East Germany names new premier

EAST BERLIN (UPI) - The East German Parliament elected Monday the country's new premier Hans Modrow, a reform-minded communist who said he doesn't want the Berlin Wall torn down because he fears an influx of drugs and AIDS from the West.

Earlier Parliament elected a non-communist as speaker for the first time in its 40-year history during an unusually unprecedented secret vote.

As Parliament met Monday, the number of East Germans lining up to cross the newly opened border into West Germany eased to a relative trickle of 100,000 - compared with the millions who moved over the weekend.

West German authorities said 26,700 of the weekend visitors had elected to stay in West Germany and announced another 3,000 signed up Monday.

A combination of East German refugees leaving the country, and numerous protest marches by those that stayed behind, has resulted in a lighter-footed setting of reforms in the East Bloc country and the resignations of hard-line communists.

Modrow, 61, was designated last week by New East German leader Eduard Krenz to replace hard-liner Willi Stoph, who ailed 22 years as 43-member Cabinet.

Although Modrow's election had been expected, it came at the end of an unprecedented day in a suddenly animated Volkspark, or People's Chamber, as the Parliament is called.

In the first secret ballot since East Germany was proclaimed a state in 1949, Parliament Monday elected a man who said he won't accept contributions to the West German government, and whose Party candidate Guenther Maerz was his new speaker.

Modrow's election Sunday came as party chief in the city of Dresden and the first high ranked East German communist to openly back the reforms of Soviet president Mikhail Gorbachev.

The East German newspaper Bild quoted Modrow in an article Monday saying he rejected the complete destruction of the Berlin Wall because "our nation knows only minimal crime, but any AIDS, and drugs are as good as the border." And, "If all those things were shoved across to us over an open border my policies as premier wouldn't stand a chance," he said.

Modrow said the government

Water main break leaves dorms dry

By Chris Walka

A water main break left residents of Baldwin, Abbott, Stum, Warren and Kellogg halls without water for approximately one hour Monday.

University personnel started work on the break about noon, Dominic Baillero, assistant business director for housing, said.

The break, which had to be dug out, was repaired around 15:30 - estimated by University personnel.

Water service to the dorms was interrupted about 3:15 p.m., when the water was shut off the break could be repaired.

The break was tested for leaks at about 3:30 p.m.

Each affected dorm had to be turned back on.

A stainless-steel sleeve was placed around the broken area of the main.

The sleeve, which is held together by a series of bolts, was opened up and put around the break.

The bolts were tightened and the main was tested for leaks.

Baillero said the sleeve would remain in place permanently.

According to Joe Bastin, a University plumber, the main cracked because of the dryness of the ground.

Bastin said the ground, because of its dryness, contracts around the main tighter than normal. Any movement of the ground causes the pipe to crack.

Bastin estimated the main has been in place for 30 years.

Edward Keller, a workman on the scene, said the leak could have been going on for some time.

Keller said he and another workman noticed the campus lake higher than normal last week.

Directory expected to come out Dec. 11

By Joanne Bickler

This semester will be over before the SIU-C student-staff directory is in the hands and the offices of those who need it. Undergraduate Student Government President Tim Hildebrandt said.

The directory, which was supposed to be out in mid-October, will not come out until at least Dec. 11, he said.

Hildebrand said University purchasing is responsible for the delays. "If we had the money, the directory would be in every desk in purchasing for a month longer than it was supposed to," Hildebrandt said. "The contract was supposed to be released around Sept. 1, but it didn't get released until Oct. 7." He said the contract was actually due Oct. 7.

The contract was eventually granted to Data National of Champaign, Ill. Hildebrandt said Marianne Ostberg, purchasing assistant, said the delay was the result of a number of factors.

"On Aug 22, the contract came before Data National and was supposed to be out in mid-October, with only one copy," Ostberg said. "We sent two copies and require both copies in before the directory goes in the process.

After several trips to get the second copy of the contract, the purchasing department finally got it on Sept. 7, she said. It then went to Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit for verification, she said, Pettit returned the contract to purchasing Sept. 22.

"We had been in contact with Data National for a long time," Pettit said. "We never thought the book would be out in October this year, but we are happy that it is available to us.

