Swinburne to get added duties

Edwardsville—The offices of University Housing and Institutional Research will be transferred to different vice presidential areas by July 1, President William Brandt announced at Thursday's Board of Trustees meeting.

University Housing, currently under the jurisdiction of George Mace, vice president for administration and campus treasurers, will be placed under the control of Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs. Brandt said at the Edwardsville meeting.

Under the new plan, T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, will relinquish control of Institutional Research. Mace will take control of that office, Brandt said.

University housing, which includes off-campus housing, single undergraduate housing, married student housing and the bookstore, will be transferred to Swinburne's jurisdiction so that Student Affairs and Student Housing can be better coordinated, Swinburne said.

Swinburne said one of the difficulties that has existed has been a communications problem between the two areas. "Putting the areas together will solve the problem," he said.

Swinburne said some minor changes may follow the July transfer, but added, "I don't anticipate any major changes.

Educational programming, currently directed by Student Life, will be transferred to University Housing, Swinburne said. Samuel Rinella, director of University Housing, will "probably get an assistant for programming in residence halls," he said.

"There is nothing definite yet," Swinburne said, and added, "I would anticipate Rinella would stay."

University Housing has an "excellent staff that is well respected throughout the state. There is nothing wrong with housing. This was an administrative decision," Swinburne said.

"Given their (University Housing) commitment, dedication and professionalism, I know they will make some fine contributions to the University as the reporting line changes to Student Affairs," Mace said.

Rinella refused comment on the change of the Housing office.

Institutional Research, headed by Loren Jung, is being transferred to Mace's office, because "a great deal of the work of Institutional Research relates directly to" the Office of the Vice-President for Administration and Campus Treasurer, Brandt said.

"I see some real advantages in the change," Mace said. Primary responsibility for the SIU budget and the Resource Allocation Management Program (RAM) lies in his office, Mace said.

Institutional Research will be a "great help" in preparing the budget and Ramp, he said.

Proposed conduct code specifies possible infractions, sanctions

Shoplifting rise hits Carbondale

As Shoplifters went about their business they found a new place to shoplift—site Housing.

"The shoplifters fit no mold. "School kids and grandpas and grandmas, business people and people with their friends, just about everyone shopslift," said Inspector William Ryzbek of the Carbondale Police Department.

If a shoplifter is convicted he usually must pay a fine of about $100, said Inspector William Heuston of the Carbondale Police Department.

A shoplifter is mulling over a decision, "Swinburne said. "Given their (University Housing) commitment, dedication and professionalism, I know they will make some fine contributions to the University as the reporting line changes to Student Affairs," Mace said.

Proposed conduct code specifies possible infractions, sanctions

Editor's note: This is the final installment of a series on the proposed Student Conduct Code. By Ray Urdahl Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If an SIU student turns in as his own creation a paper that he persuaded—or paid—somebody to write for him, he's liable to a charge of "educational dishonesty" under the proposed discipline code.

He's also subject to charges if he cheats on an exam or falsifies research data.

Those are "acts of educational dishonesty or deceit" cited in the code, which will go into effect next fall if it is adopted.

Any acts of plagiarism, cheating or knowingly falsifying scientific or educational records are subject to disciplinary action under section 4-101 of the proposed Student Conduct Code.

Academic violations will be handled by boards appointed by the academic deans to review cases. These boards will be composed of students and or faculty, according to the proposed code.

If a student threatens, intimidates, physically attacks or otherwise uses the property of another person or of the University, he is also in violation of SIU disciplinary policy.

The above act, section 4-102 in the proposed conduct code, also includes disobedience of law officers, "reckless behavior" which is dangerous to persons or property, and unauthorized possession or usage of firearms or explosives.

If students give false information to the University with the intent to deceive, or if a student intentionally forges records or University documents to deceive, disciplinary action may be instituted.

Likewise, if students enter false fire alarms or issue fraudulent checks, they are also in violation of the disciplinary code.

The proposed conduct code spells out in greater detail the University's drug policy, SIU prohibits "unauthorized manufacture, sale or delivery" and "unauthorized possession and or use of" narcotic drugs, depressants, stimulant substances, psycho-active (Continued on Page 2)
New code lists offenses, sanctions

drugs, marijuana (referred to in the proposed code as cannabis) and any other derivatives.

Will Travelstead, assistant dean of student life, said SIU's policies concerning marijuana use have not been written into the proposed discipline code. "I think the inclusion of marijuana is one thing we wanted it more specific," he said.

The present discipline code leaves it up to the accuser and accused to determine what constitutes "hard stuff" and what constitutes "soft stuff," Travelstead said.

Violations of regulations of University of Southern Illinois, the Board of Trustees, motor vehicle regulations, the campus alcohol policy, the University demonstrations policy, and any other policy or regulation will be referred to the appropriate judicial bodies.

There are seven different sanctions associated with each of judicial bodies.

Disciplinary actions include written warnings for violations of University regulations. The sanction is imposed for a specific time period, but the conditions are met.

Any misconduct by the student during the probationary period will result in further action. If the resulting suspension from the University, according to the proposed code, will be the student's file by the Student Affairs Division. While an action is on probation or under suspension, it will be noted on the grade transcript.

Any student given disciplinary sanction may petition for an early dismissal of the disciplinary action. There are three "alternative sanctions" that may be applied if mitigating circumstances make a disciplinary sanction inappropriate. The four are: a disciplinary warning, a reprimand, an informal conference, and a financial report.

If a term Student Advisor (SRA) warns a student that the student has a record and the warning is disregarded by the student, the SRA can recommend to the president a disciplinary sanction.

The SRA is calling in the student's attention to the responsibility for meeting minimal community standards, explains C. Thomas Busch, the vice president for student affairs.

A copy of the letter is sent to the area housing advisor, who then may adjust the student's file.

If a person continues to violate the written reprimand, disciplinary charges can be filed against the student, Busch said.

A student may be separated from the University by "voluntary withdrawal" or "involuntary withdrawal" and the "involuntary withdrawal" will be the third option.

If a student commits a serious crime against the University, the University may decide to impose a probationary period of time or a suspension or an indefinite suspension. These disciplinary suspensions are involuntary and may only be appealed if the student has a preliminary hearing.

"Involuntary suspension is the most serious discipline the University can impose on a student," Busch said.

The student may be readmitted to the University at the end of the time period or at the beginning of the next semester, the student may be suspended for a period of time, or the student may have to complete a course in a different discipline before being readmitted.

If the involuntary withdrawal is accompanied by conditions, the conditions must be met by the student before the student will be readmitted to the University. All conditions imposed by the hearing officer must be clearly related to the reason for the withdrawal.

"If a student is over a period of time has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the president that he has a problem with alcohol and has previously caused substantial damage to the University, an involuntary withdrawal sanction can be imposed.

The application of a disciplinary sanction would significantly affect the individual's ability to student," says Busch. "In order to protect the property of the University, and individual members, this person would be withdrawn." in the best interests of the student and or the University. Busch said.

If the president of the University or the Board of Trustees believes that a student's behavior may be a "direct threat to the members and or property of the University," at the discretion of the president, the student's status may be withheld.

The sanctions for involuntary withdrawal, according to the conduct code, will be imposed after a student has had a preliminary hearing or "the opportunity of a preliminary hearing is afforded." According to the code, the presiding officer, prior to the hearing date, the hearing will be held at the discretion of the presiding officer. The presiding officer is to determine the justification for withholding the immobilization.

During the preliminary hearing the student will be provided with a statement of the reasons for the interim separation from the University and an assurance that the charges will be reviewed. Busch presented a hypothetical case to illustrate how an interim separation might be implemented. If a student living on-campus was apprehended by law enforcement officers and charged with blowing up a building and after a preliminary hearing and determination that materials found an interim sanction could be implemented. Busch explained.

"All of these measures when imposed are appealable," Busch said.

If a student damages property, the student may be forced to pay restitution for the damage. The restitution may be service or other compensation.

Student Senate unanimously voted to oppose a proposed $5 increase in the Student Center fee. The Board of Trustees approved the increase, which was proposed by the student government. The $5 fee increase would bring the total fee for students to $321 per semester. The Senate also voted to delay action on the fee increase until after the Board of Trustees approves the increase.

Board OKs $13.6 million for projects

EDWARDSVILLE—The SIU Board of Trustees approved 26 construction and remodeling projects on the Carbondale and Springfield campuses Thursday as part of Gov. Daniel Walker’s proposed sped-up program for public works to boost the state’s lagging economy.

The board authorized $13.6 million in funding for the projects, subject to General Assembly passage of Walker’s budget.

EDWARDSVILLE—A decision to raise the tuition of the SIU-C School of Medicine and the SIU-E School of Dental Medicine was deferred until April by the Board of Trustees at its Thursday meeting.

The decision was made so that more information could be gathered, Ivan Eliot, board chairman, said.

A small, expensive item such as this bottle of vitamins is a popular prey for the shoplifter because it can be easily concealed, according to Don Glegg, store manager of Kohl’s in Carbondale. The spiraling practice of shoplifting is simulated here.

security Bill Thompson, about two shoplifters are caught every day.

Nelis listed several items as the more popular targets for the shoplifters. At the top of the list are cosmetics, and personal hygiene products. Managers of some stores mentioned that small, expensive hardware items are often taken.

The meat department at National Food Store is hit consistently, according to Bradley Young, head of security for National Food Stores in this area.

There are various shoplifting methods. Some people use hollowed-out books to conceal items, Glegg said. "They could be Bibles, for that matter," he said.

One merchant said that sometimes several people come into the store as a group and try to divide the attention of store personnel so one of them can steal merchandise without being detected. He said that employees can usually tell when this is happening.

Plain-clothes detectives, mirrors, and hidden cameras are some of the methods employed by merchants to deter the shoplifter.

