SIU professor heads national education unit

By University News Services

Keith McNeil, associate professor and educational psychologist at SIU, was elected chairman of a national special interest group at the annual meeting of the American Educational Research Association. McNeil, one of a number from the SIU Department of Education and Educational Psychology who attended the meeting, was named to a one-year term as head of the special interest group in multiple linear regression. He came to SIU in 1967 after obtaining his Ph.D. at the University of Texas.

He is co-author of the book, "Research Design in the Behavioral Sciences: Multiple Regression Approach," and co-editor of "Readings in Educational Measurement."

At the convention last week, McNeil organized a symposium on multiple linear regression which was chaired by Donald L. Beggs, associate professor in guidance. Beggs also co-authored a paper with James Nighswander of Springfield, who obtained his Ph.D. here last June, and participated in a session in research and Black American studies.

Others from SIU who participated at the Convention were:

John Deschmann, assistant professor, presented a paper in conjunction with Art Horse, doctoral student, Glenn E. Bracht, assistant professor, participated in a symposium on educational psychology, and by treatment in- stances; both faculty, associate professor, presented a paper on research conducted with Anne Campbell of special education in a student presentation session; Troy Eischenger, who obtained his Ph.D. at SIU, presented a paper co-authored by Professor Francis Kelly of the SIU Educational Research Bureau and Beggs, and Robert Vest, who co-authored a paper presented at one of the sessions.

Presley has cancelled: "RIO LOBO"

Wayne Presley, organizer of U.S. Citizens Inc., has cancelled his speaking engagement set for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the University Center Ballroom.

Presley said he has cancelled all public speaking engagements in order to make visits to several foreign countries and fulfill business obligations. Presley is the head of Presley Tours, Inc.

The speech would have been sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council's Cultural Affairs Committee.

Stan Kenton to play at Convo and to head jazz band clinic

By University News Services

Stan Kenton, master of the big band scene for the last two decades, whose sound of the 1940s, will provide the SIU Convention entertainment Thursday.

Kenton and his band will take over at 1 p.m. in the SIU Arena, then present a clinic from 3 to 5 p.m. in Alipold Hall. He will return the SIU Jazz Band during the clinic.

There is no admission charge for the Arena concert or clinic. The general public is invited to the clinic.

Fees for the Kenton Clinic are intended to bring their stage bands and other musicians to the clinic.

By continued use of new, up-to-date material, the sound of Kenton is always fresh and exciting. Since the beginning of his career as a leader, Kenton's band has served as a vehicle for experimental sounds. It was last fall that Kenton

About the picketing at Penney's

Our new store in Carbondale is being picketed by the Retail Clerks Union. As their signs indicate, we "...do not have a signed Union contract with Retail Clerks Union Local No. 736..."

There is a very good reason for the absence of such a contract—the Retail Clerks Union does not represent our employees and does not claim to represent our employees.

Moreover, our employees have not indicated they wish to be represented by the Retail Clerks.

This is the employees' right.

Consider a few additional facts in this matter:

1. The pickets are not J.C. Penney employees. They are hired by the Retail Clerks Union. Our employees are NOT on strike.

2. J.C. Penney employees are on the job serving their customers.

Our employees have the right to be represented, or not to be represented by the Retail Clerks Union, as the employees see fit.

We will support our employees in the exercise of that right.

We seek your support in requesting your continuing patronage. We believe this cause to be just, and in the best interests of our employees.

Faculty book to be revised

The SIU Faculty Handbook is undergoing revisions by Chancellor Robert G. Layter to meet the needs of the changing University Administration, said Phillip H. Olson, chairman of the Faculty Council's Subcommittee on Faculty Work.

Olson said the Faculty Welfare Subcommittee recently asked the Chancellor to make revisions on the handbook.

The Chancellor said he supports the handbook, he said, it is outdated and the complete document the faculty should have to rely on for guidance.

Universities do not recommend that have any suggestions as to how the document meets the needs of the faculty to contact Edward Bailey at the Chancellor's office.

The faculty handbook, an informative pamphlet designed to orient new faculty members, will not be completed until sometime next fall quarter, Olson said.

Slushy streets produce sadism

It must be nice to drive a car during the winter. Despite rain, snow, ice and puddles, you enjoy staying warm and dry inside your car.

If you're a motorist with a sadistic bent, you enjoy something else too—soaking hapless pedestrians by whipping your mighty street machine through the puddles of slush on the road. Friday's wet, slushy streets turned into streams of mud and water. It also brought out the beast in Carbondale motorists who harbor some kind of secret desire to rearrange people who travel the sidewalks.

