Ogilvie invites participation in political process

By W. Allen Manning

Richard B. Ogilvie, Republican candidate for governor, Friday night invited all young people to take part in the political process.

Speaking to a crowd of mostly young people at the Moo & Cackle parking lot, Ogilvie said, "The issues will be decided whether or not you participate. They will be decided better if you do participate. If you don't like the Republican Party, join the Democrats. Don't just stand there and pooh.'"

Ogilvie said that once he was an angry young man, and after Richard Nixon lost the 1960 election by one vote per precinct in Illinois, he made up his mind to do something about it. In 1962 he was elected Sheriff of Cook County and four years later President of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

"Anyone can seek elective office. I'm the first member of my family to run for office and I had no friends to help. All it takes is hard work."

Ogilvie's appearance at SIU was his 11th campus speech of the week. He said he started the campaign to young people after watching the Democratic national convention.

"I asked my campaign directors to organize college tours because the Republican Party offers opportunity for expression. The Democratic Party does not. I won a rough primary fight—on the other hand, one man picked the entire Democratic state ticket. If you want to vote for (Richard) Daley, he should run for governor." Val Oshel, GOP candidate for Congress, spoke briefly and called for a return to sound fiscal and constitutional government in the United States.

Gale William, state representative from Murphysboro who introduced Ogilvie, addressed a handful of persons displaying "Shapiro for Governor" signs by saying, "I am glad to see both political parties represented here. Thank goodness we have a Republican Party to turn to in 1968."
Fuller lecture to be telecast

R. Buckingham Fuller, SIU professor, will speak before a special convocation at Rhode Island University Monday and will be heard and seen simultaneously in Carbondale.

In the first such television hookup at SIU, transmitted by special telephone lines, students and staff of the Department of Design at SIU will hear Fuller lecture to this Rhode Island audience. He will discuss science, technology and human welfare.

The broadcast will be aired at 6:30 p.m. Monday and will be co-sponsored by the Department of Geography at Rhode Island and the SIU Department of Design.

Wildlife group to see fish

The Fish and Wildlife Association will take a field trip to Lewis experimental catfish farm Sunday. Members and potential members will leave at 8:30 a.m. from the rear of the Life Science Building. Transportation is available.

Animal sketches on exhibit

An exhibit of photographs and sketches illustrating "Colors and Patterns in the Animal Kingdom" is on display at the SIU Museum until Oct. 27.

The exhibition is based on the work of A. Portmann of Basle, Switzerland, in exploring his theories concerning the nature and function of variations in markings on animals, which he believes are not explained by the evolutionary theory but which instead serve as recognizable function except that of self-representation.

A traveling exhibit from the Smithsonian Institution, the exhibit is sponsored by the CIBA Corporation of Switzerland.

The museum showing is sponsored by the SIU Department of Zoology. It is open to the public without charge. Museum visiting hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays.

'The Volunteer Committee' invites social workers

A new group open to former student and area individuals and national social or religious service volunteers is being formed this quarter.

Fred Stouder and David Hayden, organizers of the proposed Committee of Volunteers, said the objective of the group is "to develop human potential, both internationally and nationally, through a program of identifying, discussing and acting upon the problem areas."

The proposed organization will be part of the national Committee of Return Volunteers which is limited to international social service volunteers.

Persons interested in joining the local group may contact either Stouder or Hayden at the Community Development Services Office.

They said the proposed group will be open to persons who have served in such organizations as International Veterinary Services, African-American Institute, VISTA, Head Start, SNOC Summer Project, American Friends Service Committee and other religious or social volunteer organizations.

Leaflets will be circulated to notify interested persons of the next meeting. The organizers and eight other graduate students involved in the group and presently seeking members.

Amateur radio group to meet Tuesday night

The SIU Amateur Radio Club will hold its first meeting of the fall quarter at 9:15 p.m. Tuesday, in Tech D-104. Code and theory classes will be discussed and times for the classes will be set. The operation of the club station, WA9FGX, will also be discussed.

The public is invited.

Admissions listed by Health Service

The University Health Service admitted the following students Friday: Ronetta Mosley, 631 Newly Hall, Marti Filber, 716 S. University; and Steve Stewart, Pierce Hall.

