AISG stands against boosting tuition rates for university students

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG) took a stand Saturday against raising tuition, contending that the persons making financial decisions are not sympathetic to the problems of middle and low-income groups.

Richard Carlsen, education director of the Illinois Bureau of the Budget, had talked last month of a "national trend" toward increased tuition rates coupled with smaller rates of student financial aid.

AISG recommended a more detailed study of the effects of tuition increases on all income groups.

Jim Gitz, AISG executive director, expressed concern over recent reports of the Council for Economic Development (CED) and the Carnegie Commission, which he said favors raising tuition to the limits students are perceived to be willing to pay. "The CED says students are not paying enough costs," Gitz said.

In reply to the CED's contention, Gitz said the total cost of education must be kept in mind. He said the Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) grants only tuition costs, leaving room, board, transportation and book costs to the student.

Gitz also raised the point that students are giving up income from a full-time job for the time they attend school. All these considerations, he said, "add up to a real economic case." With a hike in tuition, the ISSC would need a larger budget, Gitz said, to supply students eligible for scholarships and grants with the extra money they would need to remain in school. Additional funds, Gitz contended, would have to come mainly from the federal government, and he said these funds are far from guaranteed.

Hypothesizing further, Gitz said, "If we raise tuition and costs remain the same, money has to come from somewhere." He said some advocates say that greater student share of educational costs "are big on loans to cover additional costs." "Loans are good for some people, but not for others," Gitz said.

He said two main problems arise concerning loans. Some disciplines, such as medicine and engineering, "are a good bet." To return the cost of a loan in the future, "it is the student, but not the other interests, such as art, may not be financially rewarding enough to risk a loan.

Another drawback of the loan logic is the "a lot of people have a hard time getting loans," Gitz said. "A bank would rather give out car loans than low-interest education loans.

Ken Midkiff, a staff member of the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction who attended the conference in Chicago, said low income students may shy away from a college education if tuition is increased, simply because they may not be aware of scholarship opportunities available to them. "They'll look at the high cost and decide they can't afford it," he said.

Gitz was critical of the way possible tuition increases are considered by decision-making agencies.

"The Bureau of the Budget plays with facts and figures," he said. "They don't care what students think. If the figures say 'a lot of people have a hard time getting loans,' the student has to raise tuition."

Students are likely to receive inadequate consideration, Gitz contended, "if you leave decisions to (Continued on page 3)

Credit union gets delay; directors 'unacceptable'

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The charter for a Carbondale credit union to serve students, townpeople and local businesses has been returned to its originators by a federal agency which declared the credit union's proposed board of directors "unacceptable."

"The federal agency doesn't want people on the board who belong to faculty and staff credit unions," Jeff Lohrmann, a student involved in forming the union, said Monday. "Right now we're working as hard as we can to get a new list of board members and committee members so we can return the charter as soon as possible."

"We were surprised when we got it back," Lohrmann said. "We still hope we can get it approved by the end of fall quarter, so the credit union can get under way by Jan. 1, 1974."

"The Jan. 1 gate is important because we want students to buy shares in the union, and they won't have as much money to invest after the beginning of the quarter," he said.

300 signatures required for the charter will carry over, he said.

Lohrmann said a new board of 11 persons has been drawn up, but there "have been hassles finding community people to serve on the credit union committee and supervisory committee."

"We're trying to make the credit union our No. 1 priority right now," Lohrmann said in discussing Student Government's role in forming the credit union. "But we got sidetracked by the student trustee referendum."

Lohrmann said he is "still aiming for completion of the charter this quarter," but needs student help. Anyone interested can contact Student Government.

"I want to come up with results, not more plans," Lormann said.

Seven men students first to take out petitions for student trustee position

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Seven men were the first to take out petitions Monday for student trustee.

"Candidate applications are available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Student Government office. Deadline for turn- ing applications with 325 signatures is 5 p.m. Monday.

"From the first day, turnouts, we should have good representation of the student body. Tom Nuckles, elections commissioner, said.

Those students who have applied are: Larry Rafferty, Gary M. Zajonc, Larry Weiler, senior in marketing; Ronald J. Ruskey, senior in financial management; Gary Sosens, senior in engineering; Matthew D. Rich, sophomore in journalism; and Daniel P. Schueren, sophomore, in administration of justice and government.

Additional identification of Rafferty and Zajonc was not available.

Nuckles said there will be a mandatory meeting concerning rules of the election for all candidates at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Student Government office.

"If any candidate is unable to attend this meeting, he must send a representa- tive," Nuckles said.

The student trustee election is scheduled for Dec. 5. Lates and candidate qualifications have been ap- proved by the Student Senate but must also be accepted as Wednesday's Graduate Student Council (GSC) meeting before being finalized.

All candidate qualifications and the conduct of the campaigns will be known after the GSC meeting.

L. C. Brown, in his address to the American Medical Association today, said that the use of illegal drugs has increased significantly in recent years. He added that the current methods of treatment are not effective enough and that new approaches are needed.

Brown also discussed the importance of education and prevention in addressing the drug problem. He emphasized the need for public awareness campaigns and the involvement of schools and communities in promoting healthy alternatives.

Brown concluded his remarks by calling for a coordinated effort among health professionals, educators, and law enforcement officials to tackle the growing drug epidemic. He encouraged individuals to take responsibility for their actions and to seek help when needed.
Maser claims Daily Egyptian run by two administrators

By Marcia Bullard

A graduate student in journalism told a Student Senate committee Monday that he believes the Daily Egyptian "is controlled by one or two people, primarily the administration." Allan Maser testified at the fourth hearing in the paper's editorial policy. Hearings will continue at 2 p.m. Tuesday with testimony by Bill Harman, former managing editor of the Daily Egyptian. Maser said he believes the DE staff members "are not encouraged to do investigative reporting" and that this is reflected in the paper as a whole. "Reporters do a good job of reporting meetings, etc., but I don't believe they do a good job of investigating," Maser added.

He cited one instance in which he had suggested a story idea to fiscal officer Robert Bond, who told him the story was being done, but Maser said he has never seen the story.

The Academic Affairs committee, chaired by Gerry Seltzer, is conducting the investigation. It was authorized Oct. 10 after English professor Fred Whitehead complained a letter to the editor he had written was not published. So far, Whitehead, a staff writer and associate professor of Technical University, and editor Seltzer have testified. When asked by Seltzer if the lack of investigative reporting is the result of obvious restraints by managing editor Ed Horv or Long, Maser said, "But I don't think the DE itself is getting into any problems on campus," he said, "I think that things aren't being reported.

Seltzer asked if Maser thought staff writers had sufficient time to do a lot of investigating.

"Reporters could be given the time," Maser replied. He later admitted he knows nothing about the scheduling of reporters or how stories are assigned or covered by DE reporters.

