Frank F. Stamberg Dies in Greece

Frank F. Stamberg, a retired member of the SIU faculty, died Tuesday on a Mediterranean cruise.

Mr. Stamberg was on the staff of the School of Business 10 years. He retired in June. At the time of his retirement he held the position of assistant professor of business management.

He and his wife were on an extended world tour. They were near Athens, Greece, at the time of death.

Mr. Stamberg is survived by his wife, Ann, and two children, Frank L. and Neonah Marie, both of New York.

His son has requested that no flowers be sent, but that they be put into a scholarship at Southern.

Mr. Stamberg received his baccalaureate degree from the University of Illinois.

He worked as an engineer with the Standard Oil Co. and as a freelance consulting engineer.

He also attended the John Marshall Law School and has lectured at Roosevelt University in Chicago.

When at SIU, Mr. Stamberg was faculty advisor to the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Primary objectives of the organization are educational and rural development projects. While in Greece, Mr. Stamberg interviewed students who were interested in working with IVS. The most desirable academic backgrounds for persons interested in joining the agency are education, liberal arts, and agricultural programs. Home economics and international services.

Students who missed the opportunity to have an interview with Mr. Stamberg were given further information about the placement services office.

Top European Attractions Listed in Tour

The John F. Kennedy Memorial at Runnymede on the Thames in England, the famous glass factories of Venice and the Michelangelo masterpieces in the Medici Chapels in Florence are but a few of the stops on the itinerary of the European university tour.

The tour, which will depart from New York on July 7 and return on Sept. 5, is sponsored by the Egyptian and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

The tour is open to all students. It will cover more than two dozen cities in nine European nations. The cities to be visited are England, Holland, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Italy, France, Yugoslavia and Greece.

One of the features of the tour is that most accommodations will be in student dormitories or universities in the cities visited. A spokesman for the airline explained that this will give tourists an opportunity to meet and associate with college students from other countries.

The tour is open to all SIU students, faculty members and families as well as others associated with the university on a full-time basis. Price of the tour is $952 per person, which includes all travel, accommodations, meals and transportation.

More Than Viet Nam at Stake

The enemy in Viet Nam is usually described as being Communist, but this has become a value term in recent years. A better description of the enemy in Viet Nam is the National Liberation Front, Red China, and the Soviet Union. The order of these is according to the degree of their military action in Viet Nam.

China is no more an ally with North Viet Nam than she is with the Soviet Union.

North Viet Nam, under the Chinese influence, is a war of conflict in South Viet Nam primarily to hold the divided country. Aside from nationalistic feelings, people in South Viet Nam would benefit from the economy of the south China could not be less concerned with either one of these goals of the North Vietnamese. President Kennedy repeatedly stated the aggressive nature of the foreign policy; the immediate goal is to overtake small nations, control the world.

The letters to the editor:

A Problem-Solving Dialogue Would Help

The Dec. 10 letter from John Wilhain paints a world that no longer makes sense, except in the minds of those who live in fear of some form of world government. We are world of constructed peace not the world of propagandists.

The moral and social validity of Communist infiltration is intentionally or misguided-ly obscured by their implied assumptions. Yet Communism is an implement of a concept as capitalism.

What matters, Mr. Wilhain, is that China could cut the all of killing or being killed in Viet Nam— the poverty, destruction, and threat of the people of Viet Nam experience— the Sheriffs Clark in the South of the nation, the powerlessness of the minorities and the poor in our own land. We are in the human experience that you label as "New Left" and I am concerned with. We are a myth of the history of Communist propaganda.

Mr. Wilhain, look at the world as it is and create a vision as to what it should be. The free world has had to meet force coming from the Communist world since 1945. If we want it with determination, then there is a certain amount of trying to find a more peaceful settlement.

A good thumbnail description of the Viet Nam policy of the U.S. is, that is to have a simple commitment to free nations. The economic value of Southeast Asia is often overlooked in the favor of the humanitarian value of freedom that Viet Nam represents. Viet Nam has little economic value to the United States, but other countries in that area, which might also fall to communism if Viet Nam does, have strategic re- cent to the right of the U.S. economy. Laos, for example, has the world's supply of tin and mon metal as an alloy for making high-speed, hard nose. Laos also has the world's largest reserves of copper, another strategic metal.

