Terri Clark: quiet, likable girl

Terri Clark, 19, of 617 N. Allyn St., was discovered about 9:30 a.m. Monday. Police are continuing the investi- nation into the death of Cary Lee Reischauer, 79, of 417 N. Allyn St.

Friends of Theresa M. Clark, the SIU graduate student found dead in her apartment Monday morning, died of multiple stab wounds, Don Ragsdale, Jackson County Coroner, said Tuesday.

The nude body of Ms. Clark, who lived at Ambassador Apartments, No. 20, was discovered about 9:30 a.m. Monday by her roommate.

Police also are continuing the investigation into the death of Cary Lee Reischauer, 79, of 417 N. Allyn St. Ragsdale said death apparently was caused by asphyxiation. He said Mrs. Reischauer's assailant or assailants gagged her with a nylon stocking. Mrs. Reischauer's body was discovered by her sister, Grace Corzine, about 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Ragsdale said that in the Clark case, the body was found floating in the bathtub, and he said the body was apparen- tly dragged from the living room and placed in the tub.

Ragsdale said there was evidence of a trail of blood going out the back door of Ms. Clark's apartment.

Thomas Morgan, sophomore in political science, said he heard a scream at about 9:30 Saturday night. "I was having a late dinner when I heard a definite, loud scream come from outside my apartment. I thought somebody might be hurt so I walked outside but saw nothing. I live directly next door to her, and I think the scream came from her apartment."

"She was very quiet," Morgan's and Ms. Clark's apartment- mates are located in the first Ambas- sador apartment building east of Ace Hardware.

Police Chief George Kennedy said there were no signs of forcible entry into the apartment but "anybody could break into that apartment with nothing more than a credit card."

Kennedy said Carbondale Police are conducting an investigation and that no other agency has been called in to help. Kennedy said, "We have lots of leads, and we are investigating anything and everything pertaining to Miss Clark."

"She had a lot of friends, and was extremely well-liked," Kennedy said.

Asked about a possible motive, Ken- nedy said, "no comment." "The evidence we do have is being sent to the Federal Crime Lab in Washington D.C.," he said.

Kennedy said people have stated they heard screams on various days at various times in the area of Clark's apartment but, "We don't know if they have anything to do with this case."

"We have a lot of statements from a lot of people and everything said doesn't necessarily pertain to this case," Kennedy said.

"We have some leads that could be dead ends, and some that may turn out to be case-breakers" he said.

Funeral services for Mrs. Reischauer will be held at Van Natta-Merith, 300 S. University, at 2:00 p.m. today, with the Rev. Myron Dillon of the University Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Masonic Cemetery, Cypress, Ill.

Coroner releases report

Stab wounds caused coed's death

Road improvements possible for area

Potential benefits for Southern Illinois are in Dan Walker's proposed $4.1 billion Public Works program, which will be in the form of construction work, Tim Ren, press aide to Walker, said Tuesday.

Ren outlined road improvement projects that would be paid for if the General Assembly approves Walker's plan. Action by the legislators is expected early next month.

A total of 50 miles of roads will be improved in Southern Illinois. Ren said, if the program is passed. Included in that is work on U.S. 11 from Carbondale to DuQuoin which would cost $21 million.

"Construction has been the hardest hit," Ren said, talking about the high unemployment rate among construction workers. "For every job you create in construction you create another job in the community." Ren said, explaining that, as more are able to work in construction, more will be spending money in the community.

Another major facet of the program which will directly affect Southern Illinois is that area banks and real estate developers will be given money to loan to those wanting to build single-family dwellings at modest income apartments.

Ren said that those interested in applying for assistance under the plan will fill out an application and will be given one to three opportunities as those in the northern part of the state. The money will be distributed through the Illinois Housing Development Authority, Ren said. Through this effort, more will be created in the construction of new homes.

Other road improvement projects planned in the proposal include the resurfacing of Illinois 14 from Ziegler to Herrin at a cost of $130,000, and the widening and resurfacing of Illinois 127-1 from Jonesboro to Eolus costing $5.5 million.

Ren said eight bridges on U.S. 34 between Benton and Harrington are among 23 "dangerous" bridges also to be repaired under the program.

Fifteen million dollars or more will be spent from a state authorized sewer grant." Ren said, and added that the Southern Illinois Airport would receive $5 million in federal grants if approved.

Representatives from the 50th District said they need to study the proposal before deciding how they will vote on it. Rep. Bruce Rich mond, Murphysboro, said he needs to look over it and study it.

Rep. Dwayne Comptroller George Lindberg which said the taxpayers would be paying from $200 million to $300 million a year for the next 25 years paying for the program.

He said he will push for the program if he thinks Southern Illinois will be treated fairly, and said that the program will include help for SIU: "If we don't have anything for SIU in it I'll be disappointed," he said.

Rep. View Birchler, D-Dexter, said he also wants to see a student bill of rights: "We'll have to have the help of the north of Illinois (fanners from northern Illinois) and they'll have to have the help of the south," he said. "We have to look at the whole package to see that we're getting a fair shake. Before I commit my vote I want to see what the package looks like for the southern area."

Sen. Fred Dunn, D-DuQuoin, said that they'll come to pass in time. He has to have priorities. If every contract for (the program for the students) were authorized it would take two or three years for them to come about.

He added that he didn't think the legislature would buy the program.

ACLU enters Peoria massage battle

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union joined Tuesday a battle against a controversial new city massage parlor ordinance, saying the law is unconstitutional.

The ACLU criticized the law in a brief filed during a court hearing on a suit which seeks to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional.

The law in effect bans sexual massages at massage parlors and has been challenged by two parlor operators and a parlor employee.

"Insofar as it makes that kind of massage a crime it's unconstitutional," said Steve Beckett, an attorney representing the operators.

The law was passed last September but its enforcement delayed pending a court challenge. The Yellin's and City Director list more than a dozen establishments and individuals offering massages in Peoria. That's nearly double the number of a decade ago and about one for every 10,000 city residents.

The kind of massage the city seeks to ban is not against state law. But police have expressed concern that some of the parlors are using a cover as a prostitution.

Price says military request to be cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Melvin Price, the top Democrat of the House Armed Services Committee, says President Ford's military spending request will be cut, and he calls public hearings should be good for the CIA, not bad.

Further, the Illinois Democrat said in an interview, if House Democrats adopt a policy of cutting defense spending $10 billion, for example, he would feel obliged to try to do that.