Maser said he has a "very superficial" knowledge of the actual operation of the Daily Egyptian but he wanted to bring some facts to the committee's attention. "A lot of this is opinion," he said of his ideas on how an editorial page should be controlled. In response to a question by Seltzer, Maser said he feels the DE is "wasting its reporters and wasting the paper too.

"It's not giving me what I want to know," he said.

Maser agreed that if the editorial page was controlled by a student editor rather than Long, it would probably still be subject to personal editorial judgment. When asked if the DE would be a better paper if supervised by the faculty, he said, "I don't feel students are being served by having a faculty-sponsored paper.

Maser also told the committee he thinks the DE runs too many editorials concerning national problems "When there are a lot of problems on this campus that need attention." Maser volunteered to testify before the committee.

U.N. truce-watchers move towards control in Mideast

By The Associated Press

U.N. truce-watchers moved into a bleak Israeli checkpoint on the Cairo-Suez road Monday but were forced out of another as they took the first practical steps toward carrying out the new Suez truce.

The Israeli state radio said Austrian and Swedish troops of the U.N. Emergency Force manned the Israeli barrières at Kilometer 101, where the irregular cease-fire line crosses the highway about 80 miles east of Cairo. The Israelis declined comment on the U.N. take-over, a tender political subject in Israel. But U.N. officials in Jerusalem said their troops had assumed control as stipulated in the new cease-fire.

The Tel Aviv radio said Monday, however, that its troops dismantled a second checkpoint on the approaches to Suez city because the blue-beret U.N. troops had set it up "contrary to Israeli agreement.

There was no report of violence. The Israelis said they took down the U.N. barrier after the peacekeeping troops disregarded a request to take it down themselves.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim had "made a strong protest" to the Israeli mission.

agencies that are politically insulated."

He said the "prestigious" CED and Carnegie reports provided the IBHE and Bureau of the Budget with "a real nice rationale" for seeking a tuition hike. Gitz did not feel certain the agencies would take such a route. He pointed out that Joe Block, vice chairman of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, is also on the CED.

Another report could have a major influence. A government report on graduate or suppress a tuition increase, Gitz said, and that is the General Assembly's Economic and Fiscal Commission, chaired by Sen. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago.

The Illinois lawmakers, which Gitz said is expected to analyze financial assistance and higher education, is scheduled to appear in January, according to AIG information. The AIG needs to present its case to the Fiscal Commission before it will contemplate its action in connection with appeals to the legislators, the AIG is planning to conduct a massive voter registration drive to "make sure students are part and parcel of the political process," Gitz said.

He reasoned that legislators are not likely to support the student constituency characterized by "inaction. Gitz said students have no inten- tions of staying off a tuition increase this fall. He noted that the support it receives from registered student voters.

Affirmative Action Board seats 3 new members

By Diane Mizialko

The three vacant seats on the Affirmative Action Board for Academic Affairs have been filled, Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs, announced Monday.

The new members of the board are: Jessie M. Hailey, co-ordinator, Developmental Skills; Benjamin A. Shepherd, associate professor of zoology and assistant dean of the graduate school; Karen R. Craig, chairman of the Department of Family Economics and Human Resources.

Leasure said the new board members were the only candidates invited to fill the gap left by the sudden resignation of three-fourths of the board members in October.

Until the new appointments, Burton Bond, assistant to the dean of the School of Technical Careers, was the only member remaining on the board. Two advisers to the Affirmative Action Board have agreed to be available for consultation on specific matters, Leasure said. They are Stanley Smith, Dean of the College of Human Resources, and Sue Ann Pace, associate professor of speech pathology and audiology.

The board has not met since the appointments, but Leasure said he plans to call a meeting as soon as possible. As a basis for the board's work, Leasure said, he will use the charge given to the original Affirmative Action Board in March, 1973 by then Vice President and Provost Willis Malone.

"We'll start from there," Leasure said, "and consult with the board in each general area. We'll let the board fill in the missing role.

Leasure said he sees the board as having three purposes: "to advise, inform and counsel" the academic community on Affirmative Action issues.

The board, Leasure said, may suggest policy changes, comment on policy changes suggested elsewhere, become a source of information on where to find relatively good faculty members, and refer complaints through proper channels.

The board is not to hear and judge complaints. Leasure said, "I do not want to keep people on the right track in settling disputes. I don't see the board sitting in a judgment role. It should facilitate the process.

The main responsibility for implementing an Affirmative Action plan, Leasure said, lies with deans, departmental administrators. These people are best qualified to lead the way for black and women faculty, Leasure said.

SIU's comprehensive Affirmative Action program plan is "moving right along through the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare," Leasure said, and has been submitted at HEW's request on Oct. 31.

Within a week, Leasure said, he expects to meet with HEW officials in Chicago for preliminary discussions of the SIU plan.

HEW's final opinion of the plan should follow current HEW staff discussions, Leasure said. HEW will eventually need to prepare the plan under Federal fair employment guidelines.

Reporters keep out

On Friday, Nov. 9, 1973, this Daily Egyptian staff writer was barred from a special session of the Student Senate.

The meeting was called to "discuss personalities" said Mike Carr, student body president. But, in fact, the 3/4-hour session only resulted in the senate's complete reversal of its Wednesday decision to eliminate all student trustee candidate qualifications.

Why was a reporter barred? The Student Government's constitution has no stipulations on holding closed meeting, Lynn Kinsell-Rainey, Graduate Student Council (GSC) president; Sharon Yeangin, GSC executive secretary; Mike Carr and Ron Sears, graduate assistant in the Student Affairs office, were all present at the meeting.

Why are these people allowed at a so-called "closed" meeting and not the press? Could it be the Student Senate only wants perfection reported — not its indecency and vacillation? Could it be the Student Senate sought to display its power by closing the meeting to the public which originally granted that power?

Could it be even the shamelessly disorganized Student Senate finally became embarrassed by its constant personality clashes?

As this reporter walked into the Friday meeting, Senate Vice President Jim Kania said, "I want complete silence while he is in this room." Is this an indication of the size of the senate's (or Jim Kania's) ego?

A*Black's view on racism

To the Daily Egyptian:

It seems as soon as Blacks decide to have a culture event it is called or rather mislabeled as a racist pageant. It appears rather strange for a WASP to call Blacks racist but we must remember that WASP are the root of most racist situations. There is no need in this brief letter to discuss the history of race problems between people of different cultures, especially here in Southern Illinois, and at SIU. The racial situation at SIU is not unique but rather explicit due to the fact that there is a systematic process of eliminating the Black student population.

There are Statistics which will verify what I'm saying.

Mike Suttle, said, "I guess talk of equality for man comes cheap" in a letter he submitted to the Daily Egyptian, and he was correct because WASP are known for their ability to give great and lengthy oratories which in essence says little about anything, this is true of many Instructors, Politicians, and a multitude of other people at SIU. Mike Suttle also said, "Somehow it just all doesn't seem to make sense" and again he was correct but he failed to state that it is a common trait among WASP not to make sense.