The sight of a pedestrian getting an unwanted bath from a passing car became common, and decidedly unnerving Friday. It's no fun getting a faceful of street slop, not to mention the muck on your clothing and shoes.

Perhaps some motorists just don't think about slowing down when passing a pedestrian. Others seem to take great delight in deliberately veering closer to the defenseless walker, a practice that is the least understandable and the most sickening.

A Carbondale ordinance prohibits inconsiderate driving which presents a danger to person or property. Law officials say this is difficult to enforce in the case of "splatters and soakeders," as intent must be proven.

The most reasonable solution would be for a driver to slow down on a slushy street when he sees a pedestrian ahead. A little consideration would be nice for walkers who have enough hazards to contend with already.

Students should form parking committee

To the Daily Egyptian

I would like to support Michael Althoff's call for a student committee to change SIU's parking system. The Committee for Due Process staff and faculty has initiated several lawsuits to force the University to a systematized and fair parking system. The spin-off from the outcome of these actions may or may not change the system for students but I think we should be prepared to formulate a student committee to take unified action just as the faculty committee has.

I urge anyone whose registration is being held, or who is being harassed in other ways by the University for traffic violations, to send his name to Michael Althoff, graduate student in psychology.

SIPC 'dilettantes' should change title

To the Daily Egyptian

I would like to recommend that the SIPC change its title to YFSS (Young Fascist Socialists). These dilettantes love to caricature whole in the process of their intellectual pursuits. Where closed minds meet, you will find the YFSS jabbering, babbling and bleating themselves in typical medieval fashion.

Reference is naturally to the lecture by Joseph Buttinger Feb. 4 YFSS members like lectures sponsored by the Viet Center but because they are all concerned Asian scholars. And besides which, all three friends go. A Viet Center lecture is almost as good as going to a closed meeting of Asian scholars' where a good deal of 'objective' intellectual discourse takes place.

It's getting so that the only place a person can go on this campus to hear a lecture on Vietnam is the YFSS meetings. Fascist dilettantes rarely jabber, blabber and bleat at their own meetings.

Vet sees same things but in different light

To the Daily Egyptian

I'm glad that John J. McCann (Feb. 4 article) has gotten a chance to go to Vietnam and see a small part of the war to which he is so violently opposed. I was there in 1969 as an infantryman, or "grunt," and squad leader with the First Marine Regiment. I say what John McCann saw but perhaps a little more and in a different light.

Unfortunately, whenever a large group of American GI's are put in one area, there are usually bad effects. Even in the U.S. military base towns in our own country, the GI culture never has been the greatest. So although the guilt for some of the wrongs which have been done where large numbers of our troops are stationed in Vietnam are not forgettable, perhaps they are understandable since that happens even in this country. But if U.S. troops remain in Vietnam, maybe some of their faults could be corrected and the country would stay out of the reigns of communism. Perhaps then that little girl, who now wonders what peace means, would not have children of her own who would someday wonder what freedom means.

Editor's Note: This roundup of news and comment on actions and issues was presented each Tuesday by Daily Eagle reporters Beryl Bevirl and Chuck Hurelth as an extension of the roundtable on income in democratic government, By Cathy Spring and Chuck Hurelth

Tom Bevirl, the Democratic candidate for Carbondale township supervisor, said yesterday's proposal will form the establishment of a township rodent and pest control program.

He also said there is more room for efficiency in the administration of the township assistance (welfare) program.

Richard E. Richman, Jackson County state's attorney, nominated Bevirl, former administrative assistant to the student body president at SIU for nearly three years. The primary elections are scheduled for April 23.

SIU programs mock model UN theme

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to the theme of last weekend's mock UN—The Third World—I would like to pose the following question:

Is concern for the Third World evinced by the SIU? Is there a program of journalism and mass communications specifically for Vietnamese military veterans and auxiliary civilian personnel who have already completed a bachelor's degree with distinction in a recognized university in Vietnam or the United States? Training in the establishment, maintenance, and control of the mass media for elite military personnel who have implemented objectives of the Vietnam and Thieu-Ky dictatorships and genocidal policies of the U.S. military against their own people? A program, hypertexted as described by the Journalist, School "as the basis for the development of a democratic system of mass communications. A program for the Vietnamese Studies Center "tailor-made" to fit the demands of AID-promoter of U.S. hegemony throughout the world.

SIU programs such as this and others servicing military regiments in Brazil, Argentina, Nationalist China, Thailand, Indonesia and others indicate that it is a tragic insult for SIU to conduct a conference dedicated to the peoples of the Third World.

Selfishness, hard work make system even better

To the Daily Egyptian:

Let me begin by stating two of my basic convictions. First, regardless of what naïve people claim, human beings are almost always selfish. Second, the American Dream, which has made this country great, tells us that anyone can get ahead by hard work. That's the only reason we really go to SIU— to get a better job, make more money, buy a better house and more expensive clothes, etc. No ethics, please. This is competitive.

