Campus Election Draws 2,959 Voters

Students' Favorite: Most Popular Prof Title

Robert Kingsbury

Robert Kingsbury, a lanky bass-baritone who has sung his way from Egypt to Iceland, has been named Most Popular Professor on the Carbondale campus.

Kingsbury, director of university choirs, was picked from a field of nine by students voting in the general campus election.

He accepted his new title at the Spring Festival assembly in M. Andrew Stadium yesterday.

Kingsbury, who came to SIU in September 1961, is a native of Hattiesburg, Miss. He received a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and a master's from Northwestern University.

He took additional vocal training at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago and Columbia University in New York City.

Kingsbury served on the opera department staff of the University of Michigan's National Music Camp at Interlochen for six years and taught at Wilson College before coming to SIU.

He has had professional experience with Fried Waring and his Pennsylvanians and the Robert Shaw Chorale. It was while he was with the Shaw group that he sang all the way from Egypt to Iceland as a part of the State Department's cultural exchange program.

In addition, he has appeared on the Perry Como, Dinah Shore and Arthur Godfrey television shows and with the Ray Charles Singers.

Kingsbury is a 35-year-old bachelor.

One-Third Of Voters Were Thompson Pointers

A canvas of ballots cast in Wednesday's election shows that 2,959 students voted. In last spring's election, a total of 2,114 voted. Dick Moore, 25, a junior from Harrisburg, was elected student body president with 1,507 votes.

Moore polled more votes than the combined total of the other three candidates for the top spot, Wendell O'Neal received 766 votes, Jeff Barlow had 555 and Rod Rees got 75.

In last spring's election, Bill Readick was chosen to the office of president with 1,072 votes. His nearest competitor, John Remnick, polled 634 votes.

Gerry Howe, who campaigned with Moore, was elected vice president Wednesday with 1,439 votes. John Huck received 778 votes, Charles Zoeckler got 495 votes and Gerald Knoll received 183 votes.

Bonnie Donahue, junior from Elmwood Park, was chosen homecoming chairman for next fall. She received 1,649 votes, and her only competitor, Mickey Bednarz, polled 1,049 votes.

Voting was heavy in the races for Thompson Point senator and out-in-town senator. A total of 1,105 students, more than a third of the persons voting in the entire election, were Thompson Point residents.

Since a living area is entitled to one extra senator for each 500 persons from that area who vote in an election, Thompson Point is now entitled to another senator. Two were elected yesterday and the third will be chosen in a by-election, probably within the next two weeks.

Out-in-town voters cast 708 votes, and a second senator to represent that area will be chosen at the same time an election for another Thompson Point senator is held.

The race for out-in-town senator was the closest in Wednesday's election. Dave Davis was elected by 16 votes over Ed Blythe. Davis received 330 votes and Blythe got 314. A total of 29 votes were invalid and there was 35 write-in votes.

Ronald Centanni and Judith Wolfe were elected Thompson Point senators, Centanni got 501 votes and Miss Wolfe got 274. The next closest candidates, Hubert Williams and Catherine Rattner, received 214 and 154 votes respectively.

Robert Quall was chosen

General Studies Called A Success

Despite problems caused by increased enrollment, SIU's space age curriculum for underclassmen -- General Studies -- has had a successful first year, its director says.

The General Studies curriculum went into full force this year with a freshmen class of more than 3,300. Providing about half (46 quarter-hours) the course work needed for a degree, it is now required of all new undergraduates.

Director John W. Voigt said the curriculum, blending age-old arts with modern social and biological sciences and newest developments in physical science, was designed to counterbalance the rigid concentration of courses in student's maker field of study.

Under the new requirements, students must take twice as much work as previously in the physical sciences -- mathematics, chemistry and physics.

Primarily, Voigt said, the plan is aimed at providing relatedness and continuity to courses. For example, such subjects as anthropology, psychology and sociology must be taken in sequence.

Grades recorded so far this year indicate General Studies courses may be more difficult than before, Voigt said. "But we feel as students get further into specific sequences of courses they will have a better background for advanced work."

Rooming House Ruckus

Leads To Fines For Three

Three SIU students were fined $15 each by Police Magistrate Robert Schwartz yesterday after pleading guilty to peace disturbance charges. Two others pleaded innocent to charges of disturbing the peace and their trial before Schwartz will be held later.

Fined were Robert Lee, 20, Dan Ashe, 20, and Paul Asbe, 18. All are freshmen from New Jersey. They have been sent letters of reprimand by the University, Donald Ferguson, 24, and Ronald Corduan, 20, pleaded innocent.