Travel service protest

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to express my disapproval in the policy of the SIU Activities Office, concerning bus charters for dorm activities. The policy states that any organization requesting a chartered bus to be paid by the Housing Activity Fee must purchase only through SIU Travel Service.

Unaware of this rule, I ordered 2 busses through West Bus Co. in Carbondale, for a kegger in Giant City. West Bus charges exactly $70.00 total. SIU Travel Service charges $75.00, possibly more, depending on the total time of the trip.

The day before the kegger, I learned this rule. At that time, it was too short notice for SIU Travel Service to round up any drivers. Mr. Hankla of SIU Travel Service told me that there was no way I could get any bus for that day using Housing Activity money, West Bus Co. DID have busses and drivers available. SIU Travel Service DID NOT. Therefore, to comply with the university's regulations I had to cancel the kegger.

Mr. Hankla told me that the policy existed to make it appear as though the university is taking care of SIU, the woman in the Office of Student Life told me that the policy existed because of insurance reasons etc. I wonder if POLITICAL PATRONAGE has anything to do with the reason for this policy.

In appreciation

To the Daily Egyptian:

On behalf of the Knights of Columbus Council 5867, of St. Francis Xavier Church in Carbondale, I wish to extend my sincerest appreciation to students, faculty, staff and area residents who generously donated to our recent Tootsie Roll Drive for Retarded Children.

Contribution amounts have greatly exceeded our expectations; as of November 7, the total reached $2443.31, with several returns yet to be added. This total represents a nearly 100 per cent increase over the amount collected last year.

As in the past, students were the greatest contributors, and our thanks go out to them for their unselfish support.

P ego. 4 Daily Egyptian, November 13, 1973

Council officers will meet this month to allocate funds. We ask anyone who has suggestions concerning local agencies or needy families who could benefit from these funds to please submit their ideas to the Knights of Columbus Council 5867, in care of St. Francis Xavier Church, 303 South Poplar, Carbondale 62901.

Once again, thanks to all who helped to make this year's drive an overwhelming success!

The higher criticism

To the Daily Egyptian:

Concerning David Stearns' review of the Detroit Orchestra (Nov. 1, 1972) I must strongly protest. It is most inappropriate and right that the Orchestra's conductor be dealt with in an unfair manner.

We have observed for some time Mr. Stearns pretensions to musical and literary competence, first with ironic amusement lately with genuine alarm. It is our feeling that Mr. Stearns deals entirely in subjective impressions, and while it is appropriate and right that we all have subjective impressions, it seems most inappropriate that such impressions be given any credibility.

Thanks to all

To the Daily Egyptian:

About a week ago SIU-C conducted the most successful Student Trustee Referendum in the state of Illinois, involving the largest percentage voter turnout ever recorded on this campus. The campaign from the beginning to completion lasted only 16 days.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank all those who helped. So, we would like to thank everyone who got the job done.

Facts from McKenzie

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to an article in the Daily Egyptian (Nov. 1, 1972) at SIU President David R. Derge's emotional speech we would like to present some facts that he failed to mention.

First of all, he mentioned of the fact that money should not be "Poured down private rather than state"

Do SIU have individually designed majors, or an internship program? How much were the students at SIU in policy changes? How much representation do the students at SIU have in policy changes?

Does SIU have individually designed majors, or an internship program? How much were the students at SIU in policy changes? How much representation do the students at SIU have in policy changes?

President Derge mentioned the fact that a maximum of $6,000 is given to eligible SIU students, while $1,200 goes to students at Northwestern. But President Derge failed to mention that tuition and fees at SIU are $189.36 per quarter or $567.08 for three quarters. So, most students who are getting free tuition. Eligible students at McKenzie are able to receive up to $1,200, but our tuition and fees are $1,970 per year. The students at McKenzie do not get a free tuition ride.

Also President Derge said that "State Universities could absorb many more students." There are 166 students who have been enrolled in public universities and colleges. In private universities and colleges there are 195,045 students. I do not feel that the state and the taxpayers could afford to educate 271,751 students free of charge. Also, I do not feel that a state controlled education is an answer to our own problems. Why does SIU need a larger budget every year, when the enrollment is declining each year? In 1970 there were 23,843 students at SIU Carbondale. In 1971 the enrollment declined (6.13 percent) to 22,902 students. In 1972 the enrollment dropped (1.99 percent) to 20,349. And now in 1973 the enrollment at SU is 19,147 which is a decrease of .93 percent from 1972.

What I have presented are facts that are available in a report by the University Board of Institutional Research at the University of Illinois. So when the students and taxpayers look at the issue concerning free tuition, examine the facts before hearing emotional statements. Unless the State of Illinois has a surplus, it will be a privilege, not a right given by the state.

Comet to appear next month

By Mike Parshall
Student Writer

Kohoutek, the great, is hurting toward a year-end pass of the earth. The huge comet will be visible to Southern Illinoisans early next month.

Czechoslovakian-born astronomer Lubos Kohoutek discovered the comet in March of this year. Using the telescope of the Hamburg (Germany) Observatory, Kohoutek spotted the comet when it was 400 million miles from the sun, near Jupiter's orbit.

As comets go, Kohoutek is a giant. The nucleus of a typical comet is about one mile in diameter, but Kohoutek's heart is estimated at 10 to 15 miles across.

Kohoutek will make a spectacular display in the night sky. Astronomers speculate that the tail of the comet will arc across 36 degrees—roughly one-sixth of the sky.

From early December to Dec. 28, Kohoutek will be visible in the early morning eastern sky over Southern Illinois. After Dec. 28, Kohoutek will be visible for a few hours after sunset, again in the eastern sky.

Kohoutek will look best from Jan. 5 to Jan. 15.

Careers Day '73 to feature various company spokesmen

Representatives of five companies, a metropolitan police department and the U.S. Army will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday to answer questions about job opportunities during Careers Day '73.

The representatives will be in Student Center Ballroom A from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday. Booths will be set up and photographs, pamphlets, filmstrips and other literature will be provided.

Organizations represented will be Sears, Oron Drug, the St. Louis Police Department, the Army, General Tire and Rubber Co., Fidelity Union Life Insurance and Drakebrook.

The Society for the Advancement of Management (SAM), composed chiefly of business and marketing majors, is sponsoring the event for the fifth year.

SAM Vice President Gary Walter said the program is informal to put students at ease. "The firms are not here to recruit you, but rather to inform you. If an interview is desired, students will be referred to the proper contacts," he said.

Students can come and go as they please over the two-day program, Walter said.

The course—a combination of lectures, discussion and problem-solving sessions—will review background material for "professional engineer" and "engineer-in-training" examinations.

