Marilyn Quayle meets with task force

Quayle preparedness urged

By Jackie Spinney

and United Press International

Marilyn Quayle commended Illinois officials Tuesday for beginning to prepare Illinois for the reality of a devastating earthquake in Southern Illinois.

"Many people really don't consider the possibility of an earthquake area," Quayle said, "but it is the most susceptible area east of the Rockies."

Southern Illinois is located in the New Madrid seismic zone, which experts say could undergo massive damage and devastation if an earthquake occurred along the fault line.

Quayle has spent the last year visiting disaster-struck areas, including Soviet Armenia, the Philippines, South Carolina and California.

She told the task force that the damage and loss of lives associated with an earthquake can be prevented with education and preparedness as Gov. James R. Thompson looks on at Giant City State Park Tuesday.

Entire East German Cabinet resigns

The cabinet, in a declaration read by Meyer, said it informed parliament of its decision to resign and will continue in office in a caretaker capacity until a new cabinet is named.

The declaration appealed to East Germans who are considering fleeing to reevaluate. "Our socialist fatherland needs all and everyone," it said.

The cabinet was meeting to discuss a package of legislation that would allow for the lifting of martial law and the establishment of a multiparty referendum in East Germany.

The Senate Department had requested congressional action to be completed Tuesday so as to allow the Senate to consider defense reform as part of the debt ceiling bill, along with the non-controversial repeal of the tax code's Section 939, which bars companies from discriminating in employee benefits. The deal called for the house, which has voted to repeal the catastrophic insurance tax, to pass such a bill Wednesday. The Senate, which last month voted to eliminate the catastrophic insurance tax, is expected to act by Tuesday or Wednesday, so that the USG can accurately

USG seeks Halloween interest poll

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

A resolution supporting a special interest poll to decide how students feel about Halloween is on the floor of Student Government agenda.

The Senate asked that a proposal be submitted by the USG East Campus Senator Gregg Blake, who suggests that a campus-wide student vote be taken to decide where students spend Halloween.

The USG has been accused of not taking an adequate stand on Halloween by East Side Senator Rod Hughes and former USG Senator John Steinbeck.

In an effort to make it clear that the referendum will be written as follows: Do you support the existence of Halloween? Do you support the University's fall break as plans it a full 1991 school year?

The break is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 25 through Monday, Oct. 29. The additional extra break over the Halloween weekend would give students a break from one week to four days.

According to Blake's resolution, the purpose of the referendum is to establish how the students really feel, so that the USG can accurately

Senior in graphics wins logo contest

Design translates into $1,000 for Woods

By Mario Milinkin and Chris Walker
Staff Writers

What began as a thumb-nail sketch has turned into $1,000 in Michael Woods’ hand. Woods, a senior in commercial graphics and design, was honored as the state’s top last Thursday after winning a logo design contest sanctioned by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

Woods developed one of these sketches into the award-winning black motorboat hat over the letters “ISAC.” Keesey said a total of 134 entries were submitted for the competition. Three professional graphic designers narrowed this number to 235 entries for the “ISAC’s” trademark.

In addition to the $1,000 check, Woods received a plaque and a promotion from the governor. Woods said he would like to begin work as a graphic designer in St. Louis soon. He hopes to work in the art and design department at Disney World in Florida.

Michael Woods’ drawing is being used as the new logo for the Illinois Student Assistance Commission. Woods was just invited to the capital last Thursday after winning a logo design contest sanctioned by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

“[It was] under the impression that it (the logo) was to promote the new organization, but it was just to honor me,” Woods said. “That was very exciting.”

Formerly the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, ISAC, launched a logo competition on Sept. 11 to find a trademark to accompany its new name, Alicia Keesey, public information specialist for ISAC, said.

After reading about the logo search in the Daily Egyptian, Woods said he decided to enter. “I’ve never done one before. I just sat down one Saturday afternoon and did some thumb-nail sketches,” Woods said.

IDOT Secretary talks to students about campaign for state treasurer

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

Gregory W. Baise, Illinois Department of Transportation secretary, said Tuesday he will resign at the end of November to concentrate on his campaign for the state treasurer’s office in 1990.

Baise, who has served as IDOT secretary since 1984, was at Giant City State Park for the first meeting of the Governor’s Earthquake Preparedness Task Force, which he is chairman.

Tuesday afternoon, Baise met with about 30 SIU-C College Republicans at the Student Center to recruit volunteers to work on his campaign. So far he is the only Republican candidate for the office.

“I think I’ve earned a masters degree in government administration over the four years I spent at the DOT,” Baise, who began his political career as an assistant to Gov. James R. Thompson in his first but for the office, said. “I think that background has prepared me for this campaign.”

Baise said he would support a program to provide loans to female and minority-owned businesses.

“I believe government should only take an active role when the private sector cannot fulfill that role,” Baise said. “If we ever Going to break the cycle of unemployment we have, government needs to help create jobs.”

