Kalmbach payment to Derge reported

SIU President David R. Derge received $171,469 from the Kalmbach trust fund in return for political research conducted, mainly during the 1968 Nixon presidential campaign, according to a recent Washington Post report.

Derge said Thursday the entire amount was paid out by his corporation, Behavioral Research Association, to two polling firms he had hired to do field work on polls he prepared. Derge said he was paid as a consultant by the Republican National Committee.

The Post report listed Derge among several persons paid from the fund set up by former St. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer. The fund was a repository for surplus-Republican funds raised during the 1968 campaign. The Committee to Re-Elect the President released the Kalmbach fund expenditures Sept. 28 in response to a suit filed by Common Cause.

Derge headed Behavioral Research Association during the late 1960s and 1970s while an administrator at Indiana University, Bloomington.

“Only about 100 students turned out for the first three days of voting so Edwardsville will continue to run its referendum this week,” Maguire said. “Basically the same options are offered by both campuses (Carbondale and Edwardsville); the only difference is that we have a Graduate Student Council that is eligible to vote, and they don’t.”

An eight-day referendum at SIU-E had drawn responses from only about 4,5 per cent of eligible voters as of noon Thursday Doug Mitten, special advisor to SIU-E Student Body President Chuck Mecum, said.

Mitten said the turnout was “not as good as we had hoped it would be,” but added that the SIU-E Student Senate, was not really disappointed and in fact expected fewer.

Ballots were to be counted Thursday night and selection or election of a student trustee made as soon as possible, Mitten said. He added SIU-E is trying “to rush the process as much as possible,” so a student trustee could be seated at the October board meeting.

Depending on how long it takes the Board of Trustees to act, the student representative will be seated on the Board of Trustees at either the November or December meeting, Maguire commented.

Joel Blake, executive assistant to Carr, said Edwardsville had trouble with “mechanics,” primarily because the referendum did not have much prior publicity.

Blake said by using all the media available at SIU-E, a large student voter turnout can be generated resulting with the appointee given some “credibility.”

“The importance of this election is worth any costs,” he said.

Student trustee vote official named

Richard Lau, vice president of Graduate Student Council (GSC) was named as election commissioner for the selection of a student trustee Thursday.

Sharon Yeargin, acting president of GSC, announced that Lau and Steve Nuckles, a junior who was appointed Student Government elections commissioner, will determine the mechanics of the selection.

The selection which will be one of four options SIU-Carbondale student voters will have on how they want their student trustee selected, would be in two to three weeks, Dave Maguire, staff assistant to Student Body President Mike Carr, said.

The options consist of having the student body president appoint someone, having a committee of three to be voted on by students, or by student representatives, and having a general election run by the student government.

Gov. Dan Walker signed into law Sept. 12 a bill requiring each state university and junior college to include a non-voting student member on their governing boards.

This student’s term will expire on June 30, 1974. Students selected thereafter “shall serve terms of one year beginning on July 1 of each year,” according to the law.

Maguire pointed out that SIU-Edwardsville, also entitled to send a student representative to the board, held its referendum last week but encountered many difficulties.

The corporation went out of business in December 1971. The same month Derge was named president of SIU.

Other persons the Post lists as recipients of Kalmbach fund money include: Donald Segretti, who received $40,169; Anthony Ulasewicz, $50,001.20 and John Caufield, $30,000. All have been implicated in recent scandals stemming from the Watergate investigation.

Derge said he had never heard of the others listed in the Post report until Watergate broke. His research work for the Republican party “is no secret,” he said.

St. Louis papers prepare to publish

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The two daily newspapers in St. Louis, shut down by a strike 44 days old, made preparations Thursday to resume publication over the weekend.

The resumption was contingent upon the ratification of a tentative three-year contract Thursday night by members of striking Local 416 of the Teamsters Union. Details of the contract were not disclosed.

Board evaluation of SIU presidents produces $1,032.30 bill from Chicago

By Diane Mizialko

A forthcoming report on the Board of Trustees evaluation of the performance of both SIU presidents and the chief administrative officer is expected to take the form of a report from the board’s Committee on Board and Executive Officer Relations. The committee report. Brown said, will probably include a number of recommendations for the consideration of the board. Board Chairman Ivan Elliott has been reported as saying the committee report may possibly be made available at the next board meeting, set for Thursday at Edwardsville.

Recently, SIU President David R. Derge said he feels estranged from the board, and wishes a closer relationship with it. T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, has been especially critical of the role of the board staff in administrative work.

At the September meeting of the board, Brown said, is to support the board first and the presidents a case.

"If the staff helps the presidents as it helps the board, that’s great," Brown said. "If it doesn’t help the presidents as it helps the board, then it’s still doing what it should be doing." Brown remarked that the board staff’s job is not to agree with every viewpoint of the administration, and that it “is unnecessary” to turn every disagreement into a controversy.

“Occasionally the light the board staff casts on a situation shows up a simple and this is read negatively,” Kania said.

Oil company sued

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A $2.6 million class action damage suit has been filed against Standard and American Oil companies, both of Whiting, Ind., William Alt & Son, employed by the refineries to clean storage tanks.

The suit, prepared by Lake County Prosecutor Henry S. Kowaleczyk, alleges sandblasting operations in July, August and September loosened particles that were deposited on nearby homes, causing deprivation of property values and annoyance to homeowners.

No hearing date was set on the suit, which asks $600,000 actual damages and $2 million punitive damages.

Meeting on Ombudsman’s fate settles little

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A meeting Tuesday on the future of the Office of the Ombudsman settled nothing except that the office’s fate is in the hands of the University administration, John Hawley, president of the University Senate, said.

Hawley met with T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, and Dale Betterfield, assistant professor of technology, at Mager’s request. Hawley said. Mager is focal officer of the Ombudsman’s Office, which was assigned to his division last spring. Betterfield is ex-chairman of the U-Senate Ombuds-Advisory Panel.

The three discussed possible ways the administration may affect a study of the ombudsman’s office and function and alternative methods of handling campus grievances, Hawley said.

Hawley said his presence at the meeting does not imply that an official U-Senate judgment on the ombudsman situation was presented to Mager. He and Betterfield presented their personal views only, he said. A decision on continuation of the office “lies with Dr. Mager.” Hawley said. The U-Senate panel will not be revived this year, he added, unless the administration requests it.

The panel has fallen into disuse since former ombudsman Mary Walker left the office in early 1972, Hawley said.

Kris Haedrich, current ombudsman, complained in her recently issued end-year report that the panel’s effectiveness was reduced by its lax procedures.

Personally, Hawley said, he has “very positive reactions” to Ms. Haedrich’s report, but he felt critical of its decline in its ability to inspire trust and respect.

An possible reason for the decline, Hawley mentioned an incident that occurred in the ombudsman’s office over the summer. Hawley noted there had been much gossip and talk about the incident.

Dan Orescanin, executive vice president, Wednesday provided the Daily Egyptian with a copy of the SIU Security Police report on the incident.

The report outlines a confrontation that occurred in the ombudsman’s office on July 27 between Ms. Haedrich and ex-ombudsman Marcus Jones over a poster satirizing the women’s liberation movement. Ms. Haedrich objected to the “poor taste” of the poster, the report says.

After an argument over the poster, Jones left the office and Ms. Haedrich called her supervisor, Mager, for his advice, according to the report.

Kania says S-Senate has potential

By Drbyy Ratermanna
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student Senate Chairman Jim Kania said Thursday he was “very pleased” with senate action Wednesday night. “We’ve got the potential to have a great senate this year,” Kania said.

Senate bills must have a “first reading” this year, Kania said, as outlined in the senate constitution.

“Last year bills were introduced and voted on at the same meeting, but this year we’re going to follow the rules and require bills to be read at one meeting and voted on at another,” Kania said.

The same “first reading” procedure will be used for resolutions and constitutional changes.

A resolution to recognize the SIU Golf Club was passed at Wednesday’s meeting, which was attended by several senators.

A bill to research continuity of Saluki Stadium was also read before the committee on the Stables was set up headed by Rick Fere.

Several bills dealing with funding for campus groups were given a first reading by Richard Adams, student senate president. Adams read bills requesting $15,000 for the International Soccer Club and $110 for the Bridge Club, $300 for the Judo Club and $300 for the Interfaith Council.

They will be acted on next Wednesday.

Kania said he hoped next week’s meeting “will be held in one of the ballrooms because there’s a lot more room.” He’d also like to be able to use the gym.

Kania said he was pleased with the turnout Wednesday and the senate’s swift action in choosing Daniel L. Baar, university senator, as president pro tempore.

Baltich will head the committee on committees which should meet this week to appoint senate committees. Kania said these committees will be discussed next week, as will Student Body President Mike Carr’s appointment to the Senate finance and advisory and liquor advisory committees.

“The administration is willing to work with the Senate, and this should be a very productive year.”

Orescanin rebuts charges by civil service workers of plant's overspending

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Job-cost figures released Thursday afternoon by Dan Orescanin, executive vice president and vice president for administration, rebutted charges of overspending for maintenance work. At the Wednesday meeting of the Civil Service Employees Council, Vice President Bill Steele criticized the amount of maintenance work done by outside contractors. This practice, he said, was costing the University more money than if the work was performed by the Physical Plant.

Orescanin provided job-cost figures to compare with three of the instances Steele mentioned. Orescanin said the figures were compiled by Gene Peebles, business manager, and Anthony Blass, director of the Physical Plant.

—Steele claimed the University was paying outside contractors an hourly rate of $9.44 for ash-hauling, rather than giving the work to the Physical Plant workers. Orescanin estimated $6,000.

Orescanin said Steele's figure of $6,000 approximated the cost of labor for ash-hauling last year. Added to this, Orescanin said, are the costs of fuel and rental of trucks to haul the ashes, making the figure for last year's job closer to $7,250.23. Orescanin said Physical Plant's estimate for ash-hauling this year was probably based on this amount.

