Carbondale’s East Side Rangers Represented by Ex-SIU Student

By Inez Rencher

Carbondale’s East Side Rangers, an alleged militant group from Carbondale’s predominately Negro northeast section of town is composed of 22 male students, most of whom are high school students, dropouts, college work, and job holders and job seekers.

“IT’s rather the word ‘sensible’ than ‘militant,’” clarified Julius Henry, 22, a former SIU student and member of the East Side Rangers. “We don’t just go out and do things.”

Henry, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., has lived in the northeast section of Carbondale for three years and is a member of the Rangers five months ago. At that time there were threats of riots by Negro residents in the city, and Mayor David Keene placed the group under the sponsorship of the city administration.

“I wanted to get down with the fellows, so I just joined,” he said. “I found that the city officials were trying to make boy scouts out of them and, I didn’t want them to lose their ‘milli­tancy,’” Henry explained.

Under the city’s sponsorship the group was provided a basketball court at Attacks Gym and street advisers were appointed to the group, and the members also had a presence at city hall for regular meetings each Wednesday night. Some of the Rangers are asked in the city’s cleanup campaign concentrated on the northeast section of town.

“They (the Rangers) are willing and ready for other things of this type,” Henry said in recognition of these efforts by the city.

However, he reported that much of the group’s disappointment, the city “flippily” refused to provide the Rangers with a requested right arm. Henry said sponsors had asked for suggestions, and this was the first and foremost request on the Rangers’ list.

“City officials want to appease the group so that we won’t cause any trouble,” Henry contended.

Aware that relations of the northeast community with the rest of the city is the matter in question, he declared that they would not make a move against the city, He held that talking and no action will not work, although he commended the direct rapport that is being provided between the Rangers and the city officials.

“We are ready to oppose any force that tries to take advantage of the people in the northeast community,” he said, elaborating in his explanation of the Rangers as an organization to “benefit the black community in the form of protection and civic programs.”

He said the Rangers believe that there is still much that must be done to better the economic position in particular of the Negroes.

Urban Complex Idea Presented

By Nancy Baker

A plan for developing four Southern Illinois counties in Greater Egypt into an urban complex was introduced Wednesday by Arthur Prell, director of the SIU Division of Business Research Bureau, at a meeting of the Illinois Commission for Economic Development.

At a meeting in the University Center, Prell recommended that Jackson, Williamson, Franklin and Perry counties unite and be called Metro-Lakeland Illinois.

The four counties named have shown significant changes in economic development and rank near the top in terms of the percent of increase in employment and development compared with areas of comparable size.

J-Board Officials Urged to Uphold Student Power

By Charles Springer

The Campus Senate last night elected three new members to the Judicial Board but not before a heated discussion on the idea of “student power” occurred.

Each of the appointees--Jon Siedlecki, Bill Potter and Bill Gazz--were questioned by the senators as to where they would give their support in an issue involving the Campus Senate and University administration.

"It is becoming more evident that there is going to be a confrontation between the students and the administration," Senator Gary Kirschke said, "and we make sure that the members appointed to us are not representing the Student Government.”

Potter and Gazz both stated that their decisions would be based upon the good will and property of the question involved. Siedlecki pledged to look at both sides of the question with an unbiased attitude.

“I don’t claim to have a right on the Judiciary Board who’s going to recognize an administrative rule,” Kirschke added. “And I will vote against any student who will serve on the board who will vote against the Student Government.”

“I don’t care about the administration’s rules. They have no legal right to make the rules. I want rules enforced. I want the students’ opinions enforced and I don’t want President Morris’ opinions enforced or Dean Moulton’s or President MacVic- ar’s. Only our rules...and I will vote against anyone who doesn’t follow senate rules in cases of conflict.”

Several dozen presidents of large American corporations are showing that businessmen can have a much broader and more constructive approach than Congress to the problem of poverty.

The public expected a good deal of grumbling from these business executives about rising tax costs and the unwillingness of employers to reward recipients to work their way off the welfare rolls. Instead, the executives emphasized raising living standards rather than lowering costs and came up with a few solid proposals.

