Kelley, Poshard set to debate tonight

By Scott Perry
Wsl writer

Voters in the 22nd Congressional District have the opportunity tonight to see congressional candidates Patrick Kelley and Glenn Poshard discuss the issues in the first of three public debates.

Kelley and Poshard will meet face to face, taking questions from a four-member panel and the public at 7:30 p.m. at Shawnee College in Ullin.

Both candidates are seeking the seat, to be vacated by Rep. Kenneth Gray (D-West Frankfort), who is retiring because of health problems. Gray has held the position from 1966 to 1975 and again from 1984 to the present.

Both have been campaigning for the congressional spot since last year.

Political detainee escape to refuge of U.S. Consulate

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Three prominent political detainees escaped from a hospital Tuesday and sought refuge in the U.S. Consulate in Johannesburg, handing Ambassador Edward Perkins his first major crisis since assuming office in 1986, officials said. An activist lawyer who had been in contact with the men detained under sweeping emergency detention laws said the three had demanded a meeting with the black American diplomat.

South Africans allowed to attend papal mass

GABORONE, Botswana (UPI) — President Quett Masire Tuesday appealed to Pope John Paul II to help end apartheid in South Africa, and allowed South Africans from this majority-white country to enter Botswana for a papal mass. John Paul arrived on an Air Zimbabwe Boeing 707 in Botswana’s capital just 15 miles from South Africa on the second stop of his 11-day tour of five southern African nations. He flew in from Harare, Zimbabwe.

China to stop exhibiting giant pandas in U.S.

BEIJING (UPI) — China said Tuesday it will no longer allow giant pandas to be exported for exhibition in the United States in an apparent response to mounting criticism that the practice was further endangering the species. A spokesman for the En-dangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora Import and Export Administrative Office said his agency would not issue export permits for giant pandas and snub-nosed monkeys.

Informal poll shows Bush favored by Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — An informal mini-poll conducted in the streets of Moscow shows that the average Soviet citizen favors George Bush over Michael Dukakis to win the presidential election. The unsanctioned survey of 50 people was conducted by United Press International at an outdoor market, a downtown shopping arcade and a bus stop. It included married couples, young people, elderly people, three policemen and an artist. Most were ordinary folk.

Reagan signs Fair Housing extension into law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan signed an extension of federal fair housing law Tuesday that covers the handicapped and families with children and gives victims of bias easier-to-use legal tools to fight discrimination. Reagan hailed the measure, which plugs gaps in the 1968 Fair Housing Act, as the “most important civil rights legislation in 20 years.”

Abortion funds rejected for sex crime victims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, in a wholesale switch of support, caved in to President Reagan’s veto threat and adamant opposition in the House Tuesday and voted to bar federally financed abortions for poor victims of rape or incest. The Senate, which voted 73-19 on July 27 to permit government money to be used for such abortions, rejected the exact same provision 47-43 on a procedural vote, warned by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., “We’re not going to win this battle on this bill.”

Marines landing in Yellowstone disaster zone

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A battalion of Marines was sent into the Yellowstone National Park area Tuesday to assist firefighters taking advantage of favorable weather conditions in their war against vast wildfires which have been on a rampage all summer. Meanwhile, the Salvation Army put out a call for food needed by the firefighters because a sudden dip of the thermometer — in the 20s during the night — was bothering the crews while at the same time helping them in their efforts.

Flight readiness review begins on Discovery

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — More than 200 top NASA managers and engineers began an all-day flight readiness review Tuesday to clear the shuttle Discovery for blastoff around Sept. 8, 1986, at Kennedy Space Center. NASA engineers, meanwhile, were trying to track down the source of another apparent hydrogen fuel leak in Discovery’s engine compartment and it was not known what impact that might have, if any, on the agency’s launch plans.

Credit transfer policy to continue

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The faculty senate decided Tuesday to continue the present credit transfer policy between SIU-E and SIU-C.

"My impression of the committee's recommendation was that the overall effect of a policy change would not be that significant," Thomas Jefferson, Undergraduate Education Policy Committee chairman, said. Under the present system, SIU-E students moving to SIU-C have all the Edwardsville grades and courses counted toward retention and graduation at Carbondale. SIU-C students moving to Edwardsville, however, are dealt with like transfers from other institutions. Retention and graduation is based solely on SIU-E grades.

