Without board approval

WIDB may go ahead with ads

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Consideration of a revised policy on commercial advertising for University media is not on the agenda for the Nov. 14 Board of Trustees meeting and campus radio station WIDB is "considering the option" of selling advertising "with or without permission,"

Joel Preston, general manager of WIDB, said Thursday that Bruce Swinburne, dean of students, had "proposed he would write a letter to President Lesar" giving permission to WIDB to sell advertising.

The option is always there where WIDB can start selling with or without permission. We may have to do this because we need $18,500 to do things that are not frivolous but are necessary. "We need it," Preston added.

"If we don't replace some of this "temporary" equipment and facilities this is going to become a playground radio station and I don't want the station degenerating into that," I asked Dean Swinburne if I was running a legitimate campus radio station or babysitting for a degenerating station. He said he hoped I was running a campus radio station and I told him for that I asked advertising." Preston related.

Swinburne said Thursday that the revised policy was "too weak" to go to the board and a meeting is set for Friday morning with representatives from Edwardsville, Carbondale and the committee to further revise the policy. Preston said if the meeting should result in an "acceptable policy" he would "explore every possibility to get it in at the November meeting of the board" but he didn't feel confident this would come about.

"The argument in the last revision came down to the question of whether the right to advertise is a guaranteed right and is it encompassed in the right to free speech," Swinburne related. "WIDB feels their right to free speech could potentially be hampered because student government has the right to cut off funds if they decided they didn't like their broadcasting policies.

The first proposal the committee drew up was a statement of conditions under which advertising could be sold and the second statement drawn up at Edwardsville was more of a statement of "the unalienable right to advertise," Swinburne said.

"We want to clean this up and get it resolved," he added. "The WIDB people have been caught in between on this and have been suffering. We just haven't been able to get all the constituency groups together and get them to agree on a policy.

Preston added, "People have been saying how patient we have been and I think it's time we did something about this."

Group to stick by its administration revamp

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The committee which recommended restructuring SIU's highest level of administration decided in a strategy session Thursday that it has no reasons to act defensively about its proposals when it meets with the Board of Trustees Nov. 14.

After four months of deliberation, the Ad Hoc Committee to Review the Report on Board and Executive Officers' Relationships suggested changes that would strip Chief of Board Staff James Brown of much of the power he currently holds.

As head of SIU System Council, Brown now is responsible for interpreting Board policy to the other two system council members, the presidents of SIU's Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

Trustees appointed the 28-member system council study committee after constituency leaders on both campuses and Edwardsville campuses protested the System Council administrative set-up at the June Board meeting. The constituency heads clamored for the Board to make the two SIU campuses "more autonomous."

The study committee presented its recommendations to the Board in October and discussion of the proposal changes is slated for the Nov. Board meeting. Members of the panel met in Edwardsville to identify and discuss allegations which have been levied against its report since being submitted to the trustees.

The committee's report recommended that Chief of Board Staff's title be changed to Director and that he be replaced on the system council by the board's three-man executive committee.

The report further limits the duties of the staff chief to educational analyst and advisor to the board.

A major criticism of the report's recommendations, and one the committee anticipates having to answer, is that the staff chief's status be diminished to a purely clerical nature, C Addison Hickman, Carbondale co-chairman, said.

The committee answered this charge by giving examples of other staff chiefs in Illinois university systems.

Hickman said that in other systems.

Firm cuts off SIU coal supply

in expectation of UMW strike

By Ken Temkin
Student Writer

McKee said that the power plant is burning about 130 tons of coal per day now but that figure can vary up to 180 tons per day for the winter season.

Working with the 150 tons per day figure McKee computed that SIU could withstand a coal strike for about two months.

The SIU Power Plant burns coal to produce steam which both heats and cools most SIU-C campus buildings.

SIU has been receiving shipments of coal from Freeman Coal Co. in an amount commensurate with consumption at the plant, since October 16 when shipments from a 15,000 ton allotment ended.

Zane Powell, local President of the UMW said Thursday in a telephone interview that he anticipates the strike "will last for at least two weeks."

"By the time we get the contract study to discuss it and ratify it, two weeks will have gone by," Powell said.

In an effort to plan for the possible hardships the strike might impose on SIU, Interim President Hiram H. Lesar released a memorandum Thursday requesting the "cooperation and forbearance" of the faculty and staff.

Lesar said that "the Physical Plant is planning to reduce our coal consumption during any mild weather to 100 tons per day."

Lesar's memorandum "delegated the responsibility of determining the means and methods of reducing steam consumption to the Physical Plant."
Model school district topic of meeting in a central Illinois area near Bloomington, seven rural schools merged in 1967 to form a consolidated school district, and the district has since operated as a model in Illinois. This model district was discussed at a Thursday meeting on innovations and issues in education, sponsored by the College of Education, Phi Delta Kappa, Continuing Education program. The conference began Thursday in the Student Center.

James Shive, Title III administrator, reported the data (from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) for the Olympia school district and Stanford to the dissemination center for school consolidation information.

Shive conducted one of 63 sessions during the first day of the annual conference.

"Creation of Olympia District was not an easy task to accomplish," Shive said, "nor was it a task without difficulties to overcome or problems to solve.

Should code violations be found, the teams will report the offenders to the city, Tally said. But if the bar and club will not cooperate, Tally continued, "next time an inspection will be made without prior announcement.

Tally will soon contact John Yow, city code enforcement director, and give him a list of violable violations. Yow has cited five serious infractions: - exit or fire escape is locked and exit unlighted. - exiguities or, of exiguities, or lack of exiguities. - unsanitary conditions in washrooms. - overcrowding past the occupancy limit. (City ordinance requires that liquor establishments display their license and occupancy limit in plain view of patrons. - sales to minors or underage drinking in an establishment. - sales to drunks. - blocked aisles.

"That is a test run," Tally said. "A great deal of pressure must be applied for action to be taken, and this is the beginning of the pressure."

He added that the inspection procedure will now take longer due to consumer complaints and how well the city's enforcement system works in receiving complaints.

The inspectors will make their findings available to the public, Tally said.

"I'm not trying to get the Liquor Board involved in this," Tally said. "I'm just wanted to announce this so the board and bars will know about it."

Student team to inspect Carbondale bars

By Dave Truax
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student inspection teams will check South Illinois Avenue bars and clubs this weekend for overcrowding and health and fire code violations, according to Bobbi Tally, student member of the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board.

Tally will organize and lead the inspectors, she said.

"The emphasis is a reliable appraisal of how the bars are," Tally said Thursday. Two teams consisting of two or three volunteers each will tour liquor establishments from 11 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Saturday and from 10:30 p.m. to 12 a.m. Sunday. Tally said.

Tally and Dennis Sullivan, student body president, established the teams. She continued, "I am working as an agent for the student government."

By sending out inspection teams student government is "looking out for student welfare," Sullivan said Thursday. "The bar scene is a heavy influence in students lives."

such as the Board of Governors and the Board of Regents. The staff chief functions on the staff with great influence because of his expertise and strategic position.

Edwardsville co-chairman Vaughnie Lindsay said the function of the staff chief has not been altered to a significant degree.

"He still has a tremendous role. I think we changed the line of authority of the position," she said.

The second area of criticism was the Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott, Jr.'s charge that the replacement of the staff chief with the executive committee is impractical and unworkable.

The committee concluded that the system council would act in special situations that could not be resolved by the two campus presidents and would therefore not have to meet every other week, as it now does.

The committee agreed to answer the allegation that its report pays too little attention to communication with external government agencies by saying the campus presidents would handle such issues.

Because budgets are developed independently by each campus, and the president should serve a political function in communicating with state legislators, the committee reasoned that the universities' presidents should staff internal agencies in the institution's behalf.

Lindsay said there are more issues where concurrency between the two SIU campuses is not looked for than those issues which require a system-wide policy.

The system council would meet on an exceptional basis, only on impasse matters, Lindsay said.

The committee post-scripted this discussion by noting that both the WIBD radio station advertising grant and the recent purchase of the SIU-C stadium scoreboard were issues which did not properly belong before the board, and should have been resolved by the campuses themselves.

