Debaters Assemble
For Meet

High school students from throughout Illinois will gather here today and Saturday at the SIU High School Debate Tournament.

The largest meet of its type in Illinois, it is expected to draw more than 400 students and coaches from 86 schools in the state.

Competing for championship trophies in the varsity and novice divisions, the students will debate the topic: "Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Adopt a Program of Compulsory Arbitration in Labor-Management Disputes in Basic Industries."

Sponsored by the SIU chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic honorary, the debates will be judged by members of Southern's faculty, debate team and graduate students.

The opening session of the tournament will begin at 2 p.m. today in the Administration Building, followed by the championship debate between the top two schools of the tournament.

Judges at this debate will be Dr. Arthur L. Studdert, chairman of the Department of Speech, and Dr. Ralph A. Micken, chairman of the Department of Business Administration.

The tournament will begin at 11:15 a.m. Saturday. The opening session of the tournament will begin at 11:15 a.m. Saturday at the Arena.

SIU Salukis!

Is It A Sissy Name?

Change Our Saluki Tag! Students Split
On Proposal for More Spartan Name

"I think the Saluki dog is the ugliest-looking animal I ever saw," says Art Fisher, a junior from New York. "The name sure is. We could change it to the name like the Wildcats. Yes, that's for the Southern Wildcats.

Douglas Kopecky, on the other hand, believes that the name's name "sounds clever and creative." Kopecky, a senior from Beryw, says, "The name goes along with the theme of the Southern Illinois area. Canes is its fantasy!"

Most students believe it is really the athletes of the school who should have the final say about the team name. After all, they are the ones who have 10,000 fans screaming the name at them nine months out of the year.

Willie Wilkerson, a varsity football player from Chicago, feels, "The name is really outdated. People outside of this area have no idea what a Saluki is. I think there would be more support if we changed it.

"Although not enough people realize that the saluki stands for swiftness, I don't think the name should be changed," says Carolyn Sheld, a freshman from Skokie. "People of the area, especially students, have a deep feeling for the name. It's a tradition we should hang on to.

We should stick to the Egyptian heritage of this area. We could call our school the Memphis, Ga., Salukis!"

Salukis Rated Nation's Best
In AP's Small-College Poll

SIU's Salukis topped the Louisiana State out of first place in the Associated Press small-college rankings this week.

Southern Illinois, like last week, is still the Salukis. After advancing from the runner-up position, collecting five votes for first place and 112 points in the latest ballot by 14 regional panelists.

Evansville had one vote for the No. 1 spot and 92 points.

Officials Mulling Speed-Up Steps

Students who were unable to make their registration this week because of long lines in the Registration Center and other offices because they have their deans' signatures to complete registration.

Herbert W. Wolwold, assistant registrar, announced that the week will not be required until after Jan. 15. This enables students to make program changes all of next week without their dean's permission.

Thursday and today students are going through sectioning by appointment only. Students who wish to make program changes must wait until Monday.

Thursday morning sectioning started processing students who had registered registration proceedings Wednesday at the Arena and did not have time to come then.

The appointments were made because an exceptionally large number (about 1,000) of students were in school during the fall term and did not pre-register.

Robert A. McGrath, registrar, said that this is now planning how to avoid a situation at the beginning of spring quarter. Proposals being considered include changing the sectioning process and lengthening of the advance registration period.

Also included is the possibility elimination of a central registration day for continuing students at the start of a quarter. This would mean that returning students who did not pre-register will have to make an appointment to register.

They might then have difficulty getting satisfactory schedules because program changes would be processed at the same time.

If they are attempting to make the process more difficult, they are jumping up to a new level of complexity the system breaks down, causing difficulties for everyone.

Antiwar Theme of Comedy 'Lysistrata' Makes Production Timely, Director Says

"Lysistrata," Aristophanes' comedy involving a sex strike in protest of war, is slated as the Southern Players' third play of the season. The Greek comedy will open Reading of Play Set

The Faculty Playreading Group will read "The Rats" by Gerhart Hauptman at 8 p.m. today in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Yvonne Westbrook is cast in the title role of the play which will be presented Feb. 6 and again Feb. 11-13.

