Were there more than 104?

By Diane Mitalaka
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Were there 104 or were there more? That question has arisen as a result of the release Tuesday of a list of 85 persons dropped as defendants from SIU’s suit against faculty members terminated in December because of an alleged financial exigency.

“I suspect there may have been other people—term people—who weren’t counted in the 104,” Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), said Wednesday.

The list of 85 ex-defendants, filed by SIU’s attorney, supposedly includes, among others, all term appointees who were fired in December for budgetary reasons.

Two term appointees dismissed in December told the Daily Egyptian that they were informed by their deans or chairmen they had been fired for reasons of financial exigency.

However, Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost, said Wednesday neither man was counted in the 104. Both were terminated for “other reasons” than financial exigency, Leasure said.

He said he could not explain why the men were told that they were fired due to financial exigency.

One of the term appointees, Robert Vangorder, instructor of foreign languages, said Thursday he plans to file a petition for discovery in Jackson County Circuit Court Friday. He will ask the court to order SIU to tell him why he was terminated.

Vangorder said he visited the Jackson County Courthouse Wednesday afternoon to check whether his name was on the list printed in the Daily Egyptian.

His name did not appear on the court record, he said.

Eugene Timpe, chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages, contradicted Leasure’s version of Vangorder’s termination. Vangorder “absolutely” was fired because of the declared financial exigency, he said.

“He’s a good man and we don’t like losing him,” Timpe added.

Timpe said he never saw a copy of the termination letter. Vangorder received from the office of the dean of Liberal Arts.

Vangorder said during his three years on the foreign language faculty he has received successively more teaching duties and progressive salary raises.

“My prediction is that Leasure won’t be able to come up with any other reason besides financial exigency,” Vangorder said. “I bet he still doesn’t know what the reason for my firing is, because there wasn’t any.”

Vangorder said he believes there are a number of term appointees who received termination notices in December, ostensibly for financial exigency, but were not counted in the 104.

“Basically, there are a bunch of ghosts floating around campus,” he said.

Vangorder’s situation is similar to that of G. Dean Tarter, for two years an instructor in the School of Teachahon Careers.

Tarter said his dean told him he had been terminated because of financial exigency. Then, Tarter said, he learned his job had been filled by Edwin Delmartto, one of six defendants originally named to represent the 104 in SIU’s class action suit.

Delmartto’s name appeared on Tuesday’s list of 85 ex-defendants.

“When I questioned this,” Tarter said, “the dean told me I am a victim of circumstances.”

“I don’t know what means and they won’t pinpoint it any further,” Tarter said.

Tarter’s dean, Arden L. Pratt, was out of town Thursday. Assistant Dean Donald Harbert declined comment.

University to graduate about 4,000

About 4,000 students will be graduated in SIU’s 100th commencement Tuesday in the Arena.

Graduates with last names beginning with A through K will attend the 1:30 p.m. ceremony. The remaining students will attend the 5:30 p.m. graduation.

There are 90 Ph.D. and 454 master’s degree candidates, including 153 in the sciences, 183 in the arts and humanities, and 135 in education.

The list of undergraduate degree candidates has 3,641 names.

Three students in university studies will be graduated.

Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost, and SIU Interim President, Hiram Lesar, will preside for both ceremonies.

There will be no formal speeches.

About one-fourth of the SIU faculty, selected by their colleges, will march in the procession.

A reception for graduates, their parents and other guests, has been scheduled for 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Student Center. It will be sponsored by the SIU Alumni Association.

Ted Stewart, a master’s degree candidate in music, will provide organ music for the ceremonies.

SIU graduated 4,063 students last June and 1,579 last August.

Students are required to attend graduation unless they can show good reason to be excused. According to the office of Degrees and Records, about one-third of the graduates have been excused.

Faculty Senate told more options needed by some cut faculty members

By Gary Hony
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Terminated tenured faculty members who have not yet been assured of positions at SIU next year need more options available to them, the Faculty Senate was told Thursday.

Jack Isakoff, member of the ad hoc committee to assist terminated faculty, said that positions may not be found for “about 16 tenured faculty whose contracts will expire June 30.

“Everything possible should be done to assure tenured people positions,” Isakoff told the senate. “The University has offered options, but as I see it, options won’t be acceptable to about 10 of these people.”

Isakoff listed seven points the committee has emphasized were important for the University to meet as commitments to the 104 terminated faculty.

The first point was setting up of grievance procedure for faculty members scheduled for termination who were prepared to support allegations of discrimination against them. A grievance channel has not yet been formed, Isakoff said.

The committee’s recommendation that the class action suit against the terminated faculty members be dropped is now being accomplished Isakoff said. The University announced Tuesday that the suit was being dropped against 85 of the 104.

A request that terminated faculty on continuing appointments be given a one-year notice instead of six months has been accepted by the administration, Isakoff said. A committee progress report stated Interim President Hiram Lesar has announced plans to provide them, as well as tenured personnel, with a nine-months settlement.

A request for revision of termination notices of terminated faculty members has not been entirely met by the administration, Isakoff said.

The committee recommended that the SIU faculty student ratio be studied “as it is presented to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.” Referring to the budget cuts by the IBHE this year, Isakoff said, “I don’t know what happened on that.”

The committee asked that in the future, tenure be “preserved.”

Isakoff suggested that the “formulation of policy and procedure” on administrative decisions be made in conjunction with the Faculty Senate.

Isakoff suggested that some terminated faculty who accept a two-year appointment to another department

Handicapped student drives home point

By David Ambrose
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An SIU handicapped student has been instrumental in improving the school's chances of getting government funding to continue an education program for the handicapped which was cut from last year's budget.

For the past several months, 22-year-old Tim Flannigan who is confined to a wheelchair by cerebral palsy has conducted a one-man letter campaign to State Rep. Norbert Springer, Chester, seeking appropriations to continue the program.

On Monday, the amendment to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR) budget which would give SIU $35,000 for the program moved into the Illinois Senate and is expected to be approved this week.

