Citizen's Board To Present Walkout Report

The Citizen's Board of Inquiry is to present its findings on the mass walkout of 97 Carbondale city employees during March to the City Council at 7:30 p.m. today. Councilmen are also expected to take action on an ordinance amending the city's housing code in accordance with the Community Conservation Board requests which were presented at last Tuesday's meeting.

A third item of importance is that of a report on a proposed contract with Teamster's Local Union No. 347, representing the street, sanitary and cemetery employees.

The Board of Inquiry was appointed by the City Council to investigate the causes of work stoppage by representatives of the city's police, fire, water and sewer departments between March 6-8. City employees left their jobs following the ousting of Chief of Police Jack Hazel.

The employee demanded the resignation of both City Manager C. William Norman and Public Safety Director Richard Wilhelmy, the reinstallation of Hazel and that no reprisals be taken against returning employees.

The city obtained a temporary court injunction which employees obeyed to stop the walkout. The injunction came after employees rejected a statement from the Council requesting their return to work.

In what appeared to be a compromise measure, Hazel was reinstated, Norman was kept on as city manager and City employees returned to their jobs. The Council did accept Wilhelmy's resignation and did not name a successor to oversee both the police and fire departments.

Infringement of Rights

Ex-Student Files Suit Against SIU

EAST ST. LOUIS, III. (AP) - A former student at SIU filed a suit Monday in U.S. District Court seeking to enjoin the University from banning him from campus and preventing him from attending classes.

The student, Stuart Novick of Carbondale, charged University officials denied his right to free speech when they prohibited him from appearing on the campus and re-enrolling in school after he made a speech to a student meeting May 6 calling for reforms in the university administration.

The day after the speech, the Agricultural Building was bombed. The school's Board of Trustees charged that Novick's speech was "inflammatory in nature" and informed him he would be arrested if he came on campus again.

On June 3 Novick spoke briefly at a student government banquet. The next day he was notified that charges had been filed against him for criminal trespass because of his appearance on campus.

The suit named as defendants President Dr. Delvyte W. Morris; Kenneth L. Davis, chairman of the board of trustees; Wilbur Moulton, dean of students; and Southern Illinois University.

Novick's suit asks that the University's refusal to admit him be declared unconstitutional, that he be allowed to appear on campus, and that his record be cleared of the admission refusal.

Gun Registration Law Fired Upon in House

WASHINGTON AP—Chairman Emanuel Celler of the House Judiciary Committee dealt a crippling blow today to President Johnson's drive for registration of firearms.

Celler promised the House Rules Committee he will oppose any effort by the Senate to add the registration proposal to a ban on gun sales after the measure clears the House. The New York Democrat would head the House portion of any Senate-House conference group named to shape the final version of a stricter gun controls bill.

Celler said he favored registration, but did not want to risk defeat of the mail sales ban in the House, where a number of congressmen are opposed to the registration proposals.

"I want this bill passed," Celler told the Rules Committee, referring to the measure to ban interstate sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition. "If the registration feature might jeopardize the passage of this bill, my inclination is not to accept it."

The Senate Judiciary subcommittee on juvenile delinquency heard witnesses mostly urging approval of legislation for registering and licensing. The parent Judiciary Committee is scheduled to take up the bills Wednesday. The subcommittee is considering both the registration and mail-order ban.

One witness, James V. Bennett, president of the National Council for a Responsible Firearms Policy, testified beside suitcases and boxes stuffed with petitions calling for strict gun controls.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., the subcommittee chairman, said he plans to offer an amendment to put into effect immediately the firearms controls included in the recently enacted antiterrorism bill. He said the import curbs do not take effect until mid-December and many importers are rushing to flood the country with cheap foreign surplus military weapons.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark told the subcommittee there is no basis for fears by opponents of gun controls that registration would lead to eventual confiscation of all private weapons. He declared "hostility to firearms will build and build" unless Congress acts now to provide strict controls.

Strong Winds, Falling Trees Cause Two Power Failures

Two trees which broke and fell in Monday afternoon's strong wind snapped high voltage wires, causing a power failure in the east and north sides of Carbondale.

