Firms slow official search, prof says

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Colleges and universities should be wary of using executive firms in searches to fill top administrative positions, public officials said of the search committee that worked with a firm in selecting President John C. Guyon. Lawrence Dennis headed the presidential search committee that selected Guyon. He also served on the committee that selected Chancellor Lawrence Petit. That committee also employed a professional search firm. Dennis wrote an article on the subject that appeared in the Jan. 27 issue of Higher Education.

Petit hired Heidrick and Struggles to conduct the presidential search. The firm helped the committee locate candidates and isolated those candidates that it determined were "interested" in the position.

"My article isn't a criticism of anything we did here," said Dennis. "I'm not criticizing our search in any way or the chancellor or the outcome.

However, he said, "In my estimation, the search firm is not the best way to go about the search process. Not having a search firm probably wouldn't have affected the outcome, though." In his article, Dennis argues: "Based on my experience, headhunters do not make the search for a new president easier. In fact, the committee's search would have been proportionately with the entry of the headhunter.

He also argues that "the most important procedures in the search process are no longer under the college's control.

Classroom Bible use disputed

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Both sides of a dispute over a teacher's right to quote the Bible say they will sue the Carbondale Elementary School District if the school board decides in favor of the educator.

Curtis Caldwell, an SIU-C master's student in linguistics, said his civil rights were violated when he was asked not to use the Bible while substitute teaching at Lincoln Junior High School.

The American Civil Liberties Union and American Atheists say Caldwell was infringing on students' civil rights when he spoke of religion in the classroom, which they referred to as "religious harassment.

The ACLU and the AA say they will sue the school district if Caldwell is allowed to continue referring to the Bible while teaching.

A public hearing to review Caldwell's request that the matter be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Brush Administrative Center 400 W. Monroe St.

Caldwell said in a telephone interview Thursday that he referred to the Bible at least four times while he was a

Staff desertions cause delay for Obelisk II

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

The Obelisk II student yearbook is six months overdue, and the editor is blaming the former general manager for causing a staff desertion.

But the former general manager, A. Steve Warnell, blames the yearbook's problems on budget cuts.

Cindy Zeigler, Obelisk editor, said she is working with a six-member staff on a project that requires at least 45 people to "do an adequate job." Dismissal between the Obelisk's student staff and Warnell caused many staff members to leave, she said.

"He had his own ideas about how the yearbook should look," Zeigler said, claiming Warnell was not letting students decide what went into the book. She said Warnell's policies went against the Obelisk motto: "Students keeping the books on being a student.

"Steve used too much control and students couldn't handle it," Zeigler said. "The best thing was [that] he was fired."

N.Y. not interested in Hambletonian

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

New York officials can't agree if they are interested in bidding on the Hambletonian harness race in 1988 or not.

Joe LaMadrid, director of public relations for the New York State Fair, and Gerald Moore, information officer for the Department of Agriculture and Markets, said the officials probably will discuss the possibility of bidding for the Hambletonian, harness racing's most prestigious race.

But Gaston Valiquette, president of the Syracuse Mile, the organization responsible for choosing which race New York will host, said the state is not interested.

"We are absolutely not interested," Valiquette said. "There is no funds and no package for the Hambletonian.

That could be good news for Gov. James R. Thompson, who is trying to convince the Hambletonian Society to bring the race, one of trotting's triple crowns, back to the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds.

Hugh A. Grant Jr., president of the Hambletonian Society, has said he will ask society members at their winter meeting March 25 if they want to accept bids for the race.

In 1979, the last year the society accepted bids, three race tracks vied for the race: the Du Quoin State Fair, the Meadowlands in New Jersey and the New York State Fair in Syracuse.

New York, where the race started in 1928, offered the society $1 million. Illinois offered $500,000 and the Meadowlands guaranteed $600,000.

Philippine rebels, military kill mayor, security chief

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) - Communist rebels killed a mayor and a university security chief, raided a prison and fought with troops near a U.S. base in a wave of violence that erupted after the government ordered the insurgency crushed, officials said Thursday. Because of the violence, the new national police chief directed all regional, provincial and field commanders to tighten security and report any intelligence on forestall rebel attacks on isolated military posts.

Black S. African says white fiancee kidnapped

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - A black man accused police Thursday of taking his white fiancee from his home by force but said he will not give up “the woman I love” despite midnight telephone death threats from a “lovers hit squad.” Police denied the charge, saying 20-year-old Annette Heunis, who had left her family to live with Jerry Tsie in a black township, refused to be escorted out of Kofimango in the Orange Free State for her own protection.

