Wife defends Quayle

Marilyn Quayle defends Dan Quayle attacks Dukakis, 'lazy media'

By Scott Perry

CHAMPAIGN — The wife of Republican vice-presidential candidate Dan Quayle attacked the Democratic party and its stance that her husband should have recused himself to take over the role of president.

"He proved (during the debate with Lloyd Bentsen) he was a man of great integrity and stature and definitely capable of assuming the role of the president," Marilyn Quayle said during a stop Thursday in Central Illinois.

Dan Quayle has shown the necessary leadership to lead the nation, she said, and in Congress he has dealt with problems that will confront the next president.

Quayle has served two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives and is presently serving his second term in the U.S. Senate, where he has been a member of the Banking Services Committee and the Senate Republican Conference. He is a member of the House Republican Whip, a member of the subcommittee on Conventional Forces and Alliance Defense.

She described Dan Quayle as a man of integrity in national defense, contrasting him with Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis, who, according to a member of the U.S. Senate, has very limited knowledge of the national defense process.

Palestinians hold protest to inform public of conflict

By Diane Milleville

Silently protesting with signs and literature, the General Union of Palestinian Students stood outside the Student Center Friday afternoon to inform University students about how they are being affected by the conflict in Palestine.

"It does not matter where we live, we have a nationality and we have to fight for it," Fidad Khaleed, treasurer of the union said.

"When our families get shot, those tanks say U.S. made. When a Palestinian's home is shot at, they say it is Israel and the United States," Zuhair Nofal, senior in civil engineering, said. Students didn't care about politics and are not aware of the amount of money going to places like Nicaragua and Israel.

"Are we here to give our information to let them know what is going on. I don't think they read the literature. I think they throw them into the trash," Nofal said.

"From every tax dollar, a percentage is sent to Israel. It is a waste," Nofal said.

"Mostly people with jobs want to know about the situation because they aren't getting their taxes back," Nofal said.

Mahmoud A. Mahmoud, graduate student in journalism, who stood among the protesters said, "The United States has strategic interest in the Middle East. It is a source of energy. If the United States looks at the problem and construct for solutions, the first order would be the homeland that represents the Palestinian people."

"We do not want to eliminate Israel, likewise Palestinians have rights to their own homeland," Mahmoud said.

Mahmoud said the protest is an effort to make the public aware of the people who are suffering "unjustly, especially innocent people like women, children and the elderly."

Union undecided on off-campus voting

By Jackie Spinner

The Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board will decide on the voting procedure of off-campus faculty sometime this week, IELRB Executive Director Robert Perkovich said.

Union representatives were not able to agree on the voting procedure of off-campus faculty when the parties met with the administration and an IELRB agent last Thursday in Springfield.

"Some everyone else gets the option of voting and faculty on sabbatical leave have to request a ballot, we think sending the ballots directly to off-campus employees would be inappropriate," Keck explained.

The University has about 30 employees stationed overseas and other off-campus faculty located on military bases around the country.

Dowse said the issue is a technicality and is not going to effect the election very much.

Meanwhile, the parties continue to bargain and prepare for the Nov. 16 bargaining session.

A list of all University employees and their titles is being compiled by the University and should be completed shortly.

Cairo, Egypt (UPI) — PLO leaders meeting in Tunisia approved plans to renown terrorism and proclaim an independent Palestinian state in the Israeli-occupied territories, the Middle East News Agency reported Sunday. In the dispatch from the Tunisian capital of Tunisia, the agency said the document approved at a two-day meeting would be debated at a session of the PLO's parliament-in-exile to be held in Algiers this month or early next month.

Czechs expect biggest shake-up since 1988

Prague, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Czechoslovakia's government will undergo one of the biggest personnel shake-ups in its history when its next government is formed Monday, sources close to the government said Sunday. The changeover in the government and the party are and apparently meant to eliminate many leaders deemed responsible for the country's economic decline.

Authorities move to block violence in Titograd

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Police patrolled the southern city of Titograd Sunday with orders to block further demonstrations in the wake of violent clashes between authorities and protesters demanding the resignation of Communist Party leaders. In Titograd, capital of the southern Republic of Montenegro, police patrolled the streets in pairs to guard against a repeat of Saturday's violence outside the regional parliament building.

