Fall brings $11 student fee increase

By Curtis Winston Staff Writer

EDWARDSVILLE — An $11 increase in student fees for next spring semester has been approved by the Board of Trustees in its meeting Thursday morning.

A $1 increase in the campus student medical insurance premium will bring coverage costs to $45.50 per semester. Health Service officials have said the increase will offset a 20 percent raise in charges by the University's insurance carriers, Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

A $1 increase in the rec fee will be withheld, with half funding daily operations. The other $1 will go into a reserve fund for repairs and modernization, part of which helps pay for the $5 million recreation center addition. With the increase, the fee will total $36.

The health fee increase had the support of both the Undergraduate Council and the Graduate and Professional Student Council. However, representatives of the GPSC stated that coverage be concentrated at all times in all places and that insurance cards be issued to students participating in the program.

Currently, policy varies in amount and percentage and is covered only according to where an accident occurs.

Bankruptcy filed; Eastern grounded

Eastern fliers to suffer ticket exchange woes

By Jackie Spinnin'

The friendly skies turned cloudy for airline passengers Thursday as local travel agencies braced themselves for a rocky ride with Eastern Airlines Inc.

Eastern filed for federal bankruptcy protection Thursday on the sixth day of a strik ing machinists strike, but company executives vowed to reestablish the once-grown airline.

"We have not given up on our goal of seeing Eastern survive," said Frank Lorenzo, chairman of Eastern's parent company, Texas Air Corp., and the architect of the airline's unions, which successfully shut down the nation's seventh-largest airline earlier this week.

Lorenzo said Eastern's assets exceeded its liabilities by more than $1 billion, and Eastern President Phil Bakes promised that creditors would be paid in full. Eastern is $2.3 billion in debt and had been losing more than $1 million a day before the strike began Thursday.

"We intend on operating an airline, make no mistake about that," Bakes said. "We're going to go and we are going to rebuild.

Eastern was forced to suspend service on all but three routes, and about 9,500 workers virtually all its 3,000 pilots refused to cross machinists' picket lines. The International Association of Machinists struck Eastern at 7 a.m.

Spokesman for the airline said, the bankruptcy filing would have no immediate effect on Eastern's operationally curtained service, but the filing raised other questions about the long-term future of Eastern and what role, if any, Lorenzo, Texas Air and Texas Air officials said.

An Eastern spokesperson said that the airline was not looking for a merger.

SIU-C grad possible Bundy victim

By Richard Nunaz

Rick Hollowell liked the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, the Grateful Dead and Sonny and Cher.

She abhored swimming, water skiing and was an avid exerciser. But most of all, Vicki liked to make dresses. In the late 1960s, she majored in clothing and textiles at SIU-C.

Vicki also received her bachelor's degree in 1971 and then moved to Eugene, Ore., where she landed a job at a seamstress for Bond Marche, a top fashion department store.

On Aug. 20, 1977, after working her shift at the department store, Vicki disappeared and was never seen again.

A co-worker last saw her driving her black, 1965 Volkswagen Beetle to a friend's party. On her way to the party, Eugene police suspect she picked up a hitchhiker - a man they believe was serial killer Ted Bundy.

Sgt. Frank Gallum, of the Eugene Police Department, said Vicki fit the profile of Bundy's victims; dark hair parted down the middle, a greyish blue, outgoing personality and a penchant for picking up hitchhikers.

Tower replacement sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Bush already has a list of candidates to replace the defeated John Tower as secretary of defense and will make a decision quickly, perhaps this week, a senior administration official said Thursday.

"We are interested in two or three people for the position," the official said while declining to reveal any of the names on the list developed in the transition period.

"We're not starting from scratch," he said.

"Obviously we're interested in moving rapidly," the official said while declining to reveal any of the names on the list developed in the transition period.

The official was asked whether a nomination would be made this week and replied: "I don't know but I would hope so."
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Police said Thursday they had made arrests as a result of a massive bomb attack that killed two Irish Republican soldiers and injured six during a night patrol. The outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the province with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic, claimed responsibility for the Wednesday night attack outside Londonderry, 36 miles northwest of Belfast.

