City receives safer crossing

By Irene Oplon
Staff Writer

In response to complaints by Carbondale's disabled community, the city and the Illinois Central Railroad united to make the pedestrian railroad crossing on the north side of Grand Avenue safer, a specialist at the Center for Independent Living said.

The materials that partially encased the crossing was constructed of wood and were anaconda wheelchairs, Ed Reeder, Carbondale's director of public works, said. "This created a hazard for the heavy traffic of disabled individuals at the crossing," Reeder said.

Wheelchair users were getting their front wheels stuck and sometimes flipping forward onto the tracks. Paukeet Sueka of the Center for Independent Living, said the crossing was replaced Tuesday with rubberized material similar to that used on the railroad crossing on College Street.

"Several groups at various points had made the Illinois Department of Transportation aware that the crossing was a problem," Subka said.

Disabled Student Services, Public Health, the Illinois Central Railroad, and individuals living and private individuals voiced their concerns.

The city and the Illinois Department of Transportation inspected the railroad crossing. A new reconstruction should be reconstituted, Subka said.

Wheelchair users often use the crossing on College Street instead of the pedestrian crossing because it's easier to navigate the rubberized material and not as rough, Subka said.

Grand Avenue will be the only pedestrian crossing in Carbondale that has the rubberized material.

The gap that produces the problems in the crossing is inside of the rail where the train wheel is widest, Reeder said.

Superintendent: Tax hike temporary to education

By John Walzbay
Staff Writer

The two-year income tax increase, which gave Illinois education a boost, will allow many school districts to climb out of financial holes, while to others it will only provide temporary security.

Reid Martin, superintendent for Carbondale Central 165, said, "It's really difficult to work with expenses and teachers if you can only plan for that period of time."

Martin said the majority of the additional funding his district will receive will be consumed by proposed salary increases for the next year.

"We are happy to receive an increase," Martin said, "but it's only for the next two years, it doesn't allow for anything extra with the money going toward salaries."

"I think the legislators were rather short-sighted with this," Martin said.

John Hawkins, assistant regional superintendent for Jackson and Perry counties, said many of the school districts will use the additional funding for capital investments rather than salary increases.

Hawkins also said he believed the increases were closer to the projections for expenditures made by the districts.

Addition to library pending

If the board of Trustees approves, the University could receive $29.6 million annex to Morris Library in the next five to six years.

In the first planning stages, the University is working on an initial $1 million to put plans into motion, David Grob, director of facilities and planning, said.

The money will allow the University to hire an architectural firm, Grob said.

During fiscal year 1991, the University would then ask for the remainder of the money to hire a construction company, Grob said. Grob said he isn't sure when that annex would be placed.

"The architectural firm will probably help us decide the best place to put the annex," Grob said. "Whenever it is, it will be close to the present library site.

Health official reports rabid bat in Gorham

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Jackson County Animal and Rabies Control officer Randy Nelson said Tuesday that a bat found near Gorham is infected with rabies and warned residents and their pets to keep clear of ground near the day Zing. Nelson said a man two miles south of Gorham, west of Carbondale, found his dog playing with a bat Sunday afternoon and killed the bat.

The Illinois Department of Public Health laboratory in Carbondale found Tuesday that the bat was infected with the rabies virus.

This is the second rabid bat found in Jackson County in a sun more than a month, with the first found in Carbondale city limits, but Nelson said neither the population of bats nor the number of bats that might have rabies in the area is known.

He said people and pets should be kept away from bats spotted during the day or on the ground and an animal control agency should be contacted.

To prevent the spread of rabies, Nelson said to make sure cat and dog vaccinations are updated and to report stray or unwanted animals to animal control or the humane shelter.

Nelson said the dog that was playing with the bat near Gorham was up-to-date on its rabies shots, but will be quarantined for 30 days as a precautionary measure.

Student refines testing for blood type of rapists

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Forensic scientists were romanticized in the television series "Quincy," in which the lead character was a heroic medical examiner who solved his case each week to catch the bad guy.

But a University student, who was an intern in the Illinois Forensic Science Laboratory, likened the work of a forensic scientist to Quincy's sidekick Sam, who ran the lab tests.

Mike Russell, a twenty-six-year-old biology student, and Lloyd Golden, found that a DNA test that can be used to identify the perpetrator.

Russell said a bed sheet upon which a rape occurred would be analyzed for body fluids. For instance, the section of the sheet with a semen stain would be placed in a solution that removes the semen from the cloth.

The test, called the absorption inhibition test, takes advantage of the fact that different members of the population excrete chemicals into their semen, saliva and sweat, which can be analyzed to determine blood type, Russell said.

