A program to increase Carbondale area industrial development was still in its embryonic stage, said Jack Hanley, Chamber of Commerce executive committee chairman and president of the Carbondale Industrial Corporation (CIC).

The chamber board of directors recently set up the fund, The fund is expected to be in operation by the fall semester, Doug Diggle, chamber executive director, said Friday.

But the attorney program, which was approved by the SUU Board of Trustees Thursday, will definitely be serving students for at least a portion of the sprint semester, Diggle said.

"We would like to get it operational by February, but that may be too soon," Diggle said Friday. "We really want to be careful about who gets appointed as the students' attorney because that's the most important portion of the program."

Diggle said attempts will be made to set up advertising in various legal journals notifying attorneys of the position.

He said, "We won't have to worry too much about getting policy set up as that will come up fairly quickly with the appointments of the board of directors."

The extra dollars from the (fee) collections fall semester will be helpful in getting the office fairly rapidly," Diggle said.

President Warren Brandt, who will be responsible for making four of the eight appointments to the board of directors, said Friday he expects to be making his appointments available within a week.

One of Brandt's appointments must be a member of the Jackson County Bar Association as stipulated in the attorney program document, and Brandt said Friday that he will be meeting with the bar association within a week to determine that appointment.

Brandt would not venture a guess as to when the attorney program may start its operations saying that would be up to the board of directors.

Diggle said Friday two of his three appointments are being considered by the internal affairs committee of the Student Senate.

Those two appointments are: Carliss Dykes, a junior in political science, and Gary Duncan, a first-year law student.

Because the senate will not be meeting again until the fall semester Diggle's appointments cannot be made officially until the last week in January, when the senate will hold its first meeting.

But Diggle said Friday that he expects to have his appointees working in an unofficial capacity in the interim period.

The Graduate Student Council, which Diggle said has already made a temporary appointment to the attorney program board.

Bob LeChien, who has been the GSC's appointments for the past months is a third-year law student and member of the student senate.

As established by the trustees Thursday, the board of directors for the attorney program will be comprised of four administrative personnel, three student government representatives and one GSC representative.

Ellen Schanzel-Haskins, president of GSC, will not estimate as to when the program could begin.

The attorney program first came about as a result of a resolution they approved the students' attorney program fees. The attorney program will have the resources of the $1 fee per consenting student to draw upon.

Gus says the city's muggers and purse snatchers will appreciate having better working conditions.

Tom Wells, a public works department engineer, said the side walks should not be eliminated because of a bad sidewalk.

Wells added that property owners should be liable if a person has an accident because of a bad sidewalk.

Wells said that many of the sidewalks in need of repair are quite old, built back when only one inch of concrete was spread over gravel during construction. He added that now four inches of concrete are used.

Wells said a new home or business must make arrangements for sidewalk construction before the owner can occupy the building. He said that the public works director can rule on exceptions if it is not feasible to pour a sidewalk.

Wells said that side walks are not always possible because drainage ditches on some properties often do not leave enough room. Wells added that sidewalks are only required on public right-of-ways.

Wells said that the priorities for a sidewalk project are areas without sidewalks, but not necessarily those around public buildings and school areas with a high frequency of pedestrian accidents and sidewalks badly in need of repair.

Downtown area reflects changing time

Editor's Note: This is the first in a three-part series examining the changes that have taken place in recent years along South Illinois Avenue. Some businesses have left the downtown area, some remain and others have been satisfied. In the first part, past and present downtown business people talk about the changes.

It's an area that in recent years has been in constant flux as people failed to meet the wants and needs of the student and mirroring the institution that lies just behind it.

For as Southern Illinois University continues to grow and with the ever-changing 20,000 plus student body, South Illinois Avenue changes also. Once Carbondale's central business district for the needs of both residents and students, the downtown area has become predominantly student-oriented, with what some say is an over-emphasis on recreation.

At one time, South Illinois Avenue was the heartbeat of the community, J.C. Penney's, a trading stamp redemption center, a walk-in bakery and numerous other retail stores to appeal to this ever-changing population.

These establishments and others have either gone out of business or relocated, with stores like Marine, Olive Branch, Westown, Lewis Park or University Mall shopping centers.

Olive Branch had 10 stores that dot South Illinois Avenue from Mill to Main Streets today, compared to two stores a half mile from the street.

"People just don't want to come downtown to shop anymore." said Lewis Jr., under protection after a "destination" orientation.

Other businessmen say they left because of the 1979 Vietnam protests, when many businesses appeared bored-up windows for months. And still other conventional retail businesses left because they felt too many bars were popping up and older customers were reluctant to mingle with student bar patrons while shopping.

"These establishments have changed the nature of at least one business that has been part of the district for over 20 years," said a downtown employee.

Fred Sobery, who took over his grandfather's family bakery eight years ago, has seen his walk-in trade disappear, along with the result of the elimination of parallel parking where traffic became one-way on Illinois Avenue several years ago.

"What has hurt this area more than anything else was the elimination of parking," Sobery said. He is not bitter about the transition, because he says his revamped business is prospering.

When the bakery's walk-in trade was at its height, he said, it specialized on food items for those who patronized a nearby grocery store, sold Chillicothe's largest variety of beer and trading stamp redemption plus other specialty products for area food establishments. Predictably, those merchants with little or no traffic left the area where the overall years' business and has operated at the same time.

"I'm not happy with the condition of the street, but it doesn't get my goat," said Downtown Children's Electric said.

Snyder, who bought his family's business and has operated at the same location for 26 years, said the property value of his business doubled in recent years per cent within the last five years. He attributes the decline to the parking situation and the relocation of conventional retail businesses.