Since last May I have been very upset by emotional, irrational students who talk about food cooperatives, medical cooperatives, free clothes and other ridiculous things. All men have the right to vote but the best in clothes, food and medicine is not a right. If you want better food, clothes, or medicine, go out and get a job to serve it. That's what the American Dream is all about.

Mostly I'm upset about the Public Interest Corporation. This threatens the best in the system in the world. If you don't have money, be sure to obey the law. I have no sympathy for the 400 students arrested last May. All of those arrested, especially those without money and support, acted irresponsibly. It is only just that they accept the consequences. Fortunately, most Americans still act like responsible citizens.

One last word. People get emotional and moral but my view is man is correct. That's why the FIC and the other things we perceive as being for us are and we continue to make a great system even better.

Editorial on Stevenson requires special label

To the Daily Egyptian:

I'm glad you published Paula Munno's commentary on Sen. Adlai Stevenson III's thoughts on federal-state revenue sharing as an opinion. Perhaps you should have labeled it "Republican."

Many people realize there are miles of red tape required in any federally-funded program but there are often good reasons for this and such is also true of state local programs with the same kind of frustration. The Illinois senator may not fear so much the loss of federal control of federal funds as, he may fear the possible increased controls over the use of federal funds. That is inherent in any government program that is not tightly controlled and closely evaluated.

If a reporter such as Miss Munno wishes to see a federally-funded program and offer some good for the people and which is looking for ways to do more, she need look no further than the Legal Assistance Foundation of Southern Illinois (formerly the Legal Services Bureau). Some regional control is maintained for this program but it is under the direction of the federal government. Of course a program such as this must have some autonomy within each local agency.

You might give some attention to this outstanding program (as I know you have in the past) and suggest that Miss Munno use the valuable space in the Daily Egyptian for more valuable purposes than quoting political rhetoric thinly disguised as a true acceptance of the principles of power to the people.

‘Salty’ thoughts shake grounds foreman’s faith

To the Daily Egyptian:

Today my faith was thoroughly shaken by Dana Brinkley's thoughts on the "abundant" application of salt to the campus to prevent ice. I have always believed in our educational processes until I discover that a person has attained the administrative senior at SIU without acquiring such basic knowledge as the effect of the "abundant" application of salt to any portion of the good earth.

What with the constant and almost hopeless pollution of our environment by salt, the overabundance of waste materials, smokestacks, cigarette, pipe and cigar-smoking, wholesale use of insecticides and chemical fertilizers, smog, the use of smoke stacks, smoke stacks, and smoke stacks and the overuse of salt in the preparation of foods, salt has become more of a killer than the warpaths of our forebears.

Incidentally, Dana Brinkley, did you clear the ice off your front step this morning? Before the day was far spent, the good men of the grounds maintenance department had cleared 30 miles of campus walk.

Ag economist ad brings more advice to Jacobi

A Ph.D. is required. For further information contact: Dr. Wallace H. Cornwell, Department of Agricultural Industries, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois 62901.

Stevenson finds U.S. Senate ‘tempestuous’

By Lester Bell
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON—After Adlai Stevenson’s third debate and before the Senate summons him as the youngest member in its history, he finds the Senate ‘tempestuous’.

Stevenson finds the Senate ‘tempestuous’—and he means it.

When he opposed the nation’s Democratic senators in the “mainstream” with their discussions of national policies, he rails against the political organization. He deplores what he regards as an “undemocratic” political organization.

“Tempestuous’

The “majority” of the Democrats are “national Democrats,” he said. “I don’t understand why they were here the last two years. I was getting ready (to go for the Senate).”

Stevenson senses mounting public interest concerns such as the Senate’s fiscal policies. He sees the “biggest problem is that there is no coordination. This is of vital importance,” he said. “It behooves them to respond to this concern.”

When he opposed the nation’s “national Democrats,” he said, “I don’t think this party will be divided. The same minorities” (of 1960) won’t be lost. The differences will be personal.

And any differences that do arise can be reconciled in the primary system and within the party.

Does he believe Mr. Nixon will be a one-term president?

“I’ve learned politics are unpredictable,” he said. “I think he’s vulnerable in the primary. If he fails, but I have no such ambition. I only want to be a good senator.”

Fera, Fischer examine office

Nick Fera, an SIU student, said that if he is elected mayor of Carbondale, he would need to spend at least as much as his opponent. Fera said that he would need to spend the amount of time necessary to work out these problems both in the city and in the state. He said that if he could do the job, he would support the people he would be doing it for.

