Lawmakers vow to reverse flag ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawmakers from both parties, vening outrage over the Supreme Court's decision to legalize burning of the American flag, vowed Thursday to overturn the "treasonous" ruling, and President Bush declared that desecrating the flag was "wrong, dead wrong."

One day after an unusual coalition of liberal and conservative justices agreed 5-4 that burning the American flag was a protected form of free speech, House and Senate members rushed to decry the ruling.

Several members, both Republicans and Democrats, pushed constitutional amendments to make flag desecration illegal — the only way to reverse the high court's decision, which threw out numerous laws across the country.

The Senate approved a resolution expressing its "profound disappointment" at the Supreme Court decision and pledged "to seek ways to restore sanctions against such reprehensible conduct." The vote was 95-3.

A surprising dissent was cast by Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., a leading conservative, who said the resolution does not specify what constitutes desecration.

Senators William Proxmire, D-Wis., Frank Church, D-Ill., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, will introduce a constitutional amendment to alter the flag laws, which will be subject to a two-year return residence requirement.

BEIJING (UPI) — Seven protesters were put to death Thursday in Beijing for joining the citywide uprising against the military crackdown on the democracy movement, raising to at least 27 the number of people executed in the 15-day period, state-run media said.

Official media announced new detentions and convictions in the nationwide purge of remnants of the movement, including the arrests of seven men who allegedly belonged to a Taiwanese "spy ring" that incited protests, as well as a plot to topple the government.

Beijing has been charging foreigners involved in the student-led movement for greater liberty in an in-custody propaganda blitz aimed at justifying retribution for what it calls "counter-revolutionary rebellion" by "bugs" and "criminals" and assigning the army of responsibility for the bloodshed that convulsed the capital.

The wave of executions and convictions came despite international appeals for clemency and indicated the government intends to ignore damage to China's image abroad and continue a sweep for dissidents that has netted more than 100 people.

The official Xinhua News Agency reported the executions of seven "rioters" convicted June 17 for participating in the citywide insurrection against troops and civilians that swept into Beijing June 3 to enforce martial law and end a 25-day student occupation of Tiananmen Square.

Thousands of civilians armed with rocks and gasoline bombs fought to defend the site, the focal point of the largest anti-government protests to sweep China in 40 years of communist rule.

The government says some 300 people, half of them soldiers, died. But hospitals reported at least 231 civilian deaths before they stopped reporting casualties tolls and unofficial fatality estimates range as high as 3,000.

Footage aired on the local television evening news showed the seven convicted prisoners wearing loose black garments and with their faces locked in despair. Their seven were convicted with an eighth defendant of "setting fire to military trucks, stealing military goods and assaulting soldiers of the People's Liberation Army during the recent counter-revolutionary rebellion."

Local veterans, students react to flag ruling

The Supreme Court's decision to protect burning of the American flag has provoked heated debate among lawmakers and students to speak out.

"I think burning the American flag sticks," Sheri Taylor, manager at Unixia, Washington, D.C., said.

"The Supreme Court ruled that political protesters have a right to burn the flag without interference from authorities," she said.

Taylor said that while she almost everyone at the VFW conserved, who said the resolution does not specify what constitutes desecration.

Senators William Proxmire, D-Wis., Frank Church, D-Ill., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, will introduce a constitutional amendment to alter the flag laws, which will be subject to a two-year return residence requirement.

The majority of Chinese students at SIU-D hold J-1 visas, according to Jan Chen, a doctoral student in history from Shangai. He said most of the students at the University are not supported by the Chinese government, though students who rely on the government probably could find alternate support.

"I think that (bill) is very important and very practical," Chen said. "I think that most Chinese students here Proposed bill could help Chinese remain in U.S.

A bill introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives could help Chinese nationals remain in the United States without endangering their chances for permanent resident status.

The sponsor of the bill, Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., wants to allow the Chinese to change status within non-immigrant categories and be able to apply for permanent resident status.

"If a single Chinese student can stand up to a tank in Beijing, we should be able to stand up to the bureaucracy in America to prevent Chinese citizens from being sent home," Pelosi said.

The bill would also provide a waiver for the J-1 visitor visa's two-year return residence requirement.

Current J-1 holders of J-1 tourism and exchange visas are required, after returning to China, to remain in their country for at least two years. The sponsor of the bill, Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., wants to allow the Chinese to change status within non-immigrant categories and be able to apply for permanent resident status.