Springer wrote Flannigan that the amendment was introduced as a direct result of your letters, which I consider to be one of the most effective and well-written efforts to meet the needs of persons with disabilities who have received a copy of my letter.

Flannigan said he has always wanted to drive, but his efforts to learn had been thwarted by those who believed he could never learn.

In 1972 he came to SIU and learned a second method of communication, making people who had been told they could never drive into believers.

He secured a learner's permit and began instruction in spring 1973 only to have the program cut. The program, funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation, (DOT) had been canceled.

Thus began Flannigan's effort to get the program reinstated.

"If we've got a college degree and a job and you can't drive, you're going to be the most unemployed taxi driver you've ever seen," Anything you need transportation for, we (the handicapped) need transportation for, said Flannigan.

A letter to Springer on Jan. 20 explained Flannigan's viewpoints.

"If we do not have independent means of going to work...or wherever we want to go," Flannigan wrote, "the job of rehabilitation will have only been done halfway.

The people who ran the SIU program were "the only ones who ever thought I could do something," he said.

Later, Springer replied with a letter saying he had contacted DVR about the situation.

Flannigan's response was that it was Delmastro, who was responsible for the program suspension at SIU. But in the meantime, the Department of Health Education (DHE) had instituted program to train teachers for drivers' education for the handicapped.

"That gets the job done," Flannigan said about his letter.

In his letter to Springer, Flannigan said the course was offered only twice a year and that it was hard for those students who could finish the course in one quarter and the DHE students at any time.

"Finally," he wrote, "I am skeptical of learning to drive from someone who is learning to teach.

On March 15, Springer proposed an amendment to the DVR budget to grant $20,000 to SIU for a driver's education program for the handicapped.

Prospects of passage into law during this session appear uncertain.

F-Senate told of faculty options gap

Tarter's termination, except to say Tarter was "one of a number of terminations in December from the school.

Delmastro confirmed Wednesday he has signed a contract for a position at the School of Technical Careers. Tarter was on the regular Spring faculty undergraduate level, and had taught four hours of post-degree credit, said he received a salary of $600 a month. Delmastro, Tarter said, will be paid $600 a month and has no bachelor's degree.

Delmastro said he does not have a bachelor's degree because he must have one by fall semester when he starts his job at STC. He refused to discuss the reasons for termination.

"I'd rather not talk about this at all," Delmastro said.

Tarter was told he would be replaced by someone with a bachelor's degree. Tarter felt his teaching responsibilities were not related to the person at that time, he may be cut because he is teaching an undergraduate course. There would also be no assurance of an opening in his original department, Iskoff said.

Iskoff said he believed the one-year notice was given as an added incentive to make faculty members "feel good about". However, a "budget cut" is not a termination, he said.

The salaries offered to these "repositioned" terminated faculty are not as good as they were for people in those positions, Iskoff said.

George Adams, another member of the ad hoc committee, said he can't comment on that, that we have two faculty-student ratios the same. Flannigan added that there was some wrong with the method of determining the ratio at SIU.

A report led into the report of the standing committee on the budget, Richard Vangorder, CHS had said.

A different system of reporting student-faculty ratios in SIU schools and colleges may be sent to some of the University's problems with the IHBE, Mace said.

"Those faculty members who fill out the reports may not be listing as many full-time faculty members as they should be. The amount of hours a faculty member spends on teaching them to instruction outside the regular program for the handicapped.

"The SIU FTE ratio for Public Service is 6.39," Mace said. "At the University of Illinois, this figure is 4.28. We can change our figure just by the method of reporting the FTE."

Mace said he estimated about 200 FTE's could be taken out of the instructional educational ratio. One person said teaching assistants were included, another said they were not included in computing the final number," he said.

There is some disagreement over the method the administration used to arrive at the FTE figure. Mace told the Senate Finance Committee that "The SIU FTE ratio for Public Service is 6.39."

"It's unclear whether research people were included in the Spring figures for the instructional education ratio. If one person said teaching assistants were included, another said they were not included in computing the final number," he said.

There is no statement of fact, but simply a different method of assessing the services provided by the University.

The Senate also approved a book on a contract for a lease to repair a large building for the School of Medicine.

The board also approved joining the SIU Department of Special Education and of Public Schools for this summer to help train vocational personnel in the areas of special needs of special education students.

Bids miss mark

Bids for the second stage of renovation of the new building for the School of Technical Careers by the State Board were not met on Tuesday. Bids over the engineer's estimates for the job.

Bids on the remodeling were opened Thursday. Low bids totalled $13,392,000. The board also authorized advertising bids on contract and facilities planning, said Thursday.

The remodeling is to wind up by a $40 million project designed to revamp the building for the School of Medicine.

Veterinarian will examine horses at Touch of Nature

A veterinarian will examine every horse at the Touch of Nature riding stables, Jack Leggett, director, said Thursday. He said James McVicker, a Herrin veterinarian, will examine the horses Wednesday. He said he is tired of hearing hearsay evidence, Leggett said. He wants an impartial person to check the situation. Members of the Saluki Saddle Club have leveled criticism at the stables charging that the horses are in poor condition.

"I want an absolutely objective, impartial opinion," Leggett said. "I want to hear about the problems as well as the good points."

He said he is also sending a sample of the pond water to the Centralia Diagnostic lab to see if the water is too polluted for consumption by horses.

Construction on a water line to bring drinking water to the horses has been started and should be completed in a couple of days, Leggett said. He said the split hooves of the horses are the responsibility of Juanita Young, manager of the stables. He said Ms. Young did recommend that the horses be shod but that contractual arrangements can't be made over the phone.

"We're going to do what those horses need," Knight said. "We don't want to be accused of mistreating horses."

He said what is important is that the horses are properly cared for and not what some people think. Knight said the charges in the paper that the horses are in poor condition are "all a matter of opinion." He said he thinks it's a good idea to get a professional opinion from someone not connected to the University. "I want to get this out of the realm of the whole thing because people think and get the facts," he said.

Reports from SIU-C and SIU-E groups reviewing the present system council administrative-structure are among matters scheduled for presentation Thursday at the SIU Board of Trustees meeting at Edwardsville.