—For other factors came into play, he said. The dumping charge for each truckload of ashes has risen from $3 to $5. In addition, he said, the lower quality of coal being used by SIU is priced per ton more than the coal used last year.

Since the contractor's large truck makes only one ash-haul per day, and the smaller University trucks would need three or four trips to carry the same amount, Orescanin said the difference in cumulative dumping costs, alone made it economical to contract out the job.

In addition, Orescanin said, with the job contracted out, the Physical Plant is not charging the maintenance overhead on vehicles. The present hauling contract is estimated at $3,500 for the year, saving the University $2,250 by abso- ring his own overhead expenses.

—Steele said the $9.44 figure should have generated a $19 per hour estimate for moving law books, but the job went outside to the University for $30 per hour.

Orescanin said the $9.44 estimate failed to include the truck rental charge. Also, the University would be more rigid in its own overhead charge would also have to be figured into the sum to provide a real estimate of cost.

Orescanin said the job was contracted for a maximum of $2,400, and the per-hour cost came to $10.76. Again, the University saved on the overhead it did not pay for the overhead assumed by the con- tractor, he said.

—Steele said University carpenters receive about $6.37 per hour, but have been higher wages, and did not pay the overhead assumed by the con- tractor, he said.

Orescanin said the only present con- tract for outside carpentry work stipulates an hourly rate of $9.44. He also mentioned adding the overhead charge to the University wage of $6.63 brings the in-house charge to $7.96.

The conservative estimate from the Physical Plant places "lost time" at 9 percent of the work. Steele, the Vice President, said this would be more rigidly measured in the future.

Orescanin said he said the job was done by a contractor. Since the basic work rate, plus the various overheads total $19 per hour, and the University pays the work the charge would be more rigidly measured in the future.

Derge to answer letters

"Answering Letters with SIU President David R. Derge" will begin appearing Oct. 18 as paid advertising in the Daily Egyptian.

The ad, containing letters to Derge from SIU students and Derge's reply to those letters is slated to appear once a week, executive vice president Dan Orescanin said Thursday.

"This is an attempt to have students in touch with the president about things that concern them," Orescanin said. He said Derge doesn't want students to feel reluctant to write him either to complain about or praise university situations.

Purchasing advertising in the newspaper is one aspect of Derge's letter-writing program. Only those letters posing questions Derge and his staff consider interesting to all students will be printed and answered in the Daily Egyptian. All others will be an- swered through the mail, Orescanin said.

The DuQuoin State Fairgrounds will host the Second Annual Southern Illinois Folk Festival, starting Friday morning through Sunday.

Sponsored by the Southern Illinois Arts and Crafts Guild and Hay Farm Acres, Inc., the Folk Festival is being hailed as the most interesting educational happening in the area.

According to a Festival news release, at least a thousand area school children are expected to be away from their normal classroom activities Friday to view demonstrations on how the farmers, craftsmen and homemakers often referred to "good old days."

"Like the well-known DuQuoin State Fair, the Folk Festival provides something for everyone," a spokesman for the Festival said.

The SIU mobile museum will be a focal point of the Festival during the weekend.

Other activities being provided by SIU departments, students and person- nel of local glass blowing skills demonstra- ted by Lorenzo Cristado, manager of the glass blowing shop; wood- carving, basket-weaving, china dec- orating, rice-writing, and a host of other techniques.

For sports and games, the SIU Forestry Club will be exhibiting early lumber jack skills at 4 p.m. Friday and from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sun- day.

Other highlights and special events of the festival include stage coach and covered wagon rides, petting zoos, grounds, and entertainment shows, a hog calling contest, square dances, Indian demonstrations and a Folk Festival Queen contest.

Students from Rend Lake Junior College will present the melodrama, "Robin Hood and the "Punch and Judy" puppet show by Mimi Higdon, a Muncie, Ind., native. Talented area residents will provide home entertainment, along with a small wooden antique auto show scheduled for Sunday.

At the Hay Farm Acres Park's "First Harvest Festival," a harvest display featuring the Marx Brothers, Three Stooges and Laurel and Hardy is being featured.

Admission to the Folk Festival is free with a $1 parking charge being collec- ted by SIAC members at the front gate.

springfield (AP)—The Illinois Democratic fund, a political money- raising group set up by Gov. Walker, announced Thursday it will conduct a charter dinner Nov. 17 in McCormick place in Chicago.

Walker will be the main speaker at the dinner, the first since the inception of the IDP last July.

Tickets range in price from $25 to $1,500 and the price of the dinner also includes a charter membership in the group.
Behold the moloch!

Once again our state has revived and utilized that grossly imprecise equation—a age equals maturity or a lack the thereof—by which our law-bound society tries to control social behavior.

Political progressives may acclaim the new drinking age law as a bold step toward social liberation, while teetotalers wring their hands at the impending juvenile pollution.

But the truth of the matter is that the new law will probably change the social atmosphere very little, because no law can either prohibit or foster an action in and of itself.

The old law did little to prohibit under-age drinking. Young people under 21 have been drinking ever since, and the proscription week-end promotion was wasted.

Changing the age to drink, whether by splitting hairs over beer, wine and hard liquor according to another formula, will not foster the unleashing of a vast number of drinkers. It will only make it legal.

If anything, it will keep previously under-age drinkers off the board instead of forcing them out of sight, beyond the legal surveillance, and social control.

In essence, the legislature has done nothing more than rearrange the political boundaries of a social terrain that has remained unchanged.

Can physical plant work be done cheaper under contract?

To the Daily Egyptian:

"The roots are healthy." Another survey at SIU. Mr. Orescanin wants to know if the work being performed by the physical plant can be done cheaper. To have published! You simply cannot save a dying tree by first cutting off healthy roots. Not even a financial tree. It's the dead wood and mis-management branches at the top that are sucking away its life. The pruning must start at the top.

It's really very elementary. When the personnel people and labor relation people at SIU, not only collide, but even encourage inequities, then the disease begins to spread.

When the electricians, at high again teamsters and laborers wages, are permitted to drive trucks and laborers work, where are the savings? The logic? When the other crafts, all at half again the teamsters and laborers wages, are permitted to haul materials and supplies to the job site on their pickups and three wheelers, where is the savings? The logic?

But alas, that is but one small mismanagement branch on the dying tree.

Let's take a logical survey. It's cheaper.

Private industry pays outside union scale. SIU pays from approximately $5 cents to $1.50 per hour less for comparable work.

Private industry pays personal property taxes. SIU pays none.

Private industry pays enormous real estate taxes. SIU pays none.

Now the logic! With lower labor costs, with lower vehicle operation cost, with no taxes to pay, with all of SIU's financial advantages, how could private industry even conceivably do it cheaper? Because they learned years ago how to trim a tree. Perhaps Mr. Orescaniin could do a lot better with one good tree trimmer to cut some of the dead wood at the top rather than waste money on a survey team to hack away at the healthy roots.

Surely SIU's physical plant will not revert to a maze of supervisors with few or even no one to supervise.

Give Anthony Hall a chance

It's a new school year and time for a new atmosphere at SIU.

For too long administrators, faculty and students have been at each other's throats over every issue. Last spring it no longer mattered that anyone had reasons for protest or proposals—all that counted was who could tout shout, outmaneuver and undermine who.

When stubbornness and thirst for power usurp the mental energies and resources in an institution of higher education, there is little hope for education, its future or its participants.

There are things the administration has done that faculty and students don't agree with, and vice versa. There is both reason and room for constructive criticism and for logical dissent.

Everyone here is at fault for what has happened. The Faculty Senate bumbled its semester system recommendation by deciding not to decide. The Student Senate discredited itself by nearly dissolving in a sea of midyear quagmire. The administration ramrodded all too many deals. The Board of Trustees all too blandly rubber-stamped proposals.

Whether we agree with the changes or not, they are here. To make them succeed or fail, we must work together. If we are screaming at each other, dashing off memos in scattered frenzy, those in power will simply ignore and make the rules anyway. If we sit back on our collective hands and say administrators don't know or care what they are doing, they certainly won't try to prove otherwise.

If we want quality administration and education, we have to demand it.

Some of the stuffy air is clearing at Anthony Hall. President Derge has indicated a willingness to reestablish some kind of communication with constituents and the press. He has promised regular— even weekly—meetings with the media. He had reopened office doors to reporters. Telephone calls now go directly to his office rather than through some maze-staring with the Communications Director.

Vice President Dan Orescanin, in particular, tries to justify reporters with information on any issue— even when outside his area of responsibility—if others won't talk.

Give Anthony Hall a chance. Give each other a chance.

Constituencies must organize now while Derge has offered them an opportunity to influence policy. We must provide administrators with rational, researched opinions rather than off-the-cuff, gut reactions.

It could make a difference.

U.S. forest should be more than place to cut, sell trees

By Phil Cogswell
Portland Oregonian

WASHINGTON — The President's Advisory Panel on Timber and the Environment has turned in its often-delayed report urging, to nobody's surprise, that the federal government spend more on its forests so it can sell more trees.

Over all, the report of the panel, headed by former Interior Secretary Fred Seaton, follows the logic of the timber industry, arguing that except for wilderness and some other areas that shouldn't be logged, the primary role of the national forests should be to produce commercial timber. Further, the report states logging doesn't hurt the environment too much if it is properly conducted.

The Seaton panel says some interesting things in its report and many of its recommendations are obviously sensible and worth making, even if they do repeat what a lot of people have been saying for some time. But the really crucial part of the report is disappointing: rather than helping resolve the debate over the proper management of the national forests, the panel, if anything, contributed to it.

"The central policy issue for meeting the wood needs for the 1970s and 1980s," the report says "is at what rate should the old growth inventory on the national forests be converted to well managed new stands to meet both current and future timber needs?"

Well now, this may be the central policy issue for the timber industry and Mr. Seaton and the rest of the panel, but it seems to ignore a lot of the debate surrounding the national forests.