“I can only be part of the solution as treasurer,” Baise added. “The private sector is the best place to create jobs. Government can’t just pass out the money.”

Baise applied this philosophy to student loans as well.

“Federal banks have the funds available, they should be encouraged to make the loans,” he said.

The government should supplement those loans if needed, he said.

Baise said he hadn’t determined the situation with private banks yet, but he said he would be studying it.

Pints collected at blood drive increasing daily

Although the University, in connection with the American Red Cross, has collected 1,130 pints of blood in the last six weeks, it is not a long way to go before it eclipses the mark set by the University of Missouri at Columbia.

The University has been challenged by Missouri to beat the 2,640 pints collected at its blood drive that ended Oct. 20.

The University collected 235 pints Sunday, 399 pints Monday and 505 Tuesday, bringing the total to 1,139.

Donors may give blood from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through Friday at the Student Center Ballroom D.

Participants donating, NOTE: members and other individuals have been helping with the blood drive, Rick Mitchell, president of Mobilization of Volunteer Efforts, said. “Their duties include taking temperatures, putting pouches together, and encouraging and feeding donors, he said.

“They run the blood drive,” Mitchell said. Mitchell said he recommends that people who plan to donate blood should drink lots of liquid and eat an hour beforehand.

Vivian Ujumz, blood drive coordinator, said the pattern of the blood drive is “to build every day, so tomorrow we need to get more than today.”

Gregory Baise, Illinois Department of Transportation secretary, talks to the College Republicans group about his campaign for the state treasurer’s office in 1990 in the Student Center Tuesday.

“Local banks have the funds available, they should be encouraged to make the loans,” he said.

The government should supplement those loans if needed, he said.

Baise said he hadn’t determined the situation with private banks yet, but he said he would be studying it.
Future trustees need knowledge of SIU

FAMILIARITY WITH the University is not among the qualifications for appointment to the SIU Board of Trustees. The recent appointment of Molly D’Esposito to the board has brought this issue to the forefront. D’Esposito is a native of the Chicago area who replaced former board member Carol Kimmel. D’Esposito seems qualified for the board position, but many believe the interests of the University would be served better if an appointee to the board was familiar with the University and the Southern Illinois area. Opponents of D’Esposito’s appointment emphasized that she had never set foot on the SIU campus. A valid point. Future appointees to the board, whether or not they are already required to have some knowledge of the University and the outlying community.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said those who questioned D’Esposito’s appointment should, in the future, propose alternate ways to select board members and define what they believe should be the criteria for a trustee. But, because the University needs statewide support, Pettit also said not all board members should be required to be alumni or be familiar with the area. Candidates from various parts of the state, Pettit said, would give the University greater representation. Another valid point.

If both sides compromise, future appointees can be chosen who are both familiar with the University and are able to represent the interests of the University statewide. As Pettit also pointed out, one-fourth to one-third of the students who enroll at the University are from the Chicago area. As a Board of Trustees member who could garner support from Northern Illinois, or any other area in the state, there probably are many candidates as qualified as D’Esposito but who are much more familiar with the University.

Although D’Esposito is unfamiliar with the University, she does seem capable of filling Kimmel’s shoes. As a Board of Trustees member in a large, national market such as the Chicago area, D’Esposito was the driving force in establishing the Barat College Alumni Association. D’Esposito has the qualifications to be a Board of Trustee member, but the fact that she is unfamiliar with the University should not be ignored. First on D’Esposito’s agenda should be a visit to SIU. Until she is familiar with the needs, goals, and organizations, and the numerous issues affecting faculty, staff, and students, D’Esposito will be a blind leader.

American flag a symbol of freedom, not ‘hallmark of stupidity, selfishness’

I fully realize that this letter flies in the face of contemporary flag fashion, and that the band wagon is bearing down on me, but I must express my opposition. As a Board member, Mr. Burrell doesn’t know that the flag is just a symbol…you should really talk to Miss Barry. How could a symbol enslavé and kill? Of course it was the people hiding behind the flag who enslaved and killed and called it the American way, or state’s rights, or manifest destiny. But the question is, what will our generations make of the flag? I am inclined to believe that Mr. Burrell’s answer would be “symbol.”

Miss Barry, you are absolutely right. Our forefathers and framers fought not for symbols, but for freedom. And those men on Iwo Jima who scrambled to take lightly, freedom’s band, will freedom. And those men on Iwo Issues. Today, the flag is said to collect in smokeless powder from various areas of the state, Pettit said, would give the University greater representation. Another valid point.

Of course, the contradicting Court’s no great game. In U.S. v. O’Brien, the Court defined the conviction of a draft card burner. Is this to say that a draft card is more important than the flag? In Chaplinsky v. New Hampshire, the Court denied a first amendment appeal, upholding a conviction on the grounds that Chaplinsky’s speech was “fighting words” and incited to anger. In as much as Johnson’s action is expression, doesn’t it not constitute “fighting words?” If you know, ask the survivors of Iwo Jima.