The role of the mayor was outlined by Fera as providing guidance and leadership to all city programs. He said that he would need to spend the amount of time that he would need to be "on top" of everything. He said that he would work towards solutions to Carbondale's problems and would need to spend the time to do so.

"Rental housing is a big business in Carbondale," Fera said. "If you're in the business, you should not try to maintain certain standards for your structure. Too many houses are rented that don't meet minimum standards, and often at outrageous prices." Fera said that change is needed, and that people should look to the government to help speed change.

Fera said that change is needed, and that people should look to the government to help change. He said that he had discussed the need for city officials to look at the problems of students and town people alike.

Fera was housing commission under former SIU Student Body President Dwight Campbell and executive assistant to current Student Body President Tim Schar- schel. He also served as a sub-committee of the Carbondale Plan- ning Commission, executive council of the Young Democrats and serving on committees for the campaigns of Alvin Stenberg III and Thomas G. Maier. Fera has resigned the posts when he finds to the runs of mayor for Carbondale.

Hans J. Fischer lives in two houses, and he said he would give top priority to elected mayor—lack of cooperation among factions in Carbondale. "If I'm mayor of Carbondale, I'm not going to be a "bureaucrat,"" Fischer said. "I'll put one fire out at a time." Fischer said that although a program of goals for Carbondale was taken about and worked on for several years, no program had been made. He said he could get with it," he said. Goals and priorities must be determined after getting an idea of what the community wants, Fischer said.

As his second priority, Fischer said that he would try to set up "bridges of communication with the community." He said that the goals of various groups in Carbondale must be met and that someone must point this out.

"I recognize the polarization of political ideologies in Carbondale," Fischer said. "I can't change anyone's point of view, but we must learn to work together." Fischer said that he would not be a "full-time mayor" if he is not necessary under the council or a single-party government. He added that no town in Illinois under this form of government has a full-time mayor. He said that he would spend an average of a day and a half per week in the mayor's office.

Before making any appointments, Fischer said that he would consult with the City Council to assist in the process. He said that he would not be doing anything in the current ad

When SIU's Legal Council stopped giving students legal advice, it left the law department in a bind because the only place where students can receive free legal aid, Gary Kolb, director, said. "This is a valuable service and advice, "one must not be able to afford a private lawyer," Kolb said. "We also handle many of the more complex and legal cases beyond our jurisdiction." Kolb added that the client has to be willing to be helped for free. "If we're really serious, we might ask for a $10 bill," Kolb said.

Empowering the client that has the legal aid in his case and enforcement is the future of free legal aid, "It appears Nikon is playing games with free legal aid," he said. "It is a failure, it is a failure, it is a failure," he said. The reason the government's attitude towards free legal aid is so bad is because the Legal Services Division was so successful in winning its cases, most of which were class actions, Kolb said. The cases against cases are beyond our jurisdiction.

There is very little red tape involved in proving liability to an insurance company, Kolb said. "Usally we take the client's word at face value. If we're really serious, we might ask for a $10 bill," Kolb said.

SGAC to present office amendment

The Student Government Accounting Council (SGAC) will present a constitutional amendment to the Campus Senate on Monday night, recommending that the office of vice president be established and activities be changed from an elected office to an appointed one.

Bud Zaner, the current vice president and candidate for the office, has said under the new amendment, the vice president would be selected by a committee that would study the qualifications of candidates.

A statement drafted by SGAC said the popular election of the office has resulted in the weakening of the office as a political job instead of a highly specialized agency position, and has resulted in the campaign of unqualified people for this office as part of political parties.

The Council president, William Moffet, president of SGAC, said:

"The SMCC demands are:

- That the University have no more than one campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or campus, or Ailing the mayor of Carbondale, Bob Leisner, by Roger Leisner, S.U. Board of Trustee member, to take over as mayor of the city.

Leisner, in his letter to Ogilvie, dated Feb. 13, asked that present Mayor Daniel Kasem be appointed to one of the replacements and that the future the mayor of Carbondale should be made by the Board of Trustees.

Leisner added that the Board of Trustees should implement the policy and procedures of the S.U. Board of Trustees and the Board of Trustees should make decisions on the Board's behalf.

SIU aids Brazil university in agriculture

By Gary Shuster
Student Writer

Along with the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), SIU is currently helping in a program of agricultural research and training with the University of Santa Maria, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil. The program began last March and is designed to increase the educational competency of the University of Santa Maria, dealing with the agricultural needs of the area it serves.

This is being done through in-service teacher training programs for participants and improvement of faculty qualifications, as well as extension activities in the form of agricultural and educational agriculture.