"Now is not the time to reduce options for Chinese citizens living in the United States," Pelosi said.

Demonstrators urge ouster of Polish leader Jaruzelski

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Thousands of demonstrators held rallies in four cities Thursday demanding the ouster of Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski. The official news agency PAP said about 1,000 people staged a demonstration against Jaruzelski in the southwestern city of Wroclaw. A Solidarity estimate said more than 3,000 took part. “Jaruzelski must go,” the demonstrators, who were not hindered by police, shouted. “Freedom for China,” chanted others, referring to pro-democracy protests crushed by the army earlier this month.

Vietnam planning attack on Cambodian rebels

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnamese troops in Cambodia plan a final offensive against rebel forces before Vietnamese units withdraw in September, a Thai official said Thursday amid reports the Cambodian government recently received Soviet tanks and artillery. Lt. Gen. Haruweal Dejsapradyuth, director for information for the Thai Supreme Command, said the Vietnamese troops apparently want to ease the pressure on Cambodian government forces before they withdraw from the Southeast Asian nation.

No further sanctions considered against China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker told a congressional committee Thursday that the administration does not consider further sanctions against China “for the time being” despite reports of more violations of human rights by governments. Baker, answering questions by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the Chinese are already clear about the U.S. attitude and that the United States must take into account “foreign policy considerations” in deciding to take action against the Chinese government.

Bush calls on Americans to volunteer service

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Bush proposed a $100 million national volunteer program Thursday, urging all Americans to become “points of light” by helping to end homelessness, hunger, drug abuse and other problems. In a speech to New York civic leaders, Bush officially outlined his four-year plan “to join hands and link hearts, to light up the American sky.”

Hurricane Cosme reduced to tropical storm

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Hurricane Cosme lost force and was downgraded to a tropical storm Thursday after damaging buildings and causing no injuries in the southern Mexican resort towns of Puerto Escondido and Acapulco. 180 miles southwest of Mexico City, but there was no damage in the Pacific resort towns popular with North American tourists.

Senate favors Democratic child care program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted for an improved and expanded child care program backed by Democrats Thursday, but key sponsors said they were willing to work with the White House and Republicans on a compromise. Ignoring a veto threat by President Bush, the Senate approved the Democratic child care plan 63-37 after narrowly rejecting, almost strictly along party lines, a Republican counter proposal 58-44.

Eastern Airlines to sell three planes to Dallas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eastern Airlines said Thursday it formally asked a bankruptcy court to allow it to impose up to $40 million in temporary wage cuts and permanent work rule changes on its pilots. The filing, made one day later than planned, asked the court to allow Eastern to break its contract with the Air Line Pilots Association and impose changes proposed to the union June 8. The cuts would save up to $50 million through 1990, the company said.

Martin to challenge Sen. Paul Simon in 1990

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., insisting she will not be a "sacrificial lamb," said Thursday she will try to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Simon in 1990. The five-term House veteran said she made the decision to run for the Senate after consulting with President Bush, leading Republicans in the state and family members.

The 1989 Street Machine Nationals will be held this weekend in Du Quoin. The 12th annual event features street machines and sport trucks that were built from 1949 to the present. The show will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, attracting car enthusiasts from across the country.

Randy Kron, publicity coordinator for the event, said he is expecting 3,500 entrants and about 100,000 spectators for the three-day show. “Hopefully, we’ll have a better turnout than we did last year. The temps were around 100 degrees for the event last year and that kept the attendence down,” he said.

A Watkins exhibition is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday. The rock group Stoneface will perform later that afternoon on the main stage from 4 to 6 p.m. The Kenwood Auto Sound Challenge will be held on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased in advance at area Kroger stores or Lincoln Auto Parts. Prices are $5.50 for adults and $3 for children age 6 to 12. Tickets purchased at the gate are $8.

Competition Engineering Pro Street judging and peer judging will be held on Saturday. The awards ceremony will be at 4 p.m. on Sunday.

The Street Machine Nationals is presented by Ford Motor Sports and - part of the General Tire Performance Series.

State, local police gearing up for Street Machine Nationals

By Richard Goldstein  Staff Writer

The opening day of the Street Machine Nationals brings more than car enthusiasts and their souped-up autos. It also brings a flood of state police to maintain order over the weekend.

Working out of District 13, which includes the southern most 14 counties, Jerry Rosson, coordinator of the operation for the state police, said 30 state police officers have arrived and will be coordinating the weekend’s law enforcement effort with the Du Quoin Police Department and the Perry County Sheriff’s Department.

