Expanded Draft, Reserve Call Being Considered, Johnson Says

Viêt Cong Activity May Force Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson disclosed Tuesday he is considering expanding the draft and calling up military reservists to help fight the stepped-up war in Viet Nam.

Johnson told a news conference no decisions have been reached. But he said "the government is always considering every possibility and every eventualty."

On a more optimistic note, the President said he is encouraged because Russia has agreed to a month-old Ameri­can proposal for resumption of disarmament talks at a 17-nation conference in Geneva.

The administration was surprised, but not too surprised to suggest starting talking again by July 27 at the latest.

And of the turbulent situa­tion in the Dominican Re­public, Johnson said: "Right now, here, we are both cautious and hopeful.

In speaking of possible heavier involvement of U.S. forces in the fighting in Viet Nam, Johnson said increased aggression may require an increased American response on the ground.

Johnson was asked if in­creased aggression and in­filtration from North Viet Nam may affect the U.S. diplomatic effort that the domestic criticism of his Viet Nam policies repre­sent the real attitude of the country.

"I don't think the diff­erences of opinion have in­creased the North Vietnamese aggression. I think they have not changed., the President replied.

However, he said U.S. allies and "our own soldiers do get concerned" about how well the United States really is.

He said he gets several letters a day from servicemen in Viet Nam and hears from their parents and has failed to see a "declining letter.

"I think we will be united in this effort," he added.

Coeds to Wear New ‘Total Look’

By Ken Gebhardt

Striped and flowered wool stockings that cover everything from the Adams apple to the ankle, V-necked pullovers that vaguely look like those SIU nightshirts on sale at the Bookstore, knickers with ruffles on the bottoms, see-through raincoats, see-through raincoats and more seeing-through raincoats. Stripes are matched with bold plaids. Argyle patterned stockings and sweaters are mated with paisley prints.

The designers call it unembellished, but the over-all results look like what you might get from a color-blind-finger-painter who had been sniffing glue.

What kind of a response does this news bring from men on the Carbondale campus? In a word, “Veech!” But let them speak for themselves:

“The hose are ridiculous,” said Larry Brown of Carbondale. “Girls try to look too masculine with things like ties. Just because the Beatles wear them doesn’t mean everyone has to.”

One student, who preferred to remain anonymous, said simply, “This is a gimmick by the clothing companies. They always bring back the old styles, like the plaid socks.”

Barry MacDonald of 606 E. Park St., was a little more approving. “It shows artistic quality,” he said, “but, you have to be a good dresser to wear these things.”

The new styles may provide much action for the hipsters of the fashion world, but it seems that discretion and good taste are the order for the season for most college women wearing these styles. Unless they show good taste in dress, many coeds this fall may be on the receiving end of a comment like “They look like strange people.”

The Daily Egyptian Book Scene:

Improbable Dreiser

Dreiser, by W.A. Swanberg

This is both an absorbing and an inexhausting book. Mr. Swanberg has organized and net forth in a relentless narrative chronology a mass of details that would doubtless have daunted the fact-minded author of the Cowperwood trilogy and A American Tragedy.

He has sought out and interviewed people involved with scores of people who knew Dreiser, and the result is that we are now given a much more rounded picture of this man than ever before about Dreiser's life as a boy and young man, his career as an editor, his friendship and quarrel with J.L. Mencken, his two marriages and numerous affairs, his relationships with his publishers, his confused reform activities and his declining years in Hollywood.

But Dreiser the man, and even Dreiser the artist the assiduous researcher has not revealed, was a man of many friendships. But he had a true artistic sense, and he became a member of what was called the Communist Political Association.

His work is praised and others Swanson reports, but none of them does he weigh and evaluate, much less judge it. The answer is perhaps that with a portrait that has long been accepted and background but no central figure anyway.

And the artist? He is not here at all. We may now know that Little Carrie was based on Little Carrie were printed, how many were bound, how many were sent out for review, how many were sold. But for all that, the emphasis is on modern and historical significance, not on the stories of Elias, Matthiessen and others.