They proposed national standards for current welfare programs; human dignity for the poor; equal access to birth control assistance; and the elimination of the "charity" approach with income subsidies that apply to all citizens—families for children, guaranteed annual income and negative income tax.

The proposals introduced at Rockefeller's conference provide a sharp contrast to the punitive short-run approach that currently marks the mood of Congress.

While the Senate struggles to modify a bill passed by the House to crack down on welfare recipients, the Rockefeller conference expresses interest in long-range proposals to help break the cycle of poverty and dependence.

The better educated continue to rise. The better educated over look approximately three (5,700,000) of the total U.S. population in their search—the mentally retarded.

The tragedy of this situation is that if properly trained, many of these people can handle the jobs as well or better than "normal" people.

This problem will become acute in future years as the educational level of Americans continues to rise. The better educated will not be content to perform menial tasks.

Perhaps the words "mentally retarded" make the employers hesitant to hire these people. The fact is the mentally retarded are not mentally ill. They are limited in intelligence and have a limited ability to learn.

The federal government has proved that they can handle less demanding jobs once they have been trained to do jobs. In the last three years, the federal government has hired and trained more than 3,000 mentally retarded persons to work in 37 various agencies.

The government has taken the initial step for the rehabilitation of the mentally retarded. Its success should be a guiding beam for American employers to follow. This untapped working force is there for the taking. Hopefully they will do so.

Letters to the Editor:

Society's Prescription

To the Editor:

We are writing to Robert M. Hutchins (Daily Egyptian, Nov. 30) that the education system tends to separate "bright" pupils from "dull" ones, thus helping to perpetuate "racial discrimination and poverty." He also informs us that "we are so hung up on the Protestant Ethic" that we do not give 85 million poor Americans their due share of welfare. His solution to these problems is the initiation of a guaranteed annual income...as a matter of right.

We are all fortunate that the majority of our society is motivated by the Protestant Ethic; most of us do place a value on gainful employment and "success." It is also fortunate for the poor of our society that those who manifest the Protestant Ethic are able to assist those who do not.

The fact is that the right to work in our society goes uncontested. But the "broad and circumscribed" arrangement of a guaranteed annual income will not serve to cultivate the desire for or the opportunity for employment and education. It will not put the dull school children in the same category as the bright ones.

Rather, our goal should be to enable everyone to provide his own annual income, to live comfortably without the need for handouts. If a man is able to work but does not want to, his behavior should not be subsidized. If a man wants to work but cannot due to a lack of education, the government should train him. If a man is denied employment because of racial prejudice against him, the bigoted employer should be punished. If a man is not able to work, a properly administered welfare program should provide for him.

A "healthy" society is not created and maintained by a dole; ancient Rome could attest to that. Rather, it is maintained by men and women who have acquired freedom and dignity through contributing their share to society.

I had the privilege of reading your "white power" editorial in action last month as I did, I feel certain they would just love to be charged with our latheristic administration to take effective measures against the racist elements. The violence which began in Washington spread to Cordova.

Conflict of Interest on University Campuses

By Roger Raportop

University of Michigan

Reprinted from Wall Street Journal

LANSING, Mich. - Amidst all the press about recent resignations, Governor George Romney took time out to make an unusual number of appointments to his own governing boards last month. He named three new members to boards. And the governor is still hunting for replacements to fill three remaining board seats.

The proliferation of openings for the normally sought after post of college official is a result of an unprecedented change in state conflict-of-interest law. Although the switch has gone largely unnoticed it is probably the most significant collegiate housecleaning in the country this fall. For the college officials here it may portend similar difficulties for public university officials across the state.

So far this fall, clarification of a new state conflict-of-interest law has prompted six state university trustees to resign because they serve on boards of banks that do business with the schools they were governing. Eight other college officials have been chosen to resign board positions with their banks.

Another Michigan General Frank Kellett has just begun investigating the private business dealings of university officials and financial vice president of the University of Michigan, Lansing.

The New Tough Rule

Essentially, the new view being rigidly adhered to here is that a college official has a direct conflict of interest if he is forced by the self help to microfilm magazines, and obtained special discounts for work done by the campus photoduplica-tion service. All this was too much for Attorney General Kelley. While noting that Mr. Power had "made substantial contributions to the welfare of the university" he declared the microlending executive on March 11, 1966, in "substantial conflict of interest." Mr. Power, who was then president of the Michigan Council of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions, and the International Micrographic Congress) resigned his University of Michigan post immediately.