Normally, there is a separate directory for faculty and students. This is the first year the books have been combined.

Senate accepts new economic aid figure

Poland, Hungary to get $738 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Senate approved a $738 million economic aid package for Poland and Hungary on Monday, just hours before Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa was to depart for Washington.

The unprecedented $738 million package can be approved of, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said. "It is a more factually responsible bill," Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas added.

The measure, approved just two days before Walesa was set to receive a hero's welcome and a landmark visit to America, will send $738 million in aid to Poland and $81 million for Hungary.

The money must be appropriated by Congress, but the spending committees of the Senate and House have already approved $327.8 million in aid for the two nations.

Dissident electrician turned power broker, Walesa was treated in red-carpet treatments usually reserved for foreign leaders as members of Congress, the labor movement and the Polish-American community saw the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize winner become one of a select few signers to receive America's highest civilian award.

Canada's proposed aid plan shot down by Lech Walesa

OTTAWA (UPI) — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa Monday criticized Canada's proposed aid package for Poland as "similar to giving a corpse a beautiful tie" and emphasized the need for investment rather than charity from the West. Walesa, on a 10-day North American trip to drum up support and investments to help the Solidarity-led government pull Poland out of economic chaos, made the remark hours before leaving for Washington, where he was to meet with President Bush and receive the Medal of Freedom at a White House ceremony.

Salvadoran government reclaims positions

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The Salvadoran government claimed Monday it had recuperated rebel-held positions in the capital after a mortar shell exploded outside the offices of the national police that left between 130 and 100 people dead and hundreds injured. A spokesman for the Salvadoran armed forces said the rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front have been driven out of the city. He said, however, that sporadic fighting continued for a third day on the outskirts.

Senate leader says members oppose raise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said Monday that a "substantial majority" of senators oppose any pay raise for themselves and that means House members could wind up with bigger salaries. Mitchell said he and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas sounded out senators and found overwhelming opposition to any pay increase being readied for action in the House before Congress adjourns for the year.

House passes package of bills for drug war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House passed a package of bills Monday providing legislative permission for major parts of the drug war on drugs, including $1.25 million for the Andean nations that produce most of the U.S.-bound cocaine. "We cannot let (Columbian President) Virgilio Barco, the people of Columbia and the people of Bolivia and Peru twist in the wind until next year," said Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa. "We cannot pack up and leave town and leave this legislation undone as part of the war against drugs, as part of the strategy we in this Congress requested and the president has promised to us."

Reform in Europe subject of future summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said Monday that the Dec. 2 superpower summit between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev should not be confused with the meeting in early 1969 between President Richard Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, which led to the so-called "détente" division of Europe along the line that became the Iron Curtain. When Bush and Gorbachev meet next month off the Mediterranean island of Malta, one of the major issues will be how rapid reform in the Eastern Bloc may alter the political map of Europe.

Illinois high court upholds 'right-to-die' in two cases

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court Monday upheld a woman's "right to die" in two rulings, saying a guardian can order the withdrawal of life support for a dying person in certain cases and a womanarian can refuse life-saving medical treatment. Justices decided a DuPage County woman had the right to order the turning off of artificial support systems keeping her comatose mother alive. In another case, the court upheld an appellate court ruling that the mother of a 17-year-old Chicago-area hemophiliac girl was not guilty of neglect when the girl refused necessary blood transfusions with her mother's consent in 1987.

Touch of Nature wilderness groups help abused youths

Programs stress showing kids ways to function at home

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

For 13 years troubled youths have found a source of help in two of the Touch of Nature environmental center's programs.

Tich Wichmann, associate director of Touch of Nature, said two programs that were originated in 1976 are still helping neglected, abused and delinquent youth.

"Both the Spectrum Wilderness Project and the Spectrum Advocacy Project are specially oriented to reduce systems dependency in the youths. That is, we want to make them independent and stable so they will not need to institutionalized," Wichmann said.

He said he wants the youths to return to their families or be placed in semi-independent group homes, as opposed to detention centers and foster homes, when they complete the program.

"Some of the children participate in both projects. The two projects are different, but the goal is the same," Wichmann said.

The wilderness project, also called the Environmental Stress Challenge Project, is a 30-day program that gives the children an opportunity to explore the outdoors. He said the youths primarily come from Illinois, but some come from other Midwest states.

