LA & S Dean Asks Reassignment

Henry Dan Piper, dean of the College of Heights Arts and Sciences since 1962, has requested reassignment to a position which would allow more time for teaching, research and writing.

Piper's request was announced by Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs, who said an advisory committee on selection of a new dean is being formed from the ranks of the LA&S faculty.

"I deeply appreciate the outstanding work Dean Piper has done," MacVicar said. "He has been an "unforgettable experience," came to SIU from the California Institute of Technology. He had served 10 years as head of the English department.

He was instrumental in the formation last year of the Central States Universities, Inc., a 12 school organization to promote and encourage graduate education in the sciences through cooperation with the Argonne National Laboratory.

Among his writings, Piper is the author of "F. Scott Fitzgerald, A Critical Portrait," a 320-page biographical volume published last July and widely reviewed in newspapers and literary publications across the nation.

With a degree in chemistry from Princeton University, Piper received his doctorate in American studies from the University of Pennsylvania.

First SIU Hurdle Is Fresno State

With chances of "We Are No. 1," and "N-C-Double-A, we're going all the way" trailing behind them, the Salukis move on to Evensville Wednesday in pursuit of a regional division basketball championship.

Southern will play Fresno (Calif.) State at 8 p.m. (CST) in a first-round game.

Tickets for Wednesday night's game went on sale at 9 a.m. Monday from the SIU-Springfield ticket office in the Arena today from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday they will be sold from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

There are also 170 chair seats which will be sold in blocks of 5 for $5 for the entire tournament.

If the Salukis win Wednesday and advance to the semifinals, tickets for games Thursday and Friday nights will go on sale Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. The tickets will be available at the Arena Friday from 1 to 3 p.m.

The tournament opens at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday with Long Island University (23-2) against Abilene Christian (21-6) in an upper bracket contest. The other upper bracket game will be Texas (30-2) against Central Connecticut (23-2) against Kentucky Wesleyan (22-6).

In the lower bracket game at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Abilene Christian (21-6) meets North Dakota (23-3). The other lower bracket game will be the SIU-Fresno State (22-6).

The semifinals will be played (Continued on Page 15)

Spring Term
Class Cards
To Be Late

Distribution of printed class schedules for students who paid their fees by March 4 will be delayed until March 14.

Regional Director A. McGrath said Monday.

Originally, it had been planned to start distribution of the schedules Wednesday. The appropriate printed form showing in what classes a student is enrolled for the spring term. They replace the No. 3 card previously used, which the student had to fill out himself.

McGrath said the amended distribution schedule will be:

Monday, March 14, 11:30 to 5 p.m., for students whose last names begin with the letters A through G.

Tuesday, March 15, 8 a.m. to noon, letters H through P.

Tuesday, March 15, 11:30 to 5 p.m., letters Q through Z.

The schedules will be handled out in the Olympic Room in the University Center.

The postponement decision was made Saturday when it became apparent that the Wednesday distribution date could not be met, McGrath said.

"The scope of converting to the new system has been more time-consuming than originally believed," McGrath said, "and the postponement was necessary to give the registrar's office sufficient time to process the first group of students who were caught cheating.

Mr. Booze-Members of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and Sigma Kappa sorority are "Mr. Booze" in their first-place act, "Prohibition or How I Learned to Speak Easy." It was one of six acts in the weekend Theta Xi Variety Show. Leading the chorus are Jim Phillips, Chuck Edehofer and Chuck Sosa.

For 1st Place in Theta Xi Variety Show

Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity and Sigma Kappa social sorority were winners of the two-night Theta Xi Variety Show held Friday and Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

"Prohibition or How I Learned to Speak Easy" was the winning group's presentation in the 16-act program. Also presented in the Friday night program were the Service to Southern awards, presented by President Delyte W. Morris to Laurie A. Brown, a senior from Carbondale, and John L. Rush, a senior from Edwardsville.

Carl A. Jennings, a junior from Equality, was presented the $200 Leo Kaplan Memorial Scholarship given by Theta Xi social fraternity for academic excellence and attitude toward studies.

First place in the nine individual acts went to the B. Carol Randle Trio, jazz instrumentalists, and second to "S. Saboteur," starring a medley of songs from "Porgy and Bess."

Muddy and Co., folkstingers, won the intermediate group, followed by the Southern Players, who presented "The Other Side of the Door."

Delta Chi and Delta Zeta, winners of the trophy last year, took second-place honors at the show with their presentation of "So This Is Paris," third place went to "Up and Down," presented by Alpha Gamma Delta and Phi Kappa Tau.

Runners-up for the Service to Southern award for women were Kathleen M. Wolak, a senior from Cicer, and Mar- thas, Jr., editor, Mount Vernon, John F. Davis, West Frankfort, and George Paluch, Chicago, were runners-up in the men's division.

Five Face Suspension for Cheating

An immediate suspension from SIU is facing five students who were caught cheating on an undergraduate English qualification examination.

The cases of 25 students who were suspected of cheating on the examination have been under the investigation by the Student Affairs Office for two weeks.