Violence, riots continue for fifth day in Algeria

Algiers, Algeria (UPI) — Authorities arrested two men working for a British television network Sunday as they filmed tanks in the Algerian capital on the fifth day of government protests against austerity measures. Doctors and witnesses said at least 50 people had been killed since the start of the violence late Tuesday night, and some reports cited by Western diplomats estimated the death toll to be as high as 200.

Report: Reactor shutdown may harm defense

Washington (UPI) — Nuclear reactors at the Savannah River Plant, closed since August for safety reasons, may be out of service so long the United States will be unable to maintain all its nuclear weapons at operational readiness, The New York Times reported Sunday. Quoting senior administration officials, the newspaper said that if the two-month suspension extends for several months at the nation's only manufacturer of a vital material for nuclear warheads, the United States might be forced to start deactivating nuclear warheads.

Kip advocates campaign spending controls

Washington (UPI) — An "arms race mentality" of raising huge amounts of campaign money is cementing incumbents in office and eroding representative government by driving away challengers, a critic of campaign laws said Sunday. The problem is most critical on Capitol Hill, said Fred Wertheimer, president of the citizens lobby Common Cause, where "money becomes a vehicle for buying political influence and for creating a one-party system in Congress in which 98 percent of the House incumbents are re-elected."

Gunmen storm Long Island fraternity party

Stony Brook, N.Y. (UPI) — Several men in camouflage fatigues stormed a fraternity party on the State University campus early Sunday, firing a machine pistol and slashing at least one person with a knife, police said. Several men fitting the description of the attackers were taken into custody an hour after the 2:45 a.m. assault when police stopped the car the attackers used to drive onto the Stony Brook campus of the State University of New York, Suffolk County police said.

Technicians destroy cylinder, end evacuation

Nitro, W.Va. (UPI) — Technicians hauled a rusty 30-pound cylinder to a bunker and set off an explosion that burst off poisonous hydrogen cyanide Sunday in an operation "that went just like clockwork." Nearly half the town's residents were evacuated before the explosion. Roadblocks were dismantled about 1½ hours after the demolition operation began at noon.

Forestry club in ‘Olympics’

By Loria Roberson

SIU Forestry Club members have been in training since August practicing speed cutting, log rolling and bow sawing in preparation for the “Forestry Olympics,” said King Moore, club president.

The 4th Annual Midwestern Foresters Conclave is scheduled for Oct. 21 to 23 in Minneapolis and Moore said he feels they have an excellent team.

“We started practicing the first week after school started and I’ve seen definite improvements during the practices,” Moore said.

Moore said team members have been working on their techniques, and just before the competition they will work on speed. Fifteen to 20 members, male and female, are going to the competition, he said.

One of the competitions, the “Jack and Jill,” a two-person, cross-cut sawing, usually involves two team members of the opposite sex. If one team has a male and female for the event and the other doesn’t, the event would be forfeited, Moore said.

Some tenants do not have their deposits returned, and feel that they are kept unjustly by the landlord, Rogers said.

A good piece of advice is, “moving into a place, check everything,” Rogers said.

Property, appliances, plumbing, electrical and structural damage and the condition of the place should be carefully inspected by the tenant, he said.

Going through the dwelling with the landlord or some other witness and making a detailed itemization of the damage should be done, and the estimated or actual cost for repair work, cleaning and replacements should be paid for.

For advice concerning the returns a tenant has, the Student Legal Assistance Office of the Student Congress Union, both located on the third floor of the Student Center.

Blacks dropping out, but SIU-C is failing

ACCORDING TO a recent task force study, about 75 percent of the University’s black students drop out before graduation. If this statistic is correct, then the University is facing a serious problem.

The high drop-out rate among black students most likely can be attributed to one of two reasons, or a combination of the two: discrimination and poor elementary and high school education.

MANY OF THE black students who attend SIU-C come from the inner-cities, such as St. Louis. On the average, high school and elementary education in the inner-cities is poor, and students graduate with a lower level of education than their suburban counterparts. Some even graduate lacking certain basic skills.

BECAUSE SIU-C’s admittance standards are liberal, (which is something the University should continue), these students find it easier to be accepted here than at other major colleges.

In accepting these students, University officials must ask themselves if they are prepared to offer them adequate remedial education for the skills denied them in elementary and high school.

THE UNIVERSITY’S Center of Basic Skills offers remedial education, but the high drop-out rate indicates the program is not wholly effective. The University must realize its Basic Skills program to adequately assimilate these students to the University’s standards. The program must be strengthened so that the student doesn’t know whom the student was from each other.