Opinions

Global warming issue heats up

The possibility of the Earth heating up from a “greenhouse effect” is not a new concept, but neither is it a cause for hysteria. A few scientists and a lot of environmental activists have pushed the panic button and are demanding that industrial nations cut sharply on pollution or activities are believed to contribute to a global warming.

The main culprit is carbon dioxide. This gas is said to collect in the atmosphere and trap heat in a greenhouse, heating ocean and atmospheric gases.

The buildup of carbon dioxide comes mostly from burning fossil fuels — coal, oil, wood and natural gas — and from cutting down forests, which would absorb much of the carbon dioxide.

Most representatives of 72 nations in a recent United Nations group on the Netherlands on global warming favored setting a ceiling on carbon dioxide emissions by the year 2000 at the level at which they now are. Since emissions have been rising at 3 to 4 percent a year, this would mean sharp cuts in future growth.

The Bush administration opposed the plan for the time being on the grounds that more research is needed on the extent of the problem and the consequences of the proposed ceiling. Japan and the Soviet Union also opposed it for the same reasons.

Environmental groups were quick to criticize President Bush.

The criticism is unfair. In the place, a few scientists have divided on how much the Earth is warming, if at all. Not long ago, there were those who called it a “climatic blip.”

Second, major cuts in carbon dioxide emissions might have serious impact on the economy. The nation runs, at the moment, on fossil fuels.

Bush has made a substantial effort in his proposed clean-air legislation to reduce pollutants from automobiles and industrial plants, and to make a serious start toward using fuels other than gasoline in more vehicles.

He is right not to be stampeded into other commitments without knowing where they might lead.

People bemoaning Halloween's end should vote for representation in city council elections.

This letter is intended to get all the people who bemoan the end of Halloween to cast a ballot. That's right! I wrote "bemoan." The people who complain about the end of Halloween are probably not registered voters. If you are, better yet, you should invite non-voters to join you and have a "happier nation" this November. The sad fact is that only 42 students out of the 5,000 registered voters, they didn't vote last April in the city council elections. I strongly urge students to vote again, but if I or any other student bemoan the end of Halloween, we'll have to worry about winning the student vote.

There are more than 6,000 registered student voters on file and only 42 students out of the 5,000 precincts that include Bruin Towers, Evergreen Terrace, University Hills, Thompson Pointe and Creek Row even voted. Of the 42 that voted, 39 were for the incumbents who were seeking re-election. 42 out of 6,000 registered student voters, that's less than one percent of the student voting lobby. That's pathetic.

With 6,000 registered student voters, the students at SIU-C could instantly have any students representative seated on the city council that they wanted in office. But that will never happen because the majority are to aesthetic.

It's true. And the most frightening thing about the city council is doing that conflicts with your values or lives. Why? Because you don't vote, so you have nothing to complain about.

It will never happen, but I challenge all of you complainers to student government that you wouldn't have to vote if you were not concerned that the police presence would not have been continued. If there were enough brains to show some maturity and stay on the sidewalks instead of entering the middle of the city street. You asked for it, by displaying the crudest capacity of a grapefruit. It's true. You don't have to exercise their rights. By doing whatever necessary to control the police, you have the power to control the city council. You have the ability to do what you want. I envy you, it's you who commit crimes, (e.g. leaving down goalposts, breaking street lights and signs, etc.) we are not the police force, we are not supporting it. If you are saying, "We're out of touch, don't worry, we'll defend you." That is one of the most childish arguments I have ever heard.

You make it sound as if police were in the crowds swinging billy clubs randomly. Well if this did happen, you and your partying friends should consider it. Marine: U.S. denies knowledge of POWs, MIAs

Captain claims documents show soldiers still missing

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

The question of whether prisoners of war in Vietnam are still missing in action is still being held somewhere continues to rage.

Thomas Ashworth's claims there are many U.S. , British and French World War II prisoners of war still held prisoner in the Soviet Union.

The retired U.S. Marine captain from Fort Smith, Ark., also claims there are numerous American soldiers from the Korean and Vietnam wars being held as well. In all cases the U.S. government denies knowledge of such prisoners.

"I have copies of government documents showing that the Defense Intelligence Agency has knowledge of prisoners of war and that they have deliberately set out to cover this up," Ashworth said.

Ashworth is giving a lecture on the POW-MIA situation at 7 p.m. Wednesday, when he will display about 50 government documents that back up his research and prove his claims.

He is writing a book with John M.G. Brown, a fellow Vietnam veteran. The book, titled "The Betrayed," chronicles his research on POWs.

Ashworth said he did not begin investigating the possibility of POWs in the USSR until 1981, when some of his friends who were officials in the Central Intelligence Agency informed him of known prisoners being held in Laos after the Vietnam War.

He said he proceeded to investigate these allegations and study CIA and government documents.

"The more I tried to check the proof of those conflicting accounts, the more I began to see my friends' stories were proving true and the government's documents were falsified," Ashworth said.

