Inmates get AIDS tips, no condoms

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Although Illinois prison inmates have asked for condoms to protect themselves from AIDS, corrections officials say they won’t issue condoms because they don’t want to condone sex between prisoners.

Prisoners are given tips about AIDS prevention. “We tell them ‘Don’t have sex and don’t shoot drugs,’” Robin Heisner, health care administrator at Illinois Correctional Center, said Wednesday.

There have been nine cases of AIDS reported in Illinois prisons, Heisner said. Seven of the AIDS victims have died and two have been paroled, she said. She also reported that 90 prisoners have been identified as having a high risk of developing AIDS.

Heisner said that although no corrections officers have contracted AIDS as a result of their jobs, many officers “are more scared of AIDS than the prisoners.”

Inmates who test positive for the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome antibody are housed with the general prison population, Heisner said.

Prisoners who develop AIDS symptoms are treated “as they would be with the general population, unless prison officials believe an AIDS patient would be a security risk, Heisner said.

“The other prisoners might see AIDS, Page 7

Alliance Party leads polls

With about two-fifths of the ballots counted, the Alliance Party was leading with 234, followed by the Stand Party with 270 and the Phoenix Party with 210.

Students seemed to favor a referendum to help support the Illinois Student Association with a $1 refundable fee by a margin of 524 to 282.

Presidential candidate for the Alliance Party is Bill Hall, and the vice presidential candidate is Larvester Gatner.

Protest planned tonight

Gus says those lambkin card-holders are starting to look like a bad idea.

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Lambkin business-card holders given to Southern Illinois University students by Chancellor Lawrence E. Pettit were paid for out of a University account rather than by the SIU Foundation, as Pettit previously stated.

General Accounting records show that the chancellor’s office paid $735.77 for 100 holders in October.

“It’s a legitimate expense out of either account,” Pettit said Wednesday.

He also said a reporter for the Belleville News-Democrat misquoted him in a story March 28 as saying the money came from the Foundation.

Soon after that story appeared, Pettit told other reporters that the money came from the Foundation.

A second order of the card holders, shipped March 12, was going to be paid for out of the same University account. But after newspaper stories appeared stating the cards were paid for by the Foundation, the chancellor’s office decided to have the Foundation pay for the remaining cards.

“With the regulations and the law to spend either account on this,” Pettit said.

He said he told the News-Democrat that the holders were paid for out of “non-appropriated funds” — money that is not intended for a specific purpose.

Pettit said the reporter assumed that meant the money came from the Foundation. The reporter could not be reached Wednesday for comment.

Pettit said his staff decided it would be better to have the Foundation pay for the second batch of card holders.

SPRINGFIELD — Although SIU-C student government members spent weeks encouraging students to participate in Day of Action II, only about 15 students took up the offer.

Heidi Leisner, Undergraduate Student Government relations commissioner, said she was disappointed that only about 40 people had signed up to go to Springfield and less than half showed up.

Israelis kill 3 guerrillas in Lebanese border clash

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli troops patrolling the Lebanese frontier Wednesday killed three Arab guerrillas setting out on a predawn strike against Israeli targets in the second clash of its kind in eight days, the army said. No Israeli soldiers were wounded in the incident, an army spokesman said. The military has warned of an upsurge in attempted cross-border generations in a move by guerrilla groups in a possible show of support for the Palestinian uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

U.S., Russia agree to Afghanistan withdrawal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz headed for Geneva Wednesday to commit the United States as a guarantor of accords providing for the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, but Modem rebels may not lay down their weapons. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will pledge their countries as guarantors of the U.N. mediated settlement, in which the Soviets promise to begin withdrawing their 115,000 occupation troops from Afghanistan by May 15.

Marines in Panama fire at possible intruders

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — U.S. Marines fired mortars and automatic rifles in a mysterious two-hour firefight against possible intruders at the same Navy fuel depot where a Marine recently was killed a night earlier, officials said Wednesday. But Col. Ron Scoones, director of public affairs at the U.S. Southern Command, acknowledged he could not rule out the possibility there may not have been any intruders after all in the Tuesday night incident.

Former S. Korean president quits public jobs

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Former President Chun Doo Hwan resigned from influential public offices Wednesday apologizing to the nation for a multimillion-dollar scandal allegedly masterminded by his younger brother, Chun Kyung-hwan, 46, who is under arrest, charged with embezzlement, bribe taking and other wrongdoing.