For example, in a DE story on discrimination at SIU-C, a black student looking for someone in the Communications Building was told to check downstairs at WSUI. A white student didn’t know whom the student was looking for, so he sent the student to a black co-worker. The co-worker didn’t know whom the black student was looking for either.

MANY MAY NOT see this act as a form of discrimination, but it points to a classic example of race relations at SIU-C. Black students know black students and white students know white students. Rarely do black and white students interact or socialize.

One look at the Strip on Friday or Saturday night would illustrate this point. Because black and white students are not socially integrated, many black students feel a sense of alienation and feel their student activities and organizations, which are dominated mostly by white students.

BECAUSE BLACK students are, for various reasons, excluded from student activities and organizations, they must socialize among themselves and the University community, feeling they are not being accepted for discriminatory reasons. These feelings most likely are well-founded.

The University must find some way to break down racial barriers and integrate black and white students socially, academically and institutionally. They could learn a lot from each other.

Quotable Quotes

"I am just a little bit offended. Here I am, Speaker of the House, and the / couldn't get 10 people." —Jim Wright about the SIU-C College Republicans protest against his support of Pentum and while under investigation by the House Ethics Committee.

Editorial Policies

Editorials and other columns, including letters, announcements and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the executive editor, the student copy editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor. Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters should be typed, double spaced, and should give adequate reference for quotations. Submissions must be signed; signatures will be printed. Letters must identify themselves, including class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author’s address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Quayle’s grasp of economics allows foreign landlords to run America

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

a living in 30 or 55 years. But now, thanks to Quayle, I don’t worry. I know they will have jobs.

Maybe one of them will be leading the California garden of some wealthy Japanese family. Another might be working behind the counter of a sushi house, slicing up those dear fish. Or, when the Japanese achieve their ultimate goal of owning all our golf courses, I might have a grandchild fortunate enough to know the greens and rake the traps.

See? The American dream lives on.

What a sense of relief I felt, knowing that being up to our ears in foreign debt has made us the envy of the world.

SOMETHING SENS. Dan Quayle cheerfully said during that soaring load of worry from my mind.

It came after Sen. Lloyd Bentsen pointed out that under the Reagan administration, we have become the number one debtor nation in the world.

As Bentsen said: "They’ve foreclosed national banks the percent of the manufacturing basis. They’ve borrowed 20 percent of the banks. They’ve 16 percent of the banks.

AND A FEW moments later, one of the panelists said: "Last week a top official of the Japanese Economic Planning Agency bragged that the Japanese are in a position to influence the value of the dollar, of our interest rates, and even our stock prices, and he warned that maybe they’d turn off the tap."

As a card-carry member of the stay out of debt movement, I’ve always believed that if you spend more than you make, someday the landlord might put your furniture out on the sidewalk.

AND I’VE also believed that if a business buys more merchandise than it sells, either somebody else winds up owning that business or the doors close.

But then Quayle focused his keen economic vision on this question. He said: "I would rather have people come over here and to make investments in this country rather than going elsewhere, because by coming over here and making investments in this country, he’s doing a very big thing.

Do you realize that today we are producing Hondas and exporting Hondas to Japan and perhaps they’d turn off the tap?"

What a sense of relief I felt, knowing that bring up to us dollars in foreign goods have made us the envy of the world.

Because I don’t have Quayle’s grasp of economics, there are still a few things I don’t understand about our being the envy of the world.

For example, I can see that it is good if Americans have jobs making Hondas and shipping them to Japan, since that means those Americans draw paychecks from the Honda Corp.

However, the profits from these cars go to Honda, which makes the Japanese company richer, which means it can buy more American banks, industry, and real estate and have more leverage over our economy.

So, in my ignorance, it would seem better if Americans were making Pentum or Ford and selling them to Japan or Korea. That way, American workers would still be drawing paychecks, but General Motors and Ford would make the profits, which would be passed along to Americans who held stock in the companies.

When these stockholders could buy American real estate and American-made products, or put their money in banks owned by Americans or invest in stocks of American-owned companies that would manufacture 40 years ago, so why can we sell to other countries?

I recall, that’s the way we used to do it. But maybe we were being economic foot-dummies in those days.

NO, QUAYLE has the right idea. Let our debt pile up so that the Japanese, the Arabs and everybody else can come in ad buy up the whole country on the cheap.