Price said he has not changed his support for a strong national defense, but he said he wants to change the impression that the three top Senate and House intelligence committee chairmen are too sympathetic with the Pentagon.

You have to convince your colleagues you're interested in the role of Congress rather than the role of the military," Price said.

Oil tariff confrontation predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democratic leaders admitted Tuesday they cannot act in time to prevent President Ford's proposed oil import tariff from taking effect on Saturday.

Ford, meanwhile, rejected a new appeal from the Democrats for a 90-day delay in the imposition of the oil tariff, which would begin pushing gasoline and heating oil prices upward within a matter of weeks.

Truck firm joins rebate list

DETROIT (AP) — Fruehauf Corp., one of the nation's largest truck trailer manufacturers, said Tuesday it is offering a $180 cash rebate or $150 in U.S. Savings Bonds to any employee who buys an auto that worded with the company.

Fruehauf, with 30,000 U.S. employees, said it hopes the rebates "will stimulate new car sales and help the automobile industry and the entire economy get the economy moving again."

Dress codes? Curfews? Closed campuses?

At SIU and other state institutions, yes. At Oral Roberts University (ORU), they're barely even faded there. As to how many people walk in here at the beginning of the year and just say, "Here am, what are you going to do for me?" Too many students have to answer, "Up in our pockets ready to hand out. They get use up because they therer are running to give them a runaround, he said."

Sullivan considering second term; calls first term an "education"

By Joe Karntman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Sullivan, Assistant Director of Student Work for Student Life, said Monday that he is thinking about running for a second term.

Sullivan said he considered running for the first term first. However, he said the major accomplishments of his first term are the decreased rental rates in the Student Center and the creation of an honor program. He also said he would like to work on his minor in education.

"I want to keep working on the programs that we have already started," Sullivan said.

Financial pinch eases; short-term loans available

By Jim Murphy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The financial pinch that temporarily froze the availability of SIU short-term emergency loans last week has eased, according to Dejarnett, assistant director of the Office of Student Work and Special Projects.

Dejarnett said the Office of Student Work and Special Projects had originally thought it would have to freeze the short-term loans altogether to meet the financial pinch.

"The Office of Student Work and Special Projects is still able to continue to make financial loans," Dejarnett said.

An informal check of a half-dozen of the area's dentists shows the average cost of a routine visit to be $15. Increases in this routine visit would be an examination, X-rays and teeth cleaning. Drilling and possible extraction, or anyone of numerous other services, vary in price, depending on the nature and severity of the work. It is because of this high cost, while not unmanageable by today's standards, that we support the recent revelations that SIU students might be in store for free dental service under the auspices of the Health Service.

The announcement came from Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne's office. Although he said the program is merely now being considered, Swinburne revealed that financing would probably come from funds left in the Health Service's operating budget. This potential reserve, assuring against the need for additional outside funding, obligates the University to do everything possible to implement the program.

Some estimates of the surplus in the Health Service budget run as high as $100,000—although Health Service officials have been reluctant to list specific figures because they are understandably wary about what might happen between now and end of the fiscal year.

According to Swinburne's statements, most of the work would be done by students at the School of Technical Careers (STC) and interns from SIU-E's dental program. This would provide valuable experience for future dentists and supposedly students with much needed care for their teeth.

With money as tight as it is, students often neglect this hygiene measure until they can afford it after graduation, leaving their teeth to deteriorate. Dental work invariably rests at the bottom of students' priorities.

Many full-time students pay their $32.25 semester health fee and seldom utilize the services offered.

The fact that the Health Service might have funds left over in its operating budget should not produce critics pressing for future work to be done by either the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) staff, or the state government.

Health is a top priority and service should be improved and expanded whenever possible. It is not a contradiction to support a spending program here, while the rest of the university's economy is suffering, since this money has already been locked-in for student health services.

Know your cards, play 'em right
By John Cunniff
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Do you tend to think of all those shiny plastic cards in your wallet as credit cards? If you do, you fail to recognize a distinction the convenience card people would like you to know about.

Pressured by rising prices, many consumers are using all their cards as automatic credit devices, which some of them are. But the convenience card people say theirs aren't, and they're fed up about the situation.

"If people need credit they should use a bank card," said R. Newell Lusby, chairman and president of Diners Club which, along with American Express and Carte Blanche, offers a convenience, or travel and entertainment, card.

"If you have credit, and need convenience, they should come to us," he continued, attempting to point out the difference between a bank card, which is a credit device, and his card, which he says isn't. The bill for a convenience card is due in full when rendered, he explained. A bank card permits you to pay your bill over a period of time, charging you interest on unpaid balance.

When a customer uses a convenience card as a credit card—that is, extend his payments over several months instead of paying in full when the bill is presented—he forces the card company to borrow from a bank.

This, of course, is expensive, and that's why the convenience card people are cracking down on deadbeats. "You don't create any additional financial capacity by using my card," said Lusby. "We're not a new credit facility.

He goes further: "Most people probably shouldn't buy things that are not clearly within their means to pay for.

Just what is the convenience? Mainly the assurance you can transact business without cash almost anywhere and, in addition, have monthly records for accounting and tax purposes.

The convenience cards derive their income from a combination of merchant discounts and membership fees. Bank cards have small merchant discounts but rely heavily on revolving credit charges.

The convenience cards discourage use of their cards as revolving credit vehicles because they don't charge interest. The bank card people encourage credit because they do. Some even offer lines of credit in the thousands of dollars.

For these reasons you might find your bank card people encouraging you to borrow, while Lusby is doing his best to discourage it. He helps banks, it hurts the convenience cards.

One man's meat is another's poison
We do our best to bring Daily Egyptian readers news from the SIU community. As with all news reporting organizations, there are certain inherent obstacles involved.

For one, it is a characteristic of human nature that people doing unscrupulous things are not going to tell the world about them. But, even greater problem, for there are few good techniques with which to overcome it, is what I call the "I'm sorry, he's out" practice.

The following is a fictionalized, but accurate, account of such a problem. Only the names and titles have been changed to protect the.

A student journalist, dreaming of a scandal uncovering exposure to catapult to media stardom, calls a campus administrator, hoping to get lucky. The phone barely rings once, giving the naive reporter the illusion that "these people are going to cooperate.