Israel commander confirms Arab beatings

JERUSALEM (UPI) - The commanding general of Israeli forces in the occupied West Bank dismissed many complaints of soldiers beating Palestinians as “imagined” but acknowledged Thursday that some soldiers have been disciplined for the beatings. Mifran, the head of the Central Command whose responsibility includes the West Bank, spoke after the newspaper Ha’aretz quoted Defense Minster Yitzhak Rabin as saying there were 340 cases of Israeli soldiers beating Palestinians in the occupied Gaza Strip.

Soviet police allow Jewish refusnik protest

MOSCOW (UPI) - In a turnaround Thursday, police permitted more than 100 refusniks demanding to be allowed to leave the Soviet Union to conduct a 40-minute demonstration on the steps of the Lenin Library. Several participants said the demonstration, held in 3-degree weather, was the largest Jewish protest in the Soviet capital in years.

Silence, lowered flags mark shuttle tragedy

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - Flags were lowered to half staff Thursday in silent memory of the seven astronauts killed when the shuttle Challenger exploded two years ago in a catastrophic loss of innocence for America’s once-invincible space program. In a tradition that began at the Kennedy Space Center when Challenger began its voyage into history, NASA workers across the nation observed 73 seconds of silence in memory of Challenger’s tragically brief mission.

Officials brief Reagan on FBI’s surveillance

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Attorney General Edwin Meese and FBI Director William Sessions were summoned to the White House Thursday to discuss a controversial government operation in U.S. citizens opposed to President Reagan’s policies in Central America. At the same time, Meese ordered a report from Sessions on the details of the intelligence, and the Justice Department discounted the revelations by a civil liberties group that the government had “carefully orchestrated publicity campaign” supported by a sympathetic media.

Carlucci says Nicaragua forcing escalation

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) - The United States could be forced to bolster its defense in the Gulf of Mexico region if Nicaragua continues to build up its military, Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Thursday. But the defense secretary did not reveal if he meant bolstering U.S. forces in states such as Texas that border the gulf, or in countries in Central America.

Information on AIDS to be mailed nationwide

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A brochure on AIDS will be mailed to every household in the United States, probably by midyear, the Public Health Service said. Ellen Castleberry, a spokeswoman for the agency, said Thursday research has been underway in the department for the past year or so to develop a brochure that will describe the virus, the disease it causes, how it is transmitted, and ways to avoid becoming infected.

Drug enforcers get $75,000

By John Mohler
St. Louis

A cooperative drug enforcement group in Southern Illinois is expected to receive nearly $75,000 in federal funds Jan. 15, according to the U.S. Department of Justice's Criminal Justice Information Authority.

The funds will double the operations budget of the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, a metropolitan drug enforcement group that coordinates 30 law enforcement agencies from Jackson, Union, Randolph, Greene and Williamson counties, SIEG director Lt. Dennis Bowman said.

SIEG will use the grant to expand operations against cannabinoid production and drug trafficking, Bowman said. More people will be hired and equipment will be purchased, he said. He would not say how many people currently work at SIEG.

The federal funds were made available by the Drug Abuse Act of 1978. Congress authorized funding for law enforcement agencies in Illinois was doubled from $30,000 to $60,000.

In 1988, the Illinois General Assembly awarded SIEG a grant of $125,000 to help it purchase equipment. The 1989 award will increase SIEG's budget to $150,000.

SIEG members include the Carbondale Police Department, University of Southern Illinois at Carbondale, Jackson County Sheriff's Department, county traffic enforcement officers, and county or city road patrol personnel.

In 1986 SIEG had a 92 percent conviction rate and confiscated $1.1 million in marijuana, Bowman said.

"I think the drug problem (in Southern Illinois) is significant," Bowman said. "Our emphasis in the Carbondale area is on cocaine. There has been a rise in availability -- on the streets, and in the whole country as well," Bowman said.

"We're beginning to see prices decrease, which is an indication of abundance," Bowman said.

Bowman said 27 percent of SIEG's 1987 arrests were cocaine-related, while the figure 10 years ago was less than 10 percent.

Fifty-seven percent of SIEG's budget is concentrated on cocaine-related cases, he said.

Bowman, director since 1983, received a masters in administration of justice at SIUC in 1979 and is pursuing a Ph.D. in occupational education. He is an adjunct faculty member at the Crime Study Center from 1979 to 1987.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, is the chairman of the Governing Board, SIEG's policy-making body.

Rep. chides: 'Come clean' Bush

WASHINGTON (UP) -- So much for presidential cloudiness. The clouds the role of Vice President Dan Quayle in the Iran-Contra scandal have been called a news conference and come clean, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said Thursday.

Chairman of the select House committee on the foreign policy affair, and there still are numerous questions surrounding the operations that even he cannot answer after nearly a year of congressional investigation.

