SIU Officials Will Review Disturbance

SIU officials will meet at 10 a.m. today to decide what further action might be necessary in the case of two graduate student assistants who pleaded guilty to peace disturbance early Friday morning at a Carbondale trailer court.

One of the students, John J. Oexenman, also pleaded guilty to possessing a deadly weapon. He was fined a total of $125.

The other student is James E. Adams, also 21. He was fined $25 for disturbing the peace.

The incident took place about 3:30 a.m. Friday, and, according to the Office of Student Affairs, involved other students living nearby who complained about Oexenman's playing music too loudly. Oexenman and Adams, who live together, threatened the complaining students and the police were called, the office reported.

A spokesman for the Office of Student Affairs said his office protected the meeting today, as will the Graduate School and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The complaining students and Oexenman and Adams will attend the meeting also.

Broadcast Service Reassigns Staff

Several reassignments in radio television staff positions were announced this week from the broadcasting office of C. Robbins, director of the SIU Broadcasting Service. Howard Byrung has been named operations manager for television, he has been film director for television, John L. Kurtz, formerly assistant director for television, is now production manager. Clifton Holman, who had been operations manager for radio, now is producer-director for television.

Richard M. Uray, now operations manager for radio, has been serving as operations manager for television. Grundy.

Architect's Office Tabulating Bids

On $3 Million Classroom Building

Bids were opened at 3 p.m. Tuesday in Mckay Auditorium on the new $3,000,000 General Classroom Building at SIU.

Willard Hart, university architect, said these were tabulated and analyzed. Other steps include comparison with cost estimates, to determine which options are acceptable in line with the budget provided.

The bids alone, without consideration of alternatives, totaled $2,322,728.

Hart said the budget figures are now a year old and construction costs have risen by upwards of six percent since that time.

After the tabulation and analysis are complete, a recommendation will be prepared for the SIU Board of Trustees' meeting in November, Hart said. The proposed start on the new building, across Grand Avenue from the new Education Building, is 10 days after the award of contracts, he added.

The following consists of base bids only, and does not include alternates of addition or subtraction unless otherwise indicated.

Five bids were received for the plumbing work. The apparent low bidder on base bid was Tibbetts Plumbing & Heating, of Anderson, Ind. Its base bid was $198,925. This bid contained only one alternative and these ranged from $1,300 to $1,800; the next lowest base bid was $195,289 from John J. Galan Co., of Chicago.

Four bids, with no alternatives, were received on temperature control work. The apparent low bidder was

Must Report All Changes

In Attendance

The Registrar's Office has announced that SIU will keep local draft boards notified of draft-age men who are enrolled full-time at SIU.

In the past, such information has been supplied only at a student's request. According to Registrar Robert A. McGrath, the Registrar's Office must report any change in attendance status of a student to his local draft board. This is important because change to part-time enrollment or drop-out may affect the student's draft status. A student's own home town draft boards are to be determined by the students' own Selective Service information cards completed by all males of draft age.

As a student approaches draft age, McGrath said, his local draft board will send him a letter. A student who is now enrolled full-time can expect to receive a letter from the Registrar's Office informing him of the change. Earlier, John H. Hammack, assistant service director, warned you to remember to report your current address immediately to your local draft board or induction office as a delinquent.

He said that until recently boards of present were notifying all youthful men classified ending under 21.2 who are now in the draft and order him for immediate induction prior to his regular turn.

Programs For Storage of Firearms

Announced By Student Office

Programs for storage of firearms in on-campus student housing and_bitmaping are now being planned by the Office of Student Affairs in its effort to make possible possession of such weapons by hunting enthusiasts and students interested in target shooting.

The major concern of the Student Affairs Office is the safety factor, a spokesman said.

Resident counselors and fellows will control the storage and issue of the firearms. Lockers will be available for each residence hall. Plans in the past have included a check-out system which required that students fill out forms giving time and place where insurance forms were to be kept. This program has estimated time of return and hunting companions. If any, before the beginning of the hunting season. Guns must be registered with the Office of Student Affairs and the household must assume the responsibility for storage and issue of the firearms, according to the spokesman.