A registration fee of $20 will be charged and must be paid by Jan. 25. The course will begin Feb. 12 and run through April 30. Enrollment is limited to 25 persons.

Three Dog Night success formula based on showmanship, experience

By Linda Ljuman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Deodato opened Friday's Arena concert with an hour of professional music while the audience remained silent in anticipation. Three Dog Night followed with two hours non-stop, performing in expensive high styled outfits and cuee dance numbers to which the crowd responded with enthusiasm.

That says something about the audience of 6,000 plus (more than attended any Arena concert this fall). Spectators failed to recognize the ability of the integration of the instruments in Deodato to produce their distinct "space sound."

Several of the instrumental jams sounded pre-arranged, although they were probably collectively improvised by the 16-piece band. Deodato didn't need to rely on its hit singles or fancy get-ups. They jammed away, performing numbers which would begin with a solo member on organ, transform it to a full classical piece, and then phase into the space odyssey, which would end with "Night in White Satin," by the Moody Blues. The band has an original sound in which all instruments (trumpet, congas, organ, bass, drums) are utilized to their potential.

The crowd sat still while all this good music filled the Arena. Most of the lack of enthusiasm was due to the dearth of attractions, as promised by "University regulations concerning alcohol," with no alcohol distributed before the concert and the severe stigmata on alcohol enforcement. The person sitting next to me leaned over to ask what song was being performed and immediately got shot in the eyes by a flash from the singer's \"pick-me-up.\" I tried to tell him it was "Eli Dalor," but I am told he is a refuse." "Easy to be Hard."

"Easy to be Hard" singers went well with the choreography. By the end of a \"not-too-long drum solo, the entire instrumental section was back on stage and the singers came back with new suits and new sounds originally composed by the band. \"Into My Life\" proved the band has progressed and has potential for exploring new musical avenues.

Two people released their restraints and boogied in the aisles to the rock music of Three Dog Night. By the closing number, the entire audience was on its feet, having fully enjoyed the show and applauding for more. The group returned for a brief encore lead by a guitar solo, then swung into full instrumentation, which sustained audience involvement.

Demonstration set to explain electric music

By Dave Stewart
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Will Gay Botje, professor of music, went to Logano House or the Student Center for a demonstration. Botje said that one can play a piano or flute intuitively without knowing the actual content of the sound. "But with computer music, you have to tell the computer everything, such as wave length and pitch," Botje explained. "You have to dictate the frequency per second. You must tell the computer everything that can be done with an instrument. The sounds have to be built one by one in a computer composition."

However, computerized music has many aspects that are only theoretical according to Botje. He noted the computer's potential, which Botje said is "infinite in the audible spectrum. But it's not a question of whether the computer is a free or rigid way of composing music—it depends on what I ask the computer to do. The computer is only another resource for the composer, just as if one were the voice, the piano or the synthesizer.

Botje made film which will also be shown at Botje's lecture, as well as the "computer" which he recently completed computerized work "Gigimash."

A paper by Lamar W. Bridges, doctoral candidate in the School of Journalism and Mass Communication, will be read at the 1974 annual meeting of the West Tennessee Historical Society. Bridges’ study is titled “Tennessee Representative Kenneth McKellar and the Sixty-Second Congress 1911-1913.”

Robert Vogel, associate professor of economics, will a seminar Nov. 19 to 21 in Guatemala for high level government officials from Central American countries. The seminar has been arranged by the U.S. State Department and Professor Vogel will be lecturing in Spanish on “The Changing International Economic Situation and Current United States Policy.”

Vogel’s wife, Susan, an architectural historian, will also be lecturing in Guatemala for the U.S. State Department on “U.S. Efforts to Control Regressions and the Politics of Development” and on “The Preservation of Historic Architecture in the United States.”

Professor Vogel joined the SIU faculty this year after serving for a year in Washington as a senior staff economist on the President’s Council of Economic Advisers, where he specialized in fiscal policy, public finance andometrics.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded an $8,000 renewal to its grant to the School of Medicine that will allow the school’s Department of Educational Resources and Development to continue its research in measuring health care costs.

The funding renewal increases the total amount of federal support for the program to $12,000 and extends the program to November, 1974. The research is directed by John E. Ware, Jr. and Mary Kay Snyder, Drs.

The research program is designed to measure how health services and perceptions of health status and quality of care factor into the health care costs. The results of the research will allow the development of a set of scales that will improve the evaluation of the health care people receive.

The first project funded with the program will be conducted in Perry, Franklin and Williamson Counties in the next few weeks.

H.D. Piper, professor of English, has been invited to give a public lecture at Kansas State University Dec. 7, as the guest of the Department of English. He will speak on the topic, “F Scott Fitzgerald and the Jazz Age.”

On Dec. 11 he will speak at the annual banquet of the Williamson County Mental Health Association on “Land Between the Rivers. The Southern Illinois University.”

He will spend Dec, 17 and 18 in Washington, D.C. as a consultant to the National Endowment for the Humanities, judging Fellowship awards to younger scholars in the humanities.

Dormale Lindberg, Department of Elementary Education, conducted an inservice training session for the Jefferson County Education Association, Louisville, Kentucky, Nov. 2.

The session, entitled “Living, Loving, Laughing, and Learning in the Classroom,” a multi-media presentation on well teaching, was video taped by the district for future use in inservice education.

Answering Letters with David R. Gerber

Dear Dr. Gerber,

I love it in one of the University’s dorms on campus and I think it is commendable that you are trying to build the end of our ‘dooms’ down. However, what can we expect next year?

Ken Allen, Freshman, Physical Education.

Dear Miss Allen,

Next year we will fight to keep dorm prices at their present level as we have fought for a nation policy. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale this past year refused to take the easy way of covering increasing costs of operating residence halls. Rather than simply raise prices, the halls management was asked to alter operating procedures and practices in order to allow rates to remain the same.

Several of our sister institutions were not pleased with this action because they did raise fees and were fearful of similar actions. However, if we had an adversary cooperative effort. It is our desire to try to build costs and fees down in order to attract students and offer the best for structure. Our experience in the deplores last year was very gratifying and our current occupancy rate has gone to over 90%.

Dear Dr. Gerber,

I know that I am failing 1974 the University will be changing from the present quarter system to semester. I am sure that you have heard many discussions over the pros and cons of such a move. Please tell me what you feel are the obvious advantages.

Date Northeast, Freshmen, General Studies.

Dear Miss Northeast.

The change from the quarter to semester system has the following advantages: First, it will put SIU in line with other institutions and with the majority of the public school systems in Illinois so that students can transfer course credit with fewer complications, especially those students who wish to provide a larger number of transferable, general education courses for students in future years. It will also put our graduates out of the job market more quickly than in the past. Second, it is competitive with the majority of educational institutions in the area that have moved to the semester. It is our hope that before we switch skiing the year, which is possible for all of us to do. Departments are closely scrutinizing all these effects, these are continuing courses, and in general designing the best curricula possible for today’s students and tomorrow’s students.

