Walker to arrive Sunday

Gov Dan Walker is expected to make several announcements concerning Southern Illinois when visiting the area this weekend.

Tim Rend, a spokesman at the governor's office, said the governor will announce plans concerning energy, Southern Illinois airports, aid for dead children and tourism in Southern Illinois.

The governor is expected to arrive at the Southern Illinois airport Sunday at 4 p.m. From 4 until 7 p.m. he will attend a reception at Bonaparte's Retreat in Carbondale. From there he will attend another reception until 9 p.m. at Tony's Steak House in Marion. Following the reception in Marion, the governor will travel to Merlin's Bar in Carbondale for an informal reception.

The governor is expected to make his announcements at a news conference at the Jefferson School in Marion at 10 a.m. Monday.

The receptions and the news conference are open to the public.

Treasurer ordered to hold trailer tax funds

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County Treasurer Raymond Dillinger has been ordered by Jackson County Circuit Court not to spend any of the Illinois privilege tax on trailers already collected.

Circuit Judge Peyton Kunce issued the preliminary restraining order June 14.

Dillinger said Friday he agreed not to spend any of the money even before the motion asking for the restraining order was filed. He said nearly $140,000 already has been collected.

"I don't really approve of the law," Dillinger said. "I think they should have a chance to see if it's constitutional.'

The court order restraining Dillinger from "dispersing and distributing" money collected under the privilege tax came with the approval of a motion filed by Kenneth Brandon, attorney representing Glenn and Margret Gill.

The Gills filed a class-action suit against Dillinger challenging the constitutionality of the mobile home privilege tax. The Gills are members of the Land of Lincoln Mobile Home Owners Association, a group of mobile home owners formed to battle the trailer privilege tax.

The tax was passed by the Illinois General Assembly in August 1973 and privilege taxes for 1973 were due in February 1974 in Jackson County.

As of Friday, 767 mobile home owners in the county had not paid the tax. Dillinger reported. Of these, 605 were in Carbondale and 162 were in the other 16 townships, said Dillinger.

Dillinger said he would await the outcome of the Gill suit before taking action to collect the unpaid trailer taxes. Dillinger has been restrained from dispersing any of the collected money until the court rules on the pending Gill suit.

Brandon said the suit challenges the constitutionality of the tax because no provisions are made for age or condition of the trailer when assessed. The trailer tax is in a flat rate of 15 cents per square foot of floor space.

The suit also challenges a provision in the tax law allowing an 86 per cent reduction for persons over 65 with less than a $4,000 per year income. Brandon said the suit contends there is no legal basis for the discount.

The suit also objects to the tax being retroactive. In that it covers 1973, even though the tax was not passed until August 1973, he said.

Property taxes in Illinois were dropped by the 1970 Illinois constitution in favor of state income taxes. Many trailer owners have objected to the mobile homes privilege tax claiming they are "being taxed twice.

Dillinger projected in January 1974 that the trailer tax in Jackson county would raise about $250,000. The revenue is to be distributed to all taxing districts in the county, Dillinger said, including cities, townships, road districts, school districts, park districts and water districts.

No date for further hearings on the Gills' suit has been filed with the Jackson County circuit clerk.

CCHS board chief knocks teacher federation plan

By Gary Buoy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board President Charles Hindersman Friday proposed Southern 45 confederation of area teacher associations would put the CCHS board and other district boards in an unfair position.

"It just wouldn't work," Hindersman said. "School districts have different budgets and programs. You just can't have the same salary schedule for different districts."

The CCHS board is now involved in contract negotiations with the education association, the high school teachers' organisation. "We have recognized the local association as a union. We haven't recognized anything else," Hindersman said.

"Any departure from the present process by either negotiating party at this time would be construed as a lack of faith by the other party," Hindersman said.

CCHS comptroller Cecill Hollis, the board's negotiator, said talks with representatives of the association are just getting started and going well.

The board approved a 5.5 per cent pay hike for CCHS teachers in February. It is likely a new contract will be negotiated for next year in the present negotiating process, Hollis said. The teachers' association has asked for a percentage increase in salary on the existing contract, he said. The board would like to negotiate a two-year contract, Hollis said.

Hindersman said the CCHS teachers are paid the highest salaries of any of the 45 Southern Illinois counties. Because of that, the proposed single negotiation process would leave other districts at more of a disadvantage, he said. Other school districts would be faced with raising salaries and increasing benefits to CCHS standards, while they may not have the money to do so, Hindersman said.