Sunday's guest was: David Garrison, 602 E. College; Michael Wachter, Carbondale; John Polson, 106 Small Group Housing; and Mona Myatt, Saluki Arms.

Viet people ready for peace, Speaker tells SIU audience

By Bob Williams.

"The people in Vietnam are ready for peace at any time," according to John A. Sullivan, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), Sullivan was invited to "say publicly in America what would mean an improvement if said publicly in Vietnam." Sullivan showed a concern for the Paris peace talks, saying that he felt the North Vietnamese entered the talks with attached pre-conditioned clauses, which would have to be reached before any progress could be achieved.

He also stated that he believed the Paris talks were in a state of neutralization because of a U.S. refusal to budger on major issues and that the U.S. is still seeking to win in Paris what hasn't been achieved on the battlefield.

Answering a question concerning the attitudes of the Vietnamese people, Sullivan said, "the Saigonese agree that they are living under a government that is controlled and staffed by people that serve only the 'yes men' for the Americans." He felt that the hearts of the Vietnamese people were "not at all peaceable.

A Harvard graduate, Sullivan served during WW II as a German broadcast specialist and propaganda analyst as well as a counter-intelligence agent for the CIA. His latest endeavors are speaking to concerned groups on Vietnam peace prospects.

Why would Bic torment this dazzling beauty?

Why?

To introduce the most elegant pen on campus.

Expensive new Bic® Clip for big ads 49¢

Only Bic would dare to torment a beauty like this. Not the girl. It's the new solid black Bic Clip®. Designed for scholarship athletes, lucky card players and other rich campus societies who can afford the expensive ink pen price.

But be fore those delicate good looks fool you. Despite horrible punishment by mod scenics, the elegant Bic Clip still Write first time, every time.

Everything you want in a fine pen, you'll find in the new Bic Clip. It's retracable, refillable, comes in 8 barrel colors. And the all Bic pen, like first time, every time... no matter what devilish abuse student devise for it.

Parental action upon blue cards to determine hours of SIU coeds

What parents do with some small blue cards will determine whether SIU coeds will receive self-determined hours.

Parents of girls who fill out an application for self-determined hours will receive a letter from the Dean of Students' Office explaining the experiment, said Jim Osberg, assistant to the Dean of Students.

The blue cards are to be returned by the parents, giving up any refusing permission. Those girls who are given permission will receive passes with their names on them. These passes plus Student Identification Cards must be presented for girls to gain admission to on-campus dorms after the regular closing hours, Osberg said.

The problem of administering the self-determined hours for off-campus dorms will be left to the individual dorms, said Osberg.

According to Osberg, approximately 1,821 to 2,200 girls are eligible to apply for self-determined hours.

Osberg considered the experiment completely successful so far, saying that the grades of the girls who participated didn't drop significantly. The system was tried for the first time spring quarter and was repeated summer quarter.

Girls eligible include sophomores with 64-95 hours with a grade point average of 3.25 and seniors with 90 hours or more who are in good standing. Women who are at least 21 years old and in good standing need not have parental permission.

Nature preserve to be dedicated

Public ceremonies dedication of the Knox Nature Reserve, which has been given to SIU for teaching and research purposes, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Kenneth B. Miller, director of the SIU Foundation, said.

The 55-acre tract near Sparia was presented to the University through the Foundation by Mr. and Mrs. William Kroiz of Sparia for use by the staff and students of the university's department of governmental and sociology departments.

It will be open to the public, however, Miller said.

The dedication will be held at the park, located a mile south of Sparia on State Route 4.

Chemists to hear Home Ec teacher

Rose Padgett, chairman of the Department of Clothing and Textiles, has been invited to read a paper on her research dealing with insect damage to fabrics. The audience will be the Midwest Regional Conference of the American Chemical Society.

This will be her third report to the ACE group.

This year she will report on "Microscopic Examination of Insect Damage to Polyester-Wool and Acrylic-Wool Fabric Blends." The meeting will be held at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan.

Her paper will be given Oct. 31.

Playtex invents the first-day tampon

(We took the inside out to show you how different it is.)

Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboard).

Inside: it's so extra absorbent... it even protects on the first day. Your first day.

In every lab test against the old cardboard kind... the Playtex tampon was always more absorbent. As a matter of fact, it absorbed more than the leading regular tampon.

Because it's different. Actually adapts to you. It flowers out. Fluffs out. Designed to protect every inside inch of you. So the chance of a mishap is almost zero!

Specialization robs man of ability to see totality of information—Fuller

By Antonio Pielaa

The trouble with us, says R. Buckminster Fuller, is that we are always on the verge of an ominous situation because we have powerful insights in a variety of fields and also because we have an almost total inventory of unique visions of universe.

"Therefore, society tends to think stastically and is always being surprised, often uncomfortably, sometimes fatally. Lacking the dynamic approach, it is difficult for humanitarians to get out of its static fixations and specifically to see great trends evolving.

R. Buckminster Fuller is one of those very rare individuals who can still publish slick magazines for contributions and yet at the same time make anti-magazines like "Anarchy" of London joyously exclaim in their cover, "Bucky in Paris!" This fact alone may justify that he has been awarded concurrently with the creator of "Who's Who in America" they have given the "Presidency of the United States.

In this world where you are told to trust anybody over 30 because they only taught you that by 40, hey, hey, chew your little troubles away, Bucky Fuller at 73 is a nature's wonder. He is a dreamer of dreams that never were and, some say, the "lrost intelligent genius of industrialization building". Yet he is a crackpot enough to get his message through to a variety of audiences ranging from the pillars of the society to students of life, love and liberal arts, who cheer to his belief that there are the facts but don't know anything about building the society of tomorrow.

When Fuller lectures, many S.U. students have learned to prepare a lunch box and bring it along. After all it took God six days to build the Garden of Eden, and the current age and any attempts to correct it will also take their time. Those who have attended S.U. but failed to participate in these comparatively rare but nonetheless frequently upcoming sessions have nobody but themselves to blame for Bucky Fuller is an anticipator of the world to come. Something they say is not easy to do but not as much so as the contrast between today and tomorrow when you try to find him.

The address is 7111/2 S., University, It is not the Mou and Cackleburgia of the Shopping Center. It is not Miller's wedding dresses or Mr. Robert's either. Forget the wonderful world of Pepsi and the ringing of odd clocks and look upstairs, there it is, with a sign that in a place like that almost knocks you down. The World Records Inventory. The name of that agency that functions with federal money is good. It reminds you that the world of Bucky Fuller is not just hamburgers and Pepsi. Yet there is a point of convergence with wedding-officials, a picture that brings memories back to July 12, 1917, the date he married Anne Howlett. Honestly, I did not expect to find that kind of a picture when Fuller granted some of his busy time last fall. Pictures of sailing boats and dynamation world maps seemed quite all right, but a wedding picture... It seemed cheesecackey. It was there and then I realized that however hard I may try, I shall forever understand the world of Bucky Fuller. Yet it fascinates me.

During the interview Fuller repeatedly mentioned something that has relevance in regard to this story, He underlined that the generation of the schools is the first generation that grew under the influence of television. This is the first generation that learned to think in terms of the world, not in terms of one place, he said.

Actually this follows the McLuhan-Ellul philosophy, although it must be kept in mind that it was Bucky Fuller who to a large extent originated the framework of those two theorists. Now after Columbia, Berlin, Sorbonne and Mexico City many puzzled observers ask: who's the next? Yet the crucial question may be: what's next? For if the Fullerrists are right in their hypothesis that a new page was begun in world history with the coming of television and this generation that grew up with this magic box, then we shall prepare for a real confrontation between those who were born from the tube and those who in their early life were deprived of the blessings and curse of it. This is inevitable because of the huge difference in their value systems.

