Story of Scopes Trial

"Inherit the Wind" Opens at 8 Tonight;
Depicts Fury Over Darwinian Evolution

"He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind."
Proverbs 11:29

Most of Southern's students would not be shocked at the mention of Darwin's "Origin of Species" in a zoology course. Nor would the teaching of evolution create a fury among the college faculty, parents or people in town.

Forty years ago, however, John Thomas Scopes, a high school teacher in Dayton, Tenn., went on trial for teaching the theory of evolution to his students.

The trial of the State of Tennessee vs. John Thomas Scopes took place in the smouldering heat of a Fourth of July celebration. The car­reel spirit that prevailed in this small Southern town af­fected the jury's mind. "Our boys will stand and fight," they said, "we will not let our children listen to any talk about man and monkeys."

This famous trial, which came to be known as the "Scopes monkey trial," was publicized as a battle between fundamentalism and modernism. It sparked an issue that continues to this day in the ques­tions of academic freedom, political opportunism and ugly bigotry. Playwrights Jerome Lawrence and Robert Edwin Lee have dramatized the trial in the play, "Inherit the Wind."

The Southern Players, in their third presentation of the summer season, will bring "Inherit the Wind" to the stage tonight through Sunday at 8 o'clock in the Southern Play­house. Under the direction of Christian H. Moe, associate professor of theater, the play will represent an incident that happened yesterday, or today or tomorrow."

Tickets for "Inherit the Wind" are available at $1.25 at the Playhouse box office. Box office hours are 10-11 a.m. and 3-4 p.m. daily and from 7-8 p.m. on show nights.

Darwin Payne has designed the stage scenery and Charles W. Zookciler, associate professor of theater, is technical director.

Cast members include Judy Mueller, Douglas Krantz, Kaye be Everett, James Palmer, Richard Westmore, Kenneth Thompson, Linda Green, Christopher Jones, Mack Travis, Macy Dorf, Max Go­ightly, Raymond Wallace, John Farrell, Douglas Wighton, David Id Selby, Ken Mueller, Ron Hearns and Ralph Bushey.

One of the most important topics on the young male col-genian's mind today is the problem of the draft, and in-particular, how to avoid it. Before some wag slaps his thighs and says "put on a pair of long johns, let's hasten to say that this is indeed a serious matter to many young men. The dictionary defines draft as

"the act of drawing into the mouth and throat a liquid, smoke, vapor or air," according to college students the best one-word definition in the draft is the "shift.

The Daily Egyptian Book Scene:

British Behavior Seen in New Light

The Major, by David Hughes, New York: Coward-McCann, Inc., 1965. 244 pp. $3.95.

This astonishing story reveals a facet of the British character that most Americans would refuse to believe. If a German novel suddenly appeared with a Major Kane as one of its principal figures, we might be a little bit taken aback by its bizarre, sometimes grotesque, and sometimes touching, portrayal of the English. As it happens, this book is written by a Swedish author who has studied the English closely. The book is a study of the English character in the post-WWII period, and it is a reflection of the author's own experiences in England.

The story is told from the point of view of a young Englishman, who is sent to the United States as a military attaché. The author makes the reader see England through the eyes of a foreigner, and the result is a very interesting and somewhat revealing picture of a country that is often difficult to understand.

The Major is a half-breed, who has spent most of his life in the United States. He is a curious and somewhat eccentric character, who is not afraid to speak his mind. The author makes him say things that are often surprising and sometimes even shocking, but they are all true to life. The Major is a very complex character, and the author does an excellent job of portraying him.

Overall, The Major is a very interesting and well-written book. It is a must-read for anyone who is interested in the British character, or who simply wants to know more about this fascinating country.
Government, Reds Regroup for New Fight

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Bloodied Viet Cong and government battalions regrouped in the face of the U.S. overhead fire in the battle of Duc Co, which is shaping up as the war's bloodiest single engagement of the summer.

U.S. planes pressed attacks back to the south of the Viet Cong border. A military spokesman announced a U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief was shot down in a raid on a bridge at Vin Tay, 90 miles northeast west of Hanoi, but the pilot was rescued.

Orleck's guns poured 200 shells into the target. Sportsmen said the results were excellent.

Vietnamese and American defenders of a besieged special forces camp at Duc Co and a large government force attempting to lift the siege have killed 219 Viet Cong since Monday, the spokesman announced. He said this was a body count, not an estimate.