FAA wants Eastern fined for safety violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government proposed an $813,000 fine against Eastern Airlines Wednesday for alleged safety violations, launched a thorough inspection of the financially struggling carrier's fleet and ordered an investigation of its pilots. Eastern denied the allegations and called its operations "perfectly safe." Federal Aviation Administration chief T. Allan McArtor said during the 30-day investigation, FAA inspectors will literally "touch" every one of Eastern's 267 planes through a special 10 percent ramp inspection program.

Mecham slams cancellation of recall election

PHOENIX (UPI) — Ex-Gov. Evan Mecham derided a plan to cancel the May 17 recall election because of his impeachment conviction as the "last act of the Arizona coup." The court's 4 to 1 ruling late Tuesday essentially turned over to the executive branch any chance Mecham had of recapturing the governorship. He said he would announce his future plans in an appearance on a Phoenix television newscast Wednesday night.

Massachusetts guarantees health care to all

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Legislature approved early Wednesday a first-in-the-nation program guaranteeing universal access to health insurance to all residents of the state. The plan, targeting an estimated 600,000 people — most of them the working poor — will be phased in over four years and is viewed as a welcome prize for Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who has been dogged by the president campaign by questions about his compassion and his effectiveness as a manager.

UK stays neutral on trustees' racial remark

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The University of Kentucky administration is taking a neutral position on a call for a walkout of trustees by students who complained during a trustee meeting Tuesday that the university had failed to do enough to stamp out "nigger" slurs at the university. The students had demanded the resignation of Chandler as a university trustee. Chandler used the word "nigger" during a trustee committee meeting last week.

Chancellor urges denying grievance of teacher’s aide

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said Wednesday that he will recommend that the Board of Trustees dismiss an SIU-Edwardsville teacher’s aide Fannie Jones’ application to appeal a grievance.

Jones worked as a project specialist and teacher’s aide for the child development program at SIU-E’s East St. Louis Center. She was suspended from her classroom with pay on June 12, 1987, after the University received two complaints about her handling of disciplinary problems.

When Jones’ contract expired on June 30, it was not renewed.

After a grievance committee and SIU-E President Earl Lazerson refused to reinstate Jones, she appealed to the Board of Trustees on Feb. 16. January, Jones claims that the charges of her misconduct with students were unsubstantiated and that she had been denied due process of law.

There were no violations of internal policy, Pettit said. Jones was employed as a professional staff member under a series of five one-year term contracts. If an appointment is not to be renewed, no notice is required.

The application for appeal will be considered by the board in its meeting today at North Carolina State University in Springfield.

He has won the Gandhi Leadership Award for Outstanding Contributions to the Animal Rights Movement, the Joseph Wood Krutch Medal from the American Humane Society, and the Humanitarian Award from the American Humane Society for his views on human treatment of animals.

Regan produced “We Are All Noah,” a video for public television that won a silver medal at the International Film and Television Festival of New York in 1986. The film relates Christianity and Judaism to questions about human rights.

Pettit obscured the truth on gifts

CHANCELLOR LAWRENCE K. Pettit must stop misrepresenting his actions in lobbyist for a state tax hike for higher education. Pettit either twisted or obscured the truth on a number of accounts relating to New Zealand lambkin business card holders he gave to state legislators.

For one thing, most important, Pettit told a Daily Egyptian reporter the card holders were paid for by the SIU Foundation, which is funded by private donations. In fact, the card holders were paid for with an SIU account, state money.

It was only after the DE reporter discovered that the holder account was not in state money that Pettit changed his story. He claimed he didn't know where the funds came from and that the Belleville News-Democrat misspelled Pettit's name when claiming the money came from the SIU Foundation.

THERE ALSO WERE other, more minor, errors in Pettit's statements about the card holders. He said he gave out 20 holders at $15 each to state legislators. This seems innocent enough. Spending about $100 for small gifts to legislators, while a silly wasteful, doesn't seem to be anything to get excited about. But Pettit actually gave out 100 holders at a total cost of $75. Pettit's office even ordered another 100 holders, which also were to be paid for with state money.

After the original gifts were reported in the DE and the Belleville News-Democrat, Pettit's office canceled the second order. Apparently, the Chancellor's office realized it was about to be found out and tried to avoid further damage.

REGARDLESS, THE SECOND order would have pushed Pettit's total expenditures to about $1,470 — and all for fools. The chancellor also could have had no effect on whether legislators support a tax increase.

State Rep. Ron Stephens, R-Trey, said the card holders showed that Illinois does not need an additional tax increase, but simply needs to spend the money it has more sensibly. If spending $1,470 of state money on lambkin business card holders helps him sell state bonds, he should be quoted with state money, the money allotted to him, Stephens may be right.