Also due for consideration by the board is a recommendation from interim President Hiram Lear on whether Keith Leasure should be retained as vice president for academic affairs and provost. Lear has said previously that he will ask the board in June to keep Bruce R. Swineburn as dean of students for next year.

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, said Wednesday he would report to the board on the status of the proposed East Campus Recreational Complex. Low bid in the second round of bidding for construction of the project, on Tuesday, was more than $1 million higher than the project's $9.9 million budget ceiling.

Trustees to hear recommendations on System Council, retaining Leasure

The Student Conduct Code Committee, a six-member review board assigned to recommend changes in SIU disciplinary policy, hopes to issue a preliminary report: "within the next month," according to Tom Busch, co-chairman of the committee.

Busch, assistant to the dean of students, said the committee, which began meeting last December, must determine changes in judicial board procedures before the recommendations can be considered by campus groups. Busch said he has to have recommendations implemented by fall term.

He said the formation of the committee began in February. Busch and George Mace, former dean of students, believed the present code implemented in 1969 was vague and had structural problems.

Carl Harris, coordinator of student discipline, and Busch jointly chair the group. Busch said other committee members are two undergraduate students, Jeff Lohman and Tom Mikel, a graduate student in English; Scholz; a University Housing representative; Joe Camille, Thompson Point unit manager; and faculty member Harris Rubin, current chairman of the Student Conduct Board.

Busch said the committee has examined areas concerning student rights and responsibilities, jurisdiction, disciplinary sanctions and violations.

The committee's report, to be called the University Code of Student Conduct, will break down SIU's drug policies into four classifications:

- Sale and possession of hard drugs, such as narcotics and hallucinogens.
- Possession and use.
- Manufacture, sale and delivery of marijuana.
- Illegal possession of marijuana

Blame the system

To the Daily Egyptian:

Society should not use the death penalty because criminals are not responsible for their crimes. Modern social theory holds the environment, the "system" responsible. Therefore, to prevent crime, one must change the "system" in some scientifically proven way. Punishment of any kind, let alone capital punishment, would then be obsolete.

The modern social theorists focus on society; society must be changed rather than the individual. That is, the common sense relationship between crime and victim is reversed. Society is the criminal, the criminal is victim.

These criminals-turned-victims turn out to be members of ethnic and ethnic minorities. Intrinsic in the notion of minority is however the numerical relationship; no ethnic or racial group has a monopoly on criminality. Crime is what a relatively small number of people do, and the majority through various mechanisms attempts to protect itself and to change the criminal minority. To these end the majority commits resources that otherwise could be spent on themselves; these resources are allocated to a large apparatus of social control and coercion—against the criminal minority.

What the modern social theorists propose—and Jim Dodd's communication is hardly original in this matter—sounds like a joke; unfortunately they are deadly serious. The minorities in society naturally have no jurisdiction in the criminal: the apparatus of social control and coercion is to be turned against the society itself.

The resources that the majority originally produced and sacrificed for a modicum of domestic tranquility, are to be used to change the majority and not the criminal minority.

Who is going to do all this, on behalf of these criminals transformed into victims? You guessed it: the social theorists. They know the answers. Naturally, it is not they who need to be changed; there is nothing wrong with them just because they want total control over society's apparatus of coercion and social control. It would be unthinkable to consider them the real criminals and stick them in jail.

Clearly, the social theorists haven't solved any problems of criminality. They merely redefined them. Since someone has to change, certainly the resources of society are better conserved and used if a numerical minority are induced to change rather than the majority.

The senior from Administration of Justice shows a serious and worthy concern, but his recommendations are an insult. The argument—for which he is not responsible—depends on the majority of the limited use of the death penalty. However, the criminal minority will continue to have unlimited access to it.

The solutions revolutionaries certainly have no intentions of giving it up in the "long overdue, critically needed revolution."

Reforming first offenders

The best way to keep a first offender from leading a life of crime is to keep him out of jail. This is just what the St. Louis Circuit Court is trying to do. Under the proposed plan, the prosecutor will not prosecute first offenders charged with nonviolent crimes. The offenders will be given parole or probation treatment related to his alleged crime. This could include participation in a counseling or psychiatric program, employment assistance, tax amnesty, or whatever leads to the law breaking.

The program is based on experience that shows that once someone has been convicted, jailed and acquired a criminal record he usually keeps on breaking the law. In other words, the first offender is exposed to criminals that initiate him to the hard, cold facts of crime.

When the first offender gets out of jail, his prison record makes it hard to find a decent job so he uses some of the tactics he learned from his jailmates and lands back in jail again.

Once a man enters prison there's a 98 per cent chance he will return. So the best bet is to keep as many men as possible out of jail.

Under the proposed plan in St. Louis the accused first-time shoplifter, burglar or car thief would not acquire a police record if he successfully completed the program. This would include completing a stipulated probation period and following through with the prescribed treatment. A plan similar to the one proposed for St. Louis is now underway in Flint, Mich. Repeated offenses have been avoided in 77 per cent of the cases in Flint.

America's courts and police are overburdened with law breakers. The proposed program in St. Louis could be an excellent way to ease the burden from the courts and the police. At the same time the program would help the first offender back on his feet instead of kicking him when he's down.

What's his line?

ERA should be compromised

To some groups the Equal Rights Amendment means an end to discrimination for all women. To other groups the ERA is the greatest threat women in America ever faced. If the same 34-word clause that states women can have such opposing definitions to bitterly opposing organizations, then it is too ambiguous and vague in its present form and should be rewritten and made more specific before it is allowed to become a part of the Constitution.

The amendment states, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex." Thirty-three states have ratified. Thirty-eight are needed to pass the 27th amendment. Tennessee and Nebraska who earlier ratified recently rescinded the ERA. The Illinois Senate lacked four yes votes getting the necessary two-thirds last week. League of women voters and other proponents are fighting side by side in Springfield with Stop ERA and other opponents.

Groups at both ends of the spectrum are stalemated in their beliefs—haven't budged nor are inclined to. To ever appease a substantial majority, the ERA will have to be revised to strike a medium appealing both to women in careers in the home and to women with careers in the business world.

