Code Committee establishes rules

By Richard Lorenzo

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

How a complaint could be contested and how a preliminary investigation should be handled were established Wednesday at the meeting of the Community Conduct Code Committee.

The investigation section is divided into three parts. First, any member of the University community may institute proceedings by filing a complaint within 30 days of discovering a violation.

Secondly, in order to initiate a complaint, it must be filed in writing in the University Advocate’s office.

Finally, the University advocate may commence disciplinary proceedings on his own within 30 days of discovering a violation.
University House should be home of president says Student Senate

By Barry Cleveland

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A resolution urging the SIU Board of Trustees to re-designate the University House as the official residence of the University president was passed by the Student Senate Wednesday.

The resolution was submitted on behalf of student body president George Calvillo and vice president Jim Peters.

"The house is not suitable to be a conference center because of the relatively small size of its conference rooms and the necessity to "duck all these people and stuff from Carbontown" to the building south of Campus Lake," Peters said.

Peters said the Task Force to Study the SIU Conference Center of which he is a member, will recommend that the University House be re-designated as the President's residence.

Lapp has expressed a preference to remain in his home in southwest Carbondale, but a new University president may well have been chosen by the time the house is refurbished, Peters said.

The Senate voted to allocate $300 to assist the Carbontown Chamber of Commerce in acquiring from 30 to 50 identification engravers.

A representative of the Carbontown Police Department, Gary Allen, and SUI Security Officer Jack Fleming explained the operation of the engraver, for which the chamber has pledged $400.

The machines are similar to those used to engrave jewelry. Allen said "T-1" may be used to engrave one driver's license on valuable works to provide protection against theft and aid in recovering stolen property, he said.

The engravers hopefully will be available to the public within a month. Allen said they may be rented for up to two days, free of charge, from the radio desk of the Police Department and from the Security Office on campus, he said.

Fleming said the system has been highly successful where it has been tried in protecting people against theft. The engraving is permanent and would be a deterrent to thieves.

The Senate rejected a request from the SIU Parachute Club for $775 which the club had intended to use to pay for transportation to and entrance in the National Collegiate Parachuting Championships in Delard, Fla.

The Finance Committee had recommended rejection of the request because it said, "The club does not have sufficient funds available to them to finance this particular trip."

An allocation of $1427 to the club to subsidize the student activity fund was approved by the Board of Trustees in September.

wants to be home of the bride. It's also the place where they were engaged. Her heart

His job ends Friday when daughter Lisette walks down the aisle of Highland Christian church to marry Norman Carverette.

"I'm glad Dad the day my daughter gave her heart to L" said Lisette, "because he always makes things just the way I want them."

Wiley, who works in the trucking division at Ford Motor Co., has spent his spare time since mid-

September at the sewing machine in the living dining room.

Sewing, he admits, "was a lot of imagination and patience." He has been making garments for his wife and two daughters for several years.

"The girls kept growing so fast we couldn't afford to buy new clothes every time they changed size," he explained.

For the wedding gown, Wiley selected a pattern with an Empire waistline, deep V-neck and no sleeves. He added his own touches—a long-sleeved lace jacket that is attached to the bodice. The sleeves have satin cuffs and six buttons. The hem and the front panel of the satin A-line skirt are appliqued with grapes, leaves and daisies that Wiley cut from lace.

Wiley's wife Betty is sewing the lace around the edge of the bride's circular veil by hand.

"That's the only thing I can do besides sew," she said.

She made her own dress for the wedding but says everyone will think Wiley did it.

Prison reform must begin on campuses, expert says

By Sue Miller

Daily Northwestern Writer

The next 20 prisons built in the United States should be placed on the best college campuses of each of the respective states, Dr. Herman R. Baer, Clinical Services Coordinator for the Institute for Restorative Therapy in Los Angeles, said Wednesday at the Law, Psychiatry and Mentally Disordered Offender Conference in the Student Center Ballroom. He said that the tax dollars would not just mean just outside the city limits or off in the most deserted hole on the map, but the middle of campus, next to the library and the campus chapel if there is one. But, he said that did not mean loosening of security precautions.

"The only way to institutonization and think it's destractive," he said. "Baer listed these benefits prisons were put on campus. The public would be better educated in correction. More meaningful study could be gone in the area. It would provide an opportunity for all students to become familiar with the corrections problems and the necessary qualified person will be effectively encouraged to work within the prison systems. Baer said that a lot of work by the security are those people who are held in institutions against their will. The strength of the security can likewise be measured by the kinds of people who are on their team.

Baer said approximately one in every 100 people in the United States is in jail, on probation or has been in jail. He said that education is the first and most important need in the areas of corrections.

Baer said, "What happened in the past is not going to be the plan. What happened then was a system. The system is back and will be the first year. The model for the model should come from a potential hospital on the campus. Baer said that the prison is a strong, opposition, because "people didn't want the same contaminating the students."

He said society must know that at times toward prison locations. Baer feels the prison system and the people are represented in the conference.

besides bicycle racks, however. He said that STI Physical Plant employees may cut the chain and replace the bicycle at the security office.

Graff said that the security office is now attempting to have more bicycle racks installed.

Currently, some 10 bicycles are presumed at the security office. Graff said. Many of those have been found abandoned, with no one coming to claim them. Graff said that bicycles will be released only if the owner can make positive identification.