"My main concern is that it is for only two years," Reid Martin, superintendent for Carbondale Central 165, said. "It's really difficult to work with expenses and teachers if you can only plan for that period of time."

Martin said, included in the total, he estimates his district will receive approximately $100,000 in additional funding from the two-year, 30 percent income tax increase created by House Speaker Michael Madigan and Sen. Paul Rock, D-Oak Park.

The plan was designed to divide revenue from the tax between local governments and education.

Martin said the majority of the additional funding his district will receive will be consumed by proposed salary increases for the next year.

"The money is much appreciated," Martin said, "but if it's only for the next two years, it doesn't allow for anything extra with the money going toward salaries."

"I think the legislators were rather short-sighted with this," Martin said.

John Hawkins, assistant regional superintendent for Jackson and Perry counties, said many of the school districts will use the additional funding for capital investments rather than salary increases.

Hawkins also said he believed the increases were closer to the projections for expenditures made by the districts.

D.C. Council shelves handgun bill indefinitely
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The District of Columbia’s efforts to ban handguns indefinitely Tuesday a final vote on legislation that would hold handgun manufacturers liable for injuries or deaths caused by the use in the nation’s capital. The move came a day after Walter Fauntroy, the district’s non-voting delegate to Congress, sent a two-page letter to the council in which he warned the bill would probably meet a hostile reception Congress and could increase congressional intervention in city affairs.

Mayor cites Detroit as ‘chief victim’ of racism
DETROIT (UPI) — Mayor Coleman Young, citing Detroit as the nation’s chief victim of racist abandonment, told the NAACP Tuesday its pursuit of freedom faces challenges even when it was founded 80 years ago. Young, elected Detroit’s first black mayor in 1973, said blacks who worked in the automobile plants were “seeking jobs and freedom.” Now, he said, jobs are moving out of the country and “freedom is being undermined by the Supreme Court” and by policies of former President Reagan.

Federal judge continues coal hearing until Friday
ALTON, Ill. (UPI) — A U.S. District judge Tuesday heard arguments on a request for a temporary restraining order that could send striking Illinois coal miners back to work, and then continued the hearing until Friday. A clerk for Judge William L. Beatty said the unions asked Tuesday to have the judge dismiss the motion for the order. Several Illinois coal companies have filed complaints with the National Labor Relations Board alleging unfair labor practices because of the strike.

Psychic tells client’s futures in crystal ball, palms, cards

By Michi Dalhauser McGowen
Staff Writer

The psychic reading room is in a closet. Statues of Jesus Christ, the virgin Mary and other Christian statues sit on the floor and on a card table. In the middle of the card table is a crystal ball, resting in a gold colored stand. The crystal ball is clear. It does not look like anything extraterrestrial.

Looking into a crystal ball, reading someone’s palm or feeling the vibrations of cards are ways psychic reader Helen Taylor, from Carterville, says she can tell a person’s future. Some of the areas Taylor predicts include what people’s love lives will be like, what they will choose as a career, what they will accomplish in the future and the number of bad children they will have.

For Taylor and many other people, the crystal ball holds the past, present and future. “I gauge into the crystal ball and mediate on it,” Taylor said.

She said she concentrates on her client so she can read the crystal ball. “Visions appear to me about anything about the person. I am reading for,” Taylor said.

The most complete information is gained from reading the crystal ball,” she said.

Tarot cards are her second best source for psychic reading, Taylor said. There are 22 cards in the deck. They have different types of pictures on them and some have numbers.

Although some people believe the cards represent particular events in their future, she said the cards mean something different for each person she reads Tarot for.

Taylor said her client picks seven cards. “I get vibrations from the cards and I concentrate on them,” she said, adding that the cards send her messages about her client.

Her third type of psychic reading, palm reading, tells her the least information of the three, she said.

Taylor said when she reads palms, “I read both hands because they both give different information. Most lines tell a lot, but some don’t mean anything.”

Taylor said she became a psychic reader so she could help people. If there is something in her client’s future, she said she tells the client so “they could be on the watch out for it and prevent it.”

Taylor said she sometimes counsels people with problems.

“If they are going through a divorce, I could bring them back together through counseling,” she said.

Taylor’s prices range from $25 for a palm reading up to $75 for reading the cards in a crystal ball. She would not tell how much she charges for counseling.

Taylor inherited her talent for palm reading from her mother, she said. Her great-grandmother also was a palm reader.

County seeks council in possible jail law suit

The Jackson County Building Commission will seek outside legal counsel over a possible law suit concerning the new Jackson County Jail, which has been plagued with construction problems.

Because he could be cited as a witness in a possible court case, Gary Miller, the building commission’s attorney, was passed over for Anna Janneson, attorney R. Corydon Finch.