We sponsor two years a year. Each course involves one to four groups of about 11 kids," Wichmann said. "The groups all have four counselors."

He said each group spends the first two weeks in a training expedition in Southern Illinois or Southeast Missouri. During this period the youths become adapted to outdoor life.

"The last two weeks are spent in a remote wilderness area, such as Buffalo River, Ark.; White Oak Wilderness, Ontario; or Big Bend National Park, Tex.," Wichmann said.

"During the entire 30 days, the kids will learn rock climbing, rappelling, canoeing, hiking, exploring and camping. The goal is to build self-confidence, teamwork and leadership." He said the counselors go through extensive training before leading an expedition. They must be certified in CPR, water safety and other forms of lifesaving techniques.

"The advocacy project, which is utilized in the 33 southernmost counties of Illinois, involves hiring advocates for each community. The advocates work 10 hours a week with the youth over a six-month period," he said.

"Two divisions of DCFS fund the programs. The Division of Child Welfare funds most of it, but the Division of Youth and Community Services funds the youth which are referred by Unified Delinquent Intervention Services," he said, adding that Touch of Nature appoints UDIS case managers to help locate some of the teenagers.

Few know of early children's books about blacks

By Inna Oplich
Staff Writer

Few people are aware of an important body of literature — children's books on the black experience, said Patricia Lanier, an associate professor from Bronx Community College in New York.

Lanier, the first speaker in The Black American STUDIES 1989-90 lecture series, gave a historical overview of children's books about blacks at the University Museum auditorium Thursday evening.

Lanier traced children's books as far back as 1920. Then "The Ten Little Niggers," the oldest book she could find, was published. This book and many others written before 1945 address violence with African Americans, Lanier said.

Earlier children's books about the black experience were written by whites for white children, Lanier said.

"Little Black Sambo," a story originally written by an English woman about an Indian child, was brought to the United States, where the character was transformed into an African American, she said.

"Americans made the illustrations derogatory," Lanier said.

Several editions of "Little Black Sambo" have been published because the author did not copyright the book, but they are difficult to come by since the book was pulled from the shelf, Lanier said.

Some later editions of "Little Black Sambo" from the 1950s portrayed blacks in a more positive light, she said.
Study shows need for more child care

GREATER NUMBERS of students being admitted to the University also are parents of young children. And while these parents are provided with classrooms, a library and computer centers, their children are finding fewer and fewer places that will cost them nothing.

For recognizing a week for child care facilities for University students, University officials should be commended. A thrust on University children's programs on behalf of University President Joseph G. Wood; Acting Managing Editor, Wanda Harris; Faculty Editorial Adviser, Wayne Warren.

PRESENMNT GUYON said last week that through the survey he hopes to learn more about the nature of the child care shortage at the University.

A study conducted last spring to locate the child care needs of women faculty members, academic and professional staff members and civil service staff members already shows a definite need for care by 199 of the 829 who returned questionnaires.

THE TYPE OF care needed was indicated as full-time in 41 percent of the cases, half-time in 85 percent, after school in 30 percent and summer in 21 percent of the cases.

In another survey of University students calculated as of March 29, 1989, 34 percent of the 232 who returned questionnaires needed day care for 96 cases. Again, full-time care was cited as the most needed type of care.

EVEN THOUGH the University manages four child care facilities, Jean Parascio, assistant to the vice president, said the facilities have had a hard time meeting the needs of its non-traditional students, parents and students.

Surveying the need for child care is only the first step for the University. Since data already indicates a need for child care, the next step is to do something about it. Should not the University have time to assess the situation, immediate action should be taken to alleviate the need for additional child care.

IF BUILDING additional child care facilities is the answer to the child care shortage, more facilities should be built. If the answer is to allow these child care facilities to also care for their children in non-University day care, then the stipend should be offered.

The University cannot afford to lose students who have no place to keep their children while they attend classes. It also cannot afford to lose faculty members who have inadequate placement for children.

Most of all, the University cannot afford to acquire the reputation that it cannot meet the needs of its non-traditional students.

People who believe in horoscopes, seances, tarot cards do not wear the 'full armor of God'

Who trusts God anyway? I do believe that God is watching over all things.