Thomas O. Mitchell, committee secretary, said, "the question is not that these people in the other systems are not powerful, because they are. But they are powerful for the wrong personal.

Hickman said a fourth criticism of the report is that it does not provide for a well-defined device between the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

"We have four levels of coordination," he said. He noted the board, staff chief as educational analyst, the board staff and the campus presidents are devices.

Panel recommends end to textbook rental program

By Ray Urehel
Student Writer

The Textbook Rental Committee, an ad hoc committee of the Student Affairs, has recommended to Dean of Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne that textbook rental service be eliminated at the end of summer quarter and replaced with a textbook sales outlet.

Swinburne made the announcement in his Anthony Hall office late Thursday afternoon.

He said that he has "not had time to review the committee's recommendations in its entirety."

Swinburne said he hopes to discuss the various textbook rental "options" with the Student Senate and "share" the report with the Graduate Student Council before forwarding the committee's recommendation to SIU President Warren W. Brandt "early next semester."

"We have books one-third less times under the semester system," he said.

Although General Studies students are paying five per cent more per text for textbook sale, textbook rental will total between $100,000 and $200,000 in the next year, Swinburne continued.

"Obviously that brings up some very serious system problems for the University," Swinburne commented.

The committee examined the viewpoints of the administration, of faculty and students, Swinburne said.

The administration's "case", is that the University is losing "between $100,000 and $200,000. ""that has to be made up," annually he said.

Instructors want the "freedom to choose the book they want" without waiting the three years required by textbook rental regulations before books are purchased, he said.

The student is concerned about having an up-to-date text in his hand at the end of the quarter.

Swinburne said much of textbook rental's loss this year is because they could not get textbooks before the start of the semester. "The question is, if the textbook gets out too late, who gets the old book?" he asked.

Swinburne predicted that a textbook sales program would be advantageous to students because textbook rental operation, students buy the books "for a certain length of time" and are not able to resell them.

"As cough what will happen to textbook rental," he said, "is not certain. "I assume that those staff would be put somewhere else, possibly in the University bookstore, he said.

Shive said the old high school building would be altered, created the new old and probably would have to be torn down.

The merger was not without its problems, however. Shive said one of the major concerns was that not all the students who went to the old high school to the central high school was the feeling of the students that they would not get along with students from the other areas.

Another problem was that many teachers wanted to teach the same subjects, and some did not want to teach other subjects.

Although the district, which is the second largest geographically, encompasses a 23-mile area, Shive said the average amount of time spent on the road was 30 minutes.

He emphasized the importance of the students being offered a wider variety of classes and programs, which has never been available in the small rural schools.

About 500 public school officials from throughout Illinois are participating in the conference, which will continue Friday.

Vows to investigate corruption

Lone loser Williams has no hard feelings

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The lone loser in a four man race, Gale Williams, unsuccessful Republican candidate for state auditor, representative said it was a "terrible race" and he has no hard feelings about the loss.

Williams, former state representative, said Thursday he does not plan to run for any other office again but vowed to be active in investigating corruption in Murphysboro city government.

Williams has based much of his campaign on charging misconduct and illegal behavior by local government officials and opponents, Murphysboro mayor Bruce Rondon.

"This points out corruption in government is all right if you are a Democrat," Williams said referring to Richmond's landslide victory in the four-man race for three seats.

"The corrupt government must be cleaned out. I don't think the people of Murphysboro can tolerate this kind of behavior in the city," he said.

Williams said he hired a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) to spend a day in investigating the city's records. But because the mayor was a Democrat.

Inflation pressure on Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP)—Party chairman Robert Byrd was Wednesday in a sweeping victory in Tuesday's elections. The former Senate majority leader is running for a 12th term in Congress and is seen as a possible successor to the Senate's longest-serving Democrat and the chairmanship of the Finance Committee, the most powerful position in the Senate.

Meaney said Democrats already con tracted in Washington and had been producing with current majorities.

"We're not getting a great deal of opposition on health care and other issues, that we believe the American people are interested in," Meaney said. "We need to get the word out to the American people that there are some real issues that need to be addressed, and I think we're doing that."
Time to recognize Cuba as a friend

Recently there have been hints from the State Department that the U.S. is considering re-embarking on the path of establishing friendship.

It's about time. With positive breakthroughs in relations with Russia and China, Cuba is no longer the great threat it used to be. Simply because U.S. frowns on the Cuban type of government is no reason to dissociate ourselves from Cuba. There is no real reason to isolate Cuba.

Being such a close neighbor, Cuba has always been of prime concern to the United States.

The economic boycott imposed against Cuba 10 years ago by the Organization of American States (OAS) is not only losing strength, but has even been considered a failure. Several OAS states have resumed relations with Cuba.

Castro has proven that his is a strong and sound country. With such a contradiction which is more effective, appointed or elected governing boards?

If the U.S. could just swallow a little pride, hang up her imperialistic sword and end the blockade, both countries stand to gain politically and economically.

Castro himself has admitted that he is willing to talk friendship. If he is sincere, what are we waiting for?

For too long, Americans have feared Cuba. But it is fear created out of ignorance. Through the leadership and diplomacy of our new President, we can come to understand and see Cuba as a strong country that has something to offer to a friend.

It's time America has extended a hand to Cuba as a sincere friend, rather than out of fear of an enemy or a political pawn.

Some drawbacks, but appointed board better

There is an interesting, but not well publicized, argument going on in our state. It is aimed at unseating a contradiction which is more effective, appointed or elected governing boards?

Anyone who voted Tuesday might be aware that there were trustee candidates on the state ballot. Sound interesting? It should, since SIU's board, appointed by the governor, has been criticized for its often dogmatic approach to campus problems. One only need recall the secrecy and ambiguity surrounding the presidential search to see that SIU's Board of Trustees has raised some eyebrows.

The current feeling, as espoused by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), seems to be that appointed boards are at least as effective as elected boards and, probably, a great deal more practical. The question deserves consideration.

The University of Illinois is the only state university in Illinois whose board members are elected at the general elections. The U of I predates other state schools and, according to an assistant director of IBHE, had its board established at a time in history when the overwhelming trend was toward elected officials. Boards established after the U of I's have gone the route of executive appointments with the advice and consent of the state senate.

The selection of U of I trustees has been criticized for not accomplishing what ideally, at least they set out to do. The pursue a little, if any, attention to trustee candidates and the strong party in the state usually will win the trustee spot, as evidenced by the Democratic sweep Tuesday. The Democrats carried the state and trustee elections. Since trustees ride the winning party's coattails, their individual merits and integrity are not considered by the electorate.

Another argument against elected trustees is that they might show allegiance to the party that slated them on the ballot. Indeed, this is compounded at the U of I by the fact that the Alumni Association recommends candidates to the political parties. The recommendations are honored, giving a great say to the Alumni and establishing them as another potential avenue of allegiance.

Still another argument against elected boards is based on geography, especially in SIU's case, where voters from the northern part of the state would, in effect, choose our trustees, since almost three fourths of the Illinois vote lives in the northern part of the state. Trustees would be selected by people grossly unfamiliar to the region and the University.

Arguments in favor of elected boards are equally well taken. Appointed members, many persons argue, are not accountable to the public. While trustee members must be selected, making them accountable to representatives of the public, they will not be directly accountable to the voter. This leaves the trustee vulnerable to ignoring the public's will, if, indeed, it has one.

There is also the visible possibility of political allegiance to the governor. A trustee isn't likely to forget those who selected him in the first place, as in the case of so-called "party allegiance" of elected boards. The potential for undue allegiance, in both instances, would have to depend on the individuals involved. Political animals will act as such, whether elected or appointed.

On an elected board, although it isn't likely, all trustees could belong to the same political party, increasing the possibility of politicking. SIU's board, in virtue of its charter, can have only four of its seven members of the same party. This helps to keep a lid, of sorts, on partisanship.

Finally, board members, elected or appointed, serve six years. On an elected board, an ineffectual member can sit by for 6 years, resting idly on his victory at the polls until he will be publicly "judged" again. An appointed member will realize the governor can take his job away if he is not faithfully executing his responsibilities.