Students bringing better records with them from SIU-E than they later accumulate at SIU-C benefit from the present policy, Thomas Jefferson, UEPD chairman, said. "On the other hand, SIU-E students who bring poorer grades than they later establish must carry those poor grades with them at SIU-C," he added.

In other business, Vice President for Academic Affairs Benjamin Shepherd announced that talks with the Department of Corrections over mandatory drug testing have produced no results.

Leberman said the city couldn't go for a suspension of license against the Carbondale bar because of a change in ownership and its directors. Leberman said he was satisfied with the $2,000 fine, saying it would have just as much effect on the business as would a suspension.

Youth's death traced back to bars

The November 1987 death of a Herrin High School student has led to the filing of two Carbondale establishments for serving alcohol to a minor.

Kevin T. Bennett, 18, died from injuries sustained in a November 26, 1987, automobile accident when his car ran off the south side of Herrin Culp Road and into a guardrail.

An investigation by Illinois State Police turned up evidence that prior to his trip home, Bennett had been drinking at both Prime Time Restaurant and Lounge, E. Route 13, and at Alexander Coles, 519 S. Illinois Ave., in Carbondale.

The Local Liquor Control Commission brought up charges against the two establishments Tuesday, saying they violated Carbondale ordinance 2-10a — serving alcohol to a minor.

Representatives of Prime Time Restaurant and Lounge pleaded guilty to the charge and were fined $200.

Joe Leberman, attorney for the city, pointed out Prime Time has had no liquor violations during its five years in business and said this is why a stricter fine wasn't sought by the city.

Representatives of Alexander Coles — recently renamed Coles — pleaded not guilty to the charge. Michael Maurizio, representing Alexander Coles, pointed to inconsistencies in the January
Forest fires prompt look at forest policy

MORE THAN half of the Yellowstone National Park is expected to be ravaged by forest fires by the end of the week. Already, more than 900,000 of the park’s 2.2 million acres have been charred. As the fire continues to sweep through the park, controversy is heating up about the Park Service’s fire fighting methods. The Park Service has adopted a natural management plan for fighting forest fires, a plan that allows nature to run its course.

THIS MEANS Park Service officials will not fight fires in Yellowstone if they occur naturally. Instead, they allow the fire to burn out on its own. At the crux of their argument is that Yellowstone is preserved as a primitive forest and should be treated with a hands-off policy, allowing the forest to thrive without intervention by man.

THE POLICY makes sense, but officials need to keep in mind that Yellowstone is one of the most splendid national parks in the world. Although it will survive, the effects of the recent “yes on Yellowstone will not be known for some time. Officials need to take a closer look at forest management.

The two arguments causal to the drought should have been a factor in the Park Service’s decision whether or not to fight the fires. At first, officials seemed to have taken their stand that it was self-righteous. But, when the fires turned into raging infernos, everyone was pointing fingers and no one was taking the blame.

ONLY WHEN it was too late did Park Service officials take action. Although credit must be given to those who are fighting the fires, their task is monumental and it seems all they can do is hope for rain.

Tourists and forest lovers will be saddened and angry when they see the damage that is suffered most. The worst effects of the fire could be the loss of habitat that has sustained various plants and animals in the past.

Taking the hazards from toxic wastes

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

There’s little doubt that society is creating more refuse that cannot be handled and that conservation and the use of biodegradable materials are a must. But there are some scientific fixes that we should permit us to continue to use nuclear power plants on the theory that this is still been difficult to handle. Common plastic and PCBs — polychlorinated biphenyls widely used for insulation — are two such conservation areas.

Plastic does not degrade, because its molecules are too big for microorganisms to eat. Until recently, only starch has been used for breakdown polystyrene into shape for germ consumption. Unfortunately, starch also weakens plastic’s structure, making it possible for microorganisms to begin eating the plastic when it is still on the retailers’ shelves, rather than waiting until it reaches the landfill.

Now researchers at Purdue University have found that cellulose acetate, which is derived from wood pulp, breaks down plastic molecules into the proper size for microorganisms to consume, but only after it has first interacted with the soil. Binding cellulose acetate to plastic could make that ubiquitous material completely biodegradable.

