Officials expect enrollment increase

By Nancy Landis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University officials expect enrollment this fall will easily top last fall's 19,000, but nobody can or will say how large the increase will be.

 unofficial estimates and coffee-hour talk on the campus have the enrollment figure ranging from a conservative 20,000 to as high as 25,000.

President Warren W. Brandt said he expects a "significant increase", but he strongly discounted the likelihood of a 25,000 enrollment.

"At this stage in the game, any increase is welcome," he said. A 1967-68 SIU-C enrollment peaked in 1967 with 25,823 students. Since 1957, enrollment has been decreasing. Enrollment in 1974 was the lowest since 1966 when it was 18,168.

Although fall enrollment cannot be determined until registration is complete, reports of a housing shortage, the hiring of additional teachers in required General Studies classes and preliminary reports from various advancement offices indicate that enrollment will increase.

On-campus housing has been filled for more than three weeks, and off-campus housing is being filled rapidly.

Many rental agencies and apartment managers report no vacancies.

Gus, housing assistant director of University Housing, said some freshmen and sophomores probably will not be able to find vacancies in approved housing facilities.

Billie Jacobson, General Studies academic advisor, said 2,265 have been advised for fall term, and late registration will add more students to the number advised.

General Studies enrollment last fall was 2,265. Jacobson said not all students who are advised will enroll this fall, but she expects "considerably more students than last fall."

Lee R. Shelly, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said staff members were added to meet the increased needs required General Studies English and mathematics classes.

Mike Walsh, a researcher at the Center for Technological Development, estimated 500 students will be enrolled in the on-campus baraculterate program. He said 500 more students were enrolled in the program last year.

The School of Agriculture announced that about 75 more students have been advised this year than at the same time last year.

The School of Engineering and Technology reports the school may have as much as 30 per cent more students enrolled this fall compared to last fall.

Shirley Friend, assistant dean of the University of Human Resources, said enrollment figures will be as much or higher than last year.

With an expected enrollment increase, registration has moved step four of scheduling into Woody Hall Cafeteria. Final registration will be open from a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday. The first day of classes is Monday, Sept. 1.

STU predicts increased housing disputes

By Nancy Landis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Unhappy landlords, unhappy students and a lot of broken leases will result from the current shortage of available off-campus housing, says Gretchen Meyers, volunteer in the Student Tenant Union (STU).

Many students will sign contracts for apartments they cannot afford or agree to live in marginal housing, Meyers said. After a result, they will break their contracts because they will not be able to pay rent or because they will be unhappy with their living conditions, she added.

"They feel they have no choice because they feel there is no housing left," she said.

However, Joseph W. Gasier, assistant director of University Housing, said he does not expect to have a big problem with lease-breaking.

"The tenant union is going to be swamped this fall," Meyers said. She said lease-breaking will cause more concern to be brought to STU.

STU acts as a counseling service to students with landlord or contract problems. Meyers said she has handled many more in the past few weeks than she normally handles.

Students should not give up searching for adequate housing when real estate agencies say there are no vacancies, Meyers said. She said the students should begin to look for housing in advance and check bulletin boards and "for rent" signs.

Complaints are collected in counseling, she said. When a student comes to STU with a contract, she said she gets the landlord's file, and tells the student what to expect. If the landlord had not returned several damage deposits, Meyers said she would tell the student to be sure the damage deposit was secured before signing the contract.

In addition to counseling, the tenant union published "Student Tenant Handbook" in 1971, which offers advice about renting. About 5,000 to 6,000 copies of the handbook were published with $745 from student government funds, Meyers said.

The handbook contains information concerning leases and deposits, landlord and tenants' duties and rights, small claims court, ideal housing contract and an inventory list.

The handbook is free and available in the Student Government Office, Student Center distribution centers, the Ombuds Office and the Housing Office, she said. About 300 copies remain, she added.

Meyers said the handbook may be revised in October after Congress considers the Uniform Residential Landlord-Tenant Act.

Meyers said if the act is passed, the legislation would be printed and explained in the new handbook. The new book would contain information on the Carbonate Zoning Ordinance, code enforcement and a step-by-step small claims court procedure, in addition to information in the present handbook.

Bettings boosts Hamblentonian's lure

Part-mutual betting and the Hamblentonian's new Saturday race date have created an unusually high interest in the 85th annual Du Quoin State Fair which opens Friday, a fair official said.