High-level budget, new deficit figures arise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House and Congress took their first high-level steps toward a budget agreement Thursday as new projections showed President Bush may have underestimated the federal deficit by as much as $40 billion next year and $97 billion in four years. The new deficit figures, from the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, predicted that under the president's current spending proposal, the shortfall would be $131 billion next year and $97 billion in 1993.

Witness admits keeping quiet on information

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former fund-raiser Carol Channell admitted Thursday he never told any other Iran-Contra probes he overheard Oliver North once say, "I don't care if I have to lie to Congress" about his work for Nicaraguan rebels. Channell, in his third day of testimony given with immunity from prosecution, said that in interviews with government prosecutors, a federal grand jury and the special Iran-Contra congressional committees since early 1987, he never mentioned the quote from the ex-White House aide.

Unys vice president pleads guilty to bribe

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — In a major break in the snowballing Pentagon corruption case, former Unys Vice President Charles Gardiner pleaded guilty Thursday to bribing Assistant Navy Secretary Melvyn Paisley through the purchase of his ski resort condominium at an inflated price. Gardiner, who resigned in 1988 to avoid a federal grand jury and the special Iran-Contra congressional committees since early 1987, was never mentioned in the quotes from the ex-White House aide.

Los Angeles (UPI) — A major people-smuggling ring that used commercial airlines to fly illegal immigrants to Eastern cities has been broken, but authorities say there may be hundreds, if not more, like it throughout the nation. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials said Wednesday that with the arrests of four “coyotes”—who guide the illegal aliens across the border and to their destinations—the operation is one of the nation’s largest and most sophisticated smuggling operations.

Stemper's piece to make American debut at Carnegie

By Wayne Wallace
Entertainment Editor

Stemper Stemper had all but forgotten that copy of "Dreams" he sent the Sylvan Winds Quintet.

I had figured it was a lost cause," he said, "the 17-year-old composer explained. "You usually have to write to them 10 times before (a group) will even consider your work. But it's still a catch-as-catch-can anytime I mail out compositions to be performed publicly." Stemper, School of Music professor, said.

And he was right. When he knew, the Sylvan Winds had locked "Dreams" away in File 13. But that was before he got the letter.

An ad for Carnegie Hall read, "March 16: Sylvan Winds Quintet Stemper."

Recognizing the familiar name, Schonhorn mailed a copy of the ad to his colleague in Chancellor's woodwind quintet, keeping busy with other creative enterprises as well as teaching music theory-composition and raising his family -- but the father of three, "Well, you can imagine my surprise," Stemper said. "I wrote to the Sylvan Winds right away, and about a week later, they confirmed it."

Five years after Stemper wrote it, two years after he sent it to Sylvan Winds, and one year after its world premiere in Bucharest, Romania, by the Quintet of Concorde, "Dreams" will finally make its American debut on March 16, when the Sylvan Winds Quintet takes the stage at Carnegie Hall for an evening of chamber music arrangements.

And Stemper wouldn't miss it for the world. Not only was he able to attend the performance, but also to give a short lecture about his work. He will be the guest of honor at post-concert reception, at the Sheraton Hotel.

Stemper was the first to hear, the Sylvan Winds had locked "Dreams" away in File 13. But that was before he got the letter.

And some would contest that Stemper's career include the world premiere of "Trylogienergie," for pipe organ, in Budapest, Hungary, May 1981, the world premiere of "Piano Sonata" in Vienna, Austria, November 1987; and the world premiere of "Sonic Things," for chamber ensemble, in St. Louis, March 1988.

Stemper will world premiere "Second Diary" on April 3 as part of the "Monday Night Series" at the University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign.

Controversial book available in University library

By Fernando Fallu-Moggi and Theresa Livestrong
Staff Writers

A copy of the controversial novel "The Satanic Verses" by British author Salman Rushdie is available to the public in the Library, and another is on its way. David C. Coth, curator of the special collections section of the library, said Coth said the book can't be checked out of the library, but those wanting to read it can request it at the special collections section.

Donella Odum, acting director of Carbondale Public Library said the book has been ordered through the Shawnee library system, but it is not known when it will arrive.

The controversy over the novel gained international prominence after a week of riots and burnings of the novel by Moslem around the world and Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's offer of a reward for the death of the book's author.

The book was considered blasphemous to Islam by the Moslem world because it is said to insult the prophet Mohammed.

Publishers, bookstores and British interests around the world were threatened by Moslem terrorists if the novel wasn't taken off the market.