Another project to cut the number of bicycle thefts at STI, and in Carbondale in general is the proposed compulsory registration program. McKeen said. He said that the STI security office is now working with the Carbondale police in an effort to institute such a program, which McKeen said will add to police. He explained that if a bicycle is snatched in Carbondale without a registration decal, it will not be replaced by the victim and a cycle will be made to deter theft if it has been reported stolen.

Mirror needs help, concern for quality

The Mirror, a guide to student evaluations of instructors and courses at SLU, has been received with a bevy of criticism since its publication several weeks ago. It is brimming with transformed, of money, an administration tool which left out critical instructor evaluations, etc. Many Mirror reviewers have had a much more favorable reception and might have avoided much criticism if those responsible for its production had been more concerned with quality.

Certainly those who worked on the Mirror cannot be held responsible for instructors or reviewers who originally chose not to participate in student evaluation. But there is no excuse for the carelessness and negligence which results in misplacing a sizeable number of evaluations which were conducted but not published.

The Mirror lost a great deal of credibility when it chose to employ a subjective format in reporting evaluations. Rather than reporting the statistical data on student evaluation of an instructor on a specific question, the evaluations were evidently written utilizing their authors' interpretation and synthesis of the data and written student comments. The hastily-drawn conclusions with no supporting evidence from the evaluations leave the reader with a distrustful "Who says so?" feeling.

Finally, the technical errors committed in the very basic elements of grammar, punctuation and spelling do very little to enhance the Mirror. When an instructor's name is spelled two different ways in an evaluation and neither of the spellings is correct, one wonders about the care which was taken in preparing the evaluation.

If the Mirror is to be received more favorably in the future, it must show more evidence of care and thought than the present issue exhibits. If those responsible for compiling and producing the Mirror do not take enough pride in their publication to see that it is complete, factual, concise and well-written, they cannot expect it to be met with more than guar- ded skepticism from its audience.

To the Daily Egyptian

Those who are proposing a basic change in the operation of the Daily Egyptian owe it to themselves as well as to their readers and the University community to be as sure as they can be about the consequences of the course they propose.

I was a dorm resident for four years and since then I have read countless issues of scores of college papers. The bases of these vary widely in their sponsorship, support, means of operation, and uses. Few have even approached the competence, professionalism, quality and integrity of performance of the Daily Egyptian.

How professionally the Daily Egyptian has reported events, unplanned as well as pleasant, at SLU and in the world at large, has been written into the history of the University at Carbondale. What would have been produced under the proposed changes no one knows. Would it necessarily have been better? Even as good? Indeed, it might have been far less creditable.

A look at a sampling of current college newspapers raises more serious doubts. Some are not even pretend to cover the campus news. Many are merely channels for the ideologies of those temporarily in charge.

The case for change should be based on demon- strated shortcomings. It is unusual, to say the least, to call for a different plan of operation when the Daily Egyptian must be the genuine envy of a majority of other schools and communities. Look before you leap!

Phone for the flag

To the Daily Egyptian:

Work through the "system," folks. You and I have heard the phrase a million times. It works occasionally—often enough to warrant another try. So, if it has been the system is employing harassment, then perhaps that means that sometimes harassment is an integral part of the system. It is a citizen's duty to help his law enforcement officials in their assorted duties, including tracking down and reporting of offenders of one flag. Using a telephone, a thousand phone calls to the police station concerning flags being flown improperly (tattered, in the middle of the night, during inclement weather, etc.) at any of the VFW's, American Legion posts, Elks clubs, private citizen's homes in the area I'm sure there are none in Carbondale—only wear the star (not fits), and so on might be in order. This should be welcomed as constructive help by our obviously overworked police force.

Anti-semitism

To the Daily Egyptian:

The late Dr. Martin Luther King said on the issue of Russian anti-semitism: "I cannot stand idly by, even though I live in the United States and even though I am not a Jew. I cannot stand idly by, as a man, and be concerned about what happens to my brothers and sisters who happen to be Jews in Soviet Russia. For what happens to them happens to you and me, and we must be concerned...In the name of humanity, I urge all that we work to end anti-semitism in Russia."

'Apatiche marrieds'

To the Daily Egyptian:

Tuesday of last week my wife, as a representative of the University Women's Union, attended a meeting of the Married Student Advisory Council. After waiting através of the 10:30 meeting, the meeting was started with a grand total of five people present. To me this was a bit of a shock. I couldn't believe that the married students here would be so apathetic, and those of us who were present discussed this. We decided that perhaps, part of the problem could be the Council's name. After all, Married Student Ad- visory Council does sound very official, and possibly, misleading. The Council is not a marriage counseling service or a landlord-tenant mediator, rather, it is a group of married students and their spouses who want to meet people and do things.

The Council allows the students ranging from dances to shopping trips in St. Louis to children's Christmas parties. If any married student doesn't feel the Council has the kind of activities that interest them, all they have to do is come to a meeting and offer their suggestions and ideas. The Council needs and right now—interested people and their ideas. There is too much dancing, but so few couples showed up it had to be cancelled. There is no need for this, is there?

