if you want to start nit-picking, the Saluki cagers may have narrowly missed an NCAA tournament bid. But the Salukis were in no mood for nit-picking Thursday after a New York-based selection committee did its nit-picking and named SIU as a contender.

"Any time you get invited to a post-season tournament, you have to be satisfied," Saluki coach Paul Lambert remarked Thursday, obviously satisfied. "Our goal was to get in a post-season tournament and we did, so we're happy."

While missing an NCAA bid wasn't bothering the coach nor the team Thursday, it apparently was a near-miss. Lambert learned through a private source that his team may have missed a berth by two points, so to speak.

"I had a source close to the NCAA committee who said that the talk at Wednesday's meeting centered around Cincinnati's beat Duquesne. The Saluki mentor explained, "Our hopes hinged on whether Cincinnati beat Duquesne, which they did 72-70."

That narrow win in their season finale Tuesday night gave the Bears a 5-5 mark with 16 straight wins and apparently sealed NIT for the Salukis.

The Bears were one of only five independents selected to the NCAA, joining Creighton, Notre Dame, Marquette and Utah State in the competition. That drop from nine teams a year ago eased the disappointment considerably for the Salukis.

"Their taking only five independents means that the NIT field becomes that much more difficult," Lambert said. "It really puts the NIT back into the

Walker outlines Southern Illinois projects

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In his sixth but not quite sell-out performance of budget oratory, Gov. Dan Walker said Thursday that his budget won't cause any tax increase, will hold the line on local taxes and, in general, will meet the needs of people "caught in a deep recession."

The tired-looking Illinois chief executive held the sixth of seven airport press conferences at the Southern Illinois Airport.

Accompanied by five aides and about as many charts and graphs, Walker gave an idea of what's in store for Southern Illinois, and SIU in particular, and he said all of his programs outlined in the budget meet with legislative approval.

"We've got some goodies in there for SIU," he told President Warren W. Brandt before his presentation. The governor was referring to remodeling provisions for SIU buildings under his "accelerated building program," which accounts for $41.1 billion of his unprecedented $50.7 billion plan.

Walker's budget calls for $91 million in capital grants and $66.8 million in operations funding for SIU, the latter figure representing an 8.5 percent increase from this year's budget.

Other ideas for Southern Illinois include:

- $17.7 million for work on the Little Grassway River, $9 million in state funding for the city of Carbondale, increased by $12,000 from this year.
- The total appropriations request is the largest in the state's history, and Walker proposes to spend more money than the state will receive.
- But he is counting on money set aside by the state for what he called "a rainy day," and that is what will make up the difference. The extra money will come from the state's bank balance or various funds and will leave those funds with nothing for the 1977 budget.
- The governor said he feels "very comfortable" with his plan, and said speculation about his using it as a road to Washington in 1976 is "ridiculous."

NORML pushes pot reform ballot

By Diana Cannon
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Changing the marijuana laws is easier in a college town than any place else in the nation, says Paul Kuhn, Midwest coordinator of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

"It could be done here and it would be great," Kuhn, a Chicago investment counselor, said in a speech given Wednesday night in the Student Center. He cited marijuana decriminalization laws enacted in Ann Arbor, Mich., and Bloomington, Ind., both state university towns.

Dressed in a suit and tie, Kuhn urged his jeans-clad listeners to "get the public excited and start changing things from the bottom up."

Carbondale marijuana reformers will take a step in that direction next Monday at a Town Meeting of the City Council, where they plan to present the City Council with the signatures of about 1,200 registered Jackson County voters on a petition to decriminalize pot in Carbondale.

Buzz Talbot, regional coordinator for the Southern Illinois branch of NORML, also spoke, saying that "the petition represents more people than voted in the last city election."

The petition, sponsored by SIU NORML, seeks to place a referendum on the April 15 ballot that would make personal possession of up to one ounce of marijuana a civil offense, punishable by a $25 fine.

"Getting caught with a lid would be like a parking ticket," Talbot said. Carbondale has the power to enact the law under a home rule provision, he said. The present state law stipulates different penalties. The extra money will come from the state's bank balance or various funds and will leave those funds with nothing for the 1977 budget.

"The governor said he feels "very comfortable" with his plan, and said speculation about his using it as a road to Washington in 1976 is "ridiculous."

"This once again shows why we need to get the vote on home rule, Kuhn said. "It's hard for me to criticize the run-ups because this means that we're going to get protection, too, next year."

Saluki was one of just four teams who received invitations Thursday, clumping the squad with Oral Roberts, who had played the Salukis twice this year already, Princeton and Oregon.
Pot law reform attainable, NORML aid says

(Continued from Page 3) aid to the marijuana laws than it was to end the Vietnam war," he observed. Illinois NORML supports the idea of a bill to decriminalize the possession of less than four ounces of marijuana, Kuhn said. Such a bill may be introduced in the U.S. Senate this month.