It is easy to label those who organized the uprisings at Columbia, Berlin, Sorbonne and Mexico City as a bunch of minority radicals and charge that they were spiritually led by "pseudo-intellectuals." However, it is unquestionably true that whatever the universities have been havens of freedom of thought, they have always attracted dissidents and radicals just as they have attracted conservatives. There certainly was a radical minority at Sorbonne in 1930's or 1950's, as there must have been one at Columbia. Nobody paid much attention to those minorities then because the minority that sees the pace on the campus was more interested in party raids and other pranks than worrying about the world outside. Had there been a war in Vietnam, hardly anybody would have questioned its justification, because the shoddy pictures they print in the newspapers do not convey the sounds and screams of the war, nor do they give to the disidents the power a videocap does. It can even be argued that without television there would have been no strength in the civil rights fight. And Ralph Abernathy is the first person to testify that it was television that made Stokely Carmichael, "Among his supporters there are not more than 50 Negroes. But there are 300 television and newspaper reporters," bechaged recently. This may be false, this may be in any case it implies the dangers we face in today's society.

Jacques Ellul, whose definition of propaganda is all-encompassing, maintains that the intellectuals are the best target a propaganda can ask. First, they deal in abstract information, much of which they can't verify; second, because—being intellectuals—they feel that they must have and express authoritative opinions on all subjects of moments, even on those who no human being could form accurately; and finally, because they believe that their powers of judgment are such that they can distinguish sense from nonsense.

Maybe it is only proper to quote an excerpt from the Cox Commission's report, "Crisis at Columbia."

"We reject the view that ascribes the April and May disturbances primarily to a conspiracy of student revolutionaries. That demodology is no less false than the naive radical doctrine that attributes all wars, racial injustices, and poverty to the machininations of a capitalist and militarist 'establishment.' Student revolutionists within SDS planned turbulent confrontations and revolutionary tactics. They manipulated facts in ways that created distrust and bred unwarranted antagonism. There apparently was an occasional raider of wider revolution to overthrow the present political system. A very few revolutionists may have been in dead earnest. More, we suspect, were half in dreamland, feverishly discussing romantic tactics but hardly contemplating realistic execution. Part of the responsibility for the disturbances rests upon the revolutionaries continuously seeking which are the limits of American government's tolerance; the universities but their total number was small and their activities were only the catalyst..."

Television has bred a new generation. It has become the medium Joseph Goebbels lacked. It should become an early-warning system for us and our society. People don't cause riots, circumstances do. The problems of Sorbonne and Mexico City at least had been quite visible for a long time, yet when the students revolted everybody seemed surprised. The cameras of television had been where the action was—the action of superficiality and glitter. The gentlemens of the press had reported trivialities. The early-warning system had failed but the television generation did not fail to live up to its fame as an action generation.
Apollo 7 launch successful; astronauts ‘having a ball’

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON—Three excited Apollo 7 astronauts flashed into space Friday, whipped through critical maneuvers and set up housekeeping in the first test of whether America’s newest, biggest rocket has the stamina to carry men to the moon.

“We’re having a ball,” reported veteran Command Pilot Walter M. Schirra Jr., as he guided Apollo through the first of its 11-day Voyager-like times around the earth.

He took time out for a hot cup of coffee and grabbed a quick lunch with his two co-pilots, Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham, each making his first space trip.

“It’s a fantastic world up here,” one of them exclaimed. At about 10:30 a.m., Mission Control asked, “Does the space craft look good for 18 re- entry?”

Schirra answered loud and clear, “Eighteen revolutions a day.”

With that, Mission Control gave them the go-ahead for another full day as they defied their heavy spacecraft and bubble helmets and donned their light covers, breathing the oxygen in the cabin. They moved freely about the ship discovering that their movements did not throw the craft out of position, and used such newfangled luxuries as hot and cold running water.

It came near the end of the first day that started with a wild ride aboard the most powerful rocket man has ever ridden.

Their hearts racing, the trio blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 11:03 a.m. (EDT) with their Saturn IB rocket pouring out the furious power of more than a million pounds of liquid fuel.

Ten minutes later, they cut the last of the engines and glided into a nearly perfect orbit. Their egg-shaped path ranged from 140 to 183 miles above the earth, a shade higher than the planned 142 by 176 miles.