Pam Worley, playing the first old woman, will be the leader of the women's chorus, and John Calhahan, playing the first old man, will be the leader of the men's chorus. There are 34 members in the cast.

Moe said that because of the play's theme there is the danger of the audience taking "Lysistrata" too seriously. He will, therefore, emphasize the play's comedy elements. "The play should be, most of all, entertaining," he said.

"This play can be done as a musical comedy," he said, "but I will approach it as a realistic farce." He feels that by using this approach the meaning of the play will be clearer.

Better Quit Kickin’ Our Dogs Around

Our grandfathers used to sing a song called, “You Gotta Quit Kickin’ My Dog Around.” And that is just the way we feel about an editorial that appeared last month in the Sparta (III) News-Plain­dealer.

The editorial denounced SIU for using the Saluki as its school symbol-mascot. Oh yeah! Well let us tell you something, fellas. Bulldogs, Lions, etc. are very nice, traditional names for using the pharaohs of ancient Egypt. Perhaps our friend up in Southern Illinois bears this out. The Plaindealer would have us rename our mascot to bulldog or Lion because the name “Saluki” is connected to the pharaohs of ancient Egypt! The newspaper should send off letters to college and professional teams such as the St. Louis University Billikens, Green Bay Packers, St. Louis Cardinals, the Baltimore Colts and other teams whose mascots aren’t as inspiring as Lions or bulldogs, by Plaindealer letterhead, and ask them and the Salukis why and how they picked the Violets.

Which brings us to the final argument in favor of maintaining and supporting the Salukis. It goes well with Southern. —Ed Rapetti.

’Saluki’ Sissy Name

Try ‘Anteaters,’ Editor Says

Southern Illinois University, only a few years ago a teachers college, is now a small university, a credit to the area in which it is located. It is also stepping up in athletic circles and may soon be a member of a conference. Its football and baseball teams are soon demanding national attention.

That is, if they will only take on a single team. To call a knock-em-down-and-drag-em-through-the-sand kind of game the “Salukis” won’t help one bit.

The name itself is salutary to the student-athlete, not so to the Saluki. The name is a dog and a possessory, a four-legged pet. It is considered by those who care to consider things to be a snare that will not be avoided at that fact. Besides, who cares too much about speed as far as football is concerned. What is needed is brawn.

“Saluki” is a sissy name! No college athletic team should be inflicted with such an appellation. The name isn’t as unique as the Bennett Lineman or a brawny fullback. It can only be prudently given to a dead old Saluki.

How much better it would be to call SIU teams the Bears, the Eagles, the Tumblers, the Tigers, the Wildcats, the Wolverines, the Yanks, Anteaters—but never the Salukis.

As you know, it is the function of us ace analysts to read through the news each morning in search of some item we don’t understand. We then clip it out,坐下, put the column a writing a comment explaining it to everybody.

Naturally, the items we don’t understand keep getting ahead of our explanations these days. And thus, going through my papers before bundling them off, I find the following:

Mr. Arthur Krock, the distinguished news analyst, has announced he is giving his personal papers to Princeton University’s Perspective for Studies in 20th Century American Social and Public Policy. I feel I can do no less.

As you know, it is the function of us ace analysts to read through the news each morning. For sometimes we come to an item we don’t understand. We then clip it out,坐下, put the column a writing a comment explaining it to everybody.

Naturally, the items we don’t understand keep getting ahead of our explanations these days. And thus, going through my papers before bundling them off, I find the following:

Today’s Quotes

We just heard of a young fellow who got 87 shares from a single razor blade. He’s nine years old.—Ollie James.

Most of the trouble in the world is caused by people planning to be important.—T. S. Eliot.

Earnest people are often people who habitually look on the serious side of things that have no serious side.—Van Wyck Brooks.

If “there’s no place like home” Why roam? Dorothy B. Robbins.