Four of the students were found not to be involved in the examination fraud, but 21 have admitted complicity, according to Ralph L. Prusok, associate dean of student affairs.

Prusok said the students were involved in the fraud in various degrees, and disciplinary action would be based upon the degree of involvement of each student.

Sixteen of the students are to receive disciplinary action and will have their permanent records appropriately marked, Prusok said.

Three of the students facing immediate suspension will be suspended through summer quarter, 1968, and the other will be suspended for longer periods. One of the students has already been dismissed through summer quarter 1967, Prusok said.

Officials became suspicious of the students when several who had previously demonstrated low ability and performance in English scored extremely high on the examination. Further evidence that something was wrong was indicated by a number of wrong answers for some of the questions.

Opportunities Available

Southern Students Engaged In Work-Study Programs

SIU students are taking part in two work-study programs that will give participants a practical look at the business world.

One program gives male students an opportunity to rotate work and school on a quarterly basis. Three hours of academic credit are given for the course, Technology 319, and the student is paid while working in the training program.

The other program gives students an opportunity to work during the summer program for their summer work if they wish to.

Roy E. Hess of Du Quoin was one of three SIU students taking part in the summer program with the Falstaff Brewing Corp. of Louis, Missouri. Hess, a junior majoring in accounting, will work in the accounting department of Falstaff last summer.

The program offered by Falstaff includes three summer work programs. These programs progress in intensity and use the various phases of accounting that students learn while in school the past year.

This summer Hess will work in bookkeeping and data processing accounting.

One important point about the program, Hess said, is that "The student is not obligated to the firm after graduation, or at anytime during his internship."

Bruno W. Bierman, supervisor of the work study program, said, "Although students are paid regular wages by the company, this is not intended as a means to finance an education, but as an educational experience in itself."

Today's Weather

Continued warming trend. High today from the upper 40s to the mid 50s. Winds light and variable. The record high for this date is 90 set in 1925 with a record low of 7 set in 1943 and 1960, according to the SIU Climatological Laboratory.

Salukis, You're Great! --And You, Too, Fans

In defeating the Evansville Aces for the third time this season, the Saluki basketball team became the champions of the Central Lakes Regional Tournament.

Not only does the Saluki's performance deserve praise, but so does that of the SIU fans. They demonstrated good sportsmanship throughout the game and even stood to applaud an injured Evansville player.

It is hoped that when the Saluki progress to the NCAA quarter finals of the small college championship Wednesday night, the SIU fans will support them as they have all season.

The Salukis will be representing not only SIU, but the entire region. And even Coach Adar Mohan of Evansville promised the support of the Aces.

We certainly have a team to be proud of, so let's keep up the enthusiasm aroused for games with Evansville. The Salukis are on the way to a national championship, but no matter how far they have progressed, they deserve praise for their performance this season.

Congratulations are definitely in order for Coach Jack Hartman and his fine team.

One Can't Blame Viet Cong For Wariness of Conference

By Robert M. Hutchins

We can now form a fairly clear idea of what President Lyndon B. Johnson's policy is not doing in Viet Nam.

He is not leading a crusade against Communism. If he were, he could not accept, as he appears to do, the possibility that a Communist government may result from elections in Viet Nam.

He is not seeking a "confrontation" with the Chinese. If he were, he would stop the sales of arms to the Republic of Viet Nam.

He does not want a permanent "military presence" in Viet Nam. He wants to withdraw our forces completely and make the future role of the United States one of helpfulness to the people.

This is all to the good. The positive aspects of the administration's policies are less clear. Certainly they can be neither clear nor reassuring to the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. What is clear is that the United States is inviting the North to come to the conference table to see what the Viet Cong will accept.

We should not forget—for they have not forgotten—that the Communist leaders of Viet Nam came to the conference table once, with results that were disastrous for them. They were double-crossed.

In 1954 they were promised elections in 10 years and the unification of all Viet Nam under whatever government was chosen. Now there is doubt that they would have accepted those promises if elections were prevented by a South Vietnamese government.

The President was to match his admirable negative statements with some precise positive proposals, but we have none in mind—we might soon have some guests at the conference table and put an end to one of the most depressing episodes of American diplomacy.

NO REASON WHY THESE TWO SHOULDN'T BE JOINED IN MATRIMONY?

MELTING JELLO

Angers Writer

To the editor:

While the coffee problem has been solved in the Oasis (according to what I've read in the Daily Egyptian), I would like to add several suggestions for the food service:

1. Replace the inadequate milk bottles. We need ones that can be re-filled before they become empty and that can be refilled while the students continue to drink from them.

2. Spoons with hooked handles should be used for the vegetables as corn on the Cob at the Sunday smorgasbord.

Then they would not slide down the plate and make a mess and make it necessary for students to be continually fishing them out.

3. Is it necessary to place harsh restrictions on the purchase of coffee at the Sunday smorgasbord? One of the reasons we have not gone to the stores is that the coffee is not too hot to handle. Why is there a portion of the food that all students eat? Could the jello melts and slides around, making the trip through the serving line a matter of balancing act?