“She’s riding nice, a little noisy now . . . riding like a dream,” Schirra reported from space on the first leg of the 4.5 million mile trip. At 1:45 p.m., the crew of the Apollo 7, still connected to the silenced second stage of the Saturn IB began the crucial dump of surplus fuel in the rocket tanks. This set up the next maneuvers to be completed Saturday when Apollo 7 attempts to track down the spent rocket and rendezvous with it.

This is a vital element in the ultimate moon flight when the small space craft with two men aboard, fresh from the lunar landing, tracks down and docks with the mother ship, orbiting the moon.

With the mission just three hours old, the crew kicked away from the emptied and now safe second-stage of the rocket. Then the Apollo moved about 500 feet, closed the gap and faced the 58-foot rocket.

5 Soviet intellectuals sentenced for protest

Moscow (AP)—Three Soviet intellectuals were sentenced Friday to relatively light terms in exile from Moscow and two others were sent to labor camps for staging a public protest in Red Square against the invasion of Czechoslovakia. After three days of testimony by government denun- ciations of the invasion, the five were convicted of disturbing public order and slander- ing the Soviet Union. They had been arrested after demonstrat- ing for about three minutes-Aug. 25.

The organizers—Pavel Lit- vinov, grandson of Stalin’s foreign minister, and Mrs. Larisa Daniel, wife of an imprisoned writer—were banned, from Moscow for five and four years respectively, Konstantin Babitsky, a spe- cialist in the history of the Russian language, was exiled for three years.

Their companions, Vla- dimir Dremljuga and Vadin Delone, were sentenced to la- bor camps for three years and two years and 10 months respectively, A relative of Litvinov said all five received appeal.

Twelve demonstrators were arrested, but only those carrying signs were held for trial. It was the only public protest to the invasion so far known to have been organized by Soviet citizens.

The prosecutor recom- mended that the court invoke the rarely used exile provi- sion for Litvinov, Babitsky and Mrs. Daniel because they were first-offenders. The others had previous records.

Delone for unauthorized demo- nstrating.

A court spokesman said the place of exile would be de- cided soon by the Soviet Min- istry of Public Order. He did not name Siberia, but said the site would be far from Mos- cow and “not in a resort.”

The exiled persons would be forbidden to return to Moscow until their terms expire.

Friends and relatives of the prisoners were pleased with the exile verdicts. They had expected all five to get the maximum sentence, three years in a labor camp.

Western newsmen and the general public were barred from the trial. A relative who was in the courtroom throughout quoted Litvinov as saying in his closing remarks, “Freedom is important for all of us. The more freedom we have, the better off is our enti- re country.”

Johnston might issue call for special session

By Jerry T. Bauch

(Associated Press Writer)

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Friday he may call the Senate back into special session to ratify the nuclear nonproliferation treaty rather than wait until the new session in January, as Senate leaders plan.

The President said delays could force the United States to face a dilemma of whether to pay to keep new nuclear powers from being born before the Senate acts.

Johnson taped his radio and television news conference shortly before Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., told the Senate the pact to halt the spread of nuclear arms could not be brought up in the session now ending.

Mansfield said arrangements have been made for making the treaty the first order of business of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the new session in January.

As for Johnson's consideration of a special session before then, Mansfield told newsmen, "We will cross that bridge when we come to it."

Johnson said, "I know that the pressures of the election are upon us, but so are the responsibilities we were elected to fulfill. I hope the Senate will act now, with the highest interests of the nation in mind."

"If members of the Senate fail to act now, the President said, "I shall, after consulting with other world leaders and leaders of the Senate, seriously consider calling the Senate into special session.

"I consider the adoption of this treaty important to the security of our nation and world peace."

White House press secretary George Christian declined to say what world leaders might be involved. Nor would be comment on whether Johnson might summon the Senate back into session earlier than Nov. 5, the end of the present session.

Johnson said he fears that forces working against the treaty in other countries will gain strength quickly and an increasing number of countries "will see it in their national interest to go nuclear."

Johnson in raising the specter of dire consequences from such a development, said the United States could be faced with this dilemma: "If we do not withdraw our influence and commitment from areas of the world which are vital to our interests, "Having other nations trigger a nuclear conflict which could involve us,

Under the treaty, nuclear powers would agree not to give away nuclear information and non-nuclear nations would agree not to seek to become producers of atomic weapons.