'Going up'

To the Daily Egyptian:

I sympathize with Mr. Stocker, who's Nov. 4 letter in the Daily Egyptian showed distress over the money allocated to such a high priority item as an escalator system in the administration building. Unfortunately, another escalator system is under construction in the north end of the building and all the stairways and elevators company. In this same issue, I read about the new service booth in the parking lot south of Anthony Hall. I thought that was a little service (mainly for visitors to SLU) cost to build and will add to our campus' appeal in the future. It seemed to have the same function as the new "Anthony Hall less than one block away." This is off the hook spening, but who is determining the priorities? These should be student involved decisions, but once again the student body is bypassed by the top representatives.
Conduct code sets expectations, violations

By Richard Loree
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The proposed replacement for the Student Conduct Code with new, more specific policy statements is known as the Community Conduct Code. The two previous codes, the Community Conduct Code follows the format of listing purposes, jurisdiction, conduct expectations and violations.

However, the new code does have a major difference. A section listing 12 definitions important in understanding the code is included with each pertinent item as a glossary and residence halls. The real change in the code comes in its content.

Diffrers from present code

The “purposes” section is basically the same as in the present Student Conduct Code. The educational mission of the University must be accomplished. The new code differs from the present code in that it is a community-wide statement, not a student-directed statement.

One of the major changes occurs in the jurisdiction section. The new code is limited only to property on or under the control of the University. This means that only directly affected the University would come under the jurisdiction of the Community Conduct Code allows members of a single organization to formulate their own regulations provided the rules do not violate University policy.

The conduct expectations section of the proposed code is similar to the standards of conduct section in the Interim Policy on Drug/Therapy. The policy lists three standards. Six are mentioned in the Community Conduct Code. The new code is a provision dealing with the destruction of public or private property, which is included in the Interim Policy

Conduct expectations

Two additions are made in the conduct expecta- tions section of the proposed code. The first deals with discrimination. The new code would expect each member of the community to treat other members of the community on an equal basis free of regard for race, color, creed, ethnic origin or sex.

The second addition states that any member of the University community is expected to reveal any financial holdings which might place him in conflict of interest.

By far, the largest section of the code is that which deals with conduct violations. There are five sub- sections listed in the new code under conduct violations. These are acts of educational, occupational, teaching, learning or ad- ministrative dishonesty or deceit; acts of obstruc- tion, interference, usurping the authority or destruction of property; acts of an arbitrary disciplinary nature, acts relating to drugs, alcohol and inappropriate social behavior; and the violation of the Community Conduct Code.

Under dishonesty or deceit, 14 specific violations are listed such as “providing false statements to the offense section in the Student Conduct Code. The Community Conduct Code goes beyond the student code in its treatment of the non-student situation. For example, the new code would explain in depth what constitutes plagiarism. The new code explains four violations dealing with dishonesty of the handling of educational materials. It also provides for libel and slander. Three violations in this sub-section deal with conflict of interest.

Dog regulations

The second sub-section deals with much the same material as the presentation demonstration sections of the Interim Policy. Forty-two violations are listed in this sub- section. 10 of which are almost identical with the violations listed in the Interim Policy. The new code would expand the violation section to cover the non-student. For example, the code, a facility, which has been offended, would be given the power to seek damages and would consider its or some other entity. The new code would not allow dogs except seeing eye dogs or other pets to run at large without a leash, or to enter buildings. Pets would also need some type of identification and they may be appropriate or other responsibilities for a bodyguard.

The fourth sub-section deals with drugs, alcohol and obscenity. All are dealt with in the present code. The new code would alter the policy substantially. Probably the most important change in this area of the new code deals with marijuana and its derivatives. Smoking marijuana with hemp or hashish is now legal.

A separate provision deals with marijuana while natural depressants such as barbiturates and Hall-in-mellarines are grouped together. In the old code, marijuana was listed with the “hard stuff,” illegal, whereas the new code may use or possession of an illegal. The new code would list sale, manufacture, delivery and possession of marijuana have been removed.

The innocent bystander

Nixon on 'Phase the Nation'

Arthur Hopper
Chronicle Features

In a bold move aimed at controlling inflation while stimulating a sagging economy, President Nixon announced today that Phase Two had been cancelled. Instead, he said, the nation would move directly into Phase Three.

The decision to skip Phase Two entirely was seen as a bold move to raise theAPX of the stock market. When Phase One was announced, the market had soared. But the uncertainties and con- fusion accompanying Phase Two had caused stocks to plummet.

The announcement that Phase Two had been can- celled hit Wall Street, brokers threw their ties around each other, and the Dow-Jones Industrials climbed 45 points in the first 30 minutes as jubilation reigned.

"My fellow Americans," said the President in a brief address, "while I will use my judgment, in the act of judging, abate wages and price controls more than I believe, rightly or wrongly, in freedom. Therefore, under Phase Three, I will make no attempt to control your wages or prices. This will be done instead by your stock market.

White House sources said that under Phase Three, the President would appoint three boards, two com- missions, four super-commissionary and a highly lucrative lane to draw up guidelines.

Unlike Phase Two, they said, George Meany and the labor leaders would serve on the Price Board rather than the Wage Board. They further said, would serve on the wage board.

"We’re putting the hens in the hen house and the roosters in the fox house this time, explained an Ad- ministration spokesman.

Meanwhile, however, immediately refused to serve on any board unless he got to sit at the head of the table in a leather-covered chair with his own water carafe, personalized note pad, three monogrammed pencils, and a mahogany pipe.

Treasury Secretary Connally promptly asked the President for a supplemental appropriation, their support in his efforts to prevent a whittling away of the stock market. The President, on the other hand, was considered by the Treasury Department as a potential liability he would never use.

