G S requirements reduced, revised

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

General Studies requirements have been reduced from 96 to 62 hours effective this quarter, Chancellor Robert G. Layser announced Thursday.

This revision resulted from a proposal by an Ad Hoc Committee for Evaluation of the General Studies Program which was approved by the Faculty Council in January. The proposal was received by Layser after passing the Student Senate Wednesday.

Layser said that since the revision allows a student to move freely through the different academic levels, the new total can be applied to any student including the pre-General Studies student.

Students who have reached the new requirement already will be considered finished with General Studies requirements.

Students who have already pre-registered for summer or fall quarters may change their programs with no charge. Layser said.

The new program has the same General Studies classification areas as the present one. The credit requirements are as follows: GSA: Math's Physical Environment and Biological Inheritance 16 hours, GSB: Math's Social Inheritance and Social Responsibilities 16 hours, GSC: Thoughts and Appreciation 16 hours, GSD: Organization and Communication of Ideas 14 hours and GSE: Health and Physical Development 5 hours.

Stadium resurfacing receives approval

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Saluki football team, confined to not-so-beautiful McAndrew Stadium since 1967, may finally be near the end of a long and frustrating wait for better facilities.

Acting on a motion by student government presidential candidate Dave Zutler, the University's Athletic Committee has unanimously approved a proposal calling for complete recreational expansion of the 34-year-old stadium.

The proposal will be sent to Chancellor Robert G. Layser for approval before it is submitted to the Board of Trustees, according to Donald Boydstun, head of intercollegiate athletics at SIU.

As of Thursday, Layser had not received the proposal. The Board of Trustees meets on the Carbondale campus Friday. Its next scheduled meeting is May 13 in Edwardsville.

If approved by Layser and the Board of Trustees, McAndrew Stadium could have an artificial playing surface by next fall, Boydstun said.

Wednesday afternoon, a representative from Allied Chemical was here to discuss installation of a "promotional field" artificial surface. This would be done at cost, approximately $175,000. To carpet McAndrew Stadium, Astro-Turf would cost $300,000, he said.

"A boy judges your program and whether or not you're serious about it by your stadium," Boydstun said.

"And if you've got what we've got, obviously it's odd, it's just something to show that we take pride in our program.

The present structure would undergo a complete face-lifting with a new scoreboard and elevator for television equipment to permanent seating for 10,000. Boydstun said. (Continued on page 24)

Hammond backs change for Daily Egyptian

By Steve Brown
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Edward H. Hammond, assistant to the Chancellor for Student Relations, said Thursday that he will recommend implementation of a proposal designed to increase student responsibility in the operation of the Daily Egyptian. Hammond said he will make the recommendation to Chancellor Robert G. Layser early next week.

The proposal, entitled Expo, calls for the creation of a student editor-in-chief position to direct the news operation of the Daily Egyptian. The proposal was approved by the Student Senate on April 7. Hammond said that he will recommend the proposal be implemented by Fall, 1973.

Hammond said the Expo proposal would provide two major advantages which do not currently exist within the Daily Egyptian.

Hammond cited those advantages as being a greater experience for students and more staff continuity from year to year.

The proposal was written by former Daily Egyptian staff writer Bob Carr. Carr now works as public information director for Student Government and is the Student Senate Activities Council.

The proposal besides establishing the top student editor position will also create a group of subordinate editors to handle a variety of regular news beats.

The Daily Egyptian presently operates under the guidance of a journalism faculty member who works as managing editor. William Harmon now holds that position.

Hammond said the Expo proposal, the journalism faculty members would serve as professional advisers.

Statement deadlines announced

The Daily Egyptian will publish campaign statements by candidates for student government offices in the Apr. 25, 1971, edition.

Candidates are invited to submit statements under the following rules:

1. Deadline for submitting statements is 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 21.

2. Statements must be brought to the candidates to the Daily Egyptian news office, Room 1347, north wing. Communications Building

3. Statements must be signed by the candidate and must include name, hometown, local address and phone number; classification and party affiliation.

4. Statements must be typewritten with 8-space lines.

5. Statements by candidates for student body president may not exceed 40 lines, those for vice president 20 lines and those for student senator 10 lines.

6. The Daily Egyptian reserves the right to edit the statements to conform to the length requirements and standards of good taste.

7. Statements not meeting these requirements will not be published.

Candidates for president and vice president must submit photographs to be used with their statements or may make appointments for photographs to be made by Daily Egyptian photographers. Deadline for making photo appointments is noon, Tuesday, April 20.

‘Genesis III’ offered

Weekend films interesting

By David Busch, Special to The Wiler

Despite the lack of free films this weekend, there is no dearth of interesting film entertainment. Student Activities is sponsoring “Genesis III,” the third in the “Genesis” series of film shorts by students and free-lance film makers.

Ranging from straight documentary to satire to animation and technical tricks like Edwards' rubeogetic and multiple imagery, “Genesis III” is the most interesting potpourri of what is being done in film today.

Five of these films are truly successful. Many are too long. The CATV hearings discuss regulation CHICAGO (AP) - An engineering consultant discussed some technical problems of cable television at the Illinois Commerce Commission’s continuing hearing on the subject Thursday.

The commission is exploring the need or desirability of state regulation of cable television systems.

Robert A. Brooks, the commission’s consultant, said a TV receiver could be ductored to block out a channel carrying “controversial programs;” a parent might not want his children to see.

5 psychologists to show paper

Research papers by five SIU psychologists and four graduate psychology students will be presented at the 13th annual meeting of the Midwest Psychological Association May 8-10 in Cobo Hall, Detroit.

Members of the regional association are Alfred Lit, Robert A. Levit, Robert Huddle, Donald Molitor and James McHorse.

Graduate students, coauthors of research papers are Carol S. White, Dallas, Don E. McMillan, Vernon, W. V. and D. Lynn Howerton and Frederick Maxwell, Carbondale.

Six former SIU psychology students also will appear on the program.

Longest film in 20 minutes, the shortest one minute. Even films, much too vague or just plain dull.

Of the segments I saw, “Airplane Glide, I Love You” was the best. It is a 26-minute film about a 50-year-old airplane model maker who is forced to go back to the ninth grade, due to an administrative error. The dialogue is witty, and some of the references to the problem of student cohensiveness serves a useful purpose right to the point.

Remember Tommy Rotting, the little cutout boy who used to work with Lassie about 50 years ago? Well, a film directed by “Marijuana Education” leads off “Genesis III.” It is a 10-minute trade by a police officer about the evils of marijuana. Predictably, the cop gets painted, all in the name of public service. If you didn’t like Rotting in Lassie you won’t like his film any better.

“Genesis III” runs Friday and Saturday at 7:30 and 10 p.m. in Purr Auditorium and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Davis. Admission is $2 general and $1.50 students.

The Committee for the Future is sponsoring “Backwoods Fuller On Spacedhick Earth.” This 100-minute color film by Academy Award-winning director Robert Snyder Best Documentary of 1966. “The Trial of the Miami Indians” - being its world premiere screening at Shyer Auditorium Friday at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

The film shows some of Fuller’s early discoveries. The dynamo house, the dynamo automobile with passenger, America, and the earth at an early spot, the earth with a film of maps, the first world map based in America, a gooder done, the structure offering maximum space with the least surface of any design.

‘Catch-22’ is quite simply, the best American film I’ve seen this year!

PREMIERE THEATRE

Frid. & Sat. 2:05 & 7:00

NEW YORK TIMES

By L. A. Ross

As the South Sea gulls perched on the C-47 that carries me from Saigon to Hanoi, I was prepared to see the worst. Instead, I saw the best American war comedy since sound came in.

The War Department is a vast establishment. It has its own bureaucracy, its own entertainment, its hell. It is run by a sort of yonked-out doofus named Major General D. H. Meecham (Richard Kiel), a man who is prone to say things like: ‘This is the War Department. We are the War Department, and we do as we please."

Captain Yossarian (Robert Duvall), the first of three central characters, is a young man who has just completed his mental training. "I still don’t know how to kill people," he says. "My wife just found out I was a pilot. She was furious."