Quayle is no dummy. He’s surely realized that our highways are crumbling and crowded, our bridges are sagging, our industries are outdated, and cities are falling to ruin. And maybe he has the money to get them in shape.

So what we’re a colony and foreign countries own us 100 percent, ha-ha, the joke’s on them. They’ll be stuck with all the repair bills. And if they don’t do the job right, we can haul them into Housing Court and against landlords.

And what can they do about it — evict us? Do you realize how many sheriffs’ deputies it would take to put the furniture of 240 million people out on the sidewalk?

NOW I MUST go. I’m taking a night school course in the cheapest art of making those little bonni trees. My old man always said a person should have a trade in fall back on.

Oh, one more thing. About all those Hindus Quayle said we’ve started making and shipping to Japan?

During the first six months of this year, we shipped 2,630 Hondas and added to our list. They also let us sell them 3,527 American cars.

But in 1987, the Japanese shipped 2,191,797 of their cars to this country.

Boy, are we on a roll.

Wright also is under investigation for royalties he received from a book he staff alighted.

John Hopkins, a former senior in finance, said, "We really don't understand why Posthard would like to align himself with Wright.

Georgeann Hartzog, spokeswoman for the Latin America Solidarity Committee, said of the CIA's instigation of antigovernment protests in Nicaragua, "Our CIA should not be engaging in those kinds of activities."

Wright said he is comfortable with Posthard's stands on certain issues, which are considered to be Democratic mainstream.

Wright defended Posthard's certain differences with the Democratic Party, saying "(the Democratic Party) don't have any organized claque."

Referring to Posthard's antibiased stance Wright said the CIA issue is "not a party position. That's a personal choice."

Wright said of Posthard: "I'm impressed with his credentials, with what he's done, not just what he said."

On Thursday, Patrick Kelly, the Republican candidate for Congress, said that campaign favors to Jim Wright is not a good way to become a strong voice in the House."

She considered Bennett's "You've got Jack Kennedy" remarks "unreal for and an effort by the Democratic to mark up ground in the debate. "Dan Quayle did not compare himself with Jack Kennedy. He said he had more experience than Jack Kennedy," she said.

Marilyn Quayle said her husband was "in complete control of the debate" and did exactly what he planned to do. "He was able to point out the areas of Michael Dukakis that are out of touch with mainstream America," she said.

"We need new leadership. We need new ideas to deal with the new technology in this fast-paced world."

Marilyn Quayle described George Bush's choice of her husband as a "bold move" and one that "certainly isn't hurting the ticket."

She said Quayle's stay in the National Guard "is not an issue" and said it was his attempt by "lazy reporters" to create a story from rumors.

Some events, such as tobacco splitting, don't require physical fitness, but Moore said most of the events require body conditioning, such as the log-rolling event.

"It's a dreadful event," Moore said. "It's a lackluster and it's tiring.

The log-rolling event consists of team members maneuvering a log on a course by walking on top of it. Moore said, "It's not the kind that you usually see where the log at in the water," he said. "Only the professionals do that event."

Another event with potential danger is the bolt-throw, which is similar to javelin competition. A 6-foot log that weighs about 30 pounds is thrown for distance, Moore said. "Three men on deck can throw the log at least 27 feet, he said.

Aviation students could get training-site choice

By Jon Maguire
Staff Writer

The SIU-C aviation program could soon make an agreement with TWA for an internship program.

The program already offers an internship with United Airlines to qualified students. Capt. William H. Traub, vice president of TWA's Flight Standards and Training, will come to the University for a banquet and seminar sponsored by the Aviation Management Society Oct. 11.

TWA will return Oct. 17 to see what the University has to offer and possibly agree to a program similar to the one with United.

"During the second semester of their junior year and first semester of their senior year, the students are prepared from a flight standpoint to help them apply for the program to go out to Denver," Dave NewMyer, coordinator of Aviation Management and Recreation, said. NewMyer is the student coordinator of TWA's Flight Standards and Training, will go to Denver for two or three weeks. During this period, they are given a tour of the facilities, ground school training on one of United's airplanes, a simulator ride in the plane they are studying and a job interview to get firsthand knowledge of what United is looking for.

If students successfully complete their training, they are invited back for a full semester to work as an administrative assistant to a flight manager. The flight managers are in charge of training on United's airplanes.

"The requirements for acceptance into the program are very stiff," NewMyer said. Students must be certified pilots and be licensed to fly multi-engined airplanes.