Besides the 85th Annual Hamblentonian at 1 p.m. on Aug. 30, the fair also features championship auto racing on Aug. 29-30 with drivers Mario Andretti, Al and Bobby Unser slated to race in a 100-mile dirt track race.

Other events include livestock judging at 8 a.m. and an Illinois Rifle and Pistol Association-sponsored tractor pull at 1 p.m.-both are on Monday.

The Hamblentonian, harness racing's richest and most prestigious pre-Comeback, was on Wednesday afternoon.

Fred Huff, vice president and general manager of the fair, said the switch will allow more people from Southern Illinois to attend and all 10 of the state's national television coverage for the first time.

Three-year-old trotter, Booster of Carleton Farms, Ky., is favored in the race.

"Advance ticket sales (for the Hamblentonian) are way up there, higher than any previous year's sales," Huff said. Between horse racing and auto racing, the grandstand will feature country music music, every other year and the group "America" at 2 p.m. Aug. 31.

Country music "entertainer of the year" Charlie Rich highlights the country music bill with two performances at 4 p.m. on Monday.

Other country and western singers include Mel Tillis, Dolly Parkton, Billy "Crash" Craddock and Leroy Lewis. The horse racing and auto racing will be announced at 8 p.m. Aug. 23.

At 8 p.m. on Sunday, Tillis will perform again with Johnny Rodriguez, Barbara Mandrell and Bobby Bare and family.

In a combined show at 8 p.m. Aug. 26, singer Jim Stafford, joins the Royal Lipton Stations for two performances. At 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday, comedian Rich Little and the Young Americans, a singing group will perform.

The Labor Day show features singer Jim Nabors and Barbi Benton performing at 8 p.m. Sept. 1.

Huff said ticket sales for the grandstand shows are not matching the enthusiasm shown for the racing schedule. Only 25 per cent on cent the house is filled for any of the concerts.

Advance ticket seats are still available, he said.

The midway, Dillard Amusements will set up with about 30 rides which begin operation Friday, Huff said.

The fair is one of the first officially sanctioned Decennial events in Illinois, Huff said, but he feels this year is not contributed to the fair's current appeal as much as the potential 50th anniversary, and part-mutual betting.

"The fair is going to be bigger and better this year I can say that honestly, not with my tongue to my cheek," Huff said. "When they make that kind of good show lined up, Huff said.

Rites held Tuesday for professor

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Thomas A. Martinez, professor of economics at SIU. Mr. Martinez died as a result of a two-car collision Friday afternoon on I-57 near Kankakee.

Mr. Martinez was affiliated with the department of economics since 1962 when he was appointed as an associate professor.

Departments of Thomas Bobbi and the Martinez death will be a great loss to the department, was a very popular teacher," Bobbi said. He was a teacher who really enjoyed teaching.

Mr. Martinez, 52, was returning from a camping trip in Florida with his 18-year-old daughter, Mary Ann, when the van in which they were traveling collided with a 2-ton truck. Mrs. Martinez was treated for injuries in a local hospital and released.

Mr. Martinez specialized in micro-economic theory and welfare economics. His wife, Catherine, is an instructor in the economics department.

The family resides at 515 N. Oaklawn Ave. in Carbondale.

Racial troubles remain in Carbondale

By Rolanda Williams
Dailly Egyptian Staff Writer

After 10 years of promises of help from all levels of government, Carbondale remains plagued by racial discrimination in jobs, education, housing, health and law enforcement, says a 28-page report by the United States Commission on Civil Rights and the Illinois Advisory Committee.

The assessment of conditions in Illinois' southernmost city is contained in "A Decade of Waiting in Carbondale," a recently released follow-up report on promises to recommendations made by the civil rights commission to end racial and economic strife there.

The Illinois Advisory Committee began investigation in 1968, because they decided Carbondale was an important city to look at," said Duanie Lindstrom, research specialist for the commission on Civil Rights.

"Firms refused city contracts due to hiring practice dispute

The city of Carbondale has refused to award contracts to three firms Monday night pending confirmation of the firms' compliance with city affirmative action guidelines.

On a motion by Councilman Joseph Dahle, the council voted to table requests to award contracts to Hefley's Furniture Co. of Carbon-

Cedar Lake were in compliance with city equal opportunity regulations.