Rushdie went into hiding, and although he presented an apology to the Islamic world "and all those offended by the book," the death threat against him has not been recinded.

The British government, outraged by the threats, pressured countries of the European Economic Community to isolate Iran diplomatically, and ultimately broke diplomatic relations with the Moslem country Tuesday.

Some U.S. bookstores removed the novel from their shelves a few weeks ago over the controversy, but as copies of "The Satanic Verses" sold "like hotcakes" throughout the world, many decided to sell the book again.

In Carbondale, Waldenbooks took the book off its shelves, but are now taking orders.

In other local bookstores, the novel is unavailable, though backorders had been placed and copies are expected this month.
Rich Salukis seasons have promising end

FIRE UP Saluki fans! This weekend Salukis lost a heartbreaker Tuesday night to Creighton in the Missouri Valley tournament on a national sports network, SIU-C's second place tournament trophy shows that in the end, the season was worth it. And it should continue in postseason play next week.

Though a second conference division finish doesn't merit an NCAA appearance, the Salukis' wins and second place finish in the MVC tournament warrants an invitation to the NIT. However, in the long run the exposure picked up this season, the Salukis are destined to die at the NCAA tournament.

In addition, SIU-C racked up a 6-2 record on neutral courts, proving they rend well in tourney play. There is no better team to answer a question than Big Eight power Villanova, who the Salukis dumped earlier this season in Puerto Rico.

DESPITE A disappointing conference finish, when the Salukis dropped several close games late in the regular season, Herrin has done an excellent job motivating his team to surpass postseason expectations.

In just four seasons as head coach, Herrin has taken a program destined to die at the beginning of the season after the 1985 player pay-off scandal and turned it into a contender. Given the recruiting season of the past year and the exposure picked up this season, SIU-C's program has taken a turn for the top of the Valley standings.

The Salukis entered the tournament seeded sixth, and became only the first second division team to play for the title.

On the women's side, Cindy Scott's team has had even better success.

THE SALUKIS finished second in the Gateway and compiled a 19-0 record going into Thursday night's tournament title game with Illinois State, the conference co-champions where the Salukis hung tough on Carlethia Goodin-Parker.

Even without a win against Illinois State, the Salukis are among the top teams in the nation's women's programs, and certainly deserve an at-large bid to the NCAA tournament.

Scott's record speaks for itself. In 11 seasons with the Salukis, Scott's teams have compiled five 20-win seasons in the last six years and two appearances in the NCAA tournament. A third seems right around the corner.

For basketball fans, the best may yet be to come.

Opinions from elsewhere

From time to time, a smart jury sometimes sees right through the dollar goose who shows it out and stumps some one. That is obviously the day in Miami when jurors deliberated only 19 minutes before deciding that a confused burglar is not entitled to damages for a wound he received while fleeing the scene of a break in. He was shot by a neighbor of the victim.

Said jury foreman Vern St. R. Reeves: "We felt we shouldn't rush the decision," said Judge Philip Bloom: "This is a case of change."

It sounded funny, but Bloom made a serious point when he declared: "This jury verdict is not the final word. It is just entitled to safe passage during and after the commission of a crime."

With courts hopefully startled with cases, one wonders whether lawyers should be entitled to safe passage during and after the commission of a stupid law.

Of course, they shouldn't be shot, as the burglar was. But how about a bill for court costs -- or a pig in the face?

WHAT MAKES A $110,000-a-year pilot abandon his career for the sake of a $15-an-hour schlepper of baggage? Hate.

It was in the frozen wind at O'Hare, Airline Street. In the was in the pilots' quiet eyes when in invited to tell what about Frank Lorenzo, tough-guy owner of Eastern, and how he has stripped the company and humiliated its work force.

By Eastern pilots

"How does Lorenzo 'treat' last May, for example, he sued all of his pilots as racketeers when they complained that he was cutting corners on security.

He has wept that his airline is losing money even though a big chunk of its losses are attributable to his own financial mismanagement.

He reported a $30 million loss one quarter when he had set aside $300 million to fight an expected strike. He claims the British Airways' reservations system to him himself, paid Eastern off with a long-term, low-interest bond, and now charges Eastern $10 million a year to use the reservation system it once owned.

