Ohio Editor Wins Annual Golden Quill Editorial Writing Award

Don Pease, co-editor of the Berlin (Ohio) News-Tribune, as named recipient of the 962 Golden Quill award for outstanding editorial writing. The award was presented Pease last night by Weir Jones of the Franklin Press, Franklin, O., re- principal president of the Interna- tional Conference of 'weekly Editors meeting at ere Marquette State Park.

The Conference's annual meeting ends today. Pease was cited for his editorial entitled "We Used To Be Like The Szabos."

In it, the editor praised a young Hungarian refugee couple -- Karl and Theresa Szabo -- who overcame tremendous odds through great personal sacrifice in order to obtain an education so they could better themselves.

He went on to compare the Szabo's to our forefathers and lauded the fact that as a nation we have become "Tat- tles" and take our wealth for granted.

"Somewhere along the line we have lost the American spirit," the editorial commented.

The award was made at the annual Sigma Delta Chi dinner given for the editors and publishers who attended the conference.

Mrs. Gordon Clemenson, first woman president of the Guild of British Newspaper Editors, gave the annual Sigma- Delta Chi lecture at the dinner.

Mrs. Clemenson is editor in chief of the five newspapers in the Kent & Sussex Courier group in England.

Before winding up its meeting, the Conference elected new officers. They are:

Edward DeCourcy of the Newport Argus Champion, Newport, N.H., president who will hand over his duties to Bill Tull of the Franklin Press, Franklin, N., for the 1964 term.

Omer W. Johnson of the Ker- taring-Oak Wood Times, Ket- tering, O., will be vice-president, Dr. Howard R. Long, chair- man of the Department of Journalism, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Edith Boyes of the Mishawaka Independent Enterprise was elected to the board for a one-year term.

Gordon Wills of the McLean County News, Calhoun, Ky., was elected to the board for a one-year term.

A record number of students were expected to graduate from SIU in summer commence- ment to be held August 16 in McAndrew Stadium, offic- ials announced today.

Last year, a record was set when 483 from the Car- bondale campus and 55 from the Edwardsville campus re- ceived degrees, but officials said there was "no doubt" this figure would again be sur- passed on both campuses.

Dr. Randall Nelson, 32- year-old blind veteran and an associate professor of government at SIU, was named commencement speaker.

Nelson, who has been at SIU since 1955, earned B.S., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in political science from the university of Michigan. He spent six years in the Army, rising to private in captivity, and was awarded the Bronze Star, Purple Heart with cluster and five campaign stars.

He is a native of Mobile, Ala.

PRACTICAL NURSE CAPping SUNDAY

Dr. Joseph A. Petrazzi, furnilboro, will speak at capping ceremony Sunday ir five area women who have completed the first phase of practical nursing training at TL.

The ceremony will be at 10:30 a.m. in Morris Library auditorium, according to Mrs. Ingrid Mitchell, VTI co- ordinator of practical nur- ing.

Also participating in the.

Following capping, the practical nursing students be- gin 31-weeks of supervised clinical work experience in area hospitals cooperating in the VTI training program for practical nurses. The one- year program includes 17 weeks of classroom and laboratory instruction pre- ceding the on-the-job train- ing. Graduates must pass a state examination for licensing as practical nurses.

The program will be the Rev. John M. Powers, minister of the Western Heights Christian Church of Carbondale, and Mrs. Katherine Christiansen, registered nurse in charge of the VTI health service.

Scheduled for capping are Mrs. Madge McAdoo and Mrs. Lillian McClendon, Ben- ton; Mrs. Joyce Hastings; Carbondale; Mrs. Agnes Hol- land, Marion; and Mrs. Edith Jent, West Franklin.

August Commencement May Draw Record Number Of Graduates

A first installment of $133,000 has been granted to the National Defense Student Loan Program at SIU, according to Arthur Swanson, coordinator of student financial assistance.

The money is part of a continuing fund that comes into the University from the U.S. Department of Education and Welfare. Loan money is made available to the University on a ten-to-one basis with Southern providing up a tenth in matching funds, assistance.