"Catch-22" is simply the best American war comedy since sound came in. Suddenly, the pilot finds himself in the "catch-22" situation: If he goes on a mission, he will be missed. If he stays on the ground, he will be court-martialed. He and his closest friends are in the middle of "the most beautiful mind game in the world, a game in which you can never lose, because there is no winning strategy."

The film is a political struggle, a battle for the soul of the United States. It is a battle for the soul of the world. It is a battle for the soul of the American people. It is a battle for the soul of the American ideal. It is a battle for the soul of the American dream.

"Catch-22" is simply the best American war comedy since sound came in.

Charles H. Sanjalge of the University of Illinois Department of Advertising will be the banquet speaker at the seventh annual Journalism Education Administration Workshop April 25-26 at SIU. Sanjalge is said to have taught more advertising professors than any other educator in the United States. He joined the University of Illinois faculty in 1966 as chairman of the division of advertising and was appointed to his present position at the time he joined the faculty.

Sanjalge is chairman of the department of journalism at the University of Tennessee School of Communications and is a veteran professor of advertising. He is president of the National Society of Professional Journalists, and is a member of the National Accreditation Committee of the Association of Communications Educators.

It's almost midnight...

On May 1 the Illinois Central's pumpkins will change into Cinderella coaches as the federal government's certain railroads under the National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Railpax). There should be an over-all improvement in rail travel between Chicago and Carbondale as a result.

Here are a few suggestions for improving one of the two trains that will continue to be operated between here and Chicago.

See that "The City of New Orleans" departs Carbondale at 7:30 p.m., as scheduled. (Mussolini shot engineers who didn't maintain schedules.)

Require those 19th century coaches with the arrow holes in them. Use only the best equipment.

See that conductors and porters are courteous and don't respond to questions with snide remarks. Reverse the switches for air-conditioning and heating the coaches so that we get heat in the winter and cool in the summer.

Stock the club car so it doesn't run out of food and drink by the time it pulls into Centralla.

Give priority to passenger trains on the main line. Let freight trains stand on the spur.

Avoid the one hour wait at Champaign for filling the engines with water.

Make sure "The City of New Orleans" pulls into Chicago's Twelfth Street Station at 12:35 a.m., right on schedule.

Sound impossible? Not really. If one has ever ridden the IC's flagship, "The Panama Limited," he would realize that a passenger train on this railroad can be operated efficiently, and on time.

Letters to the editor

Keene reveals insights as he leaves office

To the Daily Egyptian:

For the past four years I have been in a unique position to observe and influence the forces at work which are shaping our community for better or worse. By this open letter to the citizens of Carbondale, I want to reveal the insights gained from my experience as mayor.

1. It was time for a change.
   - It would be impossible to overstate the depth of the change which took place four years ago when, my running mate and I, became mayor and city councilors. The city was in a state of crisis, with financial problems, high unemployment, and a lack of direction. Under our leadership, Carbondale has emerged as a strong and vibrant community, with a successful economic development plan, and a commitment to improving the quality of life for all its residents.

2. The mayor must have economic independence.
   - The pressures on the mayor are enormous. I discovered when I took office that many local businesses took it for granted that the mayor would be amenable to accept their influence in return for special privileges. I learned both during the campaign and after I became mayor that they were willing to strike at me through my creditors and the firms with which I held a franchise in order to bring me to heel. A mayor who is beholden to the Carbondale "old guard" will have a tough time indeed if he wants to serve the public interest according to the dictates of his own conscience.

3. Magistrates and hypocrisy will not solve the city's financial problems.
   - It is deceptive for candidates to promise to lower utility rates when they know that would make it impossible to develop Cedar Creek Lake, which they claim to support. All of the hypocrisy about administrative costs is also very misleading to the public. Elimination of key administrative jobs would either result in the work not being done or in salaried costs of lower level personnel rising because of overtime. Even now many policemen, firemen and water system employees make more money than their supervisors because of overtime pay.

The problems with the city's budget is simply that there is not enough revenue. The solution is to find ways of increasing income: annexation of SU living areas, state impact legislation, and federal general revenue sharing are all possibilities which must be pursued.

Alumnus questions Stauber's activities

To the Daily Egyptian:

On Aug. 25, 1979, Dr. Leland G. Stauber was told by a high official of the Center for Vietnamese Studies of being charged by Ralph Russo—after the first SU application had been rejected by AID—to compile a list of people who could be "recognized" by AID—specifically persons whom AID and the State Department termed "trusted" and persons whose "political views on questions of American foreign policy were "close" to the official positions. During this period, spring 1979, SU hired Peter Gillingham, John Donnell, and 1 Milton Sacks as consultants and appointed Wesley R. Foshay, Nguyen-Dinh-Don, and John Laybourn, all proponents of, and past or present employees of, AID, and the State Department. All were hired by SU prior to its receiving the $1,000,000 AID grant. In fact, the final approved grant proposal boasted of Foshay's presence at SU ("one of this country's most expert Vietnameseologists as Visiting Professor in Government").

These actions represented a political subversion and corruption of integrity of SU's university by AID and certain Center personnel, especially Ruffner. They also inflicted the professional integrity of Dr. Leland G. Stauber for not adequately publicizing these facts and doing all in his power to effect an investigation of these heinous acts.

Rather than attacking Chancellor Lyster for failure to conduct an investigation of you non-charges, might I suggest, Dr. Stauber, that you clean up your own back yard?

The innocent bystander

Spiro scolds press—again

By Arthur Hoppé

View President Agnew's press conference at the press. Again, what rekindled Mr. Agnew's wrath was a New York Times headline saying a Gallup Poll showed 12 per cent of the urban black workers plan to live in another country.

However, Mr. Agnew, this means that 88 per cent of us prefer living in America. And why, he wanted to know, was the same negative, negative headline that excites many newspapers today? Quite right. The trouble here is that Mr. Agnew simply reads the newspapers. He should cancel his subscription to the Times and take instead the Euphoria Gazette, which is the only paper in the country, as far as we know, which ran banner headlines that day saying, "MORT AMERICANS DON'T FLEE AMERICA."

The Euphoria Gazette is edited by that sage newspaper, Roll Clark. Its motto is "All the news that's good, we print." And its positive outlook would warm the cockles of Mr. Agnew's positive heart.

For example, every time unemployment climbed another notch, Roll Clark headlined the story: "Administration Policy Brings More Leisure Time to Millions of Americans."

In his report on this, Mr. Clark carefully divides the total number of hours worked by the number of workers employed and unemployed. Then he triumphantly points out the average American works only 24 hours per week--"one of the lowest figures in the world," he adds. Furthermore, he says, it's getting lower every year.

In inflation, Mr. Clark usually begins his articles: "Here's another report from reputable figures indicating that workers are now enjoying the highest wage in all of California's history. Energy manufacturers are getting twice the prices for their goods as they did ten years ago."

The Euphoria Gazette is perhaps at its best in its coverage of Southeast Asia. At the end of the Laus inauspicious "frontpage account read: "Allied forces launched a massive, lightning thrust back into South Vietnam today. The rapidity of the maneuver caught the enemy by surprise."

But Mr. Agnew would also enjoy the human interest features. Typical is this picture caption: "Mr. and Mrs. Smiley Glad (above) wave farewell to their two-weeks' vacation, as they prepare to depart on a round-trip world cruise. The Glad's financed, the trip from insurance funds on their house, which was swept away by the floods last month. It was a real bonanza," said the beaming Mrs. Glad. Not shown in the group shot was Mr. Glad, who is still missing.

Other features in the Gazette include an obituary page in which the names of all Euphoria residents still alive, complete coverage of the energy crisis, a graphic accident that results in neither property damage nor a daily weather forecast of "Fair and Mild" --no matter what.

But Mr. Agnew would undoubtedly be most pleased by the following tribute to him as a Nothing attached to the press. Again.

As the head of the Justice Department, he began: "Mr. Agnew has scrupulously avoided attacking the press. His restraint in not attacking the press for an entire day allows the consumption of democracy in a free and unfettered press, unthrottled by the lowest elected official in the land."

Look forward to more days like that in the very near future.

It all began in the first grade.
But don't blame your first grade teacher. It wasn't her fault. It was the system she had to teach.

The old run, Spot, run method.
You had to read it out loud. Word by word. And that's the way it was until you became a second grader. Where your teacher asked you to read silently.

