Peace Corps Volunteers Arrive Here

Charles D. Tenney, vice president for instructions, will officially welcome the 103 Peace Corps trainees to SIU at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

There will be guests at a dinner in the University Center at which Tenney will speak.

They began arriving on campus Friday afternoon, and the last ones are expected in Sunday, a spokesman for the training project headquarters said.

Although some were not scheduled to arrive until Sunday, those who are already here will begin their training today.

They will spend the next 12 weeks here preparing to serve in the African nations of Niger and Senegal. They will be living in six buildings in Small Group Housing.

Probation Matters

Topic of Meetings

Meetings have been planned for all SIU students on academic probation.

The meeting for VTI students on academic probation has been scheduled for 1 p.m., June 16, in the Student Room at Southern Acres, according to Jack W. Graham, coordinator of the Academic Advisement Center.

The meeting for other students on academic probation has been scheduled for 1 p.m., July 1 in Davis Auditorium, Wham Education Building.

"Students who are not yet on probation, but who have some concern about their academic progress, are also invited to attend," Graham said.

"Rules relating to probation are not well known and have been studied and preparing for examinations will be provided.

Student organizations in side and outside the University will be explained," Graham said.

Students who are on academic probation and fail to make a C average this term will be dropped, Graham said.

They will be asked to drop out of school for a period of time.

SIU Plans Information Center

For Recreation of Handicapped

A national information center designed to help the handicapped will be established at SIU.

William H. Freeberg, chairman of the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education, who will be project director, said the center will collect and disseminate information about recreation for the handicapped. It has been approved by the Vocational and Rehabilitation Administration for a federal grant but the amount has not yet been announced.

The center, to be set up at the SIU Little Crassly Lake campus, is scheduled to be in operation in September, Freeberg said.

"The purpose is to establish a national center that will collect information on instructional aids and devices and any other materials or recreational programs that will be of benefit to the handicapped," Freeberg said.

The extensive May collection, assembled for the company by its president, Morton D. May, a well-known art commissioner, has been donated to members of the American Association of Museums on an "first come-first served" basis.

"If one does not get these objects, he may have to buy his own," Freeberg said.

The new acquisitions have been placed on exhibit in the Museum, where they will remain throughout the summer.

Beazley on His Way to Africa

To Study Forest, Land Uses

Ronald Beazley, SIU forestry professor, is on his way to Africa where he will conduct research on the development of forest, forestry, industries and land uses in Tanganyika. He left Carbondale earlier this week.

Beazley, who started work on the project two years ago, is consultant to the government of Tanganyika and the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations. The main problem facing him is deciding alternative land uses on a long-term basis.

A native of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Beazley joined the SIU Forestry Department in 1959 after six years at the University of Minnesota. He received a master's degree from Yale University and a doctorate from Purdue University.
Diet Research Shows

Students Would Rather Eat
Doughnuts Than Vegetables

Given a free choice, college students skip vegetables and salads when selecting a meal but universally like doughnuts, sweet rolls, hamburgers, roast beef, fried chicken, ice cream and sundaes.

Cora is the only vegetable that is a prime favorite.

These are the findings of Marthe Schade, a college cafeteria dietician who received her master's degree in home economics at Iowa State University as a prime favorite.

Schade, and salads when selecting a meal at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, is now employed in food services at the University of Missouri.

For her master's thesis, she made a comparative survey of the "Food Selection Patterns and Preferences of College Students," using 186 students at Southeast Missouri State and 54 students at an SII residence hall as her "guinea pigs." At each school almost all participants in the survey were freshmen.

She found that 90 per cent of the SII students selected foods that provided nutritional adequacy, and only 20 per cent of the SII students chose diets that could be classified as "good." In contrast, 41 per cent of the SII students had "poor" in food selection while only 2 per cent of the Missouri students selected foods "poor" in nutritional values.

"Inevitably, more milk was listed by the students whose diets were less valuable," Mrs. Schade said.

The fact that half of the Missouri students were women while all the SII students were men may have accounted for this difference, she said, "since men usually tend to drink more milk and eat larger quantities of protein in food.