Records for past arrest totals over the weekend could not be found, but police reported 200 traffic citations and 230 warrants issued in 1987, with a crowd of 65,000 at the annual event. This year’s crowd is expected to reach 100,000.

Rosson said the annual car show “generates huge volumes of alcohol, drug and traffic related arrests.”

He said there will be 25 state police officers on the grid at any given time with the majority of officers patrolling the vicinity.

SUNDERLAND’S
to offer a variety of events

Southern Illinois has improved the way it handles the lodging problem caused by the Du Quoin Street Machine Nationals, Trixie Rosson, director of the Carbondale Convention and Tourism Bureau, said.

“We aren’t experiencing any problems at this time,” Rosson said. “I guess we’ve been here long enough to know what we’re doing.”

Richey said the addition of four new motels to the area will relieve some of the pressure associated with the scramble for rooms that starts months before the event.

“We’re expecting between 62,000 and 65,000 people this year,” Richey said. “The added rooms will help a lot.”

The new motels provide an additional 300 rooms to the Carbondale area, bringing the total to 1,131 rooms. However, the new motels all reported being full for the weekend.

Tami Humble, a guest services representative at Shoney’s Inn in Marion said the new motel was making special preparations for the weekend event.

“We will have more people on shifts than normal,” she said, after explaining that the 118 room motel was booked up through the weekend.

“We’ve been booked up for this weekend since we opened three months ago,” said Dave Perschbacher, manager of Marion’s new Comfort Inn which sleeps 300 people. “We’ll be adding security for our guest’s protection as well.”

The two other new motels, Riverview Motel of Murphysboro and Super 8 of Carbondale, also reported no vacancy for this weekend.

Richey said her bureau would again be providing a national 800 telephone number for tourists this year. Tourists can call 1-800-535-1500 to check on cancellations or reservations problems.

“Tis the second year for this service,” Richey said. “We’ll have a tent set up at the fairgrounds next to the registration tent for this.”

Daily Eggs: $1.50
The last week President George Bush exercised his veto power for the first time on a bill proposing to raise the national minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.55. Defense of the veto centered around what Republicans said would be a loss of jobs for the working class, the people the bill was supposed to benefit.

A Congress dominated by Democrats failed to override the veto by the two-thirds majority necessary. The failed vote was 247-178 in favor of the override. A total of 280 votes would have been necessary to override the veto.

Democrats feel making the bill a law was the "right" thing to do and following the veto began work on at least one new bill attempting to accomplish the increase.

Bush made no attempts to hide his opinions of the Democrat's bill and openly stated he would veto any bill varying from his own minimum wage proposal.

Bush's proposal calls for an increase to $4.75 by 1992 provided employers can pay a lower wage for the first six months of an individual's employment no matter the person's experience.

The Democrat's bill called for a 60-day training wage for those getting their first job and it would have gone into effect October 1.

The original plan became law, and even Bush's proposal, the University's student worker population would more than likely be reduced. Latest figures have the number of University College Work Study employees, a federally funded program, at 1,952.

According to the Student Work and Financial Aid Office these workers earned a total of $1,552,304 during the 1988-89 academic year, the last year figures were available. Currently, 80 percent of this figure is paid by the federal government with the rest paid by the University. Beginning July 1 the government will begin paying 75 percent with the University paying the other 25 percent.

The state provides funds for 2,410 employees who earned $2,445,252 and there are 8,286 positions funded by both the financial aid office and "local" resources. These are the funds not paid by either the federal or state governments.

Should Illinois Speaker of the House Michael Madigan's temporary income tax increase be approved, it would necessarily result in more money for student work positions, nor would a permanent increase in income taxes.

All this puts student work positions in a sort of limbo.

The federal government should consider its reduction in the number of funds for College Work Study or consider additional funds for universities.

The state was also putting up some of the funds necessary to keep current levels of students employed.

Students already working for minimum wage deserve at least a small raise since the last increase occurred in 1981 when the minimum wage was increased from $3.10 to its current level.

With a new minimum wage and no support from the federal and state government the alternatives are not bright. Increases in tuition, reducing the number of student positions or reducing the amount of hours students can work would seem to be logical decisions necessary for the University to make.

Democrats and Republicans need to put their heads together and work for wage that would benefit both student and non-student minimum wage earners.

One Republican representative from Wisconsin said 65 percent of those earning minimum wage are single, work part-time and go to school.