Propponents claim the amendment as it stands will guarantee equal pay for equal jobs, open better jobs to women, allow easier entrance to professional schools and a host of other benefits. Opponents vow the ERA will automatically make women: responsible for 50 per cent of the income; lose social security benefits; have to establish their own credit and serve in the armed forces.

The opposition is promising women they'll lose more than they ever hoped to gain. Proponents oppose the trench are shouting that women have too long been suppressed and abused. The ERA, they claim, will deliver $5 per cent of this nation from bondage.

The amendment to be most valuable, desirable and acceptable needs to compromise. It should include some guarantees to women who fear the ERA will sacrifice their opportunity to remain in the home. On the other hand, women who jump the career bandwagon should no longer be forced to work for less pay for the same jobs, be denied warranted promotions, nor suffer any other discrimination on the basis of sex.

America is in a transition period. Its women are in various stages of change. Woman no longer has a role per se. She may once have had. But no longer. If the ERA is to pass and then be successful, it will have to accommodate women as a group, not a group of women.
Intolerable threat

By Senator Gaylord Nelson

(Excerpted from testimony before a House Judiciary Committee considering legislation to curb illegal Government snooping. The Wisconsin Democrat is sponsor of a bill called the Surveillance Practices and Procedures Act.)

Uncontrolled Government wiretaps and other surveillance activities constitute an intolerable threat to fundamental constitutional rights and liberties. Individual freedom becomes meaningless in our democratic system—just as it is in a society where the government can invade an individual's privacy at any valid reason for spying on individuals exercising freedom—the Fifth Amendment.

As a consequence of the 1965 General Telephone and Holding Corporation v. FTC dissenting opinion, the continued use of wiretaps to obtain national security information is an intolerable threat to the right of privacy.

This threat is not just a recent example. The disclosur e of the Nixon tapes has brought to light the continued threat of illegally conducted wiretaps.

In this letter, I wish to comment on two matters: the first is the continued use of national security wiretaps to obtain information, and the second is the Supreme Court's failure to protect the right of privacy.

Ban nonreturnables

On several occasions we have referred favorably to the so-called "Oregon Plan" which bans the use of most wiretaps except where they are considered necessary.

Ban nonreturnables

The Oregon Plan is an indicated step in the right direction. It is a step that has been long overdue.

The present Administration maintains that it may install wiretaps in certain situations. In International conspiracy denounced

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is an open letter to all American people, Vietnamese people, Philippino people and people all over the world who are concerned with justice and peace.

Dear Friends

An international conspiracy involving superpowers such as the United States, Canada, France and Japan has been making use of oil oligopolies has been buiding up a demand in public notice. In their frantic search for oil, these powers have been feverishly exploring for offshore deposits in the South China Sea. The Thieu regime in South Vietnam has not only abetted the actions of these countries, but has also invaded and occupied some of the Nan-shan islands in the South China Sea in order to further their ambitious claims on the ownership of the Republic of the Philippines has done no less. It, too, has occupied illegally a part of the Nan-shan archipelago.

It is an indisputable fact that the Chinese government has the sole sovereignty over the national rights over these islands. As early as the 13th century, Chinese explorers have discovered the islands, and numerous books have been written attesting to this fact. On December 1, 1947, the Nationalist government of the Republic of China officially noted the world that the Nan-shan islands belong to the Chinese government, and such a claim has not been disputed since. Since 1952, Chinese army has been stationed on the Taiping Island—one of the main islands in the Nan-shan archipelago. Therefore, by mandate of international law, the Nan-shan islands do rightfully belong to the Chinese government and no such claim has not been disputed since. We, a group of concerned Chinese students at SIU, do hereby denounce the encroachment on Chinese territory sovereignty by the South Vietnamese regime and the Philippine government. We urge the people of this world to expose this conspiracy and injustice, and we hope that the people of Vietnam and the people of the Philippines with unite with us in our quest for justice.

Recently, on May 18, a peaceful demonstration was held in Chicago to protest against the South Vietnamese and Philippino invasions. We hope that you, our friends, would share with us our spirit for justice and our love for our land and join us in denunciation for this illegal and unjust action taken by the Thieu and Marcos regime.

Syrians, Israelis complete exchange of war prisoners

By The Associated Press

Jubilant crowds in Damascus and Tel Aviv welcomed home on Thursday the last prisoners captured in the October Middle East war, while United Nations troops began patrolling the Israeli-Syrian truce line on the Golan Heights.

The exchange of prisoners—56 Israelis for 36 Syrians, 16 Iraqis and 5 Moroccans—was part of the disengagement agreement worked out between Israel and Syria by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The final exchange followed last Saturday's release of wounded POWs.

In the next phase of the agreement, the two sides will pull back their armies which until last week had engaged in artillery duels on the barren Golan Heights. U.N. peacekeepers will patrol the demilitarized strip.

In Egypt, President Anwar Sadat pledged that all Arab territory occupied by Israel would be liberated within a year. The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram quoted him as telling troops on the Suez front: "I visited your positions here in June last year, and we made a pledge to meet again today after a year so we renew the pledge to meet next year after completing our fight for the liberation of Arab territories."

Bank stung for $3,800 by con artists

PITTSFIELD (AP)—"They kind of wheedled us out of some money," said Earl Grigsby, executive vice president of the Farmers State Bank which was swindled out of $3,800 by two sleight-of-hand artists.

Grigsby said two men walked into the bank Wednesday with a stack of small bills totaling $250 and walked out minutes later counting the $200 and $50 bills assistant cashier Earl Graham had given them in exchange. "I don't even think he (Graham) knew what happened," said Grigsby. "They wanted big bills for some small ones and they messed around with them on the counter."

"They didn't like this and they didn't like that and before you know it, they were gone with some of our money. They were smooth, they're artists,"

Graham, the teller, has worked at the bank for more than 35 years.

Grigsby said he thinks the two men may have hypnotized Graham. "I wasn't here at the time. Good thing too," Grigsby said. "They might have done me worse."