Hot licks

When a girl gets an attack of the munchies and it's a scorcher of an afternoon, what better way to get a lick in at both problems than with a cold cone? But she also gets a sticky reminder that the relief can just dribble away. (Staff photo by Jack Cress.)
Green Earth keeping quiet about plans for $100,000

By John Russell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Green Earth, Inc., isn't talking. Green Earth received $100,000 from the Carbondale City Council June 6 as part of the city's $200,000 give-away of profits from the refinancing of water and sewer bonds. The seven persons who make up Green Earth are: George Karnes, a dentist and former city council member; SIU interim President Hiram Lerner; Dr. Allan Bennett, a physician and former head of the city planning commission; Daniel Sherrick, president of The Bank of Carbondale; Paul Biggers, the state highway division; Kathleen Frahia, an instructor in the SIU Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology; and William Murden, the chairman of the Department of Plant and Soil Science.

When requesting the $100,000 the group said the money would be used to buy land in the area that is unsuitable for development because of soil and would let the land revert to its natural state.

But new Green Earth doesn't have anything to say.

Cortie, Biggers and Frahia, all contacted Friday, said it was Green Earth's policy to let Karnes, the group's president, act as spokesman for the group. Karnes however, declined to speak. He said the group decided at its Thursday night meeting to put "a moratorium on all press releases."

He said he has been contacted by local television, radio and newspapers but has decided not to give out any information to the press.

Paul Sorensen, city finance director, said the city has no control over Green Earth's actions because of the law governing profits from bond refinancing.

Sorensen said it is specifically stated that the city have nothing to do with the money once it has been given away.

City councilman Norm Fischer, who originally opposed giving any money of the $200,000 to Green Earth, said he would like to see the private organization become open to members since it is a private effort and open its meetings to the public.

At this time Green Earth holds meetings.

"I don't know what the big secret is," Fischer said.

By holding open meetings, Fischer said, Green Earth would be able to clear rumors and issues with those who have been circulating them.

CCHS accepts union contract for custodians

By Gary Heng
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Custodial workers at Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) will get a 4 cent-an-hour raise beginning July 1 as a result of a new contract accepted this week.

The contract, the first negotiated for the CCHS custodial workers by the Service Employees International Union Local 336, also provides a second raise in January 1976. The workers' present hourly rate of $2.55 will jump to $4.06 in July and to $4.40 in 1976.

Terms of the contract were ratified by the union local earlier this week and approved by the CCHS Board of Education at its Thursday night meeting.

Comptroller Cecil Hollis, negotiator for the board, said Friday there is no major change in fringe benefits in the new contract, except that sick leave has been increased from 16 days to 22 days per year.

Negotiations, which began in March, went smoothly, Hollis said. "We're happy with the professional way they were conducted," he said.

In other business Helen James, associate professor of secondary education, presented the board with a progress report of her study of the group's tutoring program.

James told the board members she had questioned 21 CCHS staff members and students. More communication between students, teachers and administrators is needed, she said. Also, policy is not made clear to many students and teachers, she said.

Margaret Hollis, principal of CCHS East, said the administration is developing a student handbook for school policy.

A low bid of $2,083 was accepted by the board for the state's $500,000 bond issuance for 1976 was approved.

The board discussed proposed federal guidelines for combined male and female physical education classes. Board President Charles Holderman said the CCHS district should "make its objection to this known." He said that though he disagreed with mixed classes, he believed in equal treatment.

A proposal to enter into contract with the Model Cities program was approved. CCHS has cooperated with the Model Cities plan in the past, but tightness in the state education budget caused the board to withdraw its participation this year, Holder said.

Goals for city to be aired Monday night

The Carbondale City Council will hear discussion on "Goals for Carbondale" at a town meeting opening its informal meeting at 7 p.m. Monday night in the University City cafe.

The Council also will receive a progress report on Cedar Lake and recommendations from the Planning Commission concerning the lake project.

Paul T. Sorensen, city finance director, will ask the council whether to use city auditors or seek recommendations from the Illinois State Auditor's office.

City Manager Carroll Fry will make a presentation on the Cedar Lake dedication ceremony. One of these recommendations will be to invite U.S. Rep. Kenneth Gray and Gov. Dan Walker. Fry has suggested scheduling the dedication for early August.

The Council also will review a proposed ordinance to prevent the pollution of Cedar Lake. The ordinance would prevent the drilling of oil and gas wells around the future city reservoir.

The council meetings on the proposed zoning ordinance for Carbondale will be continued Tuesday night.
Paul Simon, Democratic candidate for Congress is planning to promote tourism in Southern Illinois during his family’s vacation.