"Airway Science said, Denver is the location of one of United's flight centers. When students are selected they go to Denver for two or three weeks. During this period, they are given a tour of the facilities, ground school training on one of United's airplanes, a simulator ride in the plane they are studying and a job interview to get firsthand knowledge of what United is looking for. If students successfully complete their training, they are invited back for a full semester to work as an administrative assistant to a flight manager. The flight managers are in charge of training on United's airplanes.

"The requirements for acceptance into the program are very stiff," NewMyer said. Students must be certified pilots and be licensed to fly multi-engined airplanes. They also must be licensed as commercial pilots and instrument pilots, which means being able to fly in bad weather. Almost all of the students sent to Denver have had at least 300 or more hours of flight, NewMyer said.

A career expectations seminar will be held Oct. 12 to brief students on the cooperative program with United. The application period for the program also will be opened.

"I expect TWA to ask us a lot of questions about what we are doing with United," NewMyer said. "They will probably do something similar to what we are doing with United, but they will probably do some things a little different."

One of the advantages of a deal with TWA is their flight center is located in St. Louis. This deal would also give students a choice of training sites, NewMyer said.

"What this is all about is the students getting jobs. That is what we want for our students. We want them to be technically trained and happy," he said.
Police Blotter

Ronnie Allen, 23, of Town and Country Trailer Court, was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance Saturday morning, Carbondale Police reports said.

Allen was stopped for a traffic offense in the 100 block of East Walnut Street at 12:46 a.m. Police found Allen's driver's license was suspended and while processing, drugs were discovered in the vehicle, according to the report.

Allen was taken to Jackson County Jail, according to the report.

Carolyn A. Wilson, 39, of 420 E. Oak St., was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance Saturday morning, Carbondale Police reports.

According to the report, Wilson's was stolen from her residence sometime before 7:15 p.m. Oct. 6. Loss was estimated at $250, according to Carbondale Police reports.

Simpson E. Zelitch, 26, of 406 W. Elm St., reported a portable Panasonic AM-FM cassette player was stolen from his residence between 10:30 p.m. and midnight Friday. Value of the item was listed at $100, according to Carbondale Police reports.

Simone E. Zelitch, 26, of 406 W. Elm St., reported a portable Panasonic AM-FM cassette player was stolen from her residence between 10:30 p.m. and midnight Friday. Value of the item was listed at $100, according to Carbondale Police reports.

Kelly D. Thomas, 21, of 516 W. Elm St., was arrested and charged with identity stolen from her residence sometime before 7:15 p.m. Oct. 6. Loss was estimated at $250, according to Carbondale Police reports.

Women's task force sets agenda

By Jon Maguire
Staff Writer

The newly appointed chairwoman of the University Women's Professional Advancement Committee, Dr. Uma Sekaran, said she is eager to start her new position and already has made a list of things she would like the committee to tackle.

One item on her agenda is the reinstatement of an internship that was canceled two years ago because of lack of funds. The internship allowed one or two women to be trained in the administration or president's office. Now that funds are available, the internship will be offered next fall.

The committee also is working on the revision of the sexual harassment policy. The revision has been completed and is being reviewed by the different constituencies. If it is approved it will become policy.

Other topics on the agenda include salary equity, placing more women in administrative positions, recruiting more women faculty and creating a job bank from the surrounding area to help the spouses of prospective employees find jobs.

The committee is made up of 18 people, six of whom were chosen by Sekaran. She has added four people from three different constituencies: civil service, administrative personnel and students.

"Everyone will be equal on the committee," Sekaran said.

IBM
Poll: Bush leads big in South

United Press International

A poll of 15 Southern states published Sunday found Republican George Bush apparently has locked up Dixie but race-watchers said Democrat Michael Dukakis still can build momentum by speaking to uncertainties about the economy.

With less than a month before the Nov. 8 general election, the poll by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution also showed that Democrats who left their party in 1980 and 1984 for Ronald Reagan are clinging to their seats.

The results, save for Bush, look Sunday off, the Republican nominee visited the Chicago suburb of Cicero, Ill., for the Houby Day parade—an annual celebration of the mushroom.

Though heavily Democratic Cicero's sizable population of Eastern European immigrants voted for Reagan in 1984, Bush, in warm remarks, told the thousands gathered for the parade: "None of us will ever forget there is no freedom in Eastern Europe and I have pledged as president to never forget that.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, rode in the parade on the back of a fire truck and he smiled at a group of people holding up signs for the Democratic ticket. One sign said, "Hey George, I went from snowshoer to junior. Is that how you have created jobs?"