Kerner gets parole due to bad health

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Former Illinois Gov. Ogden Kerner was to become a prisoner Thursday for the first time in seven months and nine days after he was released from a federal prison last January.

Kerner gets parole

"He was the first active federal judge," Warden Lawrence Grossman said Kerner was to become a prisoner Thursday for the first time in seven months and nine days after he was released from a federal prison last January.

Kerner was sentenced to three years in prison on charges of bribery, fraud and perjury.

"Gentlemen, I am going home because I made a mistake and I hope you will honor me in that degree and let me go to the hospital," Kerner said.

Grossman said Kerner had been diagnosed as a leukaemia patient, and he was going to be turned over to the hospital in Lexington.

Kerner, 66, was sentenced to three years in prison on charges of bribery, fraud and perjury.

"He asked to become a prisoner and never gave us a minute's trouble," the warden added.

Kerner's parole was to expire on May 17.

During his stay at the minimum security federal prison, he will work in the library and make tape recordings, the warden said.

Kerner was also a member of the University of Illinois Board of Trustees.

A group organized to study the feasibility of a campus bus operation agreed Thursday to look at other campus bus operations in Illinois for possible ways to fund a service for Student Affairs.

The Student Health Advisory Commission (SHAC) is seeking a source of revenue to support a service that it will propose to the administration.

The health service, which meets with the manager of the campus transit service to determine if cars can be used to transport students from East Campus, Evergreen Terrace and Southern Hills to the Health Service until it can be temporarily funded by any other source.

The head of the administration, Dr. John Wirth, said the committee would consider funding the service with funds from the Student Activity Fee.

The longest day

There is a movement in Congress to allocate more daylight to the average, 24-hour day. Touted as a quorum of filibustering legislators, the bill, if enacted, would place the sun to set seven hours later than it now does. This would provide the citizenry the needed extra hours to take care of the varied personal chores that are being lighted in the coming days. A similar agreement with the moon, that great lunar creature, is expected to be legislated if this bill is passed.

President Ford's main agent of carrying out U.S. policy, Henry Kissinger, gets word of the movement in Congress, and has entered into negotiations with both the sun and moon to set up, as he puts it, a viable celestial framework with which to incorporate the longer day. "Neither side," his secretary of state added, "is going to be easily swayed. They have been doing it this way for many years but, at least we have reached the bargaining table." We must hope Mr. Kissinger's optimism is not well-founded.

The Secretary is also shifting between the heavens and God. The Holy One must, no doubt, have the final say in this matter, based on the revelations of the Bible. If our lawmakers have taken the initiative to change the world we should applaud the noble men and women for their courage. With more daylight, we will need less light from artificial sources, such as man: we will have fewer nighttime murders, less need for artificial sources of light, and, in general, our will, literally, see the light.

This bill, known as the Sunshine Act among Washington insiders, would insure that the ideals of democracy as so eloquently expressed in our great Constitutions will finally be realized. No longer will people's activities be discriminated against because of the arbitrary regulation of Universal laws.

History will tell little note nor long remember the individual's names who sponsored this progressive piece of legislation! But we feel confident that this time—in memory will be grateful to this great nation's great people who courageously took the initiative to do something positive for our children's children.

Citizens should urge Congress, write to Kissinger and pray to God for swift enactment of this legislative proposal. Only coming from the nation's capital. Of course, the right of "night owls" must be considered and protected, but, the law calls for public building, at the government's expense, of dark rooms where the night crawlers can congregate and pursue their usual activities. But we must remember the bill does not seek to totally abolish night. The legislators are pragmatic enough to know that they would never get the moon to go for that change. Changes come slowly and this bill is only one small first step in the right direction.

Great credit must go to Mr. Kissinger for his ability to speak with God and work out a viable procedure for negotiations. Through Kissinger's celestial foibles, we finally have reached an avenue of communications to the moon. One reason, whether or not this bill is passed, and we hope it is, an important breakthrough has been made. Now, more than ever we need effective leadership in these times of crises, we have a real chance to work out better solutions to open new areas of prosperity in the human condition.

If this is criminal justice, get me outta here

By Bob Springer

The 94th Congress has been described as one bent on reform. The ugliness of Watergate and its humdrum affect on November's general election have insured that this congress' legislative battles will be fought by dedicated and earnest lawmakers unwilling to sell themselves to the highest bidder. The first bill introduced in this Senate, if passed, could destroy this noble image and it is hoped that the prophecies of reform will be borne out through the bill's defeat.

Senate Bill 1: The Criminal Justice Codification, Revision, and Reform Act, is a comprehensive, 700-page document which attempts to update the nation's penal code to meet changing social, economic and political conditions. The drawback to this Herculean task is the origin of the bill's standard of ethics: Nixon.