It is truly a shame that something as silly as card holders hurt the chances of a tax increase for higher education. Illinois must put more money into higher education — that's a tax increase spending. Hopefully the DE can accomplish this, but blunders like Pettit's do nothing but hurt the cause.

Finally a producer of chlorine chemicals that destroy the ozone has taken the lead to be socially responsible. By its plans to stop making these chemicals — known as chlorofluorocarbons — the Du Pont Co. has taken a bold step that the nations of the world should be paying attention to from.

The threat to the ozone, a layer of gas that helps block out the sun's harmful rays, has reached a critical stage as more and more of these chemicals drift up to the stratosphere ... Clearly, radical steps are needed to cut the production of these chemicals.

In a recent treaty, several countries — including the United States — agreed to trim production by 50 percent by the end of the century. That's a good start, but it is not enough. We must also work to phase out these chemicals and replace them with safer substances.

Panama's trouble comes from U.S. meddling

I can't figure out why the Reagan administration is so set on getting Noriega out of Panama. After all, he's no Marxist or communist. He hasn't interfered with ships going through the canal. He hasn't threatened American citizens living there. He hasn't taken American businesses or banks. In fact, these U.S. businesses have helped him cope with the economic crisis imposed by our government by supplying him with cash.

Oh, he made a mini dealiing in drugs? So what? Our CIA, according to testimony, put him in the business. Our Army trained his troops. A military dictator? We've installed and backed many of them in Latin America (and elsewhere). He's against human rights? That's never worried Elliot Abrams before. He doesn't want to help the Contras anymore? Well, do we really want to help them?

We've got 10,000 soldiers in Panama to protect the Canal and our business interests. Why another 1,300 and 800 paratroopers?

It's a wrong policy. Just as bad as the fiasco we've been promoting in Nicaragua these past seven years. It's dangerous for our relations in the region. Panama is like a golden Goose. If this country stays put in Panama it'll show the U.S. to be a "paper tiger" in the eyes of the other Latin American countries.

And it violates a very basic principle in international affairs: interference in internal problems of other countries never pay off in the long run. Noriega should be ousted by the people of Panama. And if we quit sending guns and money to support dictators like Noriega, they will. — Arnold J. Auerbach, Carbondale

"80's offer an absurd pop culture: sad hollowness and identity crises

As a historian, I try not to live my life in the past. But after realizing adulthood in the last eight years, it certainly is a temptation.

How hard it is to live in an age where a brand of soda is labeled a classic. This is an age the Beatles, the Beach Boys, the day is sequels; a population where television, fast food and wine coolers.

Many individuals have lived the '80s as the age of a New Conservatism. Under an administration which embraces the status quo, we have witnessed a return to traditional values, like religion, for example. Sold to us like like public service, TV evangelists have managed to turn us from the spiritually confused through gameshow-bait charlatans.

But evangelists are easy to criticize. The Reagan administration has also done a fine job in fostering a McAr-thurque red scare, exemplified by the popularity of films like Rambo, Red Dawn, Rocky IV, and Chuck Norris movies.

As technical advances, well, we haven't found a cure for cancer yet, and the space program seems to be on hold — but I'm sure glad I can watch Rambo II in color.

The music of the '80s can certainly be a reflection of the times: hollow, superficial and nothing is demanded from its audience. What is popular in music these days? You have the reemergence of disco or its alternative heavy metal, a hathorne pseudo-rock and roll, initially directed towards sexually devolved adolescent boys but which has now spread like the plague into every corner of American life.

The literature of the day consists of diet and self-assurance books. As far as periodicals go, will Sean Penn break up with Madonna? I can't wait to find out.

In our youth's sad quest for individualism, we become More jaded short, fade then ten years, while looking through the windows of our lives, cause great embarrassment.

Or in vogue, the reemergence of tie-dyes. Initially a statement of adaption for the middle class and subculture that lives vicariously in the past decades have become a symbol of a collegiate identity crisis and a need to affiliate with an alternative culture. I have great curiosity for the fashions and the fads of the 80's that will inevitably be a product of youth.

What can we expect from a generation of children raised on smurfs, the care bears, and the kinkys? I myself was raised on the Bionic woman, Clutch Cargo. — Michael Edwards, senior, history

Political pundits reveal ‘wisdom’ in their consistent bad predictions

Throughout this unendingly capricious political season there has been one constant for the punditocracy that one has seen only one fixed reference point on which you could set your compass. North and south, east and west, in caucuses, primaries, and primaries ladies and gentlemen of the political press corps have been wrong, wrong, and wrong.