On the basis of these arguments, it would seem that appointed boards are the way to go. It would be ideal to have our trustees elected by the public, but it is unfeasible until such time as the public becomes informed and aware of the candidates and issues involved. Something as intricate and as regionally important as trustee memberships should be determined by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Rehab can educate everyone

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am a blind graduate student at SIU here in Carbondale and I am responding to a story that appeared in the September 25th issue of the Daily Egyptian. "Hospital administrators as stated by Mike Winters and Margaret Jakobson."

I would like to express my surprise at the way you have worded the article. The administrators have not said that "all for one and one for all." Regardless of our disabilities, we can be educated and can contribute to society. Any person, no matter what their handicap, can learn to live with and cope with it. It does not have to become a handicap if we do not accept that disability. If we accept that disability, it is only a problem or impairment if we let it prevent us from learning to live with and cope with it.

A handicap is, again I repeat, a disability or impairment which the person cannot conquer. Therefore, it is a handicap. If the individual has a problem with accepting the person to accept the impairment and to do something about overcoming and living with the disability then I say that the person is a person and not an object. It is not a problem for me or for me or for any other person on this campus. I believe that the Rehabilitation Council of Illinois is trying to get a whole class of knowledge to understand one person at a time. Just as a teacher class to class to understand what any person must do to make it. We have to have the experience; they have to do, they have to do to be able to accept the impairment that they might have. Also, I believe that we can all understand that disabilities can become handicaps if we do not accept that disability. If we accept that disability, it is only a problem or impairment if we let it prevent us from learning to live with and cope with it.

Educational atmosphere?

To the Daily Egyptian:

The attitude of the University administration in the Wilson Hall contract violation case (Daily Egyptian section) leaves me somewhat outraged.

Officials agree that the searches were illegal, but do nothing about it in the name of "education and atmosphere," which nonsense. The University has made the future of Southern Illinois University much brighter. I present my views and was, felt, given the same hearing as all the other students. I believe the student trustee was given all the rights and privileges of any trustee.

Friends for total amnesty

To the Daily Egyptian:

My concern as a member of the Carbondale meeting of the Society of Friends is that no major party candidate for any Illinois office is in favor of amnesty. The movement to bring justice to the individuals courageous enough to live in peace, are taken for an enemy which meant exile is not dead.

Friends for White House amnesty to Amnesty International in its efforts to stop the criminal repression of Americans who have tradition in our war-tom nation would be a universal and unconditional amnesty.

Latin revolt stopped

LA PAZ, Bolivia—President Hugo Banzer Suarez personally led a contingent of soldiers to squash a military and civilian revolt in the eastern city of Santa Cruz on Thursday, the government said.

"Tranquility reigns in Santa Cruz," officials announced. Shortly after that, rebel radio stations ceased broadcasting from the city 200 miles east of La Paz.

The government said Banzer's loyal army and air force troops retook the central square of Santa Cruz, scene of an earlier rebel demonstration, and began a "cleanup operation." There was no mention of casualties.

Banzer, an army colonel, took power three years ago with a bloody coup that also began in Santa Cruz. The oil and agriculture center of Bolivia. Since then, he has ruled more than a dozen plots against his right-wing and harshly anti-Communist regime.

The latest revolt began in the early morning hours in a rebel stronghold. He regimented several radio stations under rebel control broadcast calls for citizens to gather and demonstrate. They claimed the rebels had taken the Santa Cruz City Hall and police station.

One of the radio networks, Radio Panamericana, said Banzer was accused of "maladministration" and that the rebels planned to revive nationalism in Bolivia. It said former Interior Minister Blas信用卡 Valverde Barbier was their "undeclared leader."

The joint military command in La Paz said two generals, Julio Prado Mantova and Orlando Alvaraz, also were leading the insurrection. Prado's son, Maj. Gary Prado, led a futile attempt to overthrow Banzer in June.

GSC suggests joint committee

A resolution to form a joint committee between the Student Senate and the Graduate Student Council (GSC) to suggest revisions for a section of the Board of Trustees By-Laws and Statutes regarding student government organizations was passed unanimously by the council at its Wednesday night meeting.

Kathy Jones, GSC president, said now the statutes don't provide specifically for a student body president or GSC.

Katherine McDonald, a GSC affiliate, to the Joint Executive Senate Constitutional Review Committee without consulting the council. "I didn't know she had been appointed until after it happened. She was selected to represent GSC. We don't think it's proper to have a representative on a Student Senate committee without our consent," she said.

The council unanimously passed a resolution to send Sullivan a letter to tell him so.

She said one action of major concern is the appointment of Arthur Murphy, a GSC alternate, to the Joint Executive Senate Constitutional Review Committee without consulting the council. "I didn't know she had been appointed until after it happened. She was selected to represent GSC. We don't think it's proper to have a representative on a Student Senate committee without our consent," she said.

The council unanimously passed a resolution to send Sullivan a letter to tell him so.
Close election determined by light turnout

By Sam Dobbs
Associated Press Writer

If a bare handful of the near-record number of Americans who stayed away from the polls had voted, many who lost cliff-hanger elections Tuesday might have been declared the victors.

Five races for state governorships will go on record as being decided by less than 5,000 votes. One of the five squeakers still is undecided. In a sixth close contest, a candidate conceded that he had lost, only to learn later that he was the winner.

There were cliff-hangers in five U.S. Senate races. In one, the final unofficial returns had the candidates less than 100 votes apart, too close for the outcome to be decided before an official canvass.

In another, the spread was less than 300 and in a third it was about 400. The two others were decided by fewer than 5,000 votes.

Voter turnout for Tuesday’s election—estimated at 38 percent—was at its lowest level since 1948, when 37.1 percent of the voting-age population went to the polls. The lowest figure on record is 32.5 percent for 1942, when millions of men were away at war.

Republican Paul Laxalt, the former governor of Nevada, narrowly won his U.S. Senate race by some 600 votes out of about 300,000 cast in the race. The same for U.S. Rep. Louis C. Wyman, another Republican, who won by less than 300 votes in a New Hampshire race where 220,000 ballots were cast.

Incumbent Oklahoma Republican Henry Bellmon got by a little more easily. Even though some 77,000 persons voted in a loser contest, Bellmon won by a little more than a 1,000-vote margin.

Democrat Patrick J. Leahy, a county prosecutor in Vermont, is going to the Senate by virtue of a 4,612 margin of victory. That race attracted 136,000 voters.

Then there’s North Dakota, where the results of that Senate race are still uncertain. As canvassing boards began going over election returns Thursday, GOP Sen. Milton R. Young was leading his challenger, former Democratic Gov. William L. Guy, by less than 100 votes out of more than 230,000 cast.

The winning margins were somewhat wider in four of the cliff-hanger races for governorships.

Hatt 3,000 persons voted the other way. Arizona Democrat Raoul Castro, Republican Robert Boren of Oklahoma, incumbent Republican Meldrim Thompson of New Hampshire and Democrat Terry Ahearn of New Mexico would be looking for other work. Their winning margins really aren’t as wide as they look since hundreds of thousands of votes were cast in these races.

In Alaska, with 75 per cent of the vote in Thurday, incumbent Democrat William Egan was virtually deadlocked with his Republican challenger. That race, too, likely will be decided by a relatively few votes.

Then there’s the strange case of Ohio where nearly one million votes were cast in the governor’s race.

Republican James A. Rhodes won by roughly 14,000 votes. Rhodes had given up hope and conceded when incumbent Democrat John J. Gilligan took the lead. However, a court order in the case cast the tabulation swing in his favor and turned his opponent out of office.

OAS diplomats spark turbulence in Ecuador

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Two bombs went off in Quito today as diplomats of the Organization of American States gathered to decide whether to lift a three-year-old policy of isolating Cuba. Police said two persons, including a pregnant woman, were injured.

Diplomats and security people said they suspected the attacks were mounted by leftist groups as a show of force against the presence in Quito of Juanita Castro, sister of Cuba’s prime minister. She broke with her brother years ago and is opposed to lifting sanctions against Cuba.

Authorities said one bomb smashed the windows of the Brazilian Cultural Institute, 15 blocks from the congressional palace, the site of the OAS meeting.