Simon and his family will spend the two weeks, July 5-18, camping in every county in the 24th Congressional District. “I am hopeful that news publicity from the trip will encourage our fellow Southern Illinoisans to include the scenic, historic and recreational wonders of Little Egypt on their own vacation plans,” Simon said.

The candidate has announced that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will be guest speaker at a $5-per-plate fund-raising dinner Oct 4 at the SIU Student Center.

“I am extremely grateful to Sen. Kennedy for his acceptance of our invitation,” Simon said. “The senator receives literally thousands of speaking requests and I appreciate his considering to take from his schedule to be with us.”

Simon’s friendship with the Kennedy family dates back to 1956 when he first got acquainted with John F. Kennedy. Simon campaigned for President Kennedy throughout Southern Illinois as a state representative.

Information about ticket sales and other arrangements for the dinner will be announced later.

Carbondale industry flourishes after Civil War

Marie W. Mitchell
(Ninth in a series)

With the Civil War well behind, Progress became the watchword for Carbondale. Higher education came to town to stay and several industries began to develop. Too, it seemed that any move made within a radius of the town had a beneficent effect upon Carbondale's economy. In the period 1872-1883, the population grew from 1600 to 2687.

Shortly after the Civil War, Grand Tower, Jackson County's only river port of any significance, began to develop into an industrial center. Iron ore, brought by river boat by way of St. Louis from the hills of south central Missouri, there met the coal being dug up around Murphysboro. In 1867, a railroad was built from Murphysboro to Grand Tower and the next year, it was extended on into Carbondale. Shortly thereafter, the Carbondale & Shawneetown Rail Road was built to the east and then on to the northwest through Harrisburg and on to Fleckneyville. Thus, by the mid-1870's, Carbondale had become a transportation center.

There were those who, overcome by nostalgia, found that things were not as they used to be. As the railroads came into their own, it signalled the end of a colorful era:

"The long trains of ex-wagons coming from the east, each loaded with a large hogshead of tobacco, and dining at a large crane at the freight house to be unloaded, was a sight that vanished."

...-News Item

No more would the loads of cotton, grain and tobacco pulled by the oxen and male teams pour into town. They would instead be taken to the nearest depot or whistle-stop and loaded aboard a train to be shipped into Carbondale and trans-shipped to other points.

Industry flourished in Carbondale. George Washington Rehs operated a flour mill just east of Woodlawn Cemetery and a cotton gin on the west bank of Crab Orchard Creek. The Flecklettes had a brick kiln, a bank and a drug store. A flour mill was established not far from the Adler Print Preserving Company in 1872. There was a woolen mill on South Washington Street where the uniforms for S.J.U. Cadet Corps were made.

One of the leading milling firms of this period was that of Graham & Barbour. This concern as noted especially for a flour mill, a store made of whole wheat flour is produced which became widely popular. It came to be called "Graham" and is thsulky known to present times.

Nelson Graham of Graham & Barbour must have been a man of many parts as it was he who brought electricity to Carbondale. Graham built an electric light plant just west of Woodlawn Cemetery in 1891. And, although he provided service for the town from June 11 of that year, he never lived in his own home. Graham continued to light with kerosene.

Carbondale suffered dreadfully during its "formative" years due to fire. One of the primary reasons that fires were so terrible for the little town was the fact that there was no adequate water supply available for fire-fighting purposes.

Water, in fact, was in short supply for virtually any purpose. As early as 1853, the town's proprietors started a well-digging program to provide existing and future settlers with a supply of fresh water. To no avail. The digging crews, after sinking their shafts some twenty feet encount-tered solid rock. Drills were then put into effect and after attaining a depth of about 200 feet, hit water. But the water at that level was too brackish for human consumption.

At last, the conclusion was reached that cisterns was the only answer to the water problem.

Four cisterns, lined with wood and located in the "Square" sector were dug. Carbondale was growing so rapidly that the newer citizens were some distance from the public cisterns, so it behooved them to provide their own water. Subsequently, cisterns and wells of all varieties, open, covered and deep-etched all over town. Later on, the wells were driven deeper and iron pumps placed on them.

In the meantime, two or three artesian wells had been opened. One of these was at Graham's electric light plant and another in the northwest part of town. During this era, some enterprising wight took to bottling Carbondale's artesian water and selling it as a cure-all.

Letter

To the Daily Egyptian:

Several major television networks cameramen were on hand at the Peppermint Lounge Thursday night to film the go-go guys. I talked to one of them, and asked him why they came here. He said someone at CBS headquarters in New York City had read a news item in the New York Times about them, and had instructed him to come here and film them. CBS news commentator Lee Pappas was here to do the narrating.