"Sometimes it's the only way, Snyder said "ninety-nine percent" of his business is conducted over the telephone rather than a counter, and for that reason he isn't bothered by the latter problem that irritates R.J. Brunner, his neighbor to the north.

"Brunner is very supply also is not completely dependent on walk-in traffic. He has a large number of neighbors by pushing Brunner almost to the point of anger.

"But it still leaves the "downtown out front," the 32-year veteran of the downtown area said. His business is located on a street that is one of the largest and often the site of sizable outdoor events.

Brunner's remarks were echoed by another veteran proprietor who has moved from the downtown area after 27 years there.

"It left a real bad image. We tried to keep it nice, but we lost customers with it," George Sawyer, owner of Sawyer's Fruit and Grocery said.

"Generally we had a wonderful ability to get along with the students," he explained. "But at the same time some of the other people had to come into that environment."

Sawyer said that since June, when he moved to Eastgate Shopping Center, his business has "had a big increase every month. It's been far above our expectations." Sawyer said he had left patronizing his South Illinois Avenue store have come back since his move.

Another relocated proprietor agreed who also said that some downtown residents are reluctant to shop on South Illinois Avenue.

"It got to where older people didn't want to come downtown anymore," he said.

"People just didn't want to come downtown anymore." said a downtown employee.

Protective custody for the Halloween night massacre lone survivor was requested Friday afternoon by Jackson County Sheriff Mark Hood. Under protection after a "destination" orientation.

In the motion Hood told the court he had talked to a student who said a father had said Lewis was concerned about his safety and did not wish to make a statement to investigators or testify in court. Hood said he learned Lewis had purchased an airline ticket and was preparing to check out a "destination" orientation.

"Lewis is preparing to leave the hospital without his doctor's consent and sign himself out," according to the motion.

Sobery has been hospitalized in the Good Samaritan Hospital in Mt. Vernon since Nov. 1. He was wounded in the shooting spree which left three men dead.

Killed were Terry Eanes, Robert Gillmore and James Williams. The shooting occurred in Eanes and Williams' downtown home.

Charged with three counts of murder and attempted murder are Grady Bryant, Luther Carter and Ronald M. Jenkins.

Grady had not allowed him to travel to a preliminary hearing before the defendant's inquest into the shooting.

The three defendants were bound over for trial before the hearing. The hearing is presently set for May 30, 1979.

"If Lewis should leave the jurisdiction of this court, he would be in violation of the criminal justice code," Hood said.

Derge receives summons

Former SIU President David Derge was issued a summons Friday notifying him to appear in court as a witness by ex-faculty member Robert Harrell.

David Nichols, Jackson County Sheriff Mark Hood, served notice at Derge's home. He served the order on the president and several of his former members, and is still attempting to serve a notice to J. Keith Lewis, former vice president for academic affairs.

Hood, now Jackson County Judge, is the final faculty member of the 104 distinguished faculty that left to set up a new University. He alleged in his suit that no financial exigency existed as was stated by the University as the basis of dismissal of tenure faculty.

As settlement, Harrell is asking for $500,000 in damages and to be reinstated to the English Department with his full salary and benefits.

Cairo minister files suit against FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Rev. Charles Koen, head of the United Front in Cairo, has filed suit in FBI and other government agencies, charging them with conspiracy to intimidate and harass him.

Koen cited several incidents made public recently by a Senate Intelligence Committee looking into the activities of the FBI and Central Intelligence Agency. He charged that the acts were performed by the defendants "willfully, wantonly, recklessly and maliciously for the purpose of 'slander, defaming, harassing and humiliating' him.

O'Hare baggage handlers indicted for theft

CHICAGO (AP) -- A federal grand jury has indicted 20 present and former baggage handlers at O'Hare International Airport in the theft of hundreds of dollars worth of cash from airport passengers.

The action was announced Friday by U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner following return of the 13-count indictment. The baggage handlers were employed by the Allied Maintenance Co., a baggage transfer firm, which cooperates with the FBI in the inspection of items.

Allied holds contracts with American, United, Trans World and North Central airlines, he said.

Centralia youth charged with extortion threat

CENTRALIA (AP) -- A high school basketball star was charged Thursday with extortion, allegedly attempting to extort $10,000 from a father of a teammate.

Thomas Gaither, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gaither, is accused of threatening to harm Forrest Sprehe's family and business Thursday unless he paid a cash ransom. Authorities said Gaither admitted the crime in a sworn statement.

Gaither, like Sprehe's son, Greg, is a member of the city's high school basketball team. Greg has had his bag stolen during a recent game.

Gaither was freed on $5,000 bond Friday after a hearing in Circuit Court. He did not attend the proceeding.

Photographers say parents misunderstand order forms

Henry Nicolaides and George Bolando, owners of Imagetec Ltd., 715 S. University Ave., said Friday there is a grave misunderstanding between Carbondale Community High School (CHS) parents and the studio about the use of their sons and daughters' pictures in the CHS yearbook.

Confusion arose Thursday when parents received two proofs and an order blank in the mail, saying that the proofs had to be returned by Dec. 19 or the students' pictures would not be in the yearbook.

"Sometimes people would say many people thought they were trying to coerce them into buying a supply of photos. Bolando said they were not trying to force anybody to buy anything. What the photographers need is for the parents to select which pictures they want printed in the year and the yearbook.

Bolando said he sent another letter out Monday to the CHS students explaining the misunderstanding.

Speed, skill save lives at trauma center

The Illinois Trauma Center System was established in May 1973 to eliminate delays in providing care for critically injured patients. The statewide system is divided into seven regions. Carbondale's Doctors Memorial Hospital serves as Southern Illinois regional center. The Southern Illinois region extends from Cairo to Elsberry and from Robinson on the west to Pickwick on the east.