The coming week could provide a watershed event, as Bush and Dukakis square off in their second debate. On Thursday or Friday, depending on scheduling for the Major League Baseball playoffs—the candidates meet in Los Angeles to take up where they left off Sept. 25, their first debate of the campaign.

Bush campaign chief of staff Craig Fuller said the vice president met Sunday morning with Richard Darman, a key aide to campaign Chairman James Baker, for debate preparation. Dukakis posed as Daikakas in mock debates with Bush before the Sept. 25 showdown.

With time running out on the campaign clock, Democratic pollster Peter Hart told NBC's "Meet the Press" that Dukakis can tighten the race against the Republican because voters "haven't learned to love George Bush."

Hart and pollster Kevin Phillips also said Dukakis can capitalize on impressions from Wednesday's vice presidential debate.

Emotional surge carries Eastern

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

CHARLESTON — Don’t ask Eastern Illinois coach Bob Spoo about preparations, conditioning or strategies because of the 50-year-old coach said the Panthers’ 36-5 rout of the Salukis was the result of an emotional outburst by his team.

“We were on an emotional high tonight,” said Spoo, whose team was looking for a Gateway Conference victory after losing a 42-13 decision to Indiana State the week before.

Eastern Illinois (4-2 overall, 2-1 conference) stays in the thick of the conference race because of the win. The Panthers play league-leading Western Illinois (6-4, 6-0) on Saturday.

“I think it’s an attitude, an emotion,” Spoo said. “I just tried to make the guys believe that things can happen if they stick together for 66 minutes.”

Spoo said the biggest turnaround in confidence came from sophomore wide receiver Ralph Stewart, who set a career-motion of 201 yards receiving. Prior to this game Stewart was struggling. In the five previous outings he amassed only 156 yards total.

“We’ve been trying to raise his self-esteem,” Spoo said.

Stewart traced his success — which included two touchdown receptions of 76- and 39-yards — to execution rather than emotion.

“I felt that this game right here was a good chance to come out,” Stewart said. “I really tried to keep my mind on running those route techniques. I disciplined myself.

In all, Eastern Illinois dominated the Salukis, piling up 429 yards of total offense to the Salukis’ 288.

yards a game.

“I tried to go in and keep my mind working,” came out with my head screwed on straight. It is pretty easy to run a slot,” Saluki defensive coordinator Jim Tompkins said Stewart played a good game, but the defense played him incorrectly.

“He is a good athlete and receiver, but we didn’t play him correctly,” Tompkins said. “We weren’t ready mentally, and didn’t play techniques like we are supposed to play them.”

Rhoades said the Salukis tried to mix things up against Stewart, but failed to ever contain him.

“We tried not to give him the same thing more than one occasion,” Rhoades said. “We obviously didn’t do the job.”

Salukis quarterback Fred Gibson, who completed eight of 17 attempts for just 66 yards, said the Panthers did what they set out to do.

“They came out to whip our butts and that is about what they did,” Gibson said. “They had a great offensive scheme and also had great defense. We did not get the ball outside like we wanted.”

Gibson said his knee, which was swollen most of last week and a source of concern, was not a factor in his play.

Rhoades said his team will now shoulder the task of picking out something good from the remaining carnage.

“We did not play a physical game. It is not ever good to play like this, but we will try to find something good that came out of it.”

Men's cross country wins second; Cornell deciding league runners

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The men's cross country team took a step Saturday toward deciding who would compete for the Salukis in the Missouri Valley Conference Championships this season.

In the process, the Salukis' finished second in a five-team meet, behind the performance of their second-string runners.

The meet was held in Murray, Kentucky, home of the Murray State Racers. It was a last minute addition to the Salukis' 1988 schedule.

The meet was held in Murray, Kentucky, home of Murray State Racers. It was a last minute addition to the Salukis' 1988 schedule.

Coach Bill Cornell was giving his younger runners, whom haven't competed so far this season, a chance to build confidence. "I was pretty happy with their performance," Cornell said. "It gives the younger kids a chance to build confidence."

Cornell said he wanted his younger runners, many of whom haven't competed so far this year, to be able to run and see just what they could do in a competitive setting. "This race will give our younger runners a good booster heading toward the end of the season," Cornell said. "The purpose of this meet was to help round out the team and decide who would run later in the conference championships."