The personal approach is the best method if it can be used, though, according to several Carbondale store managers. When someone walks into the store, an employee should stay with the person and help him as much as possible, they say.

Nelis recalled an incident where two persons walked into a food store with a bag in hand and proceeded to fill it with candy and cigarettes.

They were apprehended before they could walk out of the store and expressed some surprise when their goodides were taken from them. The two girls, about 7 years old, apparently had no idea that they were involved in a crime.

Trustees approve archaeology program

EDWARDSVILLE—A new academic program, conservation archaeology, and renaming of an old one, Inter-American Studies, were approved for SIUC by the Board of Trustees Thursday.

The conservation archaeology concentration in anthropology, a master's degree program, was expanded to accommodate what George Gumerman, anthropology department chairman, called a burgeoning need for "true experts at construction projects which might prove destructive to prehistoric or historic relics."

"The subdiscipline of archaeology is taking on a new dimension because of increased construction and new federal and state laws which place a special emphasis on historic and prehistoric sites," Gumerman said. He also said new laws and funding are opening up a vast new market for conservation archaeology.

Chairmen of three departments involved in the merger were named to chair new specializations.

The Board of Trustees approved Seventy-three projects for planning services (or the increase. President Warren W. Brandt said.

Income from tuition represents only three per cent of the medical school budget, Moy said. Since the income is so small, "any tuition should be less than $10,000 a year. Moy said. Seventy-three of the 99 students in the first two medical school classes receive financial assistance, he said. The medical school has not accumulated the "road reserves and external support yet" that would be necessary to take the students financially, he said.

Stanley Diazen, dean of the dental school, said that the dental school tuition should remain at the same level as the rest of SIU-E for the present. A tuition increase would limit students from attending the dental school, he said.

Medical tuition "could be raised if the timing is right," Richard Moy, medical school dean, said. Raising medical school tuition is a way to allow medical students time to prepare for the increase, President Warren W. Brandt said.

Two champs

The jewel of the Illinois High School Association (IHSA), the state basketball tournament, is gleaming as much as ever despite the split performed on it in 1972.

That was when IHSA directors and a statewide majority of high school representatives decided that if one dose of "March Madness" was good, then two doses would be great. They divided the nearly 800 competing schools into two classes and allowed the crowning of two separate state basketball champions: Class A, enrollment under 750; Class AA, over 750.

This decision was greeted with some cynicism by fans who were completely satisfied with things the way they were. The sweetness of fans was reflected in the attendance for the state finals that first year. The Class A meet averaged just over 13,000 and the AA meet slightly more than 16,000 in 1972 compared to a 1962-72 ten-year average of over 17,000.

Since the advent of the two-class system, the 18,000-seat Assembly Hall in Champaign has not seen a sellout for either meet, but the fact remains that more people then ever attend the state playoffs. When you combine the two attendance averages you can see the IHSA's financial wisdom. That is without considering that there are two tourney television parts now instead of one. Finances, however, were not the critics' main concern. They worried, instead, about the tarnishing effect of crowning two champs might have on the title "Illinois State Champion."

Most experts consider, rightly or wrongly, the Class AA winner to be the "real" champion.

One has only to see the ecstasy and agony in both meets to dispel the notion that the tournaments mean less to the former than the latter. One winds up not really a "true champion." For the communities involved, there is only one tournament—the one they are in.

Coaches seem to be in agreement with the two-tourney setup. "Yes, I am in favor of it," stated Lawrenceville coach Ron Felling whose squad won the first Class A title in 1972 and has since small-ball's smallest crown.

"If it was not for the split, many of these kids from the small schools would not get the chance to perform in a big setting. The split has promoted more interest, and to win there is something no one forgets regardless of which tournament you are talking about," he stressed.

The split has even money into IHSA coffers and, more importantly to the fans, has doubled participation in the state finals. It has given twice as many players a chance to showcase their talents in front of the world with another trip to Champaign every March—even the small backroads.

Negative attitude

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce's Tuesday meeting was a meeting of the minds, a meeting of the—well, you get the idea. The discussion was about the "negative attitude" that is affecting us all. It is thought to be a problem that is affecting the area's economy and the quality of life overall.

Insanity is merely a distorted point of view

This nation likes to pride itself on the sentimental notions that individual will and collective self-determination are two important contributing factors which made us a world power. We like to protect our minorities, at least in rhetoric. We like to think every person ought to be afforded basic human dignities and be allowed to pursue individual interests. Damn the torpedoes, it's the American way.

We demand respect by these notions.

These notions formed the ideological foundation by which the State of Israel was given world recognition in 1948. Chalk up another one for man's infinite capacity to deceive himself, we gloated. A regular cue de theatre.

By holding on to such romantic notions (which, in the language of the street, go by the term "bulls—") we usually find ourselves unable to realistically assess the needs of a continually changing world. We believe these romantic clothes are, and of themselves, real and pure (though here if you like). We refuse to recognize the very problems which the application of such ideals creates.

The United Nations did right by these high ideals and gave the statutory right of political self-determination to those who ascribed to the Hebrew religion and culture. But that humanitarian gesture produced a messes in the Arab nations, which have since become hell-bent on the destruction of the very existence of the Israeli state. This is lead to the Palestinian people's efforts directly in the middle—they could side neither with the Arab nor with the West for defense.

The Palestinians have been running since. They are economically and politically discriminated against wherever they go because of cultural differences. It's the same old story. The world is in need of another coup de theatre.

And Israel is unwilling to deliver. The Palestinians want political recognition—the same thing the Jews died for in 1948. Naturally enough, to make the frustrated Palestinian desires known, terrorist groups sprung up and voiced their demands through violence. With a self-righteous posture bordering on the absurd, Israel has adhered to the policy of non-negotiating with terrorists—because terrorist slaughter goes against the grain of all these high ideals being bandied about by proclaiming moralists and other beneficent bigots. Following consolidations, power struggles and a bizarre challenge to perpetrate the most sickening and senseless slaughters, the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO) has emerged as the gun-toting voice of the people. Terrorist acts can never be condoned, but the reason for such acts would largely disappear were the PLO given bargaining recognition by Yitzhak Rabin and the Israeli government.

Rather than attempt any meaningful, peaceful communication with the PLO, Israel resorts to retaliatory attacks in its form of dialogue—sort of to show who's boss and work at their principle guns with the greatest ardor. It makes little difference under what code senseless violence goes; it is a vermin for which no justification exists.

Violence perpetuates its own hell and precludes any spirit of accommodation ever developing.

That, to me, is insanity.
Justice was not served in Nixon ordeal

By Rose Ann Robertson

Richard M. Nixon has not suffered enough for the crimes he committed against the American people.

On Jan. 20, 1969, President Nixon went before the American people in a live television broadcast and resigned his office.

On Aug. 6, 1974, President Gerald Ford, handpicked by Nixon to replace Spiro Agnew, went before the American people in a live television broadcast and pardoned Richard M. Nixon "for all offenses against the United States which he...has committed or may hereafter commit." Nixon had taken part in Watergate before Jan. 20, 1974.

President Ford said Nixon had suffered enough. But what President Ford failed to say was why. Nixon was pardoned. To pardon a man is to grant "executive clemency." Nixon did nothing about these illegal acts. The American people will never know what crimes President Ford had in mind since Richard Nixon was freed before he was charged.

Nixon was a shrewd politician. Working his way through the ranks of American politics, he served as a Senator and then as vice-president under Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was again defeated and retired from the political scene. But in 1968, he returned to win the presidency.

Being the shrewd politician that he was, Richard Nixon could not have been ignorant of Watergate as he, for so long, claimed to be.

Watergate and its associated crimes have involved 28 White House aides and high Republican officials, including four Cabinet officers. But the man who employed them and who oversaw their professional activities has been spared from any kind of official involvement or court investigation, because he "has suffered enough." Nixon bared hams have had their day in court, but Richard Nixon will never have his.

There has been bountiful suffering caused by Watergate. Suffering by the men who have gone to trial, by their families who stood by their sides, and by the American people who have seen a respected political system crumble.

There is one man, though, who has not been subjected to the embarrassment and cost of a trial. One man who has not been punished by law for the illegal acts he committed. One man who has removed himself from the public criticism and scorn and excluded himself among people who shield him from the outside world.

Richard M. Nixon has not suffered enough for the crimes he committed against the American people.

The worst in Illinois poor taste

To the Daily Egyptian:

The SIU intramural department has honored the students at Carbondale with the one and only universal gym weight lifters. Engage in such delapidated safety conditions and move to the new facilities that the weight lifters are being worn out. The dumbbells in such delapidated condition that the safety is rendered impossible. As a matter of fact last week an incline bench pressed over one hundred pounds that crashed on the victim's chest and the first martyr for this new cause was able to crawl away. Hopefully the intramural department's attention will be caught before a more serious injury can be accredited to bureaucratic ineptness.

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to take issue with Wes Smith's column of March 6. In the past Mr. Smith has shown extremely poor journalistic judgment in his attacks on Mr. Orescanin and the circumstances surrounding his trial. However, his latest column concerning President Brandt is absolutely ridiculous.

Letters

Smith's main gripe seems to be the refusal by President Brandt to discuss a lawsuit that was still pending. Mr. Smith, any public administrator who chooses to openly speculate on pending litigation is asking for trouble.

President Brandt fully realizes this and so certain that this was his rationale for refusing to discuss the matter with you. Your comment concerning President Brandt's "acquiescence in and apparently disinterested" attitude is sheer speculation and should be treated as such.

To the Daily Egyptian:

Your attempt to compare this administration with the previous one does a great disservice to President Brandt. I have heard more than one faculty member praise Brandt as one of the most accessible administrators they have ever been associated with. This is certainly a welcome improvement and one that signifies a new day for SIU.

I believe, Mr. Smith, that you should, by all means, be turned on and critically watch President Brandt. However, you should abandon the cheap shot tactics that you have employed in the past.