Money received through the program goes to students on a basis of need and scholastic attainment. The loan, plus interest, is repaid over a peri- od of 10 years following the student's graduation from SIU, to the government department has advanced $753,000 to Southern for this pro- gram.

The Defense Loan Program is one type of student assistance handled through the financial assistance office, according to Swanson. A second type of assistance is direct scholar- ship aid, which last year in- volved $400 student government scholarships on the basis of need and scholastic ability.

A third form of student assistance is through short term loans which reach a max- imum of $360 for upperclass- men or graduate students and $75 for freshmen and sopho- mores. Money now available in the short term (three-month) loan fund, totals $26,797.

Cairo Demonstrators:

One SIU Student Fined $100,
Two Others On Trial Today

One SIU student was fined $100 yesterday for his part in an attempt to integrate an all-white swimming pool in Cairo and two others face mob action and breach of peace charges in court today.

The Alexander County Sher- iff's office, William T. Cul- quill, 22, of Springfield, was fined $100 each on three counts charged in connection with the incident last Sunday. The case will be appealed, it was reported. Adam C. Kaner, 18, of Cairo and David Pratt, 18, of St. Charles, Mo., were to ap- pear in court at 9 a.m. to- day.

It has been reported that the students destroyed jail property Wednesday when of- ficials failed to provide them with immediate medical at- tention. Former John A. O'Neal, president of the Student Non-Violent Freedom Convention, said he could not determine that as far as he could de- termine there had been no property destruction.

According to O'Neal, the students went on a sit-down strike in the jail recreation area because they didn't get medical attention. He said the jailers forcefully put them back into their cells. O'Neal said they "did make a noise and kick the cells returned to the cells but there was no property damage."

He said the students asked for medical assistance in mid- afternoon and a doctor didn't arrive until 8 p.m.

The Alexander County Sher- iff could not be reached for comment.

The state's attorney for the SIU students and 11 others who were arrested in the swimming pool incident asked that the charges be dismissed when the trial opened yester- day. His motion was denied by the judge.

Attention Ladies! Want New Hair-Do? Cosmetologists Will Give Free Ones

In the eighth annual school for advanced cosmetology at SIU there will be session in August. This is the first session of its kind recognized by the National Association of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists.

Nearly 100 cosmetologists from Illinois and other states are expected. This group is composed of beauty salon managers and owners interested in renewing their techniques in hair coloring, shaping, styling and cutting.

After the artists spend several hours in classes learning the new and improved techniques they will participate in a practical lab by administering polished "hair-do's" to volunteer models.

Women from the SIU community who are interested in having their hair done, free of charge, should sign-up at 403 W. Mill or call Pat White at 3-2601 or 3-2902, in the same manner as if they were making an appointment at their favorite beauty salon.

This program will be done on August 2 and 3, at 9 a.m.; 10 models will be needed.

Flying Technology Dean Has 'Head In Clouds'

In a manner of speaking, Julian H. Lauchner, new dean of the School of Technology, doesn't always have the feet on the ground.

His appointment was announced only last week and already he has been tagged the "flying" dean because he has committed in his own airplane from Mississippi State University to Carbondale to confer with his department heads.

He plans to make regular trips here in his plane until the last of August when he will move his family to Carbondale.

Lauchner, 38, a southern Illinois native, has been head of the department of ceramic engineering at Mississippi State. He will come to SIU full time in late August. One of his first concerns will be to establish a curriculum leading to degrees in engineering, implementing a decision of the Illinois legis­lature in 1961.

"I've always wanted to come back to southern Illinois," Lauchner said. "I was born at Centralia, where my father, A. H. Lauchner, was principal of the Washington grade school. My father attended SIU, both as an undergraduate and for summer sessions while principal at Centralia.

The Lauchner family moved to Urbana while the new dean was a child. The elder Lauchner now is living in Wisconsin, where he is an educational consultant for the University of Wisconsin and other institutions.

Lauchner has continued his interest in flying, started as a pilot during World War II, and holds a commercial pilot's license. His wife is a native of Pana and they have five children, ranging from one to eleven years of age. "We will start house-hunting in Carbondale soon," he said.

Two SIU School of Agriculture faculty members have been notified of selection to judge exhibit entries at the Illinois State Fair, Springfield, Aug. 9.