One of those critical questions is Bush's participation in and knowledge of the U.S. arms sales to Iran, Jackson, 1985-1986.

"The position of the vice president remains unclear," he said Thursday on CBS's "60 Minutes." "And until it is clear, I think it'll continue to be an issue," in Bush's campaign for the presidency.

Bush, who canceled his campaign appearance in New Hampshire to be available for "60 Minutes," in the Senate, could not be reached for comment. A spokesman for his presidential campaign had no immediate comment.

The vice president's refusal for the Republican presidential nomination have been dogging Bush to clarify his understanding of events in that scandal and the advice he gave President Reagan as the affair proceeded.

Hamilton said he was opposed to swapping arms for hostages, but Iran, and did not believe the arms sales amounted to such a deal. He has also said he expressed "reservations" about various aspects of the deal.

In an explosive 9-minute live interview Monday with CBS News anchor Dan Rather, the vice president muddied the issue further by saying, his key objection to the U.S. arms sales was the deep involvement of a "foreign power" -- Israel.

Israel served as the broker of the arms sales in late 1985, but in January 1986, Reagan signed a national security "finding" permitting the CIA to sell arms directly to the radical Islamic government in Tehran.

Graduation prayer should be stopped

A PROPOSAL TO have only non-denominational prayer at SIU-C commencement ceremonies would be a potentially divisive blow to intellectual freedom. It would give the University free rein to control the content of prayer, which would be a monstrous bite into the forbidden fruit. It would doom freedom of thought and expression to eternal subjugation by the University.

The proposal was made in an attempt to avoid prayer at graduation ceremonies that may offend people who are not of the same faith as the person delivering the prayer. But the fear that someone may not approve of a prayer's content is not reason enough for change. Legislating universal prayer would be a definite step in the wrong direction.

SIU-C PRESIDENT JOHN Guyon recently sidestepped the issue by saying that each college could decide whether it wants to have prayer at graduation. In doing so, Guyon passed up an opportunity to put an end to the problem and merely perpetuated the status quo.

The real issue is not what type of prayer should be said at graduation, but that prayer should not be there in the first place.

The free flow of ideas, both religious and secular, is the backbone of every university. But in certain situations in a university setting prayer is improper. Commencement is one of those situations.

Prayer would be proper at a meeting of a religiously oriented university club where everyone chooses to pray among themselves, for instance. But it is not proper at a gathering that has absolutely nothing to do with religious worship.

BY SPONSORING PRAYER in such a setting as graduation, the University is violating the basic concept of the separation of church and state. In effect, SIU-C controls what type of prayer is delivered at graduation by choosing the person to deliver the prayer.

There is a fine line between the University's obligation to ensure intellectual freedom by allowing prayer on campus and the University actively sponsoring prayer. In the case of prayer at commencement ceremonies, the University has crossed this line.

It is not an indictment of the University to say that it is an agency that attempts to inject a degree of religiosity into the lives and thoughts of those present. Religion can be a positive and necessary force in society, but in order to remain independent of the government, the University must remain free from the control of the government.

THAT THE UNIVERSITY is trying to encourage piety among its students is not necessarily wrong, but for the University to prescribe the form and content of prayer is wrong.

It is a shame that people in attendance at graduation ceremonies do not have the open-mindedness to be tolerant of prayers that are not in keeping with their own faiths. Owing to the content of prayers delivered at graduation shows a lack of respect for the freedom of thought and expression.

It should be of no concern to the University that certain people want to change the content of prayers at graduation, but the problem arises from the University's misuse of having prayer there in the first place.

Bush is well acquainted with agony, had to fire plenty of working men

It appears that George Bush really is on a roll. He's quickly shedding his old image as a wimp and ass.

First there was his triumphant shooting match with Dan Rather, which let us know that he is nobody's patsy. And now he wants us to know that he's not really the wealthy, well-born, well-bred aristocrat that he's been portrayed as.

Yes, he's known hard times. Despite growing up in a sprawling Connecticut mansion with cook and maid, attending the finest prep schools and Yale, and having a millionaire father who was a U.S. senator, Bush has known what it's like when the wall is at the door. He revealed this while making a campaign speech in Wyoming, where the economy is depressed because of an oil price recession.

To let these simple folk know that he understands what they're going through, he talked about how tough it was for a man like him to find a job.

He said Bush was like a real man, had been cut off his allowance, and was forced to work for two weeks' pay in lieu of it.

Then he told them what he learned from the experience.

"You really learn something when you're treated like a little girl. You learn something about the rough road he has traveled."

It's strange how we can watch someone like George Bush on TV for years, yet we don't really know him as a real person. But do we know enough about the rough road he has traveled?

