "strut and fret their hour upon the stage." Plans were made for future entertainments on Monday nights. The club will meet regularly on Thursday night at 7 o'clock in Zetetic Hall, and once a month there will be a social evening, at Greenwich Village evening, at which there will be original and clever skits and skits.

Strut and Fret is one of the helpful organizations in the school. Miss TR~l~:idion expects big things from the club this year and if all plans materialize it will grow into one of the best and biggest clubs on the campus.

Shakespeare says, "All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players." Every man, then, should strive to be a good actor and the best place to learn that is in a dramatic club. Somebody was asked once what a real actor was and the reply was, "A real actor is one who, when he is on the stage, sees through one of the wings a wondrous stage-hand, a dirty, cross property man and all kinds of stage-plunder can clasp his hands together, and real frowr say, "Oh, what a beautiful scene from this window!"

The officers of Strut and Fret are: President, Russell Clements; vice-president, Ada Cherry; secretary, August Meyer. If there is anyone that wishes to join please hand your name to the secretary.

The March to Town

Upon leaving the campus the students formed in a body and marched down to see Mac who was confined to his bed on account of illness. He was unable to appear but sent word he would try to be out the next day. President Shroyer was the next one visited. He also being confined to his bed, Mrs. Shroyer spoke a few words for him.

Charleston Team Meet

After marching to town and around the square the body stopped and obtained a truck for the leaders. When the Charleston team was spotted, a loud yell went up and they were swept from the truck. After a few speeches by members of the visiting team, who faithfully promised us they would take the bacon home, the meeting dispersed in order to have "something left for the next day."
We shall endeavor in the Radiator column to radiate the wit and wisdom of our faculty members and the students in general. It is hoped that the Egyptian readers will experience real enjoyment in all that finds a place here.

HOT STUFF!
I know, I was going to interview Mr. Hatton, but I did not know the interview was to be such a hot 'un!

Well, to begin, I popped this question to our new zoology professor, "What is the value of going to college?"

Mr. Hatton: (Helping himself to a desk for some real thinking) "Going to college broadens the student and fills him better for life. It is a place where responsibility is developed where the mind receives great training, training which enables the individual to advance with professor and bounds."

Interviewer: "What, in your opinion, are the benefits derived from attending a small college in comparison with a university?"

Mr. Hatton: "What you get from either depends on what you go for. If a student goes to a big or small school and gets as much out of it as he can and puts in, it will get benefits from either. In some respects, there are almost no advantages for the students in smaller colleges because classes are not so big and each individual receives more attention. It all depends on the student and the personality of the teacher. Whether at a large university or a small college, he will get out of it what he puts in."

Interviewer: "Are too many people going to college these days?"

Mr. Hatton: "There are too many people wanting 'white collar jobs.' A good many get through college on a pull. The buffer ought to be caught and the workers given the chance. However, in general, everybody who has the opportunity should get a college education."

Interviewer: "What are your ideas of school spirit and college life, and how could a smaller school such as this improve the school spirit?"

Mr. Hatton: (Slowly) "It is not necessarily 'esprit de corps.' I suppose school spirit would be considered "hacking the team." A college is judged a lot on the way it harks its team. However, if you aren't interested in games it is no sign you have no school spirit. One way to get it is to get the whole school doing something together. If everybody knows everybody else, you'll get spirit."

Interviewer: "How do you think studies and outside activity in college in the development of the student?"

Mr. Hatton: "You should have both. If you can't do both, keep up the studies. If one has to be dropped, drop the school activities, because you are going to college primarily for study. The association you met in groups means a lot, but you can get the association with others without spending all your time in school activities."

Interviewer: "The esprit de corps, important in the education of the individual?"

Mr. Hatton: "It makes the student acquainted with ordinary things. He becomes really acquainted with life about him and the second, it develops a scientific method of approach to any subject. He gets his foundation for scientific thinking right here."

Interviewer: (Daringly) "Several of the girls are wondering if you are married?"

Mr. Hatton: (Skeptically) "What difference does it make?"

And I couldn't eat anything definite from him. I left his office feeling that S. I. N. V. is very fortunate in having him as a member of the faculty. P. S. Girls, I found out! He's unmarried!"

THE MARDI GRAS

The Normal to Take Part
Carbondale has become noted all over the state and to some extent over the midwest for the elaborate celebration they always stage on Halloween. Last year there were three thousand visitors here on "All Saints’ Night." This year such extended preparations are being made that nearly fifty thousand are expected to attend from the neighboring towns.

There has always been a very cordial and sympathetic relation between the University and the various organizations of the city of Carbondale. We know how necessary it is that there should be this feeling. So the school gladly accepted the invitation of the general committee to take part in the Mardi Gras.

Mr. Mockelroy canvassed the school and several organizations plan to take part in the parade.

Come along, students, to your part.

