The EGLOWS will celebrate their 19th Century with a 20th Century. Exhibits of 19th Century objects, paintings, and sculptures will be displayed in the newly renovated galleries of the French Institute of the French Revolution, the 19th Century contemporary art exhibition. The French Revolution is known for its dramatic events and its impact on modern society. This exhibition will explore the culture and art of the French Revolution through its visual representations and historical context.

In addition, there will be a performance by the French Institute's resident artists, who will demonstrate their techniques and share their insights into the art of the French Revolution. The artists will perform in the French Institute's newly renovated galleries, which have been transformed into a unique space for the exhibition and performance.

Throughout the event, visitors will have the opportunity to engage with the artists and learn more about the cultural significance of the French Revolution. The French Institute's resident artists will also offer guided tours of the exhibition, providing a deeper understanding of the objects and works on display.

The French Revolution was a pivotal event in history, and this exhibition offers a unique opportunity to explore its impact on contemporary art and culture. The French Institute's resident artists will share their insights into the art of the French Revolution, providing a rare glimpse into the historical context and cultural significance of this important event.

Siu Matmen Eye 7-1 Year; Great Lakes Foe

Hoping for their best season in history, Southern Illinois University is penciling in this week against Great Lakes four games.

After a decisive victory in the conference tournament at Bloomington last Sunday, the SIU men are forecast to defeat a Western team that does not have the necessary height and muscle to go up against the Salukis defense.

Rah Sepia, the Salukis' 17-year-old, will be the key to the team's success.

If Sepia can get the ball in and out of the backcourt quickly, the Salukis can expect to win the game.

SIU's leading scorer, John Baker, will be out for the season.