Miller said he would assist Finch in his analysis of contracts relating to the jail, and the settlement of the southeast corner of the jail floor would be investigated, along with other areas for possible compensation to the county.

Richard A. Ligon, the building commission’s secretary said Finch is scheduled to present a report on his findings August 2.
Increase in salaries is needed for faculty

AN INDIVIDUAL’S right to choose a product from an array of choices is the foundation for capitalism in our country. This right extends from laundry detergent to a college education. While some products may only differ symbolically, a college education is not one of them. University, but qualified faculty does not come easily. They especially don’t come easily to a University whose wages can’t keep up with similar campuses.

If SIU-C’s faculty at the core of the University, we feel that the wage increase is only a heritage. It is something to be proud of, but you need to wake up and smell the roasting pot, we are American. I think some of the students you follow, and some idiots wearing funny white hats and robes, have installed a lot of hatred in you. Our enemy is not each other anymore, and our Daily Egyptian's right to choose a product from an array of choices is the foundation for capitalism in our country. This right extends from laundry detergent to a college education. While some products may only differ symbolically, a college education is not one of them. University, but qualified faculty does not come easily. They especially don’t come easily to a University whose wages can’t keep up with similar campuses.

UNIVERSITY Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, awaiting the Board of Trustees approval of the increase in order to adopt it into the Board’s operating budget. said that this, in addition to last year’s 7-percent increase will help SIU “gain some ground.”

Pettit said the 8-percent increase is an average. Every faculty member will receive a 3-percent increase. Additional increases will be based on merit.

More competitive wages will attract good teachers as well as help maintain those we already have. The merit-based increase is a good way to ensure that deserving faculty members are properly rewarded for their dedication.

WITH THE faculty at the core of the University, we feel that the wage increase is needed and should be supported by the Board of Trustees.

Art display featuring nude baseball player ignites controversy—again

CHICAGO (UPI) — An art exhibit featuring a nude baseball player has touched off another controversy in the nation's capital—this time in three years the second time—the scene of an art display that many people find objectionable.

Earlier this year an exhibit by an art student invited pepper spray to be fired at a man's naked body that was flag placed on the floor. The display brought daily demonstrations outside the gallery, which veteran's groups and some state legislators called a "disgrace to our President George Bush — following a recent Supreme Court decision on various ways to display a constitutional amendment to protect the flag.

Last year, a painting of former Chicago Mayor Harold Washington in women's lingerie touched off a storm. Several members of the City Council and the Art Institute and removed the painting.

Another exhibit of art on baseball at the Chicago Public Library Cultural Commons includes a painting of a nude baseball player. It opened Wednesday and by several protestors were out in force.

The city immediately responded by posting a sign warning that the exhibit contains some material find objectionable. "Please use discretion when choosing to enter," reads the sign outside the exhibition. "Diamon is: Forever: Artists and Writers on the E:xhibition." Chicago Cultural Affairs Commissioner Joan Harris described the show as a traveling exhibition of 100 art works. The exhibition was organized by the New York State Museum, and the Smithsonian Institute Traveling Exhibition Service.

It is scheduled to be on display through Sept. 9 at the Cultural Center.

Two other art displays caused a controversy in the city, sending thousands of demonstrators into the streets.

Once the semen is removed, it would be tested with a common lab procedure used to determine blood type. This test works well in 70 percent of the population who are known as "secretors," meaning they secrete regular amounts of semen body fluids that can be used to identify the man.

Knowing the blood type of the sperm is critical for investigatory to narrow down a list of suspects to those with a matching blood type or, in the case of a trial, would provide evidence against the accused if the blood type matched test results.

Andy Wist, the forensic scientist who supervised Russell's work and now must verify his results, said Russell's work was useful to confirm what the scientists suspected from causation: that body fluids can be dissolved more efficiently into extract solutions at certain temperatures and after particular amounts of time.

Wist said Russell "backed up our observations with lab data." Russell said that the amount of time, temperature and solution used to extract a biological stain from a cloth varies from crime lab to crime lab and his job was to determine the optimum environment for extraction.

With a project of this magnitude, it will take five or six years to complete, if that soon, he says.

Grobe said the library is getting too crowded and additional space is needed.

According to the Dean of Libraries, Kenneth G. Peterson, the University has been pushing for a new library since 1966. In 1969 and 1970, requests were made by the University for funding of a library annex, Peterson said. The legislature denied the University's requests.

During the spring of 1970, student riots broke out on campus and plans for the annex were set aside, Peterson said.

In the late 1970s, the University tried to revive the plans once again, but to no avail, Peterson said.

Now the fate of the library annex is in the hands of the Board of Trustees.

If the board approves the initial plans, it is likely they will approve all plans concerning the project and the annex will be added, Grobe said.