Take a look at chapter 18 of Deuteronomy in the Old Testament. This chapter tells about sinful practices and false prophets. Verses 10 to 11 of this chapter list some of:

De 18:10—"... that the divination or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a sorcerer, or an idolater, or a witch."

De 18:11—"Or a charmer, or a consultant with familiar spirits"

Three titles cover horoscopes, palm reading, seances and tarot cards or crystal ball readings. To engage in these acts is a sin.

The people who trust in and make use of these powers don't know that they are using and being deceived by the forces of darkness because they don't have the full armor of God, Epe 6:10-11.

Make no mistake. All of us sin in one form or another. That's why there is salvation in Jesus Christ, but that's no excuse for being sinful and disobedient to God.

Why don't people have on the full armor of God? Because they assume they know God's Word off hand and that's enough. No church, no study, they just know. How can this be, when the Holy Bible is so thick with the Word of God that you can't possibly know it all off hand?

This includes us. Rom Again Christians who only wear the helmet of salvation. To those unenlightened, the Holy Spirit will guide you, for God is a loving and merciful God. You need no false prophecies. Trust in God.

Samn can't create or give and doesn't know the future! He must guess as your actions by reading past events and knowing your past history.

God is perfect. Trust Him, for He can do all. Less than perfect is not God, De 18:21-22. God is waiting for your decision.

Sen. Simon inspires student to 'have a point'

It was my first year down here at S.I.U. when I woke up. As I recall, I was awakened by late night people still partying. It was maybe 6 a.m. I couldn't see the face of the headlights. I was made my way to my sun-filled window. Fully dressed in my night apparel, boxes and a t-shirt, I knelt before the window with my eyes peacefully closed.

I opened my eyes to confirm a sound of hard heeled shoes walking past my domain. What a surprise, a young man in a black suit with very thin pin stripes, and a little scoop of yellow ribbon. Ah, yes, a bow tie.

Now was this normal for Carbondale? I thought not. I rubbed my eyes and stood up. Yes, it was, I was right! Paul Simon in the flesh, walking down my street. Wow!

"Hey, hey, Mr. Simon!" I said, as I ran through the outside door of my desk. Mr. Simon stopped, turned around, and took a few steps toward me. We shook hands family and then our conversation began.

"So what are you doing in Carbondale?"

"I'm visiting my wife. She lives close by!" replied Mr. Simon.

"And your name is?" Mr. Simon questioned me.

Quickly I answered, "Robert Oleksi!"

"Well then Mr. Oleksi, how do you feel about our presidential election?" asked Mr. Simon, as he lifted his left eyebrow.

I said, "I think it went rather well!"

The conversation went a little further, but nothing was discussed, which concerns my point. The point being, have we, as a country, others, an opinion, something, I guess I'm trying to say wake up to my fellow students, who, like myself, just don't care about politics.

MURDER SUSPECTS BEING HELD FOR TRIAL IN STUDENT’S DEATH

By Douglas Powell

In a preliminary hearing Monday, Jackson County Circuit Judge David W. Wait found probable cause to bind over Jerry L. Harris and Stanley E. Algie on charges of first degree murder in connection with a shooting at an NCCC cafeteria. Judge A. Jackson, a SIU-C student.

Harris and Algie are being held without bail.

At the Jackson County Jail Monday, Wait listened to testimony from four Carbondale Police officers involved with the investigation into the shooting death of Jackson, an employee of Jeremiahs, 201 N. Washington St.

In the early morning hours of Oct. 14, Jackson and three other employees of Jeremiahs’s were walking across a parking lot south of the restaurant when they were confronted by a black male wielding a small steel revolver who demanded money. Jackson and the co-workers were carrying three bank deposit bags intended for a night deposit when they were confronted.

Testimony given by Detective Michael Ovitz revealed that when the gunman confronted the restaurant employees he ordered them to “Drop the bags or you die.”

The employees threw the bank bags on the ground, police said. The gunman then picked up the bank bags and fired a shot point blank into the ground and then fled north.

Jackson County Circuit Judge, Assistant State’s Attorney J. Christopher Moore requested the third participants not be identified.

Dole said the credit “just won't work in Poland” because of its foreign debts of nearly $40 billion.