Dr. Herbert L. Porter, assistant dean and associate professor of plant sciences, will judge grain crop entries. Dr. Irvin Hillyer, SIU vegetable specialist, will judge vegetable exhibits in the horticultural division of the fair.

Applications are now being accepted by the School of Home Economics for a new scholarship in dietetics established by the Union County Hospital Auxiliary, available for 1962-63. The scholarship covers tuition and fees for a student who is a graduate of a Southern Illinois high school with a B average in high school work and who plans to specialize in dietetics.

Applications blanks may be obtained from the Office of the Dean of the School of Home Economics.

Hopkins Advertising Scholarship
To Be Presented To Vera Sue Dobbs

Vera Sue Dobbs of Centralia will receive the Illimky Advertising Club’s Don Hopkins Memorial Scholarship at the organization’s summer meeting August 2 at Herrin. The scholarship recently was Miss Dobbs as the most promising freshman starting a professional advertising curriculum.

President Jack Brundage of The Southern Illinoisan, Carbondale, will preside at the 7:30 p.m. meeting at the Herrin Coffee Shop. The Illimky Advertising Club has about 75 members, among Illinois, Kentucky and Missouri professional advertising people.

Ray’s project will be mainly a study of typography instead of linguistics. Typographic study presents problems because these languages use syllables as units, rather than vowels and consonants, Ray said.

Employment as a State Department foreign service officer during World War II was Ray’s first direct experience with language study. At that time he studied Japanese, Hindi, and Urdu.

Since coming to SIU in 1959, Ray has been an associate member of the interdepartmental Committee on Asian Studies. He is a serials cataloger at Morris Library, and will return to the library staff after completion of the Indian typography project.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of such "creatures" kindly contact Paul Hibbs at Altgeld Hall.

The "creatures" are only four of the 105 cast members who will perform in the summer musical production, "Showboat."

The props committee for the show also needs assistance. A small sulky or buckboard, folding fans, parasols, canes, and a special malacca cane are being sought by the workers.

Props and character casting aren't the only problems confronting Hibbs, stage director. The lack of space and the large cast are the two biggest items for concern, Hibbs says that they not only have the problem of where to put the cast while on the stage but at Shryock Auditorium what to do with them off stage.

Since the span of this show covers 47 years -- in 1880 to 1927 -- the short, bouffant hair styles of 1962 are not lend themselves to the longer styles of that era. The lack of space and the lack of space and the props for this period, Hibbs hopes:

"Often times it is hard for young people to emerson themselves in a period that they do not understand," Hibbs said, "but these students have adapted very well to their parts."

"For the scene at the Ball, Good Bye My Lady Love, Can't Help Loving That Man, are ones that will be remembered and loved by the older generation," Hibbs said. He adds that this show has every conceivable rhythm.

Drama Review

"Imaginary Invalid" Amuses Audience

The "Imaginary Invalid" kept its audience amused at its Wednesday opening and did so well in spots that the audience was willing to overlook most of its flaws.

Molleir's satire seems more like alapetich today, but moments of complete believ­ability were provided by James Pettit as Argan, San­dra Scifres as Toinette, and Soby Kalman as Berthe.

The play centers around the volatile Argan and his comb­ulsive need for pills, pur­gatives and enemas, the rem­edies, apparently, doctors prescribed in those days.

Argan has a second wife who pows affection on him like syrup, waiting for the rich old codger to die. Argan has a servant who knows him well and a daughter whom he would marry off to a doctor for obvious reasons. The daughter, of course, has someone else in mind.

As the play progresses, it becomes pretty obvious that some of the rough spots need a little finishing. Act I builds up well enough, with a good Interchange between Argan and Beline, his second wife played by Janrose Crockett, the interchange between Ar­gan and his saucy maid are better, but both female char­acters have problems laugh­ing or crying. Argan, how­ever, keeps the scene alive with his hilarious expres­sions.

His daughter Angelique, played by Frances Goodwin, moves through stages of be­lievability. Her problem is one of striking a realistic pose while floundering around in throes of love. A little toning down would help.