Following Mr. Power's resignation, Mr. Kelley urged the state legislature to pass new legislation that would clarify conflict of interest provisions in the state's 1963 constitution. Processed by Gov. Romney, the legislation passed the new law in the summer of 1966. This September Mr. Kelley interpreted the law to mean that officers and directors of banks and companies that do business with state colleges cannot sit on the school boards.

Six trustees at Eastern Michigan University and Western Michigan University who were on boards of banks that did business with the school resigned their board posts. Eight other officials and trustees including the presidents of Eastern Michigan, Central Michigan, University of Michigan and Michigan State University also resigned.

But for MSU President John N. Hannah and Vice President for Business and Financial Treasurer Philip Jesse May the decision to resign from bank boards (Mr. Hannah quit two bank boards and Mr. May one) did not and the difficulties.

On Nov. 8 the Michigan Daily broke a story on the financial accounts at the Jesse Building. The article, along with later stories in the Detroit Free Press and the MSU student paper (The State News), have prompted aptorney General Kelley to investigate Mr. Hannah's and Mr. May's business activities. Mr. Kelley says he will rule on whether or not the MSU officials are violating the conflict of interest law.

Mr. May's activities in particular suggest some clear answers to those who might question the necessity of Michigan's style conflict-of-interest legislation. In 1955 Mr. May served a $165,000 loan from the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., which writes group life insurance for MSU faculty and staff) through the Ann Arbor Trust Co., served as fiscal agent for $100 million in construction loans at MSU to build a two-story building in Lansing. The sole occupant of the building until June of this year was International Buisness Machines Corp. MSU does a substantial amount of business with IBM. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1967, MSU leased $449,437 of computer time and services from IBM.

In June IBM moved into the first two floors of the new four-story $950,000 "Philip Jesse Building," adjacent to the campus. The building was erected by the Philip Jesse Co., whose officers and directors include Mr. May and his wife and brothers (Mr. May di-versed himself of his $50,000 stock interest in the Philip Jesse Co. last year on the advice of MSU attorney Leland Carr Jr. Mr. Carr has served as Mr. May's attorney in some private transactions.

A $1 million mortgage loan for the Jesse Building was secured through Michigan National Bank. Michigan National Bank is IBM's chief fiscal depository, and Mr. May served on its board until resigning in September because of Mr. Kelly's conflict-of-interest decision.

Mr. May's older building, the Jesse Building this summer, Mr. Hannah says he will rule on whether or not the MSU officials are violating the conflict of interest law.

Mr. Mays offered to resign. But President Kelley refused to resign if the trustees attempted to force him out.

Four trustees then moved to censure Mr. May, but the board tabled the move until May 1, 1968, with a mild resolution alerting trustees to possible criticism at their out-

der. President Kelley has decided to shift control of computer operations to the state's comptroller. Mr. May will head the MSU computer lab.

Mr. May also had financial relationships with MSU officials. He is on the board of the Walter Neller Regional Co. in Lansing, which bought 180 acres of land adjacent to the Jesse Building. The president, Hannah, who had originally acquired the property for trees and tax purposes.

Mr. Hannah says that he had to sell the land when reassessment forced him to raise the prices. Mr. Mays says that the Nellel's company used of a normal "lack of organization." About once a year the Nellers call me up and we eat dinner together. Informally, I have never discussed Mr. Hannah's property transactions.

Last month the Wall Street News published a story about Mr. Hannah's activities in the Jesse Building. It stated that in 1950 to 1958, $945,000 MSU construction contracts were given to the former Vandenburg Construction Co. The company's president was Vincent I. Vandenburg, Mr. Hannah's brother-in-law. Mr. Vandenburg is currently construction superintendent for MSU.

At the November trustees meeting Mr. Hannah said, "It's true that Vandenburg Construction Co. worked for the state, but I don't know he was employed by the university," Earlier, Mr. Hannah had said so far as I know (Vandenburg) never did a job for this institution. I don't approve of the figure...I smell what's coming. This is an attempt at discrediting me."