Restaurant. There he talked to the mayor (Mayor D. Blaney Miller) and William Bud Rick Sr., "Keene saw.

Keene said that now a person fills out an application with the city clerk who is also secretary of the new nuclear-nonproliferation committee. The committee then considers the application and make a recommendation to the mayor.

"I am present it to the council (city Council) for their approval or disapproval," Keene said. "I think this procedure is in the public interest."

Trap fails; enemy troops escape

SAIGON (AP) — In a battle that swept through rice paddies and thick jungle foliage, U.S. troops tried to trap 300 enemy troops of the 180th Infan corridor to Saigon Friday but most escaped. The American, however, captured another weapons cache.

The battle began on Thursday when 400 U.S., 25th Divisi

While fighting the battle was a disappointment to the U.S. Command, the troops seized 2 1/2 tons of enemy supplies.

An enemy defector led 25th Division special forces to two muni tions stockpiles five miles south of the battlefield.

The cache included 53 carbines, 150 mortar shells, 450 hand grenades, 300 Chinese-made Claymore mines, about 8,000 rounds of AK-47 ammunition and other supplies.

In the northern part of the country, U.S. 101st Airborne Division troops four miles east of Hue uncov tons of rice—enough to feed a 500-man enemy battalion for about 1 1/2 months.

South Vietnamese troops found another 20 tons of rice along with a number of weap and ammunition 18 miles north of Hue.

U.S. officers say the seizure of hundreds of tons of enemy munitions and feed in recent weeks is due to better intelligence and more intensive ali ted sweeps and has seriously disrupted Communist plans for an offensive.

In the air, a U.S. Marine helicopter crew was carrying a crew of four and four passen gers and a twin-rotor Marine CH-46 with a crew of four colli ded 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, Friday, killing all aboard.

The U.S. Command said the two helicopters were believed to be hauling supplies in sup ort of U.S. 1st Marine Division units operating near Hill 52, a marine fire base. They collided at about 1,800 feet and both were destroyed. U.S. fighter-bombers flew 124 missions over North Viet Name on shop window.

SAIGON—The name on the shop window was a reminder of one of the most harrowing moments in Vietnam. The name was that of a woman who had worked in the back room of a small shop. Her name was Jane. She was killed by enemy soldiers.

The shop was located near the scene of the battle that took place on Thursday.

During the battle, the shop was occupied by enemy soldiers who used it as a vantage point. When the soldiers left, they took with them the only weapons cache they could find in the area.

According to local residents, the shop had been closed for several days prior to the battle. It was believed that the shop owner had fled to avoid capture.

"Paint In"

By Mary Frazer

Several of the rooms in Salisbury Arms dormitory are taking on new looks.

Twenty-two SIU coeds are trying their hand at interior decorating and are "having a ball."

The girls requested permission to paint the rooms from the managers of the dormitory. The answer was yes.

The second step was to select the paint colors.

The girls said they chose them according to the mood and atmosphere they hoped to create when finished.

Thus the colors varied from pale brilliants.

Mr. Bridge and Cindy Nolan wanted a quiet, cool and comfortable room and chose a light blue color for the walls. "Chicken yellow" made our room come alive," Elko and Carolyn Wayne related.

Karen Watson and Delores Brewer selected lime and yellow color combination. The idea came from a paper flower Karen brought with her.

One of the girls who were strawberry pink, deep purple and tawns of various shades.

With enthusiasm left over, several of the girls painted the room on the ground floor.

The idea has caught on in the dorm, and many more girls are now in the decorating business.

Children Concerts to make debut

The SIU Opera Workshop will present the first program in the three-part Children's Concert Series at 3 p.m., Oct. 22 in Shryock Auditorium.

The series is sponsored by the Morning Ende Club, SIU Extension Services and the Department of Music, Mrs. Toni Intravaia is chairman.

The workshop, directed by Margaret Lawrence, will present "The Telephone" by Gian-Carlo Menotti, Scenes from four other popular operas, as well as be presented are: "Aida" of the Conservatory, "Rigoletto" by Verdi, "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme"; "The Witch's Ride" from "Hansel and Gretel"; and "Here Comes the Parade" from "Carmen."