Public works director Bill Boyd said most companies involved are one or two-man operations as complaints with the agency concern the regulations. One firm bidding on the contract, Work's Trucking Co. of Carbondale, is owned and operated by blacks, he said.

The council also designated Sept. 22-23 as Jackson County Recycling Week in Carbondale.

 system nears financial ruin.

The committee believes that political and legal reforms will help end the dilemma of Cairo can be a learning experience.

"If Cairo's problems are not managed by the right people," the committee believes that the same problems can be solved on a larger scale in other cities and it could be an example for the rest of the world," said the report.

The committee said that Cairo is a "microcosm of the urban and rural woes which plague America."

The committee and commission praised the efforts of black and irreligious races and community groups, but added "the impact of civil rights legislation has still not reached Cairo near a decade later."

Carol Uptchmann, Sparta, an appointed member of the committee, said that the big problem is to find a local solution to the work site.

He said that he hopes state senators and representatives will initiate state legislation to help Cairo and other people.

Senator awaits promised date to discuss campus split bill

Sen. Sam Vadalaabene, D-Edwardsville, says he is waiting for Gov. Daniel Walker to schedule a date to talk with him about a bill that would give SIUE an autonomous board of trustees.

The bill was introduced into the General Assembly by Vadalaabene in January and has passed in the legislature. If Walker does not make a decision by Sept. 30, the bill will automatically become law.

Walker agreed earlier to meet with Vadalaabene and a citizens group from the poorest area before making a decision, but has ever set a date, said Mark Vlack, Walker's deputy news secretary.

In a recent press release, Rep.
Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, charged that a $3,000 donation to Walker's political fund by the SIUE foundation has thrown a cloud over the bill to split governance of the SIU-C and SIUE campuses.

Dunn, an opponent of the bill, said he has sent both Walker and SIUE
President John Rendelman a copy of his release and a letter urging defeat of the bill in light of the condition.

He said he does not think educational foundations such as SIUC and SIUE should make political contributions.

If I had known about the $1,000 contribution, the bill would not have passed," Dunn said, adding that the bill passed without being considered on its merits.

Any contributions to the news release were "political statements trying to establish a link that does not exist." He said the contribution will not influence Walker from a class and receive a refund.

students processing a program

Deferrals will be processed registered students. Late registrants may defer fees Aug. 25 through Sept. 5.

All deferred payments must be made no later than Oct. 30.

Deferrals will be made at a rate that a student can show that he has resources to make the payments.
A student receiving financial assistance can go to the Student Work and Financial Assistance office, third floor, B wing of Woody Hall and get a letter of verification.

ment processed, he said.

Aug. 21 at 9 a.m., Samuel
Rinella, director of University Housing said. He added that accommodations will be made for students with contracts, who come down to register Aug. 20.

Undergraduate in-state students registered for 12 or more-credit hours will pay $1,084 for tuition and $657.75 for fees. Out-of-state undergraduate students registered for

James Belt, Bursar Office supervisor said.

Two new charges have been ad-legal problems and $2.25 will be charged to undergraduate students which helps provide monetarily awards for needy students.

Show em your footwork, Kid

By Arthur Hoppe

Good morning, insomniacs. It's time for The Awful Late Show, featuring that awful old movie, "The Comeback Kid"—starring the beloved old ex-champ, Deck, and his loyal sidek, Pat, who has always wanted him to quit the fight game forever.

As you remember, The Comeback Kid hadn't won a fight for 16 years until he finally captured the title on a split decision. But then, at the height of fame and fortune and only after a long, grueling battle, he was tossed out of the ring for fighting dirty. Ever since, he's been recovering from his injuries. But now...

The Kid (shadow boxing around the room): Take that for America, you dirty rats. And that! And that! Pat (entering, agahst): Kid! You should be resting.

The Kid: Don't worry, baby. The Doc says I'm back in shape. He says I can now travel anywhere in the country, even Washington. You can't keep a good man down.

Pat (pleading): But, Kid, your trials in Washington are over.

The Kid (nodding): That's another reason I'm feeling better. Like I told old Harry when he came to visit last week, I'm just ready to get back in the ring; striking blows for an effective foreign policy, decency in government, and a healthy economy.

Pat: Why don't you just stick to forgetful policy.

The Kid: The then. I'm going to go around helping young co-ners like, giving them advice and my im-valuable public support.