As a result of Bush's veto Democrats have an opportunity to think about the minimum wage in greater detail, and while they're busy Bush should think about a compromise to his firm stance on the issue.

Viewpoint

Freedom of speech extended too far

In protecting persons who burn the American flag from prosecution, the Supreme Court stretched the First Amendment's right of free speech to an excessive degree.

The court ruled, by a narrow 5-4 vote, that it was "expressive conduct" permitted by the Constitution when Texas Governor Johnson torched the U.S. flag during the 1984 Republican convention while anti-Reagan marchers chanted: "America, the red, white and blue, we spit on you."

Johnson was arrested for violating a Texas law making it a crime to desecrate the American flag. Similar laws have been passed by 47 other states and the federal government. He was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $2,000.

In overturning his conviction, the Supreme Court said, in an opinion by Chief Justice William Brennan Jr., that the "government may not prohibit any speech simply because it disagrees with its message ... We do not consider the flag by punishing its desecration, we dilute the freedom that this emblem represents."

Brennan misread the intent of the state of Texas if he believes Johnson was prosecuted because it disagreed with his messages whatever that message was. The state prosecuted Johnson because its people and its legislature believe that the American flag is a symbol of all this nation stands for and should not be defiled.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, in his dissenting opinion, aptly characterized Johnson's repugnant action. He said that flag burning "is the equivalent of an inarticulate grunt or roar that, it seems fair to say, is most likely to be indulged in not to express any particular idea, but to antagonize others."" Only the barest of public school knowledge would enable one to make the right decision about high court decisions by changing the basic law.

President Bush, who leaned heavily on the symbolism of the flag in his campaign last fall, could ask Congress to initiate an amendment to the Constitution making it illegal to desecrate the American flag. Such a defense of the right to make a crime within their jurisdiction as a majority of people do would hardly pass.

Another dissent, liberal Justice John Paul Stevens said that "sanctioning the public desecration of the flag will tarnish its value - both for those who cherish the ideas for which it waves and for those who desire to don the robes of martyrdom by burning it.""

The Supreme Court's decision will not sit well with most Americans, and something ought to be done about it. The Supreme Court is a judicial umpire; it is not sovereign. The Constitution clearly gives the people, through their representatives in Congress, the right to override high court decisions by changing the basic law.

Quotable Quotes

"Please do not misinterpret this visit in any way. We are adamantly opposed to any form of prejudice, particularly when it is inspired and ordained by a government, be it in South Africa or anywhere else in the world." - According to a statement released by the Commodores, an all-black recording group, after deciding to perform in South Africa despite a U.N.-led cultural boycott against apartheid.

"It won't matter whether you're Republican or Democrat. We want to rehabilitate housing across the United States. The program will be based on need, not greed." - Housing Secretary Jack Kemp on the administration's dedication to rebuilding the nation's cities.

"To me, the union is biting its nose off to spare its face. Here it told these companies, 'Give us what you want and we'll work together.' The companies did, and gave them a very lucrative contract for five years. And now, they (the United Mine Workers) don't want to honor it,'" - Dan Roling, Industrial analyst at Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, on the wildcat strike of United Mine Workers.

"I dream I was at my own funeral, and the people crying over me. What can you believe?" - Old Cherokee proverb.

"I said I was a rascally spirit, a man who had never been given a chance. I said I had truly made a difference!" - According to a 1954 survey, 81 percent of those surveyed had taken their parents' last name.

Compromise of crisis funds to aid war on drugs, veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate voted a $2.7 billion compromise emergency money bill Thursday that could help fund two locally needed funds for veterans' programs and allocate $340 million in fresh money into the war on drugs.

The Senate passed the bill by voice vote after House and Senate leaders reached an agreement late Wednesday that ended a stalemate that threatened passage by Congress before the July 4 recess.

The House was expected to act on the bill Friday.

Xinhua reported.

Neither Xinhua nor local television mentioned the eighth defendant. At the time of the trial, the judge named them as workers, farmers or unemployed people, some of whom were charged with disorderly conduct.

Xinhua said the seven were executed immediately after the Chinese People's Court rejected appeals of their sentences.

A newspaper in Jinan, a city in northeastern Shandong Province, reported 17 people were put to death Wednesday. A staff member of the Jinan Daily said by telephone it was likely some were involved in anti-government protests.

The newspaper said the 17 were paraded through the streets before they were put to death out of public view.