The humanitarian value of Viet Nam (i.e., freedom of choice) would be reason enough for the U.S. to stay in Vietnam. When we lose the economic value of its neighbors, we become doubly important to the United States.

Well-Publicized Virtue Is Its Own Reward

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

The poor showing of General Charles de Gaulle in the French elections is being blamed on his stuffy, television image and his lack of a snappy campaign organization. Actually, a bold attempt tooversome these handicaps was made early in the race.

The attempt was made by M. Tommy Pettibon, (top picture) leader of the Swift Branch of Image Engineering, Inc., who managed to secure a private audience with the General. The transcript follows:

M. Pettibon: I'm afraid I'm burning bad news, sir. Our polls show that you are woefully behind, and I most ardently urge you to make every effort to project the warm, friendly, humble personality we all know and love.

The General: You may rise, M. Pettibon. Thank you, sir. Now for example, if you could bring yourself on selected occasions to flash your warm, friendly, humble smile... come on, sir, give it a try.

The General: I am smiling, M. Pettibon; oh, well, perhaps if you altered the corners of your lips to curve upward ever so slightly....

The General: I do not intend to make myself a buffoon. M. Pettibon: of course not, sir. And we don't think you should wear one of your top million "I Like Chuck" buttons, either, Nor with your campaign ribbons.

The General: Chuck? Who is this Chuck?

M. Pettibon: A new nickname for a new age, sir. "Le Grand Charles" somehow doesn't capture the warm, friendly, humble you. And with Charlie's Girls chanting, "I Like Chuck? I Like...."

The General: Charlie's Girls? M. Pettibon: You know, the pretty girls in brief costumes who will jump up and down at your rallies, like pom-poms. While you're shaking each woman's hand, they'll be shouting, "C, D, G, C, G. He's the guy for you and the guy for me!" You can't have rallies without pretty girls. The General: I plan a simple announcement of my candidates on television.

M. Pettibon: Right. The kick off speech. Now about the make-up. We recommend going black on the hair to show youth and vigor will a little silver at the temple to connote wisdom. Plus a few laughter lines around your eyes.

The General: I will say that I have generously decided to go back on President France for another seven years and the voters have made it clear to elect a man. That will suffice for a campaign M. Pettibon: Frankly, sir, I don't sound very folksy. Any rallies, slogans, buttons and pretty girls, will the voters know you are a great man?

The General: I will tell them Good day, young man, M. Pettibon: (desperately) But without some mechanistic slogans, nobody's going to be above you's a great man...

The transcendent era is over. M. Pettibon has been struck by lightning. True, the enemies did finally agree to flash his warm, friendly, humble smile during his television address. Once. But the only result was a widespread rumor that he was suffering from dyspepsia. Which all proves that to be better than nothing.

See 'Red Menace' in Action!

Students for a Democratic Society will exclude no one or member of SDS from participation in its activities. Together with SDS, we serve the fixed, dogmatic, simplistic goals of any organization, SDS wants to promote a genuinely democratic society, we want a free society, without oppression or exploitation. We want to build, not burn, and anyone so minded may join with us.

Our meetings are open to whoever wishes to attend. We expend a lot of effort trying to make our views and our concern public.

And your best chance of seeing the Red Menace in action is to become a well organized and well financed meeting and look.

Michael Harry
Chairman, SDS

See what it has become

The students who are building a society that excludes others are not interested in the "Red Menace". They believe that society has been built on lies and destruction, that people are not free, because some men rule others. They believe, as do most people, in a society that is free, equal, and just.

Michael Harry
Chairman, SDS

The answer is yes, this can be done. This is why we are here.

Image 0x0 to 501x756

The student organizers who have been charged with promoting the "Red Menace" are actually the ones who are脈 stolen. Frankly, the SDS members have been doing a lot of hard work and have been very successful.

The SDS members are not interested in the "Red Menace". They are interested in changing society, not in maintaining it. They are interested in building a society that is free, equal, and just.
Dear Santa

At SIU many students, administrators and faculty members believe Christmas is a time when they are afraid to ask for, or a self-appointed spokesman for the campus, are taking the liberty of making the requests for them. Hence brings:

--John Paul Davis, student body vice president, a book on how to overcome timidity in public speaking (a new stereo).
--The Siler Food Service, two small coffee percolators so the coffee can be poured from the two big urns into progressively smaller pots, thus slowing down the coffee line all the more.