Pat: You mean they want it?

The Kid: Sure. Already a post card's coming flooding in. Listen to this: "If you want to help me out, why don't you go to Uganda?" That's funny. I don't want any more.

Pat (wringing her hands): Don't you, Kid? You're through, You're washed up. They don't want you any more. You're no longer the champ.

The Kid: I only lost my title on a technicality. Pat, they voted in a law on penalties for the law tapes. They disqualified you for a low blow.

The Kid: It was a low blow, disqualifying me. But I'll get the title back. First, I'll have to fight a few pre-lims. Line up Helen Gaahen Douglas. She's a stinker. Then I'll even the招牌 with "Ditch" club-fighter, Brown, who knocked me out with a lucky punch. I understand he just recaptured the California title. Then...

Pat: No, Kid, that's his son who has it now. Brown. He's 28 years younger. Time sure does fly. Well, it won't be easy. But I'm no quitter. And I'm not a crook either.

Pat (falling to her knees): Please, Kid, renounce this sordid fight game and remain the simple, un-derpaid, rich real estate entrepreneur I have come to know and love.

The Kid: Fighting's in my blood, baby. But I'll make it back to the top. Jewels from foreign potentates, limousines, East Street. Don't worry, this time I'm not going to make the same mistake.

Pat: What mistake, Kid?

The Kid: (punching his palms with his fist) This time I'm not going to buy a tape recorder.

Marijuana laws costly mistake

It costs the state of Illinois from $25 million to $30 million each year to prosecute marijuana cases. Roughly half of all marijuana cases, or about 28 million people—have tried smoking marijuana in the last once. In 1973, 260,000 people were arrested for possessing or dealing marijuana.

Sharp differences arise between the two approaches to drug use as a crime, the other as a medical and social problem. The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse recommended that the use of marijuana no longer be considered a crime. Laws concerning marijuana date from a time, when the substance was linked in the public's mind with opium and heroin and misc classified as a narlegally defined as a crime.

The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse unanimously concluded in 1972 that "the most Mott. An elaborate mythology grew up, encouraged by the federal government, that portrayed marijuana as a cause for insanity, violence and even murder.

An article in the March, 1972, "Consumer Reports," which evaluates both published and unpublished reports on the effects of marijuana use, concluded that, "Recent reports, like past reports, fail to prove that marijuana is either harmless or harmful." No drug is harmless to all persons at all dosages and under all conditions of use. Alcohol and nicotine are both harmful, but those found to possess them are not arrested and imprisoned.

J. Pal Horton, district attorney for Oregon's Lane County, told a conference of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, "When possession of small amounts of marijuana was a crime, we found that police officers allocated a disproportionate amount of their time to the apprehension of those individuals. Currently, law enforcement officers spend more time in the area of violent crime and are thus better serve the community." Horton also said, "The impact on the criminal courts has been significant, for decriminalization has removed approximately one-third of the total num - ber of cases awaiting trial from the dockets, thus freeing the law enforcement officers to attend to other matters which have a serious concern to the community.

Arrest and imprisonment are harmful to those who experience them. Why should marijuana smokers, users of tobacco, stimulants and alcoholic drinks be deliberately subjected to the damages of imprisonment? Decriminalization makes sense. Why should society create a large class of presumptive criminals who, because of demonstrable harm to anyone other than themselves?" Marijuana is here to stay, so the time has come for a nationwide reform of marijuana laws. The possession and personal use of marijuana should be decriminalized, but the laws forbidding the sale of the drug should remain in effect.

Canning lid shortage foils homemakers storing peaches

The peach season is at its peak in Southern Illinois—a time when homemakers enjoy canning the juicy fruit. But they are in for a disappointment this year because of the canning lid shortage.

Since the summer gardening season began, homemakers nationwide have discovered an acute shortage of the metal lids used to seal canning jars. The lids are just as scarce in Southern Illinois.

"There's no foolproof way to can food without the lids," said Kathy Keim, Jackson County Extension Service adviser for home economics.

The shortage of jars is due to frozen fruit producers, Keim said. But not everyone has an adequate freezer space, she added.

Most foods can be frozen, although the texture and quality of canned foods is different from canned food, Keim said.

The extension office has received many calls from people who are looking for canning lids. "We help them find jars and lids until two weeks ago," she said.