There, we anticipate real money savings in having students attend a better advising process, one less registration process, one less final examination schedule, and a corresponding reduction in records and record keeping.

I am Dr. President, Dige

I have for a long time wondered where has the school hop, massacre and happen—thing gone? I feel all of us all at 511 have remembered the spirit of such a gathering was to meet new people, faculty and staff and later on get some exercise and myself others, than a dance there. There has never been since I have attended SIU, there is no such activity, a social activity or entertainment on our university campus that has then. Our dance was the only social activity that we have had that has then.

My dream come true will be a social activity, especially hoped for a massacre tail field in our area where the resulting stage could act as the nucleus of the dance floor with the students playing the music and entertainment for all. I was then the event would be a wonderful entertainment, and enjoyable time for all SIU’s members.

Sincerely,

Kathleen R. Shaffer

Dear Miss Shawlifer,

Dear President, Dige.

I am a student worker and I presently make $8.50 an hour. The question I would like answered is this: who decides when you get a raise and how much can it be? Thank you for your answer.

Sharon Hale, Senior, History.

Dear Mr. Hale,

As a student worker there are several methods of acquiring pay increases. The most common method of acquiring pay increases is through your immediate superior, the department head, who must go through the proper channels to recommend an increase or simply recommend that you be removed from the job. The simple way is to have your pay increased.

If any student worker has any questions concerning work problems, please contact Mr. Bill French, Coordinator of Student Employment on campus. He is located in the Student Work and Financial Aid Office, Washington Square B.

Sincerely,

Michael Lewis, WSU13 Junior Pre-Med.

Dear Mr. Lewis,

As a registered student your wife may receive a pay check by presenting your student I.D. along with a paid for statement at Washington Square A Student Services Office.

In the following, a two week book loan from the library, as well as student rates for all area presentations, Lecture Series, Student Center concessions, Southern Players, Campus Lake, University Theater, Student Stores, Student Health and Southern Illinois University, which includes Pence, the Hillman Auditorium and Community Center.

The Con believable, the campus Swimming Pool Committee composed of candidates who use the pool have determined that only registered students and swimming instructors will be allowed in, even though they’re not registered as a student. There are other activities to which this same question would apply.

Thank you,

Michael Lewis, WSU13 Junior Pre-Med.

Dear Sir,

I am writing to inquire as to the status of, any of the services provided to us. For example, if my wife and I were to be married in the church, the choice of the rabbi for the ceremony will be allowed in, even though she’s not registered as a student.

Sincerely,

David R. Gerber, A.T.A.

‘Verona’ retains quality

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It’s good enough for Shakespeare and one feels the Bard would approve, it’s good enough for me.

“Two Gentlemen of Verona” is a breezy, pleasant play presented at Shryock Auditorium may still be remembered from the audience’s cheers Saturday evening.

This is the Joseph Papp production that captivated the New York Shakespeare Festival audiences two years ago at the Delacorte Theater in Central Park. The musical was expanded and elaborated for a subsequent Broadway run that walked off with the Tony’s share of awards last season.

The happy surprise is that the quality and impact have been retained in the touring edition ‘Celebrity Series’ presented for this one-night stand.

It has music by Galt MacDermot (who gave you “Hair”), lyrics by John Guare (who gave you “The House of Blue Leaves”) and a book more or less by William Shakespeare (who gave you “Hamlet”).

The play, which has been immediately adapted by Guare and Mr. Shapiro, is not one of Shakespeare’s timeless masterpieces. It does, however, have the surge of youth and a boisterous sense of love.

This friendly popularization has a brush urban texture—in the music, a mixture of rock and Carribean patter; in Guare’s spare, sometimes abrasive lyrics and in the story it self or small town kids and big city love.

The show has something of the madcap cheerfulness and spontaneity of a black party. Everything has not been gussied up out of proportion; and there has been no attempt to make this just another successful Broadway musical

The story of love and love’s suddenness is substantial enough for a musical, and archiological chips of the Shakespearean text that crop up from time to time fit in snugly with the music and the additions.

At times the poetry sounds ironic which is admittedly fun, but most of the time it is perfectly natural. There is a lesson to be learned here and I think that there is rarely anything wrong with a musical book that a little black verse cannot put right.

MacDermot’s music is more subtly shaded and variegated than his score for “Hair,” although I must more than a slight letdown.

Even the finale is inventive and entertaining as the cast gathers on different stage levels and blooms soap bubbles, passion paonkettels, tees, Frisbees, spins yo-yos and performs calisthenics. It may be only a gag, but it is appropriate and engaging.

The cast is winning, without even the semblance of a star—or the need for one. Roesa Wortham’s lusty, strong tempered but weak-willed Silvia is sensational, while Louise Baffer’s disdainful Julia is quieter, though hardly less effective. As the two Veronese who win their own, Carl Scott, tough and quizzical, and Carla Cestero, moon-faced and extraverted, are matchings.

There is a touch of real improvisation, the acting that helps to disguise and even soften the musical’s rock and hard professionalism.

There are a few tasteful anachronisms—a bicycle here and a telephone there—but this is no spoop. Papp and his associates have been conducting a public love affair with Shakespeare for 26 years and, in its own fashion, “Two Gentlemen of Verona” is true to the Bard.

Yes, I think Shakespeare would approve.

‘Verona’ retains quality

‘Reviewing the situation’

From left, Nick De Joria as Launce, Carlos Cestero as Proteus and William McClary as Antonio review the situation musically in “Two Gentlemen of Verona,” the Galt MacDermot-John Guare-Mel Shapiro romp Celebrity Series presented Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

White husband burned, gang spares black wife

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A gang of white men abducted a white man and his black wife, doused the husband with an inflammable fluid and set him afire, police said Monday.

Brian Barfield, 22, of Fort Lauderdale, was in intensive care at Holy Cross Hospital, suffering from third-degree burns to his arm, right leg and back.

It was "obviously racially motivated," a police spokesman said. "The wife was not physically harmed although she was very shaken up."

Police said Barfield and his wife Jeradine, 26, were driving along a city street Sunday evening when a car carrying six black men pulled alongside and a man pointed a gun at them, forcing them to stop.

Another car with five blacks inside, pulled up behind the Barfields and the couple was bound and blinded before being driven to an apartment, police said.

At the apartment, Mrs. Barfield said, her husband was bound with electrical cord, doused with an unidentified liquid and set ablaze.

She said both she and her husband were threatened by their abductors and she was told to "get out of town."

Therapeutic dating program will continue another month

Due to popular response and the need for more information, a dating therapy program will continue for another month, according to the originators of the project.