Between 1910 and 1915, Dreiser revised and published and others. Dreiser's life as a writer was a narrative of events arranged in their time-sequence and a plot to show the course of events the emphasis falling on causality, historical and scientific reconstruction.

F.M. Forster has made a distinction between "story" and "plot" which seems to me relevant to Dreiser. Forster defined a story as "a narrative of events arranged in their time-sequence and a plot to show the course of events the emphasis falling on causality, historical and scientific reconstruction."

for increased agricultural productivity is obvious. The need for increased technical and vocational training should occupy a high priority in their development.

How can the developed countries most effectively assist the developing countries? If the EEC concentrates on Africa should other countries work jointly with other countries?

In nearly every country there is a problem of inflation. Different approaches to this are suggested and worked. Certainly the D.C. becomes a part of pricing and international trade.

6. These authors point up the weaknesses of a return to the gold standard and the adverse impact such a step would have on economic development. It never really worked as anomously and automatically as its advocates make it. The state and must share at least a part of the blame. The world's depression of the 1930s which provided many of the conditions leading to World War II

7. Similarly the case for increased agricultural productivity is obvious. The need for increased technical and vocational training should occupy a high priority in their development.

8. Many developing countries have economics closely tied to only one or two commodities that are subject to wide fluctuations in price. The feasibility of this commodity agreements modeled after the Omnibus Agreement was suggested. Parenthetically, it should be noted that the U.S. is going critical analysis by the voice of the people. The price of oil should be continued.

9. Nearly every group of developing countries is concerned that as incomes increase, imports will increase faster than exports, thus adversely affecting their balance of payments. Since each country or region's export, this is unimportant.

10. the Middle East presents many facets to the world economy. It is the leading economic power of the Middle East is very unstable. This is the area of three major armed conflicts, political, economic, and his history originated. It is also the center of three major religious bodies, only one of which is recognized by western religious. Catholic, Jewish and Christian, the Arab bloc is divided. We should be able to hold the key to developments in this part of the world. A question arises is this important to the impact of trade between the United States and the Middle East. Since Communist countries represent bilateral status, other national economic systems and political and propaganda differences can make as economic, the erratic movements of the area could be more disruptive than helpful in economic growth.
Viet Cong Aggression May Demand Draft Expansion and Reserve Call

over Viet Nam, Johnson said that: "We'd like to improve relations that we can." He gave what appeared to be a deliberately casual endorsement to the present mission to Moscow of W. Averell Harriman, ambassador at large. He said it was a personal trip and he did not think Harriman was "I approve heartily." Harriman's visit to Moscow next year but came up with no details.

To a questioner who asked about suggestions of some Republicans that he has changed his position on civil rights over the years, Johnson wound up saying: "I am totally opposed to provide all of the leadership that I can, notwithstanding the fact that someone may point to a mistake or 100 mistakes that I made in my past." House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and John H. McColloch of R-Ohio, had said that a senator Johnson voted 100 per cent against civil rights bills until 1957.

Johnson said Tuesday that in the past he had not have the responsibility for such problems as the plight of the Negro and "did not feel it to the extent that I do now."

Jeweled Navel Pin Is Bikini Accessory

NEW YORK (AP)—If you wear bikinis or other kind of modern finery, your navel pin may become as basic to your wardrobe as pearls are to the little black dress. That was the news at the accessories and costume trade shows last week.

The "insy" pin—there are also "snobby" models for people with a reverse kind of navel construction—was introduced by a lively but otherwise bare-bottomed mile with a $1,350 worth of jewels in her navel. When she was not buckled in a fur jacket, only a shimmered and shook, to test the staying power of her new jewelry.

It stayed. The manufacturer explained, "It is the masterpiece of an engineering, a plunger type with a spring lock and foam rubber backing." Still, a watch fob type safety chain was attached to the pin's low-down hip-huggers pants pocket.

The Salukis didn't exactly break down the fences this past weekend's baseball series with University of Nebraska at Kearney. But the team did raise its batting average over the .200 mark for the first time this season.

Righthander Jack Brown, shortstop Rich Hacker and catcher Dan Josten were three Salukis who especially found Illini pitching to their liking.