"The supply of jars and lids should increase in a few weeks," Keim said. But by then the peak season for tomatoes, green beans and peaches will be over, she said.

Keim advises homemakers to "order-generators and hardware stores to find out when shipments of jars and lids will arrive. Then, get to the store early on the day of arrival," she said.

The Jackson County Extension Service has a free pamphlet on proper canning techniques which they will mail upon request.

Keim said that a U.S. Department of Agriculture market survey blames the shortage on improper distribution of lids and consumer hoarding.

Walter Robertson, manager of the J.C. Penney Food Market, said his store has no replacement lids, but will have canning jars this week.

Robertson said reasons for the shortage were explained to him in a newsletter from the Supermarket Interstate, which is a subsidiary of J.C. Penney. The main reason given was that the number of home gardens has doubled from 6 million to 12 million since last year. The newsletter said that the shortage was caused by consumer hoarding, a tin shortage or a plot to increase the price of canning lids.

Canning lid companies are working 24 hours a day, 7 days a week in hopes of producing 1 billion jar lids this year, the newsletter said.

Jay Clarida, manager of Mack's Big Star Food Center, said his store has not had canning lids for the past two months. Clarida said customers have not complained. "They realize there is a shortage. But they want the lids badly," he added.

Clarida said more people are buying freezer bags to store produce.

Mack's Big Star recently received a shipment of canning jars, but there is no way to tell when the store will have lids, Clarida said.

Youths fight blisters and blisters while working at Crab Orchard

Thirty-nine Illinois high school youths packed up for home Aug. 9 after a 33-year-old summer day of work at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge.

"I'd rather work so hard in my life," said one. "But I'd do it again. Ever!

That was approximate take-home pay for the youth volunteers at the Youth Conservation Corps (YCC), a five-year-old summer program run by the U.S. Forest Service and the University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Service. They pulled their youth to the Crab Orchard Refuge, one of 181 YCC centers scattered across the country and 48 in other Illinois.

The youth volunteers dug hales, reconstructed fencing, repaired roads and barns, planted trees, day-to-day holding action with bags, bagging trash as it was hard, the elements frequently unkind, and the ground was often the end of the eight-week hitch, they left behind some impressed supervisors and observers.

Crab Orchard Refuge YCC Coordinator Dick Uptegraft was one of them.

"Any adult would have to admire these kids," he said. "They came here from all kinds of backgrounds and areas. They pulled together to do a good day's work, which they can do with pride.

"The YCC is more or less designed to appeal to high school-age (14-18) youths who fit Uptegraft's praise. They're motivated by a sense of civic pride and conservation.

"Our primary goal is two-fold," Uptegraft said. "Participants complete meaningful, conservation-related work, learn new skills, and develop an increased awareness of environmental concerns while they're at it.

"One of the toughest assignments for Uptegraft's crew was a 140-foot planting of a species of Alder along a link fence. Back during World War II it had been a part of a security net work for the Illinois Ornamental Plant, whose relics still stand in various places on the Refuge.

"The YCC workers—half men, half women—took down, rolled up and hauled away nearly a mile of the fence. Then they reconstructed it for the Illinois Ornamental Plant."

George Rogers Clark tribute put together by student, artist

A SIUC graduate student and a Southern Illinois artist have pooled their talents in the creation of a bicentennial project paying tribute to George Rogers Clark.

Bicentennial Commission project aide paying tribute to George Rogers Clark, beverage researcher and military leader who captivated the Illinois country by the time of the War of 1812, is an 1874 manuscript.

Dorothy Spurway, historical researcher and Randolph County social studies teacher, said she has been intrigued with Clark's exploits.

As we tried to turn the activities, the artist said she pondered ways to call them to attention. She said she finally hit on the idea of an edition of Bicentennial George Rogers Clark postcards.

"The idea led her to artist Rosie Misuellhorn, who sketches Southern Illinois and Clark history scenes. Misuellhorn expressed immediate interest in the project.

"The collaboration resulted in production of 1,000 boxes of postcards, each box including five different Misuellhorn sketches with historical legends by Spurway.

Two SIU, Finance 322, "Investments," students, Kevin McLaren, Dunn Apartments, No. 39, Carbondale, and William Bishop, P.O. Box 157, Herrin, each received a $100 award for their third place performance in a national contest sponsored by Value Line Investment Survey. McLaren and Bishop ranked in the top 25 performers in the five-month investment simulation contest which involved about 21,000 participants from 430 universities and colleges.