Children attending from Carbondale elementary schools pay a season's fee of $1, and proceeds from the series are donated to the schools to buy musical instruments and recordings.

The second program will be presented by the SIU choirs under the direction of Robert Kingsbury and the final program will be presented by the SIU orchestra.

Bill of Rights policy okayed; J-board under consideration

By Mariann Berry

A policy statement adopted last week by the SIU Student Senate concerning a "Bill of Rights," says the AAUP president at SIU.

At the October 3 senate meeting, the Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students was endorsed by the Student Senate.

Lewis L. Hahn, SIU philosophy professor and president of the local chapter of the AAUP commended that the concept of student rights and freedoms is often misunderstood by the public. "Often too much heat and too little light is shed on the subject," he said.

"The statement," continued Hahn, "is not intended to give students whatever they want, but to let students participate in that for which they have a definite stake and interest. The general public stands to lose if its university faculty and students do not exercise their rights and freedoms."

Quoting the preamble of the statement, Hahn said, "Freedom to teach and freedom to learn are the academic aims of academic freedom. Students should exercise their freedom for their responsibility."

"The primary concern of academic freedom is the development of students, and this statement ties in with the overall purpose of an academic institution," Hahn said.

The statement, drawn up by the joint efforts of the AAUP, the Association of American Colleges, the U.S. Department of Education, and the Organization of American States, was also approved by the AAUP President and the AAUP Board of Directors.

Carbondale Park District planning special tour of southern Illinois

By Jan Pratt

Did you know that Noah landed his ark near SIU? Norman Moore, Carbondale who has planned and will conduct the tour for the Carbondale Park District can tell anyone interested in seeing southern Illinois the story of Noah and his ark during a fall foliage tour Oct. 19.

There are footprints on rocks at High Knob, southern Illinois' third highest point, the grain track and the print of a walking can be found. It is said that Noah departed from High Knob, leading his mule, and the ark floated three miles west to the Garden of the Gods, where there is a rock formation named Noah's Ark, High Knob, which is approximately 900 feet high, will present the autumn foliage beautifully, said Moore.

According to Moore, the Garden of the Gods is the most outstanding scenic attraction of southern Illinois, some of the unusual rock formations include Camel Rock, Noah's Ark, Anvil Rock and Needle's Eye.

Moore said a favorite picture of "camera bugs" is a shot of Camel Rock through Needle's Eye. He continued that this is a difficult and dangerous picture to take.

Moore said the rock formations are ' grotesque because of the iron oxide streaks running through the sandstone.'

Ferne Clyffe is of interest also for its unusual rock formations. The park contains the largest natural amphitheatre in southern Illinois. It is well lighted by natural sunlight.

Moore said beautiful waterfalls and a small man-made lake will also be seen at Ferne Clyffe.

Moore described Hayes Canyon, as "nature's sliding board." Children slide some 100 feet on slick rock to the bottom of the canyon, Moore said.

For the archaeologist Pounds Hollow contains a prehistoric stone fort. Moore said no one knows for certain, but the guess is that a race before the American Indians built the stone wall. A natural rock wall forms three sides and .10 to eight foot high man-made stone wall forms the fourth side.

Moore said this particular stone fort is the largest of the eight found in southern Illinois.

Moore also said the stone fort probably was used for protection, burial, ceremonial purposes and a game trap. He said, "no one really knows, this is pure speculation.

Of interest to the history student are the salt springs near the Saline River. According to Moore, the early French explorers found the Shawnee Indians making salt at the springs by evaporating the salty brine in earthen kettles.

Big Ten highlight aquatics

Two Big Ten swimming powers will highlight SIU's 1968-69 swimming schedule. Fred Hoyle, head of intercollegiate swimming for Illinois, and Don Floyd, head of the regular cross-country squad--Hinton, Bill Bakenzog, Glenn Blackstone, John Holm, and Melvin "Butch" Hohman--will compete against Kansas.

The Jayhawks come to SIU with two standout runners in Rich Elliott and Doug Smith. Illinois also has a two-mile record holder with John Allen, who captured the Iowa mile title for all four years of his high school running career.