It assumes, first of all, that the timber in the national forests should primarily be treated as inventory, merchandise on the shelf so to speak, rather than a part of the natural scheme of things that should be husbanded and treasured, used to be sure, not only with caution, foresight and respect.

The real policy issue might be better stated as: To what degree should the national forests be treated as a business enterprise rather than managed in a way that enhances their value to all segments of society?

We can, of course, go too carried away with the nature mystique and ignore the vital role lumber plays in the economy. The national forests must be used—but they must be used in a balanced way.

One does not have to stand in front of the chain saws and shout "woodsmen spare that tree" in order to be concerned, for instance, about a recommendation that "the commercial forest lands not withdrawn for wilderness or other specific uses should be designated for commercial timber production and other compatible uses and be managed in accordance with appropriate national policies."

As the Forest Service responded, "we think that it would be a mistake, if not illegal, for us to highlight timber production as the dominant use of some 80 or 90 million acres of the National Forest System."

The Forest Service, interestingly, was willing to call the proposal by its proper name; it is the same "dominant use" concept that raised such a stir when proposed by the Land Law Review Commission. It also seems to call for timber land zoning, another controversial concept.

Asked about this, a panel member responded that the report sought to avoid words with high emotional impact. Actually it isn't the words, it's the idea, that causes concern.

Before worrying over much about the report, however, one should look at what impact it is likely to have, for most commission reports fade rapidly from memory.

For the Seaton report the future is cloudy. President Nixon has endorsed the idea of cutting more timber when possible, but that appears a vague endorsement. More specifically he has referred the report to an interagency task force "to assess this report carefully and to put into effect as many of its major recommendations as they consider practical."

John Sawhill, who has charge of natural resource funding for the Office of Management and Budget, already has said he disagrees with the recommendation that federal spending on forest management be increased by $200 million a year. Without this increased spending, the whole point of the report is blunted, because increased cutting depends on improved management which depends on more money.

Sawhill also takes issue with the claim that the federal treasury gets more from the national forests than it spends, saying "this depends on how you do the accounting."

"I think we have to have a better understanding of what the payoff is for investment in timber compared with other types of investment," Sawhill said. "This is a very tough area to work in."

Over at the Forest Service, the report brought a mixed reaction; some recommendations follow the agency's line of reasoning but others would upset its effort to avoid being merely the federal commercial timber producer.

The forest service has its own plans for the national forests and it is doing its own analysis on how management can be improved. A major study of the sustained yield—allowable cut concept is now underway which should produce description of alternatives that can be understood and debated by the public.

This might be more useful than the Seaton recommendation that implies the sustained yield calculation should be jettisoned so more timber can be cut each year.

All in all, it appears the Seaton panel started with the idea that we should and could produce more timber from the national forests. We probably can, but before anybody's mind can be changed, it will be necessary to back up a few steps and rethink the whole question of what we want done with our forests.

Women libbers arise!

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is an open letter to all the Women at Southern Illinois University and the Carbondale community that are concerned with Women's Rights, Attention Women Libbers.

I have recently inquired into Homecoming activities and was surprised to hear that SIU has brought back to life the 'Miss SIU Contest.' I thought this kind of thing went out with the glitter and pom poms of the '60's, but I guess I was wrong. It seems someone, somewhere thinks its 'cool' because they did it in high school, so lets do it again at SIU! YUK!

' I have heard of many problems that this university has, but do we need to put another on the list? Do we need to continue the sexist operations of the past because we think it might be FUN? In my opinion, I think this is wrong. I am asking for all those 'women libbers' walking the sidewalks of the town and SIU to formally protest this form of sexism by sending letters to Student Government to stop this activity. Voice your opinions in writing letters to the Daily Egyptian and the Southern Illinoisan.

NOW is the time to test the Women's Movement in Carbondale to see if Women can stand up for Your Own Rights and to STOP SEXISM! For information on an organizational meeting about this problem, Call 449-7264 and talk to me personally on a protest to the contest.

Yom Kippur begins Friday; Hillel sets holiday services

Friday's sunset marks the beginning of Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement, for SIU's 2,000 Jewish students and faculty members.

Yom Kippur, the most sacred of the Jewish holidays, is the culminating of a 10-day period of self-examination. It is a time for asking God's forgiveness for the wrongs we have done. Rabbi Earl Vinecourt of the Hillel Foundation said that prayer and fasting together are the major components of the day. Services begin at sunset with the chanting of an ancient prayer called Kol Nidre. The Kol Nidre is perhaps one of the most ancient prayers known, and it serves as the basis for chants and prayers in other religions.

There will be an evening student service beginning at 5:30 Friday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center. There will also be a student-led service on campus beginning at 7:30 in the Hillel Student Center.

Servicve at 7:30 will be held at Temple Beth Jacob in Carbondale. During the length of Yom Kippur, which lasts from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday, all Jews are required to fast. "Religion should not be based on convenience," Rabbi Vinecourt said. "Chants are taught to mold our life to fit religious ideals."

Services starting at 9:30 Monday will be held at Temple Beth Jacob and will last until sunset. Morning services will begin with chants praising life and will climax with the reading of the Torah, the Jewish holy book.

Two students allegedly caught stealing groceries from a Carbondale "club" were arrested, Carbondale police reported.

Ronald F. Breitkauff, 20, and Mitchell L. Rabinowitz, 21, roommates in a trailer at MurphyShores, were charged with burglary and taken to the Jackson County Jail. A jail official said both men would be held at least until Friday, since a judge was unavailable Thursday to set bail.

At approximately 12:15 a.m., the men allegedly entered the storeroom in the rear of the 'tavern' by removing a wooded panel above the back entrance, police reported. Breitkauff climbed through and Rabinowitz followed him and entered the storeroom, police said. Breitkauff was detained by the employee until police arrived and Kaiser fled. He was apprehended later by a Carbondale police officer.

The men were discovered by an employee who had entered the storeroom, police said. Breitkauff was detained by the employee until police arrived and Kaiser fled. He was apprehended later by a Carbondale police officer.

Breitkauff and Rabinowitz are charged with burglary.

"It will take several years to improve our domestic supply position and expand refinery capacity," he said. The discussion of the power and energy problems faced by the state was the major item on the Thursday agenda of the governor-appointed governors 12th annual meeting.

Agnew’s successor indicted by special federal grand jury

BALTIMORE (AP) — A special federal grand jury investigating allegations of political corruption against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew returned an indictment against another man Thursday.

It accused N. Dale Anderson, the Democrat who succeeded Agnew as chief executive of Baltimore County, of evading $67,403 in federal income tax for 1969 through 1972.

Anderson, 36, the first Maryland official to be indicted in the presente prose, was charged in a previous indictment with extortion, bribery and conspiracy in a kickback scheme involving architects and consultants doing business with the county.

Similar allegations against Agnew, which the vice president has denounced as “damned lies,” are now being heard by the jury in strict secrecy and under heavy security.

U.S. marshals continue to block courthouse corridors to shield witnesses and jurors from newsman.

Agnew’s lawyers are seeking to halt the grand jury probe on con- stitutional grounds, claiming a vice president can neither be indicted nor tried in criminal court.

They also are searching for the sources of news leaks about the investigation which Agnew claims originated in the Justice Depart- ment and which he says are defaming him of a fair and impartial hearing by the jury.

U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman granted the lawyers unprecedented subpoena power Wednesday after directing the jurors to ignore news stories while they weigh the evidence.

Joel Kline, a Montgomery County, Md., land developer who reportedly has raised funds for Agnew, was the first witness before the panel Thursday, spending nearly an hour in the jury room.

Shields by his lawyer, Kline declined to tell newsmen the sub- stance of his testimony or whether it even concerned the vice president.

He acknowledged, however, that he had appeared voluntarily, without immunity, and was cooperating.

Kline was once considered for appointment as Maryland's banking commissioner by Gov. Marvin Mandel, who succeeded Agnew.

The developer has been reported as telling federal investigators he collected more than $100,000 for Agnew and other politicians and laundered the money to disguise its sources.

But sources close to the case said the report was erroneous.

Another witness was Orman S. "Dutch" Moore, who was executive secretary to Agnew between 1963-66 when Agnew was county executive.

Moore testified with the prosecutors in the office of U.S. Atty. George Beall in the morning before going before the jury in the afternoon.

He, too, declined to say why he was called.

Market rally halted; experts analyze why

By Deborah M. Rankin

Associated Press Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market halted its prolonged rally Thursday, and analysts said profit-taking accounted for most of the retreat.

"The Dow Jones industrial average has a rise of 82 points in seven consecutive sessions and the market’s due for a period of con- solidation," said Ronald Cooper of W.E. Mollin & Co.

"You can expect the Dow to rise as sharply as in the 850-860 range as it did in the 870-880 level," Ball added.

The Dow, which dropped 8.40 to close at 852.86 was weighed down by the losses in two of the 30 stocks which make up that widely watched market index.

Du Pont, which had risen steeply in recent session because investors anticipated positive announcements at an analyst’s meeting Thursday, saw its gains trimmed by 3 and one- tenth to close at 188. The company told analysts third-quarter net could be sharply higher.

The market slump extended beyond the glamour issues, however. Declines outnumbered advances by 625 to 696 among 1,841 issues exchanged on the New York Stock Exchange. And the Big

Picnic planned by Chinese students for next Saturday

By Richard Ricks
Student Writer

The Chinese Student Association will sponsor a picnic beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 14 on the grounds of Lake Murphysboro State Park for all interested in attending. The picnic is open to the public for a $1.50 admission fee and the association will ask for an additional $2 membership fee for those Chinese students who wish to become part of the organization. Food and recreational facilities will be provided which include boating, fishing, canoeing, soccer and football.

Rita Fung, president of the association, expects a turnout of approximately 100 people at the picnic which is just one activity planned by the association for the upcoming year. Other activities include a Korean film to be shown at 7 p.m. on Nov. 16 in Davis Auditorium and a party later in the year.