The therapy was intended to build self-confidence for the men while dealing with females.

Barrett said he wanted to continue the videotape sessions four more weeks because persons tended to react differently on film than in the group discussions.

“The video sessions were helpful in finding other sorts of reactions,” he said.

This time, however, only 10 new volunteers and 10 undergraduate psychology students will be involved. "We think that the psychology students will be a help to address the experiments," Barrett said.

Barrett declined to comment on the completed program’s worth, saying that "it was difficult to give an objective opinion until most of the research is in. He will have to have the scores available in December.

Tutors wanted

Steps taken to guard rights in experiments

By David Karashith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

All that some people know about psychology experiments at SIU, they learned by reading the classified ad section of the Daily Egyptian.

The ads, which have appeared periodically since September, ask for volunteers with certain traits or problems.

Anne Yu, a graduate student in clinical psychology, is responsible for the ads. "I'm trying to help people get rid of their problems." she said.

"Today, people are clouded with a stereotype of subjects with electrodes coming out of their heads," she said. "This is not true with most experiments."

Subjects who volunteer for experiments are generally those people who have an interest in that particular area of the study," explained Ed Donnerstein, professor in psychology.

"unless a person is completely willing to do an experiment we don't use him." Dennis Malise, professor in psychology and co-chairman of SIU's research board, said.

 Herb Stockley, 23, an SIU graduate and Carbondale resident, has participated in four studies in the last two years. "I volunteered for the experiments because they interested me," he said.

One of the studies Stockley was involved in dealt with helping behavior. He was asked to help an unknown subject who was in a bind. After the experiment each subject was asked to fill out a questionnaire, giving his or her impressions of what had preceded.

"I didn't know what was going on until the experiment was over, but I learned something about myself."

Stockley said. "Everyone should do an experiment. People can learn something about themselves."

In a 1965 study measuring stress on subjects, Stanley Milgram proved all the subjects were willing to break the laws of morality for themselves.

Milgram produced the stress by allowing subjects to believe they were inducing intense electric shocks to other subjects. The latter subjects were fake.

"Experimenter arrived at these conclusions after a follow-up study with the subjects used in the electric shock experiment," he said.

Sometimes, though, subjects do not learn anything about themselves. Donnerstein said. This occurs when subjects do not care about the results, or the experimenter fails to de brief a subject about the nature of the study.

"Debriefing is the process of informing the subject about the true nature of the experiment after the study has been completed. This can be done in oral or written form.

"If a subject spends a half-hour doing an experiment, the experimenter should spend an hour de briefing him," Donnerstein said. He said one fellow got lured in because the subject was deceived and not properly debriefed.

Another problem shared by subjects and experimenter is the fact that subjects do not know their rights. Donnerstein said. Studies have shown that subjects may think they are being forced to participate when actually they can withdraw from the experiment at any time. Because subjects do not know their rights, official bodies at the federal and university levels were developed to regulate studies.

"There are ethical considerations when you work with human beings, and that is why we have safeguards," Malise said.

The regulations governing research at SIU are outlined in a booklet called "Procedures Governing Research With Human Subjects (PGRWH)." The booklet, which came out in 1966, concerns itself with human subjects and their protection. Ms. Yu said.

"There are three clauses in the booklet that insure a subject's protection: rights and welfare of the subjects are adequately protected, risks to the subjects are outweighed by potential benefits and informed consent of subjects will be obtained by methods that are adequate and appropriate.

"The first clause takes into consideration that the experimenter has learned ethical standards for being a researcher. The experimenter's ethical standard limits the severity of an experiment. Malise said. "Experimenter should have courtesy for the subjects, they are doing us a favor."

"Subjects used to think that they were guinea pigs, but we are not using them. We are benefiting them. Ms. Yu said. That is why it is necessary to impose a certain amount of risk for them. She added. It justifies the potential gains in the subject, experimenter and public." Risk is defined in the booklet as being emotional or physical in nature and causes discomfort, pain, indignity or endangering of life.

In many experiments, especially where, risk is involved, the researcher must secure informed consent from the subjects, Ms. Yu said. Informed consent is insurance that the subject knows what risk will be involved, and that he or she has consented, written or orally, to take part in the study.

"Informed consent is forgotten when the objective of an experiment cannot be realized without deception. "Experimenter try to study things as they really are." Malise said. "That is why subjects used to be naive." Ms. Yu continued.

When informed consent is not used, the researcher must see to it that subjects are debriefed and relieved of any pressure induced by the experiment.

Debriefing is also required of all experimenters who have secured federal funds for their studies. Donnerstein said. If the National Science Foundation funds a study, the federal government requires debriefing.

Defining deception

Invoking fear, anger and anxiety in people may sound like a job for a couple of Al Capone's thugs, but today psychologists use these emotional states to produce deception in their studies.

A researcher cannot invoke these conditions in a subject, said Anne Yu, a graduate student in clinical psychology. "unless he needs information that can only be gotten by inducing these states."

"Inducing these false states to cover the real objectives of the study is deception," Yu said. "Deception is used to gather data, not to trick the subject."

Ed Donnerstein, professor in psychology, said.

"Subjects usually do not get upset by being deceived," Donnerstein said. "Subjects expect to be deceived. This has been shown in experiments."

"Subjects are always trying to figure out the deceptions being used in a study," Donnerstein noted. "This might affect the way they act in an experiment."

"However, Richard Depue, professor in psychology and research director of Anna State Hospital in Anna, said. "Some subjects would not tolerate being deceived. Depue has to build up a trust with the volunteers at Anna. "If I used deception, I would not have as many volunteers," he explained."

"I'm not completely sure of the rationale behind deception," he went on to say. "Deception may be dependent on the ana being studied."

"Donnerstein said the deceptive technique may make a subject curious enough to continue the study. 'They keep looking for hidden microphones and cameras.'"

Herb Stockley, 23, an SIU graduate and Carbondale resident, had participated in many psychological studies. He said he does not feel he has ever been deceived in an experiment. "I never knew what was going on in any of the experiments, so I did not think I was being deceived."

High recovery rate of ex-POWs lauded
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense officials said Thursday that former U.S. war prisoners have "ex- ceptional capacity" to feel the physical and emotional effects of their captivity, with nearly 80 percent of them back on military duty.

They came through better than we expected," one official said Monday in discussing recently analyzed results of medical and psychiatric examinations and treatment since release. American POWs, numbering 566, were released from Communist Viet- namese prisons last February and March.

The anxieties and confusions involved in readjusting are now behind the former POWs, the official said. "So far, they appear to be handling the situation very well," he added.

Officials emphasized that to date more than half of the returned Navy and Air Force pilots have been reenlisted for flying.

Rising spring Pentagon medical authorities said all 566 freed POWs showed signs, during preliminary check-ups, that they have suffered "stress reaction," including depression after coming home.