But you couldn't do it.

You probably stopped reading out loud. But you still said every word to yourself.

If you're an average reader, you're probably reading that way now.

Which means you read only as fast as you talk.

About 250 to 300 words a minute.

And that's not fast enough.

Not even when the average student has approximately 8 hours of required reading for every day of classes.

And since the amount of time in a day isn't about to increase, your reading speed will have to...

In order to handle it all.

The Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course can help.

With training, you'll be able to see groups of words. To read between 1,000 and 3,000 words per minute. Depending on how difficult the material is.

All at once, we guarantee to at least triple your reading speed or we'll refund your entire tuition.

(98.4% of everyone who takes the course accomplishes this.)

So don't waste time thinking about whom to blame. Come take a free introductory speed reading lesson. We'll increase your reading speed on the spot.

It takes about an hour to find out how you can reduce your study time by 50% or more.

And it ought to be worth an hour of your time.

Government funds for future campaigns seen

By Mike Collins

Eventual government funding of political campaigns is seen in the near future, according to the man in charge of Atlas Stevenson III's campaign.

Carlton Zucker, vice president of LAS & Partners Advertising Co. in Chicago, spoke Thursday in conjunction with Journalism Week on "Politics. Candidates and Advertising" at the Main Library Auditorium.

Zucker, who doesn't see political advertising ever being banned, said that conceivably $2 may be added to the nation's income tax within the next eight years for political campaigns. This money, he said, "would be divided equally between the parties running for office."

The man who pays for his own campaign is more honest," said Zucker. "He is not obligated to anybody for favors."

Zucker also noted a law that limits the amount of money a candidate can spend on a campaign.

"The Federal Corruptions Practice Act in 1973 limited the campaign contribution to $2 million, said Zucker. "But today nobody pays attention to it. In the 1972 campaign, close to $4 million was spent."

Zucker added that private citizens will continue to fund political candidates until "somebody becomes so high that nobody will be able to afford it."

In the 1970 Illinois senatorial campaign, Zucker noted that Stevenson spent under $1 million, while Smith spent over $1 million.

"The difference between the two campaigns was that Stevenson's campaign was much more concentrated in the last three weeks than Smith's," said Zucker.

Zucker, who describes himself as a liberal Democrat, said that he has been associated with Stevenson during the years Stevenson ran for office.

No rains on the Great Plains?

n the verge of a major drought on the Great Plains, Hayden Fox, meteorologist at the National Weather Service told a news conference Thursday he bases his production on a 30-year recurrence of drought once before the turn of the century.

And this is the year for it to begin, he added.

Fox said the drought area would extend from North Dakota south to Oklahoma, east to the Mississippi River, and north through Illinois and Wisconsin. Precipitation would be, he estimated, one-fourth to one-half normal.

In Chicago, a Weather Service spokesman said that's only his personal opinion. We don't make such forecasts. Even headquarters in Washington forecast no farther ahead than 30 days.

The records department in Chicago said however the last 38 days have been the driest spring period in Chicago on records running back 100 years, with only 18 of 151 such precipitation.

The Illinois Crop Reporting Service in Springfield said last week the water's precipitation had been only 88 to 80 per cent normal.

Functions of the Cairo weather station, at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, include checking and forecasting river stages, issuing severe weather warnings and local daily forecasts.

Chinese barriers down

Chou: U.S. newsmen can come 'in batches'

By JOHN RODEBICK
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) - Premier Chou
En-lai, announcing that U.S. newsmen will be allowed to enter China "in batches," hinted that he wants newsmen to visit North America.

He also said a "long cultural exchange process" between China and the United States may be in the offing and discussed the American hippie movement.

Chou, 73, spoke at a reception for table tennis teams from the United States, Britain, Canada, Nigeria and Colombia. These were invited to visit China when the world championships ended in Japan a week ago.

Chou said many American reporters have wanted to come to China but there had to be a first group. "They will come in batches," he said, adding that reporters from other countries also will be invited.

American correspondents have been barred by China since 1969. A few reporters have been admitted occasionally for brief visits. Other groups of foreign correspondents, such as British,
French and Canadian, operate here regularly on a restricted basis.

The American writers and reporters on hand to view this week's visit by the table tennis teams compose the first group of 15 reporters to come here in 22 years.

Chou, former foreign minister, recognized this AP correspondent from his assignment to China 23 years ago. Chou said, "Mr Rodebi, you have been a good friend of China for many years." The best Wednesday that Chou would like to visit North America came in a remark that he had never seen that continent. He did not specifically speak of a visit to the United States, which has no diplomatic relations with Peking.
Canada has such relations, established recently by the Pierre Elliott Trudeau government. Amb-hassadors were named Tuesday.

Chou is often spoken of as China's leading moderate. He said his government wants to have contacts with all countries, even those with which it has no diplomatic relations.

Jack Howard, of Seattle, Wash.,
captain of the U.S. team, told Chou
he hoped a Chinese team would visit the United States. The premier replied this was up to Graham
Brownlow, president of the U.S.
Table Tennis Association. Howard said since the Chinese had been invited.

Chou said that for Britain in particular the reciprocal table tennis matches "may be the beginning of a long cultural exchange between the young people of China and England.

Turning to the Americans, the premier said, "In the past the changes between the peoples of China and the United States have been very numerous. They have been cut off for a long time. Now with your acceptance of our in-vitiation, you have opened a new page in the relations of the Chinese and the American people. I am confident that this beginning of our friendship will certainly meet with the majority support of our two peoples.

Glen Cowan, 19, Santa Monica, Calif., one of the 15 members of the U.S. table tennis delegation, asked Chou what he thought of the American hippie movement.

"I am not very clear about it," he replied. "In the second place what I have seen is only very superficial.
But perhaps the youth of the world today are disillusioned with the current situation and want to seek the truth.

"In the course of changes of ideology among young people some forms are bound to emerge," he said.
"These forms cannot be said to be fatal because in their search youth must go through various processes. This should be allowed to them. When we were young it was the same with us. I understand the ideas of youth. They are very curious.

Chou said that "through the development of mankind universal

2 psychology professors win $88,800 in grants

By University News Services

Two members of SIU's psychology department have won recent grants totaling $88,800 for projects covering brain stimulation and language-arrangement.

Robert Leith, associate director of the National Institute of Mental Health, received a $53,000 grant for continuation of his studies of how animal behavior is changed by electrical and chemical stimulation of the brain.

He has shown that thirst and hungry responses can be brought on artificially in rats by stimulating certain areas of the brain. The NIH awarded Levin $4,976.7 in 1969 for the outset of his work.

Gordon Pitt, associate professor, was awarded $22,800 from the National Science Foundation for further work on how people receive information, integrate it and make decisions under experimental conditions involving outside stimuli. He received an initial grant of $4,800 from the same agency in 1969.

Library Friends to sponsor talk

By University News Service

Friends of the Library at SIU will join the English department to present a lecture, "Adventures with Books," at a dinner Thursday, the eve of the 250th birth of William Shakespeare.

Speaker will be Henry T. Moore, SIU research professor of English, editor, critic and authority on modern American and European continental literature.

Moore is listed in "Who's Who in the World," a new publication recognizing those men and women whose position or continuing activities set them apart as subjects of extensive interest, inquiry or discussion. He is an authority on controversial novelist D. H. Lawrence and the Irish literary school. He has participated in literary radio broadcast in England, Australia, Holland and Ireland, and was a regular lecturer on the CBS radio series "Invitation to Learning." A social hour at 6:30 p.m. will precede the dinner at 7 p.m. Barracks 0772 of the University Center Reservations should be made by April 16 with Mrs. Glennor B. King, Rare Book Room, Morris Library, or price is 15c per person.

Group to discuss by-laws

ALCU will meet Sunday

The Southern Illinois chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ALCU) will meet Sunday at the Alton Multipurpose Center on W. E. Main St.

The business meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. Based on the agenda, the by-laws and the election of new chapter ALCU officers.

The public is invited to attend at 8 p.m. when the chapter's annual report will be given by the chairman. There will also be a speech delivered by Kermit Coleman, state director of the Illinois chapter of the ACLU.