PCBs have been a problem because when burned they give off dioxin. Some are stored, not always effectively, in expensive sealed containers. But researchers at Texas A&M University have found that when some PCBs are added to a electron, a “superoxide ion” is produced, which breaks down PCBs into bicarbonate of soda and water. The PCBs can then be destroyed, so they don’t imply scientific fixes are available for all our environmental problems. For instance, it would be dangerous to continue building more factories and that eventually a way will be found to make their wastes harmless.

Letters

Pettit, Guyon should put their money where their more affluent mouths are

I would like to address this letter to our fine administration. To make sure of the lack of federal and state funds, you have decided that a tuition increase is the solution to SIU-U’s financial problems. However, at the same time you want to increase your salaries by 7 percent. This is a slap in the face!

Just how will the students benefit by paying the administration more money? It would really impress if you would take a deduction in your salary just as every college and department on campus took 2 percent budget cuts across the board. Consider this: for 4 percent, or $107,004, plus the use of the student's tuition increase, you will receive $125,000. The total sum of more than $135,500. While you receive more than $6,500 more next year, I will be forced to pay $185 more than if the 12 percent tuition increase is approved. At the same time, I will be going another $4,000 in debt. Since this is the maximum amount of money available to me, I do not know where I will get the money to pay for the additional expenses incurred when your proposed tuition increase goes into effect.

Perhaps the administration doesn’t realize the financial burden students have placed on them. After all, Chancellor Pettit, you don’t even pay rent. Was the last time you received a notice of disconnection in the mail because you couldn’t afford to make ends meet? When was the last time you ate Ramen noodles and called it meat?

Illinois legislators seem to think the university system can get by on less money each year. Tuition goes up and the quality of education goes down.

After a previous tuition increase, I was forced to drop out of school for a semester so I could work full time. After living on my own for four years, and earning more than my $4,000 last year, I'm still considered dependent on my parents. I don’t claim me on their tax return. It seems the federal and state governments want education to be for only the privileged few. I request a public school, not a private one.

Illinois students are caught between a rock and a hard place. We are forced to attend an Illinois university because it offers the lowest cost for education. However, Illinois legislators seem to think the university system can get by on less money each year.

Tuition goes up and the quality of education goes down.

Chancellor Pettit, although you try to deny it, it is true that the students are paying more and receiving less for their money. Tell me why depart­ ments can no longer afford to give students hands outs. Instead, students are forced to shell out an additional $10 or so to purchase them from a copy store. At the same time, expensive money is being spent on unnecessary things. For example, last June the physical plant was paid to put in a sidewalk sweeper. Then they pay a physical plant worker more than his hourly rate to clean the sidewalk. Do we really need to spend so much money to walk on a clean sidewalk?

I would also like to ask the board to consider the 12 percent increase over an 18.5 percent increase by 7 percent. I could be more than a $20 additional cost to the student. Although the 27 percent of SIU-C students involved in the SIU-C Program definitely need the money, I think the current increase is too much from another source other than a tuition increase. I'm glad I'm a hard enough time for my own tuition. I'm sure there's no one else on this campus that will be able to go to school. I'm glad I'm not a student.

Despite opinion, DE fuels SIU-C party image

As I was reading the Opinion columns in the Monday edition of the Daily Egyptian titled, “Media Overkill Fuels SIU-C Party Image,” a friend of mine pointed out an amusing in­ consistency. While the editors of the DE were lambasting the print media for their distorted and overblown portrayal of SIU as a party paradise, the front page of the DE trumpeted the headline “Police Party-Hop over the Weekend.”

The headline article did little more than rehash the con­ ventional wisdom that if your party is too loud, the police will come and break it up. This is a fact of life that I’m sure exists on every campus in the U.S. and one that every college-age person is aware of by now. In any other college newspaper, this article would barely warrant a mention in the police section.

The DE’s editors should start by cleaning their own house.

While I agree with Chancellor Lawrence Pettit, and most University faculty and administrators, the SIU-C party image is largely un­ deserved. When I wrote that as editor of the DE are going to chase others for promoting that image, they should start by cleaning their own house. — Tim Svetz, senior, cinema and photography.

Placing the right words to the right situation can make all the difference.
Let foresters manage forests; satisfy diverse group of users

There seems to be a lot of debating going on about harvesting timber on the Shawnee National Forest. We have been working on Forest Resource Management and 10 years working in the woods believe there are trees and are harvesting, I hope I am brought up some light on the subject.