But now, officials said mental and emotional problems have turned out to be "far less than we got ready for."

Only one man has been discharged for a psychosis and two others are still hospitalized for the same reason. However, these two men are described as "coming along very well."

Only about 20 men were diagnosed as having neuroses, "most of these cases have been resolved by now," officials said.

On the physical side, officials said that former POWs have been plagued by various kinds of worms and there would not be any further recurrence of malaria. No cases of tuberculosis were found.

Most of the men are said to have regained their normal weight.

There apparently are being lasting physical effects for some, including arthritis developed in prison and damage to knees, elbows and shoulders caused by aircrew members who ejected from their planes and made hard parachute landings. Few of these were being disabled, of course.

Where possible, military surgeons are correcting the results of frac- tures. There were 20 bone fractures and 2 accounts for 11 of former POWs still being hospitalized and 22 who are convalescing.

The worst cases of suffering is about seven months after being captured, except for Prisoners of War, who said Pentagon officials would wonder whether former POWs of the Vietnam war might experience a high rate of violent death.

This theory seems to have been re-uced, but one doctor said "we have no idea whether the problem of suicide is behind us."

awarded grants
Chowan Chemical Co. has given a $25,000 grant to SIU for livestock research. Awarded by three animal industries department faculty mem- bers.

The research project by Gilbert Kroening, School of Agriculture assistant dean for research, and Harold Holton and Dixie Lee, associate professors of animal in- dustries, involves a study of the usefulness and effectiveness of treating high moisture corn with two kinds of organic acids for preserving the corn in conven- tional rather than sealed storage facilities.

Lee says studies by various researchers indicate that high moisture corn is useful for feeding farm animals. Few does is known about how much organic acid treat- ment is necessary to maintain high levels in corn and what affect the moisture content in the corn on the feed's or hog's in a adverse effect on animal performance.

Nixon to release tapes, diary file to judge

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon announced Monday he will give a federal judge下属的部分White House tape recordings and portions of his personal diary file, but said he can't locate one dictation machine belt subpoenaed by Watergate-prosecutors.

Meanwhile, the White House agreed in the federal court that it will deliver by Nov. 30 subpoenaed Watergate tape recordings and the other material promised by Nixon. U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica said duplicates of the tapes and other material would be made and originals stored in White House vaults.

The dictation belt is the third piece of subpoenaed Watergate evidence the White House said does not exist. Earlier, it announced that two key conversations went unrecorded by a presidential taping system.

Seeking to "clear up...and for all" the controversy about the Watergate conversations, Nixon said in a written statement that he will

Voluntarily submit recordings of two April 15, 1973, conversations with then-counsel John W. Dean III, saying they "covered much of the same subject matter" as an April 15 meeting with Dean that the White House said went unrecorded.

The tapes are to other unsubpoenaed reels of tapes to demonstrate that no recordings were made of the subpoenaed April 15 Watergate meeting or of a subpoenaed June 30, 1972, telephone conversation with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Agreeing that "court-approved independent experts employing the most advanced technological methodology" will do the job, Nixon was in question "for any evidence of alterations.

Supply portions of his personal diary file subpoenaed by prosecutors, including dictation belt containing his recollections of the Mitchell telephone call and handwritten notes of his April 15 meeting with Dean.

Nixon said a search of his personal diary file a week ago failed to turn up a dictated note of his recollections of the April 15 meeting with Dean. He said he thought he had dictated his recollections after that meeting. The White House spokesman said as recently as Nov. 2 that such a dictation belt existed.

"I have made a diligent search..." Nixon said in a statement. "Other than my contemporaneous notes of that meeting..."

have found no such evidence."

Dean has testified that in the April 13 tape, the President admitted discussing executive authority as part of the Watergate cover-up and that Nixon said he had not been joking earlier when he said it would be no problem to raise $1 million in hush money.

Two weeks ago, the White House disclosed in court that the April 15 meeting was not recorded because an undated tape recorder ran out of tape. Disclosure about that meeting and the Mitchell one prompted Sirica to begin hearing on the tape recordings.

Just moments before, the White House released Nixon's statement, presidential lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt testified in Sirica's court that the dictation recording of Nixon's April 15 recollections could not be located. Later in the day, Sirica adjourned the hearing until Friday when a final witness, Alexander P. Butterfield, will be heard. Butterfield first publicly disclosed the existence of the White House taping system.

Sirica said both sides also agreed to submit to the court a list of procedures to be followed by experts who may be called for the purpose of reporting to the court on any questions concerning the tapes authenticity.

After discussing the President's statement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President is considering a meeting with Senate Watergate committee members as part of his effort to clear up the Watergate controversy.

A request for such a session "is something we would consider," Ziegler said. The committee already has asked for a meeting with Nixon.

The President discussed his latest moves at a private White House breakfast with 21 members of the Republican Coordinating Committee. He plans six other meetings this week, including two on Tuesday, to present to all 234 members of Congress his side of the Watergate controversy.

In his four-page statement, Nixon acknowledged there are public doubts about what happened to the Dean and Mitchell conversations.

He said he wanted to "dope these public doubts and existence of any [conversations subpoenaed by Watergate prosecutors."

Jesuit priest shows political side as well as religious during stay

By Tom Finan

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Andrew Greeley has a penchant for tolerating sacred cows that becomes apparent after a few minutes of conversation.

Greeley, a Jesuit priest known nationally for his sociological studies and his controversial position on various issues was in Carbondale Sunday for a lecture sponsored by the Catholic Knights and Ladies of Illinos and the St. Louis Newman Center.

The author of more than 40 books, Greeley publishes an average of one book every six months.

He is hardly an ascetic, however. Greeley's outspokenness has rankled his native Chicago's Cardinal Cody to the point where, "He doesn't want me to say Mass—at least when there are people around."

He once invited an interview during the drive from St. Louis Municipal Airport to Carbondale. Greeley showed he is not in the least an apolitical person.

"Nixon is certain to be impeached sooner or later," he said. "He doesn't read the newspapers, he only listens to the advice of two or three persons each day, so he's bound to keep making serious mistakes."

"Besides, why do we need a

President? We have a Secretary of State. God knows."

Gasoline rationing is inevitable, Greeley said, but he doesn't think it can be carried off for any extended period of time.

"The government has no credibility," Greeley said. He said the government can't continue to convince people of the necessity of rationing when the U.S. petroleum industry is exporting one million barrels of crude oil per day because it can't charge the same price foreign producers can.

"It's that way with all governments."

First they try to play down a problem, then, when they get worried, they blow it all out of proportion." Greeley said just be on the safe side he is trashing his Chevrolet for a Volkswagen.

In his lecture at Shryock Auditorium on "The Persistence of Religion," Greeley talked of the theory of religion in answer to man's sociological search for identity.