Black conference details finalized

Final details for the Black Student Involvement Conference and future activities of the Black Student Union (BSU) were discussed at a meeting of the Student Christian Foundation Wednesday.

According to John Taylor BSU chairman, the conference will concern itself with student involvement in the black struggle. Taylor added, "Many students are confused as to how they fit into this struggle. The conference is geared to show them how and in directing their action."

The conference will begin at 8 a.m. Friday with registration at the BSU community office in the Third World Center, 322 N. Washington St. After registration, participants will meet at Trueswood Hall in University Park for a general assembly, which will include speakers from the BSU and the United Front. At 9 a.m. Saturday, there will be an assembly in the Newman Center to view Cuban and Vietnam war films. After the films, buses will leave for Cairo to examine the conference activities. According to Ellis May, chairman of information, and Gerald Tucker, chairman of Community Affairs, a bus trip on May 8 to E. St. Louis is planned for children on the National side to participate in the SIU Training Arts Center headed by Katherine Dambra. Also included will be a Black Cultural Program Wednesday at the Student Christian Foundation. The cultural affairs committee has also planned an African dinner on May 10 which will highlight the birthday of Malcolm X.

Autistic children topic of lecture

A Rehabilitation Institute Colloquium will present O. Peer Lovas, University of California at Los Angeles psychologist, in a lecture at 8 p.m. Friday at Davis Auditorium. Lovas, who is widely known for his work with retarded, schizophrenic and autistic children, will speak on "Recent Developments in the Behavioral Treatment of Autistic Children."

Dan Cole and Betty Ranka are candidates for the office of chairman of the ALCU chapter. Cole is an assistant professor and faculty chairman in the Department of Water Resources and Technology at SIU's Vocational-Technical Institute.

Mrs. Ranka is a resident of Marion who has done volunteer work in Marion's Office of Legal Assistance and worked as an ALCU observer.

Allen Lane and Jon Mulder are running for the position of vice chairman.

Lane is director of the Student Christian Foundation and part of the group which formed the Southern Illinois chapter of the ALCU. Mulder is a member of ALCU and an assistant professor of anthropology at SIU.

July Kidder, a graduate student in journalism, and Manuel Schobenh, an associate professor in English, are vying for the office of corresponding secretary.

Candidates for recording secretary are Joy Botto and Jane Simone, both residents of Carbondale.

Running for treasurer are Mary Harting, a Murphysboro resident, and Jane Stowe, a resident of Carbondale.

SIU Ombudsman solves problems

By John D. Toovey
Daily Egyptian Special Writer

Reginald Davis, one of two University Ombudsmen, said Thursday that he has helped solve many problems that students have had since his job began in September.

Davis, a former SIU activities consultant and Mary Walker, the first Ombudsman at SIU, have been assisting faculty, staff and students to solve personal problems involving the University.

"I have had problems from financial and housing to students who need personal advice and referrals," Davis said. "I help students sometimes visit their offices because they don't know where to start solving their problems, but we try to put them on the right track."

Davis said most of the housing problems are those that students encounter while trying to make even exchanges from University housing to others.

"Students are either told they have to vacate the premises or have their registration held until they come to see me," Davis said.

Some off-campus housing has helped in getting needed repairs, but the off-campus office has helped in getting needed repairs. Davis said some students have trouble with facilities, but he helps them get help.

India, Pakistan exchange claims of aggression

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan have accused each other of aggression in connection with the civil war in East Pakistan.

In the most serious exchange of protests since the three-week India-Pakistan war in September, 1965, both countries said Thursday that their territory had been violated.

The Indian government, for the first time since the war started on March 25, said Pakistan armed forces had been carrying out "unprovoked and unprovoked aggression" on India's border with East Pakistan.

A Foreign Ministry note delivered to the Pakistan high commissioner said the Pakistani army had fired light and medium machine guns into Indian territory, injuring Indian nationals, and had crossed the border with East Pakistan on March 25.

The Pakistan government again accused India of sending armed infiltrators into East Pakistan. Radio Pakistan said India's "hostile posture has endangered peace and tranquility in the subcontinent and has made the situation more explosive."

The radio said infiltrators and armed forces were firing "hostile elements" at the border and that a military report had described the East Pakistan situation as "serious." Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the prime minister, claimed that Indian troops had crossed over into East Pakistan.

The radio added that 30 captured Indian soldiers and a few prisoners had been killed in the fighting.

The radio said that the battle on the Pakistan side was hot and that both sides had crossed the border into East Pakistan. It claimed that the Pakistan army had been firing at the Indian border post and that a small group of Indian soldiers had been killed.

The radio added that 30 captured Indian soldiers and a few prisoners had been killed in the fighting.

Thuy ends boycott of talks

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's chief envoy to the last week's Soviet Communist party meeting in Moscow ended the boycott of the Vietnam peace talks Thursday and delivered an uncompromising renunciation of Communist peace terms the United States said the North Vietnamese were trying to dominate Indochina "at the point of a gun."

They and U.S. negotiator David K. Bruce devoted much of the truce talks to mutual acrimony over the failure of the United States to accept the U.S. invitation to open the talks.

They had boycotted the talks since March 4 to protest what they called U.S. "fears and acts of aggression" against North Vietnam. After conferencing with North Vietnamese leaders in Moscow during the weekend, Thuy decided to open the talks.

Richman defends legal judgement

By Pat Silha
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County State's Attorney Richard E. Richman said Thursday that he does not object to persons criticizing his decision to drop felony charges against two defendants in the 401 N. Washington St. shooting last November, as long as they do it on a rational basis.

He said he decided to drop the charges against Joseph Brown, 17, and Thomas Dotson, 22, after learning Wednesday that the state crime laboratory had not examined the weapons to determine whether they had been fired on the day in question.

If the critics base their objection on the assumption the defendants were guilty merely because they were arrested, they are wrong, Richman said. And if they based it on some new evidence, "they should have said something before this."

He said every case he tries involves human beings and individual bits of information and he had exhausted his best judgement in this case as he would in every case.

He said the trial of Michael Johnson (Million Dollar Bill), 22, of Chicago; James R. Holley (Bahram's Dime), 22, of Chicago; and Leonard Thomas, 20, of Carbondale, has been set for Aug. 9. The trial of Dan Maurice Jackson, 21, of Carbondale, is scheduled to follow the second trial, Richman said.

Relieved defendant calls affair racist

By Pat Silha
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"I grinned."

That was Joe Brown's first reaction to the news that the state had dropped all felony charges against him and Thomas Dotson. The charges, which were dropped Wednesday, were in connection with the shootings at 401 N. Washington Street last November.

Three other persons are awaiting trial on charges relating to the incident. Another man is charged in a separate shooting incident which occurred the same day.

Dotson was a student at the time of the incident and Brown attended Carbondale Community High School.

The men had been charged with multiple counts of attempting to commit murder and aggravated assault. They both pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges, however, they were fined $400 each and put on six months probation.

Brown said, in his opinion, the entire proceedings were racist. "Some know how to get out and some know how to get in," he said, referring to the jury selection that began Wednesday morning.

Dotson was reluctant to classify himself as a political prisoner. He said it was "up to the people to decide whether the charges being dropped against him and Dotson represented part of the victory."

He added that the decision of the people would set a precedent for any future similar legal situations.

Dotson said the proceedings had made it evident to him that "I couldn't get a jury of my peers." He said the jurors demonstrated they had been influenced by public opinion, newspapers, radio and television.

Jurors who did not show racial animosity. Dotson said, exhibited a "definite antagonism against my defense."
SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie asked the federal government Thursday to tighten substantially the restrictions on young people arrested on marijuana charges but to avoid pursuing cases against large dealers of dangerous drugs.

In a special message to the legislature on drug abuse, Ogilvie recommended one of seven "solid common sense proposals" which would allow youngsters first-time marijuana offenders, caught with only a small amount of the narcotic, to be placed on a special probation.

Under this plan, consenting to persons 18 years old or younger, the probation term could be imposed without a finding of guilt of the marijuana charge; thus sparing the youngster a criminal record.

The maximum penalty for possession of marijuana involving 5 grams or less would be reduced from one year under Ogilvie's program.