Electric rate key to saving electricity

By Leslie Coac
Associated Press Writer

Millions of consumers are finding there is a more to saving electricity than simply turning off the lights. The first—and often over-simplified—key to saving is knowing exactly how much power you use and what you are paying for each kilowatt.

The Office of Consumer Affairs of the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare has provided a guide on how to read your electric meter, check your utility bill and total up the cost. Individual meters and bills may vary slightly, but the basic information applies throughout the country.

Remember: electricity is measured in kilowatt-hours—kwh. You will see one kilowatt-hour of electricity if you leave a 100-watt light bulb burning for 10 hours.

METER READING

Begin your electric education by reading your meter, checking the different dials. There usually will be four dials, each divided into sections.

Start with the dial farthest to the right. It measures a total of 100 kilowatt-hours—each time the needle moves from one number to the next, you have used one kilowatt-hour of electricity.

The next dial measures 100 kilowatt-hours, with each division representing 10 kwh; the third dial measures 1,000 kilowatt-hours; and the fourth dial represents 10,000 kilowatt-hours.

Now: some of the dials run clockwise; others run counter-clockwise. Now, suppose the needle on the dial all the way to the right points to nine, the needles on the next two dials read point to seven; and the needle on the dial on the left points to nine.

That means since the dial was set at zero you have used 9,779 kilowatt-hours of electricity. It is cumulative total. To determine usage for one month, you'll have to subtract last month's reading from the current figure.

CHECKING YOUR BILL

Once you know how much electricity you've used, you will be billed for more. If you have a rate key, you will receive each month.

There are about a dozen items on the average bill: some are self-explanatory, others are more complicated.

Regional variations include things like energy taxes, which in some areas, are collected by the utility for the local government. Here are some of the things to look for:

Account number: this is the number which the utility can identify you; use it when asking questions or paying your bill.

Rate schedule: this code identifies the schedule used in computing your bill. It usually is not shown on the bill itself; you must ask the utility for an explanation.

Rate code: this tells you what kind of bill is involved—monthly, special adjustment. It usually will be explained on the back of the bill.

Tutor date for billing.

Meter reading: you can double check this figure by reading your meter on the cut-off date—the same day the electric company reads it.

Call the company to learn your cut-off date each month.

Consumers' monthly charge: generally includes the bill for electricity, plus any taxes or surcharges.

Monthly electricity usage: subtract last month's meter reading from this month's to double check.

Energy tax: local levy collected by the company: call the utility to find out the rate, usually a fraction of a cent per kilowatt hour.

Sales tax: local levy paid by the utility to produce electricity. The bill should show the rate per kilowatt hour, as well as the total charge.

Date after which bill is overdue.

Some bills also include a section telling you how much you owe if you do not pay your bill on time. REMEMBER YOUR BILL

How do you know whether your bill is right? Armed with a little information, you can keep track of what you owe. You'll need to know your rate schedule and the rate for any extra levies.
Hillel plans benefit for café

The idea of March and the Cyanide Shamans has been around for some time, but the benefit sponsored by the Illinois Foundation brought them to Carbondale.

The benefit, held at Donnie's at 8 p.m., included beers and half-price mixed drinks.

Profits from the event will go toward meeting expenses involved in keeping the group together and paying for the Hilltopper Tour which would have helped fund Hillel's prisoner project and Free School, said Steve Lane, advertising and business manager for the Illini Foundation.

The idea behind this benefit is to bring a good deal of money in the Carbondale area at a good price, said Lane.

"The idea is that we can make a good band sound like a good band," said Lane.

The sound, according to Larry Miller, the lead guitarist and ex-member of the Ides of March, is about two-and-a-half hour show. It is interesting to participate in, even though it is probably not the best that they could have been done.

"Breakfast of Champions" will be playing as 9 p.m. every night through Sunday. The Calipere Stage is located on the second floor of the Communications Building.

"Breakfast" misses in play form

By Michael Hawley
Director of Monticello Theater

Although the Calipere Stage production of Kurt Vonnegut's "Breakfast of Champions" has a number of interesting things going for it, the flavor and sense of the novel is not brought out in the adaptation. Vonnegut's book is a lyrically cynical slicing of American values which also focuses on the author's fascination with control over his characters. In addition, the novel also presents underlying elements of Vonnegut's own self-pitying and state of affairs. News of these come off very well in the production.

To relay the idea of "author as total manipulator," director Janet McHugh has played a narrator who is meant to be Vonnegut atop a ladder — he is also the character, post from which he is supposed to control the show. Played by Dave Gordon, who is made to look like Vonnegut, this sense of authority is not apparent.

Gordon is not crusty and cynical enough for the part. He sets up those smoking cigars, drinking beer, commenting on and straightening his collar in moments of panic, only to introduce anrolley into the show than an aid to it.

One particularly good innovation which McHugh has obtained through this character the working of in the drawings which accompany Vonnegut's book. Simple, crude and often amusing, the Vonnegut-narrator hangs reproductions of the drawings on a clothesline to comment on how these appear in the narrative.

"Breakfast of Champions," one of the Calipere productions, is not presented within the format of traditional theater. The form they often use, "chamber theater," has little effect, except in reading narrative passages pertaining to their role in the additional character, Hillel plans benefit for cafe

Christian country-rock scheduled Wednesday

Hallelujah, a Christian country-rock band, will give a pre-Easter concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D.

The six-member band comes from Modesto, Calif. and take their name from the Hebrew word meaning "praise ye the Lord."

Their concert is being sponsored by Students for Jesus and WCED's Jesus Solid Rock show.

The band uses steel pedal guitar, fiddle and flute to attempt to achieve an authentic country sound. They have recorded two 45 rpm records.

Most of their songs are written by Phil Fition who also sings and plays bass guitar for the group. They were featured at Praise "74, a Christian music concert at the Orange County Fair Grounds in California.

Model Cities program to end soon

By Mitchell Hafer
Daily Egyptian Writer

The Model Cities program, which has partially or wholly been funded as_model cities in the United States since 1966, will officially be ended on June 30.

Model Cities was one of former-President Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society" initiatives funded by the federal government to help urban areas in many states. The program was administered by the Model Cities National Office, with headquarters in Chicago.

The program, formally named the "Model Cities National Office," was originally established by the National Housing Act of 1968. It has since become a part of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Under the Developmental Education Program, psychological testing was used to identify students in elementary and high schools who needed special attention. The program was designed to help children from deprived families better achieve.

The Manpower Program, which focused on training and employing unemployed workers, was also funded by the Model Cities program. The program paid special attention to blacks, who made up a large percentage of the unemployed population.

Stalls said Model Cities was phased out because there wasn't enough money to continue the program. PUBLIC WORKS

Under the new HUD program, services in general will be limited, said Stalls. The level of social programs will be reduced and physical development will take priority, he concluded.

National health planning topic of attorney's talk

Robert A. Youngerman, health legislation attorney, will discuss the current and potential impact of the recently passed Public Law 93-641, "The National Health Planning and Personal Responsibility Development Act of 1974," at a seminar sponsored by the Illinois State University Center for Advanced Study in public policy.

Petitions ready for student posts

Petitions for candidates seeking student of the year and vice-president positions are now available at the Student Government Office, Student Center, according to election commissioner Mike Jenkins.

Prof predicts cords

LEEDS, England (AP)--It is not true that cords are promissory, a British psychology professor says.

"They do not deserve the reputation they have gained for stinking around," said Gwynore Jones, 56, of Leeds University.

Jones, father of two, added: "Mothers who are worried about their daughters going to university for the first time have nothing to fear. Getting a cord is one celebration in a London apartment than in a university."

Films

"Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"—University 4, No. 4. This satirical comedy stars a precocious young old widow who sets off with her precocious young son to find a new life is fortunately remaining in Carbondale another week. The script is incredibly funny, if sometimes too "off the wall," and the film's ideas are moving and controversial. Given a release by Oscar nominees Ellen Burstyn as Alice and Diane Ladd as a soul-mouthing waitress.

"Amarcord"—Cinematheque. Translated to mean "I remember," this is Federico Fellini's tribute work since "8 1/2." nearly all the critics are screaming. Again, Fellini draws on his childhood memories to compose a reportedly funny, haunting, beautiful and dreamlike film.

"Terangered"—Fox Eastage. Friday late show.

"Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex. But Were Afraid to Ask"—Varsity. Sunday late show. The last chance to see this Woody Allen film before it is pulled from distribution. Although it's weakest work to date, much of the humor is fresh insane. The film is composed of seven related episodes in which Allen tries to answer questions posed in the book of the same title.

"Gone With the Wind"—University 4, No. 1. It's surprising that theaters still find audiences to dribble in and see this 1939 immortal classic which has long since exhausted itself. Scarlett O'Hara, Rhett Butler, Tara mummies, the burning South, etc.

"Goldy Admes"—University 4, No. 3. One of those rare nature pictures which rely solely on heavy television saturation advertising for promotion and survival. This one is about a man who is taught by a bear how to live in the wilderness.

"Lady Sings the Blues"—Fox Eastage. Friday afternoon. Another film which is being pulled from theater distribution. Diana Ross is a known quantity in this film alleged to be about the late blues singer Billie Holiday. The film provokes plenty of sentimentality, but, like "Lenny" and "Gone With the Wind," it is an accurate portrait. It features a real-musical score.

"Lenny"—Varsity Director Bob Fosse and scriptwriter Julian Barry make the black and white over Lenny Bruce's head glow a bit brighter, but the story is still dopey and should be seen anyway. Fosse's semi-documentary of a fellow in forward style almost works, but this mythical story of the soul-mouthing comic martyred for his honesty would have been better had it not been about a real person. Dustin Hoffman is uncomfortable in watch and Valerie Perrine as his stripper-junkie wife, Honey, is tender and ooturnable.