They said the other caused some damage to the Bolivian Embassy, across the street from the congressional palace, and injured a watchman and his pregnant wife.

Both Brazil and Bolivia are against lifting sanctions against Cuba, but officials from both countries claim they are still undecided on how they will vote.

Defeated Hoffman a bit disappointed, will miss people

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

On the day after his election defeat, Jackson County Sheriff John J. Hoffman spent a major part of his afternoon checking on stolen property.

"I feel pretty good today. I am a little disappointed, but I’m certainly happier than I was last election night," said Hoffman, trying to explain his feelings after being defeated by 1,078 votes in the sheriff race.

Hoffman feels his defeat came out of Carbondale, where the last one student precinct by 500 votes.

"I just don’t get to work with them (SU students) as much as some of the people out in the county," the sheriff said. "I did carry some Murphysboro precincts quite well. I just want to thank everybody who’s worked with me."

Also, Hoffman doesn’t feel his defeat was due to the merit system, since the sheriff can’t replace them, and Hoffman says, "If you don’t want a person, they certainly won’t stay, but I think they would probably stay."

Hoffman plans to visit his son in Anchorage, Alaska after the change in office, but he’s unsure of his future plans.

"It is not easy to say what you will do, especially after you’re 39-years-old. I don’t want to get back into politics.

I know there’s a lot of people that’s going to miss me, and I certainly know I’ll miss them.

One reason I was so shocked by the election returns was because everywhere I went in the county, there wasn’t a lot of people that said I wouldn’t lose. They all said they would support me."

Other potential victims of the elections are the non-merit workers in the sheriff’s department.

Having only worked there one month, Snyder is unsure of what will happen.

"A lot of people pulled for him (Whitney) and some of them are going to want jobs. I guess I’ll stay until I find out what’s going to happen.

Snyder plans to write the Texas Rangers for a office job if there are changes made.

"I feel a lot of people are going to be sorry about the sheriff losing. The sheriff tried to do good and they’re going to miss him."
Citizen’s committee receives suggestions

By Martha Sanford
Student Writer

The Carbondale Citizens’ Community Development Steering Committee received suggestions to take steps into a multi build a re-cycling operation in Carbondale and construct a pocket parks at its first public meeting. The group suggestions on how the city should spend $8.1 million.

The steering committee, composed of 20 members and chairman Donald Montgomery, went out to solicit suggestions as to how Carbondale could spend federal money it has coming. The committee will pass the suggestions to the city council.

The steering committee is presently having public meetings in each quadrant of the city to hear what people would like to see done in Carbondale. The first meeting was held in the south-east quadrant, but citizens are welcome to attend any or all of the four meetings.

Monty outlined the eligible activities toward which the money can be used. They include acquiring property that is blighted, acquiring property for public parks, and acquiring property for the preservation of historic sites. Another activity is the removal of architectural barriers to the elderly and handicapped.

The money can also be used as a local match money for other federal grants thus giving it a pyramiding effect.

"The three basic goals," said Monty, "are physical improvement of the community, to add and improve housing, and to provide social services that will benefit the community and its residents."

Carl Wiegaard, retired SIU professor, suggested that the money be spent to create jobs and decrease consumption by the public. He also reminded the committee that it would be wise not to plan things that the community will end up financing in case the federal money is cut off for any reason.

While the money can not be used directly for airports, subways, or other public transportation facilities, it could be used to provide a van service as a supporting secondary job as an eligible activity. "Lack gulating in the back door," Monty said.

Detailed ideas for a re-cycling operation in Carbondale to handle glass, metal, and paper were voiced by Bill Mitchell. Mitchell stressed that such a project would be designed to turn a liability into an asset and bring capital into the city. "Instead we are paying someone to take the stuff away and bury it in a landfill that pollutes the land and water," he said.

Mitchell also showed the committee an artist’s conception of a sorting box to be used in each home. The box would have a separate compartment for each kind of solid waste and would involve the help of everyone in the community.

Group formed to fill post left by ex-Dean Spees

By Wes Smith

A committee has been formed by Brevyn Swinburne, dean of students, to fill the post of Dean of Student Life. The position was vacated by Professor E. Mitchell when Dean B. W. Spren was assigned to direct a research project.

Swinburne said Terrence Buck, dean of student services, will chair the search committee, along with members Lorrae Otis, associate dean of students; Dennis Sullivan, senatesecretary; Kathie Jones, graduate student council president; Edgar Philp, black affairs council president; and Julia Muller, coordinator of educational and cultural planning in the office of student life.

Swinburne said the committee will meet officially for the first time sometime next week.

"I want the committee to move as rapidly as possible," Swinburne said. "The committee will draw together the Student Life file and interview Student Life people on the responsibilities of the dean and see if the job description matches the responsibilities.

"They will look at people inside Student Life and the University as well as possible candidates outside the University." Swinburne related, "I am more concerned with bringing the right person in than in getting the search done expeditiously," he said.

Dean likes interaction

By Karre Decker
Student Writer

Bruce Swinburne, dean of students, believes higher education is becoming available to more and more people.

"I believe higher education is moving away from being a privilege and moving toward the point where we view it as a right," Swinburne told a local Baptist Student Union (BSU) group recently.

Swinburne said the University can reach out and extend opportunity to a great number of students. "We can respond to that student who find it difficult to even on this campus just as much as those who find it very satisfying," he said.

"What I really want to do is interact with you," Swinburne told the BSU group. It is difficult for a great big impersonal university to extend love and concern and can truly care about 19,000 students. "But I've seen this group and others on campus that care about each other. I believe this University is going to be the truly great place that it can be--the place where we can expect love and concern," Swinburne said.

Swinburne then threw the talk open for questions.

On the Buckley Amendment, which proposes open files for students, Swinburne said, "I believe very strongly that this is a good thing. You students have the right to know what's in those files."

Swinburne added the file would not be open to parents or to anyone except those authorized by the student.

The questions then turned to the campus Health Service. "As wild as it sounds," Swinburne said, "I think we probably have one of the outstanding programs in the country."

Walker's veto power holding

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - Illinois voters apparently chose to retain the controversial amendatory veto power for the governor.

Unofficial returns from about 65 per cent of the state's precincts showed Illinois voters defeated the proposed amendment to remove the amendatory veto power.

The unofficial results from 7,201 of the state's 11,315 precincts showed 796,456 "yes" votes and 1,131,721 "no" votes.

Approval of the referendum requires 40 per cent of the voters who cast a ballot on the issue or 50 per cent of the state's total vote.

Nearly 2.9 million votes were cast in the U.S. Senate race, which headed the Illinois ballot.

"We assume the referendum got beat," said Norton Kay, press chief for Gov. Daniel Walker. He said based on the incomplete returns, there's no chance of the proposal's approval barring a dramatic reversal of voting trends in the precincts yet to be counted.

The Illinois Board of Elections said it didn't have sufficient returns tabulated on the proposal.

Interior design students will attend St. Louis Expo

By Kathleen Takemoto
Student Writer

Several SIU interior design students will attend the first annual St. Louis Interior Design Exposition (IDEX) Friday.

According to Frank Morogi of the Interior Design Department, about 40 student members of the American Institute of Interior Designers and the National Society of Interior Designers will leave Friday morning for the Riverfront Design Center in St. Louis.

Morogi, who is accompanying the students to the exposition, said the IDEX is organized "to show current design products to the Midwest market outside of Chicago. " Well-known professional designers will present talks, he said.

Student design contest winners will be announced during the ex- position. According to Morogi, about 17 SIU student in intermediate and advanced interior design classes have entered the competition which is sponsored by the Institute of Business Design.

The exposition will run through Saturday. However, the SIU group will only attend on Friday.

Morogi said students will attend presentations by industrial and fur- nishings designer Hugh Acton and professional designer Sally Walsh.

Students also plan to tour the Lehmann Herbarium at Shaw's Garden, which is the 1974 grand prize winner of the national interior design competition.

The exhibition will be held in the Riverfront Design Center.

A repeat of the sample law school admission test will be given at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Brown Auditorium. The four-hour test is being sponsored by the pre-law advising committee. Persons interested in attending law school are invited to take the test. For further information contact Browning Carroll in the history department at 453-4391.

