Two dorms await housing approval

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two off-campus dormitories are still waiting for their approval as "Accepted Residence Halls" for freshmen and sophomores. Stevenson Arms, 600 W. Mill, and Wilson Hall, 1101 S. Mill, have not been seven accepted residence hall status for fall by University Housing. The Baptist Student Center has already received approval. These are the only off-campus facilities approved for freshmen in Carbondale.

An "Accepted Residence Hall" is defined by University Housing as "a facility which serves meals to all residents, has university approved residence hall personnel, has a well balanced educational and social program with the hall personnel a part of this, and physical conditions conducive to studying."

"Accepted Living Centers" are for sophomores, juniors and seniors only. Unlike accepted residence halls, food service is not included in the halls. One residence student resident assistant (SRA) is not required. An accepted residence hall does require that all students younger than 30 be under 20 years old with less than 42 credit hours.

Wilson Hall has been the center of controversy during the past year. A room search last fall without the permission of residents brought a violation with 100 significance points for residents. University officials agreed that the search was a violation of the contract so recently approved by University Housing. A citation of exit doors during the Kappa Karnival weekend in April were complex. In May, residents charged the Wilson Hall management with discrimination against women and minorities in the handling of delinquent rent payment.

The complaints have been taken into consideration in reviewing Wilson Hall's application as an accepted residence hall. Osberg said, "We've received written assurances from Wilson Hall that these things won't happen again." Osberg said, "We will be doing much more thorough screening of staff personnel and will have ongoing training programs for the off-campus staff."

Osberg said, "Higher Education 402 is a course designed for SRAs which all on-campus SRAs are required to take."

Gasser added that these figures include a number of contracts which are still being processed. Students who have sent in their fall contract but have not received a room assignment should not be worried because room assignments will not be completed until mid-July.

Veep candidate in favor of faculty evaluation

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Frank E. Horton, candidate for vice president for academic affairs, said Tuesday he is "very much in favor" of student evaluation of faculty members. Horton was on campus for a two-day visit to meet with campus officials. The visit was a part of a two-day deadline for naming a replacement for Provost K. R. Smith, who resigned from the post last December.

"We're interested in hearing what you have to say about your teachers," Horton said. "We want to know what you think about what they're doing."

Horton feels student evaluation of faculty members is only one component of the evaluation process. Peer evaluation is also important, he said.

Specialized grads find jobs faster

By Dan Ward
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The director of the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) suggests that students who specialized in one field and left their jobs in the job market before they settle on degree programs. Harvey Ideus, director of the center, said that students should not be asked to establish a social pattern of "one job-one degree graduate," but should consider what specialized needs exist in the fields they wish to enter.

He said that of the first spring graduates responding to a survey mailed out with diplomas, those who received degrees in professional and technical areas were the best in finding work on a level commensurate with their education. He said that graduates having the most success in finding the jobs have been those with degrees in agriculture, engineering, business, specialized education and social welfare.

"About half of SIU graduates with degrees in "general" courses of study have only been obtaining the work they were trained for, he said. Those included graduates with degrees in the social sciences, general education, business, sciences and forestry.

Ideas that persons graduating from the College of Communications and Fine Arts have faced up to a year delay in finding work on their degrees, many although a turnover exists. Graduation of CPPC and that there are few requests from school boards for elementary teachers from SIU, but there is, however, an occasional opening for graduates with degrees in secondary education who do.

"The situation certainly isn't rosy," Ideus commented. "But there's the best in still to stay in college."

"We actually have jobs reported to us occasionally that we cannot fill, such as in accounting, specialized chemistry and technical specialization," he said. "Many people are worried about unemployment, but college graduates can cope better with this sort of situation. They'll cope with about any sort of social or economic situation. Coping is one of the things they learn in college."

Lawyers' insurance rates climbing

CHICAGO (AP)—Malpractice insurance rates for lawyers are rising in the city, where bar officials say further increases can create the same crisis now felt in medical practice.