Three SIU-C doctoral graduates are accepting key positions in higher education in North and South Carolina. Burnett Jones of Pascagoula, N.C., will return to Winston-Salem State University as that university's registrar, according to Dean of Faculty Affairs Lafayette Parker, who was in Carbondale for commencement and meetings with SIU-C faculty and students. Mrs. Golden F. Wall of Winston-Salem will return to become director of student teachers at her hometown university. Barbara Love Seacrest of High Point, N.C., will leave soon for Allen University in Columbia, S.C., where she will become director of the division of education and will coordinate student teaching.

Five soils and crops research reports by faculty members of the SIU Plant and Soil Science Department will be presented to the 37th annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy from Aug. 24-30 at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Presenting the papers will be Joe H. Jones, Oval Myers Jr., Donald J. Stuckey and Fabrel J. Olson, all associate professors, and Edward Vara, assistant professor. Also attending the meetings will be Donald Elkins, professor of plant and soil science, and graduate students Tom Newman, John Van Beveren and Egle Pere.

James Fralish, assistant professor of forestry at SIU, is presenting two research papers relating to forest ecology at meetings of the American Institute of Biological Sciences on the campus of Oregon State University in Corvallis from Aug. 17-23. Also presenting papers at the meetings are forestry graduate students Frank Baczenski and James Downs.

Fifteen SIU forestry students, enrolled in a field course in parks and wildlands management, left Carbondale Aug. 10 for a two-week study under the direction of Dwight K. McCaull, SIU professor of forestry. The trip includes studies of the Indiana Dunes in the Great Lakes area and the Boundary Waters of the northern Minnesota. The group will return to the campus Aug. 24.

George Kapusta, supervisor of plant and soil science research units at SIU, and Donald Elkins, professor of plant and soil science, attended a national conference in Raleigh, N.C., from Aug. 11-14. Rhizobia are nitrogen-fixing soil bacteria forming nodules in legume field crops.

Richard F. Walton, assistant professor of agricultural industries, has been elected as chairman of the National Future Farmers of American Advisory Council on International Programs.

Seminar on contracts slated for businessmen

Owners of small businesses will be briefed on obtaining state contracts in a free seminar Saturday sponsored by the Illinois General Services Department.

Registration for the workshop will begin at 9:30 a.m. in SIU Student Center Ballroom B. Classes will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The seminar is designed to educate small businesses on how to participate in the procurement of state contracts, and will also inform them of contracts presently available, a department spokesman said.

"Too often, small businesses don't get the contracts because they're afraid of all the red tape they think they will encounter, or because they don't know what's available to bid on," Roland Burrel, General Services director, said.

Representatives from both the General Services Department and the Illinois Department of Transportation will inform businessmen about current and upcoming contracts available for bidding, the spokesman said.

Recent changes in state law concerning bidding procedures will be made this seminar valuable for businessmen who have previously failed to sell state business, James North, state purchasing agent, said.

SIU President Warren W. Brandt is scheduled to give the welcoming address at the seminar.

Marching Salukis prepare for grid season

The Marching Salukis will return to the ranks Wednesday when a four-day band camp begins on campus.

Mike Hanes, director of the Marching Salukis, said band members "should look forward to a concentrated dose of getting their lips and legs back in shape" before the football season starts.

New band members report to campus Thursday and former members return on Thursday, Hanes said.

The band will rehearse noontime to dusk Thursday through Sunday, Hanes said.

The band has a two-day band camp "when we get them to march and play the fight tunes," Hanes said. This is a bit of coordination which has always humored results the first week of classes.

The Marching Salukis will accept new members until the end of the first week of classes, Hanes said.

The only requirement for membership is some experience with a band instrument, he said. No auditions are necessary.

The Marching Salukis' first appearance will be on Sept. 4 at a banquet given by the Knights of the Cauliflower Egg yolk of the St. Louis Cardinals football team in St. Louis.

The band will entertain at all six home football games starting with the Indiana State opener Sept. 20. Hanes said the band will participate in all band activities for the newly renovated Memorial Stadium.

The band may play during halftime at the St. Louis Cardinals-New England Patriots game which can be taped up to fit a marching band, Hanes said. The band may also perform the 'New World Symphony' arranged for the band.