EDITORIAL

In last week's edition of the Egyptian there appeared an article under the caption 'The School Song.' It read, "To What Extent Is the School Song Authorized?" I agree quite generally with the writer but believe he could have written other statements nearer to the students of the S. I. N. U., but that he failed to do so. I am sure that the author is not aware that there is no such thing as being 'authorized' to write any article or poem. The school song is the property of the Egyptian, and supporting the other school activities is not in any way, shape, or form 'authorized.' It is up to the students to decide whether they wish to or not. And what constitutes loyalty? Its meaning is broad and is not defined. Does it mean writing for the paper until one is bored? Does it mean working for a penny a number of times? Does it mean being active in the school, and supporting the other school activities? If you mean all that and more, then you mean to maintain your school and support the school. Then you should go around and ask for a little help in meeting the costs. It isn't necessary to mediate stroke our chins and claim, Oh, no! Instead we might gather in the gym and parade through town, yelling the old songs and doing any of these things so long as we do not commit any act really disordered by the law.

As stated above we have our own ideas as how best to show our loyalty to our school. But to me it seems a bit inconsistent to sing on the roof in front of the Main Building something one can't hear in the car, or to practice for no reason at all. We have one way of showing loyalty, but I believe we could find a better way.

A NOTED LECTURER COMING

Under the auspices of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. Winfield Scott Hall, the noted hygiene lecturer, will be on the campus for a series of lectures Friday, October 27.

Mr. Hall, being a lecturer of note, is in very great demand at this time. The local organizations are to be congratulated upon getting his services for Friday, as he is spending only one week in the schools of the state.

The tentative program of his lectures is as follows:

Chapel Hour for Boys and Girls.
Seventh Hour for Girls.
Eighth Hour for Boys.
Sixth Hour Mass Meeting in Auditorium.

THE QUEEN OF SHEBA

Recently the Chapel talk was given by Prof. James on the picture-play, "The Queen of Sheba." His object was to account for the incidents that are not in the Bible story. Those events of the early life of the Queen of Sheba and the way she became queen are among the many traditions connected with King Solomon. The message, yet beautiful and chaste story of the Biblical writer, left ample room for later magnification to exert itself. It became a custom for Hebrew scholars to expand a short, simple statement by adding many, and often fantastic, details. Until modern times, the Jews had no other literature but that of the sacred scriptures and what grew out of that. It was the Old Testament with the translations and commentaries that seemed necessary to make it understandable by all. Most of the Old Testament was written in Hebrew, but in time it became necessary to translate this into the language used by the people, the Aramaic. Such a translation was called a Targum. Great liberties were taken with the Targums of some books, above all with those of Esther. To begin with, the book of Esther is so peculiar that it came to be a new book to our library. The librarian would classify it under Historical Fiction. If we could have the Fourth of July, Christmas, and Holy Days all celebrated together in one, we should have something like the Jewish Festival of Purim, which commemorates the deliverance as related in Esther. At this time every year, the roll of the book of Esther was read in the synagogue. The absence of definite religious tone in most of the Old Testament literature is one of the most fascinating and incongruous stories ever introduced, as that of the Queen of Sheba and her relations with King Solomon, which has served as the basis of the picture-play.

The speaker concluded with reading some of the rabbinical traditions about King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba from Baring-Gould's "Legends of the Patriarchs and Prophets and Other Old Testament Characters."

THOUGHT IT MIGHT BE NEEDED

A few days ago, one of the noblest, and most daring "Cassas" lost his "pony" and so the janitor found it, and returned it to Miss Baldwin, saying, "I found one of your books and thought you would need it in hearing your classes recite." Plan to attend Homecoming.

P. E. P. FORMULA FOR SOCRATIC SOCIETY

The Socrates fairly oozed pep this year. Proof: Stunt they pulled off Chapel last Friday week. Why, when the eleven came on the platform, wild horses couldn't have kept our pep contained within us. it simply had to overflow. And when the boys charged down the field that afternoon, our grit in old S. I. N. U was increased threefold. We've got a peppy bunch with a peppy pep committee to lead us. Why shouldn't we have plenty of pep? Remember that joke in the Egyptian last week about John Wright and Panietta Jensen buying a travelling bag and pink and blue baby ribbons? Well those bits of pink and blue ribbon conferred honor on all who were allowed to wear them and we hope the travelling bag will be a source of convenience to Capt. Mac. We're with you team! Ham! Lead 'em to Victory! Ricketty! Rackety! Shanty Town! Who can put the Socrates down? Nobody!

TO THE NEW STUDENTS:
Amidst the golden and red leaves of the campus large patches of green appear. Someone suggests grass, but upon a closer investigation we find a new student trying to locate himself on the Normal campus. The old students are grouped on the steps, cordially beckoning him to join them. The workmen on the third floor and the faculty view with one another in their valiant efforts to gain his attention. Thus flung into the maelstrom of books, rules, dates, meetings, clubs, and bikes, he whirles hither and thither. The undercurrent of past friendships, submerged in familiar home scenes, threaten to overwhelm him. Thus making friends and meeting the Alma Mater and the follow.

ANOTHER ENGAGEMENT (Evidently)
This fall has already been an exciting one for Dan Cupid, so to speak. Now another, it seems, has fallen victim to his invincible power. This time it is a Senior, an important member of various organizations, in fact this Senior is a worker in almost every activity in school but the S. O. P. H. Why this organization which could give such valuable help to one about to undertake the duties of household manager, isn't known. No doubt many of the students have noticed the new large solitary that has so recently appeared, but if you haven't just behold the jewel that adorns the hand of,—can you guess?