The association, an on-campus student group, had a membership of 172 Chinese students last year, but Ms. Fung hopes that the enrollment will increase.

"I estimate at least 20 new Chinese students on campus this year," Ms. Fung said.

The goals of the Chinese Student Association are to promote non-political and non-profitable fellowship among the Chinese in Carbondale, Ms. Fung said.

"We encourage the study and development of Chinese culture and we sponsor extra-curricular and social activities to enhance mutual understanding between the Chinese and non-Chinese people at this University," Ms. Fung said. "That's why our functions are open to everybody.

Additional events this fall include a talk on "the Chinese and American culture," the Chinese dorm art show and "Noah's Ark," a Chinese film, on Nov. 18 in Davis Auditorium.

Storm system falters after soaking Midwest

By The Associated Press

A system of storms weakened Thursday in parts of the mid-continent after unleashing as much as 4 inches of rain in Illinois and Missouri.

Eight inches of rain were reported in Rockville, Ill., and up to 6 inches around Sedia, Mo. There was flooding and threats of flooding as streams and rivers overflowed.

Although the storms eased during the day, there was a scattering of heavy rainfall. In six hours 1.12 inches fell at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

The pattern formed from a cold front pushing eastward from the Midwest and carrying thunder-storm activity to sections of the Atlantic Coast.

Ahead of the front temperatures ranged from the 70s over most of the northern Atlantic states to near 90 along the Gulf. Behind it afternoon temperatures dropped into the teens and 20s in the Plains and Rockies.

The afternoon temperature at Minneapolis, Minn., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was 90 at Palm Springs, Calif.

Some other reports: Anchorage 41 partly cloudy, Atlanta 81 clear, Boston 79 clear, Buffalo 71 cloudy, Chicago 81 partly cloudy, Cleveland 78 partly cloudy, Dallas 80 partly cloudy, Denver 64 clear, Detroit 76 partly cloudy, Honolulu 78 clear, Indianapolis 70 partly cloudy, Kansas City 66 clear, Los Angeles 66 clear, Louisville 72 clear, Miami 79 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 60 clear, Nashville 70 partly cloudy, Philadelphia 81 clear, Phoenix 90 clear, Pittsburgh 78 clear, St. Louis 62 cloudy, San Francisco 66 clear, Seattle 54 clear, Washington 83 clear.

"Fashions '74" will be Oct. 28 at U-City site

The Inspirational Singers of First Freewill Baptist Church are presenting the 1973 Northeast Convention and Video Fair, Oct. 28, at the University City complex. "Fashions '74," the name of the production, features designs and creations from local areas as well as from out of state.

The show, put on to offset debts at the church, will begin at 7 p.m. There will also be prizes, awards, contests and entertainment.

Tickets and other information can be obtained by calling Melvin L. Macklin at 437-7340 or Miss Lorraine Hudson at 549-1047.

INTERVIEWER: What is "Take the Money and Run" about?  ALLEN: Seventeen thousand Episcopal midgets and their attempt to find God in a Chinese restaurant.  INT: How did you first get the idea for it?  ALLEN: I was high from smoking Polish corn flakes. It suddenly came to me.  INT: I see. And how would you rate "Take the Money and Run" as a film?  ALLEN: It's better than Fellini's masterpiece "How Sweet My Finger?" but not as good as Bergman's Greek tragedy "Beyond Danzig."  INT: What is the message of the picture?  ALLEN: That life is good and there is intelligence behind the universe except for some sections.  INT: Did you employ any new cinematic techniques?  ALLEN: Yes. I frequently didn't remove the lens cap from the camera to get an interesting "night effect." Also I used a yellow filter occasionally to make the actors look like they had jaundice.  INT: Is that important to the plot?  ALLEN: No—I just like to see people with jaundice.  INT: Anything else?  ALLEN: Yes. I did an off-beat news scene where the actors were dressed but the cameraman was naked.  INT: I see.  ALLEN: Finally—I put the camera on wheels and did the longest, most complicated "dolly" shot ever. I started in San Francisco, dollyed to Arizona, moved up into Canada, swung down around the Great Lakes (still the same shot) and dollyed into Chicago.  INT: I can't wait to see that in the movie.  ALLEN: Oh, I cut it out of the movie. It didn't hold up.  INT: This was your first film?  ALLEN: As a director, I wrote "What's New Pussycat?" and was script girl on "Guns West."  INT: But you are a man.  ALLEN: Big deal.  INT: How was it working with Janet Margolin? She's very beautiful.  ALLEN: Yes. I gave her a great deal of attention as she required considerable nudity. I did what I had to, but in a businesslike way.  INT: Did the critical reception of the film get surprise you?  ALLEN: Not really. I have a good relationship with the New York critics. They review me well and I get them girls. If the critics happen to be girls, I get them. If they're anything else, they're on their own. The only time I was stumped was when one of them wanted a chicken.  INT: What about grosses? You're breaking box-office records.  ALLEN: I have a lot of relatives.  INT: In conclusion, is there anything you would like to say?  ALLEN: Yes. "The Abe Pinchcock Story," a moving saga about anti-Semitism in a beehive.  INT: Good luck.  ALLEN: My pleasure.

Bakalis to meet AISG members

By Terry Martin

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SAC representatives of Public Instruction Michael Bakalis will join representatives from university and juniors organizations when the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG) meets Saturday.

The monthly board meeting of AISG is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

Saturday at the Marion View Motel, 280 S. Fourth st., Springfield.

Four members of student government will accompany Jeff Lohmann, AISG representative to the AISG, to the meeting. Phil Lemons,

Graduate Student Council (GSC)

representation, John North, student welfare chairman; Marc Kamm, student senator; and Matt Rich, assistant student welfare chairman, are the student government representatives.

Sharon Youvain, acting president of GSC, said the council is sending a representative once "to check out the feasibility of doing it on a regular basis." GSC has never sent anyone to an AISG meeting before, she said.

Lohmann said Bakalis will join the group for a breakfast and strategy session on student government impact in higher education.

"Student fees will be, the main subject, but student-operated stores, fund raising for AISG and legislation of financial aids will also be topics for discussion," he said.

The main objective of AISG is for representatives from junior colleges and universities to meet with state officials and exchange ideas as to what is necessary to improve student government operations. Lohmann commented.

"We are trying to think of methods by which we can get home-campus student support for our organization but it takes tangible action to accomplish this," Lohmann said. "We really believe in what we're doing.

Richard Carlson, the Bureau of the Budget's education director, will handle university budgets and stafford assistance, and possibly

House Speaker Robert Blake will join the group/after Saturday for further discussion.

Member schools in the 11-year-

Woman sticks up for both sides

MARION ILL. (AP) — Jackie Giles, 36, is regarded with suspicion by union and management as she walks the picket line at the Giles Armature and Electric Works. She's the granddaughter of the company founder and the daughter of the firm's vice president in charge of sales.

She said Thursday, "Management doesn't trust me. The union doesn't trust me. They aren't taking any chances.

Employed as a coil winder for the past four years, Miss Giles walked out with her fellow workers Sept. 24 in a dispute over wages and recognition of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. After each stint on the picket line she returns to the house she shares with her father, John.

"We have a mutual agreement," she said. "I still cook supper for him and he still cooks breakfast for me. I let him know how I feel and he lets me know how he feels.

"He doesn't try to stop me from walking the line and I don't try to stop him from going to work," she said. "We don't quite come to blows."

6 persons injured in Illinois as passenger train derail}

EARLEVILLE, ILL. (AP) — Six persons were injured Thursday in the derailment of a Burlington-Northern Railroad train.

The two-car Amtrak train carried about 56 passengers on its run from West Quincy, Mo., to Chicago. A railroad spokesman said the locomotive and two cars left the track but did not overturn.

The accident occurred on the outskirts of Earleville about 25 miles north of Laclede.

None of the injured was hurt seriously, officials said.

Political saboteurs admit Florida primary disruptions

By Lawrence L. Kuston
Staff Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two admitted political saboteurs told the Senate Watergate committee Thursday they tried to disrupt the 1972 Florida Democratic primary campaign of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and other Democratic presidential contenders.

Michael Douglas Kelly, 34, of Miami apologized for dirty tricks which ranged from preparing bogus letters and advertising to paying a girl to run naked in front of a hotel where the Maine senator was staying, yelling, "Muskie, I love you!"...But Robert M. Benz, 29, Thursday's other witness, made no apology for his work against campaigns of Democratic presidential contenders in the Tampa area. He said he was motivated primarily by revenge for what he called Democratic dirty tricks in previous campaigns.

The two Florida Young Republicans, both apprentices of political trickster Donald J. Segretti, appeared at the first committee session not televised live on commercial networks.

Segretti, 32, a California attorney who said he took his orders from a White House aide, has pleaded guilty to three federal mail and wire charges arising from political sabotage efforts he directed in the Florida primary.

After hearing Benz and Kelly, the committee recessed until 10:30 a.m. when the panel tentatively decided to hear more testimony about dirty tricks against Democrats.

Donald Raymond J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said the committee hopes to wind up its investigation of dirty tricks next week, then take a two-week break to coincide with the recess already planned by the full Senate.

Benz got into a shouting match with Ervin when he blamed Democrats for virtually stealing the 1960 presidential election.

And he tried sharp reactions from Ervin when he wouldn't be surprised if some of the Watergate panel senators had colluded covert intelligence gathering in their own campaigns.

Kelly said after he was recruited by Segretti, his operations "began with pranks, and ... began to get more and more intense.

"I knew some of these things were illegal," he said. "I was using my own spider web and I couldn't get out of it...".

Both Benz and Kelly said they received $20 a month plus tiny expenses from Segretti. They said they didn't know Segretti had been hired by Dwight L. Chapin, then President Nixon's appointments secretary.

Benz said the money wasn't his main incentive.