Neither Grobe nor Peterson were willing to speculate whether the board will approve the initial funding.

The board will meet Thursday at 11:30 A.M.

Martial law to continue indefinitely, China says

BEIJING (UPI) — Martial law will continue indefinitely in Beijing because citizens still have not seen the end of the trouble from the army during the crackdown on protests, government authorities fear, a senior government spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman also said the new Chinese Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang remains under investigation for alleged links to the unrest of the democracy movement in which some still live criminal prosecution.

Meanwhile, Jang Zemin, who earlier this week met with three officials from Hong Kong, who said they were reassured by them Beijing would respect its pledge to maintain the British colony's capitalist system for Hong Kong after 1997.

The Soviets claim progress in weapons talk

GENEVA (UPI) — The Soviet Union Tuesday reported "substantial progress in talks" with the United States on banning chemical weapons and that full implementation of any treaty could be completed within one year.

Sergei B. Bananov, Soviet delegate to the 45-nation disarmament conference, reiterated Moscow's acceptance of challenge inspections of its chemical-weapons depots by the West to monitor suspected chemical-weapon plants on short notice.

At the same time, he criticized the U.S. for mutual disarment forum's work in a statement.

"We can and must move ahead faster than we do now," Ratasav, addressed to the conference, an independent body that reports to the United Nations General Assembly.

South African officials complete investigation of Winnie Mandela

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — An investigation into the murder of a teenage black boy that linked the wife of the apartheid leader, Nelson Mandela to the South African police force, said the official Xinhua news agency quoted Jang as telling T.K. Ahn, T.S. Lo and P.H. Huang, members of the committee drafting a constitution for Hong Kong after 1997 that "well water does not interfere with the river water."

Security authorities also released a Taiwanese journalist detained for eight days on charges linked to the ongoing crackdown on democracy movement activists and deported him to Hong Kong.

But authorities also interrogated a second Taiwan reporter for two days and ordered him expelled from the country within 48 hours for violating martial law restrictions on newsgathering.

"We practice our socialism and you may practice your capitalism," the official Xinhua news agency quoted Jang as telling T.K. Ahn, T.S. Lo and P.H. Huang, members of the committee drafting a constitution for Hong Kong after 1997.

"So for some time, martial law cannot be lifted."

"They will still cause trouble and problems," Yuan added.

"No comment at this stage on whether she's linked to the murder, but she's linked to the accused in that a number of them were living in her house," de Vries said.

"She's not an accused and not a suspect."

"The attorney general is investigating whether there are these nine people should be charged in the supreme court with the murder and there are outstanding accusations who may be arrested," but not specifically Winnie Mandela," he said.

Three of the youths were subsequently released but the body of Seipei was found eight days later, with his jugular veins slashed. Mrs. Mandela has denied allegations of involvement in the murder and has insisted the youths were playing a trick on the authorities to protect them from sexual abuse by the church's white minister.
Women go up in job market by assuming men's old jobs

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A University of Illinois sociologist Tuesday said a study of occupations shows women have made progress in their ability to enter male-dominated fields in which men no longer are interested.

In排放, Barbara Reskin said the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when the 20th century could end with a labor force only slightly less segregated than when

City refuses group's suit for 'King Day'

CONNEIL, Wash. (UPI) — City Council stands by its controversial decision to name the Martin Luther King Jr. federal holiday "Civil Liberties Day" a decision the NAACP criticized as an insult to the civil rights leader.

City Council voted 4-4 in May to adopt the name "Civil Liberties Day" for the holiday marked each year on the third Monday in January. Council members affirmed the decision on Monday without comment and without a vote.

Last year, a small southeast Washington town said they wanted to honor everyone who has fought for human rights and not single out an individual for recognition.

NAACP leaders and other critics say the move at a June 26 council meeting, asking the city to call the holiday "Martin Luther King Day." Council members tabled the issue until Monday's meeting.

When the issue came up Monday, council members had nothing to say and took no vote — leaving the May decision intact, council members said Tuesday.

Councilman David Gimmack said his survey of 25 residents found them split evenly on the issue.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney restricted the Pentagon’s public displays of life-size Christ figures to the Capitol grounds Tuesday to curb waste and fraud and save an estimated $50 million over five years.

President Bush praised the decision as a proper and long-awaited defense management review and wrote to the nation’s high court. “You will have my strong support in implementing its recommendations.”

Cheney’s plans for a 15 percent cut in fiscal year 1996 by eliminating many jobs, many inside and outside contractors were contained in his 27-page “Defense Management Report to the President” that was sent to the White House.

BUSH ORDERED the management review in February in response to the evidence of waste, fraud and abuse uncovered in the continuing federal investigation of the military’s massive weapons procurement program.