Carbondale was chosen as the region's center because state law provides that a trauma center must be affiliated with a university health education center to ensure that the center will have doctors, specialists and technicians available.

Charles Lofte, emergency medical service coordinator of the Carbondale center, said, "The trauma center emphasizes more training for its personnel, better transportation capabilities, including helicopter service, better patient care and proper preparation of patients before transfer.

Radio communication provides the staff at the hospital with critical information from those who go to the scene of an accident. It also serves as the method for organizing the transfer of specialized equipment and critically injured patients to the appropriate facility."

In the past 18 months, 53 high risk infants were transferred to Doctors Memorial Hospital for treatment.

A patient's life depends on the quickness and expertise of the staff of the trauma center. Ambulance arrivals cause a flurry of activity as doctors and nurses hurry to attend to the patient.

Bond vote today

By Kenneth Pilarski

It appears that opposition to the Carbondale Park District's proposed swimming pool and ice skating rink has been strongly supported by the $990,000 bond referendum to pass today.

Defeated two years ago, the bond issue apparently has received two main objections: the increase in taxes and the undesirable location. The complex, which would be built on Carbondale's northwest side, is expected to cost $1,794,500. If the referendum is passed, Carbondale citizens will pay $990,000 through increased property taxes for the general obligation bonds during the next 31 years.

While few people are in favor of increased taxes, the additional cost for the complex will be minimal, a mere 11/2 percent per cent $100 assessed value of all property.

In other words, if a taxpayer paid $100 in property taxes this year, his tax bill next year would increase $1.11. If the tax rate were increased by $800,000, the tax rate would be $8.30 for next year.

With Carbondale's tax rate is already one of the highest in the area, the proposed increase is a small price to pay for the facility.

The proposed recreation center's site is vised by the residents of the area, who are concerned about changing the character of the neighborhood, increased traffic and the noise caused by a lot of active youngsters having fun. These objections are all valid, but they can be readily overcome by proper supervision of the complex and by little concerns on the part of the residents of the neighborhood by the planners.

The 6.8-acre site for the recreation center is bordered by the River on the north, Albright Street on the east and by Kennicot Avenue on the south.

In addition, the land provided by the referendum, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will provide a $239,540 cash grant if the referendum is passed. Also, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation will release an estimated $15,500 for the purchase of the site.

The site for the recreation center was selected by HUD and the cash grant is contingent upon the use of the selected site and the approval of the referendum by Dec. 31, at which time the HUD offer will expire.

New lease of the HUD grant is not reason enough to build the facility. But outside of the YMCA, Carbondale does not have a facility available to the community for aquatic events, which rapidly growing in popularity. According to the reception given by the A.C. Nielsen Co., swimming is the No. 1 participant sport in the nation.

As it now stands, many Carbondale families must travel to Herrin or Marion to swim in a pool. SIU swimming coach, Bob Steele said, "The YMCA has a good program that appeals to all age groups, but it has more swimmers than it can handle."

The proposed swimming pool-ice rink complex will prove to be a benefit to the entire Carbondale community and should be approved by the voters today at the polls.

Recruitment vote

By George Haas

Today, voters in the Carbondale Park District will be asked whether they want to provide funds to the sum of $990,000 for a new swimming pool-ice rink complex.

While the support of the voters, financial aid from the department of Housing and Urban Development and a land acquisition grant from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, the Carbondale may get its 6.8-acre recreational site.

Concededly, $990,000 passed hands quietly this week for another bit of recreational land acquisition.

The vote may also mean that two of the last Bald Cypress swamps in Southern Illinois, not to mention preserving the most pristine and wildlife that is left in the area, will be lost.

The land, which was previously owned by a pulp and paper company, was sold to a private land conservation and preservation group, the Nature Conservancy. This Illinois Department Conservation purchased 1,218 acres of the cypress swamps for $1,298,000 and 1,298 acres to be donated by the conservancy group by May 1 of next year.

The area, called Little Black Shough, located southwest of Vienna, represents Illinois' single largest addition to its nature preserve system.

Hopefully, land acquisition and more recreational areas will continue to have in the past. The addition of the Little Black Shough area should be welcomed by local and county officials of the area and visitors to come. Despite the outcome of the bond issue for the Carbondale recreational complex, its citizens will always have the area's "natural" recreational sites to enjoy.

The SIU Board of Trustees today turned down a faculty request to allow collective bargaining on the Carbondale campus, but an eleventh hour compromise is expected in time for next month's meeting.

Herbert Don't Know, spokesman for the radical teachers, was irate following the meeting and threatened to call a strike. He was reminded that he has to wait for official recognition of the collective bargaining agent before striking for the faculty's collective bargaining program.

"You can't go on strike for the right to strike," James Frown, general secretary of the SIU system, told Don't Know with a touch of sarcasm.

Board Chairman Ivan Idioti defended the board's action. Idioti said the board would be foolish to act in the absence of a statute giving it the authority to do so.

"No one ever exceeds their statutory limits in Illinois higher education," Idioti said.

Sources close to the secretaries in Anarchy Hall say it was President Warren Brand-X who caused the delay of recognition for the faculty's collective bargaining program. Brand-X reportedly wanted to appoint a majority of the members of the union's executive committee.

Brand-X was unavailable for comment on the report. He was last seen wallpapering his den with copies of Draft Phase Two of Master Plan Phase Four (not to be confused with Draft Phase One which Brand-X is using to paper train his pet elephant).

Janitors in James Frown's office predict overwhelming support for collective bargaining at next month's board meeting. The Illinois Board of Higher Education has issued a proclamation that no governing board may enter into a collective bargaining arrangement with its faculty.