Pilots are financially astute. They understand what's happening to their airline.

By CAPT. JERRY BORCHIN, a Piedmont pilot, stopped, he said to offer support to the Eastern pilots. Lorenzo's rubbing them," he said. "He's stealing their lives, their careers and their jobs, and you know, you know you're going to have a reserved airline an extra penny for every gallon of fuel he sells them!"

The pilots reject Lorenzo's argument that the airline could be profitable if he could only cut the pay of the baggage handlers.

"We're not making any sympathy money," Union. "We pay every hour, so figure out how much overtime they have to work to make $45,000. And that's mandatory overtime, if they refuse it, they're fired. It's hypocritical of management to impose mandatory overtime and then complain how much these guys earn!"

THE PILOTS also remember that Lorenzo made the same argument to pilots at Continental Air Lines four years ago: "Just cut the baggage-handlers' wages, and everybody will be fine. Then we declared bankruptcy, voided the contracts, broke the pilots' union and hired the pilots back at half pay. And he loses money at Continental, too."

Up on Capitol Hill, Lorenzo was not getting much sympathy. Ultraconservative Rep. Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.) decided Lorenzo as an "entrepreneurial figure who pays far more to lawyers than he does to mechanics, who pays far more to lobbyists than he does to pilots, and who is committed to rigging a structure by which (Eastern's) cash flow is diverted."

No, not even the conservatives are fond of Lorenzo. He has done the one thing organized labor could not do for itself. He has persuaded the workers to unite.

Trophy recognizes Gateway’s best
Seven-year shootout for SIU-C and ISU

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

In the reality of the Gateway Conference, they are the superpowers. Each university has a long-standing tradition in women’s athletics. Each considers the other a rival. Any intercollegiate-athletics contest between Illinois State University and SIU-C engenders a natural competitive spirit—generated by a closeness in geography. Intensity and tremendous respect mark the competition between the two schools, which both boast enrollments upwards of 20,000.

With the 1980s coming to a close, both schools are close to claiming the title of the Gateway’s Program of the Decade. In distance they are separated by 220 miles of U.S. Route 51, but on the playing fields and in the gymnasiums they are neck and neck.

One of the universities will capture the Commissioner’s Trophy, an impressive silver cup that goes to the conference member with over-all excellence in its women’s athletics program. ISU and SIU-C are headed for a showdown.

The most visible aspect of the rivalry between Illinois State and SIU-C takes place during the women’s basketball season. But each institution has stayed out of certain areas where they seem uncomfortable. For Illinois State the sport is volleyball; for SIU-C, it’s swimming.

The Redbirds have won five conference volleyball titles, the most by any school in any sport. “It’s a program with a lot of pride,” said ISU Associate AD Linda Herman, who coached the team from 1977 to 1980. “Even with three different coaches, we’ve stayed on track.”

Follow ing Herman, Sandy Lynn (current coach at Tennessee) brought an unprecedented four straight Gateway titles to Normal. Then this fall, second-year coach Julie Morgan captured championship No. 5.

ISU’s volleyball program has a lot of pride, and has managed to stay on track even with three different coaches — Linda Herman

Although Illinois State has won the last two swimming championships, the Salukis still hold a 3-edge.

Saluki coach Tim Hill built an impressive program, winning the 1983 finals with a record 1,067.5 points at the Recreation Center. The Salukis took first in 1984 and second in 1985 before finishing second in 1986.

Under Bailey Weatherly, the women’s program won its fourth title in 1987 with a 512 to 525 win over Illinois State.

Also big time this year is Illinois State cross-country (five titles) and indoor track (three titles). At SIU-C, golf and indoor track each have had three championships.

When it comes to squaring off in direct competition in championship events the Salukis have had the upper hand over the Redbirds, winning seven of the 11 meets.

Trophy still goal for small schools

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The express purpose for establishing the Gateway Conference Commissioner’s Trophy in 1962 was to reward institutions for maintaining a broad-base of women’s athletic programs.

“It was designed to be a traveling trophy,” Commissioner Patty Viverito says wryly, “but it hasn’t done much traveling.”

Except for a change of hands in 1986, the trophy has neither been displayed at Illinois State’s Horton Field House nor housed at its current home in the administrative offices at SIU-C’s Davies Gymnasium. The trophy has changed hands several times, the latest change being from Illinois State to St. Louis University.