James D. Fellers, president of the American Bar Association, says commercially underwritten insurance for lawyers has increased as much as 300% per cent in the last five years. He says that within five years there may be no carrier willing to underwrite legal malpractice insurance.

"Malpractice suits against lawyers are increasing by leaps and bounds," he said, "and clearly, these suits are on the way to creating the same crisis in the availability of legal services as there is in the delivery of medical services," Fellers says.

Ford cites relief for small businesses

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford said Tuesday America's worst recession since the 1930s is coming to an end and that he intends to help the economy by freeing businesses from excessive federal regulation.

"The time has come to cut the federal red tape in the hands of small business...I will not let you suffer," he said in a conference of the National Federation of Independent Business.

Ford said some economists will continue to argue for several months "because they record only what is past. But I am confident we are at the bottom of the economic slide and we will soon be on our way up."

Stockholders denied court action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Tuesday that stockholders cannot go directly into federal court in an effort to halt illegal expenditures of corporate funds on political candidates or to collect damages because of such expenditures.

In an opinion written by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., the court said Congress apparently intended the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act as "nothing more than a bare criminal statute," and, therefore, that indication that civil enforcement of the federal law of any kind was available to anyone.

Enforcement of the Campaign Act is up to the Justice Department, the court indicated.

Civil Service committee feels salary cuts unfair

The Civil Service Employees Committee met Tuesday morning in an open meeting to hear reactions of the Civil Service employees who alleged possible salary cuts.

SIU President Warren Brandt and other University officials will testify Wednesday before a House appropriations committee regarding SIU's $11,000,000 budget request.

SIU has been told to trim six percent of the general revenue portion of next year's budget following Gov. Daniel Walker's speech last week calling for a cut in state expenditures.

University officials are hoping to reduce the amount of reduction that SIU may have to take in its appropriations. Also making the journey to Springfield will be James Brown, executive secretary of the SIU system, Robert D. Isbell, board treasurer, George Maier, vice president of administration and campus treasurer, and Warren Buffum, budget director.

Brandt said Monday that although promised salary increases for university employees are presently in jeopardy, the dismissal of faculty or staff is not being considered.

House panel to hear Brandt

After the hearing before the House appropriations committee, the bill will go to the full House for approval. If the appropriations bill passed by the House is basically the same as the one passed by the Illinois Senate May 31, it will go to Gov. Walker for his signature.

Brandt met Friday with the Council of Deans, the Budgetary Advisory Committee and his staff to discuss the possible budget cuts.

"I don't know anything more to tell us until we talk to Springfield. They have been brought up to date," said Brandt.

Juvenile delinquency—i s there a problem?

Most definitely, and the situation seems to be getting worse, with no cure in sight in the near future. A five-year study was recently completed by the Institute for Juvenile Research, and the results indicate that one-third of all Illinois boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 have committed some delinquency.

The LJR interviewed more than 20,000 kids, and many of their parents. The results are not very optimistic. For example, 13 percent (projected 136,000 youngsters statewide) admit to robbery. One in seven used stolen goods. Half the kids have shoppedlifted and 1 percent (358,000) have engaged in petty theft.

Common is marijuana use that an estimated 22 percent of all Illinois aged 14 to 18 have smoked it. By the time they're 18, half of them have. Abuse of alcohol still ranks as the most serious drug problem. The LJR asked the kids about 37 types of behavior ranging from cheating in school, making anonymous phone calls and truancy, to alcohol and drug abuse. Of the crimes and even serious felonies the percentages of these crimes are the same in both ghetto and suburb. The numbers change only by proportion, differing by color if the kids are white or non-white, male or female.

Sociologists and psychologists have had a difficult time pinning the problem down. They don't have many concrete theories explaining the drift towards juvenile delinquency. They have begun to study family and school life of teen-agers more closely. The experts think it is the family and school life of youngsters which may be the starting point from which kids take their frustrations and problems to the streets.