Have any of you ever looked at him and said: "There stands a man who went through the agony of firing an employee. How did he endure it?"

But when Bush started to sing, "Firing a man, that's another reason I am in agony, that is such a nasty chore..."

"You mean I'm fired!"

"It's bad, sir, Mr. Bush. That's another reason why I am in agony. There's nothing..."

"First there was his triumph..."

"That's another reason why I am in agony. That is such a nasty chore..."

"Well, heck, Mr. Bush, don't go fretting over the likes of me. Being thrown out of work is nothing. Me and the little lady and our three tykes, we'll get by somehow. It's nothing compared to the agony you're going through for having to fire me..."

"Thank you, Festus."

"But do we know enough about the rough road he has traveled?"

"I been havin' some hard travel..."

"Yes, sir, Mr. Bush. Something you say?"

"No, Festus, it is my bottom line. It has grown weak..."

"I thought you were looking like a little pale."

"Yes, Festus, and I'm also in agony because of my diagnosis of cash flow..."

"Is there anything I can do?"

"As a matter of fact, there is. You can clean out your locker and accept this check for two weeks' pay in lieu of notice."

"I been fired, sir, Mr. Bush."

"I'm a fine fellow, Festus. I feel better already..."
Students have no fear of flying

While the Jan. 18 plane crash that killed three students may have brought on a fear of flying for some, aviation students and instructors insist that the University's flight training program stresses safety.

"The main aspect of flight training here at SIU-C are safety oriented," Frank Lewis, chief flight instructor, said. "Everything we do here from aircraft maintenance, weather and flight instruction is safety.

A student must pass a minimum of 45 hours of flight training and five hours of flight simulator training to be rated a private pilot. Then the student must get certification from the Federal Aviation Administration to get a private pilot's license.

Instructor Curt Christensen described the flight training program as "outstanding."

"I feel very comfortable flying our airplanes and very good about our safety guidelines for students," he said.

Honors Lecture Series features constitutional expert Graham

Veteran journalist and constitutional expert Fred Graham will speak Monday as the third featured in the 1967-68 University Honors Program Lectureship. Graham will speak on "The Media." The lecture, which is free and open to the public, will be at 8 p.m. in Student Center Auditorium. A public reception in the Student Center的一楼 will follow the lecture.

Graham is now anchor and senior correspondent for WRTA-TV, the ABC affiliate in Knoxville. Before that, he was a Supreme Court reporter. Graham covered the nation's high court, the Justice Department, FBI and the legal profession as law correspondent for CBS News from 1970 to 1987.

Graham's 25-year career spans experience as a practicing attorney, legal writer for the New York Times and his years with CBS. He has received the George Foster Peabody Award, three Emmy Awards and two American Bar Association Gavel Awards. While at CBS, Graham served as a frequent guest anchor on the CBS News programs "Nightwatch," "Face the Nation" and "The CBS Morning News." Before going to CBS, Graham was Supreme Court correspondent for the New York Times. He served as special assistant to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz from October 1963 to February 1966, during which time he also served as deputy chief counsel of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. Graham moved to Washington in January 1963 to become chief counsel of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments.

Graham practiced law in Nashville, Tenn., from 1960 to 1963 after graduating from Oxford University with a Diploma in Law. He also holds a law degree from Vanderbilt Law School (1959) and a bachelor's degree from Yale University (1953).

He's involved in every­thing I do. I can't divorce who I am from what I walk into a school. They can't legally ask me to substitute, without a hearing.

Another instance involved a student passing a note in class with "twisted" Bible verses written on it. One of the verses said "Blessed are the strong, for they trample over the weak." Caldwell took the note and told the class the way the verses should have been written.

Caldwell said he has been asked to refrain from discussing religion in other substitute teaching positions. In each instance, he said, hasn't been asked to substitute, without a hearing or due process of law. Before now, Caldwell said he had done nothing to defend himself. But Caldwell added: "The Lord didn't think it was the right time to do something about it. Now he does."

The ACLU and AA are considering a suit against Caldwell and the school district if the district decides in Caldwell's favor, while Caldwell claims he will sue the district if it decides against him. "They (Caldwell and the school district) can voluntarily obey the law," Sherman said. "If they won't, we'll sue their butts and win every time."

Canadian High Court rescinds abortion law

OTTAWA (UPI) - The Supreme Court declared Canada's 16-year-old abortion law unconstitutional Thursday, invalidating a law banning abortion except when a woman's health or life were threatened, as being an infringement of a woman's right to have an abortion.

Morgentaler, who appealed that the law violates a person's right to privacy while delaying causes by requiring a hospital committee to authorize abortion, voted against the law.