The spokesman said government casualties, including American dead and wounded, so far are moderate, but added, "I describe this as moderate only because of the large number of troops involved.

A newsmen at the scene, in the central highlands 220 miles northeast of Saigon, said the bodies of 60 soldiers killed in the Viet Cong ambush of a two-mile-long government relief convoy Monday still lay along Route 19 east of Duc Co.

U.S. Jet Pilot Missing in Viet Cong Territory

After Deadly Hide-and-Seek Game with Reds

By Hornt Paas

DUc Co, South Viet Nam (AP)—Defenders of Duc Co, South Viet Cong siege area, July 6, 3, watched helplessly from sandbagged bunkers as a Monday evening flight of four U.S. Air Force F100 Super Saberes. They roared in late in the day for one of a long series of air strikes supporting government marines headed toward Duc Co from the east.

As the wild leading fighter-bomber, the second jet dived, delivered its payload of bombs, and pulled out. It gained a few thousand feet of altitude, then suddenly seemed to stop dead. It plunged down into the trees behind. After a few minutes the crackled as it labored vainly to come out of the dive.

A parachute opened and was silhouetted for more than a minute against the bright evening sky. Troops defending the outpost watched in silence as the crashing day disappeared behind a hill into jungle territory held by the Viet Cong.

There was the distant chatter of machine guns.

The last two jets in the formation, having finished their striking maneuvers, began circling over the downed pilot like birds coming to the defense of a nest.

A tiny single-engine L-19, which had been acting as forward air control for the bombing run, also circled the area, hovering close to the ground. Two F104 Starfighter jets, flown by U.S. Air Force Super Sabers joined in.

Suddenly, the downed airman darted across a clearing toward the cover of dense jungle. The L-19 pilot saw guerrillas running after him less than 500 yards away. A bunch of Viet Cong gun fire forced the observation plane to clumb.

One of the Starfighter jets roared in to disperse the pursuing guerillas with a salvo of napalm, a fire bomb made of Johnson paint, a follow-up.

It was sunset when "Puff, the Magic Dragon" appeared. This is a twin-engine DC3 that got its nickname from the first ditty to a propeller-driven automatic rocket gun attached to its belly.

"Puff" splattered the jungle with a series of bursts.

The downed pilot broke into the open again. He threw a white smoke flare to mark his position, the ducked back into the thicket.

Three U.S. armed heli­copters barreled in from the east.

Ground fire from all sides of the dense jungle became a steady chatter.

After a 10-minute flight under a rising cloud, one of the helicopters managed to land.

The crew found the pilot's "PF". When asked anxious­ly for him to show up again in the clearing, the pilot appeared. Amid rising guerrilla fire, the helicopter took off without him.

Married Men Draft-Safe For a While

SPRINGFIELD, III. (AP)—Illinois Selective service headquarters said Tuesday it will be at least three or four months before induction of married men without children may have to be considered.

John H. Hammack, state selective service director, said he did not anticipate married men will be drafted before Jan. 1, "if at all then," unless the national call is "tremendously increased."

In Illinois, there are 29,723 married men without children.

In the pool of eligible draftsmen between 19 and 29 who have not been examined are 20,000 to 25,000 men, he said.

The state draft quota for September is 2,062 men. For October it is expected to be around 2,500.

Negro Registration Is Heay Under New Federal Vote Law

By The Associated Press

Prospective Negro voters jammed the offices in three Southern states Tuesday signing up under temporary registration law.

At the same time, the Department of Justice moved to block tax returns in three states.

Both actions were to make it easier for Negroes to vote. Hundreds of Negroes turned out in Selma, Selma, the western Alabama town which became the symbol of the voting rights struggle. Others packed into the small post office in Grenada, Mississippi, one of the most recent civil rights struggles to break down.

At Canton, Miss., so many Negroes turned up at the reg­istration headquarters that some were asked to come back another day.

The voting examiners—some of them Negroes—are part of a special Justice Depart­ment team sent to nine counties in Alabama, Miss­issippi and Louisiana.

Frank Linbaugh dropped to third place with a .273 average, getting only two hits in 10 tries.