The lack of a solid family life seems to be a major problem in the development of delinquency. It doesn't matter if the child comes from a broken or intact home. What matters more is whether the child can get alone with his parents. Is it an amicable relationship? Do they share activities, and would his or her parents, the youngster, or he who got into trouble?

A sociologist, William Simon, says that the family can control a child's potential for involvement in crime by instilling values, providing sources and helping him over the threshold. He adds that once parents have surrendered their child to the street and schools, the child is most ultimately if de moral and desirable development is to occur, then apparently the risks have little to do with the family and its values. Results of LJR surveys indicated that students felt alienated from school committed 41 percent more violence than those who felt in.

Obviously, both the family--parents--and the school are the main reasons to delinquency. How is a youngster with a bad family life. He should be able to turn to school as an outlet. In many cases, he cannot. At many schools, kids are "counseled out" if they are not succeeding. They are told they would be better off if they landed a decent paying job.

In other words, the school is admitting they do not really care whether the kid stays in school but would rather get rid of him because he is a failure. The kids probably hear the same criticism from almost every day from their parents. When both the parents and school fail to come to the rescue of an troubled youngster, it is more likely to turn to the streets for answers.

The statistics of delinquency must be met head on before it spirals out of sight. It may be no easy to educate unwilling parents, but certainly the statistics are a clear indication that systematic state should enact programs to cope with juvenile delinquency.

Not only must the school take on this responsible enough to guide as many youths in the right direction as possible.

You can't take it with you

By Arthur Hoppe

Dear President:

I, Joe Sikspak, American, take pen in hand to stick a fly in your stink. I think you ought to do away with this inherited wealth. I am down to Paddy’s Place when the tee-see says how Aristotle Onassis has gone to his reward. “And how does that make you feel, Paddy?” says I.

“Not good, not bad, Joe,” says Paddy. “He may have been the finest man in the world, for all I know. But he was rich. And that’s two strikes against him.”

“Do you don’t want to be rich, Paddy?” says I.

“Life is life, it is fine thing, Joe,” says Paddy. “But when the Grim Reaper comes for you, it is decided handicap. You remember when Banker Billows passé on there?” There wasn’t a wet eye in the house.

“We didn’t none of us know him, Paddy.”

“That we didn’t, Joe. But we knew he was the richest man in five states. And our grief was automatically tempered by the suspicion he didn’t get that way by practicing The Golden Rule.”

“You’re right, Joe, but I think I was against inherited wealth, wasn’t I?”

“So it seems fair. As I remember, he left a wife and kids like many other men.”

“That he did, Joe. And after he expired following his long illness, his bereaved wife flew all the way from Miami Beach, where the very incurable recouperating from his suffering, to be here for the funeral and the will reading.”

“Surely, Paddy,” says I, “she was grateful for all the things he done for her.”

—Paul L. Miller
Senior, Chemistry

In addition, I must say something about Mr. McGee’s letter, “Isn’t our girls hot enough, which appeared in the June 13 issue of the Daily Egyptian. I pity a person so blind that he fears a few thousand immigrants entering a land of 200 million people. McGee forgot the inscription on the Statue of Liberty: “Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to be free.” — Unless you’re a full-blooded American Indian I really think it’s ridiculous to say anyone shouldn’t be allowed in. After all, our ancestors were.

The statements, “Isn’t our American girls hot enough,” and “father to all the half-breeds,” smacks of the Aryan philosophy embraced by the Nazis. I hope that’s not the case. I myself am the grandson of an immigrant who was a boat cutter for many years. He came to the United States to lead a decent life. Can’t they?”

Letters

To the Daily Egyptian:

In the June 14 edition of the Daily Egyptian there appeared an editorial attacking gun control. I agree with the two professors, but the logic breaks down.

The letter writer overlooked is that handguns don’t think or act by themselves. The problem is not that we haven’t banned handguns; we haven’t of food for a day, most people decide that a liquor store, any weapon will do. In some foreign countries with strict gun controls, the usual weapons are knives.