Congress established the National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Laws—chaired by former Calif. Gov. Pat Brown—in 1965. Following five years of study, the Brown Commission submitted its recommendations to former President Nixon (instead of to Congress as would have presumably been the normal procedure). Nixon turned the report over to former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who then did a hatchet job on the Brown report—deleting those sections which the paranoiac Nixon administration considered "liberal," and replacing them with tough, anti-discretion measures and protective "national security" clauses.

In his 1973 State of the Union message, Nixon urged the 93rd Congress to act on the Justice Department's redrafting of the Brown Commission report. The result of that plea was a similar piece of legislation introduced by Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.), Sen. Roman Hruska (R-Nebr.) and Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.). The bill never made it out of the 93rd Senate.

The 94th's attempt, Senate Bill 1, is a combination of the Nixon Administration and McClellan bills. While the bill has raised the ire of the American Civil Liberties Union and the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, it has received little congressional and press attention—due in large part to its enormous length.

The criminal justice reform bill strengthens the arm of the federal government (through the FBI and Treasury Department in particular) against organized crime; but it also dangerously limits First Amendment freedoms of speech (dissent) and Fourth Amendment protections of due process.

Rather than taking a realistic course in dealing with drug laws, the bill sets a ten-year minimum prison sentence for "trafficking in an opiate"—sale to a minor, possession of more than five ounces or multiple offenses. Giving a friend "eight ounces or less of marijuana" without remuneration could result in one year in jail and up to a $10,000 fine.

The bill reestablishes the death penalty for treason, sabotage, espionage, kidnapping, aircraft hijacking and arson. In defining sabotage, the bill provides that a person is guilty if he tries to "impair, interfere with, or obstruct America's ability to prepare for or to engage in war or defense activities" by damaging "any property that is particularly suited for national defense use or any public facility."

The bill also preserves the broad guise of "national security" as a justification for wiretapping private individuals or groups by the federal government without a court warrant. It seems we have learned very little from the recent past.

In light of the horrific abuses of power and trampling of individual liberties this nation has experienced in the last decade, it is nearly inconceivable that such a measure as Senate Bill 1 could even be considered. If the 94th Congress wishes to preserve its label as reformer, it would do well to go back and reread the White House tape transcripts—and then the Bill of Rights.
It was just another routine story from far away Cambodia—the kind we read a few lines of and turn the page. "A key city," Oudong, had fallen to the insurgents despite orders to hold it at all costs. But the brief third paragraph caught my eye: "Colonel Hang Yiv, governor of Oudong province," it said, "died at his command post in the battered city.

That was all it said about Colonel Hang Yiv. I don't know how old he was. I don't know where or how he grew up. I don't know whether he had a wife or children. I don't know what kind of weapon killed him. I don't know how much it hurt.

But what angers me most is I don't know why he died.

He died at his post. Maybe he was a hero. I try to picture him standing there in the rubble like John F. Kennedy, firing his pistol at the hordes of villainous attackers until the last bullet is spent. Does he have a mustache? Is he thin or fat? Is it day or night? Does he love music or children. I don't even know who they are. Maybe, then, he died like a rat in a trap. I don't know.

Yet what of the others who died with him? What of the soldiers? (Many are barefoot now, the story said, and out of ammunition.) What of the civilians? The city had been bombarded for six days. The Colonel was governor of a province. Maybe he was part of that regime. Maybe he thought the insurgents would kill him anyway if they captured him. I don't know how the insurgents treat prisoners. I don't even know who they are. Or... It's no good. The picture fades.

Maybe he died for what he believed in. What? The concept regime? The North? But the Colonel was governor of a province. Maybe he was part of that regime. Maybe he thought the insurgents would kill him anyway if they captured him. I don't know how the insurgents treat prisoners. I don't even know who they are. Maybe, then, he died like a rat in a trap. I don't know.

In Washington, President Ford has asked Congress for more money to send more ammunition to General Lon Nol and his soldiers. "Are we to deliberately abandon a small country in the middle of its life-and-death struggle?" he asks.

It is a good question. But the President did not say if we will send General Lon Nol more ammunition he will win and thus end the war. We are to send him more ammunition solely to keep the war going.

We are to send more ammunition so that the colonels, the soldiers and the civilians can go on dying. If we don't, the insurgents will quickly win and thus end the war.

Maybe the insurgents will kill General Lon Nol and his followers if they don't escape in time. I don't know. But I do know that the more ammunition we send, the more colonels and soldiers and civilians will die.

And the angry question I keep asking myself is why the hell they should.

Apathy is a bland color

To the Daily Egyptian:
"If you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem," is a clever quote from the ecologists but it has been said before in better terms. Jesus put it, "If you are not with me you are against me" when he referred to moral pollution.

The apathy I've encountered in my life is beginning to show its true colors.