Boyd Butler, Area Services representative was elected president of the Arts and Crafts Guild, which covers 30 Southern Illinois counties, at a meeting during which SIU Vice-President T. Richard Mager delivered the keynote address. Mager spoke on the topic, "Visions and Viewpoints of Southern Illinois. Southern Illinois University, and Southern Illinois Arts and Crafts."

Professor Herbert Marshall, Director of the Center for Soviet and Eastern European Studies, was a participating delegate to the Illinois meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and Eastern European Languages, Nov. 1, at the University of Illinois Campus, Champaign, Illinois.

John Howie, associate professor of philosophy, has been selected chairman of a state wide Curriculum Development Committee of the Task Force on Curriculum in Philosophy. A second meeting of the committee is scheduled for Mundelein College, Chicago, Nov. 9. One of the tasks of the committee is the promotion of philosophy courses at junior and community colleges in the state.

The Mexican government is offering scholarships for study in Mexico. Students must have a BA and an adequate knowledge of Spanish. For further details, contact Helen Vergette in Room B230 Woody Hall.

The Community Liaison Committee of International Student and Faculty Affairs at SIU is providing a variety of services to international students in Carbondale. One program of the committee is the Speakers' Bureau which has been very active this fall. Sylvia Morrill, community volunteer and coordinator of the program, solicits requests from area schools, churches, and organizations for foreign student speakers and lines up students to participate and share interesting aspects of their home country.

Currently, the volunteers are in the process of finding host families for foreign students for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. The arrangements may vary from hosting students for dinner to hosting them for the entire vacation period.

Persons interested in either the Speakers' Bureau program or the host family arrangements can contact a volunteer or Jared Dorn, assistant director of International Student and Faculty Affairs, at 453-5774.

Three members of the Special Education department attended the 25th convention of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children in Chicago Oct. 24-26. Faculty members at the convention were Kris Joul, Edward Breen and James Crowner. Twenty SIU students also attended.

A Musical Talent Show will be held in Ballroom A of the Student Center from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday. The show is free and sponsored by "Better Ways," a student organization sponsored through Specialized Student Services. The purpose of the organization is to organize activities among abled and disabled students. All those interested in participating should contact Gene Dew at 453-5738.

Five SIU faculty members recently returned from a seminar on early childhood education in Innsbruck, Austria. Mr. and Mrs. Luther E. Bradfield, John F. Casey, and Mr. and Mrs. James Quisenberry are all members of the College of Education.

The seminar was sponsored by the Illinois Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development with the assistance of the Austro-American Institute of Education. It included seminars, exhibits, and school visitations from October 23 to 31.

No plans being made for losers
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford has not discussed any plans for trying to find places in his administration for defeated House and Senate Republican candidates in Tuesday's election, a White House spokesman said today.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said he knows of no plans for any changes in the Cabinet either.

When asked by reporters about any plans for finding posts for the defeated Republicans, Nessen said, "I haven't heard the President say that."

S-Senate stalls congratulations

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate tabled a bill proposing that Willie E. Malone and the Presidential Search Committee be congratulated as the “outstanding selection” of Warren Brandt as president at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday.

The senate moved to table the bill after Robert Walker, committeeman, objected saying, “The guy is getting paid for this. He has a big staff at Anthony Hall. He was going to find one anyway.”

Duke Koch moved to table the bill “until we have some evidence that Malone made a good choice.”

The senate passed three bills amending the by-laws, which corrected grammatical errors.

Duke Koch gave the first reading of a bill recommending that an article in the constitution be amended. His bill suggested that graduate students and sophomores who have attended SIU two out of three terms be allowed to run for the offices of student body president and vice president. Currently juniors and seniors are only allowed to run.

Marxist band ignores Peron’s calls for peace

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Outlawed Marxist guerrillas flouted Argentina’s new state of siege Thursday, killing an army officer, burning military vehicles and raiding a busy commuter railroad station.

The attacks were apparently a refusal of terrorists to accept the broad powers dimissed Wednesday by President Isabel Peron to end what the government called an “inhuman and criminal terrorist plan against the entire nation.”

Maj. Noris Horacio Lopez, a military high school instructor, was machine-gunned to death and a military guard seriously wounded in a guerrilla ambush at Lopez’s home in a military neighborhood.

Police sources said at least 15 army buses parked in a factory lot 30 miles north of here were virtually destroyed by bombs and fire. They attributed the raid to the outlawed People’s Revolutionary Army — ERP.

Police said an ERP group also took control of a suburban Avellaneda railway station at gunpoint briefly to hand out revolutionary propaganda and spray-paint walls with antigovernment slogans.

Then federal police announced that bomb disposal experts exploded a charge planted in front of a primary school Wednesday night. No one was injured. The building was heavily damaged.

Interior Minister Alberto Rocamora said the state of siege was imposed because of anonymous threats that school children and teachers would be killed and their classrooms bombed. “It was the drop of water that caused the glass to overflow,” he said.

Thousands of nervous parents held their children home for the second day. No one claimed responsibility for the threats.

Bombings, kidnappings, assassinations, police raids, ambushes in military installations and other acts of terrorism by left and right-wing opponents of the government began increasing in September when more than 150 explosions rocked Buenos Aires over one weekend.

At least 127 people have died since Mrs. Peron succeeded President Juan D. Peron on his death July 1.

WSIU combines fun, crime prevention

By Deborah Singer Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A combination of American Bandstand, Midnight Special and a talk show rolled into one program and all of it in Carbondale.

Sounds unbelievable, but it's true.

The second monthly production of Focus will be aired at 11 p.m. Friday, on WSIU-TV channel 8. The Carbondale Police Department and the WSIU Teleproduction Center are planning to make Friday night more exciting than usual for Southern Illinois high school students.

Jim Reed, police officer with the Carbondale Police Department said the "Focus" community program designed to bring all the Southern Illinois youth together for recreational activities and to help expose some local talent.

All high school students are invited to come to the WSIU television studio in the Communications Building and participate in the show.

"Focus" will be broadcast throughout portions of six states with a potential viewing audience of two million. "This is the largest community project we've ever undertaken in regard to the coverage we're receiving," Reed said.

The show will be co-hosted by Reed and Carbondale Police Officer, Norman Horner. The plan was originated by two officers an offshoot of a similar show which Reed currently hosts on Cable TV channel 7 in Carbondale.

Plans for the evening include a dance with music provided by a local band named Spearhead, as well as an interview session.

Reed and Horner will interview people who feel students should become familiar with. Acquainting students with members of the local governmental system is a way to answer any questions they may have about the way the system works, Reed said.

Scheduled for an interview, if followed by a question and answer session are Howard Royal, Jackson County State's Attorney, Jon Billiler, juvenile officer with the Murphysboro Police Department and Geor songwriter, assistant principal of Murphysboro Township High School.

The show is a form of crime prevention Reed said. The police department wants to reach young people before they form negative opinions about the work performed by the department. Reed explained that they are fighting almost 115 years of stereotypes. The first public information programs about police were aired in 1960, while the first police department was opened in 1824.

A police department is only as good as the citizens of the community because we can't do anything without cooperation," Reed said. "Focus" is designed to further open lines of communication between young people in the community and the officials they may someday have to deal with.

The two-fold purpose of the show was explained by Bob Cerchio, Teleproduction manager. Cerchio said that this serves as a "fantastic" learning experience for the students involved in the organization who will be working on the Focus production. "This puts Tele under the pressure it needs to produce something right the first time," Cerchio said. This is the difference between doing a live show and a tape show, he added.

The WSIU Teleproduction Center sets high standards for the Teleproduction Center.

Woman doctor checking out men's fertility

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—A woman doctor is investigating whether tight underpants affect a man's fertility and says kiln-dried Scotsmen and unclad Africans provide some clues.

Dr. Ann Chandler, a genetics researcher at Edinburgh's Western General Hospital, told newsmen she has found that animals such as rabbits and gorillas produce sperm that is 98 percent effective.

"But no man who has been tested has sperm that is more than 75 percent perfect," she said. "It could be that tight underpants cause high temperatures in the testicles of civilized man and that brings about abnormalities."