“Certainly it’s out of the reach of a number of our schools,” she says. “I don’t think Bradley’s $4,000 entry fee for the championship ever opened the year with winning the Commissioner’s Trophy as its goal. Yet, it’s not just who gets the trophy, but where you finish that’s important for these schools. The standings are significant.”

Outcry by the smaller schools in the conference demanded more equitable point-award systems brought that fact to light last year. The previous system did an excellent job of recognizing the strongest program, but provided little differential recognition for schools developing a better means of award points.

“The first thing was to give the coaches a survey,” says commissioner Viverito. “We found that they wanted the required sports (volleyball, basketball and softball) to be weighted more and that they wanted to see the results from the championships and regionals tied equally.”

The new point system was tested against previous standings, the top teams were the same, although the middle standings were altered slightly.

“The point system is a very valid indicator of strength of program. That’s why we covet this trophy,” says Charlotte West

Gateway Commissioner’s Trophy results

1983—Illinois State 43, SIU-C 33.5
1984—Illinois State 40.5, SIU-C 30.5
1985—Illinois State 45, SIU-C 31
1986—SIU-C 33.5, Illinois State 30.5
1987—SIU-C 40, Illinois State 31.5
1988—SIU-C 39, Illinois State 29.5
1989—Illinois State 71, SIU-C 67.25

This year’s results represent standings as of March 1. Also, they do not include Thursday’s game at ISU.

If the future of Saluki football was in the hands of Jerome Handler, McAndrew Stadium would be turned into a parking lot, and the program terminated with the $800,000 football program going to other sports and Morris Library.

Handler, an anthropology professor and graduate of the Graduate and Professional Student Council speaking Wednesday night, said "I don't want to become the football program's advocate, I just want to get the facts out.

"Why is the football program a scared cow?"

Fred Huff, men's sports information director, said, "I'll try my best." Huff said that there are 11 people in the football section and only 5 people in the rest of the sports section. Huff doesn't have a right to say no to the football program.

"Football has a limited student activity value," Handler said. "和社会, football degrades equality between the sexes. Football has a limited student activity value." Handler hopes the faculty senate will consider his proposition and debate it publicly, finally suggesting its elimination to higher administration. He will propose it to the faculty senate shortly after spring break.

"If the faculty senate does not undertake what I propose, I will not carry it further," he said. "I'll just say I gave it my best shot. I don't want to become the court's foremost authority in collegiate football."

Handler said he has received support from various faculty members.

Graduate to give auto technology talk

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

A University graduate is conducting a two-day workshop for former instructors on new automotive technology today.

Chris Micha, a 1983 graduate, is a program development specialist for Chrysler Motors Corp. He will talk to automotive technology faculty about Chrysler's new fuel injection and diagnostic technology.

Micha has used his vacation over the past few years to finance his former instructors on what is new in the automobile field.

"These guys gave me a lot while I was working in my way of saying thanks and giving back what they gave me," Micha said.

Jim White, director of applied technologies, said that in addition to meeting with automotive faculty, Micha will share information concerning new technologies in the University and has persuaded Chrysler to donate over $40,000 worth of cars and equipment to the University.

"He's a real supporter of the automotive technology program," said White.

White said that while he was a student here, and that he's not surprised Micha went on to be such an outstanding employee at Chrysler.

White said instructors are eager to take advantage of Micha's expertise, and that he provided an excellent opportunity for faculty to keep informed on technology.

Rat-infested Oriental foods seized

CHICAGO (UPI) - Health officials and deputy U.S. marshals Thursday seized about $60,000 worth of rice, flour, noodles, turnip greens and other Chinese food believed to be contaminated with rat droppings.

The agents seized the food at a warehouse of the Chinese Noodle Manufacturing Co. which distributes domestic and imported food to grocers and restaurants in nearby Chinatown and elsewhere around Chicago.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Frederick Branding said the raid was part of a year-long crackdown by local, state and federal health officials on contaminated imported food. The agents will inspect the food and determine what portion must be destroyed.

If all the seized food containers seized show signs of rodent damage, as much as 100,000 pounds of food may have to be destroyed, said Food and Drug Administration District Director Ray Medley.