He said his investigations led him to conclude there were or are at least 600 soldiers missing in Laos and eyewitnesses have testified that other prisoners were transferred to either China or the USSR during and after the conflict.

"I have strong evidence, through both government (such as government and military officials) and literally thousands of government documents, that these people are still being held against their will. Ashworth said, produced an actual picture of a prisoner camp in Laos. He said he found the picture stuck in a file unrelated to POWs.

"This camp was said to have been the only permanent prisoner camp in Laos," he said, adding it was being run as early as the 1980s.

Ashworth said the reason behind keeping the POWs' rights hidden was Defense Secretary Henry Kissinger, the chief negotiator during the peace talks, the North Vietnamese, promised North Vietnamese forces would fight to the death with antibodies for the war reparations, in exchange for POWs.

The Nixon Administration later reneged, Kissinger denied knowledge of the proposal and the soldiers remained imprisoned mainly because the activities in Laos were illegal, Ashworth said.

"You never see politicians sacrifice themselves for other people. In this case, [the Nixon Administration] was un-illigible to admit they were illegally fighting in Laos, so they let our soldiers stay in prison camps." Ashworth said.

He said when he moved into the documents concerning Vietnam prisoners, he began to realize even greater numbers of Koreans and World War II soldiers are being held prisoner in the Soviet Union.

"I began to realize the magnitude of the problem," Ashworth said, adding that his studies have proven approximately 8,000 Korean War soldiers and as many as 20,000 World War II soldiers are still considered unaccounted for.

"There is better proof that many documents from both sides are still classified. The government reported in 1945 that 50 percent of the POWs from the war had been rescued or accounted for," he said.

"I have evidence ... it was common knowledge at the Pentagon that nearly 20,000 men had disappeared and I have positive proof of 5,000 being held, but it is still denied," he said.

In August of 1986 he testified under oath before a Senate committee that soldiers were still being held in the USSR.

"Their response was to call my testimony, and I quote, 'interest­ ing.' They never did a follow-up investigation." Ashworth said the testimony he gave was never contradicted or even denied.

"I'm either a liar, or something is definitely wrong with our government. I deal with truth," he said.

Drummer: Touring improved LA Guns

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

L.A. Guns drummer Steve Riley said he hopes the current hard rock concert at the SIU Arena on Monday will be a hit.

"Check out this show. The L.A. Guns/Dangerous Toys/Tora, Tora show will be total kick-ars from 7:30 to 11 p.m.," Riley said.

L.A. Guns, a three-year-old hard rock band from Los Angeles that splintered off from Axl Rose and Guns 'n' Roses, just released its second album, "Cocked and Loaded," which is already doing as well as the band's self-titled debut album that went gold.

Riley said the extensive touring the band did for the first album helped to improve the quality of the second.

"We played together so much, we were really tight when we got off tour," he said.

Many of the new songs were tried out on the first tour and the band learned how to play better together as they spent more time together, Riley said. By the time it came to putting the songs together for the second album, every song became a group project.

"Each guy would bring in one piece, and then someone else would add another piece. We ended up writing all the songs together," he said.

Riley said he particularly liked the new songs that let the band step outside its normal style and surprise its listeners. He said "Malaria" and "Magdalaine" are his two favorite songs off the new album.

In concert, Riley said, L.A. Guns will try to play an even mix of songs off both albums, as well as a few surprises, so everyone can expect to hear his or her favorite songs.

Riley said he enjoys touring with Dangerous Toys and Tora, Tora. All three bands have different styles, but for the most part they appeal to the same crowd, he said.

This leg of the tour will run through Thanksgiving and then the band will play for a week in Japan. "We played together so much, Riley said he expects the band to be really tight when we get to tour on this album for about a year, and said the band will probably be just this area again before too long.

Riley has been with L.A. Guns since the original drummer left after the recording of their debut album in 1987. Riley had been with the group W.A.S.P. for three years, but left them around the time L.A. Guns was looking for a drummer.

Texas voters try to choose successor for Rep. Leland

HOUSTON (UPI) — Voters chose Tuesday from among 11 candidates trying to succeed the late Rep. Mickey Leland, a Texas Democrat, who died in an airplane crash while on a relief mission to Africa.

Two candidates led Saturday as ballots were cast in the nation’s only congressional race on Election Day 1989.

According to the latest polls, Houston City Councilman Anthony Hall was leading, but state Sen. John Sharp, a Democrat, was expected to get enough votes to force a runoff in the contest to succeed the popular five-term congressman.

Leland, 44, who represented Texas’ 18th Congressional District since 1978, died Aug. 7 when the plane carrying him and his party crashed into a mountain-side in western Ethiopia. Leland was on a famine relief mission.

Before the final weeks of the special election, two other candidates, state Rep. Ron Wilson and Al Edwards, challenged Hall and Washington for the lead. But as Election Day drew near, Hall and Washington pulled ahead of the other contenders.

In recent weeks, Washington stepped up his attacks against the front-runner Hall.