A true sonnet consists of yellowed clipped shavings such as: “Isle of Yap to Become U.S. Territory.” Obviously, there must be some concise, lucid explanation of why the Yapans wish to become U.S. territory. And I feel a twinge of guilt that I never found time, when with this and that, to think one up.

Or here’s one: “The National Congress of American Indians has passed a resolution expressing its belief founded to belong to any group listed by the attorney general as subversive.”

Turning to statemanship, here’s a valuable clipping referring to the 1958 visit of Sen. L. B. Johnson to the U.S. “He greeted all diplomats, etc., saying, ‘With an unstressed hand and, ‘I’m just a country boy from Texas, come to bow and shake.’

Most items in this category, of course, deal with our gal­lant effort to help our brave Vietnamese allies in their all­out struggle. Such as: “50 per cent of Viet Nam Draftee’ Deserts Within 6 Weeks.”

In the same file are: “Issue 9 Rules of Conduct for Yanks in Viet (No. 1—Remember, we are special guests here...).” “Beer Can Opener Short in Saigon, GIs Find,” and a brochure from the Vietnamese National Tourist Office in Saigon saying, “Viet Nam is rapidly becoming a must-see for thousands of foreign visitors.” Plus numerous policy statements on the war itself by U.S. officials. All of which are different.

So it is with a deep sense of relief that I’m dumping the whole shmeer in box and shipping it off to the Center. Certainly, nothing can give these scholars a more accurate copy of current American Statecraft and Pub­lic Policy than the raw data with which we are news analysis work. Unless, heaven forbid, they get carried away and try to explain it too.

A front page story last week on the draft card burners brings to mind an incident that happened in a Second Avenue bar a few days ago. This kid came in looking as if he really needed a drink, kind of like the bartender wanted to know.

"You got proof? Like a driver's license?"

"I'll bet this put the bartender in a real pickle. He didn't know whether this kid was a bona fide peace demonstrator or some under age youth trying to hustle him out of his illegal license.

"Well, I can't serve you without proof," the bartender said. "That's what you get for burning your draft card."

"Yeah, that's what you get," a man sitting at the bar replied. "You should have more sense." He grabbed the kid by the arm. "In my war, kid, we had more sense."

"Your war?" the kid asked.

"The Big K," the man replied. "Back in five-O or thereabouts. Damn, we did go around burning draft cards to stay out of the army. We had patriotism, kid. You betcha."

"What happened when the Big K hit? In five-O, us guys hanging around the pool room didn't even know where Korea stood. Hell, we didn't even know WHAT Korea was."

"I can remember that day clear as a bell. I turned to the guys and said I was going into the army. They all told me I was crazy but I couldn't be talked out of it. I had been Von-der-in-law in the Army infantry during World War II."

"So I enlisted. In the United States Coast Guard."

"Sure, it meant serving for three years instead of two in the army and being on a boat in the North Atlantic instead of with the Army in Korea. The Coast Guard didn't get to Korea much then. But I decided to do my part for the national security, kid, that's how I felt about it."

"I was the first of the gang to enlist. And after three years I was sent to Staten Island, N.Y. I started turning up home every weekend, boy, did. I took a ribbing from my friends. They were just starting to do their bit and join up, too. But so did everybody else, kid. The缃oratiorism, the Coast Guard had so many enlistments some of my buddies had to go on a waiting list.

"A couple of them found out they could join the Coast Guard Re-serve and get called up later for two years instead of three—I wished I had heard of that one."

"I remember us having a going away party for one of our kids. And by the time they got out of college—when they got out of college—"I thought they would get through college and do their bit and join up, too. But so did everybody else, kid. The patriotism, the Coast Guard wouldn't listen. I came to realize they knew best."

"A couple of other buddies of ours for the Coast Guard enlistments to open up or for the Coast Guard Re-serve draft to call them. So they came to see me and ask me about it. They joined the Navy—it wasn't in Korea much either."

"But they joined the Army—and I didn't get to Korea."

"Our gang, we were all proud to serve in the Big K, kid. It was something none of us ever did get to Korea."

And one last thing, burning draft cards—that's something none of us would've ever done. We didn't burn our draft cards because we got served too good at our age in all those bars in those small towns."