I feel that the food service does a generally excellent job, considering the number of students who use the cafeteria.

Employment Plan Started For Panamanian Students

BALBOA, Canal Zone—A new employment plan for Panamanian university students is being launched by the U. S.-controlled Panama Canal Co., which has expanded its educational program, to offer Panamanian undergraduates work connected with their university curricula.

It aims to prepare high caliber Panamanian university students for responsible posts on the canal, a Canal Co. spokesman said. Upon the completion of the work-study programs, Panamanians will be eligible for permanent employment.

The new plan is distinct from another program sponsored by the company that offers vacation employment for Panamanian high school and university students.

Students accepted for the new plan will work all year long, preparing themselves for permanent canal jobs paying from $1.08 to $2.09 per hour will be assigned according to their skills and preparation.

The Canal Co. spokesmen said the students will be open, 20 more will be added in May.

At present only students from the Catholic University of Panama will be accepted, but the plan provides for including students from the new Catholic University of Santa Barbara, Panama.

Observers in Panama City consider the plan both promising and overdue. One of the most persistent complaints made by Panamanians has been that the canal company, an agency of the U.S. government, has not been able to train Panamanians for responsible positions with the waterway.

Until recently Panamanians were paid a different wage scale than that of U. S. citizens. Also, the company's policy was to import employees from the United States, rather than train Panamanians for responsible jobs.

The new plan is expected to aid development of Panamanian and ease tensions between Panama proper and the U. S.-controlled Canal Zone.

One Dimension of Tension Extension

A psychologist from the Georgia Mental Health Institute plans to study the impact of what causes tensions in the community.

"Well, we can think of a number of things—starting with the need for adequate mental health services in the community," The Atlanta Constitution
Progressive education supposedly died about 10 years ago, but its tenets, most of which were first espoused by Dewey in the 1890's, are enjoying something of a revival. In the January Architectural Record, Benjamin Thompson, chairman of the Harvard department of architecture, argued that teaching architecture in the form of the Once Discarded "operative method," for instance, by permitting students to design public houses, is in actual needed and will actually be used. Thompson says that this is the most dynamic group of Alfred North Whitehead and Dewey of the fact that learning is a "factual" learning system of the student—mental, nervous, muscular—that you have to be there since been proved by neurologists.

At the end of the educational spectrum, Project Headstart, which began last year for preschoolers as a part of the antipoverty program, is based on another Dewey tenet; that you can educate the "whole child." Post-Dewey teachers have always been well aware that children who were hungry or dirty or not industrious would not respond in the same way as their more fortunate peers to a beautiful poem or a problem concerning making interiors.

As for the next step up, in learning the new math and the new sciences, children do not begin, as in the old days, by memorizing rules and theorems; they learn by doing. But instead of being supplied with problems, they learn to make change, they are given objects in geometrical shapes so that, by means of learning mathematical facts and arriving at abstract principles, Dewey have developed the intellectual passiveness that the project method had deteriorated into.

Jerome S. Bruner of Harvard says that the goal of education is "disciplined understanding," and this is also its process. This is another way of putting Dewey's dictum that education is living and not a preparation for life.

It's easy to imagine a chorus of sophomore voices responding to that with "THIS IS LIVING?" (or even "You call THIS disciplined un­

If students don't think so, it would profit all concerned if they give thought to what Dewey really was, in putting their students through it, and how those particular students came to be its only beneficiaries.

"If we discover the cerebral basis of anxiety, pleasure, and depression, we shall be in a much better position to influence their development and manifestations through educational stimulation, drugs, surgery, especially by more scientifically programmed educational techniques. On the contrary, the greater facility with which young minds can be molded only emphasizes the real question—to what end? A student can get as much "positive reinforcement" from a wrong answer the programmer wants reinforced as from the teacher.

Educators are beginning to resume their arguments for or against the subject. The subject is bread and boring, but crucial. Schools do have aims whether or not they formulate them, thus explaining to them public utility.

A school's real aims can be ascertained only by examining its processes and its products, not from a statement by its superintendent or a blurb in its catalogue. An examination of the processes and the products of most college right now would suggest that, in spite of this country's world leadership, it remains a part of the nineteenth century system of educating an elite. This is not really due to the colleges' vaunted pursuit of excellence, but, in fact, the subject that began in 1942 has resulted in such a surfeit of candidates for higher education that colleges can reject all but those who have taken the College Board examinations in high school and on their College Board examinations.

On the few who make it, college teachers can then indulge their whims of pilfering more book and research work designed to perpetuate their own kind—more scholars. Scholars are fine; we need more of them. Scholars are also needed people who have been led by skillful teaching to develop their full potentialities to other ends. Nietzsche said If the school had grasped the potential of the works of the Greek poets and philosophers he would not remain a scholar. He might become too over his beat, or a sage, or dancer, but he would not be content to remain a mere servant of the scholar's art.