“I’m not the side of the little people in the congressional district and always have been,” Washington said in a debate. “Anthony Hall, whose side are you on? You can’t be on everybody’s side.”

Hall denounced Washington for failing to pay thousands of dollars in delinquent taxes, for having a poor attendance record at Senate committee meetings and for being named one of the state’s 10 worst legislators by Texas Monthly magazine in 1965 and 1967.

The campaign rhetoric obscured Hall and Washington’s agreement on many issues before Congress, such as raising the minimum wage and opposing the repeal of a catastrophic health care plan for the elderly. Both men oppose cutting the capital gains tax.

Seven of the candidates are Democrats. Spencer, Sharp and Byron Johnson are Republicans. Gary Johnson is a Libertarian.

Hall has been a member of Houston City Council since 1980. He was a member of the Texas House of Representatives from 1973 to 1979, and unsuccessfully ran against Leland for election to Congress in 1976.

Washington was a m. aber of the Texas House from 1973 to 1982, and has been a state senator since 1983.

Drug czar Bennett angered with national anti-drug effort politically and educationally

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Federal drug czar William Bennett said in an interview published Tuesday that he is angry and concerned that the country’s political and education leaders lack the will to battle illegal drugs.

Bennett told the San Jose Mercury News that the Bush administration’s anti-drug campaign is “fraught with concern” with Congress, state and local lawmakers and educators.

“I just don’t see the sense of urgency anymore,” Bennett said. Political and education leaders, Bennett said, lack “the will, the patience — and maybe the stomach” to fight drugs.

Bennett accused Congress of stalling his anti-drug plan, state and local governments — as well as the drug-producing countries of Bolivia and Peru — of failing to take up their responsibilities and “bad-faith” educators of refusing to try to solve the drug problems in schools.

“I’m mad, I’m frustrated,” Bennett said. “I’m concerned about the leadership — some of the people who say they speak for Americans, be it at the state or federal level, are going to lose interest in the long run.”

Bennett, President Bush’s drug policy director, joined other administration officials Monday in criticizing a suggestion by former Secretary of State George Shultz that drugs be legalized.

Although other blacks have run for governor in recent years, none has ever won. The only black to ever serve as chief executive of a major city, Pinckney, a black mayor who briefly served in Louisiana in 1987 after the governor resigned. On the line in the main races were the first true tests of abortion politics since the Supreme Court this summer gave states more power to limit abortions.

Also on tonight's agenda are two resolutions to support fee increases. One is calling for a fee increase for campus safety, which has not been increased since its inception in 1980. The USG is supporting a fee increase of $1.15. The other increase is in the Recreation Center fee. The USG is looking at a resolution to increase the fee by $6, to be paid along with possible raises in the minimum wage and to support growth within the Rec Center.

The Virginia race was extremely close. With 63 percent of precincts reporting, Wilder had 522,429 votes, or 50.7 percent, to 576,736, or 53 percent for Republican Marshall Coleman.

Early returns in New York gave Giuliani a 15-point lead, but New York television stations, basing their predictions on exit polling, said Dinkins would win the sometimes-tit-for-tat race.

At the last USG meeting, senators voted down a resolution to support the abolition of the Housing and Community Affairs committee. At the time, some senators said they did not want to vote on this issue until they know the results of the elections fell.

In an interview after the last meeting, USG President Tim Hildebrand said the vote main-ained the USG's neutrality on the subject.

The governor said the task force would look into public and private structures, structures with special hazards and Illinois' pipeline activity.

"The bottom line is that we must assume the attitude that this is serious business, indeed, and convey that attitude to our citizens," Thompson said.

Memorial lecture held in honor of former prof

By Katherine Lydon
Staff Writer

The first memorial lecture in a series in honor of John Gardner, for-morer SU-C professor and writer who died in 1982, will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Auditorium.

English Professors John Howell, Donald Hays, Rodney Jones and Richard Russo will speak at the memorial.

Gardner was "the most prolific, brilliant writer apart from Joyce Carol Oates," of Princeton, Howell said.

"He was a very charismatic figure with all sorts of disciples," Howell said. "He was very generous with his time."

Gardner wrote over 35 books, including 8 novels, 6 of which were illustrated, 2 collections of stories, an epic poem, 5 children's books and 2 text books.

Gardner's works have been translated widely and he has an international reputation, Howell said.

COBA to continue seminars

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

The College of Business and Administration will continue its 12-part seminar series with a discussion by Lars Larson on leadership styles.

The Student Professional Development Seminars have been attracting an average of 50 students per seminar, according to a Tucker, assistant dean to COBA.

Larson, associate professor in the department of management, will hold the seminar in Room Hall Room 108 Thursday morning and evening.

"All of us have a leadership style," Larson said. "Most of us just aren't aware of what it is."

Larson said he wants to use a couple of experiments to help people in the group figure out what their leadership style is and then make the group aware of other styles available to them.

"Then I want to get them to think about what styles are best for certain kinds of situations," Larson said.