In 1975, Poland and Hungary were in Congress for missile talks, but it was obvious how generous America can be to the two nations struggling toward democracy in the United States’ own economic problems and, until last week, a fight over $500 million in a cut in the capital gains tax rate.

and Parliament will discuss when to hold general elections, which must be called before 1991, and said the third social democratic coalition would win the vote.

Krenz announced that everything leading to the legislative elections would be chiseled at by euphoric Germans over the weekend. Several new opinions were announced by East German guards to accommodate the tide of East Germans who continued to pour across the opened up the border, but that doesn’t mean the border would disappear,” Krenz said in a statement to the same newspaper.

Krenz reiterated his stand against the reunification of the two Germanies.

Krenz said that when he meets with West German chancellor Helmut Kohl he will “discuss realistic, reasonable, solid and honorable subjects that are based on the existence of two sovereign German states independent of each other.”

In Leipzig, East Germany’s second largest city, 200,000 people demonstrated Monday night for free elections and demanded that the new freedom to travel West be made permanent through legislation, the East German news agency ADN said. Another 10,000 demonstrated in Schwerin after signing a petition demanding a referendum on a constitutional amendment that gives the Communist Party control of the government.

ADN said the protesters shouted slogans and carried banners calling for changes in the Eastern government, and state.

“The open border is not freedom enough,” one banner in Leipzig read. Another read, “The wall has a hole in it, but it must come down.”

The forum, the growing East German movement that has pushed for the unprecedented reforms, said Monday it now has 200,000 members and declared itself a force to be reckoned with.

New Forum spokesman Reinhard Schult said in an interview with the East German newspaper Neues Zeit (New Time) that “In order to present a relevant reform program we need figures and data on our activity until now held under tight control.”

Schult accused Schult of rejecting the communists’ assertions that they would win a general election.

“Events have caused the (communist) party to lose its leading role anyway, as far as I can see,” he said. “They can’t maintain their status.”

Publication of Schult’s remarks would have been unthinkable earlier this year.

Hildebrand said he thinks the purchasing department held up the release of the denim contract to allow more faculty and staff members to withdraw their names and numbers.

On Aug. 28, when the information about the combined book was released, Clarence G. Dougherty, vice president for student services, said no faculty members had stated any objection to having their home address and phone number released in the book and were accessible to students.

However, Hildebrand said faculty and staff members were drawing their names up until the deadline went to print.

In August, Dougherty predicted the book would cost around $5000 depending on the amount of advertising.

The combined book already has paid for itself in advertising, Hildebrand said. Advertisers were more willing to be in it because the book reached both faculty and students.

“Lecho Walesa, by your abiding faith and by the miracle of democracy’s new birth in your homeland, you have come to personify the new breed that is sweeping the world east and west, the spiritual godfather of a new generation of democracy,” he said.

Dougherty said the faculty and staff book has gone up to $5000 in past years. The average cost for a student book was $3000, he said.

Hildebrand said the publishing company has hope that the directory will be out much sooner next year.

Oberg said, “in future years, if we continue to use Data National, we said they would be more likely to get the book out on time.”

Sexuality hampered by roles

By Carren Summerfield
Washington

Sexuality is a very important part of our lives. Typically, discussions about sex and sexual responsibility are not a part of our upbringing and information about this topic is obtained from school, friends, magazines, television, and movies.

To Your Health

No wonder confusion exists and double messages and conflicting values make the process of sexual decision-making and communication difficult at best. Poor communication can be hazardous to you and your health.

Socialization gives males and females different messages about their sexual roles. For example, males are typically seen as the aggressors; women are passive. Therefore, males tend to focus on setting the "stage" and being the initiator. To counteract the "bad girl" image, women are forced to play games about sex and spend a lot of time processing a "good girl" image but being honest about their sexual feelings or desires.

This adherence to social roles prevents direct communication about the decision to be sexually intimate.

Additionally, this socialization fosters a passive or submissive communication style for women and a more dominant and aggressive communication style for men. These communication styles come into play in any given sexual encounter and make it difficult to have an honest and open exchange about being involved and being sexually responsible.

It is time to identify the messages we have received from friends, family, and society which block us from being sexually assertive and responsible.