Other features are degree-related graduate research programs and the provision of United States post-baccalaureate personnel for such work. Pilot projects, designed to improve agronomy and veterinary medicine, will be put to work. Increased dissemination of agricultural information will also aid the agricultural education program.

Herbert L. Portz, professor of plant industries and campus coordinator for the program, said the plan was started in 1965 by the University of Santa Maria because the school's administrators felt the University's agricultural education resources should be used to boost the agricultural production of the area.

The FAO was interested in an aid assistance, Portz said, with the request that the resulting program be similar to the land-grant institutions of the United States, where the U.S. government granted land to an agricultural college to aid agricultural education through teaching research and extension services to serve that school's state.

Offers change of pace

Summer job guide offered

By Pat Salt
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Fenny Win, a job counselor at Washington Square, can show you more than 400 summer alternatives in the area.

They are the summer job folders which are available in more than 40 files offering jobs throughout the United States and in five foreign countries.

The summer job program has undergone extensive reorganization and the counselor, Miss Win, has been moved to 202 Oak, and is available at all SIU residence halls. The counselor is available more than 70 percent of the time that the office is open.

This is part of the counselor's job to seek summer employment opportunities and make an appointment with a counselor to review the job possibilities. The counselor's name is made on a half-hour basis.

Miss Win said, and the office is capable of counseling 24 persons of summer employment.

Jobs are listed by category and then subdivided into states within the category of file numbers. The counselor said that she is available to be certain a student position more than an employee position is available for a student, that a job position is available for a non-student position, etc.

Miss Win emphasized that it is not necessary to have regular employment to acquire summer employment. She noted that it is especially true in summer, she said.

Camp-related positions, with salaries ranging from $300-$400 for the summer, are frequently available, Miss Win said. Because of this, the summer work program has tentatively scheduled a campus orientation program for March 1 at the University Center, she said. Camps, primarily from the Chicago and St. Louis areas, have been invited to attend.

Rising college costs have caused the number of people looking for summer work to double this year, according to Miss Win. She noted that she helps students find jobs, but doesn't give up hope. "The prospects are pretty good if they are trying hard and get in early," she said.

British ursus races curling

LONDON (AP) — Enosh Powell, right hand of the British curling team, demanded bloody night after a program to have the team's best curling strongest language he has employed in the rare question since his "calm of blood speech" nearly 20 years ago.

"The explosive which blew us all out of here is still there and the fuse is burning, but the fuse is shorter than it had been supposed," Powell warned in a speech prepared for a young London, Ont., curling club.

Powell's speech was prepared for a young London, Ont., curling club.

Powell called that Britain's main- white population has grown, far faster than official figures show. By the estimates, the population of London alone is about 5 million, and in the next 20 years will be up to 40 percent more.

Powell said the team's next competition, the Commonwealth Games, will be disrupted by a racial tension, unless action is taken.

The 1960 census showed four U.S. countries with over 10,000 black population: Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Ga., Newark, N.J. and Detroit, Mich.

"There is a nightmare quality about London, Ont. We have over 5,000 white people, and 1,000 black people, and there is a racial tension. London has never known greater danger.

"But the residents, people and Parliament are apparently abysmally ignorant of the human rights of the Londoners or the potential of the entire team's next competition, the Commonwealth Games, will be disrupted by a racial tension, unless action is taken.

For his part, Powell's dramatic campaign and the Commonwealth Games were disrupted by a racial tension, unless action is taken.

"The intelligent move to attract the outside mines and maintain a separate listing of summer jobs available in Caroline.

"Jobs are tight this year because of the recent economic recession," she said.

Camp-related positions, with salaries ranging from $300-$400 for the summer, are frequently available, Miss Win said. Sewing class stretches dollars

In a sewing class that meets two nights a week at SIU, 36 women and 36 teen-age girls from Carbondale's northeast community are learning to sew and thereby stretch their clothing dollars.

The class was organized by Mrs. Maxine Passmore, parent-child coordinator at Attack Memorial Center. Carbondale Model Cities Program. Mrs. Passmore, a former SIU student, is teaching the class, assisted by Mrs. Nancy Rashbidi and Sheila Walker, graduate assistants in SIU's clothing and textiles department. Mrs. Thelma Berry, associate professor of clothing and textiles, is serving as consultant.

"We had the women and girls recruited for the class," Mrs. Passmore said. "But the machines we had ordered had not arrived, so we called on the University for assistance. With the help of Anita McKeller, staff assistant in the office of University Service in Carbondale, we obtained permission to start the class at the School of Home Economics."

"The sewing machines still have not arrived, so we are still meeting in the clothing and textiles department laboratory."

Sessions which started Jan. 12 and will run for eight weeks, are held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The younger members of the class range from 10 to 14 years of age, Mrs. Passmore said.