Perhaps we should put harsh sentences for using any weapon in a criminal act. Putting a prohibition on handguns will, unfortunately, fail to produce the desired results. To cite an example, marijuana has been illegal since 1933, yet it is available in spite of federal restrictions.

Thanks for festival

To the Daily Egyptian:

As general chairman of the Carbisdale Friendship Festival I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone connected with the University, who by their diligent work helped to make the Festival a big success. This includes the Daily Egyptian, which, much to our regret, did not publish most of the time, but did give us excellent coverage when it did publish. This event again proved that the city of Carbisdale can work closely with the University for a common good.

Again I say thank you for a job well done by a lot of fine people. With help like we had, we can now plan for bigger and better results next year.

Truly Yours,
Joe Sikspak, American
Chinese Lion Dance, theater to head Grand Tower revue

The Chinese Lion Dance will be the newest attraction at the Third Annual River Revue held near Grand Tower, Friday night, June 30.

The Otrabanda theater company will also perform free-of-charge juggling, music, vaudeville, magic and comedy acts under a big red-and-yellow circus tent at David's Backbone Park.

Saturday, the 11-member crew departs from Grand Tower on a raft which they built themselves for a 24-hour stopover journey to New Orleans.

The group, which originates from Antioch College, Ohio, studied theater for the past two winters in Malaysia. A previous New York production, "Kaaka-Makaka," was created when the group went to the Dutch Antilles.

A small parade and the Chinese Lion Dance will precede their all-musical and two straight plays. "The King and I" will be presented on July 11, 12, 13, 18, 19 and 21 while the most often produced Shakespeare play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will be slate for July 26-27.

"Sugar" closes the season as a musical adaptation of the comedy film, "Some Like It Hot" and is scheduled at 8 p.m. August 1-3, with a special matinee performance at 2 p.m. August 5.

A special play for children, "The Hilarious Holiday of Harlequin," is also included in the summer program. Mick Sgroi, a mime who studied at Marceau's school in Paris, is directing the show utilizing slapstick and highly stylized stock characters. The date and times for "Harlequin" will be announced later.

As in the past, the faculties of the Theater and Music departments conducted a nation-wide talent search for Summer Playhouse performers. The auditioning began in February and has just drawn to a close with members originating from as far away as New York.

Admission to the general public is $3 for plays, $4 for musicals and $2 per show to SIU students. Season tickets may be purchased by the general public for $12 and by students for $8.

Admission to the general public is $5 for plays, $6 for musicals and $3 per show to SIU students. Season tickets may be purchased by the general public for $15 and by students for $10.

Interested persons may become Summer Playhouse Patrons for a contribution of $5 per membership which guarantees a seat at every performance. Patron names will also appear in each Summer Playhouse program.

Tickets and season coupons are on sale at the University Theater Box Office in the Communications Building and at the Student Center Information box. Box office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays. Tickets may also be purchased at the door on performance nights.

Performance of the Chinese Lion Dance is set for Grand Tower by the Otrabanda theater company.

Summer playhouse opens season

"Arsenic and Old Lace" opens SIU's Summer Playhouse 75, on July 1.

The Playhouse, sponsored by the Departments of Music and Theater, is entering its fifth season with two Cedar Lake subject of planning group

The Planning Commission will determine a plan to be recommended to the City Council for the Cedar Lake area at a meeting Wednesday in the City Hall courtroom.

The commission will make recommendations of capital improvement priorities for the Cedar Lake area.

A public hearing will also be held at the start of the meeting concerning setbacks on yards in residential areas.

Food store incomes low, owners say

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Supermarket profits last year were at their highest level since 1971, an industry survey showed. But the store owners who attended the meeting were still aware of some of the other store respondents and said they needed more help. A report presented at the opening business session of the Supermarket Institute, in the presence of larger stores, showed that supermarkets last year produced a profit of 4 per cent on sales, compared with 4 per cent in 1972. The industry has not been accustomed to higher profits, and the store operators, sensing that the profit and loss statement is misleading.