The court also ruled the fetus should be viewed as a "person," which guarantees rights to life, liberty and security.

"Forcing a woman, by threat of criminal sanction, to carry a fetus to term unless she meets certain criteria unrelated to her own priorities and aspirations, is a profound interference with a woman's body and an absolute infringement of her security of the person," the court said in its written opinion.

The court said the existing 1972 abortion law violates the Constitution's Section 15, which guarantees rights to life, liberty and security.

In the case, Morgentaler, who operates private abortion clinics in Ontario and Quebec, argued the law is unconstitutional.

The court decision, winding up a more than two-year battle in Canada's 16-year-old abortion law, is expected to prompt a constitutional challenge to the law in the Canadian Supreme Court.

The court said the law violates the 1982 Constitution Act, which protects hospitals and other institutions that receive federal funds from ever being forced to perform abortions.

In a victory for Morgentaler and other pro-choice activists, the Senate voted 56-59 for an amendment offered by Sen. John Diefenbaker, that would have forced institutions that receive federal funds not to be forced to perform abortions.

The court said the law violates the 1982 Constitution Act, which protects hospitals and other institutions that receive federal funds from ever being forced to perform abortions.

Want to stop smoking but can't? Forget about it through hypnosis

By Phyllis Coon

Staff Writer

A group hypnosis session for smokers who want to "kick the habit" will be offered at the Jackson Count Health Department at 5600 P.O. Feb. 8, by the American Lung Association. Helen Saunders, regional director for the organization, said. The event is co-sponsored by the county health department, located three miles west of Carbondale on Route 13. Registration for the 90-minute session is £5.

Saunders said hypnosis can be used to help people remember things but it also can be used to help people forget they want to smoke.

She cited a Louisiana State University study in which 56 percent of the smokers tested were not smoking one year after hypnosis. The highest success rate in the study was with heavy smokers, defined as smokers of more than one pack of cigarettes a day.

An assistant professor of psychology David Gilbert, however, said studies on the subject have not been well designed, and no scientific conclusions can be drawn on the success of such therapy.

"There is no evidence that hypnosis works any better than other forms of therapeutic intervention." - David Gilbert saunders said that a tape can help remind a person of their goals, but said when a person loses motivation or is stressed, they may return to smoking.

Sometimes people convince themselves the hypnosis has worn off, he added. Most people just need to be motivated again.

For the past decade, the American Lung Association has hired hypnotist Joe Greer for similar sessions. Greer is president and owner of Breakaway Techniques Inc. of Savannah, GA, the company specializing in the hypnotism of people who want to quit smoking or lose weight.

Polygamists 13-day siege ends, policeman killed in brief shootout

MARION, Utah (UPI) — Authorities with attack dogs ended a polygamist cult's 13-day siege at a barricaded farmhouse Thursday in a shootout that seriously wounded a state police officer, a federal court leader and killed an officer whose bulletproof vest was pierced by a gunshot.

Many of the 15 people, including six young children, ran out of the remote snow-covered log house with their hands in the air after the 8:30 a.m. gunfight as a military armored personnel carrier moved onto the 2½-acre farm to try to evacuate the gunned-down officers, state officials said.

Adams Swapp, 27, a cult leader who admitted bombing a Mormon chapel Jan. 16, was shot in the chest and forearm. He was taken to University of Utah hospital in critical condition but his status was later upgraded to serious and he was expected to recover.

Killed was a state Corrections officer, a dog handler. A bullet from a high-powered rifle ripped through his vest, went into his body and came out of his side, Utah capital spokesman John Dwan said.

The officer, whose identity was not disclosed, had slipped onto the compound during the night with several other law officers, hiding in one of four 1979, during a standoff with a Mormon, was the family's slain father-in-law, John Singer, to save the family.

Singer, an excommunicated Mormon, was killed Jan. 18, 1979, during a standoff with police on the remote farm, 40 miles east of Salt Lake City.

In a letter issued from the compound in response to Gov. Norm Bangerter's plea for their surrender late Wednesday, Swapp said the family had withdrawn from the United States and formed their own country called "The Nation of Property," Neilsen said.

Although no shots were fired by lawmen until the final day, more than 100 shots were fired from inside the compound, mostly aimed at high intensity lights and loudspeakers installed around the edge of the farm, on the advice of psychologists, to wear the family down.

Police also shot off electric power and water to the house, but officers said both actions were taken after the barricaded house had heat from stoves and a fireplace and water from the snow and a spring.