Keep in mind that in Shawnee there are no areas of land that have not suffered from the impact of man. Every stand of timber has been cut over at least once or twice, and yet we have an abundance of forest land to enjoy.

Trees are a renewable resource. You cut one mature tree and ten grow back. Even after a century of fires, grazing and timber harvesting, our forests have bounced back in large part, and with the right management, they can provide us with an abundance of wildlife, food, beauty and shelter.

For those who disapprove of the short-lived ugliness of clear-cutting, the Forest Service provides thousands of acres of wilderness areas, national areas, riparian areas, ar- chaeological sites and scenic river corridors and other places where timber harvesting is prohibited.

On the remaining acreage, the Shawnee National Forest has a 120-year rotation for timber harvest. To simplify this for all non-foresters, imagine a tract of land divided into 120 pieces. Every year, cut one 120th of the entire tract and, during that same year, new growth will be cut. The timber cut during year one is 120 years old, year two is 119 years old, and so on. This creates a diversity of age classes of the managed forests, which provides a diversity of food and shelter for wildlife and a variety of scenic areas for the public to enjoy.

Trees are a renewable resource. You cut one mature tree, and ten grow back.

-Granted, a recent clear-cut is ugly, but after a year or two the regrowth grows so thick that it hides many scars upon the land. Recent research shows that the new regeneration is providing adequate oak stocking in most areas. Though for the first 10 or 20 years, it is so thick that it is difficult for man to walk through, it provides excellent shelter and food for many forms of wildlife.

Scientific community supports Cave Valley

This letter is in response to Mr. Clark Ashley’s letter, published in the Sept. 1 issue of the Daily Egyptian. Cave Valley has long been recognized by the scientific community as being an irreplaceable ecosystem where a great deal of research has been conducted. Evidence of the concern of the scientific community can be seen in the following:

- 1972 - Professor William George of the University of Missouri-Warbler sanctuary, and US Forest Service recognized his potential for recreation as a sign designating the area as such.

- 1986 - Scott Robinson of the Illinois Department of Conservation (IDOC) wrote in a letter to the USDA, that he is a supervisor of the Shawnee National Forest: "The Creek area contains one of the richest

Clear-cutting forum provides diverse views

I am writing with regard to the controversial issue of clear-cutting of timber in the Cave Valley area. With the Cave Valley area, the Shawnee National Forest, we have a lot of newsprint in an article in the Aug. 3 Daily Egyptian. The next few letters are to the editor.

For the sake of clarification, I would like to point out that, contrary to impressions which may have been left by some previous writers, the Southern Illinois Audubon Society — the local chapter of the Illinois Audubon Society, adopted an official position relative to this clear-cutting issue.

As an organization, we have attempted to present an objective position to our readers. We have chosen to address the issue of clear-cutting, and we have encouraged the identification and consideration of alternative courses of action at Cave Valley.

Recognizing that the management of our national forests is indeed a complex issue which ultimately affects the quality of life for all of us, I hope that the Daily Egyptian will continue to provide an forum for the expression of various views on this subject. — Andrew Earnest, president, Southern Illinois Audubon Society.

Trying to persuade moderate voters he would not pursue a weak foreign policy, Dukakis, who later rode an M1 tank in Michigan, said it would be "naive" to take Gorbachev at his word about changes in the Soviet Union.

"To deal successfully with Gorbachev, the next president must understand that he can't be realistic. He must have good judgment and be committed to building a strong defense," he said. "As president, I intend to provide that leadership.

The governor also criticized Bush's choice of a running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle, saying, "Dan Quayle's reputation is tied to a record of inaction and incoherence..."

The proposed mass transit system, a plan to examine the University's spending of tuition and fees and the higher education tax increase will be discussed by members of the Undergraduate Student Government.

In the first meeting of the semester, the USG will hear individual commission reports.

in Student Center Ballroom B at tonight.

The Mass Transit Commission will present an updated report on the mass transit proposal's status and announce that USG is cooperating with the city to set the scope of a feasibility study, President Bill Hall said.

The study was requested by the Illinois Department of Transportation, the University Board of Trustees, and the city of Carbondale to answer questions concerning the proposed project's feasibility, Hall said.

Housing, Tuition and Fees Commissioner John Lim will initiate a project that will attempt to explain how the University spends tuition and fees by examining student records and documents, Hall said.