Meanwhile, to clear up confusion, a Treasury spokesman issued today, a statement "emphasizing the importance of controls on profits, dividends, interest rates and man- ufacturers’ costs.

Half an hour later, a White House spokesman said this was absolutely true—except, he said, for profits, dividends and interest rates.

By late afternoon, the stock market had wiped out its earlier gains and dropped another 25 points. At the close of the market, President Nixon announced that the President would be considering skipping Phase Three and going directly to Phase Four. The Assistant Presi- dent of the President will put forth of a plan to phase in the phase of phase.

Meanwhile, the public would understand Phase Four any more than they had understood Phase Two and Three. For all at the President had made one thing perfectly clear: the tension with the rest of the world has not been eased. The President was quoted as saying, "We won’t like them, you got to be kidding.

Alcohol and drug control

Alcohol violations have also been clarified. The old code stated that the only acceptable punishments were fines and similar facilities. The new code would only deal with punishment or denial of privileges and punishments.

Finally, in the area of obscenity, the new code would be more specific. The exhibition or dissemination of materials was prohibited. The expression or dissemination of a presentation having literary, artistic or scientific value, would constitute an offense.

The final sub-section in a new one. The Community Conduct Code would make a false accusation, without some reasonable cause, a violation.

Work has just begun on the judicial system. Tres- timentary agreements have already been reached on four of the four components of the new system. Approval was granted for the formation of a Community Conduct Review Board (CCRB), the post of hearing officer, the post of University advisor and the post of University defender.

Although the four proposals have been approved, the language involved in each proposal may not be final. Revisions might be made by the committee, the University Senate or the president.

Prior to Wednesday’s meeting of the CCRB the following provisions have been proposed:

The first provision deals with the establishment of the Community Conduct Review Board. At the present time, there is a Student Conduct Review Board. The CCRB would act as an appellate body within the judicial system. The CCRB would consist of two undergraduates, a graduate student, two general faculty, a member of the graduate faculty, a member of the administrative staff, an employee and a member of the administrative professional staff. The members of the CCRB would be appointed by the CCRB with the advice and consent of its own constituency.

Establishing structures

Members of the CCRB would elect a chairman each year. During this election, each constituency would have only one vote. A chairman may continue to serve as long as he is a member of the CCRB. The CCRB would also have the power to establish any structures it needs.

Second, the post of hearing officer would be created. There would be more than one official in charge of enforcement. The officers would also be independent of the CCRB. They would be appointed by some other agency and not established under the University and under uniform standards. The duties of the officers have not yet been discussed.

The position of the University advocate would be created. The person who would be appointed by the president of the University with the advice and consent of the Senate. The University advocate would be independent.

Finally, the position of University defender would be created. The person who would be appointed by the president of the Senate with the advice and consent of the senate. Anyone charged with a violation of the code could take the defense of the defender in presenting and preparing the defense.

Navy aids offshore war effort

By Circuital Miller Jr., Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Because many black people are having difficulty using "standard" English, especially in its written form, a language program is being developed to make proficiency in this area easier, said Miss Hailey, newly appointed program specialist for University Services to Carbondale, (USC).

Miss Hailey, who received her master's degree in linguistics with a concentration in English as a second language from SIU, stated that "black English" is a marginal language, very different from standard English.

"I want to do is arrange a program in which black students are taught English using the ESL technique. The ESL technique is used in teaching English to foreign students," she said.

Miss Hailey said that she was not advocating discontinuance of black English but, however, one must understand that it is necessary to use this standard English in the mainstream of American life. It is important that one be proficient in standard English, she said Hailey, "because it will be the main communicator to numerous important situations.

Miss Hailey stated that there was a time and place for the use of standard English. "At home with the family or with peers is not necessarily one of the times when it has to be employed. In instances when one does not have to worry about being misunderstood or misunderstood are times when black English could be used," she said.

Miss Hailey's new job concerns itself with the researching and developing of programs that will integrate University and community life. "I also intend to enroll the creative team of the University staff in organizing new ideas for programs," said Miss Hailey. The combined with developing ideas into programs for submission to various agencies for implementations and funding constitutes the major part of 's duties," she said.

A theater nite for public high school students is also being developed by the program specialist. The program will take the form of a summer workshop which will probably last about eight weeks, she said. "The Institute is geared at those students who show a genuine interest in the theater. It is designed so that participants may come and increase their interest in the theatrical arts," she said.

Three areas of the theater will be emphasized: directing and acting, stage design and costume making, and playwriting.

Lawyer-economist will discuss property distribution and economy

By Steve Gelat

Aldous Huxley said that "if you believe in democracy, distribute property as widely as possible." Louis O. Keote, a lawyer turned economic analyst, also advocates a wide distribution of wealth and argues for rapid economic reforms. He predicts the United States will experience a lot of turmoil over the next five years.

Keote is the author of a new economic policy he has proposed that advocates for a more equitable distribution of wealth in America. He suggests that wealth be distributed to everyone rather than just a select few.

This evening, at 8 p.m., he will talk at the University Theater in the Communications Building.

Crop yields endangered by DDT, warns top environmental scientist

WASHINGTON (AP) - The top scientist of an environmental group that has fought the pesticide DDT for nine years said Wednesday that Nobel Peace-winner Dr. Norman E. Borlaug is "one or two decades out of date" in advocating its continued use.

Dr. Charles Wurster, of the Environmental Defense Fund, said in an interview that DDT, far from being essential to world food production, can upset natural systems so badly that crop yields actually diminish.