Women swimmers are a team

To the Daily Egyptian:
The article about the State Women's Swimming Meet, in which SIU took second, made the meet sound as if there were only five swimmers from Southern entered. Kathy Abel placed in the 400 freestyle with her lifetime best time and also placed in the 300 free, 100 back and 400 free relay. Kathy Weishaar placed in the 50 fly with her lifetime best and was on the 400 free relay. Teeky Keneny bettered her previously best time in the 400 free by 10 seconds, and the whole team was proud of her swimming. Cathy Juzwiak had her best time this year in the 100 fly at the state meet.

I know national qualifiers may overshadow the accomplishments of swimmers who do not qualify for nationals.

SIU to ask alumni for gifts

A "Telethon" campaign to reach SIU alumni in 20 geographical areas of Southern Illinois will be conducted during March, April and May on behalf of the University's new Living Endowment Program.

Sponsored jointly by the SIU Foundation and the Alumni Association, the phone campaign will seek contributions for all phases of the University's activities, with emphasis on unrestricted gifts and Association projects.

According to J. C. Garvalla, Foundation director of annual giving, "Alumni who have already contributed by mail will not be called," Garvalla said.

During the first six months after establishment of the Living Endowment, he said, a total of 80 donors contributed $26,398. Almost a third of these contributors, however, were members of the University faculty and staff.

"Never Can Say Goodbye"
By Gloria Gaynor
MGM Records

True to the promotion hype being given this album, Gloria Gaynor really is the new "Tootsie Doochoo." Her kingdom is a land where the use of two turntables can make a three-minute song last for fifteen.
And while bodies droop
from exhaustion on the dance floor, DJ in the sound booth bass drum to make the pulsation even more intense than it is on the record.
Gaynor's premier album, not surprisingly titled "Never Can Say Goodbye," very directly appeals to the hypertensive disco crowd.
Side one contains three long bump-along tracks strung together to make a well-nigh nineteen-minute non-stop energy of Gaynor raising delight, interspersed with lytically instrumental breaks.
Extended versions of her campy
year-and-a-half-old hit,
"Honey Bee" ("You're my honey be, come on and sting me!") and Gloria's glorious "Never Can Say Goodbye" are joined with an old Four Tops hit, "Reach Out, I'll Be There." The first two appear much the same as their singles, only with the thundering horn and percussion tracks being repeated several times without vocals to add length and dynamism.
The Four Tops' song is revamped with a disco treatment.
The lead vocals are smooth, but the rhythm and no finesse, however, and Gaynor's vocals are high powered, but imaginative.
Side two contains a selection of disappointing shorter dances, with the exception of two penned by Gaynor titled "False Alarm" and
"Real Good People." Songs on this side are all up-tempo, but without the disco treatment. The arrangements are nothing special.
As an album, "Never Can Say Goodbye" makes it halfway.
The concept of side one is dynamic, but the rest of it indicates a hasty attempt to cash in on Gaynor's fame
while the momentum is there.
In 1974, Gloria Gaynor took "Never Can Say Goodbye," a song which was previously a hit by both
The Jackson Five and Isaac Hayes, and triple-topped both versions with her own rendition. Indecisive she says, we will be around for a while, and MGM needn't have been so anxious

Student Senate passes ERA resolution by unanimous vote

By Jon Kartman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate has unanimously passed a resolution in support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The Senate passed the resolution Wednesday night by a vote of 20-0, although it appears there is little chance for the ERA being passed by the Illinois Senate this session.

Committee Senator Mark Dousman said he felt it is important that the Senate support the ERA as a positive stand on the issue.

"We want the people to know that Student Government is behind the ERA," Dousman said.

The Senate also allocated $905 from the Student Government Special Projects Fund to equip a bus which would provide the medical services to migrant farm workers in Southern Illinois.

Role Muller, a senior in design, told the Senate that the money would be used to outfit the bus with electricity and plumbing.

Muller, who said he is acting as a consultant to the Illinois Lutheran Council, told the Senate that the bus would be brought in as voluntary and immunization services to migrant camps. The bus would also be used to take seriously ill patients to the hospital, Muller said.

The resolution passed unanimously.

The Student Senate began the annual Joint Fee Allocation Board's (JFAB) process of allocating fees to student organizations. JFAB allocates money each year from the Student Activity Fee to recognized campus organizations requesting funding.

By vote the senate passed a resolution citing general rules to be followed in determining recommendations for fee allocations to the Senate.

The rules provide that all fee allocation hearings be open to the public and that the panel hearing budget requests be composed of three members of the Senate Finance Committee. One other Senate member, a Student President and a non-voting representative of the Office of Student Affairs.

The resolution said the criteria for funding would be determined by the Finance Committee with full disclosure to the Senate and the public.

Thompson Point Senator Jim Wire said Student Government will soon send letters to campus organizations asking for budget requests from the organization.

The letter states that the request forms will be available Friday and are to be returned by March 18.

The letter says hearings on the allocations will be held sometime between March and April 12.

The senate heard from Paul Kuhn, Midwest coordinator for the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

Kuhn, who later spoke to students in the Roman Room of the Student Center, outlined NORML's attempts to have marijuana decriminalized in Illinois and reviewed the history of marijuana laws in the United States.