"Lords of Flatbush"—University 4, No. 2. A cheaply made, half-baked look into the lives of a few 1960's high school kids in the Bronx. Choosing from among the glut of nostalgia films, this is definitely one of the better ones.

"Miss September"—Fox Eastage, Friday and Saturday late shows. Starring prom-queen Tina Russell, this film is making its second Carbondale appearance of the school year.

"Murder on the Orient Express"—Eastage. Although this Agatha Christie-based mystery isn't the greatest "whodunit" ever filmed (it's almost dumb), it's still great entertainment and brings some very accomplished performances.

"The Parallax View"—Varsity, Friday and Saturday late shows. Warren Beatty stars in this overly complex but intriguing tale about a journalist who witnesses the assassination of a presidential aspirant. As other witnesses to the incident begin to die "accidentally," he begins to investigate not-so-garandious delusions of conspiracy. Also stars Faye Dunaway and directed by Alan J. Pakula ("The Parallax View").

"State of Siege"—Davis Auditorium, 7 p.m. Friday. Costa Gregor, who directed the award-winning "E," made this recent film about the kidnaping and assassination of an American official sent to train police in SGAC and University Conventions. Mixing "Sweetheart Ball—Carbondale Holiday Inn, 5 p.m. Saturday; Sponsored by the Nu Psi chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho. Everyone is invited to attend. Admission is 5 cents—Michael Hayley

Billy Cobham—Shryock Auditorium, 8 p.m. Friday. Drummer Cobham is noted for playing with various bands such as Miles Davis and the Mahavishnu Orchestra, and is now touring with his own group. Tickets are $1 Sponsored by SGAC.

"Westworld"—Student Center Auditorium, Friday and Saturday. Everything goes berserk in a wild west vacation resort where people act out their fantasies by shooting lifelike robot cowboys and pretending to set tough. The film, based on Michael Crichton's novel, is a real deal until the automatons become nasty and self-assurance.

"Heart Like a Wheel" Linda Ronstadt

Capital Records

By Marilyn Schofield

Anyone who has lost a lover will enjoy listening to Linda Ronstadt's "Heart Like a Wheel." The feeling of the listener is "a Faithfulness Love," and resigning herself to a broken heart, Ronstadt belts out the tunes, country style with true heartache.

It is in fact her voice, that shines through as the riding attribute. Packed with fire-emotion, that explodes with a tremendous feeling of lost love, Ronstadt makes this highly unrecorded album distinctly better than her previous ones. With the help of Mark Hamill and Emmy Lou Harris, the vocals become more expressive and musically enchanting.

Although most country love songs tend to sound the same after awhile, Ronstadt incorporates a bit of James Taylor, "You Can Close Your Eyes," and Paul Anka's "It Doesn't Matter Anymore," to break away from the old country standards.

The album shows no great improvement in musical production or instrumentation, country songs are common fare. But it does indicate that Ronstadt is developing her voice with more feeling than she ever has before.

So if you're sitting alone some night, dwelling in the sorrow of a love gone bad, flip on "Heart Like a Wheel," and Linda Ronstadt soothe your soul.

"Nightbirds" by Labelle Epic Records

By Debbie Singer

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The promise of the top discus single, "Lady Marmalade," is largely unfulfilled on the rest of the "Nightbirds" album. Titled "Check Out the Trench," the song was written by Bob Crewe and Kenny Nolan more than a year ago for the group's upcoming album.

Most of Labelle's album had been put together by the group, with the "Lady Marmalade" songwriters. The album's chief songwriter, Nona Hendryx, said the group was unhappy with the song's arrangement and asked to lighten up "Nightbirds," a bit, "because most of the songs on the album were very politically oriented." Hendryx and the rest of the group immediately liked what they called the sound, flavor and funkiness of "Lady Marmalade."

And what a lucky choice for Labelle who now have their "Top 30" single since "I Sold My Heart to the Jukebox." which cleared the charts more than 12 years ago, when they were known as Patti Labelle and the Bluebelles.

None of the other cuts on the album seem destined for this kind of fame.

And with the set-up available in most discove record stores these days, almost any song can become at least a decent dance number and there are a few with this kind of potential on the "Nightbirds" album. The cuts are "Heart Like a Wheel," "Don't Do For You," and "Don't Bring Me Down," neither of which is very original.

By Patti Hendryx, the better ones are "Nightbird" and "Blues Children." Most of the cuts on the album suffer from tired vocal arrangements, and excepting the dance numbers, the musical arrangements offer nothing new.

But with the refrain, "Where you gonna cough with me and me tonight?" Labelle is travelling, despite some of the dead weight on the rest of the album.
County supervisors approve hiring of board secretary

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Jackson County Board of Supervisors has approved the hiring of a new secretary to work for the newly created board members in administrative duties.

The board voted funding for the position during the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) grant board meeting Wednesday in Murphysboro. Estimates for the annual position are $60 monthly for the newly created position.

Board chairman Reginald "Bo" Sturm, D-Pemex, said the post was created due to the federal grant and the need for a new person to be available in the united office.

Walter, D-Dalton, said the secretary might become indispensable to the board's office since the secretary's salary from the county's general fund would increase the strain on the county's coffers.

Noel Stallings, R-Carbondale, said the secretary's position was new in this county, and the board would be defining the secretary's role.

"I see the position as one with management responsibility, rather than just clerical help," Stallings said.

In other action, the board voted to allow Bill Munson, county highway superintendent, to take bids for budgeted road and bridge work with the first asking the board an approval on each bid. Munson said the policy change will allow board approval in the awarding of each contract.

"It puts me two months behind because I have to come to the board one month to get approval to take bids, and then come back the next month to get permission in ac-

Earnings crisis topic of Monday talk

Former federal energy administrator Richardson will speak at SIU on "The Effect of the Energy Crisis on Southern Illinois" May 8. Among those invited to listen is Reserve Sergeant Jack McAllister of the Student Personnel Staff.

The department is sponsoring the talk at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Morris Auditorium.

Currently a professor of management at Louisiana State University, Richardson was the first director of the Energy Administration's Office of Consumer Affair.

Competency tests set for next month

April 1 is the final date to register for competency tests in skilled trades or occupations to be given at SIU next month.

The competency program is intended for individuals who need to present evidence of their competency to become vocational education teachers, certified, or for other reasons as prescribed by Donald Harbert, associate dean of the School of Technical Careers (STC).

Test results are recognized by STC for application to associate or bachelor's degree programs of STC.

STC is the designated National Occupational Competency Testing Center for Illinois and also serves Nevada, New Mexico, and Tennessee. The program includes an in-class study unit and a performance test for each skill area.

The fee is $10, plus a small supply charge for certain tests. Skill areas in which tests are available are: air conditioning and refrigeration; airframe and powerplant; architectural drafting; auto body repair; auto mechanics.

Area photographers will display and sell their work at a photographic exhibit which will be held in the Student Center Gallery Lounge, Jack Meister, vice president of the Experimental Photography Society, said.

Anyone may submit works for exhibition, although the show will be primarily for works by students in the Cinema and Photography Department, McAllister said. The exhibit is being sponsored by the photography society in hopes of stimulating interest in the organization, he added.

Any photographic medium will be eligible for the show. Copies of images, the exhibit will include primarily for works by students in the Cinema and Photography Department, McAllister said. Planned Parenthood official slated to speak at Model U.N.

Julia Henderson, secretary general of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, will address SIU's Model United Nations at 8 p.m. Friday in Student Center Ballroom D.

Henderson said the topic will be the world-over population problem. The lecture is a part of the student International Affairs Seminar Series.

Henderson has served at the U.N. for 25 years. She was a member of the U.N. Preparatory Commission which made the preliminary budget and gave the U.N. plans for the world organization.

Henderson is the assistant commissioner and director of Technical Co-operation Operations for the U.N. since 1971. In that job, she arranged the $50 million in technical aid to be given to underdeveloped countries for renewable energy and population planning. She has traveled throughout developing nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

In 1944, Henderson was the first woman to be admitted to the United School of Public Ad-

517 S. ILLINOIS
The committee worked on developing programs which fulfilled a list of community development needs adopted by the council on Dec. 30. The programs will be submitted to HUD for approval.

Fifty-six programs were designed for the HUD block grant. They include acquisition of land, housing rehabilitation, a senior citizens program, a comprehensive health program, child care facilities and others. A general breakdown of the programs to be funded is:

- Acquisition of real property, $183,000
- Public works, facilities and site improvements, $750,000
- Code enforcement, $22,000
- Clearance, demolition and rehabilitation, $521,000
- Rehabilitation loans and grants, $316,000
- Special projects for elderly and handicapped, $13,000
- Provision of public services, $357,000
- Payment of non-federal shares, $13,000
- Completion of urban renewal projects, $204,000
- Relocation, payments and assistance, $7,000
- Planning and management development, $960
- Administrative, $36,000
- Contingency fund, $156,000

One project the committee is seeking funds for is a three-pronged code enforcement program.

The first part of the program, according to the grant application, is to identify and require correction of housing, electrical, plumbing and other code violations.

The second is "a concentrated inspection program to correct garbage, refuse, abandoned vehicles and other environmental blight problems.

The third part of the code enforcement program calls for inspecting structures, ordering their demolition, condemning structures and demolishing them if necessary." During the first year, the demolition effort will be limited to abandoned structures.

Another program recommended by the committee is for the rehabilitation of developmentally handicapped residents.

The committee is seeking $30,000 for a project that proposes that "the Jackson Community Workshop be awarded a contract to purchase and rehabilitate one structure to house three or four developmentally handicapped persons under the supervision of 'cottage' parents. Training would be made available on location for other potential cottage parents and people who work with the developmentally handicapped.