SIU Group Waging Its Own Viet War

By John Epperheimer

While fighting rages all around them, the SIU group is waging its own "war" in four locations in South Viet Nam.

The group is an elementary education advisory team located at a training center and three normal schools in three provinces.

The four members of the team are Donald Darnell, Fred Armistead, Harold Richardson, at normal schools in the provinces; and Harold DeWeese, head of the party and supervisor of the training school in Saigon.

The team is in Viet Nam through a contract with the Southern Education Advisory Team, made with the United States in 1962. The International Services Division is campus coordinator for the project.

DeWeese is at SIU on a month of leave which each team member receives every two years. He expects to return in two weeks.

Team members are advisors at the normal schools, which are roughly equivalent to the junior college level in the United States. Normal schools place heavy emphasis on vocational training and students may enroll only after they have completed 11 years of schooling. Students attend for two years.

The in-service training center for elementary education teachers in Saigon instructs teachers, principals, and supervisors from the provinces in continuous four-week sessions.

But DeWeese feels the greatest contribution the SIU teams have made in Viet Nam is seen in the day-to-day training and advice they give.

The team has helped bring a "tremendous respect and importance" to elementary education, he said.

Government administrators are now viewing elementary education with a new importance.

State Supervisor Joins SIU Staff

Harold F. Engelsking, 48, has joined the faculty of the Division of Technical and Adult Education as an adult education supervisor with the academic rank of assistant professor.

Engelsking was a supervisor with the State Board of Vocational Education, serving in Springfield, Gibson City and Rochelle, before assuming his duties at SIU on Jan. 6. He formerly taught vocational agriculture at Mahomet, Ill., and was sales manager with Cargill, Inc., in Grinnell, Iowa.

A native of Mount Carroll, Engelsking attended Blackburn College from 1937-39, and received his bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois in 1941 and master's in 1947.

For 'Normal' Cause

J.C. James has been named assistant principal at Central High School, replacing Harold Blanken, who has accepted a principal's position in the DeForest school district.

James has been teaching at the school for 13 years, the last six as assistant principal. In addition to teaching, he has coached football and baseball and served as a faculty advisor.

James said he was surprised when he was named assistant principal, but he is looking forward to the new position and the challenge it offers.
Lack of Money Is No Excuse
For Not Going On to College

Every high school graduate, who wants to work for the college degree, has a number of educational opportunities, according to Frank C. Adams, director of SIU's Office of Guidance Work and Financial Assistance.

"No one can say 20 years from now that he missed the chance to attend college because he lacked the money," said Adams, who heads one of the nation's largest university student-work programs.

"With recent passage of the higher education bill to provide federal economic assistance, I see no reason why every high school graduate with the academic potential should not continue his education." Adams oversees a complex system of student assistance which includes an on-campus work program involving 4,714 students at Carbondale and Edwardsville, 5,000 part-time student jobs in 200 Southern Illinois communities, 850 scholarships, grants and awards and half a million dollars a year in short-term loans.

There are nearly 4,800 students now working at part-time jobs on the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses, 522 are participating in the federal work-study program under a federal program worth $31,000,000 by merit of identifying those eligible and placing them in the federal program.

The University's total expenditure for on-campus student work will probably approach $3,200,000 in the 1966 fiscal year, according to Adams. This expenditure will include nearly $1.8 million in appropriated state funds, with the balance made up from various research grants, federal funds, and income from auxiliary enterprises, such as the University cafeteria.

Under a reorganization effected this fall, all forms of financial assistance at both campuses were combined into a single all-University operation so that Adams' staff may coordinate decisions as to whether individual students benefit most from scholarship, loan or job, or from a combination of any of the three means of financial assistance.

Adams pointed out that while the program enables students to earn money for their education and provides the University with services it would not otherwise be able to afford, its purpose is primarily educational.

"We have found that students who work do better in their classes and maintain better grades than the average," he said. "Working is part of the process of maturation, and the student learns through his job to accept responsibility and to budget his time and money."