In other action, the Senate approved the nominations of Paul Rusk, a senior in social welfare, and Lloyd Haims, a graduate student in health education, to the Campus Judicial Board.

Grand jury hearing set for four city policemen

Four Carbondale policemen have been ordered held over for a grand jury hearing.

In a preliminary hearing Thursday, Judge Richard Richman said the state's attorney's evidence in dictating the case should be heard over for the grand jury hearing next week. Charged with illegal restraint in the arrest of Sylvester Moore are Patrolmen Robert Gorre, Marvin Rider, Harold Johnson and Marvin Voncic.

Moore, a 22-year-old Carbondale man, was illegally taken by the officers to Oakwood Bottoms near Grand Tower and abandoned on Feb. 18. Moore was not apprehended in the area by Jackson County Sheriff's Deputy Michael Maggio, who took Moore back to Carbondale.

Facing a felony charge with the possibility of one to three years in prison, the officers are represented by Drayton Lockwood, a Carbondale attorney. Some 25 officers and members of the Carbondale police force appeared with the defendants in court.

"These are all duty policemen who came because they wanted to see the case," Police Chief George Kennedy said of the policemen gathered as spectators.

Kennedy, Capt. Ed Hogan and administrative assistant Tom McNab also were spectators at the hearing.

"It would not be proper for me to comment about a matter before the courts," Kennedy said when asked about the outcome of the case and disciplinary action against the officers.

When asked to identify the policeman who arrested him and took him to the rural area, Moore incorrectly identified Patrolmen Kent Burns and Howard Gonn as suspects in the case.

"Whether Moore was able to identify the policeman in court or not, sufficient identification was given earlier to warrant the grand jury hearing in the matter," Richman said.

Jump threat at Mac Smith ends in arrest

An SIU student was arrested for assault after he allegedly threatened to jump off the ledge of Mac Smith and take a coed with him.

Dennis A. Junge, a 34-year-old freshman in General Studies, was arrested Wednesday by SIU Police and taken to Jackson County Jail. He allegedly threatened to jump off the ledge of Mac Smith and take Charlotte McIntosh with him.

The police report said McIntosh took Junge’s alleged statement as a threat to her safety and filed a complaint with the security police.

According to the Jackson County States Attorney’s office, mental health authorities were to examine Junge Thursday and then confer with State’s Attorney Howard Hood before charges are filed against Junge.

DEPRESSION ART "TROVE"

Public Offered 1937 U.S. Gov’t Art Prints

A series of rare coincidences has led to the historic discovery of several thousand sets of full color antique art prints that were "lost since 1937." They are now being offered to the American public.

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

Back in 1937, immediately following the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and a select group of a dozen nationally prominent people formed a government committee for art appreciation to create an art program that would give the public a well-needed moral lift. It was the committee’s decision to select the world’s most famous paintings from the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries - the best paintings of Rubens, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Picasso, Matisse, Titian, etc. - and to reproduce them in full color as perfectly as humanly possible and make them available to the public at a price within the reach of nearly everyone.

ABANDONED IN 1937

For some unknown reason, after a quantity of these beautiful reproductions were made, the entire project was abandoned and this collection of perfect reproductions was stored in a Brooklyn warehouse, where they remained undisturbed since 1937.

The lost collection was "rediscovered" and leading lithographers and art critics agree that the subject matter and quality of detail and color reproduction is incredibly accurate. Over $500,000 had been spent to make these engraved glass printing plates.

These authentic original 1937 prints are literally collectors items and have been appraised by the American Appraisers Assoc. at $7.00 each print. Once they have been sold, there will be no more available. A truly excellent art "investment" that makes a fabulous gift.

AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC

Now, after 30 years these full color 11" x 14" (ave. size) prints are newly available to the public at $8.00 for a collection of 48 prints. Send cash, check or money order to: U.S. Surplus, Dept. 304, 1314 W. 3rd St., P.O. Box 648, Terre Haute, Ind. 47801.

Law school fills 40 spaces

Forty of the 46 spaces for the SIU Law School's class of 1978 have been filled, said Thomas Rowey, associate dean.

Thirty-seven of the new students have paid their $100 deposit and three have indicated they would pay by March 15, Rowdy said.

The school started encouraging applications in October. There is no real deadline to apply. Earlier applications have more time to be considered than late ones, Rowdy said.

Student application file includes information from the Law School Data Assembly Service (LSDAS). Operating out of Princeton University, LSDAS includes the entire academic record, a list of schools attended, degrees held, overall grade point average and Law School Admission Test scores.

"I believe every accredited school subscribes to this service," Rowdy said.

The admissions committee tries to admit portions of the total enrollment in shifts. Roughly it fills one-third of the class by mid-February, two-thirds by mid-March. By mid-April a complete roster is expected.