Cheney was able to implement some of the recommendations immediately, such as the restructuring of the Pentagon’s budget, but he will need legislation from Congress to streamline many weapons buying regulations and procedures.

At a news conference Tuesday, the secretary acknowledged others have tried and failed to reform the Pentagon and warned he has “no silver bullet” to propose that might end all waste, fraud and abuse.

“The only way we can do better,” he said simply, adding, however: “Our efforts... will be for naught unless we get some help from Capitol Hill.”

THE FORMER Wyoming congressman and congressman from 1979 to 1989 tells a legislative package to Congress by year’s end to streamline what the Pentagon calls “burdensome regulations” affecting the Pentagon.

For the last seven years, she has kept a weekly vigil from June 19 to Labor Day on the U.S. Capitol grounds, where she led a series of grass-roots demonstrations. Cheney, a couple of plastic tablets inscribed with the Ten Commandments, and a display of the Capitol’s New Testament, called “Freedom’s Call to the People,” was able to implement “functions” from the industry, military services administer the 1986 recommendations of the Defense reform commission on defense reform chaired by industrialist David Packard.

ONE MAJOR change Cheney was able to implement immediately was creation of a legislative committee composed of the defense secretary, the Pentagon’s top civilian leaders and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to serve as the key Defense Department policy-making body.

Cheney also announced creation of an ethics council, composed of top Defense Department leaders, to develop an ethics program among managers and workers, to “police in-house” and to demand “strict adherence” to department guidelines.

Deputy Secretary Donald W. Sheehan, who is reviewing the restructuring, is designated to oversee the process of planning programs and budgeting.

To streamline the acquisition process, the Cheney report recommends:

- REDUCING THE Pentagon’s payroll costs by eliminating some of the $600,000 military and civilian jobs with “functions that do not add clear value” to the weapons-buying system. Atwood said he did not know how many jobs would be cut or where.

- Assigning the undersecretary of defense for acquisition, a post currently vacant, the full management responsibility for major acquisition programs through a system of streamlined organizations.

- Establishing a new Defense Contract Management Agency to coordinate all contract administration services.

Currently, the individual military services and various weapons contractors on a daily basis.

THE HOUSE Armed Services Committee staff said it was somewhat critical of the plan.

“Like the Packard Commission, the Cheney review says all the right things,” the committee’s staff said in a sermon Tuesday. “But it lacks enough specific, implementing directions to ensure that the ‘cultural change’ that everyone agrees is needed will happen.”

Cheney criticized “policy gridlock” created by 10 congressional committees and 71 subcommittees with jurisdiction over defense matters and said he will issue his recommendations on congressional-Pentagon relations by Oct. 1.

Woman crusades on Capitol steps for freedom of religion, expression

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rita Warren, a woman who carried a life-size Christ figure to the Capitol steps seven summers, knows her rights and is not worried about the recent Supreme Court ruling outlawing the display of a nativity scene in a government building.

The decision on the constitutional function of the Christmas scene comes after Warren shared an apartment with a daughter of Moses, but a visitor is allowed to stage her “ten commandments” next to the Capitol grounds.

In Massachusetts, where she lived before moving to the Washington area 10 years ago, she led a series of grass-roots demonstrations to pray and sing praise to the Pillars of Allegiance to public schools, to restrict the sale of pornography and to uphold the state’s blue laws.

For the last seven years, she has kept a weekly vigil from June 19 to Labor Day on the Capitol grounds, where she led a series of grass-roots demonstrations. Cheney’s life-size Christ figure, a couple of plastic tablets inscribed with the Ten Commandments, and a display of the Capitol’s New Testament, called “Freedom’s Call to the People,” was able to implement “functions” from the industry, military services administer the 1986 recommendations of the Defense reform commission on defense reform chaired by industrialist David Packard.

U.S. declares bus crash terrorist act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost a week after a Palestinian killed 14 Israelis by crashing a public bus into a crowd in Israel the State Department agreed Tuesday that the episode was an act of terrorism.

U.S. failure to define the attack as a bus crash may become a quickly growing irritant between Washington and Jerusalem, with the Israeli Foreign Ministry calling “the State Department’s silence on the issue a ‘license for the Palestinians to kill.”

At the State Department Tuesday spokesman Richard Boucher, who earlier had refused to label the bus attack terrorism, said: “On the basis of available information now, it was clearly a terrorist attack.”

He was also a renowned Shakespearean actor and director, and his career spanned over six decades. Olivier was known for his iridescent performances and his dedication to the craft of acting. He was a true legend in the world of theater and film, and his contributions to the arts will be remembered for generations to come.