"If the room is on fire, I would want to take a participatory approach and ask for options," Larson said.

"How it works in other situations. When people have input and are part of problem solving, they are more committed," Larson said.

Although writer's reputations often fluctuate, Gardner maintained his solid reputation even while he was alive, Howell said.

He said most writers are not recognized until after their deaths.

"Grendel," based on a monster in "Beowulf," was made into an animated movie, "Grendel, Grendel, Grendel."

Gardner's other works include "Nickel Mountain," which was made into a HBO movie and aired in 1985, and "October Light," which earned him the National Book Critics Circle Award for Fiction.

Howell, organizer of the memorial lecture series and author of "Hemingway's African Stories," said "John Gardner: A Bibliographical Profile," will read an excerpt from Gardner's "The King's Indian" and "Stories, an anthology of Contemporary Southern Short Fiction."

Gardner's works include "Going Ahead, Looking Back," which Howell said is a "dramatic pubcation," and "The Story They Told of Light," "The Unborn" and "Stories: An Anthology of Contemporary Southern Short Fiction."

Russo has written two novels, "Moloka'i" and "The Rock Pool," both of which are excellent, acclaimed and have been optioned for movie rights, he said.

Howell said he chose Hayes, Jones and Russo to speak because they are "three of the finest young writers in America and they were fond of Gardner's works."

Donations are welcome. The money will be used to establish an endowment to bring in other writers each year.

"We hope that this year will be the first of many," Howell said.

Bishops unanimously agree on Church's abortion stance

Baltimore (UP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops, seeking to retain the momentum in the voting debate over legalization, Thursday declared no Catholic "can responsibly take a pro-choice stand."

Acting unanimously during the second day of a two-day meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, the bishops also called for "public officials, especially Catholics, to advance these (anti-abortion) goals in recognition of their moral responsibility to protect the weak and defenseless among us."

At the same time, the bishops also adopted Archbishop Daniel Pilarczyk of Cincinnati as the new president of the conference and its action arm, the U.S. Catholic Conference. Pilarczyk, 55, currently vice-president of the conference, is a witty, good-humored prelate and considered a moderate liberal in the internal life of the church.

The abortion vote was the first given the full body of 380 Catholic bishops have spoken out on the volatile moral, political and health issue since the Supreme Court ruled in July that states have wide latitude in restricting the termination of pregnancy.

The resolution expressed a consensus on the way the political debate has been framed.

Accused killer confesses

CHICAGO (UPI) — Accused killer Samuel "Sandman" Dillon surrendered last two days in a live television program "America's Most Wanted," surrendered to police Tuesday.

Dillon, on the Chicago Police Department's "10 Most Wanted," was accompanied by attorneys David Peiles and Daniel Coyne when he turned himself in at 2 a.m.Police said Dillon surrendered to spare his family further hounding by investigating officers.

"The heat was getting to be too much," said Peiles. "This has been real hard on his family."

White Sox new home big ticket

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - The Chicago White Sox new stadium could cost Illinois taxpayers as much as $657 million over the next 20 years if the team does poorly. Theticket window, according to a state audit released Tuesday.

The audit, however, found that the Illinois Sports Facilities Authority should have adequate funds from hotel room taxes and other subsidies to pay for the building of the stadium.

"It looks like they're (the authority) OK with the construction period," said Ed Gilpatrick, the auditor who wrote the report. "Once they start opening the stadium, their margin of safety is relatively small."

Authority officials, however, disputed the audit findings. They said the report was based on the worst-case projections of game attendance unlikely to occur.

The city of Chicago along with the state agreed to create the sports authority in 1987 in response to concerns that the White Sox might move to Florida.

Earlier this year, the authority issued $150 million in bonds to buy real estate and build a new stadium for the Sox across the street from their current home, Comiskey Park. Completion of the new facility is expected in 1991.

The Legislature passed a resolution last year ordering Auditor General Robert Cronson to perform the audit because some lawmakers questioned the wisdom of the state agreeing to the deal.

Under the agreements between the White Sox and the facilities authority, the Sox will pay no rent when yearly attendance falls below 1.2 million fans. Based on the team's lackluster attendance and on-field performance in the past, the report predicted the team would fall short of 1.2 million in eight of the next 20 years.

Sox ticket prices would also rise to an average of $238 in 2016, according to the projections.

The report includes an economic study by the accounting firm of Laventhol and Horwath. Their analysis projected possible attendance for the next 20 years and found that the cost of the stadium over that period should be between $395 million and $657 million to taxpayers. Authority officials, however, said this scenario was highly unlikely.

"ISFA does not believe that this report accurately interprets the terms of the management agreement," said Timothy Romani, deputy director of the authority.

"The authority further believes that the conclusions reasonably reflect the fiscal impact of the worst case scenario in which the Chicago White Sox pay no rent."

The audit, however, said that if the Sox never pay rent, the authority will have enough money to cover foreseeable expenses.