The trees fell within five minutes of each other, according to preliminary estimates of the Central Illinois Public Service Company, One fell at 4:15 p.m. near Lincoln and Logan, knocking out that area's power. The second tree fell at 4:20 p.m. in the back yard of C.W. Thomas, 1035 West Willow St. CIS said that high voltage wires were down but no one was reported injured as of early Monday evening.

Present Piano Concert Here

Visiting concert pianists Stephanie Owen and Raymond Kurt Liebau will present a concert at 8 p.m. Sunday in Home Economics 140.

Mrs. Owen has given numerous concerts in Canada, France, and the Midwest, and recently received a Master of Music degree from SIU in 1962. Presently she is a Ph. He completed his Master of Music at Florida State University where he studied with the late Earnest von Dohnanyi. Awarded a sabbatical for work toward his Ph. D., he is studying with Robert Wallenborn.

The concert will present works of Mozart, Debussy, Shostakovich, and Brahms. Owen will give a piano solo and a vocal solo with the public invited to attend.

Japanese Study U.S. Industry

Ten members of a study team of the Japan Management Association arrived on campus Tuesday to discuss on physical distribution management education. The discussion was conducted by Jeshtel Novick of the Transportation Institute.

The study team of ten representatives from various Japanese companies has visited prominent U.S. and European organizations to observe contemporary advanced management techniques and to place the field of physical distribution.

Their major interest in the field of physical distribution include recent trends in the mechanization of cargo handling and storage, planning of optimum transportation methods and the location of distribution points, inventory control at nodal stock points and methods of controlling performance of equipment and personnel.

Prior to the discussion by Novick, the study team had coffee with SIU President Delyte W. Morris and then attended the luncheon in the Renaissance Room of the University Center.

Report of Russian Wolfhound

Sparks Check for SIU Saluki

Jim Turner, SIU News Service, read an Associated Press report of a tan and white Borzoi found in St. Louis last week and the mystery of the missing Saluki opened up once again.

The missing Saluki, Sera, escaped from her handler May 29 and was not seen since the Spring Festival. The report Turner read was from an article in the protective association in St. Louis where the tan and white Borzoi dog had been found. The Borzoi, or Russian wolf-hound, is a near relative of the Saluki.

Turner checked with the AP and reported the Borzoi, contacted Sera's St. Louis breeder. The breeder said he was practically convinced that the dog was not the missing Saluki but would check in person.

Dogs have been known to travel great distances to return to their original homes. Officials have speculated that Sera may have headed toward St. Louis.

Revamp Voting Rules

The Jackson County voting policy regarding SUU students and faculty should be changed to conform more accurately and fairly with the unusual status of people associated with the University.

The Illinois voting rules require a person to register in the county one year, the county 90 days and the previous 30 days prior to registration. The county used additional rules to determine voter eligibility. In order to register, a person must have satisfied the 1-30-30 regulations and must have demonstrated his intention of making his permanent place of residence in Jackson County. This "intention" clause should be unconstitutional since no laws can be justly interpreted on the basis of intention.

The County Clerk's office, which determines registration eligibility, has said that it requires SUU students and faculty to satisfy state regulations and pay property taxes. They often ask the person if he is married, whether he pays a property and vehicle tax in his community, and perhaps, if the situation is doubtful, the applicant must have two witnesses to attest to his residence.

There are serious discrepancies in the county policy which do injury to the voter-applicants and to the county as a whole. A student or faculty member who lives in Carbondale for a number of years might not be eligible to vote under the county policy while fulfilling the state registration requirements.

In one instance, such a person might not be married, and if he were, this would disqualify him, along with property taxes. If he doesn't own a car, there's no vehicle tax on him. So he is denied a legal vote in forming the community rules which he should have a part in.

This type of situation breeds contempt among those citizens who are denied the right to feel that they are due them. In particular, these are the students.

The students are forced to register in their counties of permanent residence before attending SUU. Their interests as well as their knowledge of the political and business situation in their own community would be hard to assess. It would seem reasonable, however, to assume that there is more difficulty in analyzing a political atmosphere from afar than in the community where one actually lives.