A new and bigger dictionary so it can find impression-sounding words to use instead of ordinary words?
--gold ear rings and bandanas to the top administrators and professors who travel as much as gypsys.
--Icarus, a new and improved flying contraption, will make a fine gift for any student each month.
--United Arabi. for Christians and Israelites so they won't be disturbed over mistakes in the Koran.
--An engraved birthday certificate to the director of the University Center, so he can as an honorary editor of KA that he already has a given name.
--An engagement bag and a wedding ring for all future football players who might receive an NCAA scholarship to SIU.

--reflectedorized "Caution, Squirrel Crossing" signs on the maintenance fences so they can't install on the new Interstate being constructed through Thompson Woods.

--For creative thinking, to the students who started the new craze to decorate the dorm doors even the flash has its drawbacks.
--A Wham Education Building instead of painting or tarring and feathering the classrooms in front of Old Main.
--A new system of dialing for General Telephones that lets you change its rerouting, called an "Out-of-Town" sign for the Carbondale mayor's office.

I can't get a "I Love Students" button for all the Carbondale merchants, so I'll call on members of International Service to enable them to visit SIU for several weeks each quarter.

--Imported Viet Cong booby traps to be used on bicyclists who persistently use the bike path during the night.

--A newspaper that prints only front pages for all the student organizations that feel they should have banner headlines every time it is time to hold a career.

--An award for "Increasing student stimulation to the General Studies Committee for the number of students who have prescribed requirements.

A visit from Florida merchants to the administration to lengthening the spring break to its old nine-day form.

--Liberglass vaulting poles for University Park high school for classes because of Illinois Central High which block the pedestrian crossings.

--A huge award for any student who must negotiate the halls of the University Center at 1 o'clock in the morning.

--Raped recordings which state, "No comment." for all the administrative officials who are called about situations at Camp Breckinridge.

--A questionnaire to be sent to the Student Senate so they can come close to vote in the ROTC referendum, but the men weren't allowed to vote in the poll concerning women's hours.

Modern Version Based on 4th Century Bishop Santa's History Traced to Asia Minor

By Bob Reincke

There is some comfort for those cynical souls who go around humming "Eve of Destruction" and proclaiming "Santa Claus is dead." For St. Nicholas is dead.

He died at 60 at Myra in Asia Minor. Yes, there once was a Santa Claus although he wasn't known by that name. He knew nothing about reindeers and probably cars either.

Our present character, Santa Claus, developed from the St. Nicholas of the Roman Catholic Church, a real character in more ways than one. He is the patron saint of children of wealthy parents in Asia Minor and was born around 270 AD.

As a young man he went to the province of Lycia to study theology, and was chosen bishop of that province quite by mistake while still a young man.

The story has it that the province's bishop had died and the council couldn't decide his successor. So the oldest member of the council decided to write a letter to the church and appoint as bishop the first young man named Nicholas who stepped into the church.

Thus, young Nicholas became St. Nicholas simply by rising early for his morning prayers. After he achieved the bishopric, considerable legend developed around the personality of the popular new bishop. At one time or another he said to have calmed the angry sea, multiplied a scarce supply of food during a famine, and raised to life three children who had been drowned by a nasty innkeeper.

The most popular story was that of the three daughters of a wealthy man who had broken their father's heart by announcing their engagement to three young men. Nicholas being a daddy's boy, came to the rescue and gave each of them three gold pieces to finance their marriage.

And so the legend of the "Three Marriages" entered into folklore in the ancient version of "Black Friday.

With no money for a dowry for his three daughters, it appeared the noblemen was stuck with three prospective old maid unless they didn't perform their duties to married men with dependents in those days.

But our benevolent bishop came to the rescue of the dowryless daughters and was consen-"antly dropped by the household and threw a sack of gold through a window before the marriage of each of the first two daughters. (Sort of an early version of "The Millionaire.")

Then it was time for the third to be married, the suspicious father lay in wait for the mysterious benefactor. And sure enough, he caught the bishop as St. Nicholas broke another window with a sack of gold. Instead of keeping his mouth shut about his discovering the secret, he told St. Nicholas what he knew to the jubilant father spread the word about St. Nicholas' generosity.

Word got around about his benevolence and generosity, and people began to give St. Nicholas gold and jewels each time they received an unexpected gift.