Wurster said farmers have got better results with new methods of controlling crop pests against their natural enemies, plus banned help from chemical pesticides less harmful than DDT.

The use of DDT on food crops is banned in the United States and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is considering a ban on its remaining uses, mainly on cotton.

It was the Environmental Defense Fund that forced EPA to consider the total ban by obtaining a court order last January.

Borlaug, who won last year's Nobel Peace Prize for his development of improved strains of wheat, has been arguing in the United States and abroad that if the United States bans DDT less-developed nations also will ban it, even though he says such a ban would doom their own crops.

In a news conference here last week & arranged by Montrose Chemical Co., a major DDT manufacturer, Borlaug said "so-called ecologists" were out to eliminate not only DDT but virtually all chemical pesticides, weed killers and "even fertilizer."

Addressing a conference of the U.S. Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome last Monday, Borlaug repeated that concern and said the result would be "starvation and political chaos.

Council sets meeting for wage plan

The Cumberland City Council will hold a special meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday, in the City Council chambers. According to a spokesman in City Manager William Schmitt's office, the council will discuss pay plan adjustments for city employees.

Last week, after the expiration of the firemen's union contract Nov. 1, several firemen called in sick. Negotiations on new wages had been going on between representatives of the city and the International Association of Firefighters, but no agreement had been reached.

Players present rerun of 'Man'

Southern Players will present their current play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," for two final performances, Friday and Saturday in the University Theater. Com- mencements Building. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

For the benefit of those unable to purchase tickets in advance, the University Theater box office will phone reservations until 7:30 p.m. on performance nights.

Admission is $2.50 for students and $3.50 for non-students with I.D. Students honored as long as seats are available.

Tickets may be purchased at City Hall, the office of Central Ticket Office, University of Maine, 582-4966, or the State Theater, 582-4413.

Early preparation required for WSIU evening report

By Ray Niekamp
Student Writer

Many television news viewers probably don't realize all the preparation that goes into a nightly half-hour newscast. But there is a rather extensive amount of time that goes into the show, and an idea of the effort involved can be had by seeing how WSIU-TV puts together its half-hour newscast, "The Evening Report.

Roughly four hours are needed to prepare a good newscast, according to student news director Jerry Howard. "This one's got to be good," he said, because it's the one newscast we do where we can be sure of a decent audience. A lot of typing is involved in the newscast, Howard said. Two copies are made of the script, he explained; one for the newscaster and one for the director.

"Films and other visuals are prepared into a television newscast," Howard said. The director notes in his script where to insert the film or slides, he added. The entire script is rewritten from the script wire copy. Howard said. And things in the newscast get changed sometimes.

"When you consider that we are also working on as many as an radio newscasts at the same time in the Evening Report, it can get quite hectic," Howard said. The films WSIU gets on national events are a sore spot in the news operation. Howard said. "Our film is sent from New York a day or two after it's shot," he said. By the time WSIU receives it, the film is outdated.

Local films are a different story. "The film crew goes out almost every day," Howard said. "From time to time, they'll film a story in the morning, and we can get it on the air that night," he added.

The individual newscaster must confer with the producers of that day's show to decide which film to use. Howard said. "Once that's agreed, the film is then edited and put on a continuous reel, called a... in chain.

We tape slides when we need pictures of prominent people," Howard said. He pulled open a small wooden drawer and took out a slide. "They send us these slides, too," he continued. "We file them so that the newscaster can easily get the slide he wants, when he wants it. Besides world figures, there are also slides of maps, landmarks and illustrations," Howard added.

The newscaster and director get together to decide when to use the slides. Howard said. By then, it should be near air time, he said. In the television studio, last minute checks are made on the microphones, films and cameras.

"We try to use our best people on the Evening Report," Howard said. "That way, we can avoid some problems.

But the Evening Report is having problems right now, he added. "About two weeks ago, we changed the format," Howard said. "Instead of moving from the anchorwoman to the Illinois news to the weather, and so on, we always come back to the anchorwoman," Howard said.

The new format has confused the newscaster who are not yet totally familiar with it, he said, and mistakes have happened lately. "These should all be ironed out in the near future," he added.

Twirler encounters little, big hazards

By Joey Katterfield

Debbie Reineking, member of the SIU Twirling Corps, didn’t know whether to laugh, cry or run when a barking dog ran on to the football field during the pre-game show at the SIU-Ball State game.

She stood her ground and the dog moved on. On to the trumpet player that was playing the Star Spangled Banner.

Miss Reineking admitted the dog scared her, but she said this isn’t the worst problem she has faced while marching and twirling.

Miss Reineking said she once fell into a hole in a street twisting her ankle. “It is quite difficult to twirl a baton and march with a twisted ankle at the same time,” she said.

There are other occupational hazards known to baton twirlers. One is being hit in the head with a spinning baton. She recalls that she has been hit twice this quarter, once by another twirler’s baton and once by her own.

She also admits there is some danger to those who march too close in a twirler because they could be hit by an out of control baton.

Marching in the cold wearing nothing more than a modified swim suit is another hazard of a twirler, says Miss Reineking. “After so long,” she says, “it doesn’t bother you. Your legs become so accustomed to the cold they stay warm. It’s the rest of your body that freezes.”

Miss Reineking, who’s from Metropolis, has had time to become accustomed to the cold. She started twirling lessons while she was in the third grade. She has been head twirler of both her home town marching band.