After stopping, the man approached Nitz, asking him if he wanted to "have a good time," which prompted Nitz to shoot the man, Walker testified.

Stearns gave a similar testimony to Walker's. Stearns and Nitz told him that the man he murdered was "the guy in the papers.

Stearns, who said he has known Nitz for about five years, also testified that Nitz told him of a murder he had committed.

While police were searching Nitz's trailer on April 26, Nitz and Stearns were at a Carbondale tavern, Stearns said.

Stearns said he asked Nitz in jest: "Did you kill anybody?" Nitz replied "Yes," Stearns testified.

"Murder" was given by a police official who said Nitz had denied killing Miller and that he knew whom Miller's killer was.

Jackson County Sheriff's Lt. Michael Teas testified that when Nitz was arrested May 1, he told Teas that he didn't kill Miller and that the charges were dropped against him, he would take the police to the murderer.

Alcohol, drugs hurt grades

Survey correlates drinking with skipping classes

By Barb Fijolek

Alcohol and drug abuse significantly affect academic success.

The latest survey taken at SIU-C on drinking and taking drugs showed a significant correlation between drinking and missed classes. This same study indicated that SIU-C students who are heavier drinkers have a greater possibility for a lower grade point average and more problems related to academic performance.

A University of Minnesota study found that students with lower grades tended to be heavier drinkers than higher achievers.

To Your Health

Fifty percent of 26-year-old students miss classes, work, or appointments because of drinking; nine percent said they got lower grades because of drinking.

Alcohol affects memory and concentration, so it makes studying and understanding lectures more difficult.

Students who drink a lot may skip class, are not studying, not just when drunk, but also when sleeping or suffering from a hangover. Some students miss academic work because of injuries sustained while drinking or because of increased illnesses that result from the effect of alcohol in the immune system.

Of course, socializing is an aspect of college life as important to most students as academic success. For many students, that means drinking alcohol. To help sort their priorities, students could list ten goals, including academic and life goals.

After listing as many goals as they can, students should number their goals, number one being the most important and number ten being the least. Students then should decide how drinking alcohol affects achieving their goals.

Students need to decide what they want most and if their behavior matches what they want. Anyone with an alcohol or drug-related concern, can call the Wellness Center at 536-4441. Beginning the week of September 19, The Wellness Center will offer an Adult Child Assistance class for anyone who feels that past family patterns adversely affect their relationships now.

Centerfest attendance down

Attendance at Centerfest this year was 1,147, which is lower than previous years, when the event was called E-NIGHT, according to Tom Corry, of the Student Programming Council.

The highest attendance was reached in 1965, when admission was $2 and 4,000 people attended, Corry said.

Corry said the attendance drop was a result of several factors.

The $3 admission fee this year contributed to the drop. Also, because the event is held on Fridays and alcohol is not allowed, only a few competitors with parties in the area attended.

Ensemble will debut

The University Wind Ensemble, directed by Michael D. Hoye, will debut a new fanfare and march to open the Arts in Celebration '88 festival Oct. 1 at Turley Park.

The march is called Hoye's "Tribute" in honor of Stan and Eileen Hoye, who underwrote the composition costs.

The work was commissioned by the festival and is intended to be played in children's parades.

The march was composed by Frank Stermer, composer-in-residence in the School of Music. Stermer, whose music has been performed around the world, has been preparing with the group since August.

Woodstock, Ill. (UPI) - Authorities believe Richard J. Thompson, the Northern Illinois University student suspected of killing his ex-girlfriend's parents, is hiding out in the apparent urging of his mother to protect him.

Witnesses who told police both parents were beaten to death at their home.

The parents, Raymond Ritter, 43, and Corry, of the Wisconsin community, where he'd be known is by a mission football team. He was hiding out in a small Wisconsin, people have expected, but didn't show up.

"We had a lack of budget to work with," he said, giving reason for the $3 admission fee.

He said the Adrian Belew and the Bears concert probably had the biggest attendance.

"Everything was pretty much well-attended," he said. "We just didn't get enough people in the door."

'Rapeman' has no weak links

Band's vocalist former front man for 'Big Black'
By Ron Synovitz
Staten Island Advance

When a band names itself "Rapeman," one might expect it to be a bit offensive. If the histories of the members of this trio are any indication, Carbondale, Ill., would expect the worst.