However, Ogilvie recommended penalties which he described as "tougher than those who deserve to the criminals who traffic in drugs, especially with young people.

Persons found guilty of selling 30 grams or more of heroin, cocaine or marijuana would face a minimum sentence of 10 years in prison plus the possibility of a $250,000 fine.

Those convicted of a "calculated criminal drug conspiracy" would be sentenced to at least 10 years for the first offense and 20 for the second.

Conviction on a charge of selling any dangerous drug now brings a minimum sentence of 10 years. However, Ogilvie's proposal would set the minimum sentence for selling less than 30 grams of heroin or similar drugs at one year and the maximum at 30 years.

For possession of a dangerous drug at large quantity, the proposal would raise the minimum from two to three years.

Ogilvie said in his judgement, "A case has not been made for legalizing marijuana."

There is room for legitimate controversy over the meaning of some of the research that has been done," he said.

"It also appears clearly that we are gaining much valuable information on the way we punish and criminalized marijuana users in the past," he said, "We must stop driving young men and women toward the dangerous criminals who thrives on the addictive drug culture."

"I think it is important that we work through fully to straighten out this mistake.

Layer announces GS hours back

Layer said that all three levels of study remain, but a student may enter a given level when he determines his readiness. Integrations and combinations of related courses are encouraged, and study particularly in the science area. Layer said. Courses must be taken at least three departmenals at a time in each of the areas A, B, and C.

Layer said the revision presents continuous improvement in students, background abilities and aspirations. It permits student changes in the maximum extent possible and will continue encouragement of innovations in instruction, flexibility of program and acceleration through improvements in the existing processes of advanced standing and proficiency examinations.

Among changes in GSC, the course GS 101 becomes an elective to fill the required sixteen hours.

Although a full year's work in language is encouraged, only up to six hours will be counted in GSC. Credit for language was previously given in GSC.

Two courses of English composition are still required for 6 hours credit in GSC. Speech or another written or oral examination will be included during three quarters.

Five hours of mathematics will be required in the level of the present GSC 107. This can be purchased by ACT mathematics scores or by appropriate advanced standing and proficiency examinations. Layer said.

The choice of courses to fulfill GSC requirements will be left to the student. The current health education course will no longer be required.

Layer urged faculty members to acquaint their undergraduate students with the changes as soon as possible.

Student thinks Ogilvie interested in higher ed

representing SIU, and the 45 minute meeting which he had been led to believe would last three hours was a "welcome surprise."

He said Ogilvie considered ad nominators to be "super politicians."

He added that Ogilvie also viewed higher education as being a "sacred cow" which the public is not holding for its actions. The governor did not make the point clear, Busch said, that the state legislature was also in.

Ken Maltz, chairman of the student council for the Illinois Board of Governors and representing Eastern Illinois University, said the tuition increase was discussed only in passing to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC).

"We did make the point quite well that the ISSC needs to give money to students covering above tuition, including food, clothing and supplies," Maltz said.

Maltz said he agreed with the governor that there are excesses in universities such as extravagant building programs.

Ogilvie, he said, only viewed the university as a teaching institution. But the students there felt that universities are more than that, Maltz said.

"We are universities and should be doing more than just teaching," he said. "They are involved also in community services and research for local, state and federal governments."

Ogilvie indicated to meet with them again, perhaps in three years, when officials were in town. He was interested, Maltz said.

Robert Winter, chairman of the finance subcommittee for the student advisory committee from the University of Illinois said, "If we scored any points he may have become aware that tuition increases do not correspond with adjustments in financial aid."

Winter said that although Ogilvie realized this fact he said he still doesn’t have enough money to solve the situation.

"Because universities are inefficient the current budget cuts and tuition increases could be the first towards destruction of higher education in the state," Winter said.

Approval modified by senate

After reconsideration the Senate decided to modify the authorization of the People Power Funds bill. Eleven senators felt the bill could be supported.

The Senate also passed a bill revising the General Studies Program. The Senate's action is a variation of the bill approved Thursday by the House.

The item includes a clause in the endorsement of the peace treaty to read: "This Senate hereby endorses the treaty with the provision that all members of the Senate support the peace treaty be of a non-violent character.

Alan Sadar, Brusst Tower, said the committee's function could be described as non-violent. However, he and other senators present in the modified statement would read it as a non-violent statement of peace if it were to be cut out during the next session.

Groove Tube videotaped spoof of modern TV

By Cathy Speng
Daily Californian

The Tribune Sea Otter is one live broadcast the "Wide World of Sports" that anyone can watch, but one can catch the show this weekend on "Groove Tube," a hilarious videotaped show.

The name for the show is somewhat mysterious, but one could say the show is "a closed circuit TV program being produced as an extension of the University's Community Center, sponsored by the University's Student Activities Committee. "Groove Tube" is everything TV could be, if it weren't for censorship, FCC regulations and network price pictures. The 90-minute show takes grand swipes at commercials, cooking shows, news broadcasts and movies. Some of the segments are just plain fun to watch, as when a member of the Scripps College tennis team presents a film inside a pinball machine, or a man sings "I'm Looking Over a Fence Too Close" as his partner beats the drums at the vocal cord's speed.

Other parts are comic in their banality. The Sea Otter is a scuzzy, slaphappy film, with a voice- over by announcers who comment on the "movies" like the commentaries at other physical contact sports. "Yes, there's a sweep, a half-curl, a yes, yes, it's a probe!" Unfortunaken for the viewers, transistor radio volume does not change.

'Arbor Day' now nationwide festival

By John Beauder
Capity News Service

When you ask most people what Arbor Day is, one of the first things that come to mind is a tree planting. But many people do not know how to pronounce Labor Day.

Almost every state in the Union celebrates Arbor Day in one way or another and usually in April. There is a procession and program in each city where there are arbor clubs, and there are decorative ceremonies where many trees are planted in honor of the second day of spring.

Arbor Day should be one of the most important celebrations of the year in a nation that is experiencing an environmental awakening and is taking a startled look at the sad state of its once-vast natural resources.

In case you have forgotten, Arbor Day is the annual occasion for remembering the importance of trees and for planting them in time to save the nation's trees.

So far this season, many trees have already been planted in a city park for trees that are often dropped and die when the ceremonies are over and the people gather to worship them.

Arbor Day marks one of the most dramatic conservation achievements in the nation's history. It all started when Julius Sterling Morton, a Congregational minister, farmer, journalist, and softshoe and newspaperman of the mid-19th Century, became concerned about the deforestation that was taking place in his native state.

He knew how trees could be used as windbreaks and protect fields and livestock, how they could cut down on moisture evaporation in the wearing months of summer, provide food for birds, and create much-needed shade for humans.

Provide habitat for birds and small animals, too.

When Morton became a member of the Nebraska Board of Agriculture, he urged farmers to plant trees—hundreds of them—along roads, between fields, around houses and barns. He was so eloquent about the need for trees that Nebraska planted more than a million of them in 1872.

In 1873 the governor of that state proclaimed Arbor Day, April 22, to honor Morton's birthday and his life-long crusade for trees.

Morton was already hailed as the originator and forerunner of Arbor Day all over the country in Arbor Day's early years. Since then, the plantings have become more symbolic than a real attack on the nation's great need for reforestation.

Arbor Day should become a day of national concern for a razed environment, for eroded hills and farmlands once covered with stands of trees and now stripped bare from the Atlantic to the prairies and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Many millions of trees have will have to be planted before the nation begins to make up for a hundred years of thoughtless destruction.

Trees are desperately needed to cover the eroded and remain millions of worthless acres suffering from water and wind. You see these trees and glimpsed hills all over America, from the Ozark hills of Kentucky to the overgrown reaches of Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle.

Millions of trees are needed to counteract the lumber industry sprawl, for the vast number of forests that have been cut in a year to subdivide homes, highways, shopping centers and city parks.

Intensive reforestation on bare fields and eroded hillsides is need to a better job of flood control than billions of dollars in invested in the cost.

Not as dramatic. Not as helpless to over-emphasized, not as difficult to profit from, or over-emphasized bureaucracies. But much more useful in the long run.

A street tree doesn't prevent destructive, non-radiating runoff.

It helps springs and streams during the dry months of the year.