"In the past, we simply said things were 'mysteries,'" he said. "Today, many people, especially young people, instead of attempting to explain things away are looking inside themselves for answers. And the answers they find will change the way we live," he said.

Cub shakeup continues; Beckert latest victim, going to San Diego

By Jerry Lakes
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Second baseman Glenn Beckert, whose string of four straight All-Star seasons was snapped by injury this year, was traded by the Chicago Cubs Monday to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Jerry Morales.

The swap of Beckert, 23, a nine-season Cub fixture, for Morales, 26, a two-season Padre regular, marked the second Cub trade of a four-player key player in 18 days.

On Oct. 26, the Cubs dealt star pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, a Big league winner six straight seasons until this year, to the Texas Rangers for young infielders Bill Madlock and Vic Harris.

Beckert underwent surgery Oct. 21 for removal of a bone spur on his left hand which confined him to a pinch-hitting role most of the final two months of last season when he batted .255 in 114 games.

Morales, also a right-handed hitter, batted .281 in 122 Padre games last season after hitting .229 in his first full San Diego season in 1972. As part of the Beckert-Morales deal, the Cubs assigned infielder Bob Feller from their Wilkes farm club in the American Association to the Preders' Hawaiian Islanders in the Pacific Coast League.

Beckert began suffering serious ailments in the middle of the 1972 season when he had a variety of injuries after being named to the National League All-Star squad for the fourth straight year.

He finished with a .270 mark for 130 games in 1972 and in 1973 played only 114 games, the lowest since he broke in as a Cub in regular 1965.

Beckert was on the disabled list Aug. 16 through Aug. 31 and was limited to pinch-hitting the remainder of the season because of chronic trouble with his left heel and ankle.

Beckert's peak season was 1971 when he batted a career high .342.
Late surge stamps out Drake, 37-20

Against a team from the same conference that beat the Salukis earlier this season, SIU slapped Missouri Valley Conference member Drake with a 27-20 loss Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

Playing to a 10-10 third quarter tie, the Salukis erupted in the fourth quarter for 17 points and outplayed the Bulldogs for the remainder of the game. The Salukis led 27-17 at halftime after an apparent touchdown was negated.

SIU could not take advantage of excellent third quarter field position set up by a series of comical Drake punts. Wilt Bauer, the Drake punter, shanked five punts for distances of 7-17,10,28 and 17 yards.

Fred McAlley started the second half as the Saluki quarterback, and his ability to run with the ball may have proved the difference in the game. Twice SIU set up for field goals tries in the third quarter, but both times they failed. One of these attempts was squibbed wide, and the other, a fake field goal try, failed because of a high, funbled center snap.

But the Salukis controlled the ball as the third quarter finish and ifopposed the Drake defenders were cornered, they elected to go for the Drake 26 to end the quarter.

SIU charged to the Drake 8, but on the final play McAlley fumbled for a yard loss and the Salukis again ended up with a field goal.

Drake tried to move the ball via some razzle-dazzle, but Ferguson had the ball sniffed out and McAlley was allowed to throw on a flanker reverse pass. Craig Petrosky was stopped at the Drake 17, and this time SIU could not be stopped from finding the goal line.

McAlley put the Bulldogs seven and then off right end for eight. It was the biggest gain McAlley had shown all year, and moved the ball to a first and goal at the Bulldog 4. Moncrief jammed one yard at a time, the one, setting up another fourth down decision.

The call went to freshman fullback Lawrence Boyd, who was pipped at the goal line, but spun and pushed into the end zone for the touchdown. The conversion made the score 26-10.

Both defenses forced punts, but the Salukis got the better of the deal. A 34-yard Wayne Waynecow punt was fumbled by Kevin Callahan and SIU's No. 1 "mad-dog" on punt coverage, Geography Hardaway, recovered.

McAlley put his running back to work after the punt, running for yards down the sideline to the Drake 35. Boyd stayed in at fullback and burst 21 yards over the middle to the Drake 14. Later, McAlley flipped quickly to Hardaway again, the time for the touchdown. Hardaway's kick was good and the Salukis had opened up a 36-10 advantage with 2:12 left to play.

Going for broke, Drake faked a 30-yard pass to Robbie, a move that emptied the backfield of the Salukis secondary for the Bulldog's second touchdown of the game. The ball turned out of reach. Hopkins rifled to Hardaway, who faked a punt and scrambled and tumbled into the end zone. The referree ruled Hardaway had stepped out of bounds on the touchdown. One play later, Hopkins flipped quickly to Hardaway again, the time for the touchdown. The Salukis' kick was good and the Salukis had opened up a 43-10 advantage with 1:47 left to play.

The game out, the Salukis came away from the game knowing there had been some hitting. "We left the Drake game in the worst physical shape all season," coach Towers said. "We got a lot of people beat up.

Although those injured in Saturday's game were: Perkins, with his left eye swollen completely shut; Steve Kirkpatrick, a shoulder injury; Primus Jones, shoulder and neck injury; Schuttle, a sprained ankle; O'Breke, an ankle injury; and Moncrief, who Towers simply said was "out all day.

The Salukis close out the season with road games at Illinois State this Saturday and Illinois State, Nov. 24.

Saluki cagers to meet AIA in Arena basketball

Saluki Coach Paul Lambert is somewhat unsure of his starting lineup because several of his players have the flu. Joe O. Meriwether, the Salukis' center is one of those players.

If Meriwether cannot play, the starting lineup will be Meriwether at center, freshman Corky Abrams at forward, and the three guards with either Abram or possibly George Thompson or Alvin Hendricks all open.

Lambert said he will play the game as though it were a regular season contest, according to AIA's performance against Marquette. Lambert said they can definitely not be taken lightly.

The Saluki regular season opens Dec. 1 against the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Saluki's Head coach Ken Ferguson returned to the Saluki defense held Drake equally. With the Salukis controlling the ball only seconds before the end of the quarter, tailback Larry Perkins took a Hopkins pitch and fired a perfect pass to double-teamed Bruce Fuhr. The play netted 41 yards as Fuhr was tackled immediately on the Drake 6 yard line.

The second quarter opened with Moncrief moving to the two. The Salukis were stopped on third and coach Dick Towers decided to go for the touchdown on fourth and goal. Moncrief got the call behind a Robert Habbe block and burrowed off left tackle for his tenth touchdown of the year. Ken Sevillian's conversion put SIU on top, 7-0.

Ken Ferguson returned SIU's kickoff to the 29, where Drake drove to tie the score. Mike Price, running with speed and power, moved the Bulldogs into SIU territory as his running mate Jim O'Connor, began to get the ball.

Drake quarterback Jeff Martin returned Price's punt to the Saluki one, where Price bull-rushed over for the score. Ted Gaffney's extra point tied the game at 7-7.

The Salukis punt the ball back to the Bulldogs, and Drake began another.