FDA officials inspecting the warehouse earlier found the food was not stored in rat-proof containers and found signs that rodents had gnawed into several of the food containers and left droppings contaminating the food.

Bomb threat at Lawson cancels test

By Marc Blumer Staff Writer
University police received a bomb threat at Lawson Hall Thursday night, but it turned out to be a hoax.

Campus security received the threat by phone at 6:30 p.m. from a student who said: Officers were dispatched to the scene, where they alerted the building's safety officer and instructors in the hall.

Lt. Andrew Smekh was at the scene, said: "It is not our policy to evacuate the building. It is up to the safety officer to make the decision to clear or building.

The decision was made to clear the hall, including over 1,000 students who were scheduled to take a psychology midterm test.

At 7:05 students were told to file out of the building and that the test was canceled, to which there was an eruption of cheering.

The police checked the building and found nothing, "We haven't the slightest clue to who called in," Smith said.

“All Eastern tickets except frequent flier and co-mingling tickets will be accepted on a standby basis,” said NWB spokesman Bob Gibbons. He added that Eastern passengers who show up for flights will be given available seats on Northwest.

“Northwest is being really good about the whole thing,” Carrey said. “They will give us a lot from it.” However, Borgsmiller was told by a Northwest reservation supervisor that Northwest would not be honoring Eastern tickets.

“Northwest is not accommodating a soul,” Borgsmiller said.

A Northwest reservation operator said Northwest would honor Eastern tickets on a standby basis, but most flights are full.

Cynthia Snyder, Ask Mr. Foster Travel manager, said refunds for Eastern ticket routings would not be available until she receives written notice.

“Right now, we are at a transitional period,” she added. Ask Mr. Foster is advising Eastern passengers to hold on to their tickets back to Eastern.

On her way to the party, Eugene police suspect she picked up a hitchhiker - a man they believed was serial killer Ted Bundy.

never do it again. Vicki grew up as rock 'n' roll was burgeoning. She was a young girl of Elvis Presley, Chuck Berry and Little Richard became popular in the late 1950s and a teenager when the Beatles arrived in America in 1964. Eventually, she became a big fan of the Beatles and performed at Comiskey Park in Chicago.

In the backyard of their home, Mr. Hollar built a swimming pool and he said Vicki took it as immediate interest in swimming. Swimming, Mr. Hollar said, became her primary source of exercise.

Along with her interest in rock "n roll music and television set and the last time he saw his daughter twice - once when he was at work and the last time was in 1968. Mr. Hollar said he knew for a reason he can't explain.

When she was young, Mr. Hollar said he spanked his daughter twice - once when she wouldn't let her grand- father watch a show on television and the last time for a reason he can't remember. Mr. Hollar said after the last spanking, he knew he could send you.
Indiana's Bob Knight named Big Ten's top coach in 1989

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) - Bob Knight, who won his 500th game this season and took Purdue to an unheralded Indiana team to a conference title, Thursday was named United Press International's Big Ten Coach of the Year for the "sixth time in 18 years.

He received 26 of 30 possible points in a vote of coaches, taking the honor over runner-up Steve Yoder of Wisconsin.

Knight is the only coach to have won gold medals in the Olympics and Pan American Games and is considered an unheralded Indiana native, coached Indiana for three Big Ten champions at home and 185-511-185 record, including the 1976, 1980 and 1981 NCAA champions. The Hoosiers began the season 3-4, their worst start under Knight. But Knight juggled his lineup in the seventh game of the season, going to a three-guard alignment that has sparked Indiana to victory in 21 of its last 25 games and pushed the Hoosiers to No. 6 in the national rankings.

The Hoosiers have won their last five Big Ten games and have averaged a 25.4 margin of victory in their last four games.

Knight played for three Big Ten champions at Ohio State, including the 1964 NCAA champions. He received 26 of 30 possible points in a vote of coaches, taking the honor over runner-up Steve Yoder of Wisconsin.

The Saluki softball team leaves for a trip to Tallahassee, Fla., to participate in a fun, friendly and educational event. Coach Brechtelsbauer anticipates playing against four pools. Florida is ranked No. 2 and second in the Southeastern Conference last year. The Saluki softball team played hard and aggressive and the season tied for fifth in the MVC. Coach Brechtelsbauer said, “They are ranked second in the country, they are the defending NCAA champs and have five on their team who are candidates for the world championship team.”