The new proclamation is expected to provide the needed push for the board to honor the request of Don't Know and his gang. The program calls for completely voluntary union dues although faculty members will have to wait a long time at the Board's Office for a refund.

Another factor which may come into play in the decision, according to informed board watchers, is a recent bill passed by the General Assembly regarding mandatory death penalties. Gov. Daniel Wrecker has exercised his amending veto to include voting against collective bargaining as one of the crimes included under the new mandatory death penalty law.

Wrecker has already executed one-member of the Board of Governors for violating this provision.

Strike for the right to strike; a typical day at Anarchy Hall

By John P. Wrecker

The SIU board, in a typical day, meets in Anarchy Hall, a major assembly hall on the SIU campus. The board is composed of 20 members, including the president and the secretary of the board, and is presided over by the board chairman.

The meeting begins with the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and the approval of the agenda. This is followed by the discussion of the agenda items, which may include budget matters, academic affairs, or other matters of importance to the university.

During the meeting, members of the board may make comments or ask questions about the agenda items. The board chairman may also make announcements or other remarks.

After the meeting is adjourned, the board members may meet with individual members of the administration or with faculty and staff members to discuss specific issues.

The SIU board, in a typical day, is a busy and active body, dealing with a wide range of issues that affect the university and its students.

HELLO AMERICANS, THIS IS OWEN BURMAN OF THE NRA—NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA...
Editor’s note: This is the second article in a four-part series examining a rape investigation in Jackson County and the results of the subsequent unsuccessful prosecution.

By Jerie Jayne
Editorial Page Editor

In the early hours of Feb. 28, a Friday, Sherril White (her real name) reported to the Jackson County Sheriff’s Office that she had been raped.

After reporting the incident, she spent the next eight months “beating her head against the wall,” as she told County Sheriff Don White, who wouldn’t let her collect and try to understand what was happening.

“I kept having this funny feeling they weren’t collecting the evidence I was crying for,” she recently told the Des Moines Register.

When three officers went to the trailer home of the man she claimed raped her, the man said he was to arrest him, Williams went with them to identify him. Williams said that at the trailer she imprisoned them to gain entry, which she then refused to write a false last name, false phone number and false address.

She said she had given it to Brown, and thought it could help prove that she had had to use subterfuge to escape from the trailer. The piece of paper was not evidence because she had no evidence to disprove his statements that she had implicated herself in the rape.

She said that when later asked the police about the paper she got vague answers like, “Yeah, the piece of paper was.”

The piece of paper was never presented as evidence and then Williams claimed it was something else as to whether it exists. Assistant State’s Attorney Lawrence Rippe, prosecutor of the case, said he never saw the piece of paper.

The arresting officers, for the most part, said they just couldn’t tell anyone about it.

Deputy Mike Maggio, the officer who collected the evidence in the case, said he remembers picking up a piece of paper with “just a seven digit phone number on it.” He said there was no name or address on it.

“What that piece of paper meant, I don’t know. I give the paper back, stick it in a pocket and put it in the evidence bag,” he said.

Another deputy who participated in the arrest, James Allen, said he had no idea what was going on.

“Told me nothing about something of a piece of paper, but he (the evidence bag) was evidence,” he said.

Wait Allen, another arresting officer, said, “I totally don’t remember that piece of paper. I can’t tell you where it was or what it was.” After gathering information and the time of the trial, things got lost. I don’t mean any funny business. Any number of things could have happened to it.”

Allen, who has been assistant training coordinator in the Criminal Justice Division at the Iowa Dept Planning and Development Commission since April, continued, “I do know that in this case a proper investigation was conducted and it was all done within 12 or 13 hours. You can’t say that about all of them.”

Jacket County Sheriff Don White wouldn’t have the reporter see the investigation report for possible reference to what he offered in evidence as well.

He said, “We’d have to have a subpoena from a defense attorney in order to show it.”

It was said the report contained a discrepancy to the false information that Williams claimed she gave was written on one of the arresting officers in the report this way:

“He (the accused) asked her for his phone number and put it on his shoe.”

Williams said she never told the police this. “If he checked that number I gave him, I probably would be here today.”

Sheriff White said Williams’ written statement, which was signed by the victim, was not written by her, as she said she made no reference to a piece of paper.

White was asked if he was trying to be brief as possible. Because I didn’t realize that they already picked it up.

The information on this piece of paper was only one of the gaps in the case. Questions about White also appeared as no medical evidence was given to court to show that she had

The man identified as “Joe Brown” in this series of articles is not an SIU pilot and was never employed by the University in any capacity. The man was mistitled “Sherrill Williams” as an “airman pilot at SIU.” This erroneous identification was repeated in Williams’ testimony in court, portions of which were published Friday in the Daily Egyptian, but not including a clarifying statement at that point in the article that, although Williams’ statements were made in court, her identification of the man was wrong.

“Sherrill White” was given to the defendant and plaintiff in the case to protect their identities. The man, who was acquitted of the rape charge, was James Codd, said from Nunnal Penitentiary for trial on a charge of battery against an SIU woman.

To the Daily Egyptian:
Christmas holidays provide us a welcome time for persons, family and traditions. We ask you to join us in letting this threefold re-creation happen.

Instead of depending on store-bought things to express our Christmas spirit and our concern for others, we recommend:

1. Giving ourselves a few hours time for quiet reflection and prayer. It might be well to focus on the center of ourselves and shed some light on the meaning and direction of our lives.

2. Giving our families and friends some of our time for doing what enthuses them and enables our relationships with them to grow and be enjoyed from the point of view.