By the time of his death, St. Nicholas had become a legend. His popularity was so widespread that his burial grounds became a shrine and a site for pilgrimages.

The legend continued to spread to other parts of the world. The province of Lycia became understood in the Middle East as early as 800 AD, a group of sailors and merchants from Flari, Italy, Italy, found a small casket back to their home city.

Another shrine was set up at Carth, and when the Crusaders stopped there to and from the wars, they carried the legend back to their homelands.

By the 17th century, the legend had spread through most of Europe. Almost every country developed some type of festival surrounding the legend, and set aside a special St. Nicholas Day.

Most of the European countries pictured St. Nick as a benevolent but somber bishop. All but the Dutch. In their typical fashion, the Dutch saw him as a jolly, chubly little man who brought gifts to children on his day.

It was this image that came to the New World when the Dutch bought New York from the English in the deal of the century. Through the influence of the English, who saw a chance to make money fast, the Americans had merged St. Nicholas Day with Christmas by the beginning of the 19th century.

The modern image and association of Santa Claus with Christmas was further entrenched in this country by Clement C. Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas." In this poem, Moore depicted St. Nick as a jolly little fellow driving eight reindeer over the rooftops to deliver gifts on Christmas Eve.

Moore's poem was first published in 1822, and Santa's gay costume came about 15 years later when cartoonist Thomas Nast drew Santa in a bright red, fur-trimmed costume.

Charles Dickens put in his hits two-too, with his "A Christmas Carol." In this tale, Bob Cratchit's going into debt to buy gifts for his son, Tiny Tim, was somewhat an early version of our Christmas clubs.

From these simple beginnings, modern America has built a jolly old St. Nick into one of the most prestigious and profitable characters of all time.

Little did Nicholas know of the consequences that would follow when he opened the door of that church about 1,700 years ago.

Store, Museum Shop Offer Yule Gifts

By Evelyn Augustin

If you're shopping for a Christmas gift for the 'person who has everything,' don't give up hope until you've visited the gift shop at the SIU museum and the University Book Store.

Located on the south side of Alfeld Hall, the gift shop has a wide array of imported goods sure to please the receiver and also the giver, for the prices are geared to the student budget.

Two items not found in the average American home, a hand-carved wooden monk from Mexico and a poinsettia set (sorry, no poison supplied) made by the aboriginals in Taiwan, would be unusual gifts.

For the shopper with a minimum of financial resources, a package of frankincense or myrrh from Arabia is priced at 25 cents. But if you feel like splurging, you might like to buy a set of hand-carved statuettes from Indonesia for $25.

Glassware from Portugal, hand-painted cups from Russia and hand-painted pottery sets from Japan might be the ideal gifts for the women on your list. Also appealing to the feminine fancy are various styles of Indian jewelry and intricately decorated bells of Sarra.

Other items from India are bencey carved from buffalo horns for only $4 or $5. Also hand-carved are figurines of cryptomeria, the rare Japanese cedar tree.

If all of these articles are too expensive, you can send your greetings with imported Christmas cards from Holland, West Germany, Denmark, France, Norway or England for only 10 or 15 cents.

The University Book Store has many items available with the University seal imprinted on them. Beer mugs are available in various sizes and for abstainers, you can buy coffee cups or soda glasses.

Different sizes and shapes of ash trays can be bought for $9 to $15. They come in copper, pewter, brass or stainless steel.

Cycle Rules

Recommended To Trustees

A recommendation for the mandatory wearing of safety helmets by SIU motorcyclists was approved Monday by the University Vehicle and Traffic Safety Committee.

The recommendation has been sent to the SIU Board of Trustees for consideration.

A total of 24 recommendations for the use and control of motorcycles were submitted to the committee Monday by the Campus Senate whose list was derived from 33 proposals made by Larry Linkeau, president of the Southern Riders Association.

Also recommended by the committee for the Board's consideration was the outlawing of "side-saddle" riding by passengers on motorcycles and the requiring of a valid driver's license, proof of liability insurance, and parental consent for students under 21 who request motorcycle parking stickers.

The establishment of a training ground was recommended for cyclists as well as safety clinics and courses to be implemented by the Southern Riders Association under the supervision of the University.

It was also recommended to the board that exhaust noise be rated by decibels and an acceptable noise level be recommended in order to reduce cars and cycles noise on campus.