Career Center to stay open over summer to aid students

The Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) will be open all summer to continue helping any graduating student or other student seeking employment, if the student is registered with the center.

Vacancies will also continue to come in this summer and the weekly bulletins, K-12, College, and Business and Government, will also be printed and distributed each Wednesday from the CPPC during the months.

Teaching candidates leaving campus are particularly encouraged to notify the CPPC of their summer addresses because most school systems issue their vacancy notices during the summer.

Elementary and secondary teaching candidates should contact Mrs. Jan Tierney at the CPPC about job opportunities in their teaching fields.

All graduating students are also reminded that alumni placement services are available once the student has received his or her diploma.

Any student having definite plans following graduation for a position with a company, graduate school, traveling, or who is not seeking employment is asked to report his or her status to the CPPC, Woody Hall before leaving campus.

Recruiters will also be interviewing on campus on a limited basis during the summer months.

Students returning to school this fall and interested in interviewing are encouraged to make appointments at the CPPC early in the semester.

Companies are already making arrangements for interviewing dates for both fall and spring semesters.
Admissions staff schedules student help session Friday

By Debby Ratemann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students who are fed up with SIU, stuck of their major or lack of living on the poverty line, or upset about the new semester system can get help Friday in Ballroom A in the Student Center.

Tom McGinnis and other staff members of the Office of Admissions and Records will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Center "to help students with their problems," McGinnis said.

"We talk to students daily; we're a very student-oriented office," McGinnis said Thursday. "We want to help continuing students if it's feasible, or we'll refer them to the right place to get help."

"We don't want students to leave here mad," McGinnis said. "Give us a chance to help you."

McGinnis said the program is "in-directly" aimed at keeping students enrolled. "As of May 1 we had even more applications and admissions than we did that time last year," he said. "In the last couple of years Migrant teachers seek volunteers

Two master degree candidates in the Department of Linguistics are seeking volunteers to help them teach varied subjects to non-English-speaking migrant workers in Carma near Benton.

Jane Stewart and Mary Jo Gonzalez started working four or five nights a week with the migrants last month. Ms. Stewart said. She said they plan to carry on the teaching program until September.

Ms. Stewart said she was recently notified that their application for a $5,000 Academic Excellence Grant has been approved. She said the funds will be used to pay all volunteers and materials costs.

International grad reception planned

A reception honoring graduating international students will be given by the International Education Hospitality Committee from 12 to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the International Lounge, Woody Hall.

All students are welcome, according to Margaret Williams of the committee.

Eight accused of swindling in four unrelated schemes

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal grand jury accused eight persons Thursday of swindling thousands of dollars from unwary victims through four unrelated schemes.

The victims included seekers of overseas employment, businessmen and free lance writers.

John Benson of Chicago was accused of bilking about $200,000 from more than 1,500 persons seeking overseas jobs through his agency, Benson International Ltd., and U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

For a fee ranging from $150 to $250, Benson promised to match clients' qualifications with overseas jobs that never existed and failed to provide the promised refunds for the job requests he didn't fulfill, Thompson said.

In another indictment, Sanford Small, of Des Plaines, and Maurice Solomon, of Skokie, were accused of soliciting more than $100,000 for advertisements that were never published.

The two men told businessmen the ads would appear in the "Fraternal Digest," a magazine they claimed had a substantial circulation among fraternal organizations, Thompson said.

He said the ads were never published and the magazine was a nonindexed alphabetical listing of 25,000 businessmen.

Paul E. Press was accused in a third scheme of swindling about $100,000 from 12 authors seeking publication, said Thompson.

Press, who since January 1973 has been operating from a post office box in Atlantic, Ohio, sought manuscripts and asked the authors to provide the names and addresses of 300 of their friends who might be interested in buying the book, Thompson said.

The indictment charged that Press offered the books at rates advertised as pre-publication prices. The books were never published and the payments were not refunded.

Four persons were indicted in connection with an alleged kickback scheme that victimized the International Harvester Co.

The indictment accused Kenneth J. Bryza, a former purchasing agent of Harvester, with accepting kickbacks from manufacturing sales representatives conducting business with the firm.

Asian women to tour city, visit agencies

Seven women from Korea, Indonesia and Malaysia will arrive in Carbondale Friday for a one-week visit to observe the city's voluntary service agencies.

The Division of International Education will sponsor a reception for the visitors Wednesday from noon until 5 p.m. in the Student Center.

The women are being sponsored on a five-week travel-study seminar to the United States by the National League of Women Voters and the Overseas Education Fund program.

The women spent the first three weeks in Washington, D.C. and will end their trip with a week's review and evaluation in San Francisco after leaving Carbondale.

The seminar is being sponsored to provide women with a greater role in improving conditions in underprivileged countries, said Marcel Harwood of the League of Women Voters.

Their visit to Carbondale is to give the seven women an idea of how a small, Midwestern city attempts to solve its problems through agencies, she said.

They will tour agencies including Women's Center, Care House, YMCA nursery schools and day care centers.

Contestants spell double trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Illinois youngsters were eliminated in the final day's competition of the 47th annual spelling bee Thursday.

Clare Brandys, 13, of Dixon spelled tachetanelle as tachetinal and washed out in the 13th round; Dustin Johnson, 13, of East Peoria, spelled tonisulamide as tonisulamide, and was eliminated in the 13th round.

Long-range planning urged to deter major world crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Interior
Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said
Thursday the nation and the world face a major crisis of natural resources within 25 years unless they adopt long-range planning to avoid it.

"If we don’t do this between now and the turn of the century, civilization will be faced with virtually rebuilding itself," Morton said at a group interview.

Morton said he has been quietly trying to get authorized for the government to make long-range national plans but he did not know whether the administration would formally propose it.

Morton said many problems, including the present energy problem, have stemmed from the country’s failure to plan ahead.

Morton said he particularly wants legislation providing for land use planning—whether it is the admistration’s proposal or an alternative version.

"We just don’t project forward,"Morton complained. "We don’t have the machinery to do it. Our political system isn’t geared to it. It just doesn’t happen.