Nightclub risks license, violation to keep 'dwarf-tossing' contest

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan nightclub was issued a controversial dwarf-tossing contest during a state Liquor Commission hearing, raising concerns that it could jeopardize the entertainment license. The contest, featuring $1,000 in prize money, has been marked as a violation of the state's liquor laws. The permits and investigators for the state have been asked to review the case. The nightclub, a popular music venue, has been at the center of a series of legal battles over its entertainment license. The club is known for its lively atmosphere and its willingness to take risks in the name of entertainment. But the dwarf-tossing contest has raised concerns among some members of the community, who worry that it could harm the club's reputation and its chances of obtaining a renewal of its license. The club's owner has defended the contest, saying that it is a fun and harmless part of the entertainment experience. But the state has been firm in its stance, insisting that the contest violates the state's liquor laws and must be stopped immediately.
NOTICE FROM THE FINANCIAL AID OFFICE
ALL UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS MUST COMPLY WITH THE FOLLOWING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY IN ORDER TO RECEIVE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY
FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

The Federal Government, the States, and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have invested large sums of money in order to provide financially needy students the opportunity to attain a post-secondary education. Financial aid recipients are responsible for using the funds provided in an acceptable manner. Therefore, a student who wishes to benefit from the receipt of financial aid funds must maintain "satisfactory progress" as defined in this policy.

AUTHORITY
The Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended and the final regulations set forth by the Department of Education in 34 CFR 668 require that institutions of higher education establish reasonable standards of "satisfactory progress". A student who does not meet these standards is not eligible to receive federally funded financial aid. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale shall make these standards applicable to all state and institutional aid programs for the purpose of maintaining a consistent and reasonable financial aid policy.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS STANDARDS
Southern Illinois University at Carbondale requires that a student be making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if that student wishes to receive financial aid funds. A student is making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if he successfully meets two basic academic standards. First, a student must complete a reasonable number of credit hours toward a degree each academic year. Second, a student must maintain a scholastic standing, derived from grades, that allows for continued enrollment at the University under current academic guidelines. The following parameters will be used to define these two basic academic standards:

1) Maximum time to graduate: A full-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in six academic years (12 semesters). A half-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in twelve academic years (24 semesters). In order to be sure that a student is progressing toward that goal, each student's progress will be measured annually after Spring Semester to determine the progress made for the last academic year or attendance. Each term of at least half-time attendance shall be included in the annual review whether or not the student received financial aid for the term. The following chart will serve as a model to determine if each student is meeting this requirement of "satisfactory progress".

A student who does not meet either or both of the standards set forth above and who cannot show "mitigating circumstances" is not maintaining "satisfactory progress" toward a degree and is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. (See Appeals)

Nothing in this policy shall be construed as a reduction of external requirements by other federal, state, public, or private agencies when they award or control financial aid. Examples of such agencies are: Veterans Administration, Vocational Rehabilitation, and the NCA.

DEFINITIONS
Credit hours completed shall be defined as the total number of academic credit hours for which a student receives a grade other than a failing grade. Incompletes, withdrawals, audits, and remedial courses which do not count toward a degree shall not be considered as credit hours completed. Credit hours received for repeated courses shall be counted only once.

Eligible students shall be defined as those students who are admitted to the University in a degree-seeking classification. All other students are not eligible for financial aid.

Full-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in twelve (12) hours or more per semester.

Half-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in more than five (5) hours and less than twelve (12) hours per semester.

Undergraduate shall be defined as a student who is a freshman, sophomore, junior, senior or a senior with a bachelors degree seeking a second bachelors.

NOTIFICATION OF TERMINATION
It shall be the responsibility of the Financial Aid Office to publish this policy and to notify by letter any student who is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. Said notice shall be addressed to the student's most current home address on file with the University. IT SHALL BE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE STUDENT TO INFORM THE UNIVERSITY OF A CORRECT HOME ADDRESS AT ALL TIMES. Student's academic deans shall receive copies of all notice letters.

REINSTATEMENT
Students will have their eligibility to receive financial aid reinstated when they have reached the level of satisfactory progress required of them by this policy. They may achieve this status by the completion of incomplete grades, correction of incorrect grades and by earning more than the required number of completed hours for a term or terms without the benefit of financial aid.

APPEALS
Any student who cannot meet the grades requirement, or the cumulative credit hours completion requirement shall have an opportunity to appeal in writing to explain "mitigating circumstances". The appeal should be sent to the Financial Aid Advisory Committee within 15 days of the notice of termination. The Financial Aid Advisory Committee will review the "mitigating circumstances" documented in the appeal and provide a written decision within 20 days after receipt of the appeal.