Low acceptance of the green, leafy and root vegetables—fewer than 14 SII students said they would eat them. Among the vegetables—spinach, mixed greens, beets, okra, squash, turnip—indicates the need for finding ways to encourage better acceptance of these foods, Mrs. Schade said.

3 Home Ec Chairmen To Attend Conference

Three department chairmen from the School of Home Economics at SII—Bettye Jane Johnson, Bonnie Pauling and Anna Carol Fults—will attend the annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Detroit June 24-27.

Little Grassy Offers Fun in the Sun To Alumni Campers Every Summer

By Gary Eidson

Boating, fishing, horseback riding, no dishes plus the enjoyment of seeing old friends await alumni campers each year.

These are but a few of the benefits offered by Southern's Alumni Family Vacation Camp at Little Grassy Lake each August.

This new approach to family recreation was started seven years ago. Since then, alumni of all ages have been enjoying a week of true relaxation without the usual high expenses.

The idea of alumni camping was started by the University of California in 1944. SIU gave the idea a try. The participants enjoyed it so much that the two-week sessions had to be extended to four one-week sessions to accommodate the increased participation.

Universities and colleges throughout the country are beginning similar camp programs. These programs give the alumni a chance to get together in a relaxed atmosphere.

The alumni camps have two distinct advantages over similar camp vacations. It is not expensive, and campers are around people with whom they have something in common.

As for the organization of the activities and the attitude of the camp, counselor Dan Cochran, a recreation graduate student, said it is so very well. "The people really enjoy themselves. It is undoubtedly one of the best camps I have ever attended."

Another outstanding feature of the alumni camp is the non-existence of an "everybody out of the pool" atmosphere. Campers are free to do as they please. Idealized, of course, a vision is provided for the children and parents by competent counselors.

Aside from the well-planned child's entertainment the campers look forward to the annual Steak Fry and Skit Night. Skit Night features acts performed by counselors and campers.

The alumni camp is sure to continue to grow, according to Robert Odanell, executive director of the Alumni Association, "We haven't had a dissatisfied customer yet."

This year's camp dates are from August 2 through August 29.

SIU Couple Bound For Africa On Two-Year Teaching Tour

Ronald Stockton, reared in Senes and Benton, and his wife, Jane, who reside in Carbondale, have adventure-sports spirits that are taking them to Africa.

"We have no delusions about being missionaries of good will," she said. "We both believe that experiencing a different culture will be good for us. I think they have something to offer us. Just as the United States has something to offer people from other countries.

She has resigned her post as a stenographer in the SIU Division of University Extension and he has ceased his graduate studies in history at SIU to take advantage of a U.S. Agency for International Development program to go to one of four countries in Africa to teach in Tanganyika, Zambia, Uganda or Kenya.

They don't know where they'll be—whether they'll be in a cold climate, which is possible, or in a country where it is very, very hot. They don't know whether they will be living in a city apartment, house in a village, or doing the best they can out in the bush country.

But they are ready and eager to go. Wherever it is, he will teach a history course in the high schools and will be paid by the government of the country where he teaches.

The Stocktons, who reside in Cartersville, will leave for Columbia University in New York July 3 for a six week orientation program. Then they leave for East Africa for two more weeks of orientation before he is given his two-year assignment. If they are assigned to the highlands of Kenya, Mrs. Stockton said, they are told they will sleep under three blankets.

Mrs. Stockton has a degree in home economics and might teach or work in an office if such a situation arises.

They were married in December, 1943, and took received their baccalaureate degree from Southern in June, 1943.

Senate Action on Rights Sets Up Campaign Issue

Goldwater Stand on Bill Dismays GOP Moderates, Pleases South

Compiled From Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Sen. Barry Goldwater disclosed Thursday night his decision to vote against the civil rights bill. This declaration by the Arizona senator, who claims enough delegue votes for a first-ballot nomination as the Republican presidential candidate, was greeted by dismay in the moderate wing of the GOP. But it was viewed by Southern Democrats as a boost to his chances in the South.

Goldwater, in a Senate speech, said he is "unalterably opposed to discrimination of any sort" but is against the bill because two parts of it "fly in the face of the Constitution." He added that he feels these two sections -- the public accommodations and equal employment titles -- are a threat to individual freedoms.

Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who once entertained Goldwater for the GOP nomination, promptly denounced Goldwater. He was not informed and said Goldwater could not have defeated President Johnson in November had he been a candidate.

Scranton's concern was echoed by such G.O.P. liberal spokesmen as New York's senators, Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob J.avis, who have been opposing Goldwater's nomination.

But Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., voiced another reaction when he said Goldwater's stand greatly increases his chances for defeating Johnson in the South.

Goldwater told the Senate, "I had hoped to be able to vote 'yes' on this measure as I have on the civil rights measure which preceded it. "But I cannot in good conscience to the oath that I took when assuming office to set my vote in the affirmative."

Goldwater said that except for the sections banning discrimination in places of public accommodation and in employment, the bill could have been supported by the Senate.

But with that disclaimer, he said, he must vote no. These parts of the bill, he said, had not been measuredly improved by the Senate amendments drafted by leaders of both parties as a substitute for the House-passed bill.

"I LOOK! THE SENATOR'S TAKING A FIRM STAND" Goldwater was one of six Republicans out of 35 senators who voted last week against invoking the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule to break a Southern filibuster against the civil rights measure. Goldwater said he would give genuine effect to the bill's prohibitions will require "the creation of a federal police force of mammoth proportions."

He charged that "It also lads fair to results in the development of an 'informers' psychology in great areas of our national life," with "neighbors spying on neighbors, workers spying on workers, businessmen spying on businessmen, where those who would harass their fellow citizens for selfish and narrow purposes will have ample inducement to do so."

Main Provisions of Bill at a Glance

WASHINGTON--Here at a glance are the features of the civil rights bill as amended by the Senate: "Establishments offering food, lodging, gasoline and entertainment to the public must serve all persons without discrimination, Owner-occupied rooming houses with five or more rooms for rent are exempt. Discrimination in employment is prohibited. The ban applies to employees, labor unions, hiring halls and employment agencies and covers hiring, firing, promotions, pay and other conditions of employment.

Authority is provided for cutting federal aid programs if discrimination is found in their administration by state or local authorities.

The attorney general is empowered to bring suits for the integration of public schools and of public facilities such as parks, playgrounds and swimming pools upon receipt of complaints from individuals. This is to be done with the approval of the Attorney General.

Federal financial and technical aid is also authorized.

A Community Relations Service is established in the Department of Commerce to assist local communities in resolving disputes.

Dirksen Had Key Role in Rights Compromise

Illinois Republican Sen. Everett Dirksen is chiefly responsible for the final form of the civil rights bill which was completed by the Senate this week.

Dirksen, Senate minority leader, engineered the bipartisan revamping of the bill which is credited with enabling the Senate to secure a favorable vote for cloture and bring the bill up for a vote. He worked for both sides of the Senate chamber have agreed that the Dirksen bill is an improvement over the bill which passed the House in February by a 290 to 130 vote.

Dirksen saw to it that amendments to the bill paid some deference to "our right, property rights and gradualism."

It was Dirksen who called together Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate to meet with Justice Department officials and negotiate a "compromise" bill.

Dirksen worked out dozens of possible amendments to this bill. Many of these were discarded during the bipartisan discussions, but the final product was a bill acceptable to many more Senators.

On June 10 the Senate voted 71-29 to invoke cloture and shut off the 87-day Southern filibuster against the measure.

President Lyndon Johnson says he hopes the 1964 civil rights bill can be signed into law before the Fourth of July.

The Senate version must first be accepted by the House. House leaders believe it is will be approved without difficulty, but that they concede that it may take a week or longer to get the bill through the House Rules Committee.

There seems only a remote possibility that House disagreement with the Senate bill could result in a conference committee and thereby delay final approval of the bill.
The veteran Turkish leader, in asking for a confidence vote, had warned legislators he would quit and cancel his Washington trip if he did not receive solid backing from Parliament. He said this support would strengthen his hand in dealing with the crisis.

After vote, Inouu told news­men he considered the mar­gin in his favor too slim to stay on. He said he would consult with his cabinet and then submit his resignation to President Cemal Gurse.