They were among 45 people sentenced to die Tuesday for a variety of crimes, although the remainder were given deferred sentences apparently contingent on good behavior, the newspaper said.

Six other people accused of involvement in the incident went on trial Thursday.

Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, also voted against the resolution.

"The whole business about flags on the fantasies of levies," Humphrey asked, "What about flags on a cage?" It's no defense. This seems to be an exercise in silliness and a bit of hypocrisy."

For more than an hour, House members took to the floor of the chamber to denounce the court's ruling in emotional terms, often referring to the heroism of Americans who fought and died in war.

Citing the two Jima memorials that depict Marines raising the American flag during one of the bloodiest battles of World War II, Rep. Ann M. Hultgren, R-Ohio, said, "These six brave soldiers were symbolically shot in the back by five men in black robes."

"The treasonous nature of the decision on the bench should be remembered every time we say the Pledge of Allegiance, every time we sing the national anthem, every time we pass a national cemetery," Marlenee added. "Six brave men raised the flag. Five Supreme Court justices froze it down."

Teckee, of Malaysia, said, "No, we're not in a position to condone the punishment of Chinese leaders who are doing it in their own country."

"We all share the same opinion," said M. T. Murphy, his counterpart on Page 1.

"We are concerned about the decision, we are not pleased with the punishment," Murphy said.

"The decision was not just. The Chinese government was not right," Murphy added.

"The Chinese government must face the consequences of their actions," Murphy said.

Ex-Governor released from prison

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Gov. Daniel Walker, who pleaded guilty to taking $1.45 million in fraudulent loans, was free Thursday on a federal judge’s order reducing his sentence to the nearly 18 months he served in a federal prison.

Walker, 66, whose fraudulent deals included one with his own savings and loan association, was freed from the federal prison camp in Duluth, Minn., Wednesday, hours after his lawyer filed a motion seeking early release.

Walker had served nearly 18 months after pleading guilty to fraud charges on Oct. 9, 1987. He was sentenced to seven years imprisonment for bank fraud, perjury and misapplication of funds.

Walker was a longtime adversary of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley.
School of Medicine professors receive awards

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

Dr. Chandra Banerjee and Dr. Kevin Dorsey of the School of Medicine have received the $10,000 awards for Outstanding Achievement in Education. Both received the award for their contributions to teaching and curriculum development. Banerjee, a professor of physiology, joined the medical school faculty in 1974. His nominators cited his "exemplary dedication, enthusiasm and deep personal concern for every student." Banerjee earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Calcutta, India, in 1953 and his doctorate at the Medical College of Virginia in 1967.

Dorsey is an associate professor of internal medicine and joined the faculty in 1983. His nominators called him "an excellent clinical instructor who understands the basic science approach."

Dorsey earned his bachelor's degree at Fairfield University, Conn., in 1964, his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin in 1968 and his medical degree at SIU School of Medicine in 1978.

The award includes a $10,000 salary increase. Dorsey has asked that his award be used to start a scholarship fund for medical students.

Hill House relocation gets commission approval

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Planning Commission's recommendation for relocation of Hill House to the east side of Park Street, which is within one mile from the Brush Hill residential area, the ages of 14 and 19.

The swing vote in the decision came from Councilman Richard Morris, who voted against the proposal because he was concerned about the entrance to the institution, which he considered to be a hazard.

Morris changed his mind when he received information that the problem with the entrance had been alleviated. He then endorsed Hill House to reapply for the permit. The commission's 5-2 vote, with one abstention, came after two hours of testimony from both sides Wednesday.

The relocation site comprises 14 acres on the east side of Park Street, which is within one mile from the Brush Hill residential area.

Residents of the Brush Hill subdivision are vehemently opposed to the relocation, claiming runaways from Hill House could harm them or their children. They also said the presence of the institution could lower the value of surrounding property. One estimate stated property values in the area could decrease by 20 percent.

"I think it would also impede the normal orderly growth in the area," Pat Hewson, a Brush Hill resident, said. "We are talking about an institution in an area where it is primarily a residential area."

"I think that is certain cause for concern for area residents."

Residents of the area also claimed traffic in the area would increase, creating a hazard because of an existing roadway which residents say is suited for residential traffic only.

Hill House was established in 1972 and houses 48 residents.

Senate approves restrictions on assault weapons

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (CPI) - Possession, sale and manufacture of semiautomatic assault weapons with magazines capable of holding more than 10 rounds of ammunition would be banned under legislation approved Thursday by the Senate.