Lolich wins new auto; still needs off season job

DETROIT (AP)--Mickey Lolich's clutch pitching got him the accolade of World Series hero but he still needs a car and got him out of the kitchen. But it still hasn't gotten him a new car. Lolich was notified of his kitchen release Friday by Mr. Gary Green, head of Michigan's National Guard.

The Detroit pitcher, a sergeant in the Guard, received a telephone call from Lolich informing him that because of his Series exploits he will be exempt from KP duty.

With the burden lifted from his Lolich can now concentrate of finding off-season employment.

"I play around a little with the drums, and I do some singing," Lolich said with a smile. "Maybe somebody will want me."

The 23-year-old lefthander who gave the Tigers three of their four victories over the St. Louis Cardinals, is due for a raise next season, and so reportedly are a lot of other Tigers, including Manager Mayo Smith.

Lolich has a wife and three-year-old child. Lolich wouldn't risk thinking about them. They are not likely to go hungry in the near future.

Along with other members of the Tigers, Lolich will get about $11,000 as his winning share in the World Series. Lolich is the only player for being the most valuable player in the World Series.

Other fringe benefits range from the renaming of Detroit's "Lolich Drive" to the pleasure of riding Los Angeles-of-the-Pa's fans carrying "Lolich for President" signs during the World Series. Lolich wouldn't be asking the Tiger management for $100,000 when they get their contract to sign in the near future.

"It's a lot better than half that," he explained.

Wisz may call signals today

By Dave Cooper

Coach Dick Towers, still seeking a win to dot the SIU record books in the season's swish-a-rou, as the Saluki grinders meet Lamar Tech today in McAndrew Stadium at 1:30 p.m.

Jim McKay, who has been Southern's starting quarterback since the Tulsa game last season, may lose his starting assignment to sophomore Tom Wisz.

"We'll start either Jim McKay or Tom Wisz, but it'll be game time before we decide," Towers said.

McKay, a junior from Morton Grove, took over during last season's尽量, a year and has started in both games this fall. However, he's being pressed by sophomore Tom Wiz, Tucson, Arizona, and the duel is called a "toss-up" by Towers.

Lamar Tech's coach, Vernon Glass, is still attempting to mold a solid offensive unit together. Sophomore Bobby McDowell has been given the quarterbacking job and it's his small size that takes it away from him. The decision, made by Glass last week, could give the Cardinals more agility instead of subbing in more signal callers.

McDowell, a smallish 5'7", vared into the injury riddled Saluki backfield position, with thirty-two pass completions for 240 yards. However, McKay has nabbed seven times this season for 25 yards, third highest total among Southern backs.

"This win could be the stepping stone to a fine season," Towers said. "We are still working toward the best football season ever in SIU."

Holdouts hurt Black Hawks

CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, the National Hockey League's top one-two punch, were not expected to be in the Chicago Black Hawk lineup Friday night (for the season opener with St. Louis).

Because of apparent salary disputes, Hull announced Thursday he was retiring and Mikita still has not reached terms with General Manager Tommy Ivan on a new contract. Hull, who has scored 414

18-pounder, went all the way last week in the Redbirds 16-14 loss to New Mexico State. He completed 11 of 23 passes for 99 yards. In three games the small pilot has hit on 14 of 36 attempts for 127 yards.

CHICAGO (AP) — College football lost two of its bright young stars today in McAndrew Stadium at 1:30 p.m. The Chicago Black Hawks, the University of Chicago's football team, played their season opener against St. Louis.

The game was a tight one, with the Black Hawks leading 16-14 at halftime.

However, the second half saw the Salukis take over and score three touchdowns, including a late one to win the game 24-16.

The Salukis were led by quarterback Jim McKay, who threw for 180 yards and ran for another 40.

Chicago's offense was hindered by the loss of Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, who were both ruled out of the game due to salary disputes.

The Black Hawks were able to score on a field goal in the first half and another in the fourth quarter, but were unable to stop the Salukis in the final minutes.

The loss was a big one for the Black Hawks, who had high hopes for a turnaround this season after a disappointing 1967 campaign.