"Vice President for Deception and Building Things Nobody Wants," a female voice answers. (All these guys have female secretaries.) "Can I help you?"

"Yes. My name is Riff Raf and I work for the Daily Dirt. I'd like to find out why the university is building a $6 million dome to isolate it from the outside world. I need to talk to Mr. PutOn before 3 p.m."

"I'm sorry, but Mr. PutOn has a meeting today. And he has one after that and one after that and then he has to travel to Sameo to meet with the Governor. We are thinking of starting a sister-university there."

"Hmm. I see. ah, is there anyone else I can talk to about that dome?"

"Yes. Certainly. Mr. P.B. Tool, the executive under-assistant-secretary to the Vice President will be glad to talk to you. Hold on please."
Peron unified struggling Argentina

Editor’s note: In yesterday’s installment, the author chronicled the forces which would lead to the Peron presidency in 1973. Today, he explains that elections and the military uniform and offers some insight into the Argentinean nature.

By Ricardo Caballero Aquino

Last of a two-part series

President Lanusse decided to “catch the bull by its horns,” as he put it, and remove Peron from the political arena. Peron, however, was not to be dissuaded. He continued to mobilize his supporters and prepare for future elections. Despite Lanusse’s efforts, Peron remained a powerful force in Argentine politics.

The 25th of May, 1973

A nice, bright day (a “monotone Day”, in the jargon) earmarked the ceremony of installing Campora as his party’s candidate. Campora, campaigning under the motto “Campora, the Power to Peron,” was elected the same night, students and workers joining forces in the streets to celebrate.

The next day, the Navy band parading in Buenos Aires for the last of a two-part series in the War of the Jargon) earmarked the ceremony of installing Peron in power. The populace grow angry bitler, and tired of anything to do with Peron, and his party’s campaign promises, particularly the extreme right—who, praying to the contrary, use the same methods as its counterparts.

Once again, the democratic hopes of Latin America have to wait. Argentina is the example of how a people can recover its rights, especially if confronted with the dictates of the right. The Brazilian military men, who seek economic development at the cost of individuals’ freedoms. Of course, not everything has already been lost in Argentina, but skepticism has replaced hope. As in a Greek tragedy, we know the denouement but we do not walk away from the theater till the very end.

It’s not a waste of time

The following letter is in response to a recent column in the Daily Egyptian.

To the Daily Egyptian:

I have been following the War of the Masses which has been raging for some time now. A lot has been written about the Bible and the Constitution, about sexual pleasure, and the like. Therefore, I’d like to approach the question from a somewhat different perspective.

Assuming that the sole purpose of the parors was to cater to the sexes, we cannot deny that the man receives sexual pleasure, since that is, after all, what he paid for. However, the masseuse cannot technically be considered a professional because there is no professionalization of sexual similarity.

My dear Mr. Kriczemen, in his book “One” he wrote about the conversion of the parors to total prostitution, but, as a feminist, I have to object to their current operations. It is a classic example of a situation designed only to satisfy the male sexual ego, without having to worry about being a responsible partner in an emotional relationship. In other words, he needs the deprofessionalization of a business transaction. And, while the women who frequent the parors may claim to be more liberated than the women in professional careers, the computer is just a machine that does what people tell it to do. If the program it uses is badly designed and the instructions processes are incorrect, that is the fault of the woman who wrote the programs and fed the incorrect information. If the system designers and users are idiots, the computer can’t be held responsible.

“Fiddler on the Roof” comes to Carbondale

By Deborah Steger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tevye, his five marriageable daughters and wonderfully patient roost are on their way to Carbondale. After seven years, 3,341 Broadway performances, 10 Tony awards and resonating international acclaim, “Fiddler on the Roof,” will be performed at SIU’s Shryock Auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. Winner of both New York Drama Critics’ Best Musical Award, the original direction and choreography by Jerome Robbins has been reproduced by Richard Alman and Diana Baffa for the National Touring Production. The professional touring cast includes Bob Carroll recreating the role of Tevye which brought him much recognition. Carroll has had previous starring roles in “Guys and Dolls” and “Silk Stockings,” and the title role in “Fiorello.” He has also appeared on major network talk shows and is the winner of an Emmy Award for best variety show of the season which he hosted on WGN.

“Fiddler on the Roof,” is based on the stories of Sholem Aleichem, a Yiddish storyteller who wrote between 1898 and 1938. Although Aleichem wrote almost 50 years ago, his topics still strike a chord today. The character of Tevye is an example of Aleichem’s ability to communicate with people of all walks of life. The weight of the world seems to rest on the shoulders of this poor Jewish dairyman.

Foremost in Tevye’s mind is getting his five daughters married off. According to tradition, the marriages must be arranged by a matchmaker and the jue in the Russian village of Anatevka is Vent. She is an ugly and rather punctilious old woman whose marriage choices seldom match with those of Tevye’s daughters. She arranges for the oldest daughter Tzeitel to marry Lazar Wolf, a rich butcher who is quite older than Tzeitel. Instead, she is in love with a poor tailor and rejects Wolf to marry this objectionable young man. There is another daughter who will not even pay attention to Tevye’s attempts to arrange a marriage for her, and instead simply announces her engagement to a young revolutionary. A third daughter, Chavilah, totally renounces her heritage by running away to marry a Russian gentile.

It is no wonder that Tevye finally asks of “his God,” “It’s true that you choose marriageable roost for a woman in a world that can’t you chose someone suitable for a good daughter, as well as the underlying morals and turmoils of the times. You may have some of Tevye’s conversations with “his God.”

Some great songs have come from Tevye’s “remarkable score, with music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick. Among them is the duet sung by Richard Maltman, Matchmaker, Matchmaker,” “Tevye’s hit-sweet, lamented “Sunrise, Sunset,” and the humorous “If I Were a Rich Man.”

Tickets for “Fiddler on the Roof” are available at the Central Ticket Office, SIU Student Center through 4 p.m. Thursday. Admission is $4.50, $3, $4.50 for the general public and $3, $4 and free for SIU students and high school age people accompanied by their parents.

City Council gives ok for new building

By Mary Whiter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale City Council members voice no objection to locating an SIU Employees Credit Union building at the corner of Mill and Rawlings Street.

But in order to locate there, the Union would need to obtain a zoning change from High Density Residential to Professional Administrative Office, light commercial zone.