In the present situation, students without a scholarly bent are soon eliminated.40 percent of college undergraduates and the liberal arts within the first two years. Those that remain struggle mainly for grades and status. Someone has dabbled them "the dutiful generation." And, as patriots keep reminding us—and our enemies—the handful of students who do rebel against the status quo may be noisy, but they are still only a handful. The majority remain dutiful and apathetic.

TV is the definite opinion survey among teachers in university communications departments and discovered not one who felt that his students had any interest in improving the medium. A typical professor's comment: "I will say this: I do not think students do lack a critical sense, but you can't teach a student to be critical. The TV shows are designed to fall in with the crowd, just along with it." But people have been taught to be critical, so don't gamble on their new, no more selectively, though not always, if ever, by professors.

The town of Jos, Northern Nigeria, is situated 175 miles east of Kaduna, 4,000 feet up on the Bauchi Plateau. An hour out of Kaduna by car, you are surrounded by mountains that are a cross between the soft rising Missouri Ozarks and the bush-ravaged Colorado Rockies.

The mountains stand bare and glittering against a blue sky. Far, far in the distance the familiar minuteness of the world becomes insignificant. A mile high above a white hazmat, the hairmat, sands blown down from the Sahel, is a single minute unicellular algae, from what was once a gigantic ocean bed.

A baboon stares at you from your tour bus. The road, mostly hard-surfaced, winds its way up over the escarpment, or a steep forest, or dancer, but he would not be content to remain a mere servant of the scholar's art.

Layer Finishes Economic Study

A study of the economy of Southern Illinois for an 80-year period has been completed by Robert G. Layer, chairman of the Department of Economics.

It covers the period from 1879 to 1959 and is a year-by-year, county-by-county chronicle of the economic development of the Southern Illinois region.

Layer works with information concerning the annual dollar amounts of mineral, agricultural, and manufacturing production. The information came from various sources and had to be treated for comparability, he explained.

The fundamental basis upon which this region was built is dependent primarily upon three elements. Layer analyzed the two major sources of primary production, agriculture and mining, and the essential form of secondary production, manufacturing.

In addition to recording the trends of each of the fundamental bases through time, he was also concerned with the relative importance of Language Courses Set for Children

The Department of Foreign Languages will offer courses in French, German and Spanish this summer for children between the ages of 9 and 12.

The classes will meet from 9:30 to 10 a.m., five days a week from June 21 to July 15.

There will be no charge for the course. Further information may be obtained from Vera L. Peacock, professor of foreign languages.

Two students, arriving at the Arena a little early for an 8 a.m. physical education class, noticed a student worker busily polishing the stainless-steel kickplate on a door in the hallway. The sight prompted one student to remark: "You know, no matter how early I get here, there's always one of these guys mopping the floor, or cleaning the windows, or polishing the doorknobs. I think they must sleep here.'"

He was almost right. The Arena's first-shift janitors start at 4 a.m. and work until 8 a.m. They've done their day's work before most students are awake.

One might question the University's motives in asking students to rise to the middle of the night, come to the Arena, and start sweeping floors before the sun comes up. But, as Larry Schmalenberger, assistant manager of the Arena, put it: "There's more work to be done here before a student enters the place." Just about every inch of the building is in almost constant use from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. There are some areas that can only be cleaned during "offhours," Winter term's "busiest term," said Schmalenberger. Because of these, many students mopping the floor-building, it is in constant use seven days a week, he said.

The Arena has quite a schedule. There are physical education classes on the floor from 4 a.m. to 3 p.m. The varsity teams practice from 3 until 7:30 p.m. The Arena is open for recreational purposes from 7:30 until 11 p.m. The basketball team uses the gym floor, while the wrestling-gymnastics, and women's gymnastic teams use the concourse.

"It takes a special type of student to work on that 4-8 a.m. shift," said Schmalenberger, "usually freshmen or students who live in dormitories, don't last too long." The Arena had to obtain special permission from the work office to start work so early. Other buildings on campus don't have student workers past 1 a.m.

It is University policy to pay a premium to the students who work past midnight. They usually get 15 cents an hour over the usual pay rate. Some students who work on the 4-8 shift run into unusual problems. Frank Carta, a junior majoring in chemistry, tries to get to bed about 8:30 or 9 p.m., so that he can get up in time.

"The alarm rings about 3:30 a.m., and my roommate always gets up in his sleep and shuts it off," said Carta, "train Derailment Causes Tie Up"

Six cars of a Gulf, Mobile and Ohio train bound for East St. Louis derailed at 1:50 p.m. Monday at Spruce and 19th Streets in Murphysboro. The derailment tied up the main rail line, according to A. H. Burton, train master in Murphysboro.

In the derailment were five covered hoppers filled with aluminum ore and one bulkhead flatcar filled with lumber. The hoppers were completely derailed, while the flatcar was still standing. Burton said it would take about 24 hours to repair the area with use of a rail wrecker.

"Other than that, I like working on this shift. It allows me to organize my time better."

Most of the students appeared to be happy with their jobs, Frank R. Drees, a sophomore majoring in marketing, said he didn't mind the work so much, but he lives on the other side of town and has to walk to work. It seems that when he comes to work it's always the coldest part of the day.