Medical school workshop planned

By University News Services

SIU's School of Medicine has set a three-day workshop for persons who will help the medical school plan for community-level health care programs. The Thursday-to-Saturday session will introduce the invited participants—downstate residents and SIU faculty members—to a technique of planning and administration called "Key Factor Analysis."" Marcel Rainey of the SIU outreach department, one of the organizers, described it as "an offshoot of the systems theory; a way of perceiving the world and getting rational answers to common problems."

For their introduction to the theory of logic behind Key Factor Analysis, workshopers will spend five straight hours each day behind the closed doors of SIU's University Center Rooms. Irving Jarrett, faculty chairman of the Business Division at SIU's Edwardsville Campus, will be overall director.

Rainey said workshopers will be split into small planning groups of 5 to 10 members so it's hoped that they will stay together as planning teams after the workshop session itself.

Similar organizing efforts have been started in a number of other communities that also use this general procedure to help citizens learn how to plan.

As part of its Medical School program, SIU has prepared a two-day workshop sponsored by the Department of Health Services to help interested community groups and organizations develop programs to meet the needs of the community.

Widow offers half her town at $129,000

SEARIGHTS, Pa. (AP) — If you can't afford to buy a whole town, how about half a town? For $129,000 you can own that much of Searights, a running community of about 500 in southwest Pennsylvania.

The package the last half includes a 180-acre tract with 75 duplexes and bungalows, tennis courts and running water. Occupancy is about 90 percent, mostly miners and pensioners. Most of the townsmen live there year round.

Eva Angelo, a widow who owns the home, is keeping half her town herself. She and relatives operate two of the town's three businesses.

They live in a 41-room building that also houses their general store and barber shop.

The unincorporated community is eight miles north of Uniontown. It is not on the map but there's a sign on the outskirts.

Mrs. Angelo, whose husband bought the community from a Republic Steel Corp. in 1957, says running the whole town involves too much time. "I want to relax," she said. "All my kids are married."

She said he had paid about $50,000 for the town.

He makes dream pipes

By Margaret McEneas
Student Writer

The New Generation loses points in originality in the use of the slogan "do your own thing." Marion Mitchell has been doing and perfecting his thing for years—and he's over 80.

Mitchell is a self-made craftsman whose craft is hand-made pipes.

In the cellar of his home, Mitchell has a make-shift workshop for his pipe production. Amidst shelves of home-bottled vegetables and odds and ends of basement clutter, Mitchell puts together his pipes to suit the individual prospective buyers.

"I just don't make a pipe unless it's for somebody," he said. "What I really enjoy is for someone to come by and we'll talk and talk politics while I work. That way if he doesn't like something we can change it right there."

By day, Mitchell is assistant to the dean of the General Studies Division at SU. But by night, Mitchell is far removed from the business atmosphere of the office. He dresses in lumberman's shirt, wash pants, mocassins. And, of course, he smokes a pipe.

In four years, Mitchell has made a couple hundred of what he calls "setting and thinking" pipes.

Mitchell makes pipes for self-satisfaction. He says the beauty of doing such a thing for fun is that "you're not all caught up with time and money."

The overhead of such a self-producing trade probably could be quite costly for an unadventurous craftsman. Mitchell, however, says his greatest expense is the hard rubber, rough-moulded pipe bits which he buys from a New Jersey company. The bits cost 11 cents each.

The wood for the bowls is cherry, a strong preference of Mitchell's because it has what he calls
"character."

"Cherry gives the best smoke and it is a pleasure to work with," he said. "It is soft to cut, hard enough to hold its shape and the wood doesn't burn too easily."

With the aid of a few basic tools such as pocket knife, drill and vise, Mitchell carves out the center of the bowl and whittles a stem out of the cherry wood.

Mitchell uses the "trial and error" method in a search for the right material for the pipe bowl.

After a few failures, he finally chose copper, which he cuts from plumber's pipe. Personalized initials stamped into a well-polished copper band have become a standing order for Mitchell pipes.

"If you ever see anyone walking around with a wide copper band on his pipe," he claims, "you'll know that's mine."

The entire time Mitchell is working, he is puffing on his pipe and conversing simultaneously. He puffs long enough to decide on an adequate stem for the pipe and then once more begins his work.

Mitchell is able to give a fairly precise date and account of the beginning of his pipe-making career.

"I started back in November, 1965," he said. "The reason I recall so clearly is because it was the weekend President Kennedy was killed.

"My father-in-law and I went down to his farm, and cleared away some brush. I later discovered
I had lost a good pipe and I went back and found it burned. I also found we had cut down a fresh cherry tree."