3. Giving some time to learn what we can do with resources and talents which we do have to assist others: local and international. Whether we are hungry or unjustly put down—and then, on our own or others—do our best to make some specific contribution in the coming year.

Doing these things, we believe, will help make our Christmas and our world more personal, peaceful and just.

Make Christmas more personal.

To the Daily Egyptian:
The recent editorial titled “SGAC blunders” quotes Lee Tews, chairman of Cultural Affairs, as saying, “We have to pay $81 per show for ushers who had two hours of training. The SIU pays $30 to hire ushers.”

Cultural Affairs, most of whom agree that the committee itself could do the ushering.

To set the record straight, it is the Daily Egyptian and Sherry Rock, ushers for the SGAC, who have been paid $30 per show, which is the fee paid for SGAC events. So, the SIU pays $30 per hour for the SGAC, and Cultural Affairs, most of whom agree that the committee itself could do the ushering.

Students take active role in Lincoln PTA

By Dan Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Parent Teacher Association of Lincoln Junior High School, 501 S. Washington Ave., is different from other PTA's in two ways. Parents and teachers take active roles in it. It is also the only PTA at the school, President Madeline Schilling said.

"We don't just sit on the sidelines serving coffee and doughnuts," Schilling said. "We participate. We're concerned." Schilling said parents and students are concerned and work together to discuss school discipline, curriculum, and even the sports program at the junior high school.

Last spring a PTA study committee submitted a booklet to the faculty containing its recommendations for change in several areas. Larry Jacob, principal of the school, will provide administrative feedback on the first recommendations next week.

Jacob said he has looked at the report and will give the PTA a list of things he would like to see done at the school and things the administration wouldn't consider doing.

"You have to watch for special interest groups in a situation like this," Jacob said. He said proposals in the study committee's report sometimes represent the feelings of a minority—sometimes only two or three people—who feel strongly about an issue.

Jacob said he believes parent input into the school is good. He noted that some administrators do not listen to the input of parents and students.

PTA member Virginia Dreher said parents have more of a right to be concerned with their children's education. She said parents have a responsibility to insure the best possible education for their children.

"We may not be experts on the subject, but we are experts on living," Dreher said. "We may not be able to lay an egg, but we know a good one when we see one."

Dreher said a crossing guard would not have been placed at the corner of Washington and Walnut Streets without the efforts of the PTA.

"It was actually accomplished by Mrs. Schilling. There wouldn't be a crossing guard there now without her," Dreher said. "She had a tough time convincing the Carbondale Safety Commission that the need for a crossing guard at the intersection which 60 children cross every day.

Another feature of the Lincoln Junior High School PTA is its students' involvement. Schilling said it was the only PTA with student involvement in Southern Illinois.

Wanda Czarnecki, math teacher and PTA member, said student involvement in the PTA is good for the students.

"It gives them a feeling of belonging in the decision-making process. With student participation, you get instant feedback from them," she said. "Students are welcome in the PTA because some parents in Carbondale listen to their children.

Katie Crease, a student participant in the PTA, said she does always understand what happens at the PTA meetings, especially when bylaws are amended. She said she believes she can do things in the PTA that might benefit students in spite of her lack of knowledge.

Dreher said amendments to bylaws are often difficult for her to understand also. She said students today are sophisticated enough to help make decisions that affect their education and should not be excluded from the PTA. She said difficult matters are carefully explained to the students so that they are involved in the decision.

Emergency van collides with truck while on run

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An emergency van driven by a Carbondale fire captain was hit by a truck Thursday evening in the intersection of South University and West Walnut while the van was enroute to a car that was on fire.

Police said the van, driven by Capt. Floyd Nesbitt, was hit by a truck driven by Coy R. Sudduth of Addison, Ala. There were no reported injuries.

Nesbitt was reportedly driving through a red light following a fire truck when the accident occurred. Police said the captain had his red light on as he went through the intersection.

Police said Sudduth was going through a green light when the truck and the van collided. No charges were filed because police said Sudduth did not see the emergency van.

The truck Sudduth was driving was severely damaged, police said.

Nesbitt was trying to get to a car that was on fire at 409 S. Wall St. The vehicle, owned by David Carter, was parked at 109 S. Wall St. Sudduth said he turned from 109 S. Wall St. caught fire while he was driving it. Fire officials said the car was badly damaged. Faulty wiring was the source of the fire.

In an earlier incident, a car driven by Gerald L. Mourning, 109 S. Wall St., was hit by a car while driving on East Columbia St. Officer said a faulty carburetor was the source of the fire.
Carbondale Park District

"PLANS FOR IMPROVING OUR COMMUNITY"

Proposed

SWIMMING POOL - ICE RINK RECREATION CENTER

Why?

- We need more facilities to accommodate the rapidly increasing demands of Carbondale Park District residents.
- To expand our program to offer swimming and ice skating for our residents.
- To provide a "learn to swim" program for our children.
- To provide a public pool for all our residents—none now available.
- To provide a sheltered center for community usage.

Who May Vote?

- Any U. S. Citizen 18 years or older, who has lived in the Park District for 28 days and registered to vote from a residence within the Park District.

Who Benefits?

- All who need to learn to swim. "One life saved is worth far more than the cost."
- All who enjoy swimming and ice skating. Supervised and pollution free.
- Provides needed exercise and recreation activities for all ages.
- The city by offering an added inducement to new business and industry to locate in Carbondale.
- "Quality of life in a community is of prime concern to industry."
- Community by providing a covered outdoor facility for large group usage.

What?