Put together Bob Woodward and they send a victory for Robert Dole in New Hampshire, just hours before he was crushed by George Bush.

They hailed Dick Gephardt as a force to be reckoned with after he was in 19th place; he promptly disappeared from view like a professional. Not a glimmer of light, just hours before he was crushed by George Bush. They sensed a victory for Jesse Jackson in Wisconsin and beat him soundly. How? All the news stories I was reading were telling me how great and how enthusiastic his crowds were and how he was surging in the polls. In this campaign, when the political analysts begin to gather around a candidate -- like professional mourners at a sickbed -- you start telling him how well he looks, it's all over.

The task of predicting what's going to happen should get easier from now on. You have to think that the Jackson candidacy has peaked. New York is next and it's hard to imagine him winning there, given the implacable hostility of the Jewish community, not to mention that of New York City Mayor Edward ("You'd have to be crazy to vote for Jackson") Koch. The fact that Dukakis can address Hispanics in their own language doesn't hurt either.

Then we go to Kansas, Louisiana, another tough one for Jackson. It is possible that Dukakis has started to move upward in the polls. On the other hand, it's possible that he hasn't. In any case, Jackson's candidacy has begun to undergo a scrutiny far more intense than any it has known before. When he was viewed largely as a symbolic candidate, it was perhaps appropriate to focus mainly on the symbolic aspects of his campaign. After Michigan, however, he became a real candidate and he is now getting real attention. Reporters who were once interested in his vision of the future are now looking into his past. Dukakis will be searched for skeletons, the statements of his youth will be taken out of the vault and examined with a jeweler's eye, his every hypocrisy will be blown up and projected on a wall-size screen.

No longer will be able to float over the Louis on wings of rhyme. He will have to come up with a workable blueprint for his vast programs. In short, he will be treated like every other candidate. It will be an interesting time for Mr. Jackson. If he handles himself well, he could yet have a brilliant political future. If he recoils behind charges of racism, he could destroy himself and the Democratic Party as well.

You know, it could be that Mike Dukakis is the right candidate for the time, not merely for the Democrats but for the nation. Most people are doing OK right now -- not well, but OK. Employment is up, there's no war. But they're afraid it's not going to last, so they want someone who tells them how to stop it before it can make them much bad, of course, someone who doesn't scare them.

That's Dukakis. The conventional wisdom is that Dukakis' greatest liability is his lack of charisma, his inability to inflame the masses. Instead, that just makes him his greatest asset.

Given the track record of conventional wisdom so far this year, it would figure.

Tax church properties, not tobacco

Your April 5 editorial that backhandedly endorsed enacting a state tax on church properties is deserving of some comments.

Since only about 30 percent of adult Americans smoke, whereas a large majority of Americans use alcohol, it's easy to see why the expediency of a state tax on church properties is so compelling. Their tax would appeal to many. It is little wonder that bigoted, booze-sipping, gun-carrying gun-toting tax evaders would try to take away the rights of a non-violent group, which practice their own tax resistance while they enjoy the most abused substance in America.

Zig Zigler, in his book, "See You at the Top," says, "Lack of leadership is the danger of smoking with imbued alcohol as being similar to poor health. Some smokers are shooter with that of a 30 caliber machine gun, whereas much related accidents is the number of deaths among teenagers, not use of tobacco. Alcohol related accidents can cause over twenty thousand highway deaths per year, while we know how many traffic deaths can be attributed to smoking. Recent studies have shown that even moderate drinking (two ounces of alcohol per day) doubles the chances of heart attacks and strokes.

I have smoked about two packs of cigarettes per day for over fifty years, except for six months when I was on a Christian jag. Also, I was a heavy drinker from 1970 to April 10. In the last six months of my drinking, I had four strokes in three months, and I could not talk without coughing. I still smoke two packs of menthol cigarettes a day, but I have had no heart trouble since I quit drinking. Also, my cough is gone. I am hesitant to quit smoking as I am afraid the Chicago Bears will try to recruit me, and I don't want to give up my Social Security. I am opposed to taxation for the purpose of achieving a victory for anyone's prejudice. I would never advocate outlawing booze, since the Second Law of Life of my religion says "I will seek to hold power over no one, nor will I permit another to hold power over me." In states where prohibitive taxation and regulations has been imposed on alcohol, bootlegging has become commonplace. Would a state boogey tax avoid prohibitive taxes? Damn right, I would.