Act II moves quickly with the actors much more at ease. Argan here really comes to his best so far. The scene be­tween stepmother Beline and daughter AngeLique, however, keeps the scene alive better, but both female char­acters need more work.

The play, directed by Chris­tian Moe, was translated and adapted by Mary K. Noddre, former member of the SIU Department of Modern Lan­guages. This fall she will be teaching in Manchester, Eng­land.

The play will run through Sunday.

Campus Coeds Cooling? Shakespeare Says Yes Weather Station, No.

Shakespeare wrote in Henry VIII that "two women placed together makes cold weather."

It may have chilled the atmosphere for Henry VIII, but Shakespeare's built-in cooling system works well at SIU.

All coeds placed back-to-back encircling the campus won't force the temperature down anymore than would a quickly melting ice cube three blocks away.

Probably if an energetic public opinion student would take a random survey of conversation topics these days, he would discover that weather would top the list of "normal" or "above normal" at present. "July, however," Carl Altgeld, Weather Station, commented.

With this combination it seems as though it were much warmer than the mercury indicates, he said.

The record high for July in Carbondale, according to lab reports, was 112 degrees. The all-time low for this month was 43 degrees. Dates of these record temperatures were not available.

Mean temperature for July is 80. This may not seem unbearable in its true form, but add a tablespoon or two of humidity and the perspiration begins to roll.

While on Liquida, 3.15 inches of rain have been recorded during July at the climatology lab compared to double this amount last year.

SIU's weather station recorded a high temperature of 96 on June 19th—the high for the month. The low was 51 degrees just a few days later during the high reading. In 1936 the record temperature for June was 106 while the low was a brisk 16 degrees in 1917.

Total precipitation during this year through June was 22.91 inches as compared to 24.08 inches for the same period last year, the two-year climatology records showed.

Until everyone suffering from the heat can find a cool refuge, inherit a controlling interest in an air-conditioning company, or retreat to the North Pole, then think positively. Aim to acquire a healthy sun tan.

"Hail, the makers of a university!"

Southern Illinois High school musicians will climax the first annual "Music and Youth at Southern" workshop Saturday with a combined chorus, band and symphony concert in the University Center ballroom.

The public program at 7:30 p.m. will open with seven symphonic works by the workshop orchestra and James Barnes, Terre Haute Symphony conductor.

Choirmaster Walter Rodby of Homewood-Flossmoor High School will conduct the chorus and girl's ensemble in a group of sacred and secular works.

Closing section of the concert will be formed by the workshop band under the direction of William Baker, assistant SIU band director last year.

Plains students of Bernard Shaak in the "Music and Youth at Southern" workshop, will present a program Saturday at 3:30 p.m. in room 115 of Altgeld Hall.

Guest artists and the SIU music department have put the workshop musicians through daily rehearsals, private lessons, lecture sessions and other instruction since their arrival July 8.

Attitudes Toward Red China Questioned

Writer Favors Recognition of Communist China

This rather small monograph, written by a distinguished student of international and Far Eastern affairs, is obviously and admirably written for the layman or general reader. The author attempts to explain historically and objectively why it has been so difficult for China to evolve from an autocratic to a democratic political and economic system, and discusses forthrightly and frankly the issues and problems involved in the U.S. recognition of Red China.

In the early chapters, Professor Quigley credits the early Chinese scholars—Confucius, Mencius and Lao-tse—with instilling into the Chinese masses a reverence for absolute monarchy and a distaste for the military profession. He points out, however, that despite these precepts, political revolutions were fairly common, and a number of new dynasties were founded upon force of arms. Proper credit is given to the imperial civil service system, based upon a thorough knowledge of the Chinese classics and a network of conservatism and stability. Widespread corruption on all levels has been recognized as a prime factor in the downfall of many of these dynasties, including the Manchus (1644-1912).

The author gives due credit to Dr. Sun Yat-sen (1866-1925) and his "Thrice Principles of the People" for instilling in the Chinese masses a desire for nationalism and economic reform. Dr. Sun is recognized to have been sympathetic toward Soviet Communism, but Quigley insists that Sun was no Communist, as many of his critics have charged. An idealist himself, Dr. Sun did not anticipate that many self-seeking politicians would exploit his program for personal gain.