An unidentified student said he liked working during the early hours because he didn't have to stop for stop signs on his way to work.

"Although the campus police did stop me last week for going 25 miles an hour in the 20 mile an hour zone on Campus Drive. That was about 3:45 a.m.," he said.

The student said the custodian who works on that shift maintains that "we have a good bunch of boys working here."

But "sometimes they come in half asleep, looking like zombies."

If a student has trouble waking up for work, the custodian, Lewis Lynch, 32, of Dowell, will offer his exclusive "wake-up service."

"I can call a student on the telephone at about 3:30 a.m., and make sure that he's up. That's something that roommates don't always appreciate," he said.

There is also a shift that works from 4 a.m. to noon on weekends. These students are usually the ones who have to move the portable baskets around when an event is going to take place on the basketball court. Sometimes it gets a little rough when the workers must have the baskets on the floor for the morning physical education classes, remove them for an afternoon gymnastics meet, and put two of them back for an evening basketball game.

But as Gerald A. Strand, a sophomore majoring in Health education, pointed out: "All things considered, it's not too bad of a deal."
Voting Rights Bill Upheld by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has declared constitutional key sections of the 1965 voting rights law. Congress has the power under the 15th Amendment to suspend literacy tests and to order federal registrars into the Deep South “to banish the blight of racial discrimination,” Chief Justice Earl Warren said Monday for the high court.

“Hopefully,” he said, “millions of some white Americans will now be able to participate for the first time on an equal basis in the government under which they live.”

Warren’s face was expressionless as he read the decision.

Britain Won’t Send Troops

LONDON (AP) — Britain does not intend to send troops to join American forces in Viet Nam, foreign secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons today.

Stewart had been asked by Lady Tweedsmuir, a conservative member of parliament, whether the U.S. government had asked Britain to send troops to Viet Nam. He did not answer directly but said: “It is not our intention to do so, in view of our position as co-chairman of the Geneva Conference.”

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference which divided North and South Viet Nam.

Reports have been published here that the United States would like Britain to transfer some of its troops from Malaysia to Viet Nam when and if the Malaysians no longer need them for protection against Indonesia.

Chinese Urged to Keep Calm

If Setbacks Appear in Future

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China, in what might be anticipation of some major setback soon, urged its people Monday not to become panic-stricken if “twists and turns” appear on the revolutionary road.

The unexplained hint of some unfavorable change in the balance of world forces, coupled with an admission that revolutionary leaders themselves may make a mistake, appeared in the official Peking People’s Daily.

Five days ago, the same organ—which speaks for the ruling Communist party—carried a similar editorial, saying “victory in struggle is frequently intermingled with reverse and advances in movements with retreat.” It spoke of possible “upheavals” ahead.

Voting Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate’s Democratic and Republican leaders introduced legislation Monday to give the District of Columbia voting representation in Congress.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said the proposed constitutional amendment would provide that Congress establish the method of such representation.

'State Interest' in Virginia

Antimiscegenation Ruling Held Valid

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Virginia's Supreme Court of Appeals, citing "an overriding state interest in the institution of marriage," upheld Monday a state law forbidding Negroes and whites to live together as man and wife.

In a unanimous decision, the court refused to reverse a similar decision it had made in 1955, and again held that the so-called antimiscegenation laws violate neither the constitution of Virginia nor that of the United States.

The suit against the state had been brought on behalf of Richard Verplank Jr., who is white, and his wife, Mildred Jeter Loving, 26, who says she is part Indian and part Negro.

They were married June 2, 1958, in Washington, D.C., but were convicted under the antimiscegenation law the following month after returning to their rural home in the north-central Virginia county of Caroline.

Judge Leon M. Bazile of Caroline County Circuit Court sentenced them each to one year in prison, but suspended the sentences on condition that they leave Virginia and not return together or simultaneously for 25 years.

The Lovings left the state but returned in 1963, with the help of the American Civil Liberties Union, began an attack on the constitutionality of the law in question.

Monday, although upholding the Circuit Court decision in substance, the State Supreme Court struck down the sentences imposed against the Lovings.

The opinion, written by Justice H. Carrol of Fairfax, said it was "unreasonable to require that the defendant leave the state and not return thereafter together or at all the time being.

"Such unreasonableness renders the sentences void, and they will, accordingly, be set aside."

The high court remanded the case to the Circuit Court for rescripting of the defendants' convictions obtained "with conditions not inconsistent with the views here expressed in this opinion."

The ruling left the Lovings with a somewhat uncertain future.

Bernard S. Cohen of Alexandria, one of their lawyers, said the couple "definitely will appeal."

"The only question is which way to go," he added.

Birth Control Panel Increased by Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI has added seven cardinals and seven bishops to his death-struck birth control study commission in the hope of speeding conclusions on the issue. This action was announced in a circular from the Vatican's leading conservative became commission president.

Pope Paul named Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani as president of the commission and added 13 other prelates.