Authorities said the difficulty arose out of argument at a rooming house on North University Avenue early Sunday. Lee had already been placed in a status of suspension by the University for alleged involvement in the showing of pornographic films last week.

A number of years ago when I was a member of the staff of The New York Medical Center, I often found it necessary to visit the office of the Dean of the Medical School. A visit was a welcome break in the leaf through his stack of medical journals in search of jokes, cartoons, and light verse.

Postgraduate Medicine was a favorite because it frequently contained a bit of light verse poking fun at the medical profession by Richard Armour. His contributions to that most serious journal over a twelve-year period have now been brought together in this delightful volume, with illustrations by Leo Herbstfeld and a "benign introduction" by Charles W. Mayo, M.I.

Armstrong had written about a chapter or a page. One of the virtues of safe-flower oil, he drank and he knew, he never meant to get caught. He knew nothing of that, and he never once counted a caloric content. He knew, at his head there's a snow, he said, he might still be living if only he'd known, and gone, but he said, he might still be living if only he'd known, he might still be living if only he'd known.

Moore Previews Plans For Council

By Tom McNamara

Dick Moore drank a coke slowly and talked about the way he plans to handle the existing student government problems on the SIU campus.

Moore was elected student body president Wednesday afternoon with 1,507 votes. His running mate received more than the other three candidates combined.

"I am not going to be a supreme ruler or dictator," Moore promised. "I plan to work closely with every group on this campus in an effort to improve communications between students and the student body as a whole."

"I will ask certain people of each group and area to work with me and the council in order to work out their problems," he said. "This is the first time these people have been asked to do something. In the past they always have been told to do something and have resented it."

"I intend to listen to any individual, area or group which has a complaint," the newly elected president said.

Moore talked about the Daily Egyptian and the judicial system as the two main groups.

"Basically I feel there is a misunderstanding now between the Journalism Department, student council and the administration," Moore pointed out. "We will try and talk out the differences with the people concerned with these matters."

"Personally I have no real quarrels with the Egyptians," Moore said. "Everyone knows I am now in the delivery proposal but that doesn't directly concern the papers and its employees. At times, however, I disagree with some of the viewpoints but that is a natural, healthy situation."

"Already there are three people who will study the campus judicial system," he continued. "The results of the study and recommendations will be forthcoming in the next six to eight weeks."

"The matter will then be given to the council for consideration at the first possible meeting, according to Moore."

Moore quite naturally was pleased with the election results. "I was extremely disappointed in a few mature individuals who took such irresponsible actions," Moore said.

"Not once was I asked for my comment on the circular problem which was distributed Monday," he said. "It was surprising at the margin although I have always felt the individual student on this campus can draw his and her own conclusions."

"They can tell right from wrong," he added, "and if I feel the election results confirms this assumption."

Moore Previews Plans For Council

By Tom McNamara

Dick Moore drank a coke slowly and talked about the way he plans to handle the existing student government problems on the SIU campus.

Moore was elected student body president Wednesday afternoon with 1,507 votes. His running mate received more than the other three candidates combined.

"I am not going to be a supreme ruler or dictator," Moore promised. "I plan to work closely with every group on this campus in an effort to improve communications between students and the student body as a whole."

"I will ask certain people of each group and area to work with me and the council in order to work out their problems," he said. "This is the first time these people have been asked to do something. In the past they always have been told to do something and have resented it."

"I intend to listen to any individual, area or group which has a complaint," the newly elected president said.

Moore talked about the Daily Egyptian and the judicial system as the two main groups.

"Basically I feel there is a misunderstanding now between the Journalism Department, student council and the administration," Moore pointed out. "We will try and talk out the differences with the people concerned with these matters."

"Personally I have no real quarrels with the Egyptians," Moore said. "Everyone knows I am now in the delivery proposal but that doesn't directly concern the papers and its employees. At times, however, I disagree with some of the viewpoints but that is a natural, healthy situation."

"Already there are three people who will study the campus judicial system," he continued. "The results of the study and recommendations will be forthcoming in the next six to eight weeks."

"The matter will then be given to the council for consideration at the first possible meeting, according to Moore."

Moore quite naturally was pleased with the election results. "I was extremely disappointed in a few mature individuals who took such irresponsible actions," Moore said.

"Not once was I asked for my comment on the circular problem which was distributed Monday," he said. "It was surprising at the margin although I have always felt the individual student on this campus can draw his and her own conclusions."

"They can tell right from wrong," he added, "and if I feel the election results confirms this assumption."