The group will play Thursday at II Hearts Inc., 213 E. Main, following Carbondale's Reunion Festival at 10:30 p.m.

Rapeman consists of the front man from Chicago-based Big Black and the rhythm section of Scratch Acid, from Austin, Texas. The trio's name was inspired by an ultra-violent Japanese comic book.

Guitarist-vocalist Steve Albini is the most notorious of the lot. He has attained legendaro status in punk circles throughout the United States, Germany and England due to his antics with Big Black.

"I can dig the Ramones and the Birthday Party and the Stooges and SPK and Minor Threat and Whipsaw and Link Wray and Chrome and Pere Ubu and Rudimentary Peni and the Pops and Throbbing Gristle and Screewdriver and the EKS and Minimal Man and US Chess and Gang Green and Tommi Stumgoff and the Swans and Bad Brains all at the same time," Albini said.

"Like violent noise that makes my head spin. I wanna feel it whipping through me like a jolt. We're so dilapidated and crushed by our pathetic existence we need it like a fix.

"It's as simple as that. I want to push myself, the music, the audience and everything involved as close to the precipice as possible. Although I'm kind of worried about what we'll find there," Albini said.

Rapeman's sound is more similar to 'Big Black' than Scratch Acid, but it is much better. In two words, more dynamic.

Albini contributes much greater musical flexibility than the rhythm box ever could. None of the driving power of the album was sacrificed, though, and percussive subtleties abound.

The exchange between instruments is greatly amplified. An emphasis on full stops and starts leaves listeners on edge, more attractive and much tighter than Albini's previous act.

Sims' bass lines show more affection for diminished thirds and sixths than rock-cliche dominant and staidtament progressions.

As for guitar, Albini seems to be evolving from simple, powerful barre chords to dissonant, diminished fingerings.

The group is supporting a modest single, rock-song EP titled "Budd" on the Touch and Go label.

Albini's presence on the record is forceful, just as it is on stage, but the breadth of Sims and Washam is such that Albini shouldn't be an omnipresent focal point. That is the best aspect of Rapeman - there is no weak link.

Music school to present opera benefit

SIU-C's School of Music will present its Second Annual May Festival/Opera Theatre Benefit Gala at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

Students and faculty of the School of Music will perform ensembles, arias and choruses from favorite operas, including selections from "II Trovatore," "Candide," and "Rigoletto.

Richard Best, Metropolitan Opera Company singer from the school, will be the host for the event.

The Hubert and Phyllis Norris Met Opera School Scholarship will also be presented. Nor- ris, a former SIU-C student, Carbondale, was a tenor who sang with the New York City Opera.

The recipient of the scholarship is Warren Carr of Herrin. Tickets are $3 for students and $7 for the public.

Hurricane Gilbert storms toward Gulf of Mexico

United Press International

Hurricane Gilbert grew into one of the most awesome storms of the century with winds of 160 mph Tuesday after battering the tiny Cayman Islands, knocking out power and blowing the roofs off homes. The storm was headed toward the Gulf of Mexico, with Texas a likely target by week's end. Forecasts at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said Gilbert strengthened considerably after leaving the Caymans at midday Tuesday.

The storm was upgraded to a Category 5 hurricane by 3 p.m. EDT — meaning it was capable of causing catastrophic damage. Further strengthening was possible, the forecasters said.

At 3 p.m. EDT, Gilbert's center was located near latitude 19.3 north and longitude 82.8 west, or about 280 miles east-southeast of the resort island of Cozumel, Mexico. It was moving to the west-northwest at 15 mph.

Gilbert's ranking as a landfall Category 5 hurricane — an unnamed 1935 storm and Hurricane Camille in 1969 — have struck land in this century. Both caused massive damage and loss of life, with the 1935 hurricane striking the Florida Keys and killing 408 people and Camille hitting Louisiana and Mississippi, killing 256.

"If it were actually to hit land with this magnitude, the degree of destruction is incomprehensible, just as it was with Camille," Hurricane Center Director Bob Sheets said. "We are hopeful this will not take place."

The massive storm system — Gilbert was 500 miles across — forced the evacuation of thousands of people from western Cuba and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, the only remaining land obstacles on Gilbert's relentless march to the Gulf of Mexico.