William R. Bishop Jr., vice president of research and operations for the institute, said that the 4 per cent profit figure for the supermarket industry compared with a 6.9 per cent profit for the nation's top 500 companies listed by Fortune magazine.

“The supermarket industry is not earning a level of profit that is adequate to attract the new capital required for improved productivity and growth,” Bishop said. The store survey showed that net profit before taxes was 1.8 per cent of sales in 1974, higher than at any time in the last five years. After-tax profits were not available. The industry traditionally has served a profit of one cent for every dollar spent at the supermarket. Sixteen percent of the stores were averaging from one-half to three-quarters of a cent.

Other highlights of the report showed:

- Sales last year increased 16.4 per cent compared with a 11.1 per cent increase last year, compared with a 5.3 per cent decrease in 1972.
- The institute's "inflation factor exchange" showed that the highest increases came in grocery items that cannot be purchased for the same price last year, the institute said, while meat products were included and produce prices rose 13 per cent.
- The institute said the primary product of Schnuck Markets Inc., in St. Louis, Mo., and the largest chairman of the institute, said the food industry was misunderstood.

“We are in business to please our customers, not the consumers,” he said. “Noting that many people simply do not believe the profit and loss statements we issue,” he asked the retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers attending the conference: “Does it turn you up when you realize that the bureaucrats and the so-called intellectuals are so biased that they will not accept or even examine the facts.”

Schnuck also was critical of government investigations and the prospect of new price controls.

He said today’s rapidly changing economic conditions make it difficult for the supermarket operators to anticipate future developments. “But what is even more difficult for us to get used to,” he said “is the government’s control of the prices of our products.”

“There is an immense duplication of effort in coping with investigation on top of investigation,” he said. “This is adding materially to the cost of the market basket.”

Student Christian Foundation will host open house Sunday

The Student Christian Foundation will hold an open house from 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The foundation is located in the former Huntley Soup and Grand Avenue.

Admissions chairman Hugh McLeod, the founder of the Student Christian Foundation is responsible for grocery and produce items. The institute said that more than 11,000 food stores with $35 billion in sales were represented in its survey of 800 member companies, which have a total dollar volume of over $70 billion in retail sales.

This marked the first year the supermarket industry has provided a breakdown of profits as a return on investments and assets, as well as in terms of a percentage of sales. There has been an effort from Congress and consumer groups who claim the sales profit figure is misleading.

Willard R. Bishop Jr., vice president of research and operations for the institute, said that the 4.1 per cent profit figure for the supermarket industry compared with a 6.9 per cent profit for the nation's top 500 companies listed by Fortune magazine.

“The supermarket industry is not earning a level of profit that is adequate to attract the new capital required for improved productivity and growth.”

University professors lose 4.2 per cent buying power

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The average college or university faculty member had 4.2 per cent less buying power this year as compared to last due to spiralling inflation, according to the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) national report on the Economic Status of the Profession.

The m- or economic cost to faculty members rose in Liquor Commission, also approved an amendment of Liquor Ordinance No. 73-19, which forbid the purchase or consumption of liquor on bar premises after their closing time. The mandatory closing time for Carbondale bars is 2 a.m.

The ordinance previously did not forbid consumption of alcohol after this time.

The commission approved a Class

A liquor license for the Stumble Inn, 213-215 N. Washington St.

Gauging the rate of increase in the Higher Living Standard Index, faculty members' real income fell nearly 4 per cent between the same academic years. The loss in purchasing power affected all ranks about equally, although lecturers were affected somewhat more than the higher ranks, according to the report.

Faculty members suffered more from inflation than wage and salary workers, the report said. Between academic years 1973-74 and 1974-75, average compensation for non-agricultural employees in the U.S. increased by 7.6 per cent as compared to 6.4 per cent for faculty members. All experienced the same inflation, so that in real terms the average wage earner's compensation fell by 1.8 per cent compared to the 4.2 per cent decrease among faculty.