"I decided that if the French could make good pipes out of French cherry then Americans could make better pipes out of American cherry.

Mitchell calls his process "trial and error" experimenting. He has tried different ways of seasoning the wood and has tinkered with various materials until he found what he wanted. He outlines part of his improvement plan as making pipes, giving them away, then watching them for faults. He sums the success of his methods in saying, "I'm turnning out a much better pipe than I was two years ago."

In the final touches of his work, Mitchell uses natural effects. The bowl is trammed down with a knife to a rough shape and can be left as such or smoothed out to a finer surface.

The wood is waxed sparingly and then buffed "to take all the fiber off and get down to what the natural wood looks like," Mitchell explained.

The finished product is unique because Mitchell will never make another like it. He guarantees the new pipe owner the quality of his work by promising to replace any of the parts, except the plastic bit, if anything should go wrong.

"These pipes are designed to wear and last," he says. "There's no reason this pipe won't last a lifetime."

already in place before fitting it into the bowl. Mitchell (right) displays an assembled bowl and stem, initialled band and store-bought hard rubber bit. The unfinished bowl of the pipe is a testimental. Mitchell (left) smokes one of his products which has a more finished look and which has been polished and darkened by use and age.
Gerdes only SIU winner

Oklahoma Sooners stop Salukis, 29-3

By Ernest J. Schweitz
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU wrestling team has been up and down all year, with the filename rated wrestling powers over the past weeks. Again, Saturday's competition with the University of Oklahoma Sooners was no exception.

The Sooners were holding down the western end of the national wrestling event when they went off to a 29-3 victory over Illinois State in the SIU Arena to drop SIU to a 4-6 record.

Sooner fans were able to garner only a single victory in the contest while Oklahoma grabbed the remaining nine weight classes on its way to its ninth triumph against the lions.

The one SIU victory came courtesy of Ken Gerdes at 138. The freshman from Tinley Park, Ill., put up a strong decision over Oklahoma's Lester Seitz which was good for his school record of 15-4.

"I just don't have to lose," said Gerdes as he shed down his ankle which was stopped on by Seitz.

"I believe if you work hard in practice it will pay off. When I do work well in practice, I also do well in the matches.

Apparently Gerdes has been doing very well in the practice sessions because his season's record to 16-4, second only to unanimously picked Illinois State wrestler who had a record defected to 15-4.

Lambert: Salukis jelled in January

By Fred Weisberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

TERRY HAUTE, 1st - The performance of SIU's basketball team has been a mystery to many since the loss to Texas last December.

Hence, when the Salukis upset Indiana State here Saturday, R-42, to stay perfect in the new conference and deal the Spartans a serious blow to their title hopes, certain questions were brought to mind.

For instance, have the Salukis jelled as a team?

A small SIU coach Paul Lambert, in top form after the game, standing in the depths of the SIU Arena, provided an answer.

"I'd say that excluding the Texas game and the last half of the Creighton game, we jelled when we beat Indiana State last January at our place," he said.

The game of which he spoke was an 86-81 win last Jan. 16 in the SIU Arena which gave the Salukis an initial foothold in the conference lead. It was a win which put the first black mark on the Indiana State conference loss column and set the stage for the jelling which was to occur Saturday.

"Stan (Powers) probably played the best he's ever played," said Lambert of his 6-9 forward. "All our big men did.

Lambert made a shout move which paid off when he didn't start Powers in the second half. All three SIU big men were in varying degrees of foul trouble and the SIU coach held Powers back until Marvin Brooks picked up four fouls in five minutes.

Powers came in with three basis and played until he fouled out with about three minutes at which point Lambert substituted Brooks thus insuring two of his three big men in the lineup for the whole game.

"Yes," acknowledged the SIU coach, "we did it that way because we knew that if we hadn't started all three of our big men for the second half in foul trouble, they probably would have all fouled out, so we didn't start Stan."

Lambert said that he thought SIU lost all the momentum needed when Greg Stark hit ten straight points in the waning minutes of the first half to leave the Salukas only one point behind at intermission.

"We could have been blown out of drake right then, said the SIU couch of the 41-21 lead Indiana State raced in before Stark found his mark. "Actually, we had about five key plays and a different man made each one—that's why we won," he added.
Four down, four left as Sycamores fall

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — We want S.U.N. We want S.U.N. We want S.U.N. We wanted S.U.N.'s Southern Illinois University, a team that had raced nine games.

Led by Poole and his team, S.U.N. sapped the life from the Sycamores in their 90-64 loss in the first game of the Missouri Valley Conference.

In a game that was dominated by a hot-shooting team, the Sycamores were unable to keep pace with the team. And Stan Poole in particular. He was his normal self. 11 points and nine rebounds.