Gilbert left a path of destruction across the Caribbean since Sunday, killing at least nine people in the Dominican Republic and Jamaica.

An amateur radio operator, broadcasting from the police station on Little Cayman and monitored in Tampa, Fla., reported at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday that "all citizens are accounted for on the island."

"It's too early for detailed damage reports," he said. But he said both Craig and Cayman Brac reported no casualties from Gilbert.

West said she and Athletics Director Jim Hart, who was not present because he was attending a Missouri Valley Conference meeting, are evaluating SIU-C’s recruitment program and the outstanding reputation we have developed over the years in both academic and sports.

But West said the biggest reasons for athletes choosing SIU-C over the competition was the scenic campus and the excellent facilities we have developed when testing here.

“We try to get the athletes all the help we can when they visit the campus, and after talking with the them and seeing the fine group of athletes we’ve recruited, it appears what we’re doing is working,” West said.

West also announced that the women’s softball team will be the Most Valuable Women of the Gateway Conference — of which SIU-C is a charter member — will receive an automatic berth in the NCAA Women’s Softball Tournament.

Set her apart from most of the U.S. team and Europeans admire that diving scholarship, first at the television stations and less "Americans gracefulness that Wendy admires guts. Lucero earned a college diving scholarship, first at the University of Nebraska, again in so many places and just find out where our depth was. "I hope we have a better sense of what it takes to win. All the aspects of the game will be expected of them. We'll incorporate more complexity, more sophistication in picket fencing."

In another comparison with last year, Brechtsbauser was forced to choose her ever-changing lineup by evaluating a small number of practice sessions. This time she already has her starters.

Heading the infield is junior shortstop who left the lineup by injury. The returning pitchers are Traci Furlow, 9-1 in the spring with a 1.10 earned run average, and Lisa Robinson, out for the fall with an arm injury. Rounding out the staff are sophomore Michele Davidovich and junior Jan Agnich are Nos. 1 and 2 at catcher.

Four players are in contention for the three outfield spots. They are freshmen Kim Johannsen also from Belleville, and sophomores Kim Tummins, Shannon Taylor and Kerry Major.

SOPHOMOREs in third basemen in third basemen Mary Jo Finn and first baseman Angie LeMonnier. The returning pitcher is Cheryl Brown of Herrin and freshman Dede Darrell of Carbondale.

She's extremely hardworking and pushes towards goals, but her goals go beyond her family and friendships and academics. That's the way she's always been, I can't imagine she would change."

Diving champ keeps Olympic bid in perspective

By Mary Pat Flaherty
Sports editor

A day after making the U.S. diving team, Wendy Lucero reflected on what it means to be an Olympian with a detachment that might be more expected from an athlete who's already heard the closing strains of the national anthem and watched the torch doused. "I've never felt this," she said. "I've never understood the weight of an Olympic medal." It's a weight that Lucero now carries as she prepares for the one-meter event at the 1984 U.S. Olympic trials.

Lucero says quadrennial event isn't 'the be all and end all'

"Diving has never been my whole life. I don't want it to be. I figure I will enjoy the attention while I can because it's not always going to be there."

—Wendy Lucero

Lucero won her Olympic spot by a scant eight-tenths of a point and was considered such outside contender even by experts that her name doesn't appear in the media guide prepared by the U.S. Olympic Committee. The guide went to press before the diving trials had been held, forcing U.S. Diving to send advance biographies to the USOC on the men and women it thought most likely would make the Olympic teams.

Lucero wasn't on the list. Mary Flachsbach, the woman who suffered the heartbreaking loss to her, was. It's Lucero's form that may distinguish her in Seoul, says U.S. Olympic diving coach Ron O'Brien. Her high lifts off the board and her elegant lines once was NCAA champ on the one-meter and last year took the gold medal in 3-meter at the U.S. Olympic Festival. But today, at Eastern Illinois, and Coach Callahan Replacement is content in at least knowing the extent of her team's potential. The Salukis set a school record in victories in the spring and return nearly the entire starting lineup from that squad.

One year ago at this time, the team didn't have a Diving coach. Brenchtelbauer had no idea what kind of untested freshmen and a sprinkling of sophomores and upperclassmen would eventually break 13 school batting records and finish with a 32-20 mark. "We've come further along at this point than last year," Brenchtelbauer said. "Last year we were so new. We were trying to see how it works."