It is essential that we look at our own values and attitudes and take steps to learn about our own sexuality. If we do, we are more likely to take responsibility for it and the result may contribute to solutions of unwanted sex, pregnancies, and sexually transmitted diseases.

This strong anti-smoking film is a counterpoint that it was banned in the U.S. for several years. It details the history of smoking from roadtrip to respirator. A motivational experience you won't want to miss.

University faculty read work in program honoring late prof

Money contributed to continue new series

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Four SIU-C faculty members were the first speakers Thursday evening in a new reading series established by the English department in honor of John Gardner, a former University professor and author of more than 35 books.

John Howell, who organized the series and is writing a second book on Gardner, began by reminiscing about Gardner and the work he did while at SIU-C. Donald Hays, Richard Russo and Rodney Jones followed with excerpts from their own works.

"I thought they were fun," Howell said of the readings. "The crowd seemed very entertained and amused."

"They all struck the right tone, quite appropriate and representative of some of the attributes Gardner exhibited in his books," Betsy Mitchell, assistant English department chairwoman, said.

Howell said he wanted to start the series with SIU-C's own strong writers, who also have done many readings at other schools, and then bring in someone from across the country next fall.

Money has been contributed through the SIU Foundation from students and faculty to create an endowment to help defray the costs of bringing in outside writers for the reading series, Howell said.

"John Howell deserves great credit for starting this thing and working hard to get it going," Herb Pink, faculty member in art and a friend of Gardner's, said. Pink illustrated "King's Indian" for Gardner.

"The English department has really done well to have these three men here," Pink said. "I think it's exciting."

Gardner, a nationally acclaimed author, taught at SIU-C from 1965 to 1974 and wrote the majority of his works during that time. He died in 1982 in a motorcycle accident.

"He was many things to many people," Howell said. "He is a national figure who was part of our program for 10 years, and we are very pleased with that tradition. The series is off to a very good start."

Author's new book poses amusing questions to reader

By Carrie Pomeroy

Author of the best-selling "The Book of Questions" has written a new book that guarantees to pique your interest and bring plenty of surprises.

Gregory Stock's "The Book of Questions: Love, Life, and Sex" has the same basic format as his first book, containing 241 questions designed to help the reader get to know himself or herself better. Both books ask readers "Truth or Dare" for grown-ups.

This book differs from the first book, which dealt with a variety of ethical and personal issues, in that it focuses on the romantic side of life.

Stock wrote the book in response to the difficulties many people seem to have in talking honestly and openly about love and sex. He writes in the book's introduction: "And I hope the questions will "help you clarify your values, better understand your needs and desires and see your friends and partners more clearly."

Very few of the questions are overtly racy, but they could definitely lead to some pretty steamy conversations. Whether it would be an ice-breaker on a first date or as a tool for exploring an established relationship, this book asks the questions we’ve all thought about but perhaps have been afraid to ask ourselves or others.

Stock, a research scholar at the University of Southern California who holds a doctorate in biophysics and an MBA from Harvard, poses such zingers as "Does your zap in love with someone you weren’t attracted to sexually?" and "Are there any erotic pleasures you once looked at as weird or disgusting but now find attractive?"

Stock also creates some thought-provoking hypothetical situations, asking how long you could abstain from physical contact with your lover if you won $500 for every day you didn’t touch him or her.

The questions range from more difficult, such as "If you had a list of all the actions you find sexy, do you find some "taboo" actions sexy or more intimate feelings."

The book really is a difficult book to put down. It’s tempting to keep reading.

Book Review

Stock’s book is a unique tool for exploring an established relationship. This is indeed a difficult book to put down. For example, a question he asks is: "Could you have a sexual relationship with another person, and do you enjoy it?"

The book already is showing its ability to provoke thought and bring some preppy steamy questions we’ve all thought about but perhaps have been afraid to ask ourselves or others.

The book is a difficult book to put down. It’s tempting to keep reading.

The trumpet ensemble, the clarinet choir and the chamber choir will perform an evening of chamber music at Shryock Auditorium tonight ranging from an 18th century concerto to works by American composers of the 20th century.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Admission is $2 for the general public and $1 for students, and will support the School of Music scholarship funds.