Southwestern's victory over the Sycamores was certainly a shocker. The Sycamores entered the game with a 3-3 conference record, while the Hawks were 4-1.

In the second half, the 6-0 Eddy Mize had his best game, hitting all his shots and scoring 21 points. He was the game's high scorer with 23 points. Mize's performance led to the Hawks' victory.

On the road!

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

The Sycamores came into Saturday night's game with a 2-5 record. They had won their previous two games, setting up a tough challenge for the Hawks.

Stauffer: Huskies will provide SIU with stiffest competition

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — Gordon Stauffer, Indiana State head basketball coach, observed that the Sycamores have been tough on the road this season.

"They've been as good as any team we've played," Stauffer said. "They've been as good on both ends of the court."

In the first half, the Sycamores scored 49 points. They outscored the Hawks 53-36 in the second half.

Stauffer is confident that his team can handle the challenge. He said he would be happy to have the Hawks come to Normal for a rematch. "They're a good team," he said. "I think we can beat them twice."

Behind Starrick scoring, Poules rebounding

Salukis outclass Illinois St., 97-81

On the sidelines at SIU's basketball locker room, there is a small newspaper clipping which quotes Matt Weisbecker, former Illinois basketball athletic director as saying, "We'll meet you in basketball." Weisbecker made that remark after Southern handed the Redbirds a football defeat last fall.

The meeting came Monday night in the SIU Arena and Weisbecker's comments certainly looked as such as a chicken with no feathers. The Salukis thoroughly outclassed Illinois State in the second half, plastering a 97-81 defeat on coach Will Robinson's 11-4 team.

The victory gave Southern a 4-0 Midwestern Conference and pushed SIU over the 500 mark at 9-4. Illinois State dropped to 3-4 in league play and has lost the last three consecutive conference games. It was also SIU's third straight win, a feat the Saluki cage team has accomplished since the 1958-59 season. Led by Greg Starrick's 32 points and Stan Poules' 14 rebounds, SIU pulled from leads of 58-50 at halftime and 80-74 with about seven minutes remaining for the 16-point victory. Southern's largest lead was 16 points, 78-62, with 46 seconds remaining in the game.

Two other Salukis were in double figures. L.B. Brafield with 22 points and John Garrett with 17.

Southern outdistanced the Redbirds for good when Paul Lambert's team scored seven straight points in just over a minute to build a 58-54 lead. Garrett started the rally with a jumper from the top of the key, building the lead to 80-74.

Then Brafield sank a short rebound shot from the right side and Starrick hit one of his 10 consecutive free throws for a 97-81 lead. Don Portugal missed the first of a one-and-one free throw and Brafield built up the lead to 11 points on a short turn around jumper from the left side.

At that point, it was a cakewalk as the Redbirds were never able to mount a serious challenge.

Southern started out with a flurry of points and after less than six minutes had been played, held a nine point lead, 19-10.

Sulli tromp Salukis in state track meet

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — The final event in the Illinois Collegiates was nearing an end.

Larry Cascio had vaulted 144 and gained first place for the SIU track team in pole vaulting as spectators headed for the University of Illinois campus in Champaign Saturday.

But Northern Illinois' Greg Clemen then followed with a 14-6 jump for four more points for the top spot fell into the Huskies' column.

That's how it went for SIU during much of the final day of track, except for a surprise.

Southern, defending the team title, won last year, finished second with 133 points. Illinois State placed third with 106 points.

It was one hell's of a meet, said SIU coach Lew Hartung, but we were not sharp.

'I kept the kids up too high for the meet,' he said. "I guess it ruined our place we got to Champaign, it was an off day for us."

Hartung said the fault of the poor showing in the meet was more has than the team. One mistake was working the team too hard in the cold weather recently, he said.

"That adrenalin has to be moving and that's the main factor," Hartung said. "What's happening and they were charged up like we were last year. Illinois was awful tough and strong."

The Illini grabbed seven first places while SIU took four. The Champaign school also took the top three places in a few events.

Hartung said there were at least 10 instances where things went wrong for Southern including the tripping of Ed Sutton in the 400-yard dash that caused his disqualification.

Ivory Crockett was SIU's top performer, lacking the 60-yard dash in 6.3 seconds and the 400-yard dash in 50.6 seconds. But Crockett's performance was outstanding in the long jump. The sprinter holds meet records in both.

Southern won the mile relay with Crockett, Bob Morrow, Terry Erickson and Sutton. The time of 3:17.2 was seventh fastest of one second from a meet record.

Southern won the four mile relay with Frye, Bob Miller, Don Miller and Eddie James set a new single scoring record with 43 points as his team defeated Beloit College 97-81, before the varsity contest.