South Africa's Namibia votes for territorial independence

WINDHOEK, Namibia (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Namibians, many queuing in mile-long lines that formed before dawn, swamped polling stations across the territory Tuesday to vote for independence from South Africa in one of the world's most closely scrutinized elections.

U.N. authorities guiding the territory of 1.3 million to independence and black majority rule after 10 years in the hands of colonialists reported a smooth start to the five-day voting, but were clearly overawed by the massive turnout.

U.N. Transition Assistance Group spokesman John-Lee Truman said some of the 550 polling stations across Namibia remained open after the 7 p.m. scheduled close to cope with the crush of voters who responded en masse to appeals to vote early in the week-long exercise.

“Today we are finally burying apartheid colonialism,” declared Sam Nujoma, the leader of the South West Africa People's Organization, which fought a 23-year bush war for Namibia's independence from South Africa.

Nujoma, 60, raised a clenched fist after casting the first vote as a polling station in the black township of Katatura in an election many believe will make him the president of a South African-appointed administration.

With some 60 percent of Namibia's population literate, the voters had only to place an "X" in the box next to the party symbol.

The people's organization supporters to delay voting until later in the week. "He continues to be troubled by what appears to be systematic disinformation efforts to undermine the general positive atmosphere in which the polling is taking place," Eckhard said, as thousands of UN observers monitored the voting.

In "one little glitch" Tuesday, Eckhard said one UNTAG election team in the northern Ovamboland region — where half the population lives — got lost while en route to a polling station. UNTAG authorities dispatched a helicopter to locate and redirect the team.

In the capital of theformer German colony, raised as a virtual fifth province of South Africa since 1915, mostly black Namibians waited for polling stations to open. A one-mile-long queue stretched around the perimeter fence of Kafrina's St. Barnabas School.

"Many people have been waiting here for many hours," said Tobias Hanguila, 65, as he limped from the voting hall on crutches. "But we have been waiting more than 60 years as votes. I hope something comes from this vote," he told a reporter.

"You don't have to ask me who I voted for," Hanguila said, fingering a SWAPO lapel badge on his worn and dusty black suit jacket.

A native Swazi, Dan Chopin may well have helped popularized stand-up comedy in the Midwest region. Dan's polished act is a mix of witty observations, razor sharp improvisations, hilarious musical impressions, and frequent references to his "hippy" resemblance to Milton Berle. Dan realized his knock for comedy while studying theater at the University of Missouri. Working with the Midwestern Improvisational group and the Easy Street Players, he was able to perfect his craft. Since then, he has gone solo and received national attention on several television and radio shows, as well as headlined countless campus and metropolitan comedy clubs. Dan's talents are not limited to comedy; he is also an up-and-coming actor with many industrial films, plays and commercials to his credit.

Rugby club ends season with victory

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The SIU-C rugby club is anticipating a strong spring season after wrapping up the fall slate with a 12-4 victory over Western Kentucky during the weekend.

Junior Norm Smyth led the Ruggers as a 4-6 halftime lead when he scored a try (four points) and Junior Naggi Kazzie added the conversion.

Kazzie then added two drop kicks in the second half to conclude the scoring as SIU-C used a hard hitting defense to stifle Western Kentucky. The Ruggers finished the season at 8-4.

Smyth said Kazzie’s kicking was a key factor.

“We got the points in the second half when we needed them,” Smyth said. “We didn’t play around the ball and try and drive it in. We had the wind against our backs and he kicked it in. He was three for three.”

“We have a strong overall team,” said Junior Noon Kibelkis, who played in 13 games last season, said leadership isn’t her forte but helping in any way she can. “We are a lot of rookies who played really well this season. I’m looking forward to the spring. We can improve even more.”

Richardson, who played in 13 games last season, said leadership isn’t her forte but helping in any way she can. “That’s not really me in my eyes but other teammates may see me that way,” Richardson said. “I’m trying hard to be more vocal this year and lead the people I know. I know what it takes to win—I’ve been there. I have also been here in situations when we haven’t won.”

Richardson, who averaged only 6.3 minutes last season, said she is hoping for more playing time and is willing to help in any way she can.

“I’m working pretty hard this year and I think it’s paying off,” Richardson said. “I feel I can help the team more at guard because of my experience there. But when ever I’m going to try and help the team out as much as possible.”

Kibelkis was the team’s first fourcount player off the bench last season. She averaged 4.5 points and 1.8 rebounds per game.

Squash courts open

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

University students now have an opportunity to learn all about squash.

No, not the vegetable — the sport.

Squash lessons will be offered at the new two squash courts in the newly-opened Recreation Center addition. Lori Sims, the squash instructor, said private, semi-private and group lessons will be available Mondays through Thursdays in November and December.

Squash, a mix of racquetball and tennis, is played in an enclosed court like racquetball.

Lori Sims (right), squash instructor, and Mike Dunn, Director of Intramural Recreational Sports, get a work out on the new courts in the Rec Center Monday afternoon.