The trumpets ensemble, made up of seven trumpets and a tympani drum, will perform a concerto by Johann Albeneg composed in 1790. Robert Allison, conductor of the trumpet ensemble, and the piece was performed during a period in which music for the trumpet and kettle drum was highly acclaimed.

The clarinet choir will perform two pieces: one by Mozart and an adagio by Samuel Barber.

The chamber choir will close the concert with contemporary American composers, director John Mohrnick said.

 Studios release videos in mad Christmas race

Scripps Howard News Service

There’s no business like show business, especially around the holidays.

And when you talk about show business these days, home video is at the forefront of the "mega-hit tape." With more than 50 percent of all American households, now owning at least one VCR, it often seems Hollywood studios are in a breathless race to see which can release a smash theatrical hit fastest.

Maybe that explains why Warner Home Video will release the mega-hit "Batman" on Nov. 15—seven weeks after the official end of summer and months ahead of the same-like schedule once adhered to by Hollywood.

Warner’s decision proves what many in Hollywood have been saying for years: videos are no longer mere novelties. They are big business. How big? Look at Disney Home Video’s September release of "Bambi" and you get some idea of the staggering profits a hit video can generate.

Disney estimated it could sell 10 million copies of the video between September and Christmas at an average cost of $19 each before rebate. That comes to about $190 million dollars in change.

Enormous profits from the Christmas shopping season traditionally starts the day after Thanksgiving, holiday video marketing starts about the minute August becomes a memory.

Already "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" is in stores, and other recent or upcoming releases include "Working Girl," "Lawrence of Arabia" (Oct. 19), "Ghostbusters II" (Nov. 22), "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen" (Nov. 29), and "When Harry Met Sally" (Dec. 14).

And that’s just the tip of the iceberg. Although release dates haven’t been announced, other recent or upcoming releases will include "Working Girl," "Lawrence of Arabia" (Oct. 19), "Ghostbusters II" (Nov. 22), "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen" (Dec. 7), and "When Harry Met Sally" (Dec. 14).

Thompson raises chances for bid at Heisman Trophy

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Anthony Thompson’s Heisman Trophy chances improved and Indiana retained its post-season bowl hopes in a victory over Wisconsin, but both honors will depend greatly on how the Hoosiers fare next Saturday.

Indiana travels to No. 8 Illinois for a nationally televised game against an Illini squad whose Rose Bowl hopes were dimmed by a 24-10 loss to Michigan. The Hoosiers, 5-4 overall and 3-3 in the Big Ten, need a triumph to remain in serious contention for a fourth straight bowl bid. Illinois, 7-2 overall and 5-1 in the conference, needs a victory to sustain its Big Ten title hopes and "10," a position in the NCAA playoff.

Thompson rushed for an NCAA record 377 yards against the Badgers, breaking the one-game rushing mark of 357 set in 1984. Thompson has rushed for 1,511 yards and 23 touchdowns in 293 carries and has established an NCAA career touchdown mark with 64.

The senior from Terre Haute also needs just six points to surpass the NCAA scoring record of 393 points set by Florida State kicker Derek Schmidt.

Thompson has 5,020 career yards, 569 yards shy of Big Ten record set by former Ohio State running back Archie Griffin.

Preseason basketball poll ranks Illini No. 8, UNLV No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nevada-Las Vegas, which will open the year minus two key starters and may wind up on probation by season’s end, Monday received overwhelming support as college basketball’s preseason No. 1 team in voting by United Press International’s Board of Coaches.

Illinois was picked No. 8. The UNLV Runnin’ Rebels captured 27 of 42 first-place votes and totaled 606 points to lead UPI’s Top 20. The coaches, chosen from six regions in the nation, selected their top 15 teams, with 15 points going for first place, 14 for second, etc.

"I only hope they’re right," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said of the board’s strong support for his team.

McKinnon badmouths Ditka's play selections

LAKE FOREST (UPI) — Chicago Bears wide receiver Dennis McKinnon has done the ultimate down and out — right into Coach Mike Ditka's doghouse.

McKinnon, in his sixth year out of Florida State, criticized the team's play-calling this week, charging second-year fullback Brad Master is getting the ball too much, while not enough passes are coming his and the other receivers' way.