"If I felt the Democrats got a little done of their own kind of activity, they would be a little reluctant to do this to us in the future," he said.

He claimed Democrats had played dirty tricks against him in 1970 when he was a Senate campaign manager in an unsuccessful U.S. Senate campaign of Rep. William Cramer, R-Fla.

Benz reacted angrily when Ervin asked: "Can you tell me any time in the history of the United States when aides to the President of the United States provided money to spread libel and slander among candidates of the opposing political party?"

"Where were you in 1960 when it was accused that a campaign was stolen?" Benz asked Ervin of the race between Nixon and Democrat John F. Kennedy.

"I was here in the United States and I never heard of a campaign being stolen in the testimony of any credible witness," Ervin replied.

Kelly described for senators a campaign of disruption that included bogus letters, faxes, news releases, misleading posters and advertisements, counterfeit investigations and bank bomb...cases.

Once, he said, he paid a girl $20 to run naked in front of the Maine Democrats' hotel, yelling, "Muskie, I love you." The Maine senator was staying at the hotel.

Kelly said he did not begin to feel guilty or shame for his activities until they were over. And he maintained throughout his testimony that his activities were intended to confuse and antagonize candidates, not to influence votes.

SPRINGFIELD, III. (AP) — An Aurora man asked Sangamon County Circuit Court Thursday to order all 50 Illinois Senators up for election next year. In January, the secretary of state declared only 20 senatorial seats were subject to election next year.

The other 30 were filled in 1972 for four-year terms. David L. Pierce of Aurora who said he wanted to be a candidate for the Senate next year in the 39th district, filed the suit. The incumbent senator, Robert W. Mitich, R-Urbana, was certified elected until 1980. Pierce said the certification was arbitrary and prevented him from filing his candidacy.

The Illinois Supreme Court recently referred to hear a similar suit by Pierce.

Harry T. Moore, research professor of English will describe an international publication project involving the lifetime letters of novelist D. H. Lawrence in an appearance at the Modern Language Association meetings in Chicago during December.

Moore is one of seven editors preparing to compile the complete letters of Lawrence for publication by the Cambridge University Press. The group, including representatives from England and Canada, met late in September at the University of Texas to plan the work. The eight-volume work will include some 5,000 letters Lawrence wrote in slightly over 40 years.

Three faculty members in the Department of Mathematics will participate in the Midwest Differential Equations Conference Oct. 6 at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

They are Theodore Burton, professor; Carl Langenhop, assistant professor; and Ronald Gunning, associate professor.

Criteria for selecting persons to receive the Moorman scholarships are scholarship standing, leadership qualities, financial need and career interest in agriculture or forestry.

The winter quarter schedule of classes has been published by University Graphics and Publications. Copies may be obtained at the admissions office in Woody Hall or at University Graphics and Publications Office, 600 W. Freeman.

Advance registration period for graduate students is Oct. 15-Dec. 14; for undergraduate students Oct. 16-Dec. 7.

The winter quarter begins Wednesday, Jan. 2. First classes are those scheduled after 5:30 p.m. that day. Only holiday during the quarter is Washington's Birthday, Monday, Feb. 18.

Faculty members and student organization leaders in the College of Business and Administration will have an Open House observance for interested students (and others) Thursday evening, Oct. 11, in the General Classroom Building.

Young blacks stone white as tensions rise in Boston

By Phil Canada
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A middle-aged white man was stoned by a band of 40 to 50 black youths as he fished near a low-income housing project Thursday, police said.

His body was found floating in the ocean a short time later.

It was the second lynch death in the city in three days. A young white woman was fatally burned Tuesday.

Set fertilizer prices could cause shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman and industry spokesmen Thursday criticized the cost of Living Council for its resistance in lifting price controls on fertilizer, repeating contentions that a shortage is resulting that will hamper farm production next year.

Most of the criticism was aired during continued hearings of a House Agriculture subcommittee. It is a predictable fertilizer-shortage that could total more than a million tons.

On the House floor, meanwhile, Rep. Jerry Lottin, D-Mo., a committee member, introduced a bill that would exempt fertilizer from the government's economic controls.

Because the domestic price is frozen at a fraction of the current world price, he said, "We are exporing unprecedented quantities of fertilizer to countries throughout the world, including Ivy China, while thousands of American farmers can't buy fertilizer at any price."

Lottin, a rancher, added, "This irresponsible action from an inflexible cost of Living Council, which knows so little about farming, is going to create unnecessary food shortages next year, which will be translated into higher food prices in the consumer."

Council officials testified on the first day of the hearings, Sept. 30, that they felt lifting of fertilizer-price controls would not take into account all the economic ramifications and therefore was not advisable.

Kenneth D. Nadler, executive vice president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, told the sub-committee: "The problem is that while the avowed government policy is to maximize food and fiber production, some agencies of the federal government, notably the Cost of Living Council and the Federal Power Commission, are following policies that retard increased production."

Several witnesses criticized power commission policies which give fertilizer producers a low priority for short supplies of natural gas, a primary raw material.

Gary N. Cooper, an officer of a grain-processor and fertilizer firm in the 1,000-person community of Win- ders, Ill., testified that farmers in his town are getting lower yields from corn fields that lacked nitrogen because of wet weather.

"Farmers who cannot be assured of a nitrogen supply next spring" from nitrogen-based fertilizers, he said, "will plant soybeans and not corn. This would cause a substantial increase in corn prices, forcing meat prices even higher."

Mysterious Judas planned for Last Supper mural

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Pietro Annigoni, painter of queens, presidents and popes, will have a mystery guest for dinner in the massive “Last Supper” he is painting on the wall of an 18th century Italian church.

“Judas will be recognizable as one of my enemies,” said the maestro with a smile of silken malleability. “I am revising the Renaissance custom of putting your friends in heaven and your foes in hell.”

Will Judas be a prominent world figure? “No, I am not a political person,” replied the Florentine master who attained world prominence in 1953 with his controversial portrait of a windwept Queen Elizabeth II wrapped in the robes of the Order of the Garter.

“Let us just say one of the art boundaries.”

A critic perhaps? “Annigoni’s smile lit up. “Wait and see, wait and see.”

He avoided further identification of the Judas model and fairly danced across the floor of his Florence studio to show a cardboard mockup of the fresco that will cover more than 100 square yards on the curved wall behind the main altar in the little church at Ponte Ombriano in northern Italy.

“The scene,” he said, “will be the classical one when Christ announces that one of the twelve is about to betray him. It is difficult following in the path of the great masters, especially Da Vinci, and, of course, Christ will be a problem.

Annigoni took time out from the church project to do profiles of Princess Anne and Capri Mark Phillips for silver medallions commemorating their wedding next month.

He has done portraits of President Kennedy and Johnson, Pope John XXIII, the Shah, and empress of Iran, Princess Margaret, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duchess of Kent, the maharazare Jajpur and, in 1950, another portrait of Elizabeth II.

“I thought she looked sadder than when I painted her 13 years before,” he recalled. “Something had changed. She seemed no longer surrounded by the great devotion that had attended her as a young queen.”

For the first and more famous portrait, done for the Fishmongers’ Company, the queen sat for 16 sittings of an hour or more. “She was a difficult subject. She had trouble keeping the feeling of the pose.”

President Kennedy was even more difficult. Annigoni said, “As the artist painted him in the Oval Office at the White House—‘and people kept running in and out with affairs of state and what not.”

Ex-Bradley U. student sentenced on drug charge

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A former Bradley University student has been sentenced to a maximum of six years in prison on a charge of conspiring to import hashish from Holland.

John S. Hart, 22, of Massapequa, N.Y., pleaded guilty to the charge in July and applied for probation.

Judge Reta Morgan of U.S. District Court denied probation Wednesday and passed sentence.

Brown receives $39,000 for STC mobile center

By Allen Gendel

Terence Brown, assistant to the dean of Technical Careers, STC, has received a grant of $39,000 from the President's Academic Excellence Fund to develop an educational, technical, and service center.

Brown said the mobile center is a step toward the goals of the STC in accordance with Master Plan Phase II, which is

"We changed from five to 10 years ago," he said. "We're moving toward a resource center for the junior community college.

The mobile center is to meet those needs for bridging facilities to junior colleges around the state. The first group to make use of the unit will be members of the Southern Illinois College and Southern Illinois University-Peoria campuses. These include John A. Logan Junior College, Herrin Lake Juniors College, Southeastern Illinois College and Southern Illinois University-Peoria.

Brown in the mobile center provides high-priority programs which have high cost, long enrollment, thus making it difficult for the junior college to provide these programs.

Brown said this is both an educational and service-center. He noted that the mobile center is one not only instructs students in various industries, but serves local resident as well.

"This solves two problems," Brown said. "It helps create an equitable distribution of services and also provides new populations for student practices.

Brown said that while he received the grant, the idea for the project was the result of a number of factors. He cited the contributions of Dean Arden Pratt of the STC and others in the faculty.

"This is not new in the sense that it never happened," Brown said. "It is new in the sense that it hasn't been done in Southern Illinois.

He emphasized that the original proposal is being done on a trial basis. Dunham will put all the modules on the original until subsequent ones are used with applications, applied technology, graphic communications, and aviation technology. Brown said all equipment will get full utilization. "Running out of time isn't like running out of the road," he said. He explained that modules would be used to increment existing facilities.

Brown said the design of the center is not defined and that several plans are under consideration. "Right now we're brainstorming," Brown said. "We're trying to determine which is cheapest.

Nixon's popularity wanes in the latest Gallup poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) -- Approval of President Nixon's performance in office dipped again in the latest Gallup poll.

Fewer than one-third of 1,500 adult Americans surveyed Sept. 23 to 24 voiced approval when asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as president?"

The approval rate was 32 per cent, which compared to 33 per cent in a poll Sept. 7-10 and 36 per cent in a poll in late August.