If anyone is interested in increasing tax revenues to balance the budget, I would suggest that they consider taxing churches, including their properties, such as property. If you own some of the Catholic orders. I can see no reason why we should be forced to pay taxes which preserve churches with police and fire protection, as well as all the other free cargoes. Not taxing religions does not provide churches with police protection, as well as all the other free cargoes. Not taxing religions does not impose on churches, including their properties, such as property. If you own some of the Catholic orders. I can see no reason why we should be forced to pay taxes which preserve churches with police and fire protection, as well as all the other free cargoes. I, a pagan, should be forced to pay taxes which preserve churches with police and fire protection, as well as all the other free cargoes. Not taxing religions does not provide churches with police protection, as well as all the other free cargoes.

and strategies to increase minority student retention, but the plans have been invited, Luke Tripp, the coordinator of BAS, said.

However, Seymour Bryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, said he invited members of the Black American Studies Association Friday to speak at the conference. Bryson said he assumes the students have declined to speak at the conference because they have not accepted his offer and are planning a protest.

"I think the march is to embarrass the president (John Creytenbrouk, but he will not be there," Bryson said. "Luke said, "The administration is trying to pretend that they are supporting minorities, but in practice they are undermining and eroding programs supporting minorities." "They are preaching about programs that retain black students, but they are dismantling programs that retain black students," he said.

Two BAS courses were cut from the general education curriculum in 1986, along with 61 other courses. In addition, two all-time BAS faculty positions have not been filled. Bryson said strengthening the BAS program is the only way to retain minority students. A flyer advertising the demonstration, read: "If the SIU administrators were serious about increasing minority retention, they would declare at this conference that they will implement the proposal announced by the Black American Studies Association."

The association was created a few weeks ago to pressure University officials to deal with issues concerning the BAS. It is demanding that two BAS courses be returned to the general education curriculum and that three tenure-track positions be added to the program.

Bryson said he hasn't received a list of the proposals and doesn't know what the protesters plan to accomplish. Tripp said, "We are going to force them (the administration) to respond. This battle regarding the BAS has got to end. We're going to go out and struggle against them.'

feel they are at risk and could try to kill (the AIDS patient) to get rid of the problem," she said.

In such situations, the AIDS patient would be moved to an outside hospital, Heisner said. Of the 34 who spoke at a workshop on AIDS and the criminal justice system at the Student Center, officials from Southern Illinois prisons and social work students attended the workshop, which was part of the annual College of Human Resources conference.

AIDS education for prisoners is provided through a peer training program in which inmates educate other inmates. "They (the inmates) are very likely to trust their fellow inmate rather than prison officials," Richard Lively, director of a mobile training program for the Southern Illinois Criminal Justice System, said.

Illinois prisons have implemented a high risk surveillance program that monitors inmates whose preprison lifestyles place them at high risk for AIDS, Heisner said.

Inmates who have used intravenous drugs, had heterosexual or contracted sexually transmitted diseases are placed in the high risk category.

The high risk inmates are tested for the AIDS antibody when they are admitted to the prison. The inmates then are tested every 12 months to make sure they haven't contracted the disease while in prison.

Corrections and law enforcement officials in Illinois soon will have the opportunity to attend workshops on the handling of prisoners with AIDS.
turnouts, such as John A. Logan, a community college 6 miles east of Carbondale. About 25 Logan students rallied with students from SIUC.

The students of the student body of MacMurray Community College in Jacksonville attended the rally. About 350 students attended after being notified of the rally yesterday, Kelly Cook, campus organizer said.

About 25 college and university students and faculty were joined by politicians and union representatives as they rallied for a hike in higher education on the steps of the Capitol.

Students from about 15 colleges and universities carried signs and banners reading "Mom's not rich," "Bucks for brains."

"Education cuts never heal." One in banner painted like a brick wall read Your legislator says we don't need no education."

One group of chancers shouted "What's up?" The crowd answered, "Tuition."

Legislators say they want to see grassroots support for a tax increase, Brian Hopkins, Illinois Student Association executive cabinet member, said. "Today on the steps of the Capitol we're going to have enough grassroots to start a gold rush," he said.

David Starrett, president of the Illinois Student Association, said "If the Illinois General Assembly needs to see 1,000 people on their doorstep telling them there's a problem, that's what we'll provide."

"We're going to make an investment in the future because we know that investment will pay off," Starrett said.

Maryann Schwartz, legislative director of the Illinois University Professionals, a faculty union, said the quality of public education is crumbling.

"There is a major crisis in this state and we are here today and we will be here until our legislators realize that we need real education in Illinois," Schwartz said.