The band members have been practicing this week. Band twirlers and the marching Salukis.

Charles Seiler, graduate student in Music, will assist Hanes in directing the Marching Salukis.

Crown control discussion slated by liquor advisory board

Carbondale's Liquor Advisory Board (LAB) will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Board Room to continue discussion on crown control problems and violations which are of major concern to the Board.

The board is expected to make recommendations to the Carbondale City Council for handling crown situations.

This meeting follows a special meeting of the Board of Police Officers who patrol Illinois Avenue and Carbondale found cases of the "strip" problem to areas youth and undergraduate drinkers attracted to the street's "carnival atmosphere."

Carbondale Police Chief George Kennedy said the problem has built up over the years and cannot be solved through legislation. The present situation is caused by a few people with a lot of determination who confront the police, he said.

The crowd has changed from relatively friendly college students to area youths, Kennedy said.

The problem is not confined to the Melrose-Prairie Grove area. Persons can be seen drinking in the streets between Dave Foss and the American Tap too, the police chief said.

Carbondale policeman Tim Moore told the board that the crowd situation cannot be blamed on any particular bar.

Men said officers were being attacked and some of their personal items, such as flashlights, were being stolen by the crowds. He recommended the bars become more strict on underage drinking.

The board reached a consensus, said Moore after announcing the meeting.

Candidates must be at least 25 years old and have a master's degree for research awards. For training fellowships candidates may have a doctorate or be within one year of completing doctoral requirements.

Applications-Deadlines for the awards and fellowships are Aug. 23 and Sept. 25. For further information contact Vergette, Room 206B, Woody Hall.

Liberal Arts to offer "Ascent of Man" class

The College of Liberal Arts will offer an interdisciplinary course this fall based on the Ford Foundation's "Ascent of Man," an intercollege series, "The Ascent of Man," LAC 301. "The Ascent of Man," will be offered for 3 hours of credit from 7 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, in LAC 102. Section 100 of the course is being offered by the Department of Continuing Education as a home study program, for two hours of credit.

Lou B. Shelby, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said one value of the course will be to show how the history of scientific thought is important to the humanities and that humanities values are bound up in scientific enterprise.

Bruce Appleby, associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said the course will consist of a lecture or talk session, followed by the reading of texts and class discussions.

The course is open to anyone interested in the history of science, he said, and it is not required for any specific major.

Specialist says farm energy crucial

By Albert Meyer

An SIU agriculture specialist has told the state's Energy Resources Commission that farm energy policy for Illinois should be flexible enough to provide the best economic interests.

Don M. Liebke, associate professor of agricultural industries, told the commission when it met in Carbondale during a statewide series of public hearings on energy problems.

Restrictive energy policies, or those that would attempt to exploit energy sources like solar power, could result in a net disadvantage for farm power and equipment, Liebke said. Farmers are concerned about power sources for agricultural land, just as they are concerned about road construction, he said.

"Agriculture is important to Illinois, Liebke said, and modern agriculture depends heavily on energy. During the 1974 fiscal year Illinois farmers produced and shipped nearly 10 percent of all the agricultural goods exported by the United States, Illinois ranks first in exports of feed grains, soybeans, poultry meat and soybean oil, and stands fourth in exports of feed meal and hogs.

"These agricultural exports later have rescued the nation from staggering trade deficits, Liebke said.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture study published last fall said agriculture, including production, family living, food processing, marketing and distribution, and the manufacturing of equipment and farming used, 13 percent of U.S. nation's total energy supply. Most of this energy is derived from agriculture, Liebke noted.

Commercial fertilizer, especially nitrogen, enables farmers to greatly increase crop yields. In 1972 Illinois farmers applied more than 760,000 tons of nitrogen fertilizer materials, much of it in the form of ammonium. It requires 40.9 million BTU of energy to manufacture ten of any ammonia fertilizer.

Grain drying is important to the production of corn and soybeans, Illinois' main field crops. In modern farm energy-

Most of these crop production and related activities have peak energy requirements of a seasonal nature. It is important that fuel and other energy resources be available when needed, to assure adequate food and fiber supplies, Liebke said.

Foreign students welcomed with orientation week

A work week of orientation will give new foreign students an opportunity to find housing, meet with academic advisers and register for classes.