McLeod Theater to present double bill of one-act plays

By Theresa Livingston, Entertainment Editor

Two one-act comedies dealing with the theme of theater and becoming reality are the first offerings in the second feature of McLeod Theater's Summer Playhouse '89 series. The plays are "The Actor's Nightmare," written by Christopher Durang, and "It's Corpse," written by Humorist Bill Scott. "The Actor's Nightmare," directed by William Kirksey, who plays the role of George Spelvin in "The Actor's Nightmare," is the first production staged as part of the second offering in the summer series of one-act plays. The play will give 16 members of the audience a chance to sit on the stage. "It's Corpse," directed by Moe said, "It's very interesting because you can concentrate on pushing the energy out to the audience. It lets you get a little more into details than a longer piece," Moe said.

The play will open Thursday, June 20, and will run for three weekends. For more information, call 449-1144.

session for winning.
Players resented Collins' approach, and games down into a "I won; they lost" statement with post-game analysis concluding that Collins was the only one gave all but the effort.

IT WAS AN obscenity that made Collins, as many as any other in the NBA.
Players and coaches around the 28-year-old Marylander knew Jordan was not having years cut off his career. Still Collins only restated the words Jordan complained openly that they were asking too much.

A good coach should not have to be told to relax main attraction before the star burns out. Jordan also made known through the experiment was asking far more.

When Jordan was not on the floor, the team was completely lost, and often passed up open shots for fear of missing and being penalized from the game under-a flurry of verbal abuse.

Collins had been known as a players' coach who was willing to talk to his young players. But Smith reports that Krause felt that Collins was not willing to let the young players work out their mistakes on the court without fear of abuse.

WITH THREE NO. 1 draft picks picking in, Krause may not have wanted Collins' demeanor surprising the players.

Collins' main problem is that he wants to win every game and has a tough time accepting losses. This is the perfect attitude for a player. The coach has to realize the limitations of his team.

A player like Sam Vincent, who Collins lauded with praise upon his arrival, soon got on the temperamental coach's bad side, and was seldom seen without warm-ups on seats.

Smith claims that Reinsdorf and Krause are interested in post-game accusation sessions by Collins that would be followed with Collins going to his office alone to watch game film.

THE ABUSE OF Will Perdue in no way resembled Collins to Krause, who drafted Perdue in the first round, only to see him resolved to the bench for much of the season. Collins had agreed to get Perdue an average of 16 minutes a game playing time in reality, he played less than any other non- imported pick.

Collins' assistant coaches developed the Bulls defense, possibly the only major threat besides Jordan, yet they too often got the cold shoulder from Collins.

Apparently, the war! from the Bulls front office is that Collins always viewed Jordan as the new head coach, as a rival and would have assistants inform him on who Jackson was speaking to.

COLLINS WAS BECOMING an obsessive man who was heading for a burn out. He could be a much better coach the next time around. He is an intelligent, driven competitor who will learn from his mistakes.

Jackson has a tough road ahead of him. Collins was very popular with the fans and comparisons will be natural. It will be difficult to match the championship semi-final in his first season, but that's what will be expected.

To his advantage, Jackson will have the new Minnesota Timberwolves to kick around the Central Division. Plus, two new bodies in Stacey King and B.J. Armstrong fit neatly into the Bulls with ease.

Of course, he also gets Jordan.

THE REPORTS from the Bulls camp are that Jordan likes and respects his new mentor and so his teammates. Several Bulls players claim that a December game against Milwaukee was the most enjoyable of the season.

In that game, Collins was ejected early and the Bulls came from behind to pull out a victory.

Collins has been ejected for real this time. Let's hope the Bulls respond to Jackson the way they claim to.

Apparently, the war! from the Bulls front office is that Collins always viewed Jordan as the new head coach, as a rival and would have assistants inform him on who Jackson was speaking to.

COLLINS WAS BECOMING an obsessive man who was heading for a burn out. He could be a much better coach the next time around. He is an intelligent, driven competitor who will learn from his mistakes.

Jackson has a tough road ahead of him. Collins was very popular with the fans and comparisons will be natural. It will be difficult to match the championship semi-final in his first season, but that's what will be expected.

To his advantage, Jackson will have the new Minnesota Timberwolves to kick around the Central Division. Plus, two new bodies in Stacey King and B.J. Armstrong fit neatly into the Bulls with ease.

Of course, he also gets Jordan.

THE REPORTS from the Bulls camp are that Jordan likes and respects his new mentor and so his teammates. Several Bulls players claim that a December game against Milwaukee was the most enjoyable of the season.

In that game, Collins was ejected early and the Bulls came from behind to pull out a victory.

Collins has been ejected for real this time. Let's hope the Bulls respond to Jackson the way they claim to.

Rugby team grows, learns in Milwaukee

By Sean Harris

Steve Montez, coach of SIU- Carbondale men's rugby, looks at last weekend's rugby tournament as one to grow on.