In his characterization of Chiang Kai-shek, Professor Quigley is not flattering. He credits Chiang with not understanding Dr. Sun's "Three Principles," and pictures him as primarily a military leader or warlord.

The author points out that in his conquest of north China, Chiang and his followers were guilty of terrorism and brutality, equal to that of Mao and his Communists later. It is suggested that had Dr. Sun lived, he might have succeeded in reconciling nationalism and communism in a liberal, republican program. Generalissimo Chiang, on the contrary, had neither the mind nor the personality for successful and conciliation of divergent interests.

Mao-Tse-tung is described as an ardent, but not slavish nor subservient, disciple of Karl Marx. He is characterized as a clearer thinker than Sun Yat-sen, and one who, while recognizing his dependence upon Russian communism, does not hesitate to differentiate between conditions in the industrialized West and those in China and other parts of Asia. In other words, Mao's stolid and pugy appearance is described as deceptive. He is essentially a pragmatist and a realist, rather than a profound thinker; but as an ardent Communist he has not hesitated to alter his fundamental beliefs or doctrines.

In discussing U.S. policy toward Communist China, Professor Quigley tries to be impartial, but it is quite evident that he regards our policy of non-recognition as both pessimistic and indefensible. He points to our traditional foreign policy of recognizing any foreign government or regime that is reasonably stable, and suggests that Red China rates high in this regard. The ten questions most frequently raised relative to recognition of Communist China are listed, and are answered in favor or recognition.

The strategic value of Formosa and Taiwan, both to Taiwan and to the United States, is seriously questioned. Likewise, in the light of Chiang's invasion of Formosa, at the time of his expulsion from the mainland, and the treatment of the area as a conquered province, the question is raised as to our moral obligation to defend the Nationalist regime on that island. In this connection, the author may be inclined to overemphasize the strategic and prestige significance of an independent Formosa.

All-in-all, Professor Quigley's China's Politics in Perspective is a simple, objective and factual treatment of a very complicated, confusing and controversial issue, which suggests that it should be required reading for all serious students of contemporary affairs. Its brevity does not permit a full treatment of any single aspect of the problems involved, nevertheless it is a real contribution to the literature of this explosive question.

ABC To Televise Dupree-Russian 880-Meter Race

SIU students will be able to see Jim Dupree run the 800-meters for the U. S. against Russia Sunday afternoon and p.m. by turning to the ABC network's "Wide World of Sports" television program. Dupree is representing the U. S. against Russia in the fourth straight year of international track competition between the two countries. The 800-meter event is slated to be run Sunday so students can see it performed live. Saturday's events will be taped and re-run during the week. Dupree won the meet since winning the race against the Poles three weeks ago in Chicago. It was the first time that Poland and the U.S. competed against each other in an international track meet.

The U.S. and Russia have met for the past three years with the U.S. easily winning the meet each time but losing the women's section of the track meet. Sports Illustrated figures the U.S. to win the men's division again this year with ease and also figures the U.S. women will come closer to winning than in any of the previous meetings.

In all the previous meets the winner of the meet was determined by the combined men's and women's score thus enabling Russia to win the previous three meets. This year all the indications promise to be a different story.

Freshman Quarterback Hurt While Working Out

Mike McGinnis, freshman quarterback from Pittsfield (Ill.), underwent knee surgery yesterday after injuring his knee last week while working out in preparation for fall practice which begins August 31.

McGinnis was one of three quarterback candidates vying for a berth on the SIU squad which faces its toughest schedule in history in the fall. McGinnis was rated third behind last year's quarterbacks Vern Pollock and Dave Harrell.

Carmen Piccone, SIU head coach, expects to invite some 55 athletes to Carbondale for the opening of fall practice. The Salukis have three game stand-ins: North Texas State, Hillsdale Lincoln, Northern Michigan and Fort Campbell are newcomers on Southern's schedule. McGinnis' team opened against the Salukis fourth road engagement since signing with the Cardinals at the end of spring term.

Patton played two years at Southern until signing with the Cardinals. He hit .328 this season after hitting .336 his freshman year.

While he was playing for Glenn Martin's baseball team, he was chosen to the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference team both years.