The Vehicle and Traffic Safety Committee will recommend today to consider the remainder of the Southern Riders proposals.

Fire on Water Draws SIU Ire

A practical joke by two Chicago area students in an off-campus residence hall has resulted in the suspension of one student and disciplinary probation for another.

The two students, a 21-year-old sophomore from Chicago and an 18-year-old freshman from Oak Park, were planning to pour water under a dormmate's door and then call the person to the door.

However, the Oak Park freshman thought the addition of lighter fluid to the water, lighting it when the student approached the door, would have a more surprising effect. It did.

The Oak Park freshman has been allowed to finish fall quarter on probation and will be suspended through winter quarter.

Carbondale Area Zip Code Revised

The number of postal "zip" code designations for the Carbondale area has been reduced from three to one.

All mail for the Carbondale area will bear the number 62901; the other two numbers will be discontinued.

The change was announced by the Post Office Department and patrons who have been using the other two numbers are now asked to use 62901 in their return addresses. Current stocks of mailing supplies bearing the two former numbers may be used until the supply is exhausted, and postal patrons are asked to use 62901 on their new stationery and other mailing supplies.

United States Air Force
Viet Cong Regiment Evades Trap Efforts

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. jets and bombs Tuesday into Communist escape routes in Death Valley south of Da Nang but a scattering of Viet Cong refugee U.S. still eluded U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops trying to trap it.

Allied officials estimated that in the seven days of Operation Harvest Moon 350 miles northeast of Saigon, air and ground strikes have killed about 1,200 of the 3,700-man Communist force and aborted Viet Cong plans to overrun three government strongholds in a pre-Christmas push.

Action elsewhere was light. U.S. Army troops found a series of abandoned Viet Cong camps 15 and 35 miles north of Saigon. Heavy rain once again canceled air attacks on North Viet Nam.

U.S. information at Pleiku reported a U.S. Air Force C-130 cargo plane with four American crewmen and 77 Vietnamese soldiers missing on a flight along the South Vietname coast. They said the plane left Qui Nhon on Sunday for Nha Trang. The mission was not disclosed.

The Marines in Death Valley called for air strikes in three sectors of the 20-mile valley in an effort to plug Communist exits eastward toward Laos and to the south and west.

High-flying B52 bombers from Guam bombed suspected Viet Cong jungles in rice paddies and foothills five miles east and five miles south of Hpa Doc. One of the government strongholds believed deserted for Communist attack.

The Strategic Air Command jets podded the valley floor and a mountainside with huge craters.

To the west, U.S. fighter-bombers, skimming the trees, seized the banks of the Chang River with napalm in an attempt to cut off Communists fleeing by river toward Laos. Marine officials said they believed the fire-bombing hailed the river flight.

Marine ground troops pounded the area with mortars and artillery.

The Marines called for the jets after a U.S. unit drew Communist fire while navigating in the river area by helicopter.

The Marines described the valley "encore" Monday but the Viet Cong still operated in pockets.

As far east as coastal Tam Ky, a Viet Cong unit blew up a crippled U.S. Marine helicopter that had been abandoned.

Deep in Death Valley, Marine hunters found enemy supply dumps containing clothes for Viet Cong uniforms, large stores of flashlight batteries, nearly 60,000 pounds of rice and 20,000 pounds of tea. The abandoned stores were evidence of a hasty Viet Cong withdrawal.

U.S. Proposes Peace Service United Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States proposed Tuesday the creation of a United Nations peace service including international trouble-shooters to provide the world with a substitute for war.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg made the proposal in a speech to the General Assembly’s Special Political Committee. U.S. sources stressed that Goldberg regarded the proposal as basic to progress in disarmament and the search for world peace.

He spoke in support of a British resolution calling for appointment of a high-level committee representative of all U.N. members to study the problem of facilitating settlement of international disputes.

In a clear reference to Viet Nam, he said that the United States made an unconditional commitment to seek a peaceful settlement even though armed conflict had broken out.

"We seek the peaceful settlement of every dispute to which we are a party everywhere in the world—and this commitment most specifically applies to those disputes which, tragically and against our will, are being dealt with on the battlefield rather than in the conference room where they truly belong," he declared.