"If a bull came up with a sample that was as defective as the average man's, he would be shot on the spot," Dr. Chandler said.

Dr. Chandler said she and her colleagues would conduct their research in a special unit which opened Thursday. They will compare the sperm count of men in varying states of undress, from those who wear tight underpants to kiln-drying Scotsmen and naked African tribesmen.

Sperm from the men will be sent to the hospital's cryogenic unit for analysis to see how potent it is.

Other researchers report that hot baths tend to reduce a man's fertility, or count of active sperm, while cold baths might be helpful in improving his fertility.

Some speculate that the testicles are outside the body in order to create a cooler environment for sperm than if the gonads producing sperm were inside the body.

The Scottish research project prompted an angry response from one of Britain's major underwear makers, Lyle and Omega.

"This is simply scare-mongering," a spokesman for the firm said. "One has only to examine the birth rate of this country. Y-fronts seem to have done nothing to our young men."

R-T open seminar to be held Friday

A radio-television seminar titled "The Job Market Today" will be televised and audio taped Friday in the Student Center Auditorium.

The seminar will be shown on air in broadcasting and how to get your first job. Speakers and topics for the seminar include Joseph Costello, service vice president and general manager of WART (Woo River), on "Radio," David Rochelle, director of SIU's Broadcasting Service, on "Public Broadcasting," and Robert Rice, vice president and general manager of WRAI-TV (Perrin) on "Commercial Television."

Ann Lorimer, SIU journalism instructor, who has worked with a Houston ad firm, will also speak.

The seminar is sponsored by the SIU Department of Radio and Television and is open to all interested persons.

Police Chief Kennedy carries ‘quiet stick’

By Scott Burnsides

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The new police chief of Carbondale, George R. Kennedy, carries a quiet stick.

In a business filled with louder, verbiage men, Kennedy maintains an air of calmness and solitude. His wit is dry and sharp, but never flamboyant.

A veteran of police wars in Oklahoma, especially in Muskogee, Kennedy adds a touch of western America to the Carbondale Police Department. His suits generally reflect a Western flavor and his office is decorated with such items as a glockenspiel, a teakettle and a replica of an old Spanish cannon.

As an administrator, Kennedy doesn’t get involved in the nuts-and-bolts of law enforcement. His days are filled with meetings, paperwork, conferences and publicity forays into the civilian world.

Two weeks ago was no exception for Kennedy. The morning was filled with opening-day ceremonies at the new shopping mall and a courtesy visit with another police chief. Searching for capable radio dispatchers flashed out the afternoon’s activities.

Kennedy explained on the ride out to the shopping center, he only gets called out in the major cases. Last weekend he was called out twice when student bars patrons overflowed into the streets.

“He got called on anything involving a shooting, homicide or a suicide, anything involving a dead body type. They’ll also call me on an armed robbery or safe burglary.”

Walking around the mall before the opening day ceremonies, Kennedy said the new center wouldn’t cause problems for police.

“The only thing the mall opening means is a few more people will get killed at the intersection. It’s a real bad idea.”

After the mall ceremony, Kennedy dropped by the new book store. He thanked the manager for donating some excess books to the county jail.

Leaving the shopping center, Kennedy said the interaction could have been made safer if something had been done to slow traffic.

Quick thinking helps police

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP)—A newspaper who knows how to take quick notes has been credited with helping police arrest two women and three men accused in connection with a string of 30 thefts in western Massachusetts.

Police say the unidentified newspaper—who works for the Berkshire Eagle here—spotted a burglary and quickly jotted down the license number of the getaway car. It didn’t matter that he was not carrying a notepad—the youth scrabbled the number on his forearm.

Back at the office Kennedy was faced with a stack of job applications concerning the radio dispatcher job openings.

“We want someone for this job who might become a police officer in the future. Later on, we’ll change it if need be. This will give us a chance to look at them and then a chance to see what law enforcement is like.” Kennedy said while leafing through some 50 forms.

In the afternoon, Kennedy and his second-in-command, Captain Ed Hogan talked over personnel schedules.

“I believe in the generalist approach. Our uniform man is more responsible now. He can go as far on a case as he possible can, including all the way up to finishing the investigation. The men are reacting well to this idea.”

“Before a man made the initial report, he would go back on that problem. That’s all he would be involved in that case.”

Dressed in a blue and plaid sports coat, Kennedy said he doesn’t wear a police uniform.

“In a smaller department where the chief has to answer calls, it’s good to wear a uniform. Many of my appointments are like the mall opening this morning, where a uniform could be out of place.

“As the afternoon wore on, Kennedy became more talkative about his job and police work.

“Our crime is centered against the students, whether its entering a dorm room or stealing tape decks off a car. I’d like to have more men so we can add a couple more detectives to the force.”

Kennedy’s prior police chief job was with the Muskogee police department. Seventeen police chiefs were with that department in as many years. Kennedy held the job for two years.

His Muskogee experiences are brought out in the popular book, “The Malia is not an Equal Opportunity Employer.” The book tells of the two chiefs before Kennedy—'one’s home was bombed and the other’s car was blown up.”

“The attitude of the people is different here both in the city and in the department. Economically, Carbondale is better off than Muskogee,” stated Kennedy.

Muskogee was wide open during World War II said Kennedy. “In the police department, there was a lot of crookism, prostitution and pressure from gambling operators. It was hoped by the city council things would die down.”

The town council wanted to fire Kennedy because of his strict anti-gambling policy, but, “I was under the merit system so they couldn’t fire me. They (the council) told me they were going to abolish my job and they did it, he said.

Many of Kennedy’s programs are still in effect at Muskogee and he says gamblers are still operating, but less openly.

Finally, Kennedy cuts his stack of applications to about 15 near the end of the day after many interrogations by his staff.

“Today has been an extremely quiet day.” Kennedy said. He started the day with a staff meeting and had to attend another meeting that night. He attends about three evening meetings a week.

Kennedy is decorated flamboyant. Department.

Kennedy maintains a touch of western America to the Carbondale streets.

He thanked the manager for donating some books to the county jail.

As an administrator, Kennedy doesn’t get involved in the nuts-and-bolts of law enforcement. His days are filled with meetings, paperwork, conferences and publicity forays into the civilian world.

“He got called on anything involving a shooting, homicide or a suicide, anything involving a dead body type. They’ll also call me on an armed robbery or safe burglary.”

Walking around the mall before the opening day ceremonies, Kennedy said the new center wouldn’t cause problems for police.

“The only thing the mall opening means is a few more people will get killed at the intersection. It’s a real bad idea.”

After the mall ceremony, Kennedy dropped by the new book store. He thanked the manager for donating some excess books to the county jail.

Leaving the shopping center, Kennedy said the interaction could have been made safer if something had been done to slow traffic.

Quick thinking helps police

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP)—A newspaper who knows how to take quick notes has been credited with helping police arrest two women and three men accused in connection with a string of 30 thefts in western Massachusetts.

Police say the unidentified newspaper—who works for the Berkshire Eagle here—spotted a burglary and quickly jotted down the license number of the getaway car. It didn’t matter that he was not carrying a notepad—the youth scrabbled the number on his forearm.

Back at the office Kennedy was faced with a stack of job applications concerning the radio dispatcher job openings.

“We want someone for this job who might become a police officer in the future. Later on, we’ll change it if need be. This will give us a chance to look at them and then a chance to see what law enforcement is like.” Kennedy said while leafing through some 50 forms.

In the afternoon, Kennedy and his second-in-command, Captain Ed Hogan talked over personnel schedules.

“I believe in the generalist approach. Our uniform man is more responsible now. He can go as far on a case as he possible can, including all the way up to finishing the investigation. The men are reacting well to this idea.”

“Before a man made the initial report, he would go back on that problem. That’s all he would be involved in that case.”

Dressed in a blue and plaid sports coat, Kennedy said he doesn’t wear a police uniform.

“In a smaller department where the chief has to answer calls, it’s good to wear a uniform. Many of my appointments are like the mall opening this morning, where a uniform could be out of place.

“As the afternoon wore on, Kennedy became more talkative about his job and police work.