Most students work about 10 hours a month, at pay ranging from $1 to $1.75 per hour, depending upon the skill required for the job and length of experience. Where possible, students are placed in jobs that relate to their educational field.

Because of turnover, such as graduation and need for some smalls and others, at least 6,000 students were worked during the past year, he said, and jobs are generally available in every field without years to work.

Indo-Pakistani Talks Deadlocked

Shastri, Ayub Snub Negotiations

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—With an ancient pump, the Roman Catholic Church Thursday consecrated its first full-blooded Negro bishop in the United States.

On a drizzly, sodden day, more than 10,000 people crowded the Basilica of St. Louis, Canon and Eternal founder of New Orleans.

The church made it a memorable occasion for its historic Basilica of St. Louis, oldest Catholic church in the nation. The crowd in the ornate church included five archbishops, 56 bishops, hundreds of priests and nuns.

As the new bishop emerged, a splendid figure in white, crimson and gold vestments, the sun broke through the heavy gray clouds.

"This is a great day!" cried a Negro priest, one of scores of amateur photographers jostling for positions as the prelates clustered in front of the basilica. "It was a long time coming, but it is a great day."

The day included one discordant note. As the procession moved into the church, to the accompaniment of church bells, the clergyman nit-pasted a woman wearing a dress that was too tight and bearing a placard which read: "Jesus Did Not Choose Non Whites to Save the World..."

"Remember Them, O Lord, My God, That Defile the Priesthood."

The picket was Mrs. B. J. Gipson, head of a protestant group named Save Our Nation and one of three Negroes who were arrested for attempting to communicate with the armed forces in New Orleans.

"I am not alone," she said, crying "I'm not alone, I'm not alone..."

When the new bishop, at the rear of the procession, approached the point where the picket stood, a seminary student stepped in front of her. The new bishop walked past the student.

In U.S. history, there is only one other Catholic bishop with Negro blood. He was James A. Butler of Portland, Me., consecrated in 1873. His mother was Negro, his father white.

Shastri of India and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan stayed put in their separate encampments outside Tashkent and their large delegations of ministers also stayed home. Kossygin obviously was having difficulty with the explosive India-Pakistan quarrel that has befuddled Washington for years. The Soviet leader spent hours in secret talks with Shastri and Ayub but as the day ended, it was said, the only thing certain was that the three men would attend the theatre together Friday night.

It was not even certain when Shastri and Ayub would resume their private sessions together—at their first since India and Pakistan went to war in September.

The stumbling block was the Indian-Pakistani quarrel over Kashmir.
Cooking Can Be Fun If Done Creatively

By Bonita Troutt

The Creative Cookery Group, which is part of the University Woman's Club, agrees with the philosophy of Samuel Johnson—"We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information about it."

The group was organized in 1958 in an effort to bring University women together under a common interest—creative cookery. There are approximately 20 charter members.

The organization has since been divided into two interest groups—the luncheon group and the demonstration group. Each group has approximately 35 members and they meet four times a year.

The luncheon group meets at noon and the demonstration group meets in the evening.

...to the use of the talent in the group by sharing knowledge and they also call in people from the University and from the surrounding community who are known to be experts.

Sometimes the demonstration consists of a complete meal. At other times the group will concentrate on one dish. This may be the technique of fancy desserts or how to make bread from start to finish. Nothing is prepared in advance.

One outstanding demonstration this year was a Chinese meal prepared by a local lawyer.

Other highlights have been a Bavarian evening, an American smorgasbord, a Hawaiian luau, a Syrian meal, a Greek luncheon and a Mexican luncheon.

Members of the home economics staff have given demonstrations on the use of various appliances.

At a meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Shirley Hileman, there was an exchange of Christmas breads and cookies.

A file is kept of the recipes of all the dishes prepared and demonstrated at the meetings. Some thought has been given to compiling a cookbook.

Communications School Begins Moving Into $4 Million Home

The School of Communications, which has moved into its new $3.9 million building, has put up a number of rooms in each wing of the building and all odd-numbered rooms in the opposite wing. This building will replace the 15 barracks buildings, former residences and made-over quarters scattered across the campus.

