Tudor Says European Markets For Area Products Possible

William J. Tudor, member of the Illinois trade mission which returned from three weeks in Europe, said he felt strongly that southern Illinois industries could do well by making direct contacts in European cities.

Tudor, director of Area Services at SIU, represented Southern Illinois, Inc., of which he is president, on the mission that took a group of 140 persons to Frankfurt, Karlsruhe, Paris and London, with smaller numbers going to Leiden and, Holland and Scotland. He and Mrs. Tudor returned to Carbondale last Thursday.

Tudor said he was certain benefit will come in a number of ways to southern Illinois. He said two representatives of the Stanford Engineering Co. of Salem had a successful sales experience.

"The most important thing we know now is that it’s possible to sell our stuff in Europe," he stated.

A big problem, he continued, "is getting southern Illinois back into Illinois." He said Gov. Otto Kerner who led the trade mission, apparently realizes this, as he talked about southern Illinois a great deal and mentioned Southern Illinois University in his remarks several times.

Tudor said he spent most of his effort on tourism. The mission members, he said, found most of the travel agencies in Europe rounding their tourists through Eastern United States, with a few being interested in coming into Illinois and seeing the Lincoln country and other points of interest.

As a result, Richard New­man, director of tourism for the Illinois Board of Economic Development, will work closely with European travel agents to interest them in trips to Illinois, Tudor said, with the SIU Division of Area Services, the southern Illinois Recreation Council, and representatives of the state’s waterways, with particular emphasis on Chicago port facilities and the Tri-Cities Regional Port Authority at Granite City.

Freshman Carrying The Bag (Not His) Put On Probation

A bandbag that would have been ideal for carrying clothing has caused an 18-year-old SIU freshman no small amount of embarrassment, not to mention money.

The Office of Student Affairs reported that the student saw the bag in a Carbondale market and decided to buy it—so much so that he decided to keep it.

After doing a little shopping he approached the check-out line and either felt guilty or conspicuous. He deposited the bag and paid for his groceries.

But store officials had seen him and the bag together. And the bag contained $38.89 worth of groceries—which the student said he did not buy in the bag.

He has had to apologize to the store manager and pay for the groceries. The money will be given by the Office of Student Affairs to a charity.

And the student is on disciplinary probation the rest of this quarter.

SIU Professor Visits Colleges To Evaluate Research Grants

A professor from SIU and eight other educators from across the country are among the committee of a brethren of a committee which gives advice to the federal government about granting money for research in the basic sciences.

The committee receives applications from colleges and universities, evaluates them and determines the accep­tability and priority of each. The study includes on-site visits by committee members during the application process.

Working with Snyder on the committee are educators from Johns Hopkins, Duke, Kansas State, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Fels Institute, and the universities of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Chicago.

Oil Contracts Dispute Simmers In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES

U.S. - Argentine relations took another hit Monday with the collapse of a Washington effort to head off a decision to annul American oil contracts in Argentina.

Hardly had Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman left this capital Sunday than the government leaked a communiqué announcing the government's "sovereign and irrevocable decision" to annul the contracts in an action to take this week.

An authoritative U.S. source said that failure by the Argentine government to act within the concept of the U.S. position can harm the climate for foreign capital and with it the Alliance for Progress.

Argentina has promised to act within the law. The United States demands solemn, just compensation if the contracts are annulled.

In his successful campaign for the presidency, Illia assailed the legality of the foreign oil contracts because then President Arturo Frondizi signed them in 1958 without any action by the Argentine Congress.

The foreign oil companies, mostly American, insist that the contracts were legal and that under this assumption they have sunk $379 million since 1958 in developing Argentina's oil industry.

The communiqué leaked to the press made no mention of indemnifying the oil companies for their investments.

The companies are Eso Argentina, Standard of New Jersey, Tennessee Argentine, Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., Houston, Tex.; Pan American Argentine International, Standard of Indiana; Continental Oil; Cities Service; Marathon Oil; Shell, British - Dutch; Transworld, Kerr-McGee of Tulsa, Okla.; Southeastern Drilling Co. of Fort Worth, Tex.; and Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi, Italy.

The new reactor, called the Experimental Breeder Reactor II, started its activity with expensive nuclear fuel, Uranium 235, but produces more of a different fuel, Plutonium, than it consumes, and can be operated later on the self-produced Plutonium, Dr. Crewd said.

Argonne laboratory which designed and built the $35 million facility, operates it with the assistance of the Army Energy Research and Development Administration.

Argonne laboratory which designed and built the $35 million facility, operates it for the AEC at the commission's National Reactor Test Station, west of Idaho Falls. The newly started reactor differs from the first of its kind, EBR I, in that it operates with its core and major reactor components submerged in liquid sodium. The earlier fast breeder-reactor tested at Idaho Falls in 1953 with the liquid sodium demonstrated that the reactor could produce more than the necessary fuel to sustain its operation.

Dr. Crewd said EBR II can produce 62.5 million watts when hot, capable of being converted to 20 million watts of electricity through a steam generator.

Recent SIU Visitor Reports Aussies Emphasize Phys Ed

Australia places much more emphasis on physical education throughout its educational system than the U.S., according to a Tasmanian physical education teacher who spent three days recently coaching SIU women's field hockey teams.

Verna Kyle, tiny, brown-haired, vivacious, in a member of the International Wanderers, a team of women hockey players from 10 countries that—after only one week's practice together—won 16 out of 17 games at the eighth international tournament at Goucher College, Md., last month.

Miss Kyle said in Australia all elementary school teachers are required to take a section of their teaching training on physical education to be prepared to teach it to their regular classes. The high school physical education program in completely supervised by trained physical educators, and includes twice-a-week physical education classes for all students, plus an entirely separate sports program, occupying a double period in the regular school schedule. High school students must vary their sports activities in order to learn the basic rules of all sports.