Nixon's popularity sank to its lowest point, 31 per cent approval, in early August during the televised Watergate hearings. His highest popularity, 38 per cent approval, occurred last January following the Vietnam peace settlement.

In the latest poll, 59 per cent disapproved of Nixon's performance and 9 per cent had no opinion.

The survey was made during discussion of the possibility of the indictment of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Also, during the time the survey was conducted, the government announced that consumer prices had experienced their biggest increase in 28 years.

Prisoner suit filed against Walker, others

"CAIRO, III. (AP) -- In a suit filed in federal court by 38 inmates accused of participating in an April 30 Menard Prison uprising, Gov. Daniel Walker, state corrections director Allyn Siefoit and prison officials are accused of civil rights violations.

An attorney for the inmates, Michael Seng of the Cairo office of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, said Thursday he filed the suit on behalf of 38 inmates.

It alleges, he said, cruel and unusual punishment and violation of the Constitution's due process clause. Among the specifics he related were confinement in a five-by-eight foot cell without clothing, heat, air conditioning or furnishing. Some prisoners have been denied food for days and others have been hand-cuffed to cell doors for up to 48 hours, Seng said. The suit further charges violations have occurred since the uprising and while the inmates were held in segregation, he said.

All 38 inmates were transferred Sept. 25 by a Randolph County grand jury for what Seng characterized as "continued restraint of guards and homicide. No death has been set for trial in any of the cases."

Drop in wholesale prices called end of inflation surge

By Robert A. Dobkin
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Farm, food and processed food prices plunged in September to pare the biggest one-month fall in wholesale prices in 25 years, the government said Thursday.

Chairman Herbert Stein of the President's Council of Economic Advisers called the drop in wholesale prices, "a welcome sign that the worst of the big '73 surge of inflation is behind us.'"

But AFL-CIO President George Meany, noting that wholesale prices were still 18.4 per cent above a year ago, said there is no evidence this is the start of a trend.

He predicted this "will prove to be only a momentary pause and prices will bounce up again" once the Cost of Living Council approves price increase requests.

The September drop in wholesale food prices is expected to begin showing up in supermarket shelves in the coming weeks.

Stein cautioned, however, that customs officials should expect a sharp drop in the importation of certain food and that it may translate into an equal decline in retail prices as retailers move to recover from last month's momentary pause in price froze.

Nationally, Stein said: "I would be encourgaging if we could view these figures as the start of a trend. But there is no evidence that this is so."

"It's interesting to note," Meany said, "that the September decline does not even begin to compensate for the whopping 8.2 per cent increase in August."

Wholesale prices increased 5.8
per cent in August on an unabated basis and 6.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The Labor Department's Wholesale Price Index showed the over-all decline in wholesale prices last month was 1.8 per cent on an unadjusted basis, the most in any month since a 1.9 per cent drop in February 1948. Seasonally adjusted, the decline was 1.5 per cent, matching the February 1948 low on the same basis.

Last month's drop in wholesale prices followed the biggest one-month rise in 27 years, a leap of 5.8 per cent from July to August, the period during which the admninistration lifted the freeze on food prices. During the freeze in July, prices fell 1.3 per cent.

Consumer finished goods, those products nearest the retail end of the wholesale chain, fell seven-oughs of 1 per cent last month, falling a sharp 3.8 per cent increase in August.

Prices of farm products fell 6.2
per cent last month—the sharpest decline in 25 years—and followed a record 23.1 per cent increase in August.

Prices of farm products fell 6.2
per cent last month—the sharpest decline in 25 years—and followed a record 23.1 per cent increase in August.

The government said the decline was chiefly the result of lower prices for livestock and corn, fresh and dried vegetables, live poultry and eggs. Raw cotton and milk prices increased, however.

Despite the big September drop, food product prices were still 55 per cent higher than a year ago, with grains up 11.4 per cent;
livestock up 4.1 per cent; live poetry 10.7 per cent; milk 29.2 per cent and eggs 56.7 per cent.

Prices of processed foods and foods, the next step in the wholesale food chain, also fell 6 per cent last month, reflecting declines in animal food, meat and processed poultry prices.

When combined with the drop in farm product prices, the over-all decline in the category of farm products, processed foods and feeds also was 6 per cent on an unabated basis and 5.2 per cent adjusted.
Both were the biggest declines since the government began keeping these statistics in 1947.

Exporters accused of fixing grain prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) said Thursday that it took nine months to investigate a case of suspected price manipulation because he had only two investigators available to work on it.

CEA Administrator Alex P.
Caldwell said the initial allegation, by the American Bakers Association, was so broad—that "everybody was named the first day" in July 1972 manipulated the wheat futures prices on the Kansas City Board of Trade—That just the initial work took months.

Then, he told a special House
Select Small Business subcommittee, the CEA broadened the focus, beyond the traders for the six major exporters of wheat to the Russians that summer, to include all grain exporters.

The case—one of the few times the CEA has referred suspected trading-rule violations for criminal prosecution to the Justice Department on May 23. No action on it since then has been announced.

The CEA has, however, ad-nominately charged two major grain exporters with wilfully falsifying position reports during the period immediately before and after the July 31, 1972, allegation.

As part of the investigation of the bakers' complaint, Caldwell told

-He leaves her;
kidnap declared;
cops don't buy it

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—
Earnest R. Contillo of Central City, Pa., was charged Thursday with disorderly conduct after authors said he made up a story that his female companion had been kidnaped. He later admitted in court.

Cabinets—deputies from McLean County said Contillo, 30, told them he told a girl friend who was nearby while the couple hitch-hiked on Interstate 8 near Bloomington.

Officials said he later told them the girl had left him in Iowa and he wanted authorities to help find her.

Bond was set at $250.

Chairman Neal Smith, D-Iowa,
the USDA Export Marketing Service (EMS) collected a list of wheat subsidies—which eventually totaled $230 million out of the Russian sales before the department cut them off.

The marketing service changed it's procedures after the initial complaint, Caldwell said.

The commission, winding up hearings on the U.S. grain marketing system that began in late July, had recalled Caldwell to the license plate for the second day mainly to discuss the Kansas City allegation.

The CEA investigators filed a report on April 30 this year.

Wesley Community House offers contemporary religious atmosphere

By Fred Lynch

"We are a laboratory church," Gerry Gulley, director of the Wesley Community House, said. "There's freedom to experiment here."

The Wesley Community House, across from McDonald's on Illinois Avenue, has an informal-and contemporary religious atmosphere, Gulley explained.

"We provide alternatives and the possibility of exploring the Christian faith," Gulley said. "We try to relate the faith to a student's university life in this modern age."

There is no formal membership at the Wesley House even though it is affiliated with the Methodist Church. Student involvement in inter-denominational, Gulley added.

"In addition to the regular Sunday morning "Celebration," the Wesley House organizes small study groups for interaction on a variety of topics. These groups are usually theologically oriented," Gulley said.

"But they take on the character of the students.

Students may work in a Task Force. The Worship Task Force presents a contemporary worship service one Sunday each month. Every Sunday students provide music with guitars, pianos and drums, Gulley said.

The Involvement Task Force deals with community affairs. Activities are planned by the Social Task Force.

The Wesley House has participated with other Christian organizations in co-sponsoring ecumenical events, Gulley said.

The Puka Day Care Center is held at Wesley with "Preschool age children attending."

Wesley will open the Earl-N College House tonight and tomorrow night, beginning at 9 p.m.

"Students can express themselves at Earl-N through music, film and drama," Gulley said. "The "non-huddle policy" applies at Earl-N, he added.

Local talent may perform at Earl-N by contacting Lynn McDoyle at the Wesley House, 467-8165. Entertainment at Earl-N tonight will be provided by Steve Hargeman, folk singer, and Jeremy Rothbaum, jazz pianist. A band is scheduled for Saturday night."

Summing up the activities and attitudes of Wesley House, Gulley said. "We want to be open to people and accept them for what they are."

Amateur Radio Club

offers varied activities

The SIU Amateur Radio Club, which will hold its first meeting 8 p.m. Saturday on the third floor of the Student Center, offers a variety of activities for both inexperienced and veteran radio operators.

At the meeting, which is open to all interested students, staff and faculty, more club members will be recruited and the club's equipment will be introduced. George Thompson, club vice president, explained.

There are no membership requirements. However, anyone desiring to operate the club's stations, WAPUX and WBABB, must have a novice class amateur radio license.

The bibliophilic's open to club members daily from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on demand and after hours by permission of an officer.

Thompson said the club offers code and theory classes to club members who do not already have a radio license.

The radio club communicates with SIU Extension Services in all parts of the world, especially South America, as well as to the University. It is hoping for a new antenna, which will enable it to reach parts of the world such as Europe, Asia and Africa.

Thompson said the club also runs a "phone-patch" for foreign, out-of-state, and Chicago students. An amateur radio operator in the student's home city is contacted, and is often the case with international calls, a date is scheduled by mail for contact. The radio operator then transmits the call for the student's home. The two conversing parties then say "over and out" after each comment, so the radio operator will know when to switch over to the other party.

The phone patch service is available for faculty and students in appointment by contacting Thompson at 457-7897 or Jan Sesner, the club's faculty sponsor, at 536-3390.

The facilities are located in the Technology Building.

"In addition to experimenting with radio equipment, the club also communicates with other universities and clubs," Thompson said.

Human Sexuality Service: new name for old operation

By Ken Townsend
DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITER

The name is shorter and the address different, but help, information and someone whose care can still be found at the Human Sexuality Services (HSS) office on campus.

The year-old operation, formerly called Human Sexuality Information Referral Service (HSIRS), offers free of charge to all students, staff, faculty and visitors medical and educational information relating to human sexuality and its varied problems.

According to Ms. Dahl, manager, consultant and program director, HSS provides a counseling service, a confidential referral service and an informational service for questions on marriage, contraception, birth control, family planning, pregnancy, infertility, venereal disease, adoption services and child care.