Students whose household refuses to assume the responsibility must resign his or her present residence hall and apply for new on-campus housing. The spokesman said.

Harold Hakes, educational director for SIU, said the individual student requirements for dormitory, bath facilities, and common Richard, common building.

The basic plans were discussed at a committee meeting of student leaders and the householder association, two high-rise halls of 16 student rooms and a common building for dining and recreation facilities, according to a report from Yolke.
Mary Jo Haines To Head Childhood Education Group

Castro Escapes Drowning In Storm Flood

Havana

Prime Minister Fidel Castro narrowly escaped drowning in an Oriente Province river flooded by the rains of Hurricane Flora, Radio Havana said Tuesday.

The story of Castro's mis­hap was broadcast to the Cuban people in the wake of a gov­ernment order halting their food rations to compensate for Flora's damage to crops, poultry and livestock.

The bearded prime min­ister and three aides were on an inspection tour when their truck swamped in the swift current. Peasants hurled ropes to Castro's party and the prime minister and his aides pulled themselves to safety.

The hurricane, flailing and flooding Cuba for the fifth day, whirled slowly northeastward today toward the south Bahamas.

Peak winds were 75 miles an hour, the weather bureau said, and were located about 80 miles north northwest of Guantánamo Bay and 440 miles southeast of Miami.

The hurricane's winds were expected to increase as it passed into the Atlantic.

Residents in the southeast­ern Bahamas were warned to take emergency precautions immediately against strong winds and high tides.

Washington

Investigating senators on Tuesday got the names and numbers of key figures in the Pentagon's underworld, an Informer Joseph Valachi told them the morning the New York mob runs into the thousands.

A New York police investi­gator traced the hierarchy of the secret crime brother­hood called Cosa Nostra on five rogue's gallery charts­­ complex with pictures.

Valachi told of 14 years as an underworld loan shark, and said he repented as "the best shylock around."

And he testified labor racketeers kept unions out of a dress shop in which he held as interest.

There were 356 names on the charts of Cosa Nostra's five "families" in New York, and almost every entry was marked with an asterisk­­ meaning the man was identi­fied by Valachi.

Because of a bomb threat received by the FBI Valachi's government guards clamped stiff new security measures on the Senate caucus room.

Eisenhower, Goldwater Differ, But Will Join On GOP Policy

Gettysburg, Pa.

Former President Eisen­hower disagrees with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., on some civil rights and tax is­sues but the two will work to­gether for a terse 1964 party platform,

Eisenhower called on Rep­ublicans in an interview with The Associated Press for a "good lively fight" at next year's convention over a short, "clean-cut program of action" and the nomination of a presidential candidate who supports his majority views, Goldwater, a potential bid­der for the 1964 nomination, said in a separate interview.

Washington that he and Eisen­hower have agreed they will support a short statement of principles instead of the usual lengthy, all-inclusive platform.

He said he spoke to the former president recently about this and other matters.

Eisenhower, who recently said he was unclear about some of Goldwater's views, said he thinks the Arizona senator "has probably taken a moderate course" on civil rights.

He was reminded that Gold­water opposed a provision of the Kennedy program which would require integration in businesses serving the public.

The former president said he thought the Arizona senator "has probably taken a moderate course" on civil rights.

Goldwater commented that he has no intention of soften­ing his stand on a provi­sion he contends involves an invasion of private property rights.
Microbiologists Seek Answers To Riddle Of Cancer

Lindegren Hunts Clues In Yeast Cell Mutations

Cells of yeast and cells of the human body are "basically alike," Question: Does a single cell offer an avenue of study of cancer in human beings?

Seeking the answer to this general question has been the major life work of Carl C. Lindegren, chairman of the Department of Microbiology at Southern Illinois University.