"Looking towards the future," the report said, "it is unrealistic to expect such lost ground to be recovered quickly, either by faculty members or the great majority of Americans."

William M. Herr, president of the SIU chapter of the AAUP, and professor of Agriculture Industries, said local statistics gathered for the report compare with the national averages. The average faculty salary at SIU increased 6.1 per cent from 1974 to 1975, Herr said.

Pay raises for faculty may be falling behind those of other workers because the latter are organized into unions and can bargain for increases, Herr said. The decrease in demand for teachers' services because of falling enrollments may also explain the differences, he said.

For the first time this year, schools which participated in the survey reported separately the salary and other data for men and women on the faculty. "Overall the average women's compensation in institutions with ranks was 17.5 per cent lower than the average men's compensation.

The average salary for women faculty members at SIU is 15 per cent less than for all men faculty members, Herr said.

The report gave these reasons for the differences in men's and women's salaries: a larger proportion of women than men are on the faculties of lower-paying institutions, a larger proportion of women than of men are in the junior ranks and within each rank and class of institution women's average compensation is lower than men's.

Carbondale Liquor Commission approves to all stores

The Carbondale Liquor Commission approved a request from Lee's Liquors to move its operations from W. Monroe St. to the Westown Shopping Mall.

The Westown Shopping Mall operates three to one Monday night; with Councilman James Dulin dissenting. Dulin was concerned about the presence of two liquor stores within close proximity.

Westroad Liquors, Inc. is presently operating at the Mundare Shopping Center, which is adjacent to the Westown Shopping Mall.

A spokesman for Lee's said the move will create more business for the establishment. The store will move within the next two weeks, he said.

The city council, serving as the Liquor Commission, also approved an amendment to Liquor Ordinance No. 75-44 which forbid the purchase or consumption of liquor on bar premises after their closing time. The mandatory closing time for Carbondale bars is 2 a.m.

The ordinance previously did not forbid consumption of alcohol after this time.

The masters of photography have always needed a photographic system that would allow the full expres-

The Toyo View is designed to take full advantage of the unique capabilities of large format photography. Its only limitation is your own imagination.

Three fugitives nabbed in area

Three suspects wanted for armed robbery in Nevis. police said Monday evening at a Carbondale restaurant when they tried to leave without paying their check.

Carbondale police said Earl D. Mermida, 19, Marcus D. Leyba, 18, and a 16-year-old youth, all from Gallup, N. M., were arrested at 6 p.m. Monday on a complaint from the Golden Bear Restaurant, 206 S. Wall, that the three left without paying a $6 food bill.

A check of the National Crime Information Center in the Carbondale police station indicated that the three were wanted in Gallup, N. M., for armed robbery.

They are currently being held in the Jackson County Jail pending legal action for return to New Mexico.

High schools riddled with violence, teachers, students tell 'Panel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Students and teachers alike told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday of high schools throughout the country that are riddled with violence and drugs and where learning is second to survival.

"You wouldn't believe some of the things that go on," said 17-year-old Ken Sanders of Evanston, Ill. "Berth Ray, chairman of the subcommittee, said, "None of us people are getting a good education."

Schools have been closed because of violence.

New York City school teacher Sheila G. Carter said she has suffered a fractured cheekbone as the result of being assaulted by seven students.

She said that "it is very difficult to function as a teacher, when you must concentrate on creating an atmosphere of safety and order in the classroom first and teaching a lesson second."

According to statistics presented by Bayl, 251 teachers and administrators in the Los Angeles school system were the victims of serious physical assaults last year, while in Philadelphia 278 students were assaulted.

"We're not meeting their needs," Peggy Cotton, a teacher in the rural community of High Forge, Md., said in an effort to explain why there has been a ten eases of drug overdose in the school last year. "They become bored, they drop out."