The SIU choir presents the French horn concert

The SIU Choir will present a free concert in the Home Economics Auditorium Friday at 8 p.m. The 12-student choir plays scores written specifically for the French horn and is directed by George Nadal, assistant professor of music. Compositions to be performed will range from transpositions of 17th century hunting calls to contemporary pieces. During the first half of the evening, the group will play music by Rossini, Beethoven, and Chopin. Performing in Shryock Monday evening at 8 p.m. are the Royal Winnipeg Ballet dancers. Pictured here are Anthony Williams, James Mercer, Craig Sterling, Sheri Cook, Louise Naughton, and Bonnie Wyckoff in Benjamin Harkarvsky’s Grand Pas Espagnol. Series. They will be “Rigodón,” a blend of classical ballet techniques with the heritage of French Canadian folk music. “Elude Prétèr,” originally conceived to help teach the challenge squad discipline of the art of “pas de deux” (duet dance), a classic American folk ballet by Agnes de Mille with music by Aaron Copland titled “Rodeo,” and “The Green Table,” a satire on diplomacy and war involving a dance of death in eight scenes. The Royal Winnipeg Ballet will also present a special youth matinee at 1 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium. The hour-long performance will be comprised of three ballets which are “Rigodón,” “Belgica,” and “Rodeo.” Tickets for the Monday performance are $4, $5 and $6 for the general public and $2, $3 and $4 for SIU students. They are available at the Student Center ticket office through Monday. Tickets for the youth matinee are $1.50 per student. Chaperones bringing students will be admitted free, one for each 20 students, and additional chaperones will pay the student price. Parents accompanying their children will be admitted for $2.50. These tickets will be purchased at the Office of Special Meetings and Speakers in Shryock Auditorium.

Co-op program gives students work experience in their fields

A new program on campus will enable students to gain job experience in their majors and complete their education at the same time.

The new Cooperative Education Program (Coop) uses two methods to fill the needs of both the student and the employer. One is called the "parallel program" which requires the student to go to school and work at the same time. The second method is called the "alternate program" and consists of alternating semesters between school and work.

S. Lee Wohlwend, coordinator of the co-op at the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC), explained:

Training offered in interviewing

The Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) is sponsoring an interview awareness training session for graduating seniors on Monday, March 17 from 3 to 5 p.m. in the School of Human Resources: Home Economics Building room 118.

Interviewing training may be helpful to graduating students who feel they are not communicating their skills and talents to the recruiter or other hiring officials when interviewing for employment. A CPPC spokesman said. The training session will focus on observing others responding to interview questions and evaluating the answers.

The session will be conducted by members of the Counseling Center and CPPC. Tom McGoveren, Counseling Center interns, will lead the session.

Students who have not yet been interviewed but would like to learn more about the process are also invited to attend. Participants should come directly to the session; registration is not required.

Student reports $1,500 loss in apartment theft

Carbondale police took one suspect into custody for questioning after a burglary at an SIU student's apartment which occurred sometime before 10 p.m. Wednesday.

The suspect was later released pending fingerprints and tool mark comparison from Gary Cantor's Lyons View Apartment No. 6 on Danny Street.

The police report said the burglar apparently forced the front door open and left through a rear door. The items stolen have an estimated value of $1,500.

Wohlwend, "an indication of what employers think of SIU and the calibre of students we turn out."

"It's getting relatively easy to establish coop work stations for engineering and technology student. Right now, we have more work stations for engineering, technology and clothing, and textile majors than we have students to fill them," said Wohlwend.

Remarking about which students may qualify, Wohlwend said, "most firms want freshmen and sophomores. They don't even have to be taking classes in their area as long as they have declared the major."

Wohlwend explained that this is a result of the company's desire to have the student start in early to begin the training program and be able to put in at least three or four work sessions.

Wohlwend said although not all majors have coop employers available right now, he is attempting to communicate with companies having needs for as many majors as he can. He is also starting coop programs with some companies that haven't had coop programs in the past.

Students interested in the coop programs can find out about the positions available and majors desired by contacting the CPPC on the third floor of Woody Hall, A-307.
Last day for candidates to withdraw name is set

Friday is the last day for candidates to withdraw their names from the ballot for Carbondale city elections. Elizabeth Leighty, city clerk and election commissioner, said as of Thursday, the only person to withdraw from the election was Councilman Hans Fischer who was nominated as a mayoral candidate in the primary, Mrs. Leighty said.

Irene Altshuler will have her name placed on the ballot as a mayoral candidate because she was the next highest vote getter, Mrs. Leighty said.

Monday is the last day for voters to ask for an absentee ballot. The last day to vote absentee is April 11, the last Saturday before the election. The last day to request to vote absentee by mail is Thursday, April 10. However, Mrs. Leighty reminded voters to allow for mailing time. She said the ballots must be received by her in time to allow delivery to the election judges by 7 p.m. election day.

March 11 is the last day voters can register to vote in the election. This may be done at the City Clerk’s office or in the County Clerk’s office in Murphysboro, Mrs. Leighty said.

Voters must use an “X” to mark ballots and not a check mark.

Amtrak sets special train

Amtrak will run an extra train from Chicago to Carbondale to accommodate SIU students returning from spring break.

Seat reservations will not be necessary. The train will leave Chicago at 6 p.m. Sunday, March 30. It will make all regular stops.

The train will have about 14 cars and will hold about 500 passengers.

The special train will leave just before the regularly scheduled Panama-Limited that leaves Chicago daily at 6:10 p.m.

Because the Panama is a reserved train unable to hold all the Carbondale-bound students returning from breaks, Amtrak runs an extra train in transport students, said Jerry West, district supervisor for Amtrak.

Aljo available

The Department of Administration of Justice now has literature for all its majors. The material varies from single page documents to brochures and books. Material may be obtained at the receptionist’s office on fourth floor Fander.

Someone finally put some shoes on Huckleberry Finn. But this Huck is a horse, not Mark Twain’s barroom boy.

Huckleberry, a buckskin horse, was shot Tuesday night at the Student Government Activities Fair in the Student Center ballrooms. The horse belongs to Rich Lange, a senior at SIU. The shoeing took place at the Saluki Saddlery Club’s booth over a ground made of newspapers. The club won second place for their display.

Sam Young, a Carbondale-based farrier, put shoes on with a factory blank because he was unable to bring a forge into the ballrooms. Young has been an Illinois licensed farrier for 15 years.

Old iron cargo ship undergoing restoration

NEW YORK (AP)—The iron ship Wavertree, was moving cargo through a squall-lashed sea south of Cape Horn in December 1821 when the violent gale took away nearly all her sails. After retilling in Montevideo, she tried again. She didn't make it. This time, the gale snapped the 2,118-ton ship's mainmast and two free and main topsmasts. Two lifeboats and the man pump were wrecked, tearing holes in the deck. Mattress and disabled, she drifted toward the Falkland Islands, never again to sail.

Today the Wavertree, one of the few square-riggers left to tell the tale of that bygone sailing world, is undergoing a $2.2-million restoration at the South Street Seaport Museum. It is expected to be completed about 1980.

"She's our principal ship," said Peter Stanford, president of the museum. Stanford and the Peking, another square-rigger, is expected to join the Wavertree and four other vessels on display at Piers 15 and 16 on the East River in lower Manhattan. The Peking will be towed from England late next year. Restoration on the Wavertree began here in 1971 after the ship was towed to New York from Argentina, where she served as a sand dredge under the name Don Ariano N. for 26 years. Prior to that, she sat in Puerta Armas as a floating warehouse, after the 1901 storm. The ship is 276 feet long and 24 feet deep and has three masts. When restoration is completed, the main mast will measure about 154 feet high, according to Richard Fewtrell, director of Wavertree Restoration. Working in the chill of winter with ice and snow and in summer's stifling heat, Fewtrell said work is proceeding slowly, but well.

The main deck, made of old tin roofing, will be replaced with iron beams and wood planks soon, he said. The 'tween deck, immediately below the main deck, will be reconstructed to form a gallery for public viewing of the lower holds.

A seminar of "Flow Visualization Experiments" will be at 4 p.m. Friday in Neckers 440D. The speaker will be K.S. Nagara of Wright Patterson Air Force base in Dayton, Ohio. Two films on a related topic will be shown.

All graduate students are invited to attend a Happy Hour at the Pinch Penny Pub, 605 E. Grand at 4 p.m. Friday. The social event was initiated by the Sociology Club. There will be special rates on beer.

Three speakers from the Illinois South Project will talk on coal gasification at the monthly meeting of the Southern Illinois Audubon Society at 7 p.m. Friday in the Unitarian Fellowship House.

The Economics Department plans to nominate a senior and a junior majoring in economics for the Lloyd and Edna Morey scholarship this spring. The awards total $2,500. To be eligible, a student must have an overall grade point average of at least 4.25 and must be a full-time student during the 1974-75 school year.

The award of the scholarships will be determined mostly on the basis of grade-point average in economics courses. Economics majors who think they might qualify should contact Robert Vogel or Arthur Fried as soon as possible, since nominations must be made before March 21.

Sigma Gamma Rho sorority will sponsor a "Sweetheart Ball" at the Holiday Inn ballroom from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. The event is free and open to the public. Attire is "after five."

The significance of general systems research is the topic of a lecture Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in Lawson 151. Professor of Philosophy Ervin Laszlo, from the State University of New York at Geneseo, will speak at the second in a series of four lectures which concern problems and progress in world remodeling based on systems science. The lecture is sponsored by University Programs and SIU's Systems Science Committee.

Congressman to talk on food

Congressman Jerry Litton (D.-Mo.) will deliver an open seminar talk at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Auditorium in the Agriculture building.

The talk will be on the "Role of American Agriculture in Meeting World Food Needs." Litton is a member of the House Agriculture Committee.
Witty banner maker off to New York

By Ron Nelson
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

"Dean The Dream is all wet."

With that banner displayed at the SIU Arena in March, 1970, Al Green made his mark.