At an informal meeting Monday night, Council members Helen Westberg, Archie Jones, Clark Vineyard and Ron Fischer expressed concern that a zoning change would open the door to other zoning requests.

Fischer said that if the zoning change is granted a precedent may be set for further re-zoning cases, which he said may turn the neighborhood into a commercial area.

The SIU Credit Union is now located at 903 W. Whitney. The Union is in need of more space according to James Siminet, treasurer-manager of the Union.

Architects studying the possibility of a governmental center building, new library, and off street parking facilities indicated that the present plans need to be expanded to meet all future parking and space needs. The Council gave the Field, Goldman and Magee firm of Mt. Vernon authorization to continue planning for the larger site.

Westberg said she would not favor the creation of a downtown governmental center building because the city seemed to be functioning well at its present facilities in University City.

Functioning is more important than the image,” Westberg said.

In another action the Council heard a progress report on the railroad relocation project. A public informational hearing is scheduled for Feb. 10, during the City Council meeting at 7 p.m. in the University City Cafeteria.

Visiting dance therapist conducting workshops

One of the main forces in dance therapy in America, Mildred Dickinson, is visiting SIU this week to give workshops and observe classes, according to Lenny Gordon, assistant professor of theater.

Dickinson arrived in Carbondale on Monday, and will end her visit Wednesday afternoon after teaching a Dance History class and observing a ballet class. Since her arrival, Dickinson has taught dance therapy, composition and English country dance workshops. Gordon said.

Currently working at the Egin State Hospital, 86-year-old Dickinson works with physically and mentally handicapped people. According to Gordon, Dickinson’s therapy involves dance, combined with music, sound and instruments to teach her patients to express joy and beauty with their bodies.

Dickinson is also recognized as a foremost authority in America on English country dance. Gordon said she has taught and traveled throughout the world, and during her lifetime has had the opportunity to see such dance performances as Isadora Duncan and Nilsinsky.

Dickinson’s residency at SIU was supported in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Illinois Arts Council.

"Godfather II" seen as artistic success

By Deborah Singer

Daily Egyptians Staff Writer

"I want to show how two men, father and son, were born in the same world innocent, and how they were corrupted by evil, brought about by vengeance," said Francis Ford Coppola about the two "Godfather" films he directed.

In the second part of the two-film, nearly seven hour epic, Coppola has managed to make this father and son, Vito and Michael Corleone, intimates of the American-cinema-going public. It is the American story of these two men, but he has woven a historical perspective of America that is much more vivid than the usual portrayal in films and books.

Coppola is a master at evoking the essence of his subjects or setting. "Godfather II," Coppola, working with a budget twice the size ($13 million) of that for the original, is able to paint an elaborate and complete social texture. From a warming film in New York's Little Italy to a story complete with a statue of Christ resplendent attired in dollar bills on the shoulders of a Catholic priest, Coppola is letting us see another essence of America.

And, he extends the privilege again and again throughout the film. There are Senate crime-committee hearings of the late 50's as well as the aforementioned epiphanies in Havana, and the first glimpses of the Statue of Liberty for thousands of Italian immigrants. Coppola offers each scene with what amazingly appears to be more perception and insight than went into the sequence before.

But even Coppola, who is regarded within the film industry as an outstanding multiple movie talent, could not have done it alone. "Godfather II," even without Marlon Brando, is possibly a better film in some ways than the original, and the accolades do not fall totally to Coppola.

The breathtakingly beautiful score by Nino Rota, perfectly underscores the stunning performances particularly of Al Pacino and Robert DeNiro, who do so much to make "Godfather II" such an excellent film.

The movie tells two stories simultaneously contrasting Corleone (Pacino), head of "the family" that is so powerful it buys U.S. senators like ancient kings used to buy mercenaries, with the career of Vito Corleone, Brando's part in the original but played here by a young man by DeNiro.

With the effective use of flash-backs, Coppola traces DeNiro's flight from the Sicilian mafia, and subsequent rise to the eminently powerful position of Godfather in New York City. DeNiro, speaking in a guttural voice reminiscent of Brando's Corleone, manages to create a character entirely different in every other respect. His is a striking performance, and if everything else about the film wasn't so good, it would be even more notable.

A new, more human character has been added to the "Godfather" roster, an old man who owns the store that set him apart from the fact that he isn't Italian. In fact, he is a Jew and, as Coppola says, "Everybody knows there are a lot of Jews in the Mafia."

Another thing that sets the character Rymon Roth apart from the rest of the "Godfather" cast is Lee Strasberg. Supposedly patterned after organized-crime figure Morton "Doc" Russo, this character is a strong and very insistently sensitive human being. In his first formal acting role in 40 years, Strasberg, the legendary director of Actors Studio, gives a marvelous performance.

Fine supporting performances are given by Robert Duvall as Tom Hagan, the former lawyer who is appointed Godfather by his stepbrother Michael Corleone, and Michael V. Gazzo as a family protagonist.

Coppola claims that this is it, he does not plan a Part III. He is obviously finished with the saga of the Corleones and anything further would merely be extraneous matter. "Godfather II" will be showing throughout the U.S. at the Fox Eastgate theater.

Hillel gallery opens up opportunities to artists

For artists, including art majors at SIU, finding a place to exhibit and sell their efforts has always been a problem. To alleviate this, the Hillel Foundation opened a gallery last semester at 715 S. Illinois Ave. headquarters.

Accessories by Randy Davis of the Hillel Foundation, the gallery is free and open to anyone wishing to exhibit and sell their art works. There are no limitations regarding the type or quality of art pieces to be exhibited. Deans, said, only a remote possibility of space limitation for larger art works.

"All the artist has to do is contact us and we'll do the rest," he said. "We'll do all the publicity, and the artists, has the choice of setting up the exhibit themselves or letting us do it.

Currently on exhibit at the gallery are oil paintings by Terry McFee and David Stotz. Deans said the gallery plans to have special exhibits and shows in the near future, including an exhibit of prairie art.

Admission to the non-profit gallery is free and visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Hillel Foundation, located above Public House, and questions regarding exhibitions should be brought to Fishburne Tull at 479-7279.

SIU Ensemble will present free concert

The SIU Wind Ensemble will present a concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium. The concert is being sponsored by the School of Music and is free and open to the public.

Conducting the Wind Ensemble will be Mel Sover and guest conductor Phil Olson.