Summer travel-study program educates students ‘on location’

Reservations are being taken at the University for summertime travel-study programs in Japan, Great Britain, Greece and the northern Rocky Mountains. The programs, ranging from ancient Greek culture to modern British broadcasting, are open to students and practicing professionals through the International Programs and Services office. Classes are usually taught “on location” and may be taken for college credit.

The current program list:

- “Stencil Printing and Natural Dyes: An On-site Studio in Japan,” July 6 to 30. Students will study traditional Japanese stencil printing techniques in Kyoto, Japan. This program is for students interested in fibers, textile and fashion design, and printmaking. University instructor: Joan M. Linault, associate professor of art, 453-4315.

- “British Television Programming, Policy and Production,” June 1 to 14. This London seminar will include lectures by British scholars on changes in the British television industry and British Broadcasting Corp. personnel. University instructors: Joe S. Foote, chairman and associate professor of radio-television, 336-7600; and Dennis K. Davis, professor of speech communication, 433-250.

- “International Business Operations,” June 1 to 30. Study will be at the Danbury Park Management Centre, just outside of London, with British firms. For information and prerequisites, call Lars L. Larsson, director of the International Business Institute at 453-3307.

- “Special Education in Japan,” June 17 to late July. A study of education. Philip A. Robertson, associate professor of psychology, 536-2331.

Locater service helps students with kids

An emergency locater service for students with children in school, day care, or with a sitter is offered by Women's Services free of charge. The service number is left with the child’s sitter or school office and the service will provide a copy of the parent’s schedule. Susan Powell, Women's Services, said. If the child gets sick or there is some other emergency, the service can locate the parent immediately. The service has been operating since 1977. Powell said parents can leave their schedules at the Women's Services office in B244 Woody Hall.

Drug smuggler says Noriega accepted millions in illegal cash

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- A convicted drug smuggler said Thursday he paid millions of dollars to Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to buy the Panamanian leader's help in laundering massive amounts of drug profits in the country's banks.

Steven Kalish, 36, a dealer whose drug money once filled entire rooms of his Tampa, Fla., house, told Congress that Noriega was a "full-scale co-conspirator" in a drug ring that shipped marijuana from Colombia to the United States and then stashed the profits in Panama.

In his testimony to the Senate Permanent Sub-committee on Investigations, Kalish said his entire rooms of his Tampa hideout had been decorated by U.S. investigators looking into Noriega's alleged involvement with drug dealers.

Nunn noted has been involved in the Panama Canal to local control at the turn of the century.

The slight, clean-cut Kalish agreed to testify to Congress as part of a plea bargain with authorities following his July 26, 1984, arrest in Tampa for smuggling 50,000 pounds of marijuana. He has been in prison since. Three bodyguards accompanied him to the hearing room.

Kalish's involvement with Noriega began after he became concerned about the huge amounts of cash piling up in his Tampa hideout. At one point, the money amounted to $35 million, he said, and, "The currency filled up entire rooms."

Noriega has denied any involvement with drug smuggling and instead has accused American conservatives of instigating the charges to prevent the handing over of the Panama Canal to local control at the turn of the century.

Kalish said he paid Noriega millions of dollars, helped him buy an executive helicopter and jet and, on one occasion, loaned Noriega his plush Lear jet for an official visit to Washington.

Sub-committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said he had "no reason to disbelieve" the testimony, some of which Nunn noted has been corroborated by U.S. investigators looking into Noriega's alleged law's-to drug dealers.

Kalish said the general refused to do.

Swimmers face six competitors at Illini Classic

By Steven Walsh
Staff Writer

Following a successful three-meet home stand, the men's and women's swim teams will travel to Champaign for the Illini Classic Invitational. The meet will start at 6 tonight and then at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday at the University of Illinois natatorium.

Seven universities will compete at the invitational, including U of I, Northern Illinois, Indiana, Northern Iowa, Iowa, and the University of Illinois at Chicago.

SIU-C Coach Doug Ingram said he expects tough competition from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Northern Illinois. (Iowa men's team, ranked 16th, is 7-5 after wins against Missouri and Cincinnati last weekend. The women's team, which defeated Missouri and lost to Cincinnati, is 9-7.)

"Our approach will be a little different than if we were just after team points," he said. "We'll take a look at some people in different events and try to get some qualifying times."

"Obviously we'd like to win, but we can't compromise all the hard work we've done for the end of the season," he said. "We'll take a look at some people in different events and try to get some qualifying times."

Men's track team enters 2 meets

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Men's track coach Bill Cornell said he is splitting up the team for two meets in hopes that some of his top athletes will qualify for the national indoor championships.

Half the squad, including All-American Ron Harrer, will compete in a seven-team invitational today at Eastern Illinois. "They (Eastern Illinois) have the 35-pound weight event and I want Ron Harrer to get a chance to qualify," Cornell said.