- To construct a swimming pool - ice skating rink recreational center.
- To purchase 6.88 acres of land now available at a reasonable cost.
- To construct these two facilities adjacent to each other for double usage of lockers, wash rooms and existing utilities.
- To develop adequate, safe and well lighted parking facilities.
- To construct a swimming pool with a daily capacity of 1500 persons.
- To construct an ice skating rink with a skating surface of 85’ x 200’ (17,000 square feet).
- To utilize the covered ice skating recreational center for community and park district usage when not in use for skating — seating (permanent and portable) estimated to be 1600.

Board resumes hearing 1975 tax complaints

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Jackson County Board of Review will resume hearings on 1975 tax complaints Jan. 3, said Lowell Heller, clerk of the board.

Heller explained the board has recessed until the 1975 tax lists are published. The lists allow people to compare their tax bills with those of their neighbors to determine if any major errors in assessment have been made.

Complaints may be filed in person at the board office in the Jackson County Court House, or by letter. Written complaints should include the property owner's name, a legal description of the property and the nature of the complaint.

A three-man board reviews the complaints. "A little better than 50 per cent get some kind of read-judgment," Heller said. He added that "usually the people who come to us have a just complaint."

The Jackson County Assessors Office is in the final stages of computerizing its operations. Information obtained in a total reassessment has been placed on property record cards.

The board expects to hear from 500 to 700 complaints this year, Heller said. "We may have that rate for two or three years but then it will drop down to almost nil," Heller said.

Heller expects the majority of complaints to be the result of mechanical errors during computerization. "Somebody may have punched the wrong key on the card," he said. Once those errors are corrected, the system will be very accurate, Heller said.

Department to poll political science seniors

The Political Science Department has designed a questionnaire to develop a student profile on graduating seniors in that major.

The questionnaire is comprised of six questions about employment sought, additional academic training courses needed and the ability of instructors in the political science field.

Randall Nelson, chairman of the department, said the information obtained will indicate how successful political science seniors have been in locating jobs and whether different emphasis should be placed on the kinds of courses offered.

The results will be computed next semester, he said.

The success of the questionnaire depends on cooperation of graduating seniors. Nelson said The forms will be handed out in classes.

Previously, questionnaires had been mailed to students but that method provided a low rate of response, he said.

Task force forecasts slump in Illinois school enrollment

At first, budgets will be par- ticularly tight. With staff reduction and-or closing of facilities will create significant savings, and a substantial enrollment decline in unanticipated, the measures can be taken, the report said.

The task force made several recommendations to avoid problems related to closing schools, releasing teachers, balancing budgets and explaining increases in per pupil costs:

- Technical assistance should be provided to local districts on budget matters, management of processing and teacher retraining during the period of enrollment decline, the report said.

The task force also proposed legislation modifying the state school aid formula because declining enrollments mean a loss in a state aid payment.

And the report specified community involvement to help school districts develop "retraining strategies."

Doctor cites easier pap test method

"Say there is an area that is ab- normal in appearance, then I will just biopsy that area alone, not the cervix 15 to 20 times," he said. The instrument is used called a Conization microscope, Grimes said. By looking through the microscope, Grimes said. He said he recently performed a task force and presented at a state Board of Education meeting in Chicago, predicted that pap smear test in all but five of Illinois' 121 counties will continue to drop through 1988.

CHICAGO (AP)—Enrollment in Illinois schools will drop during the next decade, causing school closing and staff reductions, a report released Thursday said.

"More than 100 schools will ac- tually close during the next decade," state Rep. Joseph M. Cronin said. He said the "rapidly growing" situations of Chicago which attract fewer younger students will be par- ticularly hard hit.

With planning, though, benefits can be gained, the report said. It said the state must "provide a par- ticularly good setting for major curriculum reform and an op- portunity to explore open classroom and team teaching techniques."

"Quality, not quantity will be the major goal of the next decade," Cronin said.

The report prepared by a task force and presented at a state Board of Education meeting in Chicago, predicted that pap smear guidelines will continue to drop through 1988.

CHICAGO (AP)—A less expen- sive way of obtaining tractive tissue samples from women is being tested, a report said.

"The process involves a direct colposcopy, is used by many old in Europe and South America for a couple of decades," said Dr. Hugh Grimes, an obstetrician-gynecologist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Chicago. But "it’s begun," he said, "with a new method for synthesis of organometallic com- pounds, " said Grimes, the seminar’s program director, and there are only 5 to 100 physicians in the country who know how to perform a colposcopy.

"After you get a positive pap smear, you have been able to determine the abnormal cells are coming from," he said.

"Now we secure a specimen from the cervix by colposcopy-cutting to the cervix, it is removed on a slide, like an ice cream cone to find the cervix, it is removed on a slide for the abnormal pap smear," he said.

But cervical cancer patients will now hospitalizing the patient for 48 to 72 hours and extracting one or more large specimens, Grimes said.

"With colposcopy, you magnify ten times," he said. The instrument is used called a Conization microscope, Grimes said. The five counties are located near Chicago, Cronin said. The decline came about primarily because fewer babies were born in Illinois during the 1960s and 1970s than during the baby boom after World II and in the 1960s, the report said.

As a result, Illinois public schools experienced a permanent enrollment drop of 2.37 million during the 1972-73 school year. Since then, enrollment has decreased steadily. The downward trend still continues, the report predicted, from this year’s enrollment of 2.36 million in 1986.

For most communities, over-crowded classrooms are a part of the past, and declining enrollments are the emerging concern," the report stated.

But while student numbers decline, costs will continue to rise primarily because of inflation, the report said. The task force also said shrinking enrollment "will have a negative effect upon the district’s ability to pass tax and bond referenda."

"Thank you’ art sale nets $8,000 for student club

More than $10,000 has flowed into the coffers of the SIU Art Students League as a result of a "for students only" sale of etchings by Herbert Fink, professor of art at SIU.