Mr. Kelley's verdict is not in, but one fact seems clear to the MSU events. Michigan university officials are more and more fully accountable for all their outside business dealings. Stiff new legislation makes the way for those who use their public position to enhance their private fortunes. University officials elsewhere who may well be held the lesson.

Mr. Rapportop is editor of the Michigan Daily, the campus newspaper at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

WSIU-TV Will Show
Color Documentary Films

A new series of hour-long color documentary films on southern Illinois will make its debut sometime early in January on SIU's station WSIU-TV, Channel 8.

A number of episodes in the series have been in production since July. The first of these to be shown is titled "Johnny Appleseed Was Here." It will cover in depth the apple growing industry in the state and its relationship to the legendary 19th century character.

John Chapman, who for over a century made it his mission in life to establish apple orchards in an area extending from Pennsylvania west to the Mississppi River.

The series is written and produced by Harlan H. Men denhall, who came to SIU in July from station KWTV in Okla homa City. A series of 34 documentary films which be produced there won not only state and regional acclaim but also four national awards for excellence.

A 30-year veteran in the newspaper, radio and televisi on fields, Mendenhall began his career after graduation from the University of Okla homa in 1937 as a combina tion newspaper photographe writer. Another of his early assignments was as a script writer for the old CBS radio network series, "Gang Bues ters," a weekly half-hour crime documentary.

During World War II Men denhall wrote and produced training and propaganda films for the Air Force at the Hal Roach Studios in Hollywood.
After the war he produced both commercial and documentary films.

'Magic Animals of Japan'

Designers Write on Folk Legends

A husband-and-wife team at SIU--Davis Pratt, co-chairman of the Department of Design, and his wife, Elesa Kula, professional designer--have linked their talents in a new book, "Magic Animals of Japan." The Pratts spent six months in Japan in 1964, studying design and graphics in that country, and while living in a Japanese home just outside Tokyo, they became interested in the folk legends of the Japanese people.

In particular, the place that animals occupied in the stories and the art of the country intrigued them. Animal sculpture, pictures and figurines were seen not only in shop windows, gardens and private homes but also in temples and shrines, and even at the entrances to bath houses.

Pratt has collected and written a dozen of the stories of animals with magic powers, and Miss Kula has provided full-page, four-color illustrations, adapting traditional Japanese woodblock techniques to mixed-media printing.

In addition to the stories themselves, a section in the book footnotes each animal, describing its significance in the Japanese folklore and the "Hanekane" it teaches.

The book is published by Parmassus Press, Berkeley, Calif.

Along Ho Chi Minh Trail

Viet Cong Movement Southward Increasing

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command is watching closely what appears to be an increase in North Vietnamese traffic down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos.

"There's a hell of a lot of movement," a senior American officer said Wednesday. "They are showing themselves more."-

U.S. fighter-bombers are pummeling the trail in efforts to curtail the flow of men and supplies into South Vietnam. Some of the enemy are being observed because of an improved detection system. He declined for security reasons to discuss the improved system.

"Our detection is a lot better," he said. "Prankly we're working on it to determine if there is an increase or whether we now know more."

Each fall, just after the monsoon winds change from the southwest to the northeast and start the dry season in the South, the North Vietnamese intensify their infiltration down the Ho Chi Minh trail because the ground has firm ed up and movement is easier.

Sources said the southwest monsoon storms this year were not as severe as in 1966 and the Communists stepped up their operations down the trail earlier than usual.

Some of the men may be earmarked as replacements for three North Vietnamese regiments mailed last month around Dak To in the bloodiest battle of the war.

Dak To is in the central highlands 270 miles northeast of Saigon and near the ill-defined meeting point of the frontiers of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. Communist regiments move freely up and down the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

Sources said the three battered regiments had fallen back to the south, possibly into sanctuaries in Cambodia.
On GOP Ticket

Ogilvie Running for Governor

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard B. Ogilvie, president of the Cook County Board of Supervisors, entered the race Wednesday for the Republican nomination for governor of Illinois in 1968.