“Our crime is centered against the students, whether its entering a dorm room or stealing tape decks off a car. I’d like to have more men so we can add a couple more detectives to the force.”

Kennedy’s prior police chief job was with the Muskogee police department. Seventeen police chiefs were with that department in as many years. Kennedy held the job for two years.

His Muskogee experiences are brought out in the popular book, “The Malia is not an Equal Opportunity Employer.” The book tells of the two chiefs before Kennedy—one’s home was bombed and the other’s car was blown up.”

“The attitude of the people is different here both in the city and in the department. Economically, Carbondale is better off than Muskogee,” stated Kennedy.

Muskogee was wide open during World War II said Kennedy. “In the police department, there was a lot of crookism, prostitution and pressure from gambling operators. It was hoped by the city council things would die down.”

The town council wanted to fire Kennedy because of his strict anti-gambling policy, but, “I was under the merit system so they couldn’t fire me. They (the council) told me they were going to abolish my job and they did it, he said.

Many of Kennedy’s programs are still in effect at Muskogee and he says gamblers are still operating, but less openly.

Finally, Kennedy cuts his stack of applications to about 15 near the end of the day after many interrogations by his staff.
Police nab two throwing glass

SIU police arrested two students Wednesday on charges arising from a glass throwing incident near police headquarters.

At 9:40 a.m. Wednesday, police officers observed two men throwing a glass at a squad car in front of police headquarters.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said officers immediately began chasing the suspect.

Arrested were Kenneth F. Picha, B. Wright III, and Richard A. Embry, 18, both Neely Hall. Norrington said the two suspects resisted arrest. Disorderly conduct and resisting arrest charges were levied.

Breast cancer concern increases locally

By Pam Black
Daily Reporter Staff Writer

More than 3,500 Americans will have breast cancer this year, including the more than 60 who will die of breast cancer, according to Dr. Wilson Scott, chief of department of radiology at the Cardonale Clinic and Doctors Memorial Hospital.

Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller have given a speaker's impetus to breast cancer, according to Scott, and that is "the awareness of your breasts and doing something about it."

In the past cancer has been a nasty word just like VD was, Scott said. Naturally known persons who have had cancer have done a great deal to give cancer the prominence it needs, he added.

People are now asking questions and demanding more attention from physicians, Scott said. Research has revitalized the search for cancer cures and more sophisticated equipment for discovering lumps in breasts, including thermography and mammography are being used. He added:

Thermography which records an increased body temperature is non-specific for cancer and measures the increased amount of blood in a specific spot, Scott explained. Film (a regular X-ray) and thermography are two types of mammography. Xerography which might be described as a blue-tinted x-rayed papar is similar to an X-ray and is the brand-name system for breast exams. Scott said.

Ninety-five percent of the patients who are diagnosed by mammography feel a lump in their breast before going to a physician, according to Scott.

A self-exam of the breasts is best done in the shower or bath or it or bed, explained Scott.

A brochure on the self-exam breast check is provided by the American Cancer Society and is available at most physicians' offices.

"Most lumps are non-cancerous," Scott emphasized. He said: an estimated 15 to 20 percent of the lumps found by women are cancerous.

Chances of the lumps being cancer are related to the woman's nationality, family history and age group according to Scott.

Orientals have the lowest rate with blacks following and then whites, who are more likely to have breast cancer. Scott explained.

Women over 35 are more likely to get breast cancer. Scott said women are more likely to have breast cancer if cancer is directly related through the matter, according to Scott. There is still a certain amount of question in the heredity of breast cancer, he added.

Surprisingly, statistics show the incidence rate of breast and cervix cancer goes down with the number of children a woman has, he said. Scott could not explain the incidence rates but said: "Statistics show a long list of things, but don't explain why.

Pathologists are able to distinguish two major kinds of breast cancer, but the type of cancer does not matter since all treatment for breast cancer are the same," Scott explained.

"How extensive the surgery needs to be is a controversial issue," Scott said. Three surgical treatments including lumpectomy, simple mastectomy and radical mastectomy are used to remove cancerous lumps, he said.

Less than two percent of all breast cancer is found and treated by lumpectomy, a specialized surgical procedure, Scott said. The lump is removed without removing the entire breast, according to Scott.

Most lumps are discovered when they are less than one inch in diameter. These lumps are removed by simple or radical mastectomy, a procedure which removes the entire breast, nearby lymph nodes or muscles, according to the situation, Scott said.

Scott noted that no change in the surgical cure rate has taken place in the last 40 years in spite of the studies, technology and varying approaches. The only solution to a high cure rate is early diagnosis. That is why self-exams and X-rays are so important," he said.

Scott said, women over the age of 25 should have an X-ray every year in their routine exam.

Ford and Rockefeller who were recently treated for breast cancer have made a significant impact at the Cardonale Clinic, according to Scott. The Clinic, which is booked to capacity for breast exams will be doing some exams at night to catch up with the backlog, he said. Nine out of the 15 individuals who had a mammography last week had cancerous lumps. Wilson stated. He added, it was a selected group, not the average population.

It is important individuals who have been treated for breast cancer get a follow-up and a regular yearly checkup, he said.

Did You Know

By Steve Shadler

Oddly enough, the Oakland Raiders of the National Football League have the best winning percentage of all teams in the NFL, in the last 10 years yet they have never won the Super Bowl.

Which National Football League team has the lowest winning percentage last season? An average of 30 or less per game who made 999 his field goal

Can you imagine one team having a percentage not one season, it happened in the historic NFL season of 1920, a hung up in the league with a percentage of 0.000. Where was the team? It was the New York Gotham's of the A.P. League.

Michigan State's favored over Ohio

By Will Grimes
AP College Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP)—Maybe it's the equatorial heat, the mind-boggling best of the bongo drums or simply arrogance from picking Maryland Ala. to reacquaint the heavyweight boxing crown, but we can't help but think that Africa still is riding an "upset" high.

If you're going to pick the biggest upset of the week in college football, what would it be? Michigan State over No. 1 Ohio State—the season's premierLonghorn.

The Spartans are maturing late. They can be tough. They get their adrenaline up for the Buckeyes. The picks:

Michigan State 21, Ohio State 19: The inspired Spartans blurt out a Valley Football Foundation. First in total offense, first in rushing, first in scoring and a man named Washington-Joe, not George.

Southern California 27, Stanford 20: Another two feet figure to roll up more yardage than Mike Corrida's passing arm.

Florida 31, Georgia 14: Doug Dickson has fashioned the Gators into the hottest team in the SEC. How did Vanderbilt beat 'em? Yale 21, Pennsylvania 7: Who has the best record of all in point strength? Yale, ya'll—what an average of about four points per game.

Penn State 24, North Carolina State 13: The Nittany Lions, coming off a tough game with Maryland, should be dominant.

Texas 35, Baylor 7: Roosevelt Leaks, recovered from knee surgery, is back in the starting lineup for the Longhorns.

Arizona State 27, Brigham Young 20: Arizona State lost last week because it had its eyes on the leader of the West.

Washington 24, California 20: Both teams come out of standout performances against UCLA and USC, the giants of the west.

Air Force 24, Army 14: Count on Army playing one of its finest games, but it won't be enough against the air boys.

Michigan 21, Illinois 7: They forgot to tell the Wolverines that somebody else is No. 1 in the rankings.

IM basketball officials meet

Basketball season is right around the corner and any student interested in officiating intramural basketball games should plan on attending the following rules interpretation meetings.

Monday, Nov. 11, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 13, 6 to 7 p.m. and Thursday Nov. 14, 6 to 7 p.m.

All three meetings are at the Arena Monday night in Room 119 on Wednesday and Thursday.

The only requirements are that prospective officials must be SU students and they must have a current A.C.T. on file at the Student Work Office.

Each official will earn $3 per game and pay stays Nov. 16.

Shula suspends running star over conditioning argument

MIAMI (AP)—Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula suspended injured running back Mercury Morris Thursday and said that the ban would last at least through Sunday's National Football League game with New Orleans.

The suspension came as a result of an argument over Morris' conditioning.

Shula met early Thursday with the speedy Morris, who has played in only two games this year because of neck and knee injuries. Later, the coach announced the suspension.