The students should be served an injustice through these county voting regulations. A change in the policy is needed now, for the benefit of all concerned; government and the people.

Second Thoughts

While the subject of firearms control is getting so much public attention, he asks his readers, what about submarines? Stands in areas near St. Louis that have no restrictions are already in storage. Harmful fireworks ought to be barred throughout Mississippi. The many Fourth of July displays, sponsored by organizations and managed by experts, ought to provide enough thrills for everyone.

Super Sub's Vital to Security

Except for one thing, the nuclear-powered Polaris A3, with its formidable striking power, its speed and its stealth, would be just as much a perfect weapon. That one thing, of course, is an opposing submarine force equipped to seek out and destroy the Polaris craft.

Devention of such destruction, in turn, calls for maintenance of a U.S. fleet of attack submarines that can outrun, outhunt and outmaneuver the best of the opposing submarines. And crusty Vice Adm. Hyman Rickover, mentor and guardian angel of the U.S. nuclear submarine force, says this country is lagging perilously in its development of such a fleet.

While the situation is uncomfortably reminiscent of the anxiety that goes with the prospects of a devastating cost spiral, the Polaris fleet remains the single most dependable element of the U.S. deterrent force. It would be unorthodox, to coin a word, to say that the Department of Defense had better take the Polaris fleet seriously or else.

No Ready Answer About Biology Grades

To the Daily Egyptian:

All newspapers are asked a variety of important questions. However, the editors are able to answer none (e.g., A's, B's, C's-28% D's-35%, E's-17%). This means that the correct relationship between the top and the bottom of the scale is 14%, A's and B's and 51% D's and E's. Not 12% and 3% as he suggested.

Before selecting your answer, I would like to give you more data on the grade distributions for previous terms of GSA 201b.

If you delve deeper into the whole business of General Studies grades, you will find course grades generally are lowest in Areas A and D. This is different than at any good school. Science, math, English grammar and foreign languages are the most difficult courses for college students across the nation. The basic thesis of a talk presented on campus recently by Mr. John VanVleck of Harvard, the 1968 national Sigma Xi (a science society) speaker, was that science is hard, and there is no greater disservice that can be done to the public than to say it is easy or even worse, to present watered down, incomplete courses that are easy, for herein lies the complete delusion of the non-scientist.

Truly, I don't know why there was such a skewed grade distribution in Introductory Biology spring term. None of the four choices provided by Mr. Grozik seems to answer his question correctly. In typical objective test construction, two equal but opposite wrong choices are given (stupid students, incompetent professors). That is what we get "B's" during Spring term, 1968 are students equivalent to the 19% who got "B's" four years ago during Spring term, 1964.

Hereditary Factors Considered

SIU’s Lindegren to Test LSD Effects

Experiments to test the effects of the ballistocynogenetic drug LSD on the user’s future generations are being started by an SIU microbiologist.

Carl C. Lindegren, professor emeritus and former director of SIU’s Biological Research Laboratory, has received word from James L. Goddard, head of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, that 1/10th of a gram of Lysergic Acid Diethylamide has been shipped him for the research study.

The Federal government’s total research stock of legal LSD is only 22 grams, or 2/3 of an ounce, Lindegren said. He plans to study effects of the drug on chromosome, and gene-mutation in yeast.

Other investigators have shown that LSD affects the chromosomes in white blood cells but these cells “swallow” drugs instead of following the normal procedure of absorbing them through a membrane, Lindegren said.

His experiments are designed to reveal (1) whether cells can absorb the drug through their membranous cell walls and (2) whether the drug induces breakage of the chromosomes along which the chain of genes or heredity transmitting particles is translated into the genes themselves.

“If chromosome breakage does occur,” he explained, “it is obvious that LSD is even more dangerous than is now apparent, for it will cause mutations or hereditary alterations in the offspring. We can therefore calculate the nature and extent of the hereditary damage.”

Lindegren’s application for the drug had been favorably considered by the National Institute of Mental Health several months ago, but the government’s source for LSD for research purposes in Switzerland, and unforeseen obstacles caused delays in obtaining delivery of additional supplies, he was informed.