Ogilvie, a former Illinois state's attorney, said his candidacy was a combination of his past judicial record and his belief that the Illinois government is too big and inefficient.

“I am a candidate for governor of Illinois because I believe this state needs new leadership to meet the challenge of our time,” Ogilvie said. “For some months, many party officials and great numbers of interested citizens have urged me to declare my candidacy. They maintain that we must nominate our strongest ticket to guarantee that Illi­nois will be in the Republican column next year.”

Ogilvie said the most im­portant campaign issues will be the guarantee by our state government of equal edu­cation, job opportunity and decent living standards for every one of its citizens.

“It is high time that we attack the problem in sub­stance and put an end to the practice of attempting to make political capital out of the misfortunes of some of our citizens,” he added.

“I will campaign in every part of the state and I will solicit the support of Repub­lican officials and workers.”

Altorfer, in announcing his candidacy, suggested that Ogilvie should remain as head of the Cook County board, dominated by Democrats. Ogilvie was elected to the post in 1966.

“I am a candidate for gov­ernor of Illinois because I believe this state needs new leadership to meet the chal­lenge of our time,” Ogilvie said. “For some months, many party officials and great num­ber of interested citizens have urged me to declare my candid­acy. They maintain that we must nominate our strongest ticket to guarantee that Illi­nois will be in the Republican column next year.”

2nd Transplant Fails

NEW YORK (AP) — Doctors transplanted a dead baby's heart into the breast of a 2 1/2-week-old boy Wednesday, but after 6 1/2 hours, the heart failed.

Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, the chief surgeon, his face grim, announced the failure. "We do not know at this time why this transplanted heart failed," he said.

It was the world's second reported human heart trans­plant, and the first reported in the United States.

In Wednesday's opera­tion at Brooklyn's Maimonides Hospital, the baby boy who received a tiny heart died at 1 p.m. Attempts to revive the child were unsuccessful.

As he was planning to try again, Dr. Kantrowitz said: "We certainly are." Both infants, he said, were in the operating room and doc­tors waited several hours for the donor baby to die. The donor baby died at 2:30 a.m., and doctors began procedures within minutes.

The 22-member surgical staff operated for 2 1/4 hours beginning at 4:15 a.m. But after the operation, they were guarded about the outlook, and would say only that pulse and blood pressure were relative­ly stable.

Dr. Kantrowitz, who pioneered operations in implant­ing "helper hearts" to assist a patient's ailing heart, told newsmen of the "enormous emotional drain" of the day. Members of his team, he said, were "disheartened and very sad."

SIU Professor Wins Praise For Philosophy Interpretation

An SIU woman professor has received praise from Bertrand Russell, the 94-year-old controversial philosopher, for her interpretation of his theories.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Eames, associate professor of philosophy, has written two articles and is currently writing a book on Russell's "Theory of Knowledge." The another husband, S. Morris Eames, also associated professor of philosophy at SIU, interviewed Russell in London in the summer of 1964.

Russell's philosophy has commonly been criticized as being subject to change without notice. But Mrs. Eames asserted in a paper, "The Consistency of Russell's Realism," that "there is more consistency in his theory of knowledge than is usually admitted."

Mrs. Eames' second article, on Russell's "Social Criticism," is scheduled for publication in "Religious Humanism." In its next issue, a native of Toronto, Canada, Mrs. Eames is a graduate of the University of Toronto.

$50,000 Suit

Jon K. Stocklin, a former SIU student, has filed a $50,000 personal injury suit in Jackson County Circuit Court against Duane Roger Sumquist, 401 1/2 E. Ash St., Carbondale.

The suit claims Stocklin was injured in an accident on Rt. 51 near the north Carbondale city limits on Dec. 4, 1965.

Recent gifts to Morris Library have included reports of the Japanese War Crime Tribunal, literary correspondence of a University faculty member, papers and books on China's economics history, and a large quantity of regional archival material collected by Boy Scouts.

A 12-volume bound set entitled "The Toyada"—printed, typescript and manuscript reports of the Japanese War Crime Tribunal—has been presented to the library by Mrs. James C. Hamilton of Daly City, Calif., whose husband, the late Colonel Hamilton, was associated with the tribunal. The set was his personal copy. Mrs. Hamilton is the sister of Nyle G. Huffman of Carbondale, who arranged for the presentation.