The avid S.U.I.O. fan had treated the final Saluki basketball crowd of the season to its final laughs with his joke at All-America guard Dean Meminger of Marquette, and Arena crowds have looked for his words of wit ever since.

"That was the first sign of ours that gained notoriety," the 28-year-old S.U.I.O.'s assistant, said Tuesday night, as he prepared to follow the team to the National Invitational Tournament in New York.

"A year after that, I began to look for the wit ever banner maker," he said Tuesday night, "I had a feeling that I might be going to New York. I had a feeling that I might be going to New York."

Green said of his journey back home, "I have a teaching job in Philadelphia teaching physical education, health and gym dancing classes.

"I figured I'd be back for headquarters, then I figured for the opener," he said, "I didn't make it, but I did go to New York to see the Vanderbilt game. I made the circles on Penn State going to a couple of Orange Bowl. I thought that was enough for me."

It wasn't quite enough for Green, traveling to the NIT several times, including in 1969 when Temple and the Sports fanatic decided it was time to get to other business.

"I wanted to go to a school where I could get in and out," he said, "and I thought I could get out of Southern Illinois. I had started at Temple and made the circles on Penn State, going to a couple of Orange Bowl. I decided that was enough for me."

It didn't quite work out as planned. The trip finally was graduated to 1972 and went on to begin some graduate school work. In between, he had his fun again.

"There were a few others from the Philadelphia area here when I arrived," he recalled, "Nothing was going on at the gym, everybody was just enjoying the basketball, so we started making the signs."

"One year, St. Joe's stole Villanova's signs before the game and made answers for them. Every time Villanova put up a sign, St. Joe's had an answer banner."

"It was a little of fun for Green, traveling to the NIT several times, including in 1969 when Temple and the Sports fanatic decided it was time to get to other business."

Swimming found to be healthy exercise for the handicapped

By Tim Stout

Swimming has always been identified as a healthy form of exercise and handicapped students enrolled in GSE 101 (A beginning swimming), are finding out just how it is this semester.

Dave Sims, instructor, stresses improvement in swimming techniques.

"Many handicapped students have a complete range of motion in the water," Sims said. "Swimming all year around is the most developed the body can experience.

"At first it was thought that the class could be restricted to only handicapped students but the University of Illinois does not allow restricted enrollments in state schools, which are funded by both state and federal funds. Size of the class was limited, but not on the basis of handicap."

Discontinued this week.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A study by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency shows that people who swim outdoors are just one of the solutions to the waste disposal problem faced by the 200 million tire castings abandoned every year, resulting in the U.S. Environmen.

Six going to Detroit

Tracksters in nationals

By Dave Wieczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

WITH hopes of scoring just a few points, track Coach Lew Hartung is taking just six men with him to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Indoor Championship this weekend in Detroit.

The athletes going to the meet are:

Lonnie Brown, Mike Monroe, Phil Roberts, Ken Lerraway, Bill Hancock and Gary Hunter.

This will be the first time since 1975 that ISU has attended the indoor meet that they have not qualified its mile relay team. The Salukis have had the ability to qualify the relay team at last two meets dual with Eastern Illinois.

The NCAA standard they had to make was 3:17.5, but the Salukis could manage only 3:12.3.

Mike Monroe was the leadoff man in that race and when he tried to explode from the starting block it slipped out of place, causing Monroe to fall.

ISU still won the relay but lost valuable time as Monroe picked himself up and continued in the race.

ISU basketball coach to quit after next season

NORMAL, IL. (AP) - Will Robinson, 63, first black head basketball coach in major college ranks, Tuesday announced his retirement at Illinois State University at the close of the 1975-76 season.

Since coming to Illinois State five years ago from Detroit Pershing High School, Robinson's teams won 78 games and last 50. The past two years, the Red Birds were 16-10 defeating such postseason tourney-bound teams as Drake, Oral Roberts and Southern Illinois.

Robinson had surgery for prostate cancer last June but now is reported as being in good health.

Season "in light of the talented veteran team that will be returning next year and because of Will's past accomplishments."" Schmidt said he had been discussing the future of Illinois State basketball with the players for the past three months with Robinson in view of his "fast approaching retirement age."" At Detroit Pershing, Robinson won two Michigan State championships and developed such stars as Spencer Haywood, Ralph Simpson and Mel Daniels.

Robinson had surgery for prostate cancer last June but now is reported as being in good health.

Hartung said, "We probably would have qualified if the starting block hadn't slipped on Monroe."

The coach did not seem too disappointed that the mile relay team is not going to compete at the meet, mainly because this meet is run on a banked, beared track and his runners do not have a chance to practice indoors all year as they do at home.

Even though only six men are going to the meet, Hartung said "I feel we'll run well in the championship. The guys most capable of running are Roberts, Hancock and Brown."

Brown is capable of winning the triple jump but he'll not walk away with the starting gate at guard, argument from Illinois' Charlton Elamse.

ISU's jumping corps should be strong with Brown and Lerrawary also competing in the triple and long jumps. Brown currently ranks second in the nation in long jumping.

Another guy with an outside chance of winning a first place is Hancock in the high jump. Hancock won the high jump at Eastern last season with a leap of 5'11", but if he wants to be champion this year, he'll have to jump near 7'.

High jumpers across the country are streaming the bar regular throughout this season in 7' and 7'9. If he springs in a super jump, freshman pole vaulter Gary Hunter could score some points for the Salukis. Hunter has set ISU records both indoors and outdoors this season and is just barely qualified for the championships. He was 164 at an AAI sanctioned meet at Champaign earlier in the season. The NCAA standard was 19.2.

Pole vaulters have some rough going to compete before getting to the final rounds and Hartung feels that this will help Hunter because he can "jump all day."
Saluki baseball team hits the road

By Bob Sexton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

There's not much room for improvement.

However, some room exists for the Saluki baseball team to improve and coach Ritch Jones feels it may be possible.

"We probably have as much potential as we did a year ago," the sixth-year mentor remarked Wednesday, as he watched his players work out in the cold, blustery weather.

"Everyone has to play to capacity if we're going to do it," he said. "That's the greatest thing about athletics—they or especially spring and just out in record numbers on the field."

Second baseman Howie Mitchell and third baseman Jim Locascio are back at their old posts. Mitchell a senior, hit .271 last season, while Locascio hit .306 with 20 runs and 34 RBIs last season.

Freshman Rich Murray of O'Fallon, Ill., will move into the shortstop spot vacated by the graduated Macon, but a regular first baseman is missing as he is in the pre-season.

"We'll use Phil Klimus, Dave Montfort and Joe Hage on this first trip," Jones said, looking ahead to the team's opener Saturday against Arkansas State and Tulsa. "Klimus has the most knowledge of the position, being a sophomore. Montfort hasn't played that much and has to make contact at the plate, so he'll have to chance to make good contact, and have good pitching—we'll be sound."

While the team lost two starting pitchers, the staff can still be considered a team strength. Right-handers Bill Dunng, Ron Hodges and Dewey Rubson and lefty Robin Derry return to join newcomers Tim Verpaere, James Adkins, Kevin Waidoff, Bob Leja and Jim Kessler.

Verpaere, the only new southpaw, was an outstanding hurler at Triton Junior College near Chicago last year.

"All nine are going to pitch this weekend," Jones said. "Dunning will start against Arkansas State and Hodges will start against Tulsa."

"I haven't worked out a batting order yet," he said. "That's the hardest part about the start of the season. It's the biggest difference between us and, say, Arizona, who already has six or seven games to figure out its batting order."

Outfielders Jim Reeves and Wayne Furgo, who both saw considerable action last year, and infielders Rob Klass and Claude Mann, outfielder Rob Klass and infielder Mike Glenn.

Mann, senior, is considered one of the top pitchers in the area, there are no doubts and also, had 43 RBIs, while scoring 12 times.

Senior Koe Wolf, who hit .198 in limited action a year ago, will battle freshmen George Kuvokovich of Arlington Heights and Frank Johns of the field jobs.

Junior Frank Hunsaker and senior Dan Herbst will again share the catching chores. Hunsaker hit .270 in 24 games, while Herbst hit 303 in 32 games.

Junior speedster Bert Newman, younger brother of assistant coach Mark Newman, returns as the designated hitter. He hit a crisp .390 last year, while leading the team with 34 doubles and 43 runs.

"We'll have good speed defensively and on the bases," Jones remarked. "But they'll have to be able to make good contact, and have good pitching—we'll be sound."

‘Small college’ Salukis won big in ‘67

When SIU took the plunge—it was all the way.

The Salukis basketball team on Feb. 23, 1967, turned down a bid to the NCAA college division tournament and on the following day, accepted its first major college postseason tournament.

It was the first time the Salukis had received a major tournament bid and at the time, coach Jack Hartman said, "If we play well, we are almost guaranteed a good finish.

What an understatement. When the time came, coach Dick Bubas of St. Peter's was in the NIT as the ACC team playing in the ACC. It was the third time and the tournament was the most unlikely ever in the ACC.

The Scarlet Knights had lost their 25-point lead in the first half and held a 44-36 halftime lead, but the Salukis put the first half in the shade, leading 64-60, semifinal game against the University of Illinois. Hartman's team just a touch better in the second half and won 75-68.

A sellout crowd of 18,000 in Pius XII Memorial Fieldhouse saw the Salukis defeat the Illini 75-68. The Salukis led in the first six minutes and never relinquished the lead for the balance of the game.

The Salukis and their fans were not satisfied with the victory, though, and they were the only ones disappointed. Despite the victory, they were 11-0-1 against the Illinois State champions.

Dame a rough battle early in the season but lost to the Illini, 96-49, and also to Indiana State, 79-58.

The Salukis were hoping to have a bigger tournament in the years to come, but they were looking for a bigger tournament for the future.

The Salukis were hoping to have a bigger tournament in the years to come, but they were looking for a bigger tournament for the future.
Salukis broke away from a 23-23 halftime deadlock.