Pole vaulters Mike Michels and Shane Weber are competing at EIU because they "like the jumping facilities at Eastern Illinois," Cornell said.

On Saturday, Weber will drive to Columbia, Mo., to join the rest of the team for competition in the Missouri Invitational. "People who have a chance to qualify in running events will have a better chance at Missouri," Cornell said.

He said the key athletes who have a good chance to qualify are All-American Andy Pettigrew in the mile run and senior Bret Garrett in the 800-meter run. In the field events, Leonard Vance will compete in the long jump and Weber in the pole vault.

Women go to Arkansas

Women's track coach Don DeNoon said he is expecting his team to finish on top in the seven-team Arkansas State Invitational tonight in Jonesboro, Ark.

"At this particular stage, if we have everybody healthy, we should be the top team at the meet," DeNoon said.

Two key runners, Angie Nunn and Rosanne Vincent, will not compete because of injuries. "I'd like to see us come out of this meet scoring in every event except the high jump," DeNoon said.

At Purdue last weekend, the team scored in every event except the high jump, 300-meter dash and 800-meter run.

Last week, Christiana Philippou set a school record in the triple jump at 39 feet, 1 inch. Vivian Sibbs finished the mile in 5 minutes 27.88 seconds to set another school record.

Men’s tennis team expects to start with fall’s lineup

By Jeff Griesser
Staff Writer

The men’s tennis team opens its spring season Saturday against Northern Illinois University and Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.

“Our lineup will be the same as in the fall,” coach Dick LeFevre said. “There may be a change or two in positioning, depending on how the guys are playing.”

Junior Jairo Aldana of Colombia will be at the No. 1 singles spot.

“Aldana played great in the Illinois Intercollegiates this fall,” LeFevre said. Although official statistics were not kept, LeFevre said Aldana was the winner in the “A” bracket singles competition.

Fabiano Ramos played at No. 2 in the fall, but that could change, LeFevre said. “If (Ramos) suffered a back injury last year running sprints, and I’m not sure he ever fully recovered,” LeFevre said.

At No. 3 this fall was Mickey Maule, a sophomore from Aledo, Ill. LeFevre said Maule is a semifinalist in the Illinois Intercollegiates, competed recently in the Miami spring season Classic. He beat three opponents and was ousted in the fourth round.

“The way Mickey played in Milwaukee, he could play at No. 2 or 3 this year,” LeFevre said.

Juan Martinez, No. 4 singles, has tendinitis in one of his knees, but should be able to compete, LeFevre said.

George Ilone, a sophomore, will be at the No. 5 spot and walk-on freshman Dean Dossel will take the No. 6 spot.

The spring schedule includes matches against Big Ten teams Indiana, Purdue, Ohio State, Missouri Valley Conference foes include Tulsa, Wichita State and Illinois State.

LeFevre said he thinks his team will be in good shape by the end of the season.

“We have a long way to go, but we will improve as time goes on,” he said. “We have a problem with indoor practice facilities, but we’ll just have to practice ourselves into shape.

The team’s toughest competition is expected to come from a match this spring against Top 50 teams from northeast and southwest Louisiana. The team will compete in seven cities in eight days.

“The trip will be good for us,” LeFevre said. “We should peak right afterward, in time for the conference championships.”

The MVC championships will be May 7-8. LeFevre said he thinks the Shockers will be in a four-way struggle for the title. He said he seen Wichita State, Tulsa and ISU fighting it out with SIU-Edwardsville.

“Wichita has been so good for so long, you can never count them out,” LeFevre said.

“Tulsa recruited four tough kids,” he said. “Illinois State has a Canadian kid, who is really a great player.”

It all started with a six-pack and a dare

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

It all started over a six pack of beer.

But Light daredevil Ty Cobb, then a University of Missouri cheerleader, was challenged by a friend to do the "Flip Dunk," the group's hardest trick.

"A friend of Ty's bet him a six-pack of Busch beer to do a front flip off a mini-tramp and dunk the ball," brother Guy Cobb said.

"He missed the first time, but at the University of Alabama game, he made it and the whole place gave him a standing ovation," he said.

After his success, Ty Cobb decided to market his show for National Basketball Association halftime for a marketing project at the university.

This college endeavor resulted in the Bud Light Daredevils, one of today's most dynamic halftime performance groups.

The daredevils combine gymnastic talent with basketball skills into an eight-minute show that brings the fans to their feet. Thursday night's crowd gave the group a standing ovation after the act.

Featured in the act was the "Kango Dunk," which utilizes three members performing consecutive flips in front of the rim, passing the ball off the backboard, culminating with a slam dunk by the final member.