Henry Dan Piper, professor of English and former dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, has given the Library a collection of his correspondence over the past 20 years with such literary figures as Archibald MacLeish, T.S. Eliot, Wilson and Malcolm Cowley. The collection includes letters, manuscripts and proofs of his book, "F. Scott Fitzgerald: A Critical Portrait," published by the SIU Press.

Lewis A. Maverick, former chairman of the Department of Economics at SIU, now retired and living in Pasadena, Calif., has presented the Library his personal papers and books on the economic history of China, including manuscripts of his published books on this subject and an unpublished manuscript on the history of labor productivity.

The Madison Rotary Club, assisted by area Boy Scouts, last spring made a collection in the Madison, Venice and Granite City area of books, pamphlets, directories, business catalogues and photographs relating to the area, which have been given to the Library for its Archives on Southern Illinois history, business, industry and social development.

A catalog of the exhibition, compiled by Everett Johnson, curator of galleries, states that the Library collection is now comprised of more than 900 items, concentrated in American contemporary art, including works from other periods and nationalities. Embraced in the collection are graphics, drawing, painting, photography, sculpture, tapestries, banners and ceramics.

SIU Physiologist Developing New Anesthesia

By John Durbin

Electro-anesthesia may replace the present methods of putting patients to sleep for surgery within the next year, according to Alfred Richardson, professor of the physiology faculty, who is past president of the American Society for Electro-anesthesia.

Richardson, who is past president of the American Society for Electro-anesthesia, said that presently this procedure has been restricted to animals. Although the method is "more practical and offers no danger to the subject," there is one problem standing in its way: extreme use on people.

According to Richardson, the Food and Drug Administration is waiting for more data to be collected on how this method operates on the animal. Robert Pozos, a graduate student in physiology, and Richardson are presently working to find out "what mechanism causes the animals to go to sleep."

Both Pozos and Richardson are almost certain that the mechanism is the neural synapses in the brain. The electrical method of administering an anesthesia consists of placing two electrodes on opposite sides of the animal’s head and running 700 cycles per second of current to the brain. This mechanism becomes unconscious in several seconds, using as little as 5 volts.

"We have put many animals to sleep by this method—everything from earthworms to dogs," Richardson said.

Phi Kappa Tau Holds Party
For Underprivileged Children

Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity gave its 15th annual Christmas party for the underprivileged children of the Carbondale area Tuesday evening at the chapter house. The 32 children present at the party were from Jackson-Williamson county Action Agency. The agency is a neighborhhood resource center for the underprivileged children in the Carbondale area.

They were served a turkey dinner, given toys and candy, and were given free haircuts from the fraternity’s honorary brother, Herman E. Kemper, manager of the Greater Egypt Klippers. The evening came to an end with the showing of cartoons.

Co-chairmen for the party were Rick Stanton and Rick D’Amico.

On Saturday morning, the visiting planners will tour the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, VTI, Crab Orchard Job Corps Center and the Federal Penitentiary.

Central and southern Illinois planners will hear David Marshall Smith, associate professor of geography, discuss the role of government in industrial location. Friday evening at the LBJ restaurant in Carbondale, Smith’s talk will follow an afternoon panel session on the topic. The Geographical Role in Development in the next 50 Years, Panelists will be: K. Neil Thurmond, a Greater Egypt Planning and Development commission member; Richard Jones, manager of the Red Lake Conserancy District; and Richard Cameron, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Louis District.

Smith, a citizen of the United Kingdom, completed his doctorate at the University of Nottingham in 1961 and has been both planner and lecturer specializing in industrial geography. He came to SIU in September, 1966.

The afternoon session will begin with an address by Franklin H. Moreno, at 2 p.m., in the University Center ballroom. Moreno is executive director of the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission.

Bill Carel to Appear on Quiz Show

An SIU student will be seeking romance via national television shortly after the first of the year.

Bill Carel, graduate assistant in physical education, will be a participant in "The Dating Game" on Jan. 4. Carel is a second lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve to complete his master's degree. He is also the manager of a Carbide dorm, two of the girls living in his dorm sent his name to the producer of the national television show recommending him for a spot.