City, SIU to share ambulance

A contract between the City of Carbondale and SIU for the use of the SIU Ambulance Service for the 1979 fiscal year was approved by the city at a monthly city council meeting Monday night.

The contract, which is basically the same as the 1978 fiscal year contract, lowers the rate for the service from $50 per call to $45.

The contract also stipulates that the city purchase a new ambulance for SIU, but not for pay. Unlike the last ambulance purchased for the city, in which the city paid for the ambulance, SIU will have to pay for any additional ambulance the state will not pay.

The last ambulance which cost $14,114 was paid for by the state Department of Transportation and the City of Carbondale under a dollar for dollar matching grant program.

Although the city has approved the contract, it has not yet been signed by SIU President Warren Brandl. The contract also stipulates that the city pay for the Health Service said "that the contract is most probably in the office of the SIU Legal Council awaiting review before being presented to Brandl."

Golf highlights men's intramurals

By Ken Johnson

Daily Egyptian, Sports Writer

SIU intramural programs are out to set new participation records this summer.

Highlighting the men's intramural program will be the initiation of an all-campus golf tournament. For SIU women, a full line of summer intramural activities will be offered for the first time.

We expect to register between 30 to 40 golfers for the first Midland Hillside Club tournament,” said Larry Schaeke, coordinator of Recreation and Women's Intramurals. He said registration for the July 1 and 2 tournament is being accepted at the Office of Recreation and Intramurals and must be complete by 5 p.m.

The cost is $5 for male and female players and $4 for faculty and staff.

Competition will be offered for three levels of golfers, according to caliber of play.

If we’re lucky enough to have a repeat of last year’s double rain at this time we’ve had an SIU tournament, and I expect a good showing,” Schaeke said.

SIU intramurals won’t be dominated by the men, though. Jean Paratore, coordinator of Recreation and Women’s Intramurals, has scheduled an extensive program for women and some events for men and women.

Intramural offerings set for men, women

Jean Paratore, coordinator of recreation and women’s intramural programs, tries out a tennis racket prior to the opening of the summer intramural program. In her first year at the helm of the women’s intramural program, Paratore has scheduled a full program of activities for SIU women.

Coaches say sex bias law will harm sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — New federal regulations interpreting an anti-discrimination sex law will weaken revenue-producing sports and eventually damage all intercollegiate athletics, big-time football coaches told a House education subcommittee Tuesday.

Darrell Royal, Texas coach and president of the American Football Coaches Association, led a contingent of seven others who asked Congress to declare a moratorium on the application of the new rules until the Department of Health, Education and Welfare could study their economic impact on all facets of intercollegiate athletics and the financial structure of the colleges and universities.

"Income generated by football is a principal source of athletic income at many colleges and frequently finances the entire athletic program as well as the construction, maintenance and debt retirement of facilities," said the formal statement signed by the eight coaches.

"In many instances it has provided the funds for the present expansion of women's athletics. This will no longer be possible under the HEW regulations."

Rain may affect Open

MEDINAH, III. (AP) — Rain continued to pelt the Medinah Country Club course Tuesday, each drop perhaps reducing Jack Nicklaus' chances for golf's elusive professional Grand Slam.

"There is absolutely no possibility of drying this course out for the Open this weekend," John Marschall, the host professional, said Monday. "I think we could compete on wet conditions.

"The only thing we can do is help a player such as Lee Trevino, who maneuvers the ball and is exceptional with the pitch-and-run shot. It should take some of the advantage away from players such as Nicklaus, p.m. on June 27. The course is already hitting high areas to the greens."

"The forecast is for more showers before, and perhaps during, the 75th championship beginning Thursday."

"It is basic," Marschall said. "Conditions will shorten the course and give a sticking quality to the greens. Players will have to be able to go below professional Grand Slam."

"I know Nicklaus would prefer a course hard as concrete. Flying his shots high to the green, he has a better chance of holding the green than most."... Sport.