The Senate approved the weapons restrictions bill (HB2906) on a 29-25 vote, which supporters said sent a message that assault weapon violence will not be tolerated in Illinois.

"This bill, and the vote in the Senate today, say, 'Hey — the sight of wackos in schoolyards with automatic and semiautomatic weapons killing kids is a sight that America ought not tolerate. If the bill does no more than that, it's worth R. Thompson."

The bill does no more than that, said Gov. James R. Thompson.

Measures to ban assault weapons failed on two previous attempts in the Senate. But during emotional debate that featured display of assault weapons and magazines that carry as many as 60 rounds of ammunition, lawmakers said support from the constituents and law enforcement officials persuaded them to vote for the measure.

"I live in fear that my 18-year-old, if he is sitting after dark on the front steps of where I live, that there will be a car that will drive by and that someone with a ski mask on will pull out an Uzi and spray my steps," said Sen. Miguel del Valle, D-Chicago.

Other senators said the approval of the assault weapon restrictions was made easier by a backlash to heavy lobbying campaigns against the legislation by the National Rifle Association.

"I think all of the intimidation that the NRA has tried to do, I think they have lost credibility and it's just something that a few fanatics at the top of the organization, not the rank and file members, are doing," said Sen. Jerome Joyce, D-Essex.

Opponents argued the measure would not take assault weapons away from criminals, and that lawmakers instead should toughen enforcement against illegal weapons use.

University Museum features 2 artists’ work at MFA exhibit

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

On June 23, the University Museum will become a forum for the celebration of the living form when the Master of Fine Arts thesis exhibitions of sculptor Lisa Sheets and ceramist John Martin begin.

Sheets deals with the female figure to challenge stereotypical views of women and their beauty. She expressed her dissatisfaction with these stereotypes saying, "You look at what the traditional views (in art) are, and it's women languishing on beds like 'come and get me.'"

To counteract passive images, Sheets sculpt female figures standing in natural, strong positions. She said her work "are not there to look good for someone else," in contrast to the male fantasies pictured in traditional art and pornography.

REALIZING THAT the nude is one of the most common images in art, Sheets tries to do something new and different with her subject. She tries not to idealize the body; "I try to do her in a way that she's very human - real but unique." (Sheets)

Another influence on her work is the master of the shell, John Martin. His art is based around the structure, the beauty, the beauty of the shell. "It's the vessel for history and art, and I try to incorporate the painter's concerns in his sculpture." (Martin)

In his sculpture, he seeks to work primarily with porcelain because of its purity and light-reflecting properties. He also values its whiteness. "Everyone has associations with white...like coolness, tranquility, purity," he said.

IN THE FUTURE, Martin hopes to teach art. He plans on opening a studio in Ledbetter, Kentucky, his hometown.

The artists' exhibitions will run from June 23 through June 30. An open public reception will be held on June 23.
Slaney discusses track's drug problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trouble track and field endures these days with various drug scandals may also be the solution.

This, at least, would provide solace for Mary Decker Slaney, who has witnessed the intrusion of steroids and other drug forms into her sport during the decade she has been world-class.

"To be honest, I don't know if it's going to help," Slaney said Wednesday, taking time off from her training for Saturday's Legg's Mini Marathon in New York's Central Park. "All the publicity this is getting is with the threats of random testing and of suspension, can scare some people off, particularly the younger athletes who still have their careers ahead of them and have more to lose by a suspension."

"I hope more and more people get caught, and maybe this will be a start to help the situation. I like the fact that people are starting to name names."

Slaney, who set her first U.S. record at the age of 14, and has since captured every American mark from 800 to 10,000 meters, said she first was offered drugs in 1978 when she was 19. A coach trying to recruit her for the Nurture Track Club in Northridge, Calif., suggested this would be the only way she could be successful on an international level.

"I said this was not for me," Slaney recalled. "I totally was against his method of coaching. I was horrified at that time and I've never liked the drug abuse problem."

"Maybe I haven't won an Olympic gold medal, but I have been a double world champion. I've set world records and had a very good career, and I never did any drugs."

Ronald Peters, a former tavern owner who received a reduced two-year sentence on drug and tax charges last week, says he booked thousands of dollars in bets by Rose during a meeting April 20-21 in Dayton.

He said he showed Rose the betting sheets and told him an expert had said it was his handwriting. He disputed Pitcairn's contention the report was one-sided, noting nine witnesses testified Rose had gambled and nine who didn't.