West Texas State (12-5)

Show time started after intermission again as the Salukis overcame a three-point halftime deficit to emerge at 54-49. Meriweather rebounded from a two-game slump, with the help of Home expert passing, to total 24 points, but this was the probably worst beating we’ve taken all year, and we’ve played Houston, Louisville and a lot of good teams,” Buffalo coach Rosk Ekker remarked.

Stetson (13-5)

Statistics don’t mean much. It was proven again as the Dogs were the third straight, 95-60 over Stetson. Stanton entered the game with a nationally ranked defense, but it was the Stetson defense that told the tale. After 13 minutes of play, it was 36-12, SUU, as Meriweather started fast toward his game total of 21 points.

Oval Roberts (13-5)

Winners draw fate. They drew an Arena record 10,067 spectators for a Stetson revenge shot at Oval Roberts. The game was decided in the first 13 minutes, as the hosts roared to a shocking 24-13 advantage and played out the string the rest of the way. Meriweather finished with 11 of 13 from the field, Glen with 10 of 15, and Paris was scored 26 and 20, respectively.

Detroit (15-5)

Corky Abrams high scorer: Sure jokes whirled around as the Dogs away from abundant shooting, scored 15 first half points without missing and finished with 24 as the Dogs romped, 96-42. Again it was a second half runaway after an eight-point halftime lead, as the Bulldogs won their fifth straight. Meriweather finished with 21 points.

St. Louis (18-0)

To say it was a physical game would be an understatement. The final result was 107-104, and Detroit was buried by 34 foul calls, but SUU again outscored the Dogs, 56-21. Everything was balanced attack with 25 points, 18 after intermission, and the hosts had their all-game sweep of the homestand.

Centenary (16-4)

Back to the road and the winning percentage over Centenary Gentlemen moved into the Top 20 rankings with a 71-66 win, spurred by 7-fool junior center Robert Parish. Parish and Meriweather both stood out in their rebound battle—the former with 21 points, 30 rebounds and a .30-7.30 shooting; the latter with 28 points and 10 rebounds.

Jumpers lead trackmen into NCAA indoor meet

By Peter Schultz

SIU's indoor track team, hit by early injuries and a disqualification that cost it a state title will go into the 11th NCAA Championship Meet Friday and Saturday.

Coach Lew Hartung said he hopes one of his talented tracksters will run away with NCAA honors in the meet, to be held in Detroit.

In the jump events, Bill Wincock holds the world record for the decathlon high jump at 7 feet, 1 inch. A native of Gladford, Ill., Hancock won the decathlon at the Kansas Relays in 1974.

In the Kansas Triangular Meet this year, Hancock set an Allen Field House record of 7 feet.

Coach Lou Hartung said Hancock "may be one of the greatest athletes ever to come out of Southern Illinois University."

Phillip Robbins of Nassau, Bahamas, has improved greatly in the triple jump. Robbins made his most apparent at the Kansas Triangular Meet this year where he broke the field house record with a leap of 51 feet, 9 inches. Lennie Brown and Eddie Sutton are two outstanding sprinters for the Saluki tracksters.

Brown has twice been selected All-American on the mile-relay and holds the Saluki record for the intermediate hurdles. The versatile Brown also participates in the long jump and was Illinois state prep champ while attending Chicago's Englewood High. Hartung calls Brown "one of the strongest members of the team, a great leader."

Sutton also holds All-American honors on the mile-relay and has been clocked in the 100-yard dash at 9.5. A Florida resident, Sutton was an honor student at Jackson High in Miami.

In the jump events, Bill Wincock holds the world record for the decathlon high jump at 7 feet, 1 inch. A native of Gladford, Ill., Hancock won the decathlon at the Kansas Relays in 1974. At the Kansas Triangular Meet this year, Hancock set an Allen Field House record of 7 feet.

Coach Lou Hartung said Hancock "may be one of the greatest athletes ever to come out of Southern Illinois University."

Phillip Robbins of Nassau, Bahamas, has improved greatly in the triple jump. Robbins made his most apparent at the Kansas Triangular Meet this year where he broke the field house record with a leap of 51 feet, 9 inches. Lennie Brown and Eddie Sutton are two outstanding sprinters for the Saluki tracksters.

The hammer-throw duties for the Saluki squad is handled by 246-lb. Bill Barrett. Barrett holds the SIU record of 1S9 feet, 6 inches, and hopes to top 180 feet this year. While attending Rogers High in Newport, R. H. Barrett set the prep record in the 25-pound weight throw with a toss of 41 feet, 15 inches.

The Champaign meet—held Feb. 7-8—was disappointment for the Saluki trackers this season.

They had hoped to continue their domination of the Illinois Intercollegiate Championships in Champaign which the Salukis have won it the last three years. But a disqualification cost SIU eight points and the championship.

Clyde’s sidekick recalls ’67 Salukis’ glory in old Garden

By Dave Wernaker
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Eight years and 11 days ago, SIU won its first NIT game ever, marching the New York City NCAA team, St. Peter’s, 73-64, and went on to win the tournament.

That was a long time ago, but one member of that 1967 team can recall many memorable moments as they happened only yesterday.

Ed Zastrow, who is now part-owner of the Roadrunner Club in Deltona and is probably better known as Walt Frazier’s “raving fan,” said the victory was a high point in his college career.

Ed Zastrow described what was the campus reaction back then. “The Spirit then was ‘Salukis First’ and was for the Central Illinois game this year—only it was like that for every game. The campus went wild when we got the bid.”

The Salukis were a college division team in ’67, and though they had lost but two games and were assured a berth in the NCAA college division tournament, seeing how they ranked No. 1 in the country among small colleges for the second year in a row. However, the team elected not to go to the college division tournament.

“We had already turned down a bid to the NCAA college division tournament,” Zastrow said. “We were just guessing that we were going to get a bid to win the tournament championship.”

The Salukis had a big meeting the day before the NCAA bids were to be announced, but because they (NCAA) told us we would have to turn in a meeting as soon as the bid came.”

The brown-haired southpaw continued. “We put all our cards on the table. We said we’d accept the bid if we could get a bid to the NIT, and we did.”

Going to New York for the first time was like walking into another world, especially for those used to Carbondale life, and Zastrow said teammates got to see the same sites of the big city not available in this town.

“Each night we went to a different restaurant,” he said. “And of course, we went on sightseeing trips on the days we didn’t have practice.”

Zastrow went on to describe some other extracurricular activities the team participated in, but declined to make them public for fear of putting ideas into the heads of present team members.

The 1967 team did experience one thrill that this year’s squad will not. Hartman took us out of New York about two hours after it was over.

“Thats just the way Hartman was—he was a strict disciplinarian,” Zastrow added.

Hartman’s rules included a midnight curfew and bed check but that didn’t stop the adventurous Salukis, according to Zastrow.

“Even with all that, we managed to sneak out, although we got caught sometimes,” he laughed.

Zastrow went on to describe some other extracurricular activities the team participated in, but declined to make them public for fear of putting ideas into the heads of present team members.

“The 1967 team did experience one thrill that this year’s squad will not. Hartman’s team was one of the last to play in the old Madison Square Garden. SIU won the 30th and last running of the NIT in the old Garden.”

“The old Garden was something.” Zastrow said. “We got all the fun out of the floor, and then the Knicks would take it over, and we’d have practice, and then someone else would come in and use it. Something was always going on.”

“Im actually glad we were the last ones to play in the old Garden. It had so much atmosphere.”

Zastrow, who lived with Frazier in New York in 1972 and 1973, also very closely friend of “Clyde’s,” also had much praise for the people of that city.

“The people really aren’t bad,” he said. “They really get involved with you out there. Some parts can be cold, but not with sports figures. And you should see the sports pages there—3 pages of all kinds of stuff and they don’t just give you the scores of games.”

Commenting on the class of competition at the NIT, Zastrow said, “The NIT used to be a more prestigious tournament, but that’s when the NCAA was only taking 16 teams. It should be a lot stronger this year, though, with the NCAA taking only five independent teams.”

“I think I’d rather go to New York than any city where the NCAA is located,” Zastrow said. “The NIT is a very well run tournament. The team will see New York first class. I don’t think the NCAA can duplicate the treatment the NIT gives its teams.”

SIU has had some difficulties winning on the road last season, but Zastrow doubts whether that will present any particular problems for the Salukis.

“I don’t consider this a road game for SIU, unless they play an East Coast team. The crowd will get behind an Eastern team,” he remarked.

Should SIU put everything together and come home with the championship, there will be one slight problem that this 1967 team faced. If they win, the Salukis will return to Carbondale the first weekend of lighting break.

“We got back from New York the day break started so we had to take most of our finals before the tournament—that’s when SIU was on the quarter-system,” Zastrow said.

SIU is a lot of people met us at the airport. Many kids were headed down to Fort Leavenworth for the tournament was going on, so they would be there for a few drinks and watch the games on television. It was mostly townpeople that met us in Carbondale.

NIU radio coverage set

The opening round game of the NIT for SIU will be televised locally.

Local stations reportedly would have to pay about $2,000 to pick up the signal from Chicago and would have had to cancel some prime time Saturday night shows in order to cover the game, which is scheduled at 5 p.m. CDT.

WJJF, MCN, and WSUI, Carbondale, will broadcast all games on radio, with campus station WIDB carrying the WJJF play-by-play and WICU, Carbondale, picking up WSUI’s.

SIU's women's softball team may be stronger this year, says Kay Blackman, head softball coach.

Blackman said the state tournament last year and finished fourth, Eastern Illinois University, the same as last year.

The team that wins the state title goes to the Women's College World Series held in Oklahoma City. May 15 through 18.

Last season's records ended with the four-state championship game against the second team 3-3.

Blackman said she didn't know who would be in the lineup yet, but she thought probably would be enough players for two teams.