HSS moved to its new location to expand the services offered to students. Ms. Dahl explained. The service has relocated adjacent to the Minor Care Clinic, 200 E. Stokoe.

Both the Minor Care Clinic and HSS are housed in a converted apartment building located behind the Washington Square parking lot one block east of Washington Avenue.

The move was necessary, Ms. Dahl said, to provide more space for private counseling, a conference room for group programming, and facilities for a small walk-in library service.

HSS was previously housed at Trueblood Hall in the East Campus housing area and in a satellite office at Redskins Hall. The Trueblood Hall satellite office will no longer be maintained. Ms. Dahl said, after the newly purchased building facilities made it unnecessary, Ms. Dahl said.

Three graduate assistants have been added to the staff, Ms. Dahl said. They are Joanne Copeland, Virginia Robertson and Sandy Landis. Another staff member, Ed Hall, graduate student in psychology, will become active in the spring quarter, counseling problem pregnancies after his current practice.

Music 200 exam set for Saturday at Almgtead Hall

Proficiency exam for Fundamentals of Music 200 will be given at 10 a.m. Saturday, in room 208 of Almgtead Hall.

The exam will include a written portion based on music terminology and musical fundamentals of notation, in cluding scale and chord construction and a practical exam on keyboarding and sight reading.

The proficiency exam for this course will be the final exam and will be administered again on January 5. Students intending to take the exam during winter quarter should notify Ms. Dahl by the end of this quarter.

For additional information contact Mrs. J. Jenkins in the Admissions Office or Mr. Ella Dauggard, School of Music. Old Baptist Foundation 105.

Lackey pictures revealed at trial

DECRAUT III. (AP) — The jury in the capital murder trial of agent Peter Lackey today in closing arguments in the Barnett Dun Foner murder trial, will consider the testimony of two special prosecutors, displayed pictures to the jury of small calibre slugs from a woman's face of Lackey before his slaying and after, as he lay with his throat slashed.

The government also showed a picture of the blood-splattered interior of the agent's car, apparently trying to refute the suggestion previously made that Lackey was killed at an unknown site and his body placed in the car, said the prosecution.

The prosecution said that it had been admitted during the trial in which 77 witnesses were called to the stand in the three weeks. The evidence packed in boxes was turned over to Lackey last summer.

"The most important thing in this case is that the defendant confessed to this murder," said Miss Carr, referring to Lackey who admitted recounting the slaying to a girl friend and a story he later said was not true.

"There is no one thing conclusive to show the defendant killed Pete Lackey," said Miss Carr, "but when you review all the items together I think you will decide that the defendant committed the murder.""The defense," she added, "has tried to divert your attention from your own eyes. The defendant confessed to the defendant." The defense, she said, has tried to divert your attention from your own eyes.

The council also advised that a child's costume be light colored, flame retardant and visible, and recommended the use of reflective tape on trick-or-treat bags.

The council recommended also that parents restrict their children's trick-or-treating to daylight or early dusk hours and require them to stay close to home.

Lackey pictures revealed at trial

The films will be shown continuously and several HSS staff members will be available to handle students' questions. Ms. Dahl said.

An educational display featuring selection choices for small reference library will be available for students to examine, she added.

Beginning 7 p.m. until 10 p.m., the films "Anti-Abortion," "A Matter of Choice," "It's My Turn," "All About Legal Abortion," and "A Normal Birth" will be shown. At 10 p.m. until closing, the film cycle will be repeated, with the exception of "A Normal Birth."

Students wishing to set up a counseling appointment with Ms. Dahl or one of the graduate assistants must do so in advance by calling 438-5091. HSS is open from 8 a.m. to Noon, and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Educational literature from the informational library is available on a walk-in basis, Ms. Dahl said.

HSS offers free counseling, information, a confidential referral service and an informational service for questions on marriage, contraception, birth control, family planning, pregnancy, infertility, venereal disease, adoption services and child care.

The move was made by Ms. Dahl, said, to provide more space for private counseling, a conference room for group programming, and facilities for a small walk-in library service.

Theodorakis show slated for Saturday

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Greek composer Mikis Theodorakis, on his first tour of the United States, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

Theodorakis composed Academy Award-winning film scores for "Zorba the Greek" and "Z," as well as symphonies, ballads and song, all with Greek vibrance and sensuosity.

His show presents a "sweeping survey" of his work, according to the New York Times, and is "a brazen musical experience."

"The elements behind Theodorakis' music are simple enough: stirring tunes, infectious dance rhythms, and the ever-present exotic color of the bouzouki, mandolin-like Greek instruments that comprise Monday's instrumental septet," the Times said referring to his American debut Monday night in New York City.

Patins is a very much a part of Theodorakis' music, for left wing Democratic political affiliations has given him a representative position in the Greek parliament as well as in prison.

When a military junta seized Greece in 1967, he was imprisoned for three years because of his politics. Eventually he made his exiled home in Paris, while his music and poetry are banned in Greece. Theodorakis believes that music is one way the spirit of Greece can be kept alive.

"Our political objective is the rebirth of our nation. But this award [winning film components], a social one and a cultural one. The reconstruction of our culture helps us in our struggle to recapture our liberty," Theodorakis said.

According to the New York Times, "of his work, "shares Beethoven's libertarian idealism and Paderewski's patriotic political involvement. What came over in his music, and in the passionate performances of his three singers — Maria Farantouri, Alwiti Manou and Pegas Pandis — was a romanticism that is instantly commingled with the audience."

Theodorakis' works... reach out beyond formalism and individualism to suggest something irresistibly communal."

Says Theodorakis, "They banned me from the radio. But that made things easier for me, because I had to find other means of communication, like making artful go into the streets, which is where they will reach the people. Public performances are an extension of this process, and indeed take on an offensive role."

Lt. Calley's lawyer makes final appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. William L. Calley Jr. believed he was doing the right thing at My Lai and so was guilty of nothing more than an honest mistake, his lawyers said in court Thursday.

"Lt. Calley harbored no malice," said Army Lawyer Capt. L. Houston Gordon. "He did not have the mind of a murderer.

Gordon asked the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, the final arbiter of American military courts, to reverse Calley's conviction for murder and his 20 year sentence at hard labor. No decision from the three presidentially-appointed civil court is expected for several weeks.

Then the secretary of the Army and President Nixon will receive the decision. Nixon has said he will look at it personally.

There is some chance that civilian federal courts might be asked to review the Calley case, but Army lawyers in the Pentagon said Thursday's hearing is likely to be the last formal appeal on behalf of the 28-year-old lieutenant.

Calley was convicted March 29, 1971, of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians and assault with intent to murder a Vietnamese child.

Walkout halts Vietnam talks

PARIS (AP)—The political talks between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong were indefinitely suspended Thursday after Viet Cong State Minister Nguyen Van Hieu walked out of the 28th session without waiting for the other side to speak.

Hieu said his walkout marked a present against what he termed Saigon's "continuous and flagrant violation" of the cease-fire signed in Paris more than eight months ago.

South Vietnamese Deputy Premier Nguyen Lui Viem said the walkout displayed "a disconcerting and insolent attitude unacceptable among well-educated people and unacceptable and intolerable among negotiators seeking a peaceful solution."

Hieu stressed that he was only walking out of the 28th session and demanded that the stalled conference should continue Oct. 11 as though nothing had happened.

Vori angrily rejected the 28th date set by Hieu and said the talks would resume only when the two sides had reached agreement on a date. Conference sources said nonetheless they expected the two delegations to resume their talks before the end of the month, particularly the view of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's forthcoming visit to Peking.

The talks were arranged between Kissing and Hanoi's Le Dac Tho during their talks here last winter and were explicitly required under the Jan. 28 cease-fire. The agreement called on the rival South Vietnamese regimes to "hold consultations in a spirit of national reconciliation and concord" to agree on South Vietnam's political future.

The talks soon settled into a weekly routine of mutual accusation and abuse, and thus far have made no progress whatever toward agreement on the proposed national reconciliation council which is to organize South Vietnamese elections.

October 28 date set for Alpha Phi pageant

By Carl Flowers

Student Writer

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity will hold its 2nd annual Miss Black Homecoming Pageant at 3 p.m. Sunday, October 28, 1973 at the Student Center, Ballroom D.

Announcement of the pageant was made by Ronald Brown, chapter president, and Lloyd Edgerton, a graduate member of the fraternity.

"The purpose of the pageant," Edgerton said, "is to express the virtues of black womanhood at SIU. The reason we chose to honor the black woman is because she has been too long ignored by our society."

Last year's pageant, won by Miss Ronald Winstead, was well accepted by the student body, according to Brown, who said "this year's pageant should be even better."

Miss Winstead was selected from 15 applicants last year by members of the black faculty who serve as judges for the pageant. Brown said the judges base their selection on poise, self-expression, and presentation of talent.

"The pageant, which will be highlighted by an appearance by Miss Black Illinois, is not to be looked upon as a beauty contest," Edgerton said, "but rather as a cultural event."

The pageant is open to the public and no admission is charged.

Nervous movements treated at center

The Center for Human Development has developed an effective program for the treatment of nervous habits, according to Greg Nunn, director of the program.

The program was started 18 months ago by Nunn, a research scientist for the Department of Mental Health, who is working on his Ph.D. in Educational Psychology.

The program covers such habits as neck and shoulder jerking, facial grimacing, cigarette smoking, fingernail biting, and other nervous habits.

"The approach we take is problem solving, for breaking these habits," Nunn said. "The procedure is to generally make the person aware of the habit, the situation where the habit occurs, and to differentiate the habit movements from normal movements.

"We set up an intensified program that will allow us, and the individual to solve the problem," Nunn said. Nunn teaches the individual to control the habit with an activity which is incompatible with the habit. "This can be performed anytime or place with no embarrassment to the individual!" Nunn said.

The initial two hour session is used to get background information on individual and for counseling. The rest of the treatment is considered follow-up.