Winfield's ex-lover testifies

HOUSTON (UPI) — The former girlfriend of New York Yankee Donnie Wingo testified Thursday that he did not want anyone to know she was pregnant with his child because he was concerned about how it would affect his image.

"In April (1982), the Yankees were getting ready to open the season and I was starting to show," Sandra Renfro testified. He was concerned the Yankees and the New York media would find out she was pregnant before we got married. He didn't want anyone to know that we were pregnant because of his image. He said it would not be good for him and would hurt his (charity) foundation. He told me he didn't want the Yankees organization or media to know about our daughter.

"I loved David very much. I didn't want to hurt him. I didn't (keep quiet) because he asked me to and he wanted to keep his image clean and protect his foundation. He never told the world we had a child. It surfaced in the news about two years later when I filed this suit."

Her testimony came in the second day of the trial to decide a suit filed by Renfro Jan 13, 1985, in which she seeks the father of her 7-year-old daughter, Lauren. Renfro, 24, is seeking a divorce, child support and unspecified damages for emotional distress suffered when Winfield married Tonya Turner in February 1988.
ticipation was the key this year. "Our coaching staff wanted to make sure that we were able to get kids from Mt. Vernon, Alton, and our kids (Cairo) to participate," said West. "The college athletes can try out, but we can pick them."

West, who has been associated with the Games self and on for five years, hopes to get a quicker start next year and improve on the number of participants gradually. "With Gary Ca:ney (SIU-C assistant athletic director) stepping down as the organizer for the regionals, there was a foul up this year with the organization of the Games," said West.

"I am not sure about the other competition, but in track, the competition this year was not very good," said S.U.C. women's track coach Doc DeVer who helped out during the meet. "If the organization does not improve, the Games could become a waste of time for the athletes."

Brown won the high jump at 5-6, long jump at 17-3.5, and the 200 meter dash in 26.8 seconds. Brown won the high school state championship in the high jump last month at Charleston. Jason James won the boys high jump event at 6-9 edging out Mike Billings at 6-8. Wesley Will of Sesser-Valier won the long jump by going 21-5 edging out Cairo's Landall Long at 21-1.

In the open division, Gene Rodely won the hammer throw and javelin. David Rodely won the shot put and discus. The Rodely's are from Du Quoin. However, in order to increase the number of participants that take part in the games each year, the overall thought is that organization must improve.

"I am not sure about the other competition, but in track, the competition this year was not very good," said S.U.C. women's track coach Doc DeVer who helped out during the meet. "If the organization does not improve, the Games could become a waste of time for the athletes."

Rose's prints found on betting sheets

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A lawyer for baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti said Thursday investigators uncovered substantial evidence to suggest the Cincinnati Reds' lawyer for baseball commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti had already decided to have the investigation done. The hearing began as the New York Times reported the FBI obtained betting sheets with Rose's fingerprints from a late afternoon and said it would resume Friday.

Rose's lawyers presented a strategy to treat the gambling allegations as a peripheral issue. The former catcher of Rose's who was investigated in a cocaine case.

The 'yes' said the sheets indicate Rose was in the Red Sox. Opening the case, Rose's lawyer, Robert Stachler, said Giamatti had already decided to have the investigation done. Thearing is entitled to have the investigation done.

But Hoyne told the judge he had no jurisdiction in the case and the commissioner "intends to conduct a hearing in a timely manner." Hoyne is inappropriate for the court to block the hearing.

There is evidence, substantial and credible, to cover up evidence that Rose was large sums of money on majorleague baseball games.

Ladys cagers announce game dates

The 1989-90 Silwau women's basketball schedule includes a match with the Denver Tech, the alma mater of the recently hired assistant coach Myra Fishback. Fishback, who served as a graduate assistant on the Golden Eagles' coaching staff this past season, will go on to provide some insight on their team's strengths and weaknesses.

The women's season will get into a warm start at the Wahine Classic in Honolulu, Hawaii, Kansas, Oregon State, Vanderbilt, Toledo, Washington State and host Hawaii round out the eight team, double elimination tournament.

"We're very excited to be in Hawaii's tournament," said Coach Cindy Hoynes. "It's a great opportunity and represents a great cross section of the country. We've been on a three-year waiting list to get in."

SIUC, with two starters back from last year's 19-10 team, open a 28-game slate against Virginia in the Wahine Classic.