There is, of course, extensive reforestation being done in this country and the rest of the world.

The United States can learn a lesson from Israel, which honors the Roman Foundation Day.

Israel was founded as a nation in 1948, it's soldiers planted more than 100 million acres of parched acres that plant for cover for more than 200 acres of its farms.

They have planted trees on hillsides and mountainous areas, valleys, along roads and in city parks. Anyone who plants 20,000 trees receives a gold medal.

An interesting and not entirely unmoney behind this planting is the increase in precipitation. Trees increase moisture, encourage rainfall.

To many large trees, their roots are on hot, summer days. Useful, too, for paper, timber and Christmas decorations.

America's smog-ridden cities and towns, the experts tell us, had better turn to trees, and millions of them.

To start putting more oxygen into air dangerously overloaded with sulfur dioxide, to choke, human,ize, deteriorate paint and metal, and destroy the beauty of buildings.

All green plants produce oxygen.

Trees produce more of it than anything else.

According to the American Forest Institute, the average acre of forested land produces enough oxygen to supply the needs of last people and some animals and birds.

For every 680 acres of forest land that is cut down for crops, highways or subdivisions, we lose the potential oxygen supply for 2,500 people, plus fish, firs, wildlife and livestock.

A free-planting effort is required in this country every year just to replace timber lost by forest fires, most of them made mass by arsonists and careless campers. As much as more timberland destroyed each year by insects.

Why the big thing of Arbor Day?

"Trees," as "Underwood of Agriculture Plt Campbell put it, "mean greenery, shade for valuable industries and amenity, woodland, shelter and waterfalls, camping grounds, shooting, hunting, watering, wooded, wildlife, lumber, paper, game.

Aboriginals, they mean beauty, grandeur and spiritual renewal."

Governor to speak at student banquet

By University News Service

Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will deliver the banquet address Saturday at the 43rd annual conference of the Illinois Student Association at the Rockford Conference Center.

David Raifer, head of Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE), the student volunteer organization, predicted that more than 300 students from 85 colleges will attend. He said a press conference has been scheduled following the banquet.

Raifer said the conference consists of all colleges and universities in the State of Illinois that have volunteer student programs. This first conference, cosponsored by the ICYS and the Governor's Committee on Volunteer Action, will be held in workshop form.

Topics for Saturday and Sunday, include developing programs through existing community organizations, volunteer education, evaluation, program leadership, initiating, the volunteer program, identifying community needs, quality, working with the mental and physically handicapped, cultural alteration, drugs and volunteer roles in education and treatment, what works with senior citizens, what works with migrants, tutoring and educational reinforcement, relations, community and university, and utilizing the creative arts.

Conference participants will hear from a representative of the Governor. Raifer said Colleges that do not have ICYS programs are also coming to learn how to start programs of their own.

ICYS members include SUO, College of DuPage; Illinois State University, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; Illinois College; Pennsylvania State University; University of Illinois at Chicago; Indiana University; Northern Illinois University; Western Illinois University; and Illinois College.

Nixon wants $9 billion

City development department sought

By C.C. Thomas, Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Part of the new facing local governments in search of federal aid would most likely be spent on $9 billion worth of programs in a new Department of City Development.

With the new department, the President says, communities such as Highland, Ohio, no longer have to apply for aid to three federal agencies with regional offices in three separate cities.

Cities such as Cambridge, Mass., would be able to apply for funds from the separate federal and state urban renewal and housing programs under 120 different kinds of regulations.

The Nixon plan would gather related programs in five departments and three agencies into the new Community Development Department. Added to the duties of the present Department of Housing and Urban Development would be highway and mass transit programs from the Department of Transportation; development programs from the Commerce Department; rural housing, water and sewer, and education programs from the Agriculture Department; and library grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Other programs,—such as community action, would come from the Office of Economic Opportunity, Small Business Administration, and Appalachian Regional Commission.

Here is a question-and-answer format in the administration's view of how the department would operate and its advantages:

Q. What's wrong with things the way they are?

A. There is no single government organization with the responsibility and authority to coordinate and direct federal assistance for community development. For example, HUD and Agriculture each have programs for housing, water and sewer lines and recreational areas.

Q. How would the new organization help local governments?

A. They would draw up one comprehensive development plan, including transportation, housing and community facilities and services, and get funds from one federal agency rather than eight.

Q. How will the department promote more orderly national development?

A. The impact of proposed transportation systems, for example, on local utilization, housing patterns...

Doctor stings patients with wasps for health

CHICAGO (AP) — A Connecticut doctor stings his patients with wasps for health.

It is part of a treatment to desensitize patients who are allergic to wasp stings, and Dr. Mary Hewitt Loveless of Westport, Conn. said nobody knows how many people are allergic to wasps or other insects, but she thinks it is "almost as common as hay fever."

Reactions to wasp stings can range from simple hives to shock and even death.

Animal contest, school scheduled

By University News Service

A dairy and livestock judging school and contest for 6-11 members of several nearby counties in connection with the dairy and beef cattle, sheep and swine shows will be conducted by the UII livestock centers in Carbondale April 24, according to G. B. Martin, chairman of the SIU animal industries department, host for the event.

Visiting 4-H members will represent the 6-11 divisions. The Dairy Center east of the SIU campus will have its Fair Day, April 5, followed by animal judging, showmanship demonstration with dairy and beef cattle, sheep and swine until noon under direction of SIU staff members.

Similar reactions are sometimes produced by bee stings.

Usually, patients known to be allergic to insects are treated with a series of injections prepared commercially. But Dr. Loveless said these preparations contain the coagulant in the venom and thus are not as strong as the venom.

SIU journalism professor elected foundation chairman

Carl R. Baldwin, director of training at the St. Louis Post Dispatch and a visiting professor of journalism at SIU, has been elected chairman of the Board of Control of the Journalism Foundation of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The foundation annually awards journalism scholarships to young persons of the St. Louis area.

Baldwin was chosen by the previous chairman of the four journalism organizations which comprise the foundation. They are the Associated Press, St. Louis Press Club, Max Roeth, St. Louis Press Club, Sigma Delta Chi, Mr. Barbara Finch, St. Louis Press Club, Professional Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi and Miss Ottschulli Industrial Press Association of Greater St. Louis.

The foundation will award five $500 scholarships May 18 in St. Louis when Turner Cricket, former executive editor of the New York Times and author of the book "My Life and the Times" will be the guest speaker.
Red China shows new friendship

By John Roderick

PEKING (AP) — Suddenly Chinese-American relations have taken a great leap forward. The question now is: Can normalcy be maintained?

Premier Chou En-lai established the new look when he told U.S. table tennis players and officials that "it is a new page" in links between the two nations has been opened and that Americans soon may be streaming to the mainland.

The serious intent of this promise is shown by the presence in the Earth Day pleas fail

Problem of pollution getting worse

By James H. Phillips

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earth Day a plan for a beginning of an end in pollution, dramatizes the depth of public concern for the health of the planet Earth.

Celebrated a year ago next Thursday, the nation's first Earth Day pointed accusing fingers at inaction by industry, government and individual citizens.

All were described as responsible for eye-burning smoke, pothead water, scarred and ravaged mountain ranges, choking wild life, the acrid stench of jet exhausts, the choking mess of planes and traffic, the empty beers can along the road, the birth of a child on a planet already viewed by some as over-populated.

Now, one year later, the question is asked: what has been accomplished. Are the air and water cleaner? Has the degradation of the earth been halted?

In a word, of course things are probably dirtier and the water is probably dirtier than ever before.

People's Republic of the players and three U.S. correspondents perished in Peking.

Until Chou's meeting with the team, no one was sure if they could measure the Chinese china. The warmth with which Chou greeted the Americans suggested that China's offer of friendship at the highest level is no passing fancy.

The door has been opened more than a socialist sees.

The Chinese have attached no conditions to their promise toward a country whose government they still regard as wrong headed and, in its policy toward Vietnam, hostile.

It would be underestimating American policy, however, to suppose that their campaign of smiles is based on a new-fangled affection for America. Possibly the affections for individual Americans always has been there, but it has not been judged useful or political for nearly two decades to reveal people-to-people contacts. In the past it has been responsible that the barriers have been too high and that Americans are now looking for the barrier to come down.