Students who fail to inform the school they will attend, or don't turn in their deposit will be dropped from next year's class list.

Rowdy said the committee tries to save about 20 spaces for the last group to be admitted. This gives the school time to complete the later applicants' files.

Rowdy chairs the four-person admissions committee. He is assisted by Roger Jacobs, law librarian; Taylor Mattis, associate professor of law; and a student appointed by Dean Hiram Lesar. The student member is chosen by the Student Bar Association, Rowdy said. The current student member is David Vaught.

The class of 1978 will be held to 40 due to the physical facilities of the law school.

Films

"Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"—University 4, No. 4: An attractive story of a 32-year-old widow who sets off with her precocious young son to find a new life. The situations and snappy dialogue are incredibly funny, but sometimes too 'off the wall.' The film's ideas are controversial and deserve notice, having been both attacked and praised by feminists. Great performances by Oscar nominees Ellen Burstyn (Alice) and Diane Ladd as a foul-mouthed waitress. Based on today's Daily News.

"Bananas"—Variety, Friday and Saturday late show: Woody Allen joins a band of revolutionaries and they regret it from that moment on. Full of Allen's typical visual jokes and unforgettable one-liners, this film is already recognized as a comedy classic. With Louise Lasser.

"Big Bad Mama"—University 4, No. 3: Angie Dickinson before she was fortunate enough to land her own television series.

"Birds Do It, Bees Do It"—Saluki Cinema, a documentary that shows how animals 'do it.'

"Cries and Whispers"—Fox Eastgate, Friday and Saturday late show: Ingmar Bergman's beautifully photographed study of the pains and passions of four women drawn together by death at the turn of the century. Hypnotic and brutally effective. Not to be missed.

"Enter the Dragon"—University 4, No. 1: Everybody is Kun Fu fighting in this Bruce Lee epic in which he avenges the death of his sister. Also with Jim Kelly, black master of Kun Fu.

"Jim Plays Berkeley"—Variety, Sunday late show; Another Hendrix concert on film, this one filmed on Memorial Day, 1970.

"Last House on the Left"—Fox Eastgate, Sunday late show: To keep from seeing this movie, keep repeating. "This is perhaps the most disgusting, nauseating and sickening movie ever made." The film's mythical story of the foul-mouthed monster is far too 'off the wall' to be true, but this mythical story of the foul-mouthed comic starry-eyed for his honesty would have been better had it not been for the performance of Martin Hoffman is almost unfor­table to watch and Valerie Perrine as his stripper-junkie wife. Haunting, tenders and sumptuous.

"Lords of Flatbush"—University 4, No. 2: A cheaply made, comical look into the lives of a few 1960's high school students. One of the better new films, containing two particularly outrageous sequences.

"Morgan on the Orient Express"—Fox Eastgate; Although this Agatha Christie based mystery isn't the greatest "whodunit" ever filmed, it is definitely great enter­tainment and worth the two bucks. Features some very professional pet performances.

"Sexual Fantasies U.S.A."—Variety II.

"Stardust"—Saluki Cinema; Special sneak preview Saturday night at 8 p.m.; see both features for single admission price. David 'Rock On' Essex stars in this film which races through a rock star career. Alleges to parallel the careers of several real life biggies.

Miscellaneous

Al Goldstein—Video Lounge, Student Center, Friday and Saturday; a videotape film of the "Screw" editor's lecture at SIU.

Collegium Musicum Concert—Lutheran Student Center, 8 p.m. Sunday; see advance.

"Count Basie"—Student Center Auditorium, 8 p.m. Monday; Celebrity Series brings the ultimate monarch of jazz music to SIU with his 16-piece band and featured vocalists. There are still tickets left.

"Jefferson and Music"—Old Baptist Foundation, 8 p.m. Monday; A lecture-recital on music played by America's third president, see advance.

A Review

liberty. The result is unashamed honesty that does not ridicule us, either, or shame us with embarrassment, at the state of the human condition.

It not only makes it bearable, but the frequently mentioned "deplorable mess" that we live in doesn't seem too bad after the op­timism Scorsese generates throughout the film. In fact, after heroine Alice Hyatt, beautifully played by Burstyn, slays some of life's evil demons, we can actually bear to be apart of what we are.

Although the condition may not really be better, Scorsese sees beauty in the mundane and trivial. He takes a 32-year-old woman, for whom nothing is going wrong, who has every right to be miserable as hell, and gives her life meaning through people and things that we never regarded before.

While defending a husband who has deserted her and their son, because our heroine Alice really does understand human behavior, Scorsese makes definitive claims about how easy it would be to live without a man. When a trau­matic accident results in her husband's death, she is given the chance to prove that statement.

Well, Alice wants to be a singer and besides that, she needs to earn some money, as she and Tommy, a very extraordinary 12-year-old, set off from the hateful community of Secesso, N.M. to find fabled "fame and fortune" in Monterey, Cal. What happens to Alice during this expedition across the Southwest, is an universal as it is personal, per­vasive and honest.