His quota of the drug required the approval of both the Commissioner of Food and Drug Administration and the Public Health Service.

John A. Scigliano, executive secretary of the FDA-PHS Psychotomimetic Agents Advisory Committee, wrote Lindegren, “The Committee was pleased to learn of a plan to research LSD in yeast. The tolerance of yeast to LSD is not known and may be very high.”

Lindegren has already made some preliminary experiments with a related drug, ergonovine maleate, which suggest that LSD might be used profitably in yeast experiments.

Rare Art Added to SIU Collection

An unusual collection of original works of art recently purchased by SIU will be exhibited in the Mitchell Gallery in the Home Economics Building from July 3 through July 29.

The collection includes miniature tapestries, etchings, old woodcuts, water-color sketches and a illuminated page from a very old French Bible. The collection was discovered in the small town of Mitchell, S. D., and was purchased by SIU to fill in a significant part of the University’s collection of original works. It will be shown in the public even though the process of research and classification is not complete.

The collection includes items of exceptional rarity and quality, such as two woodcuts of knights on horseback engaged in battle. These pictures are filled to overflowing with figures and horses, displaying the medieval distaste for empty space in artistic design.

What may be an early New Year’s Day card is included in the exhibit. It pictures either a saint or the Christ child standing on a globe surrounded by a banner with the words “A Good Happy Year” in an old German language.

Examples of early printing are included. The old German is difficult to translate, even by experts, but it may contain popular literature of 15th and 16th century Germany.

Free Movie Set for Tonight

Carbondale recreation officials have scheduled a movie show at Winkler school tonight beginning at dusk. Admission is 50 cents and public is invited to attend the show, entitled “The Misadventures of Merlin Jones.”

The schedule of events for July 3 through July 9 is:

- July 3: Talent show at Parrish school.
- July 4: Movie at dusk.
- July 7: Movie at Anamosa Park.
- July 10: Movie at dusk.

Sixth Term Prep Students Eligible

William J. McKeeffy, dean of Academic Affairs, has submitted a correction to an article June 27 concerning requirements for a high school student’s admission.

The article stated that a student must have sophomore status or above to qualify for the sixth term prep.

McKeeffy reports that students will be considered for admission to SIU after completion of six semesters of high school.

In addition, students must furnish University entrance examination scores before being admitted.

Indian Clothing, Handicrafts
Exhibited in SIU Museum

A special exhibit of Indian clothing and handicrafts is now on view at the SIU Museum in Old Main. The exhibits, located in the special exhibits room, depict scenes from the village life of the Indian men and women of traditional Indiana in Western Illinois.

The exhibit has been constructed with items owned by the Museum and from the personal collection of Phil C. Weigand, curator of Nortli American Archives for SIU, and his wife, Celia. The Weigands spent a year in the SIU doing ethnographic work and archaeology.

Their collection includes many costumes and personal adornments used by the Indians.

Also included in the exhibit are replicas of three Huchishu huts, including a kitchen, a "God house" used as a personal religious altar, and a "sing area," where special religious rites are performed.

The exhibit will be on display in the museum until Oct. 13. The museum is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Indian Summer Theater
Backstage Area Busy Place

By Inez Rencher

Saws are still buzzing, hammerheads still pounding and machines are still humming in that section of the Agriculture Building which was under repair more than a month ago. These sounds and activities, however, are mixed with the sound of music. The 14th Annual Summer Music Theater has its stage and headquarters in the Agriculture Building. The ceilings, which on May 8 were damaged in an unsolved bombing of the building, have been reinforced and now absorb the lyric and music of popular songs.

The east wing of the building was bombed spring quarter during the heat of student protests on campus. Damages amounted to $1,500, according to recent estimates.

This section of the building, which contains three offices of the Department of Agricultural Industries, six classroom and three laboratories, has been altered. It now houses a special rehearsal and make-up area, costumes, and the rehearsal offices.

Two classrooms are used for music theater classes, but students often get lost in the music and noise of the backstage area from 10:30 a.m. to noon each day. The 40-member music theater cast has many rehearsals at this time and from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. during performances.