I had read about and heard about the go-go guys in words that ranged from "great" to "stupid" to "outrageous" and decided, out of curiosity, to see them myself and have an opinion of my own. I went early because I had heard the place was small and crowded.

I chose the best table, and was soon joined by a SIU student and her mother, and a woman from Marion. A crowd of students, housewives, a group of out-of-town cooks were attending a long-weekend seminar at SIU, etc. soon filled the place.

... At 8 p.m., I came the go-go guys to the accompaniment of squawks and yelling and loud, raucous music. They were scantily clad, one more than the other. The one wearing the red bikini underwear had the "let it all hang out" look, while the other wore what could have passed for an abbreviated navy-blue pencil skirt.

The blaring music continued and the cameramen took up their positions. The dancers got on the two small stages, and proceeded with their "baaaps and grinds" in front of the three big screens. The go-go girls did not move. Their dancing was rather subdued, and while I am inexperienced in this field, I had the feeling that it could indeed be that he had a smidgeon of talent.

Borger's Butcher Shop

Looking west on Illinois Avenue, Fred Borger's Butcher Shop is approximately the same area Leslie's Shoe Store is now. Picture from "Century of Progress." The first One Hundred Years.

As Carbondale grew, not even its new wells could keep up with the demand for water. Thompson's Lake existed, but it was privately owned and used for another purpose. Evidently a couple of generations ago, the climate in Southern Illinois was more severe than now, as ice was harvested from the lake and stored in a large ice house until it could be sold at some profit during the warmer months. Ice has to be nearly a foot thick to make it both safe and profitable to harvest, and very few of us can recall ice of that thickness for any appreciable amount of time on any of the area's lakes. Thompson's Lake is now known as Lake-on-the-Campus.

As Carbondale was growing and prospering from its position as a transportation and manufacturing center, another industry of a far different kind was quietly preparing itself to become the most significant factor in Carbondale's future. Out on the south side of town, Southern Illinois Normal University was growing, and growing.

Endless forms questioned

To the Daily Egyptian:

As this will be the last registration with which I will be involved I will send this little message on behalf of the personnel who will be continuing to administer the registration at the start of each session. I want to direct your attention to your "registration" picture and you have not failed to notice it. Now it really is the picture that we mind so much as it is the slanted captions that accompanies the picture.

I note that this year to the June 20 little gen "finishing classes into blank spaces on the endless forms." In fairness to the registrars you might want to consider writing out suitably for your "registration" picture and you have not failed to notice it. Now it really is the picture that we mind so much as it is the slanted captions that accompanies the picture.

To the Daily Egyptian:

"Red Bikinis", on the other hand, had no talent for dancing and mostly just shouted all over and the crowd went wild. It had to be his over-exposure they were yelling about. Watching him perform and seeing and hearing the crowd act like they were being entertained, I was shocked, indignant, nauseated and close to being ashamed of claiming membership in the human race especially the female half!

An SIU student from India expressed my sentiments when she said to me "why doesn't someone yell "Boo!!."

Needless to say, I will never waste my time again on watching go-go guys, and my heart goes out in sympathy to the women who find them to be more than one-time source of entertainment. I truly believe they must be slightly ill, but not so much but what a relatively simple brain transplant would cure them.

As for the go-go guys everyone, they say, has his price. For $10 as he, each one will get up in front of a crowd of what would appear to be, drunken women and make a JACKASS of himself.

The remarks of a young, intelligent-looking CBS cameraman made my trip to the Peppermint Lounge worth-while. I found out that there is at least one member of the "NOW" generation who respects his parents and would therefore expect them to go to respectable places.

He said to me, "Why did you come down here to see this dirty show?" What is this world coming to?"
Revue billed at Grand Tower

Oroconda, a professional theatre company from Ohio, will be at Grand Tower Saturday to present free its Revue Hall Revue. The show will be held at Devil's Backbone Park for a 7:30 p.m. performance.

Oroconda is on its second annual tour down the Mississippi, performing free shows in river towns from St. Louis to New Orleans. The show is sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

The act, about the trials and tribulations of a group of travelling entertainers, should delight both children and adults with entertainment ranging from magic acts to pantomime.

Thirty towns and cities will see Oroconda this summer, with New Orleans as the site for the season's final show August 31.

Each summer Oroconda returns to the river with an all-shower show, with 1976 as the year the show will begin to travel on its own showboat.