Not that good things always hap­pen to Alice, who winds up existing instead of singing, and who is almost "cut-out" by the quickly drawn switchblade of a creep named Ben Eiberhardt, but they happen often enough to produce a funny little feeling called hope.

As much as this film is one with a moral, it is also a hilariously funny and entertaining movie.

Maybe if more films like this were made, that "funny little feeling called hope" would not be so hard to imagine.
Advisory board needs new student

If you're an accounting major, you might be able to get some first-hand experience in drawing up SIU's budget. Student President Dennis Sullivan said the position of student representative on the President's Budget Advisory Committee is open. Anyone who wishes to serve on the committee would be considered, although "being an accounting major would be helpful," said Sullivan.

The chairman of the committee, John Zimmerman, explained that the committee's function is to study budget information and to make recommendations on the budget to President Brand Sullivan. Sullivan said application forms for the position are in the Student Government offices located on the third floor of the Student Center. To become a member of the committee, he said, a student must be in good academic and disciplinary standing with the university.

Summer jobs available for state students

The governor's office will offer summer internships to students who are residents of Illinois, according to James F. Mack, director of the summer work program at SIU. The work cut across a wide variety of problems, interests and purposes, Moore said. The governor encourages students from all disciplines to apply for positions.

The program offers a salary of $5,000 for a two-month period. Moore said the reward was $5,000 for the first year and increased over the years to $10,000. Students participate in seminars and work with some of the very best men and women serving in state government.

The program is scheduled to begin June 13. Cut-off date for applications is April 1. Applications are available at the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

City Lights

NEW YORK (AP) -- Broadway can have its bright lights, insofar as Greensboro Village is concerned. A block association in the Village has managed to halt the installation of high-intensity sodium vapor lights in a six-block area. The association said the lights did not fit in with the area's architecture and that there are reports they may not have been effective in air pollution and frost damage.

The city is installing 800,000 of the lights in various areas as crime deterrents.

WOMEN LOSE FIRST TILT

By Martha Sadford

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

In a heart-pounding turn of events, the Saluki women's basketball team lost its first game at the regional tournament Thursday, 59-58, against Calvin College of Michigan. The loss puts the Salukis into consolation play Friday against Bowling Green College of Ohio.

With 40 seconds to go, and Calvin in the lead, STM coach Charlotte West called timeout to set the strategy of the game. The Salukis inbounded the ball and, with the final seconds ticking away, turned it over to Calvin, losing their final scoring opportunity.

"We were absolutely disappointed," said West. The Salukis had held a 23-16 halftime lead after playing what West termed 'one of our better first halves of the season.'

However, the Salukis' Nancy Rist got into foul trouble with three fouls in the first half.

"That really hurt us when Nancy had to sit out, because we just don't have a substitute that's as good a ball handler as she is," said West. West added that Kathy "Skeeter" Vondrasek also played one of her best games of the season and was a key element in the strong Saluki defense. High scorer for the Salukis was Jan West with 17 points, followed by Pam Berryhill with 12.

In the consolation game Friday against Bowling Green, West said the Salukis have a "fair" chance of winning.

"They have some strong shots, but their defense is very weak, and, of course, our defense is our strongest point," she said.

If the Salukis lose Friday, they will be out of tournament play.

Hartzog seeking men for South trip

Coach Lew Hartzog's track team has had nothing but "toughies" so far this season, but Friday afternoon's meet at Eastern Illinois will be a warm-up for next week's national indoor championships in Detroit—he hopes.

"I expect Eastern to be as high as a kite," Hartzog predicted. "Our people have to guard against being overconfident, or we'll lose a lot of points. If we run and compete well there shouldn't be any problems.

Hartzog is also going to use Friday's 3:30 p.m. meet in Charleston as a tune-up for the team championship that Eastern will make its first trip to South over break, and the coach wants to find out who's worthy of making the trip.

"We've only taking 13 guys, and I know 13 who are going for sure."

Hartzog said that the STU could be left a little weak in the relay with Gerald Smith still out with mono. Smith pulled a hamstrings muscle two weeks ago at the Central Collegiates, but Hartzog said it's not possible to tell whether Smith will be back at full strength before Friday.

Hartzog said that Smith definitely will not run Friday, and he is also in danger of missing the trip.

Other than Smith, the rest of the team is healthy, and Hartzog expects a good meet.

"They (Eastern) finished third at the Illinois intercollegiates, and you have to remember they were super up for that," he said. "We're going to have to run well to win."
The Salukis last went to the NIT in 1969, losing a first round game to South Carolina, 72-63. They made a name for themselves, though, two years earlier, winning the tournament behind Most Valuable Player Walt Frazier. Marquette, one of the five NCAA tournament independents this year, was the final SIU victim in 1967. The invitation call reached SIU about midnight Thursday, and selection committee vice-chairman Ken Norton's call was transferred to Lambert at Whitt's Barbecue in Murphyboro.