The commission was formed by the pontiff in June 1964 for the study of birth control and possibly to recommend changes in the Roman Catholic Church's traditional teaching. The 57 members— including theologians, psychologists, physicians, sociologists, married couples and others—have been reporting for some time unable to come to a unanimous conclusion.

The new membership enlarged the commission to 72. Two unnamed experts in Church law have also been newly added, the commission said.

U.S. to Increase Korean Aid

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—The United States told South Korea today it will provide additional economic and military aid to Korea so that the recent Korean decision to send more combat troops to South Viet Nam won't affect Korea's security and economic development.

This was contained in a note delivered by U.S. Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown to Foreign Minister Lee Tong-won, Lee told newsmen.

The economic and military measures announced by the United States, he said, include substantial modernization of Korean forces, the equipment for complete replacement of additional forces deployed to South Viet Nam, the grant of additional aid loans, and the procurement in Korea of supplies, services and equipment for use in South Viet Nam.

"I CAN DO ANYTHING BETTER THAN YOU!"

Labor Asks Voters For Mandate

LONDON AP—Prime Minister Harold Wilson Monday night asked British electors for a strong mandate to reform and modernize the life of the nation from the womb to the tomb.

Introducing the Labor party's manifesto of aims for the nation's March 31 election, Wilson told a news conference: "We are asking the British people clearly and decisively to give the Labor government a mandate to continue the work they have begun and to enable them to do it in all their dealings at home and abroad."

The schemes range from a greatly-expanded drive for screening women against cervical cancer to wage-related pensions after retirement and for widows.

Other proposals envisage overhauling of Parliament, including the broadcasting of its proceedings, a massive school and hospital building program; and a drive, in the fashion set by President Johnson, against poverty.

One measure of doctrinaire socialism at least seemed certain to spark controversy—nationalization of Britain's steel industry.

A bill to give effect to this, Wilson said, will be introduced into Parliament soon after the election if Labor wins.

Touring Japanese Professor To Lecture, Conduct Seminar

Shigeru Oae, professor of chemistry and chemical engineering at Osaka City University, Japan, will show color slides of his recent visit to Communist China at a lecture at 3 p.m. in Room 204 of President Carson. That afternoon he will hold a seminar at 3 p.m. in Room 205 of Lawson Hall.

Oae was invited to visit China, where he met and talked with many scientists and had the opportunity to take color slides. He is presently traveling through the United States as a touring scientist and later this year will be visiting professor of chemistry at Oregon State University for 10 weeks before returning to Japan.

His major scientific interest is in the field of organic sulfur chemistry, especially concerning the nature of sulfur bonds in organic compounds. He has done writing in this field and, with C. C. Price, wrote the book "Sulfur Bonding," described as one of the classics in the field of organic sulfur chemistry.

Design Society Plans Meeting

The National Society of Interior Design, SIU student chapter, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Room 303 of the Home Economics Building.

Clarence Hendershot of the International Student Center will speak on Persian art and architecture.

Bruce Goff to Lecture Here; 'Absurd, Fantastic' Architect

Bruce Goff, internationally known architect, will present an illustrated lecture at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Davis Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

Hugh D. Duncan, professor of sociology, will comment on the significance of Goff's architectural approach.

Goff was professor of architecture and later director of the Department of Architecture at the University of Oklahoma. His talk is sponsored by the SIU Student Society of Interior Design.

The architect's work has been referred to by critics as embrionick, absurd, fantastic, visionary and as evolution made apparent.

Chemistry Staff States Meetings

The Department of Chemistry has scheduled four meetings for this week.

Cheng Maw Wang, graduate student in chemistry, will discuss "Theory and Practice" in an organic-physical chemistry seminar at 4 p.m. today in Room 111 of Parkinson Laboratories.

Three meetings are scheduled Friday, Shigeru Oae, chairman of the Department of Chemistry of Osaka University in Japan, will present a seminar on "Hydrolysis of Aryl Benzenesulfonates and Oxygen Exchange of Phenols in Acid Media" at 3 p.m. in Room 204 of Parkinson.

Earle Allen, graduate assistant in chemistry, will talk about "search-synthesizing enzymes in an organic-biochemistry seminar at 4 p.m. in Room 204 of Parkinson.

Shechmeister to Speak

Issac I. Shechmeister, professor of microbiology, will address the zoology senior seminar at 4 p.m. today in Room 205 of the Life Sciences Building.

Salukis Capture Tournament Crown

For the first time in years, Evansville College basketball players can devote full time to study during the second week in March. The All-Turnaround, the Aces will be spectators at the NCAA college division finals. The Salukis whipped the Aces 90-77 Saturday night to capture the Great Lakes Regional crown and qualify for the finals, which start Wednesday. The Salukis employed their patented offense to the fullest in picking up their third victory this year over the Aces. This marks the first time in 14 years that any team has downed Evansville thrice in one season.

Boyd O'Neal, who was voted to the All-Tournament team, led the Saluki assault with a game high of 27 points and a school record of 22 rebounds. The 6-6 senior closed out his college career gracefully as he broke loose time and time again to score easy layups. O'Neal made 12 of 16 attempts from the field and three of four from the line.