Finance from the state universities bond issue, the structure will provide classroom, offices, laboratory and production facilities for the Departments of Speech, Speech Correction, Theater and Radio-Television when the building is completed this summer.

The structure will provide classroom, offices, laboratory and production facilities for the Departments of Speech, Speech Correction, Theater and Radio-Television when the building is completed this summer.

The associate dean, who is the chief engineer, will move into a new suite of offices in the new building.

The new building will be set up in the new theater, the campus FM station, which is completed this year.

A new student control center for WSIU, the campus FM station, also included in the building. Radio is expected to move to its new location within a month.

The Department of Speech, now housed in barracks, will go into second floor space later in the year. The School of Communications Dean C. Hord, and radio- TV chairman, will move into the new offices as soon as telephones and furnishings are installed.

Six first-floor rooms are assigned for general classroom use. A control center for the campus television and radio laboratories will also be set up in the new building.

The University architect's office is scheduled to move into temporary quarters on the second floor. It is now housed in the Physical Plant Building.

Student Tournament Week

To Start Monday in Center

Student competitive tournaments in bridge, bowling, billiards, table tennis, chess and gin rummy will be conducted Monday through Wednesday in the University Center.

The annual Tournament Week will feature competition for both men and women.

To participate, all graduate and undergraduate students currently enrolled at SIU must have a 3.0 average or better. Students with less than a 3.0 average are not eligible.

Students must also meet the amateur standing policy requirements of the Association of College Unions.

Each participant must complete an entry form and return it to the Student Activities Office in the University Center by noon Saturday. The entry blanks are available in the Olympic Room, the Student Activities Office and the University Center bowling alley.

Pairings for the tournaments will be on display in the Olympic Room. Tournament Week is sponsored by the student committee at the University Center Programming Board.

is for eruptions—better known as “student upheavals.”

is for flighty—a characteristic which has been noted in many coeds whose aspirations lean toward popularity rather than intellectuality.

G

is for glamor—the thing that quizzes, finals, etc., take out of college living.

H

is for heart—what profs who give E’s don’t have.

I

is for independence—the thing freshmen enjoy until they receive their suspension notices.

J

is for junkie—which, according to some national magazines, is a synonym for collegian.

K

is for key as in Phi Beta Kappa—the key to this key is “mucho hard book learnin’.”

is for love—which springs eternal right in the middle of your senior slump.

is for mayhem, melee and monkeyshines—the things that drive administrators batty.

N

is for nincmopop—your name before you were accepted to a college of your father’s choice.

O

is for oh-my-gosh—an exclamation to be used after discovering you passed Physics.

P

is for pop-quiz—the little surprises that the “nicer” profs have waiting for you Monday mornings at 8.

SIU on A Rainy Night

Oklahoma, Holder of Big Eight Championship, Will Swim Against Salukis Here on Saturday

Big Eight powerhouse Oklahoma will meet the SIU swimmers at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, December 10, in the University Pool.

The Sooner is the defending champions from their conference, and should give the Salukis a rough time of it.

Coach Ralph Casey's team are in good shape, however, with 10 returning lettermen, three of whom starred in the NCAA finals last year, in which SIU was ninth.

The three Salukis are juniors Kimo Miles and Gerald Pearson, and Tom McAneney, a senior who will pace the team.

McAneney and Miles will compete in freestyle events, and Pearson in breaststroke.

Oklahoma will be shooting for its 12th straight Big Eight title this year and considering the strength of its sophomores and junior-dominated team, the Salukis are favored to win it again.

Outstanding returnees are Jack Hove, Big Eight 50 and 100-yard freestyle champion; Jim MacGregor, the conference 200 and 500-freestyle winner; and Mike Nichols, 200-yard butterfly champ.

Only one senior was lost by the Sooners in graduation, and the added strength of championship-winning sophomores make them a strong threat to the Salukis.