The ensemble will perform Percy A. Grainger's "Children's March." There are also variations, Opus 44, "Fisher Tull's "Suite for a Tudor Psalm," Vincent Persichetti's "Symphony for Wood," with Olson conducting, and Dmitri Shostakovich's "Symphony No. 5."

Travel-study trip to India set for spring

A travel-study research trip to India, Nepal and Bangladesh is planned for early June or late May of 1975, Bhaktiwan B. Singh, director of the program, said Tuesday.

The program is open to anyone from museums as well as students wishing to participate for college credit, Singh said.

Students interested in the program can receive up to 12 hours of credit and graduate students can take up to six hours credit.

Courses offered for credit during the trip include GSC 231, Orienta Humanism; GSC 231, Oriental Philosophy; GSC 311, Indian Philosophy; and GSC 311, Special Problems.

The excursion will leave New York sometime in late May or early June after a one week pre-trip in Niagara Falls. To cover the program, excluding tuition and fees, will be $2,750, which includes airfare and other transportation costs, housing, meals and related expenses.

Individuals wishing to participate in the program without receiving college credit or be an exchange student for the trip are expected.

‘Generally, only about half of the original oil in place is produced by the primary and secondary mechanisms," Singh said. Best estimates of maximum eventual production are 19 billion barrel of crude oil, or roughly 13 times the country's average annual production.

Marathon is the first to attempt commercial application of tertiary techniques. O'Neal says other oil companies, including Shell and Texaco, are working on tertiary production too.

‘Cost has hampered commercial use. Fawke said he would drop a five acre experiment, when he learned it would take about $15,000 a month because each reservoir is different. The process must be tailored for each. O'Neal says three to five years of onsite experiment is necessary.

Inflation, equipment shortages, pipe and production costs add to the expense.
Carbondale dog catchers on prowl

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Most people call him dog catcher. His friends at the Carbondale Police Station affectionately refer to him as “dog man.” His official title is Animal Control Warden.

In every community that has one, the dog catcher usually ranks as the most despised public servant. Carbondale has two.

One of Carbondale’s animal control wardens, Gary Kuehnle, is a 24-year-old graduate of Northern Illinois University in physical education. He has been patrolling Carbondale’s streets in the brown animal control van since September 1974.

“Dogs running loose don’t bother me personally,” Kuehnle said. “It’s just that it’s the job.”

Kuehnle said the main problem with most of the animals are that they knock over garbage cans searching for food. “That’s where most of the complaints come from,” he said. “Some people always have to answer the complaints.”

Kuehnle said he doesn’t go where the incidence of loose dogs is the highest. “I go where there are more complaints,” he explained.

The northwest and southwest sides are patrolled most because that’s where most of the calls come from, Kuehnle reported, while patrolling the “down town area.” He said there are probably more dogs running loose on the northeast side of town, but since he seldom gets any complaints from there he doesn’t go there often.

He did say he goes there on occasion to remind the residents of the leash law.

Kuehnle explained the Carbondale leash law says generally that any dog in the city for six months or more must have a city license. The dog has to be on a leash unless it is on the owner’s property.

The license is obtained when the owner takes the dog to get its rabies and distemper shots.

The main violations tickets are issued for are not having the dog on a leash and not having a license for the dog, Kuehnle said.

“If you own a dog, you’re supposed to be in control of it,” he stressed.

A medium sized black dog darted between two cars and across S. Illinois Avenue. Kuehnle pulled the van into a driveway and hopped out. He approached the dog slowly, talking to it the whole time. He knelt down next to the dog and scratched its neck. There was no collar.

Kuehnle waited for one of the several onlookers to claim the canine. Nobody spoke. He put a leash around the dog’s neck and led it to the back of the truck.

Kuehnle said he has never been bit on this job. He said he was bit when he worked at a kennel for six weeks. He smiled and said he is a little more careful and wary now that he is older.

Kuehnle said he has a tranquillizer gun, but he didn’t have it with him and doesn’t like to use it. He explained the serum used must be measured carefully.

“If you use too much it could kill the dog,” he said. If enough is not used, the dog might be able to run for 15 minutes before it finally takes effect, he added.

There were 45 dogs picked up in December in Carbondale and taken to the Jackson County Humane Shelter. Kuehnle claimed.

Of the 45, 15 were returned to their owners, 10 were adopted, five were destroyed and one was used as a blood donor for another dog.

Kuehnle said December was a slow month. He said usually about 40 dogs are caught each month in Carbondale.

Based on the December statistics when most students were home on break, Kuehnle said he would have to say students are a large part of the stray dog problem.

“I’d like to think it’s the other way,” he said. “But I’m a lot busier now than before the students came back.”

The Carbondale animal wardens are trying to crack down on chronic offenders, Kuehnle said. One guy was issued three tickets and he had the dog given back to him at least three times, Kuehnle said.

The guy refused to pay the tickets, so Kuehnle said he took him to court after the fourth ticket.

Kuehnle said the judge could have been a little more stern with the offender.

The defendant told the judge he’d keep the dog out of the city, naKuehnle, and the found him guilty or one count of letting his dog run at large. The fine levied was $25, according to Kuehnle.

For the fourth offense, Kuehnle said the fine should have been $90.

Kuehnle said he tries to contact the owner if there is any indication of who the dog belongs to. He said if he can’t get in touch with the owner but has the phone number, he will leave the number at the humane shelter when he takes the dog there.

Volunteers for Special Olympics slate meeting

The first volunteers’ meeting for the Southern Illinois Special Olympics will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in Lawonn 151.

Special Olympics provides Olympic quality sports training and competition for all mentally handicapped individuals within 30 counties of Southern Illinois, and is sponsored by the SIU Recreation Department, Carbondale Park District and the Southern Illinois Special Olympics Inc.

There is a need for individuals to share their talents and special abilities with such committees as:

Women’s Programs, will be held each Wednesday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in Lawonn 151. The seminars are for anyone who is interested. They do not have to be a student. People who work, live here or bring along your lunch and enjoy the seminars, which are also intended for the seminars’ moderator, who will be the supervisor of the seminar.

This Wednesday’s seminar, entitled “Psychological and Physical Differences Between Men and Women,” will focus on a discussion about the film “Sex Roles.” Antoineett Appel, assistant professor in the School of Medicine and Beverly Hornor, assistant professor in Guidance and Educational Psychology, will lead the discussion on any differences.