What those barriers have not been opened up, but that is likely to be apparent soon.

A first test in that Peking hopes to give in the U.S. opportunity.

The Chinese have announced agreement on China trade. Word of the Nixon administration's new moves toward relaxation of the rules reached Peking in the middle of the night, and no reaction is yet evident. The ping-pong players chosen to be the catalysts for this trans-

Foundation Board to meet next week at Litchfield

The SIU Foundation Board will hold its spring meeting Thursday in Litchfield. Kenneth R. Miller, Foundation executive director, has announced.

Foundation financial reports from the Carbondale and Edwardsville Campuses, reports from the research and projects, media placing and business and industrial relations committees as well as staff reports will be submitted. A nominating committee for next year's officers will be appointed. V. Dale Ouellet of Champaign, Foundation president, will chair the meeting, to be held at The Garden on Route 60, starting at 3 p.m. A coffee and social period will precede the business meeting.

Following luncheon, members desiring to do so will have a bus tour of Lake Yanger starting at 1:30 and a conducted tour of "House of Sunray" starting at 2:30 p.m.

Center plans carry-out food service

The University Center Food Service is in the process of establishing a carry-out service, according to Ron Ragan, manager of the food service.

Ragan said he is interested in receiving opinions from individuals or groups about the proposed service.

The carry-out service, if implemented, would be available from 4 a.m. until 5 p.m., offering a limited menu of Mexican food, hot dogs, hamburgers and dinner menus. The carry-out service would allow groups or individuals to place orders in advance and pick up the food. Ragan said this would help alleviate congestion at the University Center and Woody Hall during lunch periods.

Ragan also explained that the system would allow one person to pick up food for an entire group. Ragan said that items such as a limited menu of Mexican food, hot dogs, hamburgers and dinner menus would be available.

SIU man wins theater award

By University News Service

James Maloon, a doctoral degree student in theater, has been named best actor in the 1977 University of Illinois College Theater Festival which was held March 25 and 26. April 4 and 5.

Maloon received the 800 award for his role in the play "The Caretaker" by Harold Pinter which was given three performances at the festival by SIU's Southern Players.

There were 18 college theater groups which won the right to appear at the festival in regional competitions with 360 students from four colleges from throughout the United States.

Maloon and Washburn are bachelor's and master's degree in theater and speech at University of Illinois. Before coming to SIU in the winter of 1976, he had studied at Kansas State Teachers College in Emporia, Georgia College, Milligdeville, and Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

SIU black choir to sing Sunday

The program will be part of the Rockhill Baptist Church Centennial Celebration. A 3 p.m. program will feature the Rev. W.H. Clark, pastor of the Morning Star Baptist Church of Murphy, and his choir. Also appearing will be the First United Methodist Church Choir of Carbondale, under the direction of Charles Taylor.

Teen-ager paralyzed; friends 'move' for him

CHICAGO (AP) - David Yest, 17, placed in a hospital bed to ensure that he would not move, was paralyzed in a trampoline accident in January, but his friends are making moves for him.

The school is a two-story building with high windows and nearly all the residents of four Chicago suburbs are joining in a massive fund-raising effort to aid the teen-ager who has been transferred from Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital to the Rehabilitation Institute.

Some of the benefits include car wash, trash collection, sports events and a 1971 imitation of the Depression-era dance marathon.

May 7 will be "David Yest Day" in Franklin Park, Rossmoorw, Schiller Park and River Grove, four western suburbs. Yest is a resident of River Grove.

All the money raised will go to a fund for the youth's college education.

David, a National Honor Society member, planned to study music, theory and science in the fall at either Cornell College in Iowa or Northern Illinois University.

But his ambition were put off.

Perhaps loses house

while working, sleeping

NEW YORK - America has become the land of the commuter as more and more families commute to the suburbs to avoid the hazards of big city living. According to researchers, at a watch company, the average commuter spends ap proximately 390 hours a year going to and from work. Add this to the approximately 2000 hours a year spent working and the 2000 hours spent sleeping and a man is left with only 400 hours to spend with his family, read or pursue hobbies.

Jackson, Union area
first stop on survey

By Illinois Information Service
SPRINGFIELD - The first on a schedule of geological field trips sponsored by the Illinois State Geological Survey will be a tour of parts of Jackson and Union counties in Southern Illinois, according to David L. Remsen, director and head of the survey's Educational Extension section.

Located in the Illinois Ozarks, Makanda area's sharp topography was developed by a differential erosion of early Pennsylvanian and late Mississippian shales, sandstones and limestones. Remsen said. Erosion is also responsible for the unusual features exhibited by the Pennsylvania pinnacles at scenic Giant City State Park.

Persons who wish to attend this trip should assemble at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 24, at Giant City Lodge.

Remsen said the tours will cover some of the most scenic and geologically interesting areas in Illinois.

The field trips, conducted each fall and spring as a service to the school's scientific, are open to the public. Remsen pointed out that grade school children must be accompanied by their parents or other responsible adults. High school science students may attend when supervised by at least one adult for each 10 students.

Each trip consists of a day long tour concentrating on developing an understanding of the geological processes that have formed the rocks, mineral resources, and the present landscape of the area. Geology leaflets and maps furnished in the tours are designed to aid teachers and others interested in conducting these tours are available to a later time.

Remsen said the field trip in the Makanda area marks the southernmost extent of the Illinoian glaciation some 300,000 years ago. Caves formed before Pleistocene glaciation occur in the Kinkaid Limestone. Mississippian strata are of good fossil collecting, he said.

The season's second trip will be a repeat of the popular Hamilton and Washington excursion held last fall. The Hamilton County locality offers the beautiful Mississippi valleys, where high relief along the Blvd presents excellent exposure of fossiliferous middle Mississippian formations including the geode-bearing Warren shale.

Locally, look for fossils of Pennsylvanian and Kansas age are exposed, and Wisconsin limestone known as the Eau Claire and the Warren Shale. Hamilton Community High School is the starting point for this trip on Saturday, May 8.

Abandoned coal mines and the history of the lead and zinc mining district in Saline County will be among the topics of interest discussed during the excursion scheduled for the Galena area of mid-May 22, the last trip of the spring season. This trip will take place in the southern part of the DePauw Area, a picturesque region of unglaciated valley terraces in northwestern Illinois and southwestern Wisconsin. Ancient peninsulas are left in the region's long evolutionary history.

Also scheduled for examination and discussion during the day will be the Silurian encrustation, the gorge of the Mississippi River and exposures of Silurian and Ordovician strata, which offer good opportunities for collectors. Remsen said. Warren fossils include the sunflower coral, Receptacles, and the famous "depgressiv" fauna of the Macroplea Shale.

Participants in the Galena field trip should meet at Galena High School Registration, which consists of signing an indemnity waiver form. The trip takes place from 8 a.m. to 8 a.m. preceding each field trip. Trips end at 4 p.m. Participants must take a packed lunch and arrange their own transportation.

Remsen, emphasized that we hope students come on the trip with a full tank of gas. Durable clothing and boots are recommended. Those who wish to do some collecting bring a geological hammer and cold chisel.

'Live-in with Bucky' film to premiere here tonight

By University News Service

A 160-minute color film on future-philosopher B. Buckminster Fuller will be premiered Friday night.

'Buckminster Fuller on Spaceship Earth'—described by Producer Robert Snyder as a "Live-in with Bucky"—will be shown at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium. Tickets are priced at 50 cents for main floor seats and $1 for the balcony.

Snyder, Fuller's son-in-law, produced a 60-minute version of the film which was seen earlier this year on NBC's "Experiment in Television." Snyder said the SIU premiere of the expanded film will proceed nationwide theater distribution.

Snyder has produced a number of award-winning films including "The Titan, Story of Michelangelo," "1900," "Ocean" prize-winner for documentaries.

Scenes include Fuller, university professor, with students at his World Resources Inventory offices at SIU, his Bear Island, Maine, retreat, and his various discoveries and designs ranging from the early Dynaflow automobile to modern geodesic domes and space-frame structures.

The SIU showing is being sponsored by the campus student chapter of the Committee for the Future.

Golfers play in Illinois tourny

With a three-meet winning streak going, the SIU golf team takes in the round this weekend to compete in the Illinois Invitational Tournament, Saturday and Sunday.