Miss Reineking said she really enjoys twirling with the Marching Salukis. She confessed that she feels a sense of pride and a feeling of being a part of a “good organization” when she marches.

She also commended the band for marching more complex maneuvers and playing more complicated music than she has ever witnessed in a marching band.

The next SIU football game, when it seems so cold, look for and think about Debbie Reineking as she suffers from the coldness of winter and bruises from twirling batons.
Proposed college is waiting

By Dick Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Much discussion, but no action, occurred at Tuesday’s Faculty Council meeting concerning the proposed College of Human Resource Development and the proposed Community Conduct Code.

Renzaglia, the present director of the rehabilitation service, presented the case for the college.

Renzaglia said the college has been planned for two years. If accepted, the Rehabilitation Institute, the Department of Design, Black American Studies and Community Services would be incorporated.

According to Renzaglia, about 90 faculty and 400 students would be affected by the change. The new college would be comprised of departmental areas concerning rehabilitation, Black American Studies and development, community development, environmental design and education and social alternatives.

The college would be based on certain premises. First, particular attention would be paid to the relevancy of instruction. This would be accomplished by having an action-oriented college service be provided to community affairs.

Second, the organization of the college would be different. It would be multi-disciplinary in outlook. An associate degree, presently offered only at VITI, would be part of the College of Human Resource Development. Experimental work would also be done in the work of ai

Electronic music program to be presented this week

By University News Service

Teachers and students, all composers of electronic music, will participate in a demonstration of live electronic music this weekend at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

Will Gay Battilo, director of SIU’s Electronic Music Studio, Alan Oldfield, associate director, and graduate students Peter Schmitz and Gerald Cole, have been invited to present their compositions in a series entitled “Electronics Plus.”

The Cebe-Schmitz composition, “W.H.O.” is for prepared tape and rudder players. Cole and Schmitz will perform the rudder which are amplified and mixed live with the prepared tape sounds.

“Color Suite” for prepared tape and projections by Oldfield describes orally and visually his feelings about eight different colors.

Ear aid
A totally different type of hearing aid that does NOT amplify sound has been developed by Charles Rawlings, a lecturer in the School of Engineering and Technology. Rawlings and modifies the sound wave form, producing crisp, clear sounds. This is a totally new concept in hearing aid design, according to Rawlings. He said the hearing aid is for people with hearing problems that standard hearing aids cannot help. Rawlings, who spent two years developing the unit, said Bellcore Electronics Corp. and the SIU Foundation are interested in securings production rights. The hearing aid is designed to emphasize the intelligibility of signals rather than increasing volume. Although it may not help all people with hearing losses, Rawlings said older people who find they can hear — but have difficulty understanding exactly what is being said — would benefit most from the unit. Important factors other than Rawlings’ approach are size and price. Rawlings said the unit could be made to fit in the ear, with a separate battery unit. The price Rawlings claims he can make the hearing aid for $5 - $10 a month would cut the cost in half. He said. (Pawnee Services photo)

THURSDAY SPECIAL...

Washy, Faculty Council representative and chairman of the committee, convened the meeting.

Washy told the committee that he hopes the document will be held next week. He also said the committee was in the process of writing the judicial system section of the code.

Following questioning concerning some specific aspects of the code, as well as the broad implications of the code, the council decided not to take a group vote on the code. Individual members of the council were urged to study the hearings if they wished.

Fewer out-of-state students may account for more than a third of this fall's enrollment drop. First-run computer figures show that ISU had 852 non-resident students between 1970 and 1972. Overall, enrollment was down this year by 1,481 students.

The count shows 1,385 out-of-state students out of a total population of 5,988 for ISU at Carbondale. According to the hometown breakdown, students from 47 states and the District of Columbia make up the non-resident enrollment for foreign students excepted. Missing are Alaska, Maine and Vermont.

The top 10 states in order of student representation are Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Tennessee and Minnesota. The last two are newcomers to the top 10 list, edging out Kentucky and Massachusetts.

Iran, Hong Kong, Taiwan, India, South Vietnam and Canada lead the list of 22 foreign nations represented in ISU's student body.

Bruce C. Appleby, associate professor of English, will present workshop demonstrations at two English conferences during November.

Appleby will head a composition and language workshop Nov. 18-20 at the Conference on Training Community English Instructors at Bowling Green, Ohio, University. The following week he will present a talk-demonstration titled "But What's It Got To Do With English?" as part of a program on "Black Lyrics & Poetry" during the annual convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Las Vegas.

English Department Chairman Howard Webb is one of 80 persons invited to participate in a Northwestern University seminar Thursday through Saturday. Topic for the regional conference sponsored by the Association of Departments of English is "Toward a Definition of Literacy for the '70s."

Thomas M. Brooks, dean of the School of Home Economics, has returned from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he attended the annual conference of the Association of Administrators of Home Economics in State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Music senior to present saxophone recital Friday

Army recruiter's been through it all, thinks it's worth it

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Sergeant Jerry Sowell, one of two Army recruiters who work in the East Main Street office in Carbondale, is either a glutton for punishment or knows a good thing when he sees it.

"The Army didn't make Sowell a recruiter overnight. It took three years of duty and four years of service before Sowell got his job."

He started his military activities with the Air Force, but he quit. He then joined the Army, and quit again. After a while, Sowell again joined the Army, but again decided that the Army was not going to be his career.