Schwartz also encouraged students to get the legislators know we're back."

John Anderson, independent presidential candidate in the Illinois, said he was shocked to learn that "we are not going forward, we are retreating," in the quality of education in Illinois.

"I'm ashamed," Anderson said. In the coming year, the state will be supporting higher education at the lowest level in two decades, he said.

Hokkins said, "Illinois exports are up, and this would be good if we were talking about products, but we're talking about teachers. They're taking our best away."

"Illinois towns are competing to be the site of a new prison." he said. "I look forward to the day when every town is competing to be the site for a new university. We need dormitories not reformatory."

"We don't know what can happen unless we try," Cook said, referring to supporting the tax increase.

Illinois Student Association members stressed that it is important to get other students involved. They also encouraged students to pull legislators off the floor and lobby for a tax increase.

Several students also planned to testify at an afternoon committee hearing on a bill that would prevent tuition increases above the higher education price index.

Officials board hijacked plane

Hijackers want release of Shiites jailed in Kuwait

AGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Hijackers holding 32 hostages on a Kuwait Airways jetliner in Algiers Wednesday allowed two Algerian officials to board the aircraft Wednesday and promised to avoid more violence, but there was no conclusive sign the nine-day ordeal was nearing an end.

Algerian Interior Minister El Hady Kediri spoke to the masked gunmen for 30 minutes aboard the blue and white Boeing 747 about five hours after the plane landed at Houari Boumedienne International Airport early Wednesday amid optimism the crisis soon would be over.

The plane had spent five days on a runway in Cyprus where the hijackers killed two hostages and then traded 12 passengers for fuel.

Khediri then met with two Algerian officials who Wednesday flew to Algiers to be very calm and entered the plane and stayed for about 30 minutes. The Algerian and Kuwaiti officials, meeting behind closed doors at a building adjacent to the main airport terminal, then left about 6:30 p.m. without giving any signs the hijacking ordeal might be near an end.

The plane landed in Algiers at 3:36 a.m. Wednesday (8:36 p.m. EDT Tuesday) and it was not clear what was stalling the negotiations.

Big Bird and Muppets to bring a touch of Hollywood to Arena

Flies of tickets are still available for the five per-pitch in to make the film. To be here with familiar performances of Sesame Street’s “Big Bird Goes to Hollywood” this weekend at the SIU Arena.

A show within a show, the live stage spectacular finds Big Bird and his Muppet friends and some monster friends playing to make the film. At the same time, Izie, Great and Wurzy, slightly shabby Muppets, set out to sandbag the movie scheme to regain ownership of the studio they lost to Smiley.

The Muppets ring and dance their way through a variety of film scenes and production numbers, including a reluctant Grover as Tarzan in “Grower of the Jungle,” a Frankenstein recreation by The Count and his assistant Cookie Monster, Prairie Dawn as a latter Carmen Miranda.

The musical score includes a group of familiar Sesame Street tunes, including “We Are All Monsters.” “So Nice To Be Here With You,” “Wonderful Me” and “My Furry Little Shadow.”

Bono latest star-mayor

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Capitalizing on his celebrity status, Cher’s former singing partner Sonny Bono was elected mayor of this desert resort in a landslide 2 to 1 margin over his closest rival.

“I’m happy that Sonny has achieved something that he has worked so hard for,” Cher said from Los Angeles Wednesday.

“The entire city of Palm Springs is behind him,” Bono’s spokesperson, Marilyn Baker, declared a day after Tuesday’s election. “Sonny’s given us an air of hope and excitement that we haven’t had in decades.”

With all the ballots counted, California’s latest star-mayor — Clint Eastwood’s tenure as mayor of Carmel ended Tuesday — came out on top with 4,842 votes, far outdistancing opponent Maryanove, an accountant who received 2,498 votes.

The incumbent mayor, Frank Bogert, who retired, predicted Bono would be targeted in a recall campaign.
UMass. protests liquor ban

AMHERST, Mass. (UP) — More than 1,000 University of Massachusetts students Wednesday protested a new ban on alcoholic beverages at campus concerts and sporting events.

The outdoor "booze party" rally began on the steps of the Student Union Building where the students hoisted an empty beer keg onto a ledge. They then ran in front of the Whitney Administration Building and pounded on its locked doors.

Police arrived and some students spit and shoved officers, but no arrests were reported.

During the rally, some of the students chanted, "All we are saying is give booz a chance," while others drank beer, waved a Budweiser flag and sang "God Bless America." — all in public defiance of the alcohol ban announced last week by UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffy.