More than 50 of Fink’s most celebrated prints were on exhibit Dec. 4 to 9 at the Allyn Gallery, Copes of each print sold for $15, which is anywhere from $15 to $30 below Fink’s customary price.

Four-fifths of the proceeds went to the Art Students League. One dollar from each sale went to the district’s price of paper and two dollars went to his assistent for the printing.

Fink, who says it’s "immoral to take money from a student’s sale" would enable students to begin building their own art collections.

He said the gesture was meant as a "thank you" to his students, past and present.

Fink, a former Guggenheim fellow, has won many awards, includ- ing the 1974 gold medal for best illustrator of the year by the Society of Illustrators for his cover art on the book "Forbidding: Illustrations of John Gardner’s novel "The King’s Indian."

Fink is the first School of Art faculty member to display his work in the remodeled Allyn Gallery, which was designed and built by exhibits of student art work.

"I was very flattered when the students asked me to exhibit my work," he said. About 50 prints were sold during Fink’s exhibits.

Women's rights on campus in jeopardy, says professor

By Dan Hoffman
Regional Correspondent

The rights of women educators on college campuses may be in jeopardy, says President W. W. Ellert, Missouri State University, who is also President of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

"I'm afraid that this week's events were made for confrontation, not dialogue," Ellert said. "I've been hearing about the public's concern over the rights of women who are being denied due process and the opportunity to work and live in an environment free from harassment.

Academic affirmative action programs are clearly in jeopardy. There's a chance they may be dismantled," said Ellert.

First and second place winners in the overall competition were Park Mitchell Museum to exhibit works of local woman

The Mitchell Museum in Mount Vernon, Ill., will exhibit the works of Lauren Allen of Carbondale beginning Wednesday in the museum's main gallery.

Allen's exhibit will consist of seventeen portraits and eleven other pieces. The media used is primarily ink pen on paper.

Allen, a native of Troy, New York, spent several years in Jamaica, an experience which is reflected in her work. Her more recent work has been the influence of her studies at SIU.

The exhibit will continue through Dec. 21. The show is now in the current series of monthly displays at the museum, located on Riverview Road.

Selected works from the Mitchell museum will also be on display at the museum.

Chicago police force to use ‘shocking’ hollow point bullets

CHICAGO (AP) — Something new will be used by the Chicago police force in the war against crime—a high velocity, hollow point bullet that will “give sufficient shock to incapacitate a person.”

“The new ammunition will make it less likely that when criminals are shot, they can’t get up and shoot back at police officers,” said a department spokesman Thursday.

The 38 caliber hollow point will become required equipment Jan. 2, replacing the 38 caliber round nose ammunition. They are not the same as dum-dum bullets.

The round nose bullets, police said, tend to pass through the body causing a narrow wound. When they exit they ricochet and fragments can endanger bystanders.

The new bullets breeched with an extra charge in the primer flatten out an impact. This, police said, causes a wide wound which does not extend through the body. The additional charge, combined with the expanding slug, also gives the bullet more impact.

“We wanted ammunition which gives sufficient shock to incapacitate a person,” said Supt. James M. Rochford. “The current ammunition is outdated and dangerous to the public and to our personnel.”

Rochford said the decision to switch came after a four-month study by his department, based on research published by the law enforcement standards laboratory sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Rochford said the ammunition, which is available to the general public, is being issued to police in Dallas, St. Louis and San Francisco. A Federal Bureau of Investigation spokesman said that agency has been using the hollow point bullet regularly for the last three years and that “there are pros and cons about using it.”

“The bullet causes more internal injury than a regular police bullet that then again, it depends on where it hits,” he said.

Doctors’ salary advised to decrease surgeries

NEW YORK (AP) — A prominent surgeon, Dr. George Crile Jr., has suggested that surgeons be paid salaries instead of charging fees that might tempt them to perform unnecessary operations.

Dr. Crile says that a surgeon, deciding whether or not a patient should be operated on, is acting as a judge. When he knows he will be paid $500 if he operates and nothing if he doesn’t, the surgeon is faced with a conflict of interest.

“One would have confidence in the verdict of a judge who received a large fee if his decision was against the defendant and none at all if he decided the other way,” Dr. Crile said in an editorial in Medical News, a magazine for physicians. He is an emeritus consultant in surgery of the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. Crile also called for abolition of contingency fees for lawyers who receive part of the settlement given in medical malpractice suits. The lawyer often receives a third or more of the total reward.

But for lawyers “to do so in England is called barraity and is punishable by fine or suspension from the bar. Is it a coincidence that in this country, where barraity is tolerated, the cost of malpractice insurance is about 30 times as high as in England?”

Perhaps, at the same time that we abolish fee-for-service surgery, we should make barraity a crime punishable by torture by the rack,” says Dr. Crile.

“I wish to make it clear that I do not believe that surgeons consciously perform operations that are contraindicated. On the other hand, I do believe that the strong and constant financial pressure of fee-for-service surgery gradually warps the judgment of some surgeons so that, quite unconsciously, they rationalize their decisions in a direction that is most profitable for them.”

Council to view parking request

The Carbondale City Council will consider a request for parking as a special use in an R3 (high density residential) zone in a public hearing at 7 p.m. Monday in Council Chambers.

Council members will take formal action on Planning Commission recommendations concerning sign regulations, a Doctors’ Memorial Hospital request for a $500,000 bond, a Lewis Park Mall from PUD (planned unit development) to RPL (planned residential) and requesting Warren Road from AG (general agriculture) to RHR (planned mobile homes).