Speaking of the yeast cell and the human cell, Lindegren said, "In all major respects, they are basically alike. There are many differences, but there are more resemblances than differences. If you know all about one cell, you would know all about life. Generally speaking, we know nothing about the single cell."

Lindegren traced a cellular process of the human body that starts at conception with a single cell and develops within three months into a living organism co-possessed of billions of cells. It is like a pyramid of marbles, with the single original marble (cell) at the top dividing and multiplying.

"For most parts of the body, life is a continuous replacement of cells. Lindegren used the skin as an example: a person continually loses skin and as long as the skin cells maintain their "integrity," all goes well. However, when these cells lose this integrity, cancer can result.

Definition Of Cancer Given

As 'Insult To The Cell'

Lindegren defined cancer as the failure of tissue to maintain its integrity. Skin cancer is a common form. It is associated with this continuing process of loss of cells and their replacement. These forms of cancer, Lindegren said, arise because this process of cellular replacement is absent. He cited the nervous system, and the brain, as examples; the nervous system is subject to normal replacement in life, and the cells of the brain are there for a lifetime, although gradual loss and not replacement.

The term "cancer" can become one of how to prevent tissue cells from losing their integrity. In cases of muscle damage, the tissue repairs itself to some extent; why is it able to continue to do so? Why doesn't it change unless it becomes cancerous? The skin, the surface of the stomach, the intestines continually "heal" cells; why do these parts of the body repair themselves and why don't others?

"In cancer, we get a different type of cell that is not subject to normal replacement or control processes. What are the common controls? We don't know them," Lindegren said.

The mystery is not why cancer happens, he added, but why it does not happen at the right time. Any kind of irritation or "insult to the cell" where this cell can cause cancer, he continued, and he mentioned poisonous and malnutrition as examples.

The development of the human from the single cell results through progressive division into billions of cells which differentiate into the cells of the nerves, eyes, skin, and so forth. These cells maintain their identity throughout the life of the individual. The problem: What maintains this character, and what causes it to change?

Lindegren's work in the mystery of the cell is done with yeast. It is a single-celled organism and was described previously. It is basically similar to the human cell. His objective is to try to find out what causes the yeast cell to change, and to try to control this change.

X-rays, Poisons, Nutrients

Used To Create Mutations

In other studies in genetics, Mendel used peas, and Morgan used fruit flies. Lindegren originally started with bread mold, but in 1940, Anheuser-Busch started to support his work. Lindegren said this firm makes 50 per cent of the bread at the baker's yeast in the United States, and the association combined practical and theoretical problems.

His laboratory in the Life Sciences Building now has 40,000 yeast cultures. These are subjected to all types of stress, to study change in the cell and the factors producing or controlling change.

Among the stresses are X-rays, ultraviolet rays, poisons or nutrients, excesses or deficiencies of oxygen. Another approach is what quality enables a yeast cell to use certain rare sugars, and what causes the cell to lose this capacity.

He described recent work in which the yeast cell was subjected to virus infection. The virus produced a recognizable growth difference; "it achieved differentiation," as Lindegren phrased it.

Earlier, he had mentioned virus among the "intrants" capable of producing cancer.

This work is being carried on at SIU by what Lindegren calls "an organized, integrated team" composed of persons from Japan, India, Korea and the Republic of China. Each member, Lindegren said, has a special function on the team.

Lindegren did his undergraduate work in plant pathology at the University of Wisconsin, which he left in 1923. He then went to "Cal Tech," the California Institute of Technology, where he started his study of genetics and where he obtained his doctorate, which was there from 1928 to 1931, at Pittsburgh until 1934, and at USC from 1934 to 1936. He was at the University of Missouri in 1940 to 1948, when he came to SIU.

Mrs. Lindegren is a research assistant and has been working in her husband's laboratory since they were at the University of Southern California in the 1930s.

His laboratory has one of two electron microscopes on the SIU campus, and one of five "interference" microscopes in the United States. Lindegren said this $12,000 instrument permits seeing things not ordinarily visible to a lab microscope.