The Feb. 5 seminar, “Challenge, will be the first of a film.” Pack Your Own Chute.” A discussion will follow the film.

Task Force on Rape members and three police officers, who have attended the conference on rape in Alabama, will lead discussion concerning the Feb. 12 seminar.

The fourth seminar, “Communication and Family,” Feb. 19, will feature the film “Joyce at a Discussion about family conflicts will follow.”

Disabled topic to be sexuality

Two sexual awareness groups are being formed for the disabled according to Jerry Ferro, a graduate student.

The group for singles, one for singles and one for couples, will discuss sexuality and discuss dating. Meetings are people and sexual behavior.

The awareness group for singles will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in one of the River Rooms in the Student Center.

No date has been set for the couples awareness group yet. Ferro said that more people are needed for the group and everyone may attend. He hopes to bring the two groups together after three or four weeks of a workshop.

The fourth seminar, “Everyday, a stereotype that isn’t true about disabled people,” Ferro said.

Ferro added that his office hours are from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday in room 146 of Woody Hall for those interested in signing up for the groups.

Foreign student enrollment rises

About 150 new foreign students from more than 20 countries have entered this semester, according to estimates by the Office of International Student-Faculty Affairs (SOA). The figures for English as a Second Language (ESL)

Pending a final late-registration tally, officials at ESL and CES believe the number may approach 300. They predict that the figure will represent a substantial increase over previous spring enrollments and bring total foreign student population at S.U. to more than 600.

Most of the foreign students are from Asia. But registration records show that the foreign students from the Middle East have jumped significantly.

About a third of the new foreign students have expressed interest in regular undergraduate and graduate programs.

The rest are enrolled at CES, which provides intensive courses to brush up their English proficiency.

Publicity and information: refreshments for lunch on Olympic day. Equipment of equipment necessary for the various events; special equipment: training leaders for participant coaching; coordination volunteers; daily raising events: track and field and swimming events: Olympic Day ceremonies; and parking and traffic control.

For further information, individuals who would like to volunteer should contact the Special Olympics in the SIU Recreation Department or the Carbondale Park District.

The topic for Feb. 6, "What is a ‘Consciousness-Raising Group,’ " will attempt to bring out some of the advantages and disadvantages of such groups.

Panel members will discuss how caring affects men and women at the March 5 seminar. "Everyone Does It." The discussion will include how the ‘external’ social syndrome relates to young and old.

March 12, a discussion of "Our Bodies. Our Heads." will examine women’s attitudes toward their sexuality and explore alternatives to what society deems as a woman’s well being.

Betty Tells Her Story." A film about a woman’s self identity, will be a discussion of the seminar. "Between You and Me," will examine similar feelings women have about loneliness.

Consumer index shows inflation slowing

By Lander Cook
Associated Press Writer

Americans trying to keep up with inflation are finding the task just a tiny bit easier these days. Prices still are going up, but there are signs that the rate of increase is going down.

The economy remains troubled: the cost of living went up 12.1 percent last year; new layoffs are reported daily; the average mortgage rate for a new home is almost 10 percent higher than it was in December, 1973; gasoline prices rose about 36 percent during 1974 and President Ford's energy proposals will push them up again.

Government and industry statistics and Associated Press surveys show, however, that there is some reason for optimism.

The Consumer Price Index increased seven-tenths of one percent in December and officials noted it was the smallest rise since July. Real spendable earnings-weekly pay adjusted for taxes and inflation-increased in December after 3 straight months of decline. Industry figures show the average price of a gallon of gasoline was about two cents less in December than it was in August, rebates offered by auto dealers have helped sales; clinical prices are at their lowest levels in two years; rail sugar prices are declining.

Here is what has happened in some key areas:

AUTOMOBILES - The four major U.S. auto makers announced sales figures on Thursday—the first such report since the start of rebate programs offering up to $600 to buyers of certain 1975 small models. The statistics showed sales for the second 10 days of the month were higher than those during the first 10 days, although they remained behind 1974 levels. Chrysler Corp., which was the first to offer the rebates, reported the biggest sales boost: 98 percent more cars sold from Jan. 11 to 20 than in the first 10 days.

The companies hope the rebates will improve lagging sales that prompted production cutbacks and layoffs of about a third of the industry's work force.

Food—Grocery prices rose 13.4 percent in 1974 according to the Consumer Price Index, but there were signs the increases may be easing. Increased supplies of cattle have helped push down beef prices. The American National Cattlemen's Association said its monthly 19-city survey of supermarkets showed that average retail beef prices on Jan. 9 were down for the fifth straight month.

An A/P marketbasket survey of 13 cities showed that the price of a five-pound sack of granulated sugar declined during December at the single survey in five cities. In Philadelphia, for example, the price went from 91 cents at the start of 1974 to $2.29 at the beginning of December and $2.79 at the start of January. Over the year, the price went down 25.3 percent, but during December it declined 15 percent.

Four of the nation's largest sugar companies announced further price cuts for industrial sugar on Thursday, saying the decline reflected the lower cost of raw sugar.

Fuel — The average price of a gallon of gasoline in December, according to the Oil and Gas Journal was $2.74. That was almost four percent less than in August, although it was 26 percent higher than the December 1973 figure.

The President's energy program is expected to boost the cost of all petroleum products, including gasoline by about 10 cents a gallon. Federal Energy Administration officials say the average family's energy costs will rise by about 18 percent if Ford's proposals for increased taxes and fees are approved.

The President's plan already has come in for criticism in Congress and some legislators are trying to delay a tariff increase proclaimed by Ford on Thursday on imported crude oil.

Home heating oil prices generally are at or below last year's levels, although they are twice as high as they were two years ago.

Inflation, though slowing, remains a concern for many Americans, especially those on fixed incomes. The median price of a house went up $1,500 in the first five months of the year and only $250 in the six months after that, the Census Bureau said.

Raw Materials — The government index of raw materials is 16.6 percent below what it was a year ago. Whole prices of business materials, which went up 36 percent in the first five months of the year, rose only 7.9 percent from May to November.

Prices of chemicals, cotton, lumber, some metals and rubbers are below levels earlier in the year, although industry spokesmen say buyers of finished products won't get the benefit of the declines because of higher costs for things like labor.

Newlyweds heed ad advice; they left driving to bus

PORTLAND (AP) - The bride, shivering slightly in her wedding dress, stepped aboard the municipal bus amid a hail of rice and threw her bouquet of daisies into the group of bridesmaids at the bus stop.