Why did he join a third time? "I was working as a butcher in east Texas at $125 a week," Sowell said. "Now I'm making almost twice that amount and will receive retirement after 35 years of service."

If the third time was the charm for Sowell, the Army didn't give him a direct path in becoming a recruiter. "I worked as a M4 for two years, in career counseling for six or seven years, in personnel and was a part-time in 'Nam for a year," said Sowell in a kind of monotone. "I wanted to be a recruiter, but I could be stationed in a country before I retired."

Sowell has been a recruiter for the past seven or eight months, all in Carbondale. He was asked what it is like working in a college town.

"It's just like being a recruiter in any other town," said Sowell. "You may need a little more tact or diplomacy in a college town. The main thing is your attitude is handling people. So far, there hasn't been too much trouble. The group enrolled (at SIU) right now has been very good. They don't seem as anti-military as others."

Sowell mentioned he has studied the records of May, 1976, quite extensively. He was instrumental in that month that student riots occurred in Carbondale. One of the results of the riots was broken windows at the recruitment office.

Swell, a middle-aged man with southern accent and short-cropped, brown hair, tries to keep up with his job.

Austerity cuts down Saluki Patrols

By Scott Novick
Student Writer

The austerity program has virtually eliminated the saluki Patrols. Virgil Trummer, assistant security officer, said the patrol is about a third of its usual size.

The Patrols, which used to patrol the campus on foot and in a squad car, have been reduced from 15 to about 15.

The Security Police have been designated the extra responsibility of night patrols. Trummer credited the ten hour overlapping work shifts of the Security Police, to the force's ability to take on added chores.

"We don't have many double car patrols alone, but the overlapping has given us more men at night when we need them," Trummer said.

The Saluki Patrols have been restricted to running the Student Center parking lot and operating the communications center in the police headquarters, Trummer said.

"These young men are a real help to the department and it's important that students are involved in the university programs," Trummer said.

Trummer hopes the student work program can get back on its feet because the nature of security operations requires more time than the usual hours given to the students under the austerity program.

Sgt. Jerry Sowell

"My day starts around 5 or 6 a.m. It may end by 8 or 9 p.m. There is no way that this is a 9 to 5 job," laughed Sowell. He is also direct, as is shown in his statements to a potential enlistee.

"I can give you two years like the draft or give you three years and guarantee where you will be assigned."

A young man is sitting on Sowell's left, nodding in agreement and trying to understand all of the recruiter's words.

"To us, you're our objective. To the Selective Service you're a number. You'll have a higher rate of pay than a drafter. You can delay entrance up to 180 days. We also add a personal touch," continues Sowell in a friendly tone.

The young man eventually leaves-without signing the enlistment papers. It appears he wants more time to think it over.

Recruiting is not Sowell's only function.

"We usually receive around 50 to 60 calls a month from people who have questions," Sowell said. "The questions may deal with insurance, benefits or someone who has gone AWOL, but the main function is trying to get men."

It has taken Jerry Sowell a long time and plenty of work to become an Army recruiter. But he's glad he did.
During the 1979-1971 fiscal year the Jackson County Health Department has initiated new programs of health education, full-time cancer registry, disease control and family planning services in addition to general expansion of health services, according to John B. Amadis, administrator for the department.

In the last fiscal year, gonorrhea was the second most frequently reported disease to the Jackson County Health Department. Amadis said the number of cases of gonorrhea has increased over the previous years from 275 to 487 cases of gonorrhea and from 4 to 28 cases of syphilis. Amadis said.

William Ross, epidemiologist for the department, said the first full-time investigator in the area of communicable diseases, Jackson County health officials attribute the rise in reported disease figures to the fact that this is the first time the county has had a full time, specific-investigation investigation that had previously been done on a part-time basis only. Another factor in the increase is the improved methods of reporting by physicians working in conjunction with the Jackson County Health Department.

A report put out by county health officials says that health education activities are concerned with some of the more intangible aspects of county health services. Such activities include, by way of example, the exchange of information between workers, the establishment of community health conferences, exhibits, counseling, films, written reports, classified literature, field inspections and media coverage.

Family planning services like those provided by the Jackson County, Family Planning Center in Carbondale have also been started. Mrs. Dashi, director of the family planning clinic in Carbondale, and her office has expanded its programs with a satellite center being placed in Trusted Hall on campus. Mrs. Dashi said having a satellite center on campus was a revolutionary idea in the field. The satellite center is open on Wed-nednesday morning from 10 to 12, but Mrs. Dashi said the project has been so successful that she was thinking of extending her office hours.

ISU workers are getting a raise.

NORMAL, ILL. (AP) - Illinois State University president David B. Berle said Wednesday that wage increases of 3.96% for university employees will go into effect Monday. The faculty wage increases will not be affected.

Berle said the increases will effect 2,400 faculty and staff members and 2,800 part-time student workers.

Holdfast money for the increases will come from funds already set aside for employee wages and salaries.

Mrs. Dashi, a registered nurse, will also be assisted by a family planning volunteer. Students may call for appointments at the central family planning office, 589-3811.

Mrs. Dashi said the Family Planing Center aims to provide educational and medical referred services for all residents of Jackson County regarding con-transitions and or counseling in this area.

Other programs and activities offered by the Jackson County Health Department include immunization clinic, vision and hearing tests, environmental health activities, rabies control and the keeping of birth and death records.