Rich Hacker and Roger Schneider are the only Saluki batters hitting above .250. Hacker went 3 for 11, which raised his average one point to .271. Schneider was in the batting lineup at seven appearances this week. The Saluki and the Illini tied for third place. St. Louis remains in second place, three games ahead of Illinois and Southern. Former SIU Golfer Wins Benton Championship

Gene Carello, former SIU golfer, won the Benton Gold Cup Golf Championship on Sunday for the second time in three years by shooting a par 144 for the 36-hole tournament.

Carello finished one stroke ahead of Jim Mitchell of Salem and was the only one of 121 starters who could match par for the 3,165-yard course. Carello shot a 68 for 18 holes Saturday, but rose to 76 Sunday. Going into the first two holes Carello was in a three-way tie with Pursis Pipes of Mt. Vernon and O-norco Gheradini of Centralia, but took one-three stroke lead by shooting a par on the 35th hole.

Pipes and Gheradini finished third and fourth respectively, Carello taking a last-minute surge to finish second.

Current SIU golfer, John Paulino of Carbondale, finished second in the Class A group with a score of 156, three strokes behind the winner, Mike Johnson of Alton, Illinois, who was instrumental in SIU’s second-place finish in the small-college tournament at Springfield, Mo., in the spring, still has two more years of college eligibility for SIU.

New 3.3-Acre Lake to Supply Water For Walnut Tree Improvement Studies

Earth-moving machines recently leveled the fill-loads of dirt from the bed of a new 3.3-acre lake to put the finishing touches on a new dam. It will impound a water supply for walnut tree improvement studies by the Carbondale Forest Research Center at SIU.

When filled, the lake will be 12-feet deep at the dam and will contain 14 acre-feet of water. The water will be used for irrigating research plots and to supply forestry greenhouses planned for the area.

The lake is on a 40-acre tract leased recently from Southern by the U. S. Forest Service for a stepped-up research program to breed and select higher and faster growing strains of black walnut trees to find better ways to manage existing walnut timber in the region. Researchers from the Center already have a plantation of walnut tree seedlings under intensive cultivation at the site. The leased tract is about two miles southeast of the SIU campus adjacent to the west side of the Federal Small Fruits Research Station.

The Center is a unit of the Central States Forest Experiment Station, Columbus, Ohio. The lake construction contract was awarded to the Graff Brothers Construction Co., of Ava.

American Fern Society Plans Meeting Here This Weekend

The American Fern Society will be meeting on campus Thursday and Saturday. The two-day meeting will be highlighted by field trips and lecture-discussion sessions. The meeting at SIU is a followup of a meeting of the American Institute of Botanical Science at the University of Illinois. The society is conducting field studies in this region because the fern is not common in the Urbana area.

Microbiology Prof To Attend Meeting

C. G. Lindgren, professor emeritus of microbiology, will attend a three-day scientific meeting in observance of the centennial of the Mendelian law of heredity, Sept. 7-10 at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins.

This session is the annual meeting of the Genetics Society of America. Known as the "father of modern genetics," Mendel has disputed Gregor Johann Mendel's law which states that acquired characteristics cannot be transmitted from one generation to the next.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Department of Botany at SIU and all events are open to the public.

An illustrated lecture entitled "Ferns and Their Distribution in Illinois" will be given at 7:45 p.m. Friday, in Muckley Auditorium in the Agriculture Building.

At the same hour and location on Saturday a lecture will be given on "Wildflowers in Southern Illinois."

On Friday and Saturday mornings at 7:30 buses will leave from the rear of the Life Science Building to travel to various locations for field studies.

Interested persons should contact Robert Mohlenbrock, acting chairman of the Department of Botany, for further details.

Facts about The Daily Egyptian

You Probably Missed A Sale Today

A buying decision was made - but a competitor got the business. Perhaps it wasn't your fault. Many factors influence buying decisions, and you can't do all the business. BUT...

Some retailers seem to forget that buying decisions are made daily.

1-way, without a doubt, somebody has concluded he will buy a new suit... a new TV set... go out to eat... redecorate his house... look for a service...

Others are thinking seriously about definite purchases... They're interested in what the market has to offer... Want to learn all they can about what they're interested in.

They read the Daily Egyptian every day... and what they see will influence their decisions as to what to buy and where to buy.

Will They See Your Advertising?

Same three hundred days a year you open your doors and wait for the customers to come. How many days a year do you advertise to attract the people you're hoping will wait for?

The easy (and inexpensive) way to reach those people is through the Daily Egyptian... they read it daily.