The producers asked Carel to come to Hollywood last summer for an interview. Because of his military status, he was able to fly to California on a stand-by basis, Carel said that he had two interviews and was then asked to appear.

However, at the time ABC was disrupted by union strikes and he was not able to make the program. Carel said that he could, and will fly to California again on Dec. 20 to tape the show.

Carel said that the winners are given two choices. They can either go out that night or L.A.S. Committee Chooses Members Tereence Belcher, Michael Casey and David Lewis have been named members of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Student Advisory Committee at SIU.

The 11-man committee, chosen by members of the College's faculty council, meets with the dean and other LAS administrators to present student recommendations on college policies.

Holdover members from last year are Gerald Grubel, James Hatton, Joel Handler, David Romano, member of the Baha'i Club, meets with the dean and other LAS administrators to present student recommendations on college policies.

Holdover members from last year are Gerald Grubel, James Hatton, Joel Handler, and Walter Noy, assistant professor of health and safety, are co-chairmen of the conference, which is open to community representatives of health agencies and all interested persons.

No Accusations Of Forger Made

C. Richard Grubel, SIU legal counsel, said that Charles Svhilk has not been accused of forging the signature of the spelunking club advisor.

Friday's Egyptian reported that Grubel said Svhilk, a sophomore from Brookfield, had been accused of forging the signature to obtain an SIU auto.

Grubel said the signature was a forgery but no one has been accused at this point.

SIU Seeking Revenge on 'Little' Sun Devils Saturday

Saluki basketball coach Jack Hartman is far from disheartened by SIU's loss to Iowa Monday night.

"Iowa had more poise, more confidence, and more consistency," Hartman said Wednesday. "Our inexperience hurt us, but it's one of the things you have to accept with a young club," Hartman continued. "We haven't come of age yet.

"We're not in any way set to walk away and say 'We'll.'" Hartman said. "We'll keep an open mind and try to find consistency."

Hartman also said despite the score, the Iowa game was probably the best game of the young season for SIU.

"We played better against Iowa than we had in the two previous games," he said. "But 'we're still not playing the game with enough consistency we have to have."

One of the sore points during the Iowa game was that Iowa kept getting a second and third shot at the basket. The Saluki, on the other hand, could muster only one shot at the basket most of the time.

"We're not going to the offensive boards with enough determination," Hartman emphasized.

the residents of the northeast section. After quieting threats of riots during the summer with some commendable programs, the city left the group was considering the Salukis as a major power. However, the NCAA had not confirmed this until Boydston received a letter Wednesday from Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA.

"The NCAA recently changed its policy by stating that if a school competed in one sport at the university level, the school must declare all sports except football at the university division by the fall of 1968. It is not necessary to distinguish in football."

Asked if this ruling would have any direct effect on any teams, Boydston replied, "This should help in scheduling major university basketball teams."

Boydston said he thought many teams did not want to schedule a small college team because of the possible loss in prestige if they lost. The Basketball Writers announcement affected the Salukis only in poll ratings and statistics the organization compiles concerning who is leading the country in various departments, Boydston said.

The SIU Athletic Committee, an advisory group headed by Elmer J. Clark, passed a resolution last Jan. 31 recommending participation in major university basketball in 1967.

Concerning the football status, the Study Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics recommended construction of a new $5,000-seat football stadium and an increase in football scholarships. The three proposed sites for the stadium are: south of the Arena and east of Rt. 51; south of the Arena on Reservoir Road; and on McClafferty Road about halfway between Chautauqua Street and Reservoir Road. "Certainly no decision has been made concerning these sites," said Clark. "This is just a feasibility study."

Clark explained that the construction and expansion would demand extra revenue which could be obtained three ways—students, state funds and gate receipts.

The student activity fee could be raised $3.50 per quarter to make total tuition costs $84. Or the state legislature could appropriate more money. Or people attending the games could pay more for their tickets.

The report also says that money could be obtained from the $15 per quarter student welfare fee.

"If a larger athletic program is wanted, the department simply needs more money," said Clark. "After final Board approval, it would take about three years to complete the stadium."