And so the work goes on, attempting to discover secrets in the single-celled organism called yeast. As Lindegren relates it, the problem is described, but not analyzed. There are many schools of thought but none yet on a solid, objective basis.

The living state as made manifest on earth at present has all developed from a single kind of association; everything living is related to everything else alive, he said. Speaking of his work with the single-celled organism, yeast, he said, "If we can understand this one small facet... if you know all about one cell, you would know all about life."

The House of Representatives has approved a measure that would appropriate the sum of $1.3 billion to turn the "Pacific battle acrossee of Corregidor Into a World War II "War Memorial." This sum is $300 million more than the recent military pay raises. For fiscal 1963 Congress voted only $263,983,500 for the building of 13,900 military retirement housing units. Just what kind of "War Memorial" are we building? Corregidor is a couple of square miles off the Philippines and is approximately 8066 miles from China.

In your cartoon (Oct. 4) you try to say Negro college students aren't aware of our situation. The most diligent fighters are Negro students—among them the National Peace Union. There were others who were outspoken critics of the Pentagon's actions in the area.

The cartoon also fails to point out that the National Peace Union has been "informed" by the Department of Justice that it cannot function in California as a society for political purposes because of the "seditionary" nature of much of its activities. This is why the National Peace Union has been forced to change its name, the National Peace Union is now the Civil Rights Union. The National Peace Union has been active in the struggle for civil rights in the South for over 20 years. It is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and is associated with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

SAY SOMETHING FUNNY

S. BARRY GOLDWATER

Military Expert Fights Curb

Adm. George W. Anderson recently supplied an interesting footnote to the struggle of the military men in the Pentagon to keep from being subordinated to computer-minded civil servants in Washington. He said the computer people, he said, "cannot jeopardize our national security."

It will be remembered that Adm. Anderson was reprimanded as America's naval chief of staff in the two-year term. The administration that placed him was partly because of his outspoken criticism of the Pentagon decision to place the TRX fighter in the Air Force. He was in the Air Force, partly because of it was regarded as whirled his uncooperative attitude toward the chief of staff, Secretary of the Navy, Mr. McFadden.

New Envoy to Portugal

The admiral's remarks were made before the National Press Club just one day after Anderson was sworn in as ambassador to Portugal. Last July he had a continuing association with the New Frontier administration before leaving for Portugal.

Adm. Anderson told the newsmen he had decided to speak out because of his growing concern over the military build-up in the Pentagon. He said:

"My first concern is over the prospective naval and maritime positions of the United States versus the Soviet Union. There is no doubt that the Soviets are moving forward rapidly on the high seas, both economically and militarily.

"On the other hand, much of our navy is growing old and rusted. The state of our merchant shipping is also declining, while that of the Russian is increasing.

"The other personnel know that they must be continually responsible to national security requirements. They also must be responsible to any particular administrative civil service authority prevailing in the department at any particular time and to the responsibilities of their service secretaries.

"Civilian officials and staff assistants should be permitted to recognize that effective expression of contrary views in proper channels or in frank requests to congressional inquiry do not represent a challenge to the validity of the military control. There is no such challenge.

High Standards of Integrity

"Our civilian officials should appreciate that the standard of conduct prescribed for government officials of religious communities and must be kept that way. Mutual confidence and trust are not hard to come by. It is a matter of keeping down quickly by one or two impulsive actions or intemperate judgments.

"I'm concerned also regarding a trend in the major procurement policies with the development of the instruction of our military services. I view any diminution of military recommendations on weapons procurement with grave alarm. Certainly the abrupt reversal of military recommendations without interim consultation, as was the case in the TPX and VINTA (Lenticular Field) contracts, is fraught at a minimum with unpleasing developments and potentially with grave dangers.

Letters to Editor

The House of Representatives has approved a measure that would appropriate the sum of $1.3 billion to turn the "Pacific battle acrossee of Corregidor Into a World War II "War Memorial." This sum is $300 million more than the recent military pay raises. For fiscal 1963 Congress voted only $263,983,500 for the building of 13,900 military retirement housing units. Just what kind of "War Memorial" are we building? Corregidor is a couple of square miles off the Philippines and is approximately 8066 miles from China.