"We're sick of being treated like babies. It's time to stand up for something," said senior Phil Sayles, who held a can of Coors Beer. "When they take this away from us, that's just taxing it too far."

The rally was co-sponsored by the UMass Republican Club and a bipartisan UMass organization called Students Advocating Rights Together.

"Let's have a party — we the students are invited," said Michael B. Rosa, president of the UMass Republican Club. "I never thought a law stating Republican like myself would call for a march on the administration building. They want to ban this and ban that. Why don't we just ban Joe (Duffy)?"

The group called for an outdoor "booze party" Thursday night at the Pyramids — two cement structures located in UMass's Southwest Residential Area that have become popular gathering places for students.

In the past, drinking had been allowed at tailgate parties at UMass football and lacrosse games as well as at the school's well known spring concerts where popular bands like The Grateful Dead and B.B. King have performed.

Under the new ban, alcohol will no longer be allowed at those events.

Statue of Rice gets a new view

HOUSTON (UPI) — For almost 58 years, the 2,000-pound bronze statue of Rice University founder William Marsh Rice rested solidly atop its pedestal in the students chanted, students spit and shoved quickly focused on Quadrangle. facing Lovett Hall, the administration building.

But sometime before sunrise Tuesday, as many as 20 pranksters used ropes, a pulley and a wooden A-frame to lift the 1-ton statue from its base, turn it half a circle and return it to the granite pedestal.

No one has claimed responsibility for the predawn Tuesday deed, but suspects quickly focused on engineering students.

"It was well-conceived," Tom Moffett, business manager for the physical plant department, said Wednesday. "I don't think liberal arts (students) would have taken it on.

The statue of Rice rested solidly atop its pedestal in the university's Academic Quadrangle, facing Lovett Hall, the administration building.

Saluki starter David Henley (1-0) slowed the Bizzikins scoreless until Tim Braden led off the fifth with a bunt single. Henley, whose injuries limited him to just 8 1/3 innings prior to the game, appeared to tire in the sixth. He allowed three straight hits and a walk before Shane Gooden relieved him.

Gooden was greeted with a two-run double by Braden. Another run scored on a ground out.

The Bizzikins added one more run in the sixth against Gooden on consecutive doubles. Although the Salukis were out-hit 11-10, they scored at least one run in the first six innings. St. Louis starter Brad Lindeman (6-1) was the losing pitcher.

The Saluki offense was aided by 10 stolen bases in 10 attempts. Chuck Vencehauer, Rick Damico, Rick Gaebe and Joe Hall each had two steals. Hall, Gaebe and Dave Wrona had two RBIs apiece.

After suffering through a period of inconsistency, the Salukis have now won three straight and live five of their last six. However, Hall said the team has still not played as well as they can.

“We've been playing well lately but I wouldn't say we're setting the world on fire,” Hall said. “This team's always had the potential but we just haven't been able to get it together.”

The Salukis next opponent is Missouri Valley rival Bradley. The Salukis are home for a four-game series against the Braves this weekend.

Golf team's Kozlowski gets honor

Tina Kozlowski has been named Golfer of the Week by the Gateway Conference.

The senior co-captain shot a team-low 156, including a 75 on the first round, to lead the Salukis to a fourth-place finish at the Mizou Invitational last weekend. She finished fifth individually at the tournament.

Kozlowski has a 80.5 stroke average.

Illinois State Scholar as a senior. "DeDe is just coming into her own as a pitcher," Brechtlebauer said. "Her ball velocity has improved each year. Perhaps DeDe's greatest asset as a pitcher is her ability to set up hitters — she pitches a very smart game."

Brown, the daughter of Tom and Darlene Brown of Herrin, played for Millikin University one year before going to John A. Logan. "Jennifer is a proven pitcher," Brechtlebauer said. "She is all business when she is on the mound and is not afraid to challenge the hitters. She's a tough competitor who knows how to win."

Unbeaten in four decisions, Brown has a 0.94 ERA. She has thrown a no-hitter and a one-hitter this season. In five innings Monday against Kaskaskia, Brown fanned 10 in five innings. "She really buckles down when she's on the mound," John A. Logan coach Gary Barton said. "Jennifer has worked awfully hard and gives everything she's got. She's a real competitor."

Glielmi takes realistic view, hope to NCAA competition

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Senior gymnast Tom Glielmi is looking realistically at his final NCAA National competition, but he still has hope to be a champion. "I definitely want to reach All-America status," he said. "And I hope to make the top three. And in the back of my mind, I hope to win a championship."