The SIU International Student and Family Affairs Office is rolling out the welcome mat for more than 100 foreign students expected at any given time.

Orientation activities will be held at the Baptist Student Center from Aug. 23-27. Activities are planned to explain immigration regulations and procedures, health services, registration procedures and services offered for foreign students.

Other activities for the week include a tour of the campus, a picnic at the East St. Louis Fair and a shopping trip to University Mall.

A formal reception will be held at the Baptist Student Center Aug. 22-27. The first floor of the building will be open to the public.

Novelty key word for Saluki football

By Mike DePre
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A new stadium and new offense await Saluki football fans for the 1975 season. Both, however, are going to need some detailed work before the season begins.

The newly renovated McAndrew Stadium was opened to the public Saturday and Friday and showed off again to the press Monday.

The new offense began getting a pre-season shakedown over the weekend as Saluki football coaches and his staff worked out with 86 players, including 36 returning lettermen, to reap the benefits of the wishbone offense to an inexperienced quarterback.

The Saluki dressing rooms in the new stadium sport thick red carpets, open lockers engraved with players' names and numbers and a rock-and-roll juke box donated by Merri-Mac Vending of Carbondale.

Yet to be installed in the home team locker room is more rubberized red carpet in the shower area. Electrical hookups and air conditioning in the print media press box—one of two, the other, for use by radio and public address announcers—also have not yet been installed.

"Buck" Henry, sports information director, said the finishing touches may be completed in time the McAndrew Stadium within a week and predicted that all work slated for this year will be completed in time for the Salukis' home opener with Indiana State Sept. 20. Illini Opening Day.

Henry said wooden bleachers on the west side of the stadium will be replaced with the new aluminum ones at the end of the upcoming season. Henry also said that the team's new plans have been made to transform the empty lot on the east side adjacent to U.S. 51 into a parking lot. Henry said he does not know when the construction on the lot will begin.

He also said an unplanned room of seats was built boosting stadium seating capacity from the predicted 19,333 to about 19,700.

The luxury ends on the home-team side, though, and visitors will have clothes hooks rather than lockers and will not be enjoying carpeting or locked room music unless they bring their own. Women's locker rooms, incidentally, are furnished like the visitors'-sans carpeting and lockers.

What visitors will be bringing to the new McAndrew Stadium is almost every type of defense now in collegiate use. Weaver said.

Weaver said the Salukis will be running the Air-Raid offense this year. Bill Crisswell, sports director, announced Tuesday.

Crisswell said the Champaign station's broadcast also will be carried live by four stations—WFMY in West Frankfort, WNOS in Carbondale, Harrisburg and KGWM which serves Champaign and Bloomington, Ill. Weaver's WFMY broadcast will be carried on WIBS' one of its own broadcasts as it did last year.

The Salukis, who played football last year and did not cover all basketball games when the University attempted to produce a radio schedule, have found no takers other than the Herrin station for their 1975 games, which will pick up the Saluki play-by-play may be joined later by others pending resolution of conflicts with local high school schedules, Crisswell said.

WSIU—FM to air all Saluki games

WSIU—FM will broadcast all Saluki home and away football and basketball games in the West Frankfort Station and area.

"I am very interested in the possibility of getting a radio station for the Salukis," Weaver said.

The Salukis have attempted in the past to get a high school station to cover their games but these attempts have not been successful.

Leonard Hopkins says he never thought about quitting, not even when he was the fifth-team quarterback during SIU's spring football practice last April.

Hopkins, a senior from West Frankfort, had started several games the past two seasons and engineered the Salukis' come-from-behind victory over Western Michigan in 1974. But at the start of spring drills he was fifth on the quarterback depth chart.

"I never thought about quitting," Hopkins said. "I was the only quarterback with experience and I figured the coaches just wanted to look at one of the four other quarterbacks who had never played in a varsity game. "I knew if I worked hard enough, I could get back to the top," Hopkins said.

Getting back to the top took all spring, but now Hopkins is ready for the upcoming football season as the Salukas move into their new digs at renovated McAndrew Stadium.

"Everyone is excited about the new season and playing in the new stadium," the football student in engineering said. "We have talked about a new stadium for a long time and now it is a reality.

"I have worked out a lot in the summer and I know I have improved my speed and overall quickness," the 205-pounder said.