The tigers will attract nearly all the IL Div 1 Coaches aside plus Dyke, Drake, Missouri Bradley and Midwestern Conferences, members also to be out to represent Northern Illinois.

In the first meeting, Southern finished seventh and SIU coach Lynn Hackett is hoping for an improvement this season. "If we can finish first this season, we will win the conference," said Hackett.

Saturday's match was played in the NCAA's Invitational Tournament in 1987, will also play along with ex-SIU Ed Salyer.

Grass Rockcreek, NCAA free-throws, will return.

The SIU team will be led by Ron Bargren who leads the team in scoring.

Teescore are available from Speed scott and at the information desk in the University Center Board.

Proceeds will be used for special research scholarships and to sponsor the SIU Paper Production Team and to sponsor the SIU Paper Production Team and to sponsor the SIU Paper Production Team and to sponsor the SIU Paper Production Team and to sponsor the SIU Paper Production Team.

Defensive purposes.

Finally, Manager Ted Williams took him out of the first game. Sunday's doubleheader in the eighth inning and he didn’t put him in the lineup in the second game. His manager put him out of the starting lineups in the following two games. But he ran for Frank Howard Tuesday night and scored a run.

I’ve talked to Frank, said Williams, and he understands perfectly. I’ve been playing it to get to see some runs. We weren’t getting them and maybe the change of position will get us still early in the season and I don’t believe the team has a problem with all the individuals who have been coming off, said Williams. "I’m not sure we have any same names."

One of these players that will help the Tigers come up with a name will be SIU’s Academic Junior champion and in 11-8-14 the season. Changing up the lineup in the SIU’s Jose Ramirez is hoe has has not yet seen a game.

Royce, who was Canadian champ, is out to Remer Monday, 9-7-73.

Memphis State has had somewhat better luck with Mississippi State coming in on the long end of a 5-4 score after losing earlier in the season.

At No. 2, SIU’s Graham Snook will be challenged by Mark Booth who has been defeated three times in 16 matches.

Ironically, the best record on the Memphis State team squad are in the No. 3 pair. Gary Lydig with a 14-2 mark. Lydig will square off against Mike Claymore. Claymore is in his last match, beating Mississippi State’s Bill Davi 7-6, 6-4.

In the doubles competition, Memphis State with No 4 singles match David Barry will face against SIU’s Ramirez and Snook. The Memphis State doubles also has won times in 16 matches.

At No. 2, SIU’s Graham Snook will be challenged by Kevin Green who will challenge Chris Greeneawel and Royce. Against the third doubles will be occupied by SIU’s Claymore and Mike Clayton.

FLOOD hasn’t made splash

WASHINGTON (AP) - Curt Flood hasn’t made the splash he expected during the first week of the baseball season after his year out of baseball.

Flood, persuaded by owner Bob St. John to sign a three-year contract and come out of his self-imposed exile, is sitting on the Washington Senators bench with a 120 batting average but he isn’t ready to jump in the towel.

We just April, the 35-year-old outfielder was traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies. Flood refused to report. He told his team he was getting 350-below average. He had it moved from New York and signed a contract with baseball and the reserve-classification.

After setting out a year, St. John induced him to return to baseball. St. John, a member of the federal court and will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

It was a difficult spring for Flood, when he was almost getting back into shape in the glare of the publicity. He was not the only one who did not want to see Flood for the Senators last week but was offed on Wednesday after it is out of the running order in the SIU’s second game. His manager put him out of the starting lineups in the following two games. But he ran for Frank Howard Tuesday night and scored a run.

Proposal accepted to remodel stadium

Chair-back and bench-back seats, 2,500 in all, should be on the west side. Ten thousand permanent seats in a prefabricated concrete structure would be installed, Boydston said.

The plan includes seating over 2,500 behind the press box with room for 60 press and electronic media workers plus the possibility of a three-story parking lot across from the University Center and adjoining the stadium.

Trombone, toilets could be one of the major expenditures for the renovated stadium, possibly more than the artifical playing surface.

"There would have to be many toilets in the place because even with what we have now, we don't have enough," Boydston said. "I don't know exactly how much toilets could cost but it might be $100,000 or more for all the toilets necessary for that many people."

William Hart, architect for the Carbondale campus, said the number of stadium toilets must be upped from its present 23 to comply with state regulations.

Boydston said the University can save a substantial amount of money by using the prefabricated concrete structure for student seating.

Steel-reinforced concrete would be brought in here in big blocks and it is a very cheap way to do it but a very good way to do it," he said.

"If you pour the stadium like a big monolithic structure, it's extremely expensive.

Four light poles, two on each side of the field, would be moved to make room for expanded stands and the canoe pooler would be increased, Boydston said.

How much will this renovation cost and where will the money come from? "I can't say what it will cost," Boydston said. "I can say that the approximate cost, including an

Proposal accepted to remodel stadium

This year's version of the Illini is 52, not having had the benefit of a spring trip or any major college competition.

"Money's the problem," said U of I sports information director and former SIU assistant Norm Sheyer. "Football supports the whole program here and we just haven't been selling that many football tickets lately."

SIU head coach Rich "Ticky" Jones isn't about to forecast a rout, however. "A Big Ten school is a Big Ten school and you just don't go running all over the Big Ten," said Jones as he ran his players through batting practice Thursday in preparation for the series - they all are.

Jones indicated he will start Dick Langdon in the Friday game and if the Illini have set Dave Engle. Engle has hit his first with an 8-4, season record and a 1.12 earned run average.

Langdon is now 3-1 for the year, his only loss coming at the hands of UCLA in the semifinals of the Fullerton Invitational Tournament, 6-3, in March.

Eight of the Illinois team are hitting over .300. Two of them have hit over .350, Shoul and r's son.

"We've adopted George Ames Plimpton," Boydston said Thursday afternoon, referring to a Communications Building room that has been turned into a temporary office.

They had the man who dated Queen Elizabeth before she was queen of the man who, probably more than any other writer, has made .

"Plimpton, who is a stickler about people rather than public property" and the "Paper Lion."

But the people followed him from the SIU Arena to the slightly cluttered room in the Department of Cinema and Photography. They followed the graying Boydston, and followed the television studio where he taped a "Killed by a Program" show.

When it was time for the Professional Amateur to leave, the people followed him out the door. They dispersed slowly.

Some stood in a little group and watched walk down the hall through the double doors. "He's a cool head," one guy remarked.

"Very cool headed" named Plimpton a writer, a damn good one who puts words together for Sports Illustrated.

"But in his own mind Plimpton is an editor. Writing, he says, is work."

"In the public's eye. George Ames Plimpton is one of those men who has it made. Carefree Talented. In the limelight."

"He's an ever-lasting Walter Mitty character who always lives on the field."

"Really, what you face is humiliation," he told a Thursday conversation gathering.

"You get destroyed"

"Everyone says how lucky you are to play tennis with Pancho Gonzalez and then with the 'Detroit' Lions. What do you do in what happens because you are an amateur is that you get destroyed and it is very humiliating."

"Plimpton has tried more sports as a "professional" than most people even attempt on an amateur basis."

First came baseball. He pitched in Yosemite Stadium for the New York Post. The All-Stars against the Willie Mays All-Stars.

"I had a lot of heck in the game," the smiling Plimpton said.

"I got Rich Ashburn on a popfly and then I got Willie Mays on a popfly."

"Then, it was caught near the monuments in centerfield. But, I got him out."

On to football and the Detroit Lions.

My greatest trouble with professional football was the tremendous speed at which everything moved."

He was frequently trimmed under foot by his own offensive linemen. Says Plimpton, "The defense would shout at the offense. 'Let him stand up long enough for us to get in it."

On to basketball and the Boston Celtics.

"There's a big Bill Russell giving me my instructions—which were not to bat the ball."

He didn't.

And the Celtics closed a 29-point gap to about 10 points in a game against the Atlanta Hawks. Plimpton came out. John Havlicek went in.

That, said Plimpton, was a great strategic blunder.

"The players really played marvellously while I was there and the compensation for the deficiency," he said.

"George Ames Plimpton was a great story teller Thursdays."