"We ought to have the capacity of dealing with 25 years from now."

"On land use planning, I don’t think we can afford that lack of planning," Morton said. "We are going to get into some unworkable situations if we go on like that."

Asked whether the need for land use planning and a national energy policy were leading the United States closer to a planned economy,
Morton said:

"There’s no question you are going toward a planned environment. The question is whether the decision-making should be.

Couple turns carousel
into marriage-go-round

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Marriage is a merry-go-round for Alan and Marilyn McConnell.

For when they were married on a carousel at the Los Angeles County Fair nearly five years ago, the couple made a pact to repeat the wedding ceremony each year.

"I like it," says McConnell, 24.
"The traditional vows of marriage don’t seem to hold today. We felt that the usual ways of doing things were quite hypocritical."

Each year on Sept. 19, the McConnells find a justice of the peace.
Then while gently swirling around on a merry-go-round, repeat their marriage vows.

They have marked their wedding anniversary twice at the Indiana
State Fair, which McConnell says has a fine merry-go-round, once at Flagstaff, Ariz., and once at Las Vegas.

The McConnells are already searching for a merry-go-round for this year’s ceremony but say they are having trouble finding a first-class carousel in Miami.

Mrs. McConnell, 25, sees their anual renewal of the marriage vows as a “spiritual thing between two people. For most people, an an-iversary becomes rather mundane after a while.”

“The excitement and thrills are gone. This way, you get to have a honeymoon every year,” she adds.

McConnell runs a classical guitar workshop, designs jewelry, dabbles in the mail order business, writes and teaches astrology. His wife helps trace people’s family trees.

Mrs. McConnell feels the annual renewal of vows is a constructive way of relieving tension in a relationship.

Morton said that in the United States, planning decisions should be made as close as possible to the local level, and not be centralized in the federal government.

BAC coffers empty; leader to request emergency funds

By Debby Ratemann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Black Affairs Council (BAC) spent the last of its $20,000 budget "a month and a half ago," BAC coordinator Edgar Philpot said Thursday.

"We'll have to ask for emergency funding pretty soon," Philpot said, "to last us until the Board of Trustees approves next year's budget.

Philpot, who will serve as coordinator again next year, said the $16,500 expected to be allocated to BAC for the coming year is not enough.

"I don't think we can survive with that," Philpot said. "I expect black enrollment to be up a few hundred, but we're getting less money."

Philpot said he expects 1,700 to 2,000 black students next year. Philpot's administration began this year with a $10,000 deficit from Bill Clark's administration the year before. Even if he has to accept an emergency allocation, Philpot said he does not expect to run up more than a $300 deficit this year.

The budget breakdown for this past year included $4,449 in student wages for Philpot, a comptroller and two student secretaries. The largest chunk—$10,500—went to programming, which included the BAC movie series, Summer Fest, Commemoration of Martin Luther King and the prison program.

Black History Month cost $2,000. Uhuru-Shaka, the BAC newspaper, cost $6,000. Philpot said BAC is "looking for alternative ways to get money" for next year.

Ladies lose fight to save shade trees

BLOOMINGDALE (AP)—Some 50 women lost their fight Thursday to save 45 large shade trees from destruction by a road construction crew.

The court finally beat them, refusing to issue an injunction halting DuPage County workmen from cutting down the trees to make room for a four-lane thoroughfare.

When workmen began wielding their saws Wednesday, the women used their cars and bodies to block the efforts. Then a lawyer volunteered to seek an injunction.

The women carried signs marked with poet Joyce Kilmer's words, "Only God can make a tree...."

Mrs. Carolyn Somerville, 34, who led the protest, said, "When we moved to this town there were trees, but now it's getting to be another typical Chicago suburb-wall-to-wall concrete. Those lovely shade trees have been standing for half a century."

Shortage, slow speeds reduce holiday deaths

CHICAGO (AP)—The fuel shortage and slower driving speeds has reduced the rate at which motorists are getting killed to the lowest in the nation’s history, the National Safety Council said Thursday.

This trend was reflected in the council’s projection of fatalities for the July 4th weekend, which are about one-third below the last four-day observance of Independence Day two years ago.

For the first four months of the year, the council said, traffic deaths occurred at an annual rate of 3.4 deaths per 100 million miles traveled.

“We believe that fuel shortage factors have played a large part in the reduction from a rate of 4.5 last year, said Vincent Toafy, president of the council.

The council estimated that 450 to 900 persons would be killed during the 102-hour weekend that begins at 6 p.m. July 3 and ends at midnight July 7.

In 1972, the last four-day observance of the July 4th holiday, 758 persons lost their lives on the nation’s roads. The council’s projection for that holiday had been between 900 and 990.

The estimate for the upcoming Fourth of July is the lowest in 28 years for a four-day celebration of that holiday.

“The lifesaving trend in traffic accidents that appeared last winter at the onset of the energy crisis still seems to be with us,” Toafy said.

He added that if all motorists used safety belts deaths would be down by another 125.

The downturn was particularly evident at the end of last month when the nation celebrated Memorial Day, the first warm-weather holiday since serious fuel shortages brought on a nationwide speed limit of 55 miles an hour.

It was the safest three-day Memorial Day in 14 years: 388 persons killed as opposed to 486 the year before.

The safety council says that in an auto crash, a person’s chance of survival is four times greater at 50 miles an hour than it would be at 75.

The council estimates that 8,500 lives a year could be saved with 75 per cent compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit.

D-Day recalled by veterans returning to Omaha Beach

SAINTE-MERE EGLISE, France (AP) — Ol Tatarskiwski came back to Omaha Beach and remembered D-Day 30 years ago Thursday.

At one point he was saying, "It was probably the greatest thing that happened in my life."

Then he (pointed the spot where he was badly wounded by German shellfire as American GIs were coming ashore in a massive, costly but successful invasion to free Europe from Nazi domination.

Now Tatarskiwski, who was a 21-year-old signalman in the U.S. 1st Infantry Division on D-Day, was saying: "It was a horrible, hectic, unbelievable day."

The chaos was unbelievable. There were dead GIs everywhere. I kept stumbling into one dismembered body after another.