He said that the most important requirement for peaceful settlement is the willingness of nations to abide by and settle their differences according to the rule of law. To assure them, he added, existing procedures for peaceful settlement can be improved.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pakistan's President Ayub Khan talked alone Tuesday behind closed doors with President Johnson about "our mutual problems" after publicly urging full U.S. support for settlement of the Kashmir dispute.

"We have much in common," Johnson said.

"The husky, mustached soldier-statesman, the first foreign chief of state welcomed by Johnson since last May 17, was given full red-carpet treatment—21-gun salutes, the herald of trumpets, and an elite honor guard from all military services.

"For one thing, each of our countries began as what most people called 'an impractical experiment,' " Johnson said.

"That we also had our differences. Yet I hope that the bonds which unite us are far stronger than any temporary disagreements."

Ayub responded by calling on the U.S. government under Johnson's leadership to "send full support of a settlement" of the Kashmir dispute between Pakistan and India.

"We cannot afford war. We will make every endeavor to make our contribution toward peace," Ayub said.

Ayub expressed thanks for the United States' extended Pakistan since it became independent, i.e. earlier had urged restoration of the aid that was cut off because of the Kashmir dispute, but with its settlement in double official sources here saw little prospect of any immediate U.S. response.

Many Blunder Into Marriage; Author Blames 'Sacred' Dating

By Bonita Trout

"You marry the people you know, you know the people with whom you associate and you associate with the people who are near."

This is some of the philosophy expounded in a forthcoming book written by George R. Carpenter, associate professor in the Department of Home and Family of the School of Home Economics.

In an interview, Carpenter discussed his philosophy on the process of selectivity in marriage.

"Statistics show that approximately 25 per cent of marriages end in divorce. I venture to say that a larger per cent are unhappy enough for divorce. Obviously we are not doing a good job of selecting," Carpenter said.

"Actually," Carpenter continued, "choosing a wife or husband is often not a pattern of selectivity but a pattern of accident that develops into something that neither party expected."

"Young people are thrust together in class, in church or some other place. Almost all recreational activities can or should be entered into by couples. Who does a young person go places with? His buddy? This is all right for awhile but friends will soon start to wonder."

"If young people are to be a success they must not only pass their classes but they must be accepted by the opposite sex. Dating is the thing to do."

"Who do they date? Someone who is near, someone with whom they have become acquainted in class or at church. Boys and girls are forced together coincidentally. They start out by dating for fun and end up marrying the person, Carpenter said."

"In the meantime what happens is idealization."

George R. Carpenter

If one of the persons involved is completely obnoxious, Carpenter said, this casual friendship is likely to continue.

"Why get yourself back into the frightening race for a dare if you already have someone?"

"Don't worry, Mom, I'm not going to marry any of these guys," according to Carpenter, is a familiar cry around the house of teenagers.

Then this casual relationship develops into something unexpected by either person, he said. It becomes a habit, a comfortable situation.

"Another thing that happens is that this situation becomes 'socially sacred' as far as other friends are concerned. There is no chance of dating around. There's a 'hands off' policy once you've dated the same person a few times."

"No one else considers either party 'dating material.' They are taken out of the dating race—they are no longer in the marketplace—they have been bought.

"This comfortable situation, Carpenter continued, leads to a marriage in which there actually was very little selecting. A man likes to think he married the right woman, but in reality it all happened quite accidentally.

Liquor on Campus Being 'Evaluated'

Seven University Park students, six of whom still face liquor charges after a wine party on Dec. 1, have been ordered to study liquor policies of other schools by the Office of Student General Affairs.

The girls allegedly involved in the incident must evaluate liquor policies at the Big 10 schools and make recommendations for SIU.

The boys faced with charges in the incident are studying liquor policies at Duke University where students are allowed to possess liquor.

 Theta Xi Social Fraternity Honors Uray, Zoeckler

Two faculty members have been honored by Theta Xi social fraternity for their work as advisers for the fraternity's annual variety show.

They are Richard M. Uray, coordinator of the academic program in the Department of Radio and Television, and Charles W. Zoeckler, associate professor of theater. Both men received plaques from the fraternity honoring them for their work.

Uray, who is leaving SIU to become director of a newly organized broadcasting curriculum at the University of South Carolina, expressed his thanks for the plaque and said that he enjoyed working with the students.

Zoeckler, a former television production director, will again serve as a faculty adviser for the show.

The SIU Arena will be the site of the Carbondale Holiday Tournament on Dec. 27, 28 and 29. In its second year, the tournament is expected to be bigger and better this year than last year.