Other members of the daredevils are Tim Lancaster and Keith Eldred. Lancaster was a cheerleader at Northeast Mississippi and joined the team three years ago. Eldred cheered at Northwest Mississippi.

Guy Cobb said the group needs to work on its basketball skills.

"Before the season, for a month we practice everyday for eight hours a day," Guy Cobb said.

"During the season, we practice when we can. Sometimes we get a chance to warm up before the game if nothing else is going on."

Thursday night's crowd at the Arena gave the Bud Light Daredevils a standing ovation for their eight-minute slam dunk show.

Lady Braves out to knock off 1st-place SIU-C

The season has been a struggle for the Bradley women's basketball team.

Fully expected to be in contention for the Gateway Conference crown, the team has only managed records of 5-12 overall and 2-7 in the league.

When the Lady Braves play first-place SIU-C at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Arena, they'll try to salvage the season by knocking off the top dog.

"Bradley would like to play the role of the spoiler," SIU-C coach Cindy Scott said.

After losing six straight in December, Bradley has not been able to get back on track. During that slide, Bradley lost to SIU-C 84-49 in Peoria.

"Bradley has a good deal of talent, but just hasn't gotten it together," Scott said.

The Lady Braves are led by senior Shelli Braun and sophomore Karin Nichols.

Men's team up against Drake next

The men's basketball team will play Drake, the Cinderella of the Missouri Valley, at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at the Arena.

Drake was picked to finish tied for sixth in the coaches poll. Going into Thursday night's game against Illinois State, the Bulldogs were in a first-place tie with Illinois State.

"I'm a little bit surprised by Drake," SIU-C coach Rich Herrin said.

After Thursday's 84-79 loss to Illinois State, the Bulldogs were in a first-place tie with Illinois State.

The Valley wins came against Indiana State, SIU-C, Tulsa and Wichita State. The loss came to Wichita State on the road.

In their first meeting, the Bulldogs scored the most points against the Bulldogs in any team this season but still lost, 89-86, in Des Moines, Iowa. Drake outrebounded the Salukis, 46-39.

"We're going to run again," Herrin said. "The big thing is we won't go down and press Drake like we did last time. We won't give them easy baskets again."

The Saluki offense will go up against the Valley's best defense. The Bulldogs limit their opponents to 69.3 points per game.

Drake may not possess any of the Valley's top scorers, but the team manages to average 74.4 ppm with a balanced offensive attack. Six players average at least seven points per game.

Senior forward Walter James leads the Bulldogs with a 14.6 point average.
Out of magic, out of time

Men lose, 87-82
By Dave Miller

The Salukis, with their magician on the bench, ran out of tricks and lost to Creighton 87-82 Thursday night at the Arena. The Salukis had an opportunity to tie the game with 13 seconds left after Creighton forward Bob Harstad missed the front end of a one-and-one. Trailing 82-80, Randy House missed a 25-foot, three-point attempt with two seconds left in the first half. Creighton's Mike Johnson finished the scoring with two free throws.

"We would have liked to get off a better shot than that," Steve Middleton said. "That's what the defense gave us and that's what we had to take." House said the play was designed for Mahan to get the ball and drive to the basket. The Salukis' last-second magician, Kai Nurnberger, was forced to watch from the bench after fouling out with 4:57 left.

The Salukis dropped to 7-11 overall and 3-4 in the Valley. Creighton improved to 10-8 and 2-1 in the conference. Middleton had his worst game of the season. He sat out the final 13:27 of the first half after picking up his third foul. In the second half, he never got untracked and finished with 10 points.

"I just had a poor effort," a dejected Middleton said. "I don't think I got into the flow the way Steve Middleton can play. It's the type of thing that happens to the best of them." Despite Middleton's absence for most of the first half, the Salukis built a 36-23 lead with 3:39 left in the half.

In the second half, the teams exchanged leads during the opening eight minutes. Creighton then went on an 8-4 run in the next three minutes to open up a 70-64 lead. House's outside shooting led the Salukis' comeback. House scored 11 of his team-high 27 points in the final eight minutes. Nurnberger finished with 21. The Salukis were out-rebounded 36-32.

Not-so-funny events end Super Bowl week

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - The Denver Broncos and Washington Redskins broke the tedium of Super Bowl week Thursday with one player denouncing reports he had overdosed in alcohol and another frustrating his coach by trying to turn connectman.

Denver tight end Clarence Kay, exasperated by unsubstantiated reports he had suffered a drinking relapse Tuesday night, angrily told reporters he had not taken a drink in more than a year.

"You have to be realistic about it, I guess," Kay said. Page 24, Daily Egyptian, January 29, 1988