Professional physical education programs are provided at the six state universities. Inter-varsity competition is carried on in most sports, she said.

"We may travel up to 5,000 miles to participate in a tournament," she said, "but travel is cheap for us, since we got a low rate from the railroad and also travel grants from the government."

Miss Kyle came to the U.S. two years ago to represent Melbourne University at a physical education conference in Washington, D.C. She remained to teach one year at Wheaton College in Massachusetts and another at Yasmar College, Mass.

She is touring the United States, visiting in colleges and universities, as a representative of the international field hockey team. In December she will go to England to work for a while and visit other members of the International Wanderers on the continent. In August the team will go to Kenya to play American teams and several demonstration games.

At first the girls were a little puzzled by the offer of a year's supply of laundry detergent, but now report that it is definitely a practical gift. "Besides, it says on the box that it has an additive to prevent water suds.

Labels In The Light Of Logic

Lately, our readers have been discussing the words "socialism," "liberal," "conservative," and "state's rights." These are expressions that mean many things, just like the words "rational" and "rational." A Democrat from Mississippi is nothing like a Democrat from Denver, and a Republican from Ohio may be philosophically identical to another from New York. And he usually is.

Many have argued Walter Lippman as liberal, but he calls himself a conservative. Yet he is a Democratic member of Congress. The idea of atomic energy are socialist, although they said they approved of the least socialistic. Rockefeller and Keating than the Rockefellers. Most people regard Walter Lippman as liberal, but they mean many things, just like the word "socialism," which says that the government should "promote the general welfare." And they will be surprised to know that the government has been trying to do just that for many years.

But we won't refer to these projects as socialism and an invasion of state's rights. Life is so complex that we tend to live by stereotypes. The wine wants more understanding than a stereotype can give. This is true of political issues, such as the current political. For example, there is an increasing movement among Baptists that there is between Sen. Strom Thurmond and Sen. Lawrence, that the same difference can be found among Jews, Africans, labor and its presidents.

Stereotyping is a handicap to understanding. The only place for stereotypes is on the stage. It is quick to categorize an actor and make drama more forward.

Letters To The Editor

Separate Group Proposed
As Student Council 'Insert' I find myself highly interested in the page 6 issue of the Daily Egyptian article of Governor Kerner, who follow. As an independent Democrat, I do not have an opinion on the public. For example, the border state of Kentucky, with two Republic, will be watched to see what it does with its hot race for governor. But it is also important that the city hall in Philadelphia, which will be studied widely in party circles.

Young, Untrained
The Republicans say they are going to turn Democrat, Mayor James M. J. Tate and Sen. Thomas J. McDermott. Most of the G. O. P. campaign alleges that Tate is not clever, but a man of compassion. William Green, Philadelphia Democratic chief, McDermott is young, little known, and with little experience in municipal affairs. From 1887 to 1951, Philadelphia was in the top grip of the Republicans. Their 44-year rule ended when now Democratic Sen. Joseph Clark was elected mayor. He was succeeded by Richard Hower and Edith O. Mayor Tate, Republicans formerly registered Democrat, died at 3 to 1. Now the Democrats have a 2 to 1 lead. Republicans registration for Tuesday is the lowest in modern history for a major election. So the margin of victory will be measured as well as the election.

The key may prove to be civil rights for Negroes. Here the question is whether the Democratic controlled legislatures will be free to work. White voters will be made up with gains in the ranks of Negroes who have been the object of a wider role in city affairs by the Tate administration. There are white workers who think that Negroes are getting "too fast" and will use the mayoral election as an occasion for saying as much.

Actually this same concern over the political effects of the civil rights campaign will be manifest in elections elsewhere, Honolulu, San Diego, and New York, etc. We may turn to key spots such as St. Louis does not have an election this fall, but it can be said that hot, because any campaign would be mixed up in the stump speech efforts of Negroes, particularly the Congress of Racial Equality, who works in banks and other white collar institutions.

Up to Year in Jail For violation of an injunction in connection with picketing at the Jefferson Bank and Trust company, at St. Louis Circuit judge, Michael J. Scott, sentenced in and sentenced, both white and Negro, including St. Louis alderman, in jail for periods ranging to a year. One of the longest sentences went to James Peake, while another who was from his wheel chair directed the successful demonstrations in East St. Louis, Ill., earlier this year. By morning, bail was denied.

Had the white community moved much earlier in the direction of justice for all, there would not be so much trouble now. After all we have a lot of catching up to do. Lincoln issued his Proclamation emancipation 160 years and 10 months ago.

PROBES OF EGYPTIAN WAR

Is Not 'Balderdash'

I would like to take issue with this editorial in the Daily Egyptian Thursday (Balderdash! Oct. 3, III. It seems to me that it is an attempt to imply that the Student Council, in order to appeal to the student body, has constructed a story that is not true. The student body has not been given a chance to express its opinions or desires. It is apparent to the student body that the Student Council is trying to appeal to the student body and has not, and does not, give sufficient emphasis to anything else in its act.

Principle: A campus government should represent the whole mass of students from every interest and affiliation under the present conditions and manage affairs under the present conditions. It is the Egyptian that says if the arts department still wants odd objects for model's to be placed in his roommates' rooms?

IRVING DILLARD

Harbinger of 1964 Vote

PHILADELPHIA—Wednesday national political leaders will be talking about the results of the mayoral election in Philadelphia Tuesday. If the Republicans win, they will be hailed as the victors in the battle of the liberal, Democratic upset that promises the return of the Republican mayor generally. If the Democrats keep the reins in the nation's fourth largest city, they will discount the Republican claim of resurgence as grand overstatement.