Nunn calls the individual the first six or three days after the first meeting, to see how the treatment is progressing. After that the person reports to Nunn by phone for the next six to 10 weeks on his progress.

"It is the most effective program in the world," said Nunn. But it does depend on the individual's attitude and willingness to follow the directions that have been given to them.

Nunn said that he has worked with about 35 SIU students on various habits and has been "very successful" with them.

Nunn is now concentrating on more severe habits such as stuttering, shoulder and neck jerking. These programs have been "extremely successful" Nunn added.

Nunn would like to work with as many people as possible on these more severe habits.

Anyone wishing to get in touch with Nunn about these kinds of nervous habits should call the Center for Human Development, 340 Rivoli, and ask about the nervous habits program.

Rewards can be found in just being a volunteer

By Kitty Cashin
Staff Writer

Volunteers who go to Anna State Hospital by way of Newman Center fine their reward in just being a friend to someone. They enable patients to come into contact with the outside world.

Volunteers lead outdoor activities, volleyball, kickball, or baseball games. When activities are confined indoors patients play checkers or cards with the volunteers.

Anywhere from 15 to 30 people can attend the meetings each week. One of the major problems with the program is that only private transportation is available. Although the volunteer program is funded through the Newman Center, more money is needed.

At press time, the hospital administration is discussing changes to be made in the program, but volunteers will continue in their efforts.

Wives club sponsors wide range of events

A series of guest speakers, bake sales, bridge parties and gourmet cooking instruction will highlight the upcoming activities of the SIU Graduate Wives Club.

Ms. Jackie Harrison, club president, outlined the year's events and activities before about 30 women gathered at an informal meeting at the Evergreen Terrace Community Room Tuesday night.

DeMayne Bakker, psychology faculty member and marriage counselor, will lead off the speaker series, discussing some common marriage problems. Upcoming topics include drug crisis, waste recycling, legal aspects, and self-defense for women. Several bake sales are also scheduled, the first of which will be held Oct. 17 at the J.C. Penney's Department Store.

East Campus to sponsor sexuality film marathon

East Campus Educational and Cultural Programming is sponsoring a film marathon on human sexuality Monday from 7 p.m. until midnight in Trueblood Cafeteria.

Julia Muller, student life programming coordinator, said the presentation, called "Lost in the Sea of Sex," will involve films on basic biology, birth control and venereal disease.

A series of small group discussions on social diseases will take place in different dormitories each Monday at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome at the discussions at Scheller Hall on Oct. 13, Triton on Oct. 22, Ma Smith on Oct. 29 and Nevil Hall Nov. 5.

On Nov. 2: "Drugs—Another World" will be presented as part of the program's theme, "As the World Turns."

Early fall rains threaten levees

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Early fall rains threaten Mississippi River levees weakened by spring floods. An Army Corps of Engineers spokesman said the St. Genevieve, Mo., area is the biggest potential trouble spot and said workers are shoring up dikes in Illinois' Alexander County and Kaskaskia Island.

In one week the river stage at Chester near Kaskaskia Island in Randolph County, has risen more than 14 feet and is still going up. A 27-foot crest was predicted at Chester even before heavy downpours Tuesday night in the watershed to the north.

A river forecast from the National Weather Service predicted a 21-foot crest later this week at Cape Girardeau, Mo., areas from Dogood to West Alexander County. Leveses at Dogood, Toed Bend and the Galile area of the county sustained heavy flood damage in the spring.

Kaskaskia Island, where the corps said levee work in moving quickly, was flooded in the spring and the islanders, most of them farmers, had to evacuate. Repairs still remain to be made from earlier high water.

Monday is holiday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)— Monday is Labor Day, and public schools will be closed. Gov. Daniel Walker's office announced Thursday.

The holiday, to commemorate Columbus Day, was shifted from the customary Oct. 12 to the nearest Monday to give a long weekend to workers.

Relievers could decide NL playoffs; Reds have depth

CINCINNATI (AP)—If the National League playoffs between Cincinnati and the New York Mets boil down to a battle of bullpens, the Reds, relievers "are the best—by far," says their pitching coach, Larry Shepard.

The Mets might have an edge overall with Tom Seaver, but our bullpens are the best in the league," said Shepard Thursday as the Reds worked out at Riverfront Stadium.

"Tug McGraw is a fine reliever, but that's it for the Mets. We're three-deep. Depth-wise we've got one of the best pitching staffs in baseball," added Shepard.

Cincinnati's Big Three of Pedro Borbon, Tom Hall and Clay Carroll has combined a streak of 15 victories in their last 16 decisions.

Palmer to duel Blue in Oriole-A's opener

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jim Palmer has pitched the pennant clinching victory to propel Baltimore into World Series competition four times, but the Orioles wouldn't mind if the honor escapes him this year.

There's no arrogance, understand. Just an attempt to eliminate nail-bitting time next week.

Palmer, a 22-game winner, will start the opener of the key series against the Oakland Athletics on Saturday. Unless the best-five series goes the limit, however, he isn't scheduled to make another appearance. "We don't want Palmer to do it this time," outfielder Paul Blair said. "That would mean we'd be scrambling."

Dave McNally, Baltimore's starter in game No. 2, took a more practical approach. "I don't care if Palmer comes out of the bullpen to get the clincher," he said. "As long as we win."

In addition to hurling the clincher in 1966, before the league was split, Palmer gained the deciding decision as the Orioles swept the playoffs in 1970-71. "I'm more nervous this time," Palmer said. "It's not the third game with a 3-4 lead. You know that if you don't win, another guy can do it the next day."

Palmer said he hoped Mike Cuellar, Baltimore's third-game starter, can be credited with the 1972 clincher. "That would mean me, or one of my relievers, won the first game."

'New' ABA to open seventh season Wed.

Armied with the addition of Witt Chamberlain, the most prolific scorer in National Basketball Association history, first year commissioner in ambitious M.A. Stover and buoyed by its best showing in signing draft choices, the American Basketball Association is ready to start its seventh season Wednesday.

Indiana, winner of the league title each of the past two seasons, will entertain the rejuvenated New York Nets, sparked by defending scoring champion Julius Erving and stellar rookie Larry Kenon, in one of the three league openers Wednesday night.

In the other games, Memphis will be at Utah and San Diego at San Antonio. The other four teams will play their season openers by Friday night.

The massive 7-foot-11, 275-pound Chamberlain, who once scored 100 points in an NBA game and averaged 30 points per game for a full season, is the most renowned addition over by the youthful ABA.

McAlley probable starter for SIU; O’Boyle’s thumb rates him doubtful

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Fred McAlley will probably be the starting quarterback for the Salukis on Saturday against Dayton, but the final decision may not be made until Saturday. Coach Dick Towers said that the condition of Dennis O’Boyle’s thumb is a doubtful one.

10 intramural flag football contests scheduled today

The following intramural flag football games have been scheduled for today at 4:15 p.m. - "Up Your Alley vs. The Deviates, field 1; Traveler Refugees vs. Rumpin’ Redeye, field 2; Wonder Boys vs. Belgium Blitz, field 2; Scott n’ Deck vs. Mothers, field 4; and Electronic Zipper vs. The V.A.’s, field 2.

 ון לשון הוא מרכז שניון במכוניות שנמצאים סמוך ל-site. ה-,O’vey’s thumb-

Scott n’ Deck vs. Mothers, field 4; and Electronic Zipper vs. The V.A.’s, field 2.

The Flyers injury list includes backup quarterback Jim McVay, who is out with a shoulder separation, and starting defensive tackle Craig Myers. Myers has a fractured right thumb.

Going on the road trip with the Salukis will be seven players who at one time or another have played for SIU as the quarterback.

Jim Sullivan, a defensive back and punt return specialist; Bill Richmond, a defensive back; Mike Abegg, working out as a backup tight end; Larry Perkins, a starter at tailback; Leonard Hopkins, the third string quarterback; Dennis O’Boyle, starter at quarterback thus far this year; and Fred McAlley, who figures to get the nod Saturday, have all played the quarterback position for the Salukis.

“Three teams have made us play three games and we’ve done poorly at it,” Towers said. “We want to establish our running game and cut down on mistakes. We have to improve on our kicking game if we expect to win.”

In addition to occasional lapses in kick coverage, the Salukis have averaged only .29 yards per punt and have lost 68 yards on errant or fumbled center snaps.

Question mark?

Cubs stay with Lockman; Banks to coach infield

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Cubs replaced Whitey Lockman as manager for 1974 Thursday, a day after owner Phil Wrigley expressed "dissatisfaction" with the club’s 1973 performance and need for a rebuilding.

In his first full season, Lockman’s Cubs spurned to an eight-game June lead but then folded to finish eighth in the games behind the champion New York Mets in the National League East race.

At a news conference, the 47-year-old, Lockman unveiled a drastically revamped four-man coaching staff and said he would concentrate on "more youth and speed" for the 1974 Cubs.

Lockman, who replaced displaced Leo Durocher in the middle of the 1972 season, was fenced with questions on whether the aging Cubs had been held together too long and who were the expendables on the trade mart.

"Mr. Wrigley and the entire organization will have a day-long meeting today to evaluate what talent, is available in our own system and on other clubs for possible trades."

Earlier this week, disgruntled star pitcher Ferguson Jenkins again demanded to be traded. Jenkins, who slumped to a 14-16 season after straight 25-win seasons, had complained about the roughness of Wrigley Field. The $125,000-a-year star also gave the Cubs his run pitch last season.

Lockman was just about the only Cub Wrigley held blameless for the collapse of the club which he lambasted Wednesday.

"Frankly, disguised is the only word to describe how I felt about the Cubs this year," said Wrigley. "If people knew some of the salaries we’re paying, they’d be disgusted, too.

Lockman, who said Wrigley left the decision to return up to him, declined comment on Wrigley’s hint of a major housecleaning. "I don’t like to comment on quotes attributed to other people."