Dave Lee, another All-Tournament selection, right behind him with 23 points as he hit eight of 12 field goal attempts. Southern's other All-Tournament member, George McNeil, turned in another fine performance as he scored 11 points and gave many assists to O'Neal under the basket.

Other Salukis in double figures were Ralph Johnson with 13 and Clarence Smith with 10. Johnson played a key role for Randy Coon, who was out with a fractured right hand. Johnson grabbed 10 rebounds in the first-round game with Indiana State.

Jerry Humes, who played only part time against Evansville, shot 44 percent from the field, and six of 10 from three point range. The Salukis had only five points in the second half. This was a mere two field goals in the second half.

With O'Neal and Lee leading the way, Southern built up 68-51 lead in the first 10 minutes of the second half, before Coach Arad McCutchin brought in the second team for the Aces. The first string came back in about three minutes of the game before Evansville began to pull up. The teams stayed about three points apart after that until the hot-shooting Salukis stretched their lead in the final minutes. Southern shot .516 from the field, missing only seven of 23 shots.

Southern continued its hot shooting in the second half and wound up hitting 34 of 56 from the field for a .607 percentage. The Salukis had shot .581 for the night against Indiana State.

The loss spoiled Evansville's chances for a third straight national crown and gave the Aces an 18-9 record for the season.

The Salukis now stand at 20-6, their final record a year ago, heading into Wednesday night contest with Fresno (Calif.) State.

3 Saluki Players Named To All-Tournament Team

Three players from Southern and one each from Evansville and Lamar Tech placed on the Great Lakes Regional all-tournament team.

Selected by the press, radio and television men were George McNeil, Dave Lee and Boyd O'Neal from Southern Tech, Lamar Tech and Southern Tech, respectively.

The five players totaled 204 points with 111 leading the way with 54, followed by Humes with 51.1, who also had the highest individual total, 35, in Friday night's game against Evansville.

McNeil and Humes were both voted as the tournament's most valuable players.

Recreation Events Planned for Week

This week's recreational program includes the following:

Basketball (from 7 to 10:30 p.m. today, Wednesday, and Friday, and from 1:30 to 5 p.m., Sunday at the University School gymnasium.

Basketball and volleyball from 8 to 10:30 p.m., Saturday and Sunday in the Stu Arena.

Weightlifting from 1 to 3 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday and Sunday.

Engineering - Sales-Management OPPORTUNITY

We are looking for a young man who is deferred from service, to specialize in the engineering part of our business. This would include designing heating, cooling and pumping systems and handling of associated problems involving pressures, combustion, electrical controls, etc.

He must also be able to handle sales and other parts of general management.

Exact knowledge in these fields is not necessary, only background and ability to learn.

This is an excellent opportunity to become a key man, and receive associated benefits in a growing firm.

Coaches Top Writers In Regional Contests

At last the basketball coaches have some convincing evidence that they know more about the game than the writers.

The brand of sports writers which selects the top 10 college division teams for the Associated Press Poll in Cheyney State was the No. 1 small college team.

The special panel of coaches, which does the choosing for United Press International, stayed with Southers.

So what happened? Cheyney State was defeated 57-47 by Long Island University for the second straight year for the No. 1 small college team rating.

Looking back over the three games with Evanstion this season, one would have to conclude that the play of Sam Watkins was a key factor.

In the two games won handily by Southern, Watkins was held to six and four points, and in SIU’s overtime victory a week ago, Watkins threw in 19.

Student government will sponsor two buses to Evans- ton Wednesday to watch the Illinois division finals each day the SIU play. The tournament begins Monday.

The buses will leave the University College at 4 p.m. and return about 1 a.m. Students must sign up for the bus before 10 a.m. the day of the game, the buses pass through the game and will be parked in Room H of the University Center.

The tickets must be purchased at the Arena. Single seats are $2 a session and are on sale from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4:30 p.m. at the Arena ticket office, but the sale will end at 3 p.m. Wed- nesday, Chair seats for all three days of the tournament are $9.

Students must have a valid trip permit from the Activities Office and coeds must arrange for extension of hours at their living unit.

McNeil was voted these comments:

"The injury.

The greatest college division teams for the region, while Southern kept its hopes of winning the championship alive by winning the Great Lakes Regional.

Lovelleter also tabbed Evanstion’s Larry Humes as a pro prospect at guard as McNeil had a chance with his great fall-away jump shot.

The tickets must be purchased at the Arena. Single seats are $2 a session and are on sale from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4:30 p.m. at the Arena ticket office, but the sale will end at 3 p.m. Wednesday, chair seats for all three days of the tournament are $9.

Students must have a valid trip permit from the Activities Office and coeds must arrange for extension of hours at their living unit.

Lovelleter also tabbed Evanstion’s Larry Humes as a pro prospect at guard as McNeil had a chance with his great fall-away jump shot.

So what happened? Cheyney State was defeated 57-47 by Long Island University in the final for the second straight year for the No. 1 small college team rating.

Looking back over the three games with Evanstion this season, one would have to conclude that the play of Sam Watkins was a key factor.