About 30 members were on the two teams last year.

"All women on campus are eligible for the team, but you're restricted to physical education majors," Blackman said.

"Softball is a popular program and we are well pleased with it," Blackman said. One thing that has helped the interest in the SIU team is women's high school softball. People come to the games now that they've found out they like it through the high school team, she added.

Practice sessions and games are played north of the Wham building. A new softball field is being built south of the Recreational building and is expected to be completed before next season. Practice time is from 4 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Women preparing for heavy spring schedule

By Linda Henson

Three of SIU's women's intercollegiate sports began practice early this year in order to be in top condition for the season, which is restricted to physical education majors.

"It is a popular program and we are well pleased with it," Blackman said. One thing that has helped the interest in the SIU team is women's high school softball.

"Softball is a popular program and we are well pleased with it," Blackman said. One thing that has helped the interest in the SIU team is women's high school softball.

"I think the indoor aspect will help the team as far as injuries, because it will be more inside," Blackman said.

The success of the team this season depends on avoidance of injuries as the team has good times and if the conditioning works, the team should do better, Blackman said.

SIU's women's tennis team is involved with optional intramural competition in Davis Gym. The girls are practicing Thursday and Friday nights, Blackman said.

Practice times are 6:30 to 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, and 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Friday.

Auld, in her first year as head coach, said team positions won't be "assigned until after the official practice, March 31.

"So far the turnout has been pretty good since the practices are optional. There have been 15 who have turned up, and I'm sure that there will be more," Auld said.

Indoor practices allow the girls to practice on real courts and nets outdoors, but that high school gym almost impossible because the gym floor makes them so fast," Auld said.

When the team moves outside the emphasis will be on strategy, something that they've previously acquired skills to work.

One strong prospect for the team is Rhonda Garcia, a transfer student from Saint Valley College, Town-

Iled, Ill.

"I'm going to try not to cut any players. If they express the interest, we will arrange matches for the inters-

Iled, Ill.

The practice was conducted mainly by the individual.

"We tried to have organized practice two days a week. But most of the girls get in 18 holes a day, or more by themselves," Sandy Blackman, golf coach, said.

The team could practice free at the G. A. Orchad golf course and the driving range.

The interest in golf varies, Blackman said. She played four years on SIU's team as a student and now that high school golf has helped the program.

"One main thing that stifles the participation is the fact that most people don't know we have a team," Blackman said.

The players who could help the team are Sara McCree, Kim Birch, Peggy O'Connell, Sue Hirsbraten. McCree, team captain, went to the National Intercollegiate Golf Championship in San Diego. last year. Blackman feels that McCree and the others will be eligible this year if they work hard.

"To play varsity golf you don't have to be really good. Even if a chance for the team. I try to stress having fun with golf instead of pressure," Blackman said.

Women's varsity golf squad to open season in Kentucky

By Jim Oberhansley

The SIU varsity golf team will begin its schedule March 10 and 11 with competition in the Eastern Kentucky Invitational Tournament in Hazard, Ky.

The Salukis will face such formidable competition as Ohio State University of Kentucky and Middle Tennessee State.

The spring portion will be a "shotgun affair," with golfers teeing off at the back nine and back nine, as a starting point was used to save time, varsity golf coach Lynn Höhler.

The five members of the golf squad for the spring are: Brad Miller, a senior from Mattoon, Ill., and captain of the team; John Miller, a junior from Ill. Vernon, Ind., Bob Turner, a junior from Eldorado, Ill., Jerry McCree, a freshman from Carbondale, and Robert "Bob" Holder, a sophomore from Pekin, Ill.

The Salukis travel to Clarksville, Tenn., April 3 to compete in the two-day Mid-South Classic Golf Tournament. Indiana University, Miami University and Murray State are a few of the schools in this tournament.

April 11-12 will take the Salukis to Gaffers, Champ, Ill., for the Annual Illinois Intercollegiate Tournament. The Salukis will face all Big Ten teams and Illinois state schools.

The Drake University Relay Invitational Golf Tournament April 22-23, is next. Most of the Big Eight teams will be represented in this tournament. Drake somehow justified the use of the word "relay" in the title of this tournament, apparently because of the school's proximity to track, Holder said.

The Drake University played in the Invitational Spring Classic of SIU at Edwardsville against the same teams there are in the Mid-South Classic.

The most important tournament of the spring season will be the Missouri Valley Tournament at Tulsa, Okla. The University of Tulsa and Wichita State are top seeded in this tournament, team captain Miller said.

"Some teams are able to play round the clock, and are probably practicing right now," Miller added.

Teams finishing first and second in the Missouri tournament, held on May 14-15, and putting up the best scores will qualify for the NCAA national championship tournament.

"Wecan beat Wichita if we really give it our best shot in a good round," Jim Brown, senior. Brown was the Salukis' best in the fall with the team's lowest average score.

"We have a pretty good team. We should be able to play. I'm trying to say," said. "Jimmy Brown is a super competitor, in girls and boys, he will probably be a superstar some day. Also there's Jerry Turner, who is a bench in the fall. The rest of the team is pretty well balanced," Miller added.
Tennis boom expected to continue

By Dick MurchStaff Writer

Spring is just around the corner, and along with it will come another surge of SIU students engaging in the sports of tennis andplay tennis.

Just as others are doing over the country, increasing numbers of Southern Illinois residents are learning to play tennis. According to a survey conducted by the YMCA, more than 26 million people engage in the sport every year in the United States.

More than 700 men and women each year enroll in tennis classes at SIU. Still more participate in instructional courses at the YMCA.

Although many may take the classes, but we are limited by the six courts that are available. A number of classes also may be offered at the YMCA.

Both the men and women's classes are coordinated by the General Manager of the YMCA.

Greg Orch, who teaches tennis, said he finds that more and more students are playing tennis. "Whenever you look at the courts, they're full," he said.

No figures are available, but, a spokesman for the YMCA said that "quite a few people" are enrolled in courses there. The YMCA teaches tennis year-round, Orch said, and also has an outdoor court at the Carbondale National Guard Armory.

Good feelings that enrolling in an SIU tennis course has two advantages. "First, all the course familiarizes a player with the game. And second, the students get to learn the equipment.

A tennis course is the easiest and fastest way to learn tennis, good said. He said he feels that anybody should try to learn the game without assistance, and to figure out teaching himself to play tennis.

Gregory Hall's book "How to play tennis" is a good practice book. He feels that the tennis book now used for the course is "the best one for tennis.

"Every new player should practive wall-covering," Good said. This enables a person to concentrate on his form and footwork.

As for equipment, Good feels that Carbondale has many bargains in the sporting goods departments. A beginner should start with a light-to-medium-weight racket," said Good, and the grip size should be determined by the size of the player's hand.

For beginners, a heavy-duty ball is best, and they are also advised not to use dead balls, because they can throw the game off.

Each player's clothes should guarantee absolute freedom of movement. "There shouldn't be any restrictions in the player's movement," Good said. Light-colored clothes, which tend to reflect heat, are better than darker clothes.

Two pairs of socks will help to prevent blisters, and will also cushion the shock of walking stops and starts during a game. Shoes should have a smooth surface on the bottom.

"I would recommend that every beginner should play at least once or twice a week. If you're going to do it, do it correctly," Good said. "But Good commended that it shouldn't be overdone because it is possible to get too accustomed to playing under artificial lights.

"Another good thing about the course is that it offers each student chance to experiment," Good said. Then when he wants to purchase equipment, he will know what suits him best.

Good also said that he feels that there aren't enough facilities around for the students.

Carbondale only has four public tennis courts open. A spokesman for the Carbondale Park District said that the two courts at Southeast Park will be rented and could be used by SIU. The courts in the late spring. The two courts at Carbondale Community High School Central are in need of repair, and there are no plans to remodel them.

According to the Park District, "the courts are not going to last," but there are no available figures as to the exact number of players needed.

The Park District also sponsors an annual tennis tournament and a "promiscuous" tennis match, but there is also a "promiscuous" tennis match, but there are no available figures as to the exact number of players needed.

"The biggest improvement at SIU is the increase of lights on 12 courts," said Williams. "The lights have almost doubled the playing time."
Baseball coach optimistic despite loss of 6 players

By Jim Oberlohn
Student Writer

Head baseball coach Richard "Itchy" Jones is optimistic this year despite the departure of six starters from last year's squad which finished third in the College Baseball World Series.

Jones said he can replace them without any problems.

The Salukis' biggest loss was their ace pitcher. Scholarship offers to the pitcher were well above market value and he didn't get around much on the market.

Not that he's up in the game. It's just that he concentrates on coaching.

"When I became SIU's golf coach, I became more interested in golf from a teaching standpoint rather than playing one. Besides, how many football coaches do you know who still know how to play golf?"

Holder occupies an office that shows the same immense love for the game as he does for his players. He has surrounded himself by players of some of the more outstanding teams in basketball and golf. (He coached SIU's basketball team from 1941-1948.)

Jones keeps a mental dossier on his players. A question about a particular player, one which date back to 1989, is answered with the same amazing accuracy when the same question is asked again, which is a normal procedure when one encounters the same personality. Jones' opinion about the players is that they are the same way they were four years ago. The answer is: "No, they are the same way they were four years ago."

Itch Jones

In developing light between Dave Mofort, Joe Hage and Phil Klinmas, Jones said that James Reeves has a good chance to start in right field next to John Nelson and Steve Shafter. Nelson had a good season last year, hitting .362. "John and I have talked this year and I told him not to worry about his average this season and just continue doing the job the way I know he can."

Shafter did well last season, hitting .362.

The infield should be solid at second and short, according to Jim Lecaschilf and Jim Lecaschilf hit 170 home runs in his career. Catching should be aided with Dan Adkins, who finished behind Holder in the MVC. Coach Lew Hartung holds one of many SIU track trophies.