Rebels Reported

Active in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Con­go.—Alberville, capital of North Katanga on the shores of Lake Tanganyika, is be­lieved to have fallen to anti­government rebels, messages reaching Leopoldville said Friday.

One airline pilot reported the city's airfield was thick with armed men and truck­loads of rebels were reported heading toward the town from the north.

Messages from Alberville and Elisabethville said the city's European population of about 200 was in a state of panic. A number of whites escaped from Alberville Thursday night aboard a lake steamer, these messages said.

CONCORD, Calif.—President Johnson scoffed Friday at a House speech advocating United States military action in the Congo. The White House was no longer closed to the idea of sending troops to stop a rebellion against the Congo government, however.

The chief executive flew to Concord, 30 miles east of San Francisco, to break ground for the bay area's 75-mile rapid-transit system.

Arguing that the federal government has a responsibility to help solve big-city transit problems, Johnson said, “The idea that we are 50 separate countries, that the federal government can't represent the destiny of 190 million people—this must not be allowed to continue any longer.” Johnson went on to say he did not believe the American people “want to run a losing race with change” and he added, “We do not intend to permit America to stagnate.”

Turkish Prime Minister Threatens to Quit Post

ANKARA, Turkey—Prime Minister Ismet Inonu threatened Friday to quit after fail­ing to receive clear backing from Parliament on his handling of the Cyprus prob­lem, but then changed his mind and said he would stay in office, if he added that he would leave as scheduled Sunday for Washington to confer with President Johnson.

Inouu, who formed a minor­ity government at Christmas time last year, had been scheduled to go to Wash­ington this weekend to con­fer with President Johnson on the Cyprus crisis, which involves communal fighting between Cypriots of Turkish descent. The latter far outnumber the former.

Inouu could muster only 199 votes against 95 for the combined opposition, with two abstentions.

Johnson said the Congolese “have been faced with a great moral crisis” when it decided to send troops to the Congo.

Johnson added that he was “very pleased” with the House's decision to authorize $500,000 to help solve big-city transit problems, but he warned that the federal government has a responsibility to help solve big-city transit problems, Johnson said, “The idea that we are 50 separate countries, that the federal government can't represent the destiny of 190 million people—this must not be allowed to continue any longer.” Johnson went on to say he did not believe the American people “want to run a losing race with change” and he added, “We do not intend to permit America to stagnate.”

SIU Mat Men Seek Honors In New York

Three members of SIU's wrestling team and a former Saluki mat star will be seeking national wrestling honors Monday when they compete in the annual AAU championships at the New York World's Fair. Veterans Terry Finn and Dan DeVito, freshman Larry Baron and former Saluki standout Lee Grubbs will compete with more than 100 amateur wrestlers for AAU titles throughout the five-day meet.

Larry Kristoff, Saluki alumnus and defending AAU heavyweight champion, will not defend his title because of a shoulder injury. According to coach Jim Wilkinson, the six-foot, 220-pound senior tore some ligaments in his right shoulder during a practice session earlier this month and has been out of action since.

Finn, a crafty little senior from Oak Lawn and defending NCAA 113-pound champion, is given the best chance of the four Salukis entering the AAU finals to emerge with a national title.

Finn, along with DeVito and Baron, will wrestle both freestyle and Greco-Roman style. DeVito, a junior, will compete in the 154-pound division; while Baron, East Lynden, will wrestle at 125 pounds. Grubbs, an SIU graduate student, will wrestle only Greco-Roman style in the 138-pound class.

Senate Passes Civil Rights Bill

(Continued from Page 1) action and send the bill to the Rules Committee, where Smith plans to use his power to delay the inevitable final passage as long as he can.

Under House rules, that is about eight days, House leaders now plan to bring the bill out of committee for a vote on Tuesday, June 30, well within the July 3 deadline, when the House plans to recess for the Republican National Convention.

The bill played a part in the Republican presidential nomination scramble. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said that he would vote against the bill in the final vote. His opponent for the GOP nomination, Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, said such a stand would make it impossible for the senator to defeat President Johnson in the November election.

Goldwater accused Scranton of asking him to sell out his principles by supporting the bill. Goldwater has said he would vote against the bill because he regards as unconstitutional its provisions for elimination of discrimination in public accommodations and in employment.