One bridesmaid caught the bouquet.

Other members of the wedding party, meanwhile, scattered about the bus, and when it took off it had "Just Married" inscribed on the side in shaving cream and a batch of tin cans trailing from the rear bumper.

"We've gone everywhere on the bus," Byron Drake said. "We might as well take the bus to the wedding reception.

So Drake and the former Debi Brumley left the church where they had just been married Monday and promptly caught a bus, though they said they had not scheduled the ceremony to coincide with the bus timetable.

"We've been riding the bus a long time," he said. "We've done just about everything on the bus—gone on dates, gotten to work."

He is a freshman majoring in art at Portland Community College and working at a department store. Mrs. Drake works at a jewelry store. Both are 18.

"We haven't got a car," she added.

World food speech will be given

Dale Butz, brother of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, will speak on Assertive class and aid personnel

Assertive training groups for SIU personnel are now being formed, according to Debbi Lindrud of Personnel Services.

Assertive, as defined by personnel services, is the "maintaining of one's personal rights with consideration for the rights and feelings of the other person(s) involved.

The groups are being sponsored by Personnel Services and the Counseling Service.

An essay contest is being sponsored by the John Dewey Foundation, director of the Center for Dewey Studies, Tuesday said Tuesday.

"The theme for the essay is "John Dewey's Philosophy of Science." The John Dewey Essay Project is open to entered graduate students.

The length of the essays should be about 3,000 words. The deadline for entries is June 1, 1975. Two winners will be chosen by Sept. 15, 1975.

One thousand dollars will be awarded for first prize, and $500 for second prize. Byrdon said he expects to receive about 30 entries.

The Center for Dewey Studies is a major project and publication venture started by S.I. in 1961. Boydon said the center has assembled a large staff of editors and organizers and edited all previously published works and related material by the American philosopher-educator, John Dewey.

Hartzog: ‘optimistic’ about chances in upcoming meet

The indoor track season is upon us again and Saluki track coach Lew Hartung couldn’t be happier.

"I’m excited about this team," the coach told his team this week. "We are optimistic about what we can avoid injuries we’ve had in the past."

He said, "I was in high school, I worked grade school games and then I worked in college. Since I was playing basketball at Southern, I refereed intramural games."

Once out of the service, Rippelmeier didn’t get back into officiating until he started in high school and worked his way up to the college level.

One rule that has been the center of controversy for referees for some years, is that of taking a dunk. For many, many years an infraction was when the ball would forcefully "stuffed" through the hoop.

"According to the college rule that is in effect now," Rippelmeier said, "a basket can be nullified in the attempt of a dunk. It is also offensive interference should a player touch the ball when it is in the (imaginary) cylinder above the rim."

"I just had an example of this in a game a couple of weeks ago," the official said. "A man went up to dunk the ball and he hit the rim and missed the shot. This is goal tangent and I had to give him a technical."

He explained that the only time a technical is called is when a player tries forcibly put the ball through the hoop.

Scouts, Salukis missed Meriweather

By Ron Salton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Next time SIU coaches had better carry some game films when the team hits the road. Apparently, that is the only way pro scouts will get a look at Saluki All-America center Joe C. Meriweather.

"I didn't get a chance to see anything," mumbled one disgruntled talent-seeker Monday night, after seeing the SIU giant play less than half of the game against Oral Roberts. Both Phoenix Fans and Chicago Bulls scouts were left out in the cold, as Meriweather played just over 16 minutes in the 78-69 loss. More noticeable than usual, his troubles told the story of the game.

"If there was a turning point, it was when Joe picked up his fourth foul," Saluki coach Paul Lambert reflected Tuesday. "Even though we stayed with them for a while, that was it."

The call, whistled just seven seconds after intermission, when Meriweather had returned to the game, was one of at least a couple of questionable calls taunted on the big man.

"I doubt if we could print it," Lambert admitted, when asked his opinion on the crucial fourth foul. "Even the most avid fans at the game had to realize that it was a very, very questionable call."

In fact, the Saluki coach became so irked with the officiating that he practically slid from his chair over a ridiculous call against the Titans in the game's final seconds.

"That was a make-up call," he remarked. "That's terrible, no matter what time of the game it is. The kid made a great steal, and they call him for out-of-bounds."

While Lambert focalized on Meriweather's fourth foul as the key to the defeat, it was his third one which led to the Titan takeover for keeps in the first half. He left for the bench after eight minutes, but his foul led to a three-point play which started the Oral Roberts comeback.

The two teams traded five buckets apiece, before the hosts moved ahead for good at 24-22 on a pair of Willis Collins free throws with 6:17 to go. It was 39-38 at the half, and the Salukis did hang close until midway through the second half, when Meriweather's sustained absence dealt the death blow.

"It hurt our consistency when Joe went out so early," Lambert said. "We were hurting their zone, but when he went out, they went back into their man-to-man."

"I was very pleased with our first half, considering Joe got the three quick fouls," Lambert said. "It's been a long time since we played in that situation for so long."

Meriweather's absence did open the linesight for sophomore Curly Abrams, who played perhaps his best half of basketball as a Saluki in the first 30 minutes. With seven rebounds and 10 points at interception, he was largely responsible for keeping SIU in the game.

Abrams finished with 10 rebounds to lead the team in rebound contributions. Tim Ronci held the hot hand all night, hitting 10 of 12 shots for a team-high 30 points, while Mike Glenn added 14. Meriweather managed just nine.

Glenn was the offensive key in the second half for SIU, with the game plus obviously arranged for the nation's top-shooting guard.

We had to give Mike the ball more, and he had to be more aggressive," Lambert explained. "He had the shots, but they just wouldn't fall.

Lack of bench strength helped dig the Saluki grave, as starter Perry Hines and reserve Shaq Noonan ran into off nights. Ricky Boynston replaced Hines adequately, but inexperienced Charlie Hugglett was left to replace Meriweather. He grabbed six rebounds, but scored just four points.

"We needed some additional scoring with Joe out, but it was just one of those nights," Lambert concluded. "We weren't quite as sharp as we had been. Maybe it was Oral Roberts' defense, or maybe it was the 10-day layoff, I don't know."
Finally! Basketball in Arena tonight

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

It's time to employ the revenge motive for the first time. The Illinois State Redbirds come to the SIU Arena Wednesday night, offering the Salukis their first chance this year to avenge an early-season defeat. The Redbirds dumped SIU 81-84 in overtime Jan. 4.