Joining the ranks of the 16-team field for the first time this year will be Herrin, Marion and Collinsville. Herrin and Marion have spent over two decades in the Carbondale Holiday Tournament before transferring to Carbondale, and Collinsville's Kahoks also had a good attendance mark at Centralia. "The only reason we went up to Centralia before was because there was no other tournament in the area to go to," said Herrin Coach Dave McCann. "The Carbondale tournament is more convenient, has better facilities and is probably a better tournament," said the Tiger coach. With both Marion and Herrin leaving the Centralia battle-ground in favor of Carbondale, the Centralia tourney will retain only three members of the rugged South Seven Conference: Centralia, Mount Vernon, and Benton. The other members will be at Carbondale.

With defending state-champion Collinsville joining the Carbondale field, the tourney is expected to be much tougher than last year. Jacksonville won last year's event, dumping Carbondale's host Terriers 73-61. Jacksonville Coach Richard (Itchy) Jones, a former Saluki baseball and basketball player, is none too optimistic about his team's chances of repeating last year's feat. "We'll show up for our two games, but with only one man back from last year's team, we don't expect to be too tough," said Jones, Ronald Coleman, an all-tourney selection last year, is the hope Jacksonville returns. "We feel that the addition of Collinsville, Marion and Herrin will give us an outstanding field," said tournament manager Reed Martin. "It appears almost certain that we'll top last year's attendance figure," he added.

Teams entered in the tournament are Alton, Cahokia, Canon, Carbondale Community, Collinsville, De- catur, Eisenhower, Evansville, Harrisburg, Herrin, Jacksonville, Marion, Olney, Pinckneyville, Sparta, West Frankfort and Wood River.

Carbondale was last year's runnerup, and Decatur Eisenhower took third place with a 69-54 win over West Frankfort.

John Johnson May Play Friday

The Salukis have been cheered by some good news. Their star forward Ralph Johnson, who sat out Friday's game against Chattanooga with a knee injury, may not have to miss another game this season.

Johnson injured his knee Thursday during a scrimmage. The injury was first diagnosed as a torn cartilage and immediate surgery was recommended.

After examining his knee at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis Monday, doctors now feel that the tear is not as bad as originally thought and they have given Johnson the green light to continue playing.

Johnson was to give the knee a light workout Tuesday afternoon to practice and, "If all went well, give the knee its first strenuous workout this afternoon.

Johnson will not wear a brace because the doctors believe knee pads will be sufficient protection. "I believe I'll be able to play both Friday and Saturday nights but that will be up to the coach," said Johnson.

Johnson said he believed he first injured his knee in the Iowa game when he and the Hawkeyes' Gary Olson both fell to their knees on the floor while battling for a loose ball.

He noticed a soreness in his knee after the game, but didn't think it was serious. Then in practice last Thursday Johnson made a routine move under the basket and the knee popped.

"As long as I don't reinjure the knee, I won't have to undergo surgery," said Johnson. "I'm using weights now to strengthen it and will use isometrics too. I'll be spending most of the Christmas break strengthening the knee," Johnson added.

FACE THREE CAGE FOES

While most other SIU students are relaxing during the long vacation, Southern's basketball team will be in the thick of its season. The Salukis have games over the weekend with the University of Nevada Friday night and San Diego State Saturday night. Then comes Wichita State on Saturday. The biggest of the three, of course, is Wichita. The Shockers have been the talk at the top in the nation this year and justifiably so as they rank last week with a 100-16 upset of second-ranked Michigan, Wichita, which was two shots' stronger per man than Cassie Russell and company, beat the Wolverines at their own game—rebounding. The Shockers made 40 of 62 shots from the field in the upset, current leader in the scoring parade for Wichita is forward-Jamie Thompson. The 6-3 junior hit for 59 points in his first tow games.

Signs for City Council

A recommendation for the erection of new welcome signs containing a warning about the large number of motorcycles in Carbondale was presented to the Carbondale City Council Monday night by Ron Comtell, SIU city relations commissioner.

It was suggested that the signs be displayed in tune to give a warm welcome to visitors both to SIU and the city. The proposal was a sug­ gestion from George Pahle, student body president, and Larry Lindsey, representa­tive of the Southern Riders Association. The Council took the proposal under advisement.