"I said I was ready to play," said the suspender after a heated exchange with Shula Wednesday. The coach disengaged and fined him $350 a day for missing training Monday and Tuesday. When Morris walked out, he was fined another $200.

"Shula will consider reinstatement Monday," a Dolphins spokesperson said Thursday, adding that the coach would answer no further questions on the issue.

Morris gained more than 1,000 yards rushing in 1972 and 694 last year.

"He told me he's ready to play. I told him I don't think he was," Shula said of his argument with Morris. "He said, 'go ahead and suspend me,' and he walked out.

Morris complained that "we definitely have a communications gap" and said he was the best judge of when he was ready to play.

Number one wins

In the game termed the "biggest of the year" by Coach Joe Plasner Illinoie, the SUU number one field hockey team defeated the SUU number two team Wednesday by a score of 5-1.

The first half saw the first team take an early 1-0 lead on Kathy "Stretch" Vonder's goal. After that, the second team took control of the ball, but was stopped by the defense of SUU.

Play was more exciting in the second half, as Kathy Escue evened the score at 1-1 for the second team early in the half. The first team got to work as darkness began to settle in DeBakey "Scope" Embank put SUU 1 ahead 2-1 on her goal that resulted from the persistent attack of the forward low.

As the clock ticked away the final seconds, the first team was awarded a penalty stroke. Pat Martecco took the penalty stroke and scored the final goal for SUU, making the final score 3-1.

This weekend, the first team will travel to Normal to compete in the College South Tournament. It is a selection tournament to determine what players will go on to compete for a spot in the Midwest Field Hockey team.
Raiders and Rams look like sure bets for division champs

By Bruce Lawtitt
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—So there’s no longer an unbeaten team in the National Football League... although Oakland and Los Angeles might be as well.

They’ve got what amounts to near-unbeatable Western Division leads. The Raiders in the American Conference and the Rams in the National Conference. It’s going to take a virtual collapse for either team to wind up less than first.

Don’t count on it—this Sunday, or for the rest of the season.

Oakland’s got two things Detroit hasn’t got—offense and defense.

Neil said. Atlanta’s got something to prove under new head Coach Marion Campbell. But the only thing the Falcons will prove against Los Angeles is that their record wasn’t all Norm Van Brocklin’s fault.

What we’re counting on this weekend is our usual menu of upset specials. We were upset a couple of times last weekend, finishing with a bird mark that pushed the season record to 72-31-1 for a .699 percentage.

In Sunday’s AFC Central showdown, we’re looking for Cincinnati’s high-powered offense to outlast Pittsburgh’s high-powered defense and send the Bengals’ high-powered defense into a frenzy.

And we’re expecting Jim Hart and the rest of St. Louis’ big play defense to take advantage of Minnesota’s slightly suspect secondary, giving the Cardinals a victory and starting another Monday night “home-run” string.

Raiders 21, Lions 16

Ken Stabler, Cliff Branch, Marv Hubbard, Clarence Davis, etc. The last gasp and on—and so does the Raiders’ winning streak, which will reach eight games. Detroit may put a few points on the board to make the score respectable but not enough to turn it around.

Rams 24, Falcons 19

James Harris will have some problems, but he’ll be about the only one on Los Angeles who doesn’t Lawrence McCutcheon and the rest of the Rams will run roughshod over Atlanta. The only thing the Falcons can do halfway decent is run—but not against the L.A. line.

Giants 26, Jets 20

This game used to be for the year’s “bragging rights” to New York, but neither team’s got anything to brag about this year. We guess the Giants’ new-found spirit generated by Craig Morton—who can take advantage of a crummy defense as well as anyone—will make the difference.

Patriots 22, Browns 13

Speaking of crummy defenses, now that Cleveland’s Brian Sipe has had his shot at a couple of them, let’s see how he does against a good one.

New England’s. Better yet, let’s see how he does against a good one.

Marron Davis.

In tonight’s AFC shootout, we’re thinking of New England’s . Better yet, let’s see how he does against a good one.

Oh, he’s got his Bengals to brag about this year. We’re counting on this weekend is our usual menu of upset specials. We were upset a couple of times last weekend, finishing with a bird mark that pushed the season record to 72-31-1 for a .699 percentage.

Speaking of crummy defenses, now that Cleveland’s Brian Sipe has had his shot at a couple of them, let’s see how he does against a good one.

New England’s. Better yet, let’s see how he does against a good one.

Oh, he’s got his Bengals to brag about this year. We’re counting on this weekend is our usual menu of upset specials. We were upset a couple of times last weekend, finishing with a bird mark that pushed the season record to 72-31-1 for a .699 percentage.

In Sunday’s AFC Central showdown, we’re looking for Cincinnati’s high-powered offense to outlast Pittsburgh’s high-powered defense and send the Bengals’ high-powered defense into a frenzy.

And we’re expecting Jim Hart and the rest of St. Louis’ big play defense to take advantage of Minnesota’s slightly suspect secondary, giving the Cardinals a victory and starting another Monday night “home-run” string.

Raiders 21, Lions 16

Ken Stabler, Cliff Branch, Marv Hubbard, Clarence Davis, etc. The last gasp and on—and so does the Raiders’ winning streak, which will reach eight games. Detroit may put a few points on the board to make the score respectable but not enough to turn it around.

Rugby referee covers much ground, misses lot of action

For over 14 years McAndrew was head grass crew from end zone to end zone. Green, vigorous shurbs lined the front of the parking lot that bordered the stadium on the west side. Multi-colored trees filled out the remaining area.

McAndrew was reaching his hour, just like many athletes at that same age. The only difference was that old athletes cannot be renovated like old stadiums.

McAndrew had begun to show the wear and tear of many years of cleated shoes trampling his surface and thousands of fans who trampled the stadium bleachers and cold cement floors withsystems of references.

The old stadium had been adequate for many years. When college football games were not the big business they are today.

Things changed, though. McAndrew needed to flex his muscles in order to control some of the bigger stadiums. Staduims with seating capacities of 70,000-80,000 seats were necessary when home school stars and luring them to their rubber turf.

SIU's stadium had no muscles to flex and referees could not compete with the bigger stadiums. McAndrew could barely impress football players of grade school caliber.

If McAndrew was to serve his purpose as a "big time" football battleground, he would have to be renovated. The stadium was built in 1938 and many of its defects were the result of SIU athletic director from 1913-43. He also reached the football team from 1932-38.

"This weekend's game is a battle of two desperate teams," Saluki coach Doug Weaver remarked Thursday. "It should be an interesting game for our fans."

The Salukis have some injury problems. SIU's four defensive tackles, Primus Jones, James Roberts, Chris Miller and Lamont Marks will all miss Saturday's game.

Tickets for this weekend's games can be purchased Friday at the athletic ticket office located in the Arena. Plenty of tickets are still available, according to manager Neena Kinney.

A new look on campus

Hockey minus ice

A disadvantage when recruiting, not being able to show off a wonderful stadium or promise the recruit he'll be playing before sellout crowds.

Happily, after McAndrew has undergone his major surgery, the stadium will resemble, if only vaguely, a major college stadium.

The operation started in the summer of 1972 when McAndrew received a new hairpiece, or rug. The old stadium was beginning to thin slightly, and was completely replaced with a new rubbery surface called astroturf.

This spring, a time of the year when new life is burgeoning and spring fever is in the air, McAndrew began to rebuild his body. The cold, gray steel bleachers to the east side were torn down to make way for new chair seats supported by a network of concrete and a new rubbery surface.

On the west side, new locker rooms, washrooms and concession areas are being built of light gray block bricks.

To top it all off, McAndrew is receiving a new timepiece that will give the minutes of each quarter, who has possession of the oval pigskin, how many yards to go for a first down, the number of downs, yardline location of the ball and, of course, the score of the encounter on the field.

McAndrew will still show signs of his true age but he will have a refreshing appearance.

Hopefully, the new look will draw more great athletes to SIU and more fans to go along with them.

A new seating capacity of almost 10,000 will bring the Salukis one step closer to "big time" football of course, the proper mixture of football talent, along with McAndrew's face lift, will be the catalyst in SIU's becoming a football power.