"It took us awhile to get organized," he admitted after the team lost last third of it's four matches. However, he was suprisedly pleased with the way they performed.

"We picked up some guys we thought were Chicago who weren't even sure on the plays," Montez said. "As the day went on, we got better." The team finished the day on a positive note winning it's final match, 15-10.

Montez coached the Milwaukee host teams. "We are going to do much better in St. Louis," Montez claimed.

The team heads to St. Louis for a tournament July 26 and Montez said he feels that Milwaukee was a great warmup.

Rugger Tom Kostka agreed, saying "We did do a lot better. We learned so much in the few hours we were there."

Sports’ budgets boosted by $149,380

By Kevin Simpson Star

SIUC Athletic Director Jim Hart has increased the operating budgets of all 18 SIUC sports programs for the 1989-90 fiscal year.

Hart, beginning his second year as athletic director, increased operating budgets of individual sports by a minimum of 15 percent while decreasing the administrative budget and maintaining support-area budgets, which include training budgets and sports information services.

According to a press release issued by Intercollegiate Athletics, football, volleyball and men’s and women’s basketball received increases of 50 percent or greater in order to further enhance the basketball programs and to cover additional travel costs for football and volleyball this season.

"Fortunately we had a good year in fund-raising and our men’s basketball team attracted more fans than ever, which increased our basketball revenue $100,000 over what was projected," Hart said. "Primarily these two new programs, plus the fact we eliminated two sports (gymnastics and field hockey), allowed us to boost budgets.

Hart said he had to make some difficult decisions when it came time to drop two programs from the program, "but the other sports are benefiting from the move."

Charlotte West, associate athletic director, said she thought that dropping the sports was better for the athletic department in the long run.

"We’ve dropped two sports programs to provide added support to others. All other sports in our program benefitted to some extent," West said.

Although records prior to 1979 are no longer available, it was absolutely the first time that since every sport has received budget increases, according to the press release. The increased budgets are expected to aid SILLC in recruiting top-flight athletes.

Bill Cornell, head coach of men’s track and field programs, said it was extremely pleased about the situation.

"It’s the most exciting thing that’s happened around here in years," Cornell said. "Our men are happy and we're happy as well because if we can we do it again."

Doug Ingram, head coach for the men’s and women’s swimming teams, also said he was happy about the increases.

"It won’t change our travel habits any, but it should definitely help out recruiting efforts," Ingram said.

"We’ve had a few outstanding prospects because we were forced to cut corners while other universities were able to offer more attractive scholarships and compensation," Ingram said. "It’s a reversal of a national trend that we’ve been able to do something about."

Freshmen eligibility topic of Capitol Hill discussion

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — Scandals in college athletics are forcing coaches and educators to reexamine proposals to prohibit freshmen from competing in big-time sports.

Recruiting violations have become so flagrant, and graduation rates so low, that some critics say college programs have grown into a money-making sideshow rather than a legitimate campus activity.

"The whole thing could fall apart if something isn’t done," says Hunter Raftery, president of the University of Iowa.

Raftery said Tuesday he’s tired of "just tinkering" with amateur standards to keep out athletes with poor academic records.

He said he wants to go back to the days when freshmen were ineligible to play on varsity teams.

"We’ve got to send a message," he said. "The message is to be a student first and then you can play ball. We’ve got a major problem with over-compensation."

Raftery said making freshmen ineligible for varsity sports, despite the fact that most athletic directors oppose it.

The director of college success is how a student does in his freshman year, he told the Council for Advancement and Support of Education at an assembly here sponsored by the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University.

"We can compensate for bad decisions made by others," said Penn State football coach Joe Paterno.

Ed and Paterno were two of 15 panelists who cast a critical eye on the athletic landscape schools like Oklahoma and Kentucky and the three major markets.

Philosophical differences? No way!

From the Press Box

By Sean Hannigan

Doug Collins was fired from the Bulls because he had "philosophical" differences with General Manager Jerry Krause and owner Jerry Reinsdorf.

"No further reason was given for the Collins’ canning," Hart said. "Jerry Collins and krause witnessed a team that was on the verge of a disaster."

December 18 - Bulls improved immensely in the first Christmas. Or maybe 48 if the paper really takes our last game..."

The sports daily Price, says "will be immediate gratification" for hard-core fans, especially the fanatics who haunt the ballparks or glue themselves to TV sets for hours on end.

"We’ve had a daily newspaper that is strictly sports. This is no experiment. We’re going to do this every day, every week, every month."

The plan is to start with New York, Chicago and Los Angeles and move to 25 more markets where a sports newspaper can compete for attention with the major daily dailies, with television, with all the different media in between.

The National will publish six days a week, Sunday through Friday, with five to seven in-"