Squash uses a long racket, like tennis. Joe Foote, chairman of the Radio-Television department and advisor to the squash club, said he noticed in 1986 that the Rec-Center didn’t have squash courts and tried to gain support for the courts. Squash is popular in Europe and the East Coast, but hasn’t really reached the Midwest yet, he said.

Sims said lessons offered through the Recreation Center will teach the fundamentals of squash, the basic shots, court positions and game play. Those interested in instruction should contact Lisa Hake at 536-5331 or stop by the Recreation Center Information Center.

Kazzie and Joe Foote teamed up as a doubles team and played in the fall season. Kazzie is a key player.

Valley big men don’t frighten Jones

Power player prepares for post position
By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

What a difference a year makes. In Jerry Jones’ case, it could be the difference between night and day.

The senior center on the Saluki basketball team is entering his first full season of college basketball as a starter.

"I’m pretty excited about having a full year to play," Jones said. "Being a senior, I’m trying to push myself. When you become a senior, you can be a little lack-advised sometimes. I’ll try my best and give it everything I have."

His physical presence on the hardwood floor is unmistakable. At 6-11, 230 pounds, he is a prototype power forward. Jones will play center because the Salukis are entering the 1990-91 season without Tony Havery, who left school early in the semester.

After transferring from Texas-EU Paso in the fall of ’88, Jones was required to sit out the season to satisfy NCAA requirements.

When asked if he made the right decision on his transfer to SIU-C, Jones responded: "I’m pretty happy. We have a great team. I like the guys on the team."

They’re a fun bunch of guys. We have a lot of fun on the road."

Nothing for granted, Jones is making the most of his education at SIU-C and is on track to graduate in May with a degree in administrative justice.

Basketball is rewarding," Jones said. "If you play, you’ve got a lot of fun out of it. You need to take a balance in your game (books and basketball). That’s what I’m trying to do right now."

Silverton said the team is fully consistant of the season. "The starting line-up will consist of 322, Jones averaged 25 minutes, 103 points and 8.8 rebounds in 23 games while starting 11 of the Salukis final 15. His late-season performance earned him a spot on his Missouri Valley Conference all-conference team.

Although some questioned his consistency last season, his .474 shooting percentage ranked second on the team. His season highs of 22 points against Bradley and 18 rebounds against Drake State give an indication of Jones’ potential if given the opportunity to play in his stride.

Good players always rise to the occasion. For Jones, it was the MVC conference tournament when he averaged 14 points and 13 rebounds in three games in which he was a vital cog in the Saluki team.

At only six and a half feet, Jones said he will have to rely on his quickness when matching up against taller centers.

"I’ll have to be quicker than them and try to out-think them," Jones said.

Salukis gained respect despite losing season

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Saluki defensive backs coach Stanley King said the Salukis have gained a great deal of respect this season despite a 2-8 record.

"We felt like our season could have been a lot better," King said. "We were in every game but one, (4-4-1 is the season-high point for the Salukis). We just ran out of time. We are looking forward to the next season."

Time is running out on this season as the team is now preparing for the final at Northern Iowa Saturday. But it will be business as usual at practice.

"This week will require the same type of preparation and dedication to have a chance to play as any other," King said. "Maybe even harder if possible."

"It’s important that the Salukis continue to concentrate more, stay in tune with what is going on when he’s on the floor."

"His strides have been on his offensive count," Weaver said. "He is developing an inside game that will make him a threat to be reckoned with in the future."

The Salukis need one more victory to make it to the post season. They have a 3-4 record in conference play.

They have lost eight straight games to start the season.

"We need to put it all together," Weaver said. "I think we can do it."

The Saluki volleyball team is counting on a bit of luck this Thursday as it plays the home part of the game against the Eastern Illinois Panthers at 7 p.m. in Davies Gymnasium.

The Salukis need one more victory to make it to the post season. They have a 3-4 record in conference play.

They have lost eight straight games to start the season.

"We need to put it all together," Weaver said. "I think we can do it."

The Salukis have qualified for the Gateway for the past five years. Hagemeyer said this year’s Salukis will take a different approach to the conference.

"We will play the good guys," Hagemeyer said. "We will take the approach that we will try our best to win." Hagemeyer, "My team will know that I want to win," Hagemeyer said. "It’s important that the Salukis win two out of three."

"I think we can do it," Hagemeyer said. "We have a young team and the team is comfortable with them," Hagemeyer said.

Hagemeyer said the Salukis have a great deal of respect for the Gateway for the past five years. Hagemeyer said this year’s Salukis will take a different approach to the conference.

"I think they have a lot of improvement," Hagemeyer said. "I am happy with the changes that have been made. They have learned a lot." The Salukis have a 3-4 record in conference play.

"They help us out by giving encouragement," senior setter Ania Scott said. "That means a lot when you’re up against a tough team."

"We are happy to see some changes with the last few games," Hagemeyer said. "It will be Nina (Brackin’s) last home game," Hagemeyer said. "She has been a big part of the team in the last four years."

The team is now 6-7 in conference play.