Patton received a bonus contract for signing after turning down several major league contracts after hitting .328 the previous year. The Cardinals at St. Louis Cardinals is rated among the nation's top ten college teams.

Patton was named to the All-Second team in the NCAA meet and was just one and three-sevenths points behind the runner-up in the NCAA meet which ranked fourth in the nation, losing out to the winner of the meet was Patton. The first and seventh places were won by the cross-country team. It was a blue ribbon in NCAA college division last fall and took seventh in the university division.

The gymnastic team was runner-up in the NCAA meet for the second straight season, losing out to the University of Southern California while Saluki basketball players took third in the NCAA college division tournament. Probably the most outstanding performance was turned in by the three-man track team which ranked fourth in the NCAA meet and was just one and three-sevenths points behind defending champion Southern California.

While no SIU team placed fifth any year, the wrestlers turned in their best finish in the NCAA meet when they tied for sixth with Wisconsin, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

In addition, Southern's football team was ranked among the nation's No. 10 conference division teams most of the season as it posted a 7-3 mark. SIU's baseball team won 17 of 25 contests, the golf team 15 of 19 meets, the tennis team 7 of 16 matches and the swimming team 2 of 6 meets.

All but the golfers collected Interstate Conference trophies as the Salukis bowed out of the league by winning nine of ten championships for the second year in a row. "Without a doubt," Boydston said, "it was Southern's greatest year in intercollegiate athletics."

Patton Homers Twice In First Pro Game

Mel Patton, former SIU student and outfielder, hit two home runs in his first two times at bat for Winnipeg, Class C team in the St. Louis Cardinal baseball organization.

His home runs came in the first game he played since signing with the Cardinals at the end of spring term.

Patton played two years at Southern until signing with the Cardinals. He hit .303 this season after hitting .336 his freshman year.

Home Ec Students Live 'High' This Summer

But They Still Have To Scrub Floors, Wash Clothes And Cook Meals

Living and studying in an air-conditioned penthouse may sound like an ideal way to go to summer school to an outsider. But it didn’t take the eight home economics majors running the home management house long to discover that it’s not what one might call a beautiful summer ideal.

Their chores range from scrubbing floors to changing diapers on a borrowed baby. And they have to do it all on a set schedule and within a certain financial budget.

According to Miss Hazel Craie, who lives with the girls as their adviser, each home economics major is required to live in the home management house six weeks for four hours of credit.

This is the first time this house on top of the Home Ec Building has been open during the summer session.

The girls take turns at eight types of duties. Each tour of duty is approximately four days.

"The cook," according to Joyce Hutson, a senior home economics education major from Seneca, "is responsible for the preparation of meals." There are three cost levels for the cook to use—low, medium, and high," she explained. For example, Nancy may serve a meal including steak at $1.25 per person, but Judy, limited to $0.60 per person might have to serve hamburger.

"The purpose of the different cost levels is to teach us to plan well-balanced meals within the limits of a budget," she said.

The daily housecleaning duties are taken care of by the housekeeper and the assistant housekeeper. Also in the line of house cleaning is the projects tour and the special cleaning tour.

"The girl on the projects tour," says Georgia Meagher, a senior clothing and textiles merchandising major from West Frankfort, "is responsible for the preparation of meals." There are eight different jobs. They are the type of job that need to be done only once during the six weeks. For example, I had to clean all the vases and the area they are stored in."

The job of laundress and nurse are combined for one girl. Jan Ladd, a senior home economics education major from Carbondale, says that the laundress-nurse tour is a learning process that helps the girls to determine what is the best way and time to do things, in terms of laundry and the baby. "The child of a home economics major is at the home management house only during the day."

The two final tours are that of manager and assistant cook. Also living in the home management house are Judy Grohman, senior from Chicago, a dietetics major. During the six weeks each girl does a time and motion study. She chooses a particular job such as cleaning the venetian blinds, keeps records on how much time and energy were used, and how to improve.

Each girl also does a comparison of equipment or supplies.

Center Cool Again

University Center’s welcomed chill has been restored. The air-conditioning unit which broke down early Tuesday morning was operating smoothly again within 24 hours.