Virginia is one of five 1989 NCAA Tournament teams on the Silwau schedule. The Silwau at Kansas State (Dec. 9) and Illinois State (Jan. 4) and travel to Purdue (Dec. 20) and Tennessee Tech.

Organizers pleased with Prairie State track meet

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Mike Curtis, site coordinator for the Prairie State track meet this weekend, said the track and regional track and field meet at McAndrew Stadium was "a very good turnout," said Curtis. "You really never know what is going to happen with these Games as far as participation goes."

On Saturday, Curtis along with the coaching staff along with the coaching staff who were somewhat disappointed that only three girls and five guys turned out for the regional swimming and diving meet. However, participation in the track and field regional Wednesday was a definite improvement.

"The coaching staff deserves a lot of credit for the turnout," said Curtis. "The coaches went out and encouraged the athletes to come out and take part in the Games."

Jim West, the coach of the Cairo High School track team, is the head coach of the regional team and was one of the coaches present that Curtis was speaking of.

"We had some coaches here that have quality high school programs," said Curtis.

"Participating in the Games is just as important to the community," said Curtis. "The coaches keep them interested."

West, whose high school track team has been competitive at the state level during this decade, noted that area parents have been supportive of the athletes for all the various meets they have participated in.

Exercise pain could be heartburn

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Runners who get chest pains are probably experiencing heartburn not heart attack, researchers at Wake Forest University said Thursday.

The study of seven men and five women, half who are regimens showed stomach acid eaten back up from the stomach into the esophagus during running exercises, producing heartburn, the researchers reported in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Fat from heartburn caused by acidic backup, or reflux, often resembles chest pain or heart attack and doctors generally believe such pain during exercise is probably due to heartburn.

A team of researchers led by Donald Castell, head of Bowman-Grey School of Medicine said Thursday.

Rabbit! Frog hunting season leaps off

By Kevin Simpson

Staff Writer

If you have a taste for nature's delicacy, frog's legs — you can either go to a restaurant or you can catch them yourself.

Frog hunting season is upon us. The Illinois Department of Conservation estimates that 100,000 bullfrogs are harvested annually in more than 800 lakes and ponds across the state.

Although froggity, as it is commonly known, is not the most popular sport around, there are a few who do it for the thrill of it, such as wrens and insects and to catch a few of the green-skin, bug-eating wrens.

The season began about a week ago and lasts until Aug. 15. That's required for a fishing license. There is a daily limit of eight frogs with a possession limit of 32. There are several ways to hunt frogs. The most popular is gigging, using a three- or four-pound fork on the end of a long pole to spear the frog. Another way is using a fishing pole and line. The bug-eating wren dangles a small lure or hook and tries to entice the frog to eat it. Perhaps most challenging is by hand — actually wading into a pond and breaking up on a bullfrog, grabbing in a sudden, head-on strike. The bug-eating wren and the green-skinned wrens are probably the best but it's just not sporting.

Overall, the common method is using a gig and a strong flashlight. The light mesmerizes the frog, long enough to strike it with the gig. Frank Hiller Jr., a local sportsman, considers small ponds and shallow streams as the best places to hunt for frogs. "Anything with shallow water along the banks with lily pads and weeds," he said, referring to the areas where frogs are likely to hang out.

It's best to hunt in pairs, says Hiller. One hunter can spot the frog with a flashlight while a partner sneaks up and spears it with the gig. A boat is most commonly used or the hunters can walk the edge of the water, depending on the geography of the terrain.

Hiller recommends starting early in the season, mainly because the frogs start to thin out after the season opens. He also suggests dry weather for tracking down bullfrogs. "After rain, they start moving and sit the frogs from pond to pond or to streams," he said. "Look and try and start right after sunset when there is a full moon.

Other hunters recommend gigging on a quiet night, according to the IDOC, that way the frogs are more easily mesmerized by the flashlight. The best nights are when the air temperature is warmer than the water temperature, because the frogs are more likely to be on shore.

A recommended cleaning routine is given by the IDOC:

1. Clean the legs by cutting the skin near the hind legs and peel the skin back to the feet.
2. Cut the feet and ankles off and clean them with the skin.
3. Detach the legs by breaking them off at the base of the backbone. Also, there is a nerve behind the legs, the frog says, that should be cut to prevent "jumping" pain from "jumping" pain.
4. Remove the legs are separated, skinned and cleaned, they can be fried in as little or cooked on a grill. "Frog legs taste similar to the white meat on a chicken," Hiller said.