Visitors to the Huttrer House will be able to meet members of the Oroconda group Saturday afternoon.

Wides to chair Cancer Society

A new chair was elected at the quarterly meeting of the Jackson County Unit of the American Cancer Society, held June 17

Succeeding Frank Bleyer as chairman is Louis Wides of Murphysboro.

The announcement was made that the local unit has set up a Cancer Memorial Fund so that relatives of cancer victims may donate to the memorial fund with donations going for cancer research.

A report was given that the 4th district (Jackson County and surrounding county's) is about $15,000 short of reaching the set goal for the cancer fund raising drive.

Mayor says poor in cities need federal jobs or help

By Bill Layne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The federal government can help urban areas in one of two ways, according to Richard Williams, who wishes to run for the 1974 · 75 academic year. The government can either provide jobs or it can provide food. "Many urban areas could benefit from the attention these people desire," Williams said.

Williams told partisans of a November 12th meeting of the Governor's Council that the cities cannot provide all the opportunities for the urban population. "When a man doesn't have a job, he does the next best thing—begs along the sidewalks, and there are no lobbyists for urban politicians," Williams said.

About 6,500 persons are unemployed in the city of Charleston, Williams said, and although the city is 75 percent black, the black only comes about 40 percent of the jobless. Williams explained that despite urban troubles the cities have become strengthened because

April area unemployment rate drops

The unemployment rate in the Charleston-Midway area decreased from 4.9 percent in February to 4.6 percent in April due substantially to large seasonal gains in retail trade and agriculture. The unemployment rate is released by the Illinois Employment Service.

The April figure was above the state average of 4.3 percent, but was below the national percentage of 5.0. Employment is expected to continue improving through June because of seasonal factors, which should fall in August.

As of May 1, according to the BLS active file, females comprised 25 percent of the unemployed labor force. Charle-

Wolfman to show host at DuQuoin on August 24

DUQUOIN—Wolfman Jack, succeed of NBC-TV's "Midnight Special" and host of a syndicated music program, will open his opening day music Aug. 24 at the Du Quoin State Fair.

Wolfman's 90-minute show is internationally syndicated on some 180 stations, and has already gained his credit and made his screen debut in the youth-oriented movie. "Cage of Genghis," which he portrayed himself.

Feelin' on the show's opening show will be Jim Stafford, currently on NBC's "The Mike Douglas Show" with his recording of "My Girl Bill." In addition to Stafford, The Harris Corporation and The Cooker also will be on the show.

Cheerleading clinic scheduled

A cheerleading clinic for high school aged girls is scheduled for June 24-28 at the site of the annual Du Quoin State Fair.

The clinic is being sponsored by the Girls' State Cheerleading Foundation. And will be conducted by two main Attractions: Two female instructors from the International Cheerleading Foundation.

Tuition is $60 per student with a special rate for teams of six or more. Further information contact Marilyn Phillips, Hayes Fair Acres, 306-528-6700.

Church revival slated at Bethel

The Bethel A.M.E. Church, 315 E. Jackson, will begin a community wide revival starting at 7:30 p.m. Monday and running through Friday.

Churches throughout the city will be participated in the services conducted by the Rev. M. Thomas Harrell, pastor, and other ministers.

The seminar was designed to bring the classroom teacher into direct contact with active political leaders and thinkers.

The seminar includes free for five at Dallin Ringer, 311 N. State St., Illinois; John Deeds, 316 E. Jackson, Madisonville, and Senator John P. Handford at the Governor's Office in Harrisburg.

Be on campuses will be open for Lake Gildeard 23 and for others at Bell Spring Airport, Bedell Rend Field Campgrounds (Camp Catt), Garden of the Gods, Lake Ohio, Ohio State Recreation Area, the Hills, Boardwalk Hotel and Towers Back.

There will also be a 20 cent camping fee for persons six years of age and over at Lake Gildeard and Board Hotel.

No fee will be charged for overbook state areas or boat ramps.

Cubs, Morales nip Pirates

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Morales cracked a game-tying home run in the fourth inning and then singled home the tiebreaker in the seventh Friday, leading the Chicago Cubs and Steve Stone to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Don Kessinger led off the seventh with a single, his third hit of the game, and continued to second when left-fielder Willie Stargell fumbled the fly ball for an an error. Rick Monday walked before Morales fired an opposite-field shot into center field to put the Cubs on top for good.

Morales added an insurance run when he drove in Monday with a sacrifice fly.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the fourth singles by A.Cubs and Steve Stone to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.