McKinnon started in the Bears' 20-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday at Three Rivers Stadium, but caught only one pass for 9 yards, despite a few other chances and fumbled away a punt.

Ditka announced Monday Donata Gentry will start at wide receiver along with Wendell Davis against Tampa Bay, and Glen Kozlowski will most likely handle the punt-returning chores.

"First of all, he didn't play very well in the game, and as a result of that, we'll make some decisions on what we want to do," Ditka said on his weekly radio show on WGN.

He later expounded: "He's always had the ability to criticise other people and put himself, When you criticize your teammates... if people don't want to be a part of this football team, it doesn't have to be done through the media. Come talk to me — me and the door's always open — and we'll get you on a bus and get you out of here."

Asked later Monday whether the Bears would seek to trade McKinnon, Ditka replied: "Get serious." Asked what McKinnon's role would be, he said: "I don't know, yet, I don't know what he's going to be doing."

McKinnon, second on the team with 19 catches after a club-high 22 a year ago, was not available for comment Monday. He spoke out again after Sunday's game.

"It seems like whenever I say something, then it is a problem," he said. "When other people say something, it's ignored. Why that is, I don't know."

I think I expressed frustration for my teammates more than anything, he added. In a sense, I took the heat. But what else is new?"

Rookie Mark Green handled punt returns until going down with a knee injury two weeks ago, and he said he will try Kozlowski and a few others this week. "Maybe he can't run as good as some other people, but maybe he'll hold onto it a little bit better," Ditka said.

Free agents Davis, Reardon well-postioned for bidding

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark Davis and Jeff Reardon were among those on Monday when a tick of the clock opened a sweepstakes for their services.

All 26 major-league baseball teams became eligible to bid for the 69 available free agents at 2 p.m. As two of the elite from that bunch, Davis and Reardon could afford to concentrate on their chicken while their agent handled details of the bidding spread.

"Today is the day they can start talking," said Davis, one of four relievers handled by Rosalis. "I don't know what's going to happen because I've never been a free agent before.

Texas reliever Jeff Russell, this year's American League ERA leader, and veteran Kent Tekulve, who has relieved in more big league games than any other player, may be the biggest names, although New York Mets, 1979, he has been started in 647 games, all in relief. He has saved 266 of them, including 31 this past season for the Colorado Rockies.

Reardon received the Rolaid's award as Reliever of the Decade. In a career that began with the New York Mets in 1979, he has appeared in 647 games, all in relief. He has saved 266 of them, including 31 this past season for the Colorado Rockies.

"I Can't Run As Good As Some Others..."
National indoor tourney a first for SIU-C, Maule

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Mickey Maule, a senior on the Saluki men's tennis team, will compete against the elite this weekend in the 1990 National Intercollegiate Clay Court Championships at the Edward D. Wood Tennis Courts in Hilton Head, S.C.

At the Rolex Intercollegiate Invitational Oct. 7-8 in Wichita, Kan., Maule defied Drawn Price of Wichita State 6-0, 6-4 in the semifinal match. This victory was a determining factor in Maule earning a berth into the Clay Court Championships. Maule lost to Jeff Neuman of Oklahoma State in the tiebreaker, 6-0, 6-7.

The championships are a 32-player event consisting of regional selections around the country and at-large selections made by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association National Tournament Committee. Each singles field also will include two doubles teams of four players and who will advance to main draw through qualifying tournament held Wednesday and Thursday in Wichita.

"It's great to be selected and I hope to do well," Maule said.

The Saluki senior will play as part of the Regional representation. Maule is currently unranked in the NCAA College Tennis Coaches Rankings. But his performance this weekend could be a factor in the next rankings which will be released Friday, Nov. 9, Saluki coach Dick LeFevre said.

Maule's win over Price also earned him an invitation to the Rolex National Indoor Championships Feb. 8-11 in Minneapolis, Minn. Maule will be the first male player to represent SIU-C in the indoor national championships.

The NCAA Championships will be held in St. Louis March 13-16 with Maule said he has had the dream of qualifying for the NCAA nationals since his freshman year.

"I would like to be ranked but you have to play well all year to keep it," Maule said. "When you are competing like this, you have to be mentally tough and also physically come out of it with a win."