"It's probably the first time the word was ever received in Whitt's Barbecue," Lambert remarked laughingly. "Norton told me the word and said, 'You must be a good barbecue,' and I said, 'Yes, it is.'"

Was the coach concerned about the possibility of a crack call?

"No, I always call back to make sure," he said, laughing. "I always call back the guy collect. I went to college once, too, you know."

Eleven other men who still are in college were feeling pretty excited Thursday.

Shag Nixon, always the most excited Saluki about anything that happens, was acting likewise during the first of the one-hour-a-day practices the team will hold until the tourney.

"New York's the biggest thing that's ever happened in my life," he said, beaming. "The NCAA's bigger, but we can re-establish ourselves as a ballteam with potential if we do something in the NIT."

"If we do well, then we can go to Pauley Pavilion next year with something behind us," he said of next year's season opener against UCLA.

While Nixon, a senior, was looking at the advantages for future Saluki teams, center Joe C. Meriweather saw a great break for the team's seniors.

"I think it'll help me and all the seniors on the team," he remarked. "I think there will be a lot of scouts there, so it can't help but help us. I'm glad we got the bid to the NIT; I'm very happy."

Not everything was looking up for the team, though, with starting guard Perry Hines still fighting a troublesome leg injury. "I'm scared to death," the 6-2 junior, said Monday morning at a noon press luncheon at Madison Square Garden, which Lambert will attend.

"This is a real tribute to the ballclub," the head coach remarked. "We deserved a bid last year and we deserve a bid this year."

NCAA picks

By Mercer Bailey
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Using a new format to pick perhaps its strongest field ever, the National Collegiate Athletic Association announced a 32-team major college basketball tournament Thursday that includes Indiana, UCLA, Louisville, Kentucky, Marquette and Alabama.

The NCAA tournament, which usually decides the national collegiate team in the country, begins March 15 with 16 first-round games. Included are two probable matchups of teams in the Top 10: No. 7 Alabama vs. No. 5 Marquette in the Midwest and No. 6 Kentucky vs. No. 9 Arizona State in the West.

The NCAA picked its 32-team field Thursday, complimenting 16 conference champions who qualify automatically with 16 at-large teams. Using a formula that allows any at-large team from a conference for the first time, the NCAA extended invitations to seven conferences to send two teams to

New swimming records dune a dozen

By Dave Wieczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Records are made to be broken—but in many sports it takes years and sometimes even decades, as is the case in track and field. In swimming, however, records can be reached and old standards broken.

For example, in baseball, Babe Ruth held the all-time homerun record for some 39 years before a 40-year-old Henry Aaron broke the record. In track, Jim Ryun has held the world record for the outdoor mile for almost eight years now. And it was eleven years before one Irvin Crockett ran the 100-yard dash in nine seconds flat, smashing the record set in 1963 by Bob Hayes.

As in baseball and track, records in swimming can be broken also, but perhaps not so often in the sport of swimming. Records seem to be set faster than swimmers can get into their bini trunks.

In almost any quality swim meet, records are going to fall, and if competition is tops, even world records are as common as a skinhead. The reasons for the blazing paces set in swimming are the same as above—bigger, stronger, healthier and better conditioned athletes.

But for a swimmer to record the best time possible, he will do some things that most other athletes wouldn't dream of.

NCAA swimming coach Bob Steele said that a tight cap, a shave and a tight swimming suit can be a "great advantage psychologically."

"When a guy wants to do all he can for a big meet, he'll shave all the hair off his head (including a swim cap), put on a tight cap and a skin suit. That's one that conforms to the body and doesn't absorb any water," Steele explained.

"Some people might think that things like this don't help time much, but when times are taken to the hundredths and thousandths—these little things can make a difference."

Probably more amazing than a shave, tight cap and skin suit is the carbohydrate diet that Steele puts his swimmers on.

"When we go into a big meet I put the swimmers on a carbohydrate diet," Steele said. "This includes high-protein—like vegetables, no carbohydrates. This way, all the glycogen is used up from their muscles—no sugar is left."

He went on to explain, "We do this process between seven and three days before the competition. Then three days before the meet, the swimmers do a real hard workout, to wipe out all the glycogen in their systems.

"When this process is over, they start eating pancakes, pizza, spaghetti—things to boost their energy and sugar content again," he said. "It's been proved that this diet performs better when his body is completely depleted of all sugar content and then he builds it up.

Steele said that several other sports, including basketball and wrestling teams, also are using the carbohydrate diet.

With all the special attention swimmers pay to their bodies before a big meet, a cloudy doubtless whether any swimming record will be in the books for 39 years.

All this talk about splitting seconds into hundredths and thousandths, through methods, makes a guy wonder if Irvin Crockett could run an 8.9 in the 100 after a shave and wearing a tight cap and skin suit while running.

Where will it all stop?