Brown had four hits in eight appearances at the plate to raise his average from .133 to .261. Hacker countered with five hits in 12 at bats, which raised his average from .204 to .286.

Josten caught only one game against the Illini, but had two hits in three tries, which raised his average from .167 to .333.

First baseman Frank Limbaugh and centerfielder Nick Solis did the heavy hitting for the Salukis as each hit a home run. Limbaugh's average dropped from .304 to .286. Solis raised his from .217 to .250.

The pitching staff also benefited from the weekend series with the Illini. George Poe and Mike Lyle didn't allow an earned run in their games Sunday. Poe's performance lowered his average from 4.28 to 2.03, while Lyle brought his earned run average down from a team high of 4.40 to 2.47.

Mike Stafford, the pitcher to come to the Illini, lowered his earned run average from 2.72 to 2.02.

Football Recruiting Program
Continuing; Herrin Star Signs

Southern's football recruiting program continues at a fast pace.

Glenn "Chip" Marrow, a 6-foot, 190-pound high school football standout for Herrin High School, is Coach Don Shroyer's latest recruit.

Marrow was a quarterback and end in high school. He shared the most valuable player honors with teammate Rich Brandon.

Shroyer's tentative plans call for Marrow to be used at quarterback on offense and corner back on defense.

Marrow was also a three-year member of Herrin's baseball team and was also a hurdler on the school's track team.

The Salukis already have commitments from more than 20 schools across the nation.

American League's Smash Two Home Runs

MINNEAPOLIS—St. Paul (AP) — Ron Santo slugged a three-run home run in the seventh inning as the American League won the All-Star Game, 6-5, over the National League Tuesday in an All-Star Game that was decided by five home runs. A pair of booming two-run homers by Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and Harmon Killebrew, the home town hero of the League-leading Twins, gave the American League a first All-Star game victory in eight tries.

The previous American Leaguers crowned back with one run in the fourth and tied the score at two on a fifth inning pair of booming two-run homers by Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and Harmon Killebrew, the home town hero of the League-leading Twins.

However, the American Leaguers clawed back with one run in the fourth and tied the score at two on a fifth inning pair of booming two-run homers by Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and Harmon Killebrew, the home town hero of the League-leading Twins.

Joe Lutz, baseball coach at Parsons College, reported he has resigned his post as baseball coach. Lutz, a former professional baseball player and manager in the minor leagues, earlier this summer the Daily Egyptian reported that Lutz resigned his post as baseball coach and devoted his full time to the St. Louis varsity program. However, officials have declined to comment because any definite action on the move would have to be made by the Board of Trustees.

Even with his new position as athletic director, head football coach and head basketball coach. His baseball team was an NAIA national championship.

Lutz is a former professional baseball player and manager in the minor leagues. He previously coached high school teams in Iowa and his 1960 Davenport team won the Iowa state championship. He has been at Parson since 1962.

SANDY KOUFAX . . WINNING PITCHER

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers ace lefty, was credited with the victory as Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians.

It was Juan Marichal of the Giants who really turned in the glittering pitching job. The high-kicking right-hander, who started the game with only nine men in the first three innings and allowed only one hit—hitting single through the box by Vic Davallio of Cleveland landing off the third. When Santo slammed the second pair of booming two-run home runs of Baltimore into the lower section of the new left-field pavilion seats. Maloney, who started the American game, gave up six runs in the fourth and faced only nine men in the first three innings.

Pappas, the fiery Oriole right-hander, was a 2-2, 1-0 winner. The ball deep to center, moving Maya who had opened the inning with a single to center. McAuliffe, a peaky hitter for the Americans all afternoon, opened the fourth with a single off big Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds, who was destined to give up all five American runs. After a walk to Killebrew, Rocky Colavito of Cleveland singled to center, scoring McAuliffe. Maloney, who lost a toughie to the New York Mets a few weeks back,1-0 after pitching 10 no-hit innings, was knocked out in the four-run fifth inning.

It looked like a quiet fifth inning when the first two batters went down quickly. Then pinch hitter Jimmie Hall of the Twins walked on a 3-2 pitch and McAuliffe powered a long homer over the center-field wall.