Coach Meade said, “We definitely have our hands full. We’re going to have a duck hunter and shoot about six of them out of the sky.”

Meade said the meet with Iowa State could go either way, and will depend on the all-around performances by the Salukis.

Marci (Mulholland), Brent (Breed), Jeff (Jones) and Rick (Armstrong) did really good last week at Oklahoma. Meade said, “If we want to do anything at Iowa, they have to shut us down by a big margin. It just depends on how well we perform at their place.”

Illinois, ranked No. 1, is used to rank teams that are ranked fourth in the Midwest. It looks like they are ranked fourth in the Midwest, but possibly second in the Seminole tournament last year. Other schools to watch are Iowa, Nebraska, ranked 14th. Other schools to watch are Iowa, Nebraska, and Eastern Illinois finished third in the tournament last year.

The tournament includes 19 schools that have been divided into four pools. Florida State, who is ranked second in the Southern region and 12th in the nation for 1990, is in the Saluki pool. Coach Brechtelsbauer said, “I told my players to play hard and aggressive and make things happen.”

Last year the Salukis ended the season tied for fifth in regular conference play with an 8-5 tie and an overall record of 20-14-1. Experience is not an asset for the Salukis this year. With zero returners, the Salukis must rely on seven returners and one new player to team victory. A replacement on the mound must be found for Lisa Petroski, who reserves the school record books last year with a 14-2 mark. Coach Brechtelsbauer doesn’t know who will be starting on the mound during their first game Sunday against Northern Illinois, but sophomore Mary Jo Fernbach (2.66) is promising leadoff player.

Other strong teams in the tournament are Iowa State, No. 10 in the nation, and Nebraska, ranked 14th.

Herman agrees: "I think St. Luke's, SIU both have had similar philosophies in having and supporting broad-based programs, always trying to be as good as we can. We have felt the pressure like institutions. It's a healthy competition built more on athletic success, non-conference sports like wrestling, gymnastics and soccer as evidence that the institution is willing to take into account factors other than conference obligations.

As far as women's sports are concerned, SIU-C does not offer any non-conference, non-revenue sports. In fact, the Strategic Planning Committee's report that recommended the elimination of field hockey, used its non-affiliation as a reasoning for expendability.

Even so, the common goal of national recognition for the conference remains. The Gateway, for example, stresses that when scheduling for volleyball, basketball and softball are drawn up, schools avoid scheduling Division II opponents and instead emphasize national powers and schools belonging to the Big Eight and Big Ten conferences.

West says progress is being made down that avenue. We are getting better support from the male AD's to stronger competition to gain respect nationally.

Here was the Gateway teams to achieve in the NCAA tournament, something that as their largest schools, SIU-C and Illinois State have to be in the forefront.

We need to get teams to the Gateway past that first round, Hillman says. "We have done that in basketball a couple of years ago, and this season I think we need more."

Herman says attention to volleyball, basketball and softball - sports that all receive automatic berths in the NCAA as well as being popular regionally - is a priority.

Indeed, Illinois State's success in the conference can be linked to three sports. Of its 24 conference championships, five are in volleyball, two are in basketball and two in softball.

"We're not any different than most institutions in that we prioritise sports," Herman says. "We would like to see the Gateway's nationally recognized. We have the best chance of doing that in those sports."

But by comparison, just two of ISU's conference titles are from the required sports - the 1986 and 1987 basketball teams. The Salukis have established dynasties in swimming and diving, golf, tennis and track and field.

The time has come for SIU-C to keep pace in the required sports. West says, 'We've had our share of glory in basketball, now we have to stress staying up there as No. 1 or No. 2. Softball has continued to finish better than the previous year for some time. But ISU's had the softball lightning much too long.'

When it comes to squaring off in direct competition in championship events, the Salukis have had the upper hand over the Redbirds, winning seven of the 11 meets.

Minor sports have been SIU-C's domain. In swimming and diving, for example, the Salukis are 4-3 in head-to-head series with the Redbirds, winning in 1983 and 1987.

The Salukis' other three wins over the Redbirds came in indoor track (1987), outdoor track (1987) and golf (1984). The Redbirds own the Salukis in the required sports, though, winning titles in gymnastics (1980), men's basketball (1980-81) and men's gymnastics (1983). Also, when it comes to going head-to-head in the major sports, SIU-C and Illinois State are the undisputed champs. The Redbirds have a 22-3-1 record against the Salukis in volleyball, 28-16 in basketball and 59-15 in baseball.