A computer analyst for the U.S. government in Oakhurst, N.J., he had come back with many others for the religious services, military parades and ceremonies in the Normandy towns and villages where troops from the United States, Britain, Belgium, Canada, the Netherlands, Norway and France fought to establish a toehold on the Continent.

But beyond the official functions

Third straight day of battle spawns casualties in Vietnam

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Fighting raged between South and North Vietnamese forces for the third straight day Thursday over the government-held village of An Don, 25 miles north of Saigon, field reports said.

South Vietnamese troops smashed a two-group North Vietnamese attack Wednesday night, leaving nearly 300 casualties on both sides but the attackers launched another assault Thursday. The Saigon military command listed government losses as at least 27 soldiers killed and 43 wounded. Thursday's fighting produced an additional 30 South Vietnamese casualties.

According to field reports, the North Vietnamese, led by tanks, raced artillery into An Don, a Ben Cat district town nearly a mile to the east, and a government column about half a mile south of the village. An Don and Ben Cat lie in the heart of the "iron triangle" along the Saigon River corridor.

Tatarskiwski said, "This is the first time I have come back. I just wanted to see this place again." His overiding memory of D-Day, he said, was "just trying to survive under a sky black with bombers and a beach stinking of death."

The Allied armada numbered some 200,000 men and almost 5,000 ships.

Author Cornelius Ryan, who wrote, "The Longest Day," estimated total Allied casualties were between 10,000 and 12,000 in the first 24 hours of the invasion.
Omaha shotgun sniper slain during gun battle with police

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A shotgun-wielding ex-convict was killed by police Thursday when he emerged from a burning rooming house after fatally shooting a policeman and wounding 10 others.

Elza Carr, 32, held officers at bay for nearly five hours before flames apparently set off by tear gas drove him to the porch of the house, where he died in a fusillade of police bullets.

Patrolman Paul Nieds, 32, died from shotgun wounds in the head. He was shot during an attempt to shoot tear gas into the rooming house on Omaha’s north side, where Carr was holding officers off.

OMAHA Police Chief Richard Anderson said Nieds had entered the front porch and was standing in the front door when Carr shot him from a stairway. Anderson said Nieds made the decision to approach the house on his own and was not ordered to do so.

Eight other policemen, a bystander and Carr’s half-brother were wounded. One officer, Sgt. Guy Goodrich, was listed in serious condition Thursday.

Authorities said the incident began about 9 p.m. Wednesday when Carr’s landlady, Mary Owens, called the half-brother, Jesse McDonald, to say that Carr was not feeling well and needed $10.

McDonald went to the rooming house, police said, and talked to Carr. He left the $10 with Mrs. Owens, and Carr shot him as he left the building, authorities said. Police were then called and between 20 and 25 surrounded the building as Carr began firing shotgun pellets at them.

Spectators surrounded the house during the incident. At times the crowd jeered police efforts to persuade Carr to surrender.

The house was damaged, but fire fighters aided by a steady rain kept it from being destroyed.

McDonald later told police that Carr had “been acting strange lately.” Police, searching for a motive, speculated that a possible emotional problem may have led to the sniping.

Campus Briefs

A documentary film made by SIU Film Productions has won its sixth national award.

“The Maple Sugar Farmer” received the coveted Blue Ribbon Award of the American Film Festival in New York City. Produced by Craig Hinde and Robert Davis of the SIU faculty, the film tells the story of a retired Southern Illinois farmer, Sherman Graff of Murphysboro, who has kept alive a generation family tradition of making maple syrup and sugar.

Other major awards which the film has won include Best of Category at the San Francisco International Film Festival and the Columbus Film Festival, the Silver Cindy Award from the International Film Producers of America, the Golden Eagle Award from CINE (Council on International Non-Theatrical Events), and the Bronze Award of the Atlantic International Film Festival.

A Blue Ribbon Award is given the best film in each category. “The Maple Sugar Farmer” won its award in the category “Profiles.”

Arthur D. Cohen, SIU coal geologist, recently discussed the origin of coal at a University of Illinois botany department colloquium, in Urbana. He also conducted a colloquium session sponsored by the Illinois Geological Survey on some aspects of the origin and decomposition of peats.

Cohen will continue research work this summer on peat deposits and the formation of coal in the Okefenokee Swamp of southern Georgia. The project is financed by the National Science Foundation.

Jay Zimmerman, associate professor of geology at SIU, is serving until June 30 on the teaching staff of a University of British Columbia geology field course in the Alps Mountains of Switzerland, Italy and France. He left for the temporary assignment June 5.
Mental hospital officials refuse to comment on deaths

CHICAGO (AP)—The heads of Elgin State Hospital and the Illinois Department of Mental Health withheld comment Thursday on a report that staff indifference and medical neglect had caused unnecessary deaths at the facility.

Allegations in the report by the Illinois Legislative Investigation Commission included the misuse of drugs, inadequate facilities and a lack of leadership.

Actions resulting in death have been covered up by hospital officials and self-serving reports form biased sources, the report said.

Robert J. Mackie, hospital superintendent, and Dr. LeRoy Levitt, director of the mental health department, said they will not comment until reading the report. There were 417 deaths at the hospital from Jan. 1, 1971 to Aug. 31, 1972, the report said, but only 104 autopsies were performed.

"We believe that autopsies have not been performed," he said. .."because such autopsies may have exposed circumstances of staff and medical neglect, which we have been working to prevent by administering to possible adverse publicity.

The potential for hospital cover-ups is facilitated by the infrequency of autopsies and the biased sources of information available," the report said.

The report listed the names and circumstances under which seven patients died and said these were examples of unnecessary deaths.

In three of these cases the death irs allegedly resulted directly or indirectly from assaults by other patients, one patient allegedly was left at the mental institution after surgery to save his life; an escaped patient was struck and killed by a car several hours after he was reported seen in downtown Elgin; another allegedly was ignored after suffering a heart attack and epileptic seizure; and another reportedly choked to death on his own blood from chewing his tongue while improperly restrained.