Tom has come on near the end of the year stronger than I've seen some of the other gymnasts," assistant gymnastics coach Keith Rink said. "He should make All-American, no problem."

Glielmi, who qualified in the floor exercise and the vault, will compete in the NCAA's today through Saturday in Lincoln, Neb. He was the only Saluki to qualify.

He qualified in the floor exercise with an average score of 9.74 and in the vault with 9.55. Glielmi set the school record in the vault exercise with a 9.85 in 1987.

This is the third consecutive year Glielmi has qualified in the floor exercise and his second consecutive in the vault.

The top 24 gymnasts in the country qualify for each event and the top six in the final round earn all America status. Glielmi said he considers the floor exercise his strongest event after a crash in the vault destroyed his confidence. "I used to be a better vaulter than I was a floor man," he said. "When you're running down there full-speed and you run into the horse, it kind of affects you a little. It's always in the back of my mind."

Glielmi will graduate in May. He plans to pursue a coaching career immediately "following graduation. He also will either try to find a job in sales or return to school to get his master's degree. "Most private clubs work out from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., so that will still leave time for a nine to five job," he said.

The long awaited finish to the track's completion was last August, since Feb. 28, when Intracor sent workers back to Carbondale, only four good days were needed to finish up the project.

Rain and wind have been blamed since February for holding up the work.

So now, if the weather holds, "They'll be done by Friday," Hunt said.
Basketball team signs juco guard

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The men's basketball team found something to play on West Middleton's position.

Freddie McSwain, a 6-foot-4, 205-pound guard from Northern Oklahoma College, signed a national letter of intent with the Salukis on Wednesday, the first day of the spring signing period.

Last season, McSwain averaged 26.3 points and 7.2 rebounds per game. He was named to the all-state junior college team as well as the all-region team.

"He's a great player," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said. "The thing I really like about him is that he's an unsselfish player who will do the little things like give the ball up and guard people. Freddie's a very complete basketball player."

Assistant coach Bobby McCullum, whom McSwain said was the key to him signing with SIU, described him as an "impact player" and a great leader.

"He's very versatile and extremely unsselfish," McCullum said. "We'll allow us to do some things defensively that we didn't do last year. He has the quickest first step I've ever seen. Since the end of the fall signing period, he's been one of the top two players we've been recruiting."

The other player at the top of the Salukis' list is Terrence Lewis, a high school guard from Birmingham, Ala. He is considered to be one of the top 100 prep players in the country. Lewis also is considering Temple, Providence and Alabama-Birmingham.

The Salukis did not get Marion's Scott Shrentzel, who signed with Evansville. Herrin had offered him a full scholarship.

Despite the loss, Herrin is pleased with the progress McCullum has made in recruiting.

"We're in good shape," Herrin said. "We'd like to sign one or two more players, but I don't think another player we've not in bad shape."

In the fall, the Salukis signed Barry Dunning, a 6-foot-7 junior college forward from Evansville. And Tony Harvey, a 6-foot-10 high school center from Mississippi who is considered to be one of the top 100 prep recruits in the country.

Softball team gets 2 pitchers

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Dede Darnell wants to play in her own backyard.

Darnell, who lives in nearby Makanda and is a top softball pitcher for Carbondale Community High School, accepted a scholarship offer to play for the Salukis next fall.

SIU-C also signed Jennifer Brown, a Herrin native now pitching for John A. Logan College in Carterville. Recruited by six Gateway Conference schools, three from the Big Ten and two from the Big Eight, Darnell passed them all up to play for SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer and study Radio-Television.

"I was pleased with DeDe's decision to attend SIU," Carbondale softball coach Vicky King said. "It was wise decision academically and athletic-wise."

Darnell was 16-6 last season and is 4-1 with a 0.65 earned run average this year. She has struck out 56 in 31 innings pitched.

"Not only is she an excellent pitcher," Brechtelsbauer said. "DeDe is also an outstanding student who is a very determined, self-possessed person, which will see her making significant contributions to our program here in Carbondale."

Darnell is the daughter of Ron and Kris Darnell of Makanda. She was named an all-stater.

USA Today honorable mention All-Americans Karrie Redeker of East St. Louis and Kerri Leigh Hawes of Hartford, Ky., signed letters of intent Wednesday to play women's basketball at SIU-C.

Redeker, a 5-foot-10 guard, never missed a game at East St. Louis. She averaged 28.8 points, third best among small schools in Illinois, plus 10.7 rebounds per game during her senior season.

Redeker finished her prep career with 1,199 points and 1,079 rebounds.

"Karrie's state for sure ..."