In the two games won handily by Southern, Watkins was held to six and four points, and in SIU’s overtime victory a week ago, Watkins threw in 19.
Lamar Defeats Sycamores, Wins 3rd Place in Regional

Using unbalanced scoring and unbalanced rebounding, Lamar Tech rolled to a 93-78 victory over Indiana State to take third place in the Great Lakes Regional.

Lamar got a brilliant 22-point performance from forward T. Nelson Bruce to pull a 44-37 lead over the Sycamores at the half. In the second half, three other players took over the scoring and one man pulled down 13 rebounds as Cardinals pulled away to win.

Odia Booker, a 6-3 center, was the big man in the second half for Lamar as he scored 15 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Jack Lynch, all-tournament selection, who scored 33 points against Evansville the night before, added 12 points as Lamar's other star.

Guard Jerry McKeller also contributed to the drive with 11 points. Indiana State, which appeared to be demoralized after its 85-65 loss the night before to Southern, shot for only a 36 percent field goal in the game.

The Sycamores had little spirit until the closing minutes. Before they brought the score to within 12 points, Hollenbeck, a 5-11 guard who had been averaging 10 points a game, was charged with fouls. Hollenbeck, who looks like a dropout from the Methodist church, broughtousing chasers from the largely uninterested crowd with his surging aggressiveness for a big man.

Indiana State also failed to gain an advantage as Are's usual scoring punch from the one-two combination of Barret and Dutch Wade, Newcomer, who had been averaging 27 points a game, sales only 5 points, and Wade, who had been averaging 21 a game and was a Little America last year, scored only 11 points.

$7 Conservation Fee Set at Crab Orchard

The Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge will collect conservation fees in the recreational areas from May 1 through Sept. 15.

L. A. Mehlhoff, project manager, said this will be Area 1 of the Crab Orchard Refuge. This area is the west half of Crab Orchard Lake and includes all of the major recreational developments of Crab Orchard.

Sixty percent of the money received will be matched by state funds and the amount will be spent on recreational development and maintenance throughout the state. The 40 percent by the federal government will be used by the various agencies and will be spent on land acquisition only. This 40 percent will not be used for the development and maintenance of existing recreational facilities, but it will be used to acquire additional recreational lands where needed.

Several types of entrance fees will be charged. The fully colored $7 permit is the only one valid on a nationwide basis. This fee allows the purchaser, and all who accompany him in a private automobile, to more than 7,000 federal recreation areas.

Other permits are good on Crab Orchard only. In addition to the $7 annual permit, there will be a 30 consecutive day permit for $3, which permits the driver who accompanies him to the area for 30 days, a business operator's individual permit for $1.50 and a one day permit for $1 for the driver of a vehicle and those who accompany him. The only permit that will be valid in other recreation areas is the $7 annual permit.

Two types of collection booths will be used. Certain areas will have collection booths at the entrance of the area; other areas will be covered by a roving patrol.

Collection booths will be installed at Carterville Beach, Crab Orchard Beach and Lookout Point. An information trailer will be placed at the junction of Old 13 and the Lake Road on the west side of Crab Orchard Lake. This information trailer will be manned seven days a week in order to answer questions and to sell the conservation permits. On Crab Orchard Lake there will be three areas that will be excluded from this fee assessment: they are Pirates Cove, Playport Marinus and the Crab Orchard Campground. These areas will be excluded from assessment because the federal government is currently taking a percentage of their revenue. All other recreation areas on Crab Orchard Lake will be under the fee collection system.

The reserved group picnic areas will be operated on a first-come-first-served basis; if all personnel using the area have the conservation permit, the fee will not be required. Fees scheduled for the reserved Group Picnic Area will be $5 for groups of up to 50, $10 for groups of 51-100 and $15 for groups over 100.

If all members of the group are driving cars which have the $7 fee sticker, it is not necessary to pay the group fee.

The permit should be displayed on the inside of the automobile when it is within the designated federal recreation area. An individual may carry the permit; and if he has more than one car, he will cover the other car he happens to be driving. This permit is classed as an entrance fee, and under the land and water conservation fund additional fees will be charged after entrance. Those businesses are classed as user fees, and will not be charged at Crab Orchard Refuge at the present time.

Areas designated for collection will be posted with signs indicating that the conservation fee is required. Little Crasey and Devil's Kitchen will not be assessed this year because of the distance involved from the main collection points. It is very possible that next year the fee will be required at these two areas.

The new permits are scheduled to go on sale in April at numerous government offices. The Crab Orchard Refuge has not received any of the permits at this time. However, it is expected that sales will begin sometime in early April.

ODIS BOOKER

Bruce wound up as the high man for Lamar with 29 points. His 22-point effort in the first half tailed off in the second as he had only one of seven from the field. A player followed him with 21 points.

Other Cardinals in double figures were McKeller with 15 and Booker with 18 points and 20 rebounds.

Indiana State, which had beaten Southern earlier in the year, finished with a record of 32-6. Lamar Tech bowed out with a 17-9 mark.