The report recommended establishment of a permanent commission to review medical services, higher pay to attract better medical and staff personnel; better training for staff members; and monitoring physicians serving state-financed internships in psychiatry at the Illinois State Psychiatric Institute to serve at least half their internships at such less desirable hospitals as the one at Elgin.

Committeewoman named White House assistant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Patricia Sullivan Lindh, a Republican national committeewoman from Louisiana who has been active in the equal rights movement, was named Thursday as White House special assistant in charge of women's programs.

She will take over a post vacated last March by Jill Ruckelshaus.

Presidential counselor Anne Armstrong announced the appointment of Mrs. Lindh to her assistant at $22,000 a year and said, "I chose her for her commitment to the advancement of women."

Mrs. Lindh, 6t, a native of Toledo, Ohio, told an aide that her aim will be to try to make middle-class women in America aware of the problems that are facing their sex and to get them behind the equal rights movement. She said she feels women should be in policy levels of every department of government.

A founder of Women in Politics, a group of the Louisiana Women's Political Caucus, she resigned from the National Republican National Committee post she has held for about two months. She was a member of the platform committee at the GOP National Convention.

Since her marriage, she has lived abroad from 1955 to 1965 in Singapore, Kuwait and Pakistan.

Charges mount for Marion man

MARION (AP)—A man awaiting trial on two nearby year-old charges of impregnating two young girls has been charged with the rape and murder of a third white female child. A spokesman for the Williamson County prosecutor's office said the man was never tried on the first two charges because the court docket was too crowded: "It just wasn't the right time," he said, adding that the man has been provided an attorney.

The girl's nude body was found last December on the 36-member National Guardsman's lawn, in a stroller lamp on a dark dead-end Marion avenue near Blythew's home. She was strangled and had been dead about a day, according to the coroner's office. A man who lives on the street discovered her body after someone threw a rock through a nearby window. John Buckner, the girl's father, said she had been missing since Saturday afternoon when she went to a friend's house while visiting him in Marion. The route home would have taken her past the house where Blythew lived alone. His parents are divorced and she usually stayed with her mother.

Howard, who conducted a news conference to announce the suspect, later in a telephone interview he didn't recall any other charges against Blythew.

A check of the circuit court clerk's records by a local reporter showed Blythew was arrested July 30 for an indescribable offense and on Aug. 14 for disorderly conduct by "alarming" another girl. Both files, the clerk's office said, are open. "He was later unavailable for comment, but his office confirmed and had no information in those files," the spokesman said, "just hadn't come up."
Hartzog’s track record speaks for itself

By Bruce Shaplin
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The record of Lew Hartzog speaks for itself. Hartzog will finish out his 14th year as head coach of the SIU track team this Saturday, as the NCAA finals come to an end in Austin, Texas.

Over the past years, Hartzog has produced 12 Olympians and four Americans. His teams have won 10 conference championships in five years of competition in the Midwestern Conference.

Hartzog has gained national attention as the college coach of 100 yard dash world record holder Irving Charette.

In a recent interview, Crockett told of his experience with Hartzog.

"The first time I came to his house, he drove up in a damn truck," said Crockett. "He always wanted me to feel comfortable. He told me how there were a lot of blacks at Southern Illinois, and it was a liberal, no race school. The day I went to see the campus, the first thing we saw was a Confederate flag. O! Lewis, he was really upset. But I signed (a letter of intent) to go to the same school. Lewis was an honest guy and he helped me a lot."

The coaching philosophy of Hartzog has played an important role in the success of SIU track.

"I attempt to get total dedication out of a kid," said Hartzog. "I have always been a firm believer that you can’t be trying to instill in the kids a burning desire to win."

"I’m in the best shape I have ever been in and I credit Coach Hartzog for that," said Peter Nickerson, all-American the last two years.

Hartzog’s recruitment program is one that has turned the track has been on the rise.

"We have two basic methods of how we hear about prospective athletes," explained Hartzog. "You hear about the kids either through track publications or interested friends and ex-athletes."

Hartzog said that they begin looking at high school track meets during the spring season.

"By the end of their junior year, you usually know which kids you would like," said Hartzog.

Before Hartzog contacts a prospective athlete, he contacts the high school coach and the track coach. "We check with the counseling department to make sure the kid has the grades to attend SIU, then we ask the coach for permission to talk to the boy," said Hartzog.

"When we contact the athlete we usually send him a questionnaire, then we call him to find out if he’s interested," said Hartzog.

By this time, Hartzog explained, he usually knows if he has a chance to sign a kid to a scholarship. "You just get a feeling," Hartzog said.

Sometimes Hartzog will lose a prospective athlete to another school, but he says, "If we can get 75 per cent of the kids we recruit, we’re in great shape."

Hartzog credits assistant Rick Smith for the success of their recruiting program. "Rick does all of the legs," said Hartzog.

The top performance for a Hartzog team was a fourth-place finish in the 1982 NCAA championships with three standout individuals, the Salukis scored 86 team points.

This year before the NCAA meet, Hartzog called the 1974 squad, "the best group I have ever taken to the nationals. We’re in excellent shape."

If there is one weakness in the Hartzog track program, it’s in the weights. "We try to recruit people who can score points," said Hartzog. "But only about 20 good weight men a year, so the recruiting is a challenge."

Bill Barrett, who won the Illinois intercollegiate title in the hammer throw, threw a personal record 13.9 for first place honors.

"Lew is probably one of the top three track coaches in the country," said Barrett, "he has a lot to be grateful for coach for."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Pinch-hitter Chris Arnold's two-run triple and Greg Mabry's wind-blown triple sparked a seven-run, fourth-inning rally that lifted San Francisco Giants to a 9-5 victory over the New York Mets Wednesday afternoon in a second-place showdown.

Lou Brock's walk-off, run-scoring doubles by Gary Thomasson and Bruce Miller triggered the Giants' ace Tom Heintzelman and Reggie Jackson's belted a ground-rule double on a strikeout.

Mabry belted his triple with two out and the Mets off Lynn McGlothen, 7-3.

Harrelson also drove up in a damn truck.