Highlights

There's just no doubt about it. The two teams of the Big Eight Conference, the second ranked Tarheels and the unranked Oklahoma will be undefeated for Thanksgiving Day. And this could be the game of the season.

The trend today is for big, fast offenses to dominate college football. Whether that can change, this Saturday will be known.

The record for the season is 9-0 for both teams. The Tarheels have lost their last two games and will face the Ohio State Buckeyes at 12:00 PM at the Georgia Dome.

The Tarheels will face some stiff competition from the Ohio State Buckeyes.

Martin Oilers take division lead

The Carbondale-based Martin Oilers baseball team has moved into first place in the Southern Illinois League. The Oilers defeated Union City 5-3 last night, snapping the high-duty Cardinals into second place with a 6-2 win.

The Oilers, led by pitcher Rod McKee, hold a 10-2 record. McKee, in his last start, pitched a complete game, striking out 10 batters. The Cardinals, in contrast, had a difficult time against the potent Martin Oilers lineup.

Union City, despite defeating the Oilers, is tied with the Cardinals in the American Division, with both teams having a 9-2 record.

In another game, the Herrin High School baseball team defeated Marion 6-2, improving their record to 7-4.

Cubs deny Banks up for manager

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, said Wednesday that he has no plans to replace manager Joe Lapinski, who has led the Cubs to a 6-10 record this season.

Wrigley's comments follow a report that suggested Banks, a star Cubs player since 1983, would be named manager successor to controversial Dusty Baker. The Cubs, under Baker's leadership, have failed to make the playoffs.

Wrigley, when asked if he had any interest in Banks, said: "I don't think so. I think Banks would be a good manager, but I don't think he's the right person for this job."

Offense takes most grid awards

Offensive players walked off with three of the five weekly awards made by the football coaching staff. Halfback Thomas X Thompson, tight end Lionel Antoine and flanker Phil Jett of the offense won awards. Honored defensive players were linebacker Bob Thompyn and safety Russ Hailey.

Thompson scored touchdowns on a 51-yard pass reception and 79-yard return from scrimmage as Southern handled Drake, 26-13.

Drake, he led all Saluki rushers with 136 yards. Antoine, back at tight end for the first time in a fall when he hurt his chest earning the blocking award. Jett received the specialist award for his 79-yard end around touchdown scamper and three kickoff returns for 47 yards.

The Saluki award went to Thompyn who graded out 94 percent at linebacker and made eight individual tackles, assisting on three others.

Hailey, interception award winner, had the same tackle figures as Thompyn and crept under the award's 100 yards on his interception was picked off by Terry Anderson.

Members of the Valors Club from off-ense are Thompson, Antoine, Brad Pancost, Larry Perkins, George Loukas, Same Reed, Dick Smith and Mark Ott.

Defensive Varsity Club inductees were only Hailey and Thompyn.

Second Thoughts

"Sports writer."

"Losers take all?"

Right off, the Missouri Valley Conference has been a weird season. Hell, there isn't even a Missouri school in the league.

New Mexico, Tennessee, Texas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Kansas...none are in the Missouri Valley. Really, I guess that's okay. But now the loop is ready to award one of its few teams a consistent conference that's bad.

Chances are, it will be Memphis State, 3-1 in league play. Just 3-4 for the season.

Number two North Texas State is even worse, a six-time loser. North Texas is 2-1 in the Valley but 6-4 against outsiders.

Not until we reach third place in the Valley's best squad uncovered. That's Louisville, Saturday night's Saluki oppoponent in Louisville, Ky.

Lee Corso's Cardinals are having a tremendous season at 5-2. But both North Texas and Louisville are 2-1 in conference play, against Drake and North Texas.

Three wins dot Louisville's conference record and it won't get many more, because the Valley has a five-game conference season.

The Cardinals, who show up all over major college statistics, can tie for the conference title, or even win it.

Memphis State would finish 5-2 in the conference campaign, identical with Corso's Cardinals. But North Texas would take over the league lead with a 3-1 mark.

A win and a four-way tie

A win over last place Wichita State, the following week and North Texas takes the whole ball of wax, six losses would mean.

Should Wichita rise to the occasion and stop North Texas, it's a three-way tie with Louisville, Memphis State and North Texas, assuming North Texas beats Memphis State.

Ready for another possibility? Should Tulsa lose 3-2-1 take care of Wichita State. North Texas beat Memphis State and Wichita stop North Texas, the seven-member Valley has a four-way championship tieup.

Even then, three of the four teams can have losing seasons.

This mess comes about because the conference has designated games against non-member schools.

If all the hopefuls, only Louisville played five games versus real, active, Missouri Valley schools.

Memphis State plays "conference" games against Southern Mississippi and Cincinnati, former Valley member.

Tulsa goes against Virginia Tech and Brigham Young to get five league games.

Win 9, lose 15, tied 1

North Texas has league games against exclusively loop members but recent addition conference State isn't in the race yet for conference football glory.

It's an injustice that Wichita State is the last place resident, even though the Shockers can still tie Louisiana. Bob Seuman has picked up the pieces of last year's airborne crash stricken team and molded a new squad, probably better than its 34-5 mark.

But the Shockers need to win one of two games wins over New Mexico State, North Texas and Tulsa to catch Louisville. Impossible? Here the Shockers have handled Colorado State, 24-14, last Saturday. With its three upcoming opponents have won nine.

And that's not very good anywhere. Even in the Co Valley where they're proving a bona fide loser can top dog.