The keys in that game were ISU's Rick Whitlow, who bombed in 31 points, and SIU's Joe Meriweather, who scored just four of his 21 points after the half. "We'll change defenses on them," Lambert said, in regards to Whitlow. "It depends a lot on Perry (Hines). Because his knee was bothering him, we played a double team on him.

Hines defended Whitlow at Normal, but found himself out-of-position on that occasion. Whitlow also demoralized Salukis Ricky Boynton and Kerr McKeelvy, who took on the chores after Hines fouled out early in the second half.

As for Meriweather, Lambert sees no change being necessary.

"We felt like they were getting by with a lot of holding," the SIU mentor said. "Freshman Cyrus Mann was the successful defender in the second half, after Meriweather destroyed starter Jeff Wilkins with 17 first half markers. Wilkins has improved steadily since then and figures to start at center Wednesday night. The seven-foot ex-Elgin prepster will be joined by forwards Billy Lewis and Bubbles Hawkins and guards Whitlow and Mike Bonczyk.

Whitlow is the team's leading scorer, with a 23.7 average, but Hawkins, who holds the school's single-game record of 58 points, may finally be fully recovered from a foot injury. "I think he's 90 per cent," Redbird assistant coach Warren Crews said Tuesday. "Physically, we're in good shape now."

With everyone healthy, the Redbird bench becomes a definite plus factor with sometimes-starter Lance Tometch available for guard duty and long range gunman Jeff Powell ready at forward. Along with Mann, they give the visitors a solid front eight.

"Bonacci makes do mistakes which are irritating to coaches at times, so it will depend on how he does whether Tometch sees much action," Crews said. "Neither Wilkins nor Mann are going to average a full game, so both will see action. Sometimes they play at the same time."

Lewis and Hawkins are the only ISU players averaging in double figures besides Whitlow, with 14.4 and 11.1, respectively.

The Salukis have just two players in double figures. Meriweather is scoring 20.7 points per outing, and Mike Glenn is four points below that. Glenn hit 29 in the last meeting between the two teams.

Corky Abrams, 8.8, and Tim Rieci, 8.7, will man the forward spots, and Perry Hines, 6.2, will start at the other guard slot.

"We have to regain what we were prior to break, and we can," Lambert remarked. "I think the team deserves a lot of credit for coming out of that stretch 10-5. I'm sure some people looking at that stretch figured we'd be lucky to win one or maybe two."

"Most teams would take four of six gladly," he said, "especially against rivals."

"We're at about the same place we were last year, and we had had more home games then."

PR like this, who needs enemies?

athletic budget. SIU Sports Information Director Butch Henry admitted Tuesday, "I don't have a budget, per se, because each sport must decide how much to allot."

However, a mailing list of approximately 250 newspapers and sports information offices to send P.R. to. Of these, about half receive the information only during the basketball season.

Just the postage for these packages of various weights amounts to about $40 a year. Each day hours accumulate substantially as well.

"I guess we spend about 20 to 25 man hours a week putting out our mailers yesterday," Henry estimated. "I would say that's the biggest waste of time in our work week."

"People always use the information we give them in a frivolous way," Henry said. "We have to keep an eye on it in case that one situation arises.

Talk about economic waste! Sure, I might use SIU's information twice this year—before each SIU game against them. That hardly qualifies or subjects me to receive 20 newsletters from them in between!"

These schools don't do this on their own. Rather, the schools will send no other colleges a list of "team media," who regularly cover their games and should receive all newsletters. But it would seem that the sender could decipher what information would be useful.

The only real hope this material has of seeing print is in the "Hash and Rehash" tabloid section of a column. Radio and television stations are more likely to use the chip-shot stories for parts of sportscasts. "The growing trend is obvious," Henry said. "A prominent sports editor in the Chicago area—I won't mention his name—prefers never to get anything from us other than foot. ball, basketball and track."

"We're getting feedback to cut down on our stuff rather than increase it."

"It would seem that university athletic departments could save a bundle of money by pre-empting each season of distribution with a questionnaire to prospective customers. By simply filling in a card detailing what mail he would like to receive, the customer could save both departments a lot of trouble."

Of course, quality makes a difference, too. There was the time last fall when the University of Indiana sent out a mailer previewing the NCAA cross country championships it was to host.

One of the "leading contenders" was Southern Illinois University—or so the program said. Somebody should have told the poor guy that Saluki coach Lew Hartzog wasn't even sending his team, because there was no hope of qualifying anyone.

But then he wouldn't have had any reason to send me more wastebasket liner, would he?

WISE BUYS

Wise Buys happen here all the time. When we buy in unusual volume or get a manufacturer's temporary promotional allowance, you save. We pass our savings on to you. Watch for the Wise Buy signs throughout our store. These signs will make it easy for you to spot extra savings.

Wise Buys are only one money-saving reason to shop at JCPenney Supermarket. We price every item at our lowest possible price every day. You will find a complete selection of your favorite brands and 'new' items . . . quality meats and farm-fresh fruits and vegetables . . . all priced to add up to the lowest 'tape total'.

Join the wise shoppers . . . visit JCPenney Supermarket today or any day soon.
You'd think it'd be risky for us to have a guarantee like this:

But we protect ourselves. You see, we stock only USDA Choice beef. That's a pretty good guarantee of quality, right there. And we trim it lean before we weigh it so you get your money's worth. We call it our Extra Value Trim (E.V.T.). And our fast turnover and label-dating policy insure freshness.

When a store has beef as good as ours, it can have a guarantee as good as ours. Come in and see for yourself.

What Is E.V.T.?

Every cut of meat we sell has E.V.T. (Extra Value Trim) which means we remove all excess fat and bone before weighing. This means extra savings for you.

USDA Choice

We feature USDA Choice Beef and are proud of our quality, trim, packaging, and handling methods. We're confident you will find our meat the best you have ever purchased. We GUARANTEE your complete satisfaction. If for any reason you are not satisfied, we will gladly replace your purchase or refund your money.

Our Thrift-pak offers extra savings on meat. Larger size packages provide economies in handling and packaging for us. We pass the savings on to you. Watch for the Thrift-pak label on packages of beef, pork and poultry. You can save even more on your food budget with Thrift-pak.