In the backstage rehearsal and make-up rooms, a singer may be found nearly any time laboriously going over the lyrics of his song. A couple may be seen in their dance routine. Several wigs and artificial facial pieces like the eyebrows, and mirrors wait to reflect cast members getting ready for performances.

Sawdust flies in the prop room and boards become an article of stage property as members of the cast work together in designing and building fixtures.

Two young men conscientiously sitting at a sewing machine may be sewing together pieces of muslin to become the walls of the stage background.

Announcements, schedules and review clippings are posted in the business office. The business manager spends countless hours answering the busy phones, and secretaries may be found doing the things that music theater secretaries do at borrowed desks in make-shift offices.

NFL Strike Could Cause TV Reuns

By Paul Corcoran

Television fans who endure the long dull summer of reruns will have to bear the brunt of any lockout or labor dispute at the National Football League players over carry their strike threat against ownership.

An intangible as an N.F.L. player boycott may be, it presents relevant points for league officials and the possibility for replacement shows.

Let's say reruns of pro games from other years are substituted.

It would be difficult to assure suspense if the repeats were of games from the last two or three seasons. Besides, most of them have been shown during the off season.

Thus, it would be necessary to go back 10 or 20 even 30 or 40 years to find films of pro games that fans have forgotten.

Sprinkle, for example, had a reputation as one of the meanest men in football. How would he be treated with less latter-day roughhouse defenders? Might be interesting, at that.

Championship games of the 1930's might be shown. The 1968 players—hard-pressed and overworked as they are—would have a difficult time of it with the exhibition game pay and a $15,000 minimum wage.

Take the 1940 game between the Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears. It had the makings of a classic duel between passers Sammy Baugh and Bob Waterman, the key to the "new" football.

Hoping football fans either forgot the game, or that most of them are too young to remember, the TV sponsors might build this one as the finest example of the classic confrontation of great individual and teams.

Settling down in front of the TV set, the football fan could anticipate seeing how the stars had used to describe really every move during the game. The helmets would look a little strange, and the numbers of the players appear smaller. The players would look smaller, too, as they were.

It would not take much for the fan to realize that instead of a classic duel, he was watching a classic rout.

At the time the final gun sounded, the score was 73-0 in favor of the Bears. The TV rights owners, who are paid bonus money for the event, would be well satisfied.

The pro fans of the 1960s, which is even more daunting, would notice something quite different about the earlier rerun television era. The rules allowed a runner, after tackled, to get up immediately once he had evaded the tackle. The rules are no longer allowed to play dead.

All-Star Game

Starting Pitchers Named; Mays Gets Nod in Center

HOUSTON (AP) — It will be San Francisco's Willie Mays leading off in his familiar center field spot when the National League All-Stars face the American League at the Astrodome tonight.

About the only thing more familiar than Mays in center field would be Don Drysdale as the NL's starting pitcher and the Americans will see that too.

Drysdale, the Los Angeles Dodgers' strong-armed right-hander, will be making his fifth All-Star start, tying the record set by Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies and Lefty Gomez of the New York Yankees.

"He's a pretty good one to start with," grinned Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, manager of the National League.

Drysdale, 10-1, with a 1.37 earned run average, set a record with 1/2,000 consecutive scoreless innings earlier this season. He's the most rested man on the NL staff, having last worked Friday night.

Chamberlain's Trade

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Press conferences will be held simultaneously in Los Angeles and Philadelphia today to announce what has been known for days—Mays will leave the Los Angeles Dodgers for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Associated Press reported late Friday that the 7-foot-1-center had been dealt to the Los Angeles Lakers by the Philadelphia 76ers for three players—Darrall Imhoff, Archie Clark of the Chamberlain and cash.

Although the National Basketball Association trade was consummated as early as last week, it was not made public because the announcement was made by the team. It was made by the Lakers because the 76ers gave in the Chamberlain trade.

Chamberlain was injured Saturday against the Lakers last week in Philadelphia. He has been assigned to the Chamberlain's minor league club, the Los Angeles Piranhas, and was placed on the inactive list.