In your cartoon (Oct. 4) you try to say Negro college students aren't aware of our situation. The most diligent fighters are Negro students—among them the National Peace Union. There were others who were outspoken critics of the Pentagon's actions in the area.

The cartoon also fails to point out that the National Peace Union has been "informed" by the Department of Justice that it cannot function in California as a society for political purposes because of the "seditionary" nature of much of its activities. This is why the National Peace Union has been forced to change its name, the National Peace Union is now the Civil Rights Union. The National Peace Union has been active in the struggle for civil rights in the South for over 20 years. It is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and is associated with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.
The Spirit Is Willing:

Team Spirit High For Lincoln Game

SIU's football squad was a battered and bruised lot Tuesday, but spirit was still running high. Three a.m. sessions in preparation for their second home date of the season against Illinois Central University Saturday night.

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. in McIntyre Stadium.

Coach Carmen Piccone was highly pleased with his young charges. SIU's 13-0 victory over Central Missouri State was its second straight season opening win.

"Lincoln is a team that's all over the field, all the time, and they can surprise you any time," Southern's grid piper said Tuesday. "Their backs are fast, fast real, and they have good team speed."

Southern stopped the Tigers 13-0 here last year, but it was a victory that wasn't earned easily. Lincoln kept playing even after a sure out of the bat in a determined display of wide-open football.

On one play in particular, the Tigers were stopped by the Salukis defense on their own 10 yard line, with a fourth down and 15 big yards to go. They moved into punt formation, but quarterback Perry Stewart fooled everyone by throwing a pass. The runner was caught by an alert Southern defender, but not until he had galloped for huge yardage.

Lincoln has won just one game this season, the Missouri Valley School of Mines 24-6 game opener, but the Tigers have since dropped three in a row.

Arkansas AM & N stopped their winless crew on a 19-6 count, the speed merchants of Florida A & M bounced them to tune of 44-6. Last week the Tigers saw their defense crumble in the last half and fall to the San Diego, 27-6.

Lincoln didn't roll over and play dead for the Marines, always a tough football aggregation. The Tigers had a few hard times, 6-3, then lost it on two quick touchdowns.

Southern was outweighed at least 30 pounds per man from tackle to tackle, and the result was that three Saluki tackles may not play this Saturday. Vic Pantaleo, sophomore starter from Chicago, Jack Lang, junior starter from Woodbury, N.J., and Jim Stewart, another junior from Dan Quin, all took pretty bad beatings and their status is doubtful.

Salukis picked up 139 yards rushing compared to 66 for Cape. Gary Olson was the leading ground gainer, compiling 48 yards in 13 carries. Cape held a slight advantage in passing, picking up 69 yards through the air.

What Southern Illinois Needs Is A Good Three-Day Rain

"What we need is a good 48 to 72 hour drizzle," commented Dr. Floyd Cunningham, director of SIU's Climatology Laboratory. The ground is extremely dry and needs a gentle, soaking rain, he explained.

Dr. Cunningham said only .47 of an inch of rain fell in this area during the month of September, while 3.4 inches are normal. Several explanations of the lack of rain were offered by Dr. Cunningham. The principal cause is a continuing high pressure area over most of the nation.

The SIU campus is dependent upon warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico combining with cool fronts from Canada to cause rainfalls.

During September the lack of one or both these factors left us hot and dry. When a front did move from the north, it traveled so slowly that the front temperature was the same as that of the ground below and therefore did not cause precipitation.

The total rainfall in 1963 through the month of August was only 21.96 inches, well below the normal of 31.17 inches through the same period.

Dr. Cunningham said that despite the as far as not offered any improvement over Sepemhsr.

Similarities between the current dry spell and a drought 10 years ago have spurred a move for a multicity water system in Southern Illinois, the Associated Press reported.