The Planning Division will also present its staff report for November.
Women recall streets where they lived

Mary L. Herro
Dane County Register

"There were no paved streets. We endured dust until deep in the summer, and snow and ice in the winter. In the summer, the watering cart would come along and 'laying the dust.' Travel was entirely by horse and buggy and we found hitching posts in front of houses and places of business.

That was not taken from a Wild West novel but describes Carbondale in 1900 when Martha McCann Clark arrived in town.

Her story about life in Carbondale and even an excerpt from the book, "Carbondale Remembers," are part of the Women's Club of Carbondale as a bicentennial project, says Agnes Lentz Wright, editor.

The book is a collection of stories about carbolndale and every woman who lived in various sections of town during the early 30th. Each author discusses one or more areas where she lived.

Chapter titles are named for city thoroughfares such as "Walden - ", "Oak -", " - W", "Main Street", "What a Road", "Normal Avenue" and "Popular Place".

The project began when Women's Club member Julia Mitchell Richen made a tape recording describing Carbondale when she was growing up. The tape, originally used for her children, was put into other Women's Club programs and became the nucleus of the book, Wright said.

The book "took about a year to get together," she said. "We just wanted to pay printing costs." Wright said each club member committed $1 to help out with the printing costs of the first 500 copies. A second reprint was arranged Friday at the First National Bank, the Carbondale National Bank and the University Bookstore for $1.

Although each author describes the street where she lived growing up, each discusses the area in a different way.

Pamela Lott of Carbondale, an author of the first four stories, talks about "laying the dust" up and "making street cars of shoe boxes with colored paper windows lighted by a candle and pulled down the street after dark." She also talks about her neighbors Mr. and Mrs. William McAndrew of and Mrs. Daniel Parkinson at the corner of East Main Street.

Eberth, author of the first four stories, talks about "laying the dust" up and "making street cars of shoe boxes with colored paper windows lighted by a candle and pulled down the street after dark." She also talks about her neighbors Mr. and Mrs. William McAndrew of and Mrs. Daniel Parkinson at the corner of East Main Street.

"The Worst and Funniest Interview" in this issue is about the contest entries.

The area where Blanche Lentz Fresh lived has been absorbed by the South Main Area at the Carbondale Savings and Loan Association.

The South Main Area, which was the science building and the gymnasium, is now the Central Business Center.

"An Anna couple provides holiday home" - George and Marta Weaver, who live on a farm near Anna, are among the hundreds of families who have moved their homes to the South Main Area in the past 100 years. They were among the first to move to the area.

"I never had a problem," Marta Weaver said. "I have no complaints. The neighborhood is very quiet. We get along well with our neighbors."

"We used to have to go to town to get water," George Weaver said. "Now we have water at the house."

The women were interviewed in their home on Thursday.

"We used to have to go to town to get water," Marta Weaver said. "Now we have water at the house."

Glen passes Frazier as SIU romps

By Dave Wieczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

OMAHA, Neb. — Saluki All-America candidate Mike Glen, continues to move up possibly their second straight National Football Conference East title Sunday when they tangle with the Chicago Bears in Soldier Field here.

Once a bitter rivalry when the Cardinals were in Chicago, the series has lost punch in recent years and Sunday's game marks the first regular season meeting between the two since 1972 when the Bears defeated the Cardinals 31-17.

The Cardinals took over first place in the NFC East last Sunday with a smashing 31-17 victory over Dallas and can clinch their divisional crown with successive victories over Chicago and Detroit.

The Cardinals will take a 9-3 record against the Bears who have a reverse mark of 3-9 including a 25-21 triumph over the Detroit Lions last Sunday. "If we play like we did against Detroit, we can play against the Cardinals," said Bear Coach Jack Pardee who recalled the Bears defeated the Cardinals 14-1 in a preseason game. "That victory proved we are not completely out of their league."

If the Bears hope to delay the Cardinals’ drive for a playoff berth, they'll have to stop the tide of points. including quarterback Jim Hart, wide receiver Mel Gray, running back Terry Metcalf and fullback Jim Otis.

Hart has 18 touchdown passes with 168 completions of 317 passes for 2,278 yards. Gray has 46 receptions for 892 yards and 11 touchdowns, Metcalf has 2,335 total yards in rushing, receiving kickoff returns and punt returns and Otis has rushed for 85 yards.

The Bears can't match any of those statistics but rookie quarterback Bob Avellini, making only his second start in the victory over the Lions, completed 19 of 29 passes for 204 yards with Bo Rather grabbing five of the passes for 119 yards.

Walter Payton and Roland Harper are the team's rushing leaders with 417 and 417 yards respectively, and Virgil Livers is dangerous returning punts. Livers has 417 yards on punt returns to tie the Bear record set by George Payner in 1978.

The Cardinals have been rated 12 point favorites.

Advanced gymnastic team prepares for new season

By Scott Burns
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The women's intermediate and advanced gymnastic team is getting underway for its two-month season, which begins in early January.

Illinois separates gymnasts within the state into four categories. These divisions are: Preliminary, Advanced, and Senior and SIU has both the advanced and beginning. SIU has both elite and advanced teams.

Advanced gymnast coach Laura Krauss said this system would be changed soon because Illinois is one of the few states to still have the class breakdowns.

At that time, Krauss's 12-woman squad will be competing against advanced teams within Illinois. The first meet for the advanced team is Jan. 7, 1979 at Chicago Circle.

Krauss said six out of the seven meets scheduled this season are away events. The only home meet is on Feb. 14 when SIU will host the southern sectional qualification meet for Illinois competition.

Beth Wentworth and freshman

Marianne Picha.

Intermediate gymnasts are Sheri Smith, freshman Chris Evans, freshman Pam Goff, junior; Peggy Evans,