The Redbirds boast an academic record more remarkable than the athletic, with 13 members of the 1986-87 recruiting class ranked in the top 2 percent of their class in high school. The Redbirds' academic record is more impressive than the athletic, with 13 members of the 1986-87 recruiting class ranked in the top 2 percent of their class in high school. The Redbirds' academic record is more impressive than the athletic, with 13 members of the 1986-87 recruiting class ranked in the top 2 percent of their class in high school.

Salukis lose Gateway finale

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

NORMAL — The Salukis chance for a Gateway title ended with a 77-76 loss to Illinois State on Saturday night at Redbird Arena.

"That was indicative of the way we have been playing," coach Cindy Scott said. The Salukis finished with a 10-19 record.

Gateway conference championships have been needed Illinois State 70-53 Thursday night at Redbird Arena in Normal.

Women's track star Kathy Raske will represent Salukis in NCAA meet

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Women's track star Kathy Raske will represent her indoor career as a Saluki at the NCAA indoor track championships this weekend in Indianapolis, Ind.

"This is a good way to end up my Saluki career," Raske said. "Winning conference title was great, but this is the ending I was looking for." Raske will run the 55-meter hurdles, an event of which she holds the SIU-C record.

Raske is seeded for the NCAA championships in the 55-meter hurdles by running a 7.79 at the conference heats two weeks ago. She surpassed the NCAA-qualifying time of 7.90 seconds.

According to women's coach DeDe Novo, Raske has her hands full in Indianapolis.

"Kathryn is going to be up against the best in the country," DeNovo said. "I think the competition is going to be tough. She could run low to mid 7.80. She will have to do well." Raske said no matter what the outcome, she will be satisfied with her indoor season.

"I really want to do well this weekend. The midwest will tough competition. I've had a good indoor season, I hope it keeps going." Raske added.

Field hockey team qualifies for nationals in final season

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The Saluki field hockey team qualified for the NCAA tournament to be held at Kent State in March 19-20.

Coach Julie Ann Illner received a bid last Monday and the team will be playing for the Tournament March 18.

Senior Regional All-American Julie Major is sidelined because of an operation on her knee for torn ligaments. "I knew I had torn my knee and I thought, 'guess I'm out for the season.'" Major said. "But I'm back and playing, and I'm helping rehabilitate her knee. "Maye runs the offense and defense," said Illner. "She is a real leader." The team placed third in the Midwest Independent Tournament and ended season play with a record of 9-13. Also, the team placed third in the Gateway conference championships. The Salukis finished third at Kent State with a record of 6-2, according to Illner. The list of teams selected for the tournament is incomplete but Illner expects to know the field by the middle of next week. It will consist of three pools with each pool having teams in a pool. Illner said.

"WithMajor on the sidelines, the team's Midwestern Regional scoring from Cindy Op- perman."

"I will be looking at Cindy Opperman for scoring. Everyone will have a different role and I'll have to adjust. It's time to get back to the basics and have confidence," Illner said.

Salukis still hope for tournament bid

By David Gallant
Staff Writer

With practices set for today and Sunday, the Salukis are far from ready to put this basketball season to rest.

"We feel good about our chances for an NIT bid," assistant coach Rodney Watson said. "It's not a lock, but we just don't know yet." The Redbirds have a chance for better standings.

Invitations for the tournament will be given Sunday, the same day the pairings for the NCAA tournament will be announced.

"It could be all over right now, but we're preparing for another game," Watson said.

The Salukis all but lost their chance for an NCAA bid Tuesday night when they fell to Creighton 76-67 in the championship game of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. Watson said he feels the loss will deter the team's attitude toward an NIT bid.

"I think it is an honor," Watson said. "We were obviously very close to the NCAA, but like (assistant coach) Ron Smith said, many college athletes never get a chance "to play in any college tournament." Watson

Forward Rick Shirley said the team is a bit disappointed with Tuesday's loss.

"We're a little let down that we didn't come through," Shirley said. "I don't think there is any way we could be as excited about the NIT. It's nice, but it is not the NCAA."