Salukie Doug Helling won the freshman Big Eight 300-yard freestyle event last year. David Usrey was the freshman conference winner in the 400 individual medley and Charles Schober took the 100 and 200 backstroke events at the conference.

The Sooner's team have already drowned Evansville College by some slick margin in their only previous meet, held Dec. 10.

Students will not be charged for Saturday's meet, but adults will be charged $1 admission.

The SIU freshman team will compete in sprints, freestyle, and breaststroke events at Oklahoma last year, and Nebraska, which finished fourth.

The Big Ten champion Indiana should prove the highlight of this season's competition, along with Missouri Valley champion Cincinnati.

Southern's men have already drowned Evansville College by some slick margin in their only previous meet, held Dec. 10.

Top-Ranked Salukis
To Meet Tall Bears

Southern faces its first challenge as the top-ranked small college team when it meets Washington University at 8:15 p.m. Saturday in St. Louis.

The Bears will be out to average the 76-70 defeat the Salukis handed them last March in the first round of the Southeastern Final in Evansville.

Washington got off to a good start with a six-game winning streak of its first five games. Southern, however, has the Bears dealt three consecutive losses including two in the historic Invitational Turnamen in Florida. The Bears finished last in the tournament.

This is quite a reversal from last year's team which made it to Evansville on the strength of a 21-5 record. "Below par" was the nickname given to the last year's team which produced the nucleus of Washington's 6-5 team. Fears finished last year's team which produced the nucleus of Washington's 6-5 team.

Sarah Griffin scored 60 of Illinois' 124-94 win over Paducah Wednesday night. The Salukis scored 124 points in all.

The loss gives Southern a 1-1 record. Its win was over Paducah a month ago by a score of 76-70.

Paducah now has record of nine wins and the single loss to SIU.

Coach Jim Smelser blamed a month-long layoff for SIU's loss. "The Salukis were highly motivated," he said. However, he was encouraged by the fact that his team was able to close the gap after Paducah jumped to a 16-point lead in the second half.

The Salukis started the closing minutes of the game with a 6-0 run and cut the lead to 84-78. They were down 86-78 after SIU's three-point shot.

The Bears' small forward Steve Ross, the team's top scorer with 23 points, was limited to 1-11 from the floor.

SIU Rises to Poll Pinnacle
In Both AP, UPI Ratings

Grambling shined the second highest in the AP poll. North Dakota and Youngstown. The voting was based on games through last Saturday.

Grambling climbed one notch to No. 5 following a win over LaMoyne 124-94 and Prairie View 95-80. The Tigers are currently listed in 10 games. They are in the field to get one place to fourth despite two victories that lift them.

Unbeaten Akron, not sched­uled in this week's listing to appear in the AP or UPI polls, is next week's probable starting five. North Dakota and Youngstown are up next. Akron (2) 9-2-7.6 South Dakota 9-2-7.9. Abilene Christian 8-1-3. Arkansas (5) 8-1-3. Kansas State 10. Arkansas (3) 8-1-3 24

High School Football

Texans Lose 39 Straight

MADISONVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Madisonville High School al­ already holds the state record for losing. They set it when they lost their final football game of the season. It

"bettered" the previous record of 38 straight losses held by San Jacinto of Houston.

But Madisonville isn’t exactly satisﬁed to go for the national record; even if it knew what that record was. They’re not kept on a national scale.

The Texas record is enough for Madisonville. Folks over the nation might think Madisonville was just a born loser.

You see, they think they have a good chance of breaking the skid next fall.

Madisonville hasn’t won a game since 1962. In fact it failed to score in 31 of those 39 games and managed only

66 points in the other eight.

Meanwhile, the opposition ran up 1,235 points.

Time was when one loss would throw this little city into a pit of gloom. In 1959 Madisonville went to the state semifinal.

The coaching turnover has kept pace with the losers—there have been three. The present one is W. T. Hoskins. "We just don’t get the boys out for football here," says

Hoskins. "In our last ﬁve games we had only 18 boys on the squad and at one time we were down to 15."

But next season Madisonville will be dropped back in class so the boys will be playing against teams from schools with about the same enrollment.