CUU-C runners fared well in the competition, placing five runners in the top 20. Paul Burkinehead lead the way with a third-place finish with a time of 36:26 followed by Mark Stuart who was eighth in 36:31, Paul Glanville 12th in 37:22, Craig Steele 13th in 37:26 and Edwin Taylor 19th in 37:30, a full minute ahead of his previous best. Mike Danner and Brett Garrett also finished strong for the Salukis. Danner was 23rd in 32:38, and Garrett was 28th in 32:36.

Cornell said Glanville and Steele are the leading candidates to fill the last two spots.

Women's tennis rebounds from loss by beating Aces

Minus two of its veteran players, the women's tennis team took a beating this weekend against Louisville, 2-4, but returned the favor against Evansville, 6-1. The Salukis defeated the Aces, 5-1.

Panthers wallop football team, 34-3

By David Galliastelli

Charleston — Eastern Illinois coach Bob Spoo knew his team would get back on the winning track eventually. He just had no idea it would do so well.

"I believed we could win, but I had no idea we could keep them out of the end zone," Spoo said following the Panther's 34-0 loss to the Salukis Saturday.

SIU-C coach Rick Rhoades said the Panthers were obviously prepared for the Salukis' arrival.

"The bottom line is they were ready to play and we weren't," Rhoades said. "We have got to get ...are prepared during the week. I didn't feel we had the best of weeks.

"We were never able to break through anything. That was the real key to the ballgame. We got our tails whipped." The Salukis are now 3-2 overall, 1-2 in the Gateway Conference.

The Salukis' lone score came in the first quarter on a 27-yard field goal by freshman John Bookout. The Panthers' defense slipped SIUC for the remainder of the contest.

"Panther right end John Jurkovic played a great game and (right tackle Jeff Bokson) was not too far behind him," Rhoades said. "You don't accept it, you don't like it, but you don't commit suicide either." Eastern Illinois was led by sophomore quarterback Eric Arnold and sophomore wide receiver Ralph Steward. Arnold passed for a career high 280 yards, hitting 12 of 21 attempts.

The Salukis' pass-rush never caused Arnold, saying them to throw for two-touchdowns and rush for another.

"You can't give anyone that much credit," Rhoades said.

Steward, an honorable mention All-American last season, had a career-high 201 receiving yards.

"I was in a slump the last couple of weeks, I should say," Rhoades said. "I just worked on technique and got open for the coverage I was getting. I gave it another shot and came into the contest averaging 19 yards per catch.

The chance to turn the field hockey team's season around was postponed once again.

St. Louis spoiled the Salukis' home opener 2-0 at Stele Field on Friday.

The loss was the third straight for the 3-4 Salukis, and the second at the hands of the Billikens this season.

"Our intensity on our two goals was the difference," Salukis' coach Julie Illner said. "We kept plugging away, Thomas (Pelligrine) stuck with it and put it in the cage. Pelligrine, a sophomore forward, scored on the circle on an assist by forward Julie Gerring at 7:25 of the first half.

Pelligrine's second goal came off a deflection and an assist by Jen Jorkett at 31:54 of the second half.

"We gave up too many things near the 50 yard line," said Salukis' coach Julie Illner.

"They scored off rebounds. They anticipated where we were going to clear the ball out and were putting it in. They are quick in there too much.

St. Louis had 14 shots on goal. Salukis 12.

"We're just not capitalizing as a team when we get near the goal," Illner said.

Cindy Oppermann, the Salukis' leading scorer, was moved from the inside to left wing.

Illner said the position change was designed to get the Salukis to move the ball downfield.

Panther volleyball 2nd in Southern Classic

By Lisa Warna

The volleyball team's three-year hold on the Southern Classic title was broken by Texas A&M, which took advantage of the Salukis' growing fatigue in the 2 hour marathon match Saturday.

SIU-C's Nina Brackins was named the all-tournament most valuable player for the second year in a row. Brackins had a season-high 26 kills, and added 11 digs and five block assists to her match totals.

Sue Sinclair, a senior setter, also was named to the all-tournament team. She had 47 assists and 14 digs against Texas A&M. Sophomore Amy Johnson added 13 kills for the Salukis.

Texas A&M's senior Cheri Stenstrom had 24 kills and senior Vivian Viera had 14 kills. Both were chosen for the All-Salukis.
